Damages for breach of covenants for title.—If, after execution of the conveyance and payment of the purchase-money, it is discovered that the vendor had no title to the estate he professed to sell, and the purchaser is evicted, and brings his action for a breach of the ordinary covenants for title and quiet enjoyment, the measure of damages will be the amount of purchase-money paid for the estate, and all incidental damages flowing from the breach of contract, such as the costs and expenses of preparing the conveyance and investigating the title. If the breach has not been followed by any eviction of the purchaser, the latter should wait until the ultimate damage has been sustained by eviction; and he may then as soon as he has been disturbed in his possession and enjoyment of the property

(l) Roswell v. Vaughan, Cro. Jac. 196.

(m) Hume v. Pocock, L.R. 1 Ch. 379; 35 L.J. Ch. 731.

(n) Edwards v. M'Leay, Coop. Ch. 313; 2 Swanst. 287; Early v. Garrett, 9 B. & C. 932; 8 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 76; Mostyn v. West Mostyn Coal and Iron Co., 1 C.P.D. 145; 45 L.J. C.P. 401.

(o) Edwards v. Wickwar, L.R. 1 Eq. 68; 35 L.J. Ch. 48.

(p) Hart v. Swaine, 7 Ch.D. 42; 47 L.J. Ch. 5.

(q) Jendwine v. Slade, 2 Esp. 572.

recover the whole amount of purchase-money paid, with interest, and his costs and expenses (r).

If, between the execution of the conveyance and the time of eviction, the purchaser has expended money upon the land in drainage, buildings, and improvements, he will not be allowed to recover from the vendor the amount of capital so expended, unless the latter has been guilty of a fraud in the sale of the estate (s); neither could he by the common law recover the money so expended from the party who evicted him. But, in equity, if the land was known to have been purchased for the erection of buildings, and the purchaser was evicted after having expended money in building, the purchaser had, in certain cases, a claim upon the land for the amount of his expenditure (t). So, where land was sold for building purposes and the purchaser having built a house upon it discovered that there was a right of way over part of the land which had been innocently undisclosed by the vendor, it was held that there had been a breach of the covenant for title, the damages in respect of which were the difference between the value of the property as conveyed and its value as the vendor had power to convey it (u). If the purchaser has not been evicted, but has entered into a fair compromise with the real owner or party having title paramount, he will be entitled to recover the whole amount paid by way of compromise, together with his costs and expenses (x). If an estate has been sold as freehold, with a general covenant that the vendor is seised in fee, and the estate proves to be copyhold, the measure of damages will be the difference between the value of a freehold and copyhold estate (y). Where, however, after a conveyance of land with a covenant of title, a decree was made that the land was subject to a general right of common, it was held that, without express evidence of the grant of such a right by the grantor, or his predecessors in title, there was no breach of the covenant (z).

Non-payment of purchase-money after execution of conveyance.—If the conveyance expresses, contrary to the fact, that the purchase-money is paid, though the legal estate passes, the vendor may, in circumstances, have a lien on the property for the unpaid purchase-money, for in equity the estate does (r) 2 Saund. 181, b; Shep. Touch. 170; King v. Jones, 5 Taunt. 418; ante, p. 507.

(s) Lewis v. Campbell, 8 Taunt. 715, 727, 729; Worthington v. Warrington, 8 C.B. 134; 18 L.J. C.P. 350.

(t) Bunny v. Hopkinson, 29 L.J. Ch. 93; 27 Beav. 565.

(u) Turner v. Moon, (1901) 2 Ch. 825; 70 L.J. Ch. 822.

(x) Smith v. Compton, 3 B. & Ad. 407; 3 L.J. (O.S.) K. B. 40.

(y) Gray v. Briscoe, Noy, 142.

(z) Howard v. Maitland, 11 Q.B.D. 695; 53 L.J. Q.B. 42.

not pass until the actual payment of the price—until the vendor has received that consideration for which it appears by the deed he contracted to part with his estate (a).

Sale of pretenced titles.—A pretenced right or title is where one is in possession or receipt of the rents and profits of lands, &c., as owner, and another that is out of possession claims them or sues for them (b). By 32 Hen. 8, c. 9, s. 4, persons in possession of lands, &c., and in receipt of the rents and profits thereof, may buy or acquire the pretenced title of other persons afterwards to be made. And, since the repeal of s. 2 by the Land Transfer Act, 1897, 60 & 61 Vict. c. 65, s. 11, it is no longer necessary that the seller or grantor or their predecessors in title should have been in possession for one whole year previously to the disposition being made. So, by the Real Property Act, 1845, 8 & 9 Vict. c. 106, s. 6, a grant of lands to which the grantor has a title in fact, though he has never been in possession, will be valid although litigation is pending (c). The onus is on the plaintiff to prove not only that the title purchased was bad, but that the buyer knew it to be fictitious or bad in fact (d).

Fraudulent concealment—Avoiding sales on the ground of.—Where a vendor, knowing that he has no right or title to property, or being cognizant of the existence of incumbrances or outgoings, or of latent defects materially lowering its value in the market, sells it without disclosing these matters to the purchaser (e), there is a fraudulent concealment vitiating the contract; and conditions of sale, not drawn bonâ fide, but intended to cover difficulties arising from such uncommunicated defects, will not preclude the purchaser from objecting to them (f). So it is where the vendor of a lease, liable to forfeiture for non-repair of the premises after notice, sells the premises in a dilapidated state, after receipt of notice, without informing the purchaser of the fact (g). There may also be fraudulent concealment by a purchaser such as to vitiate a sale, as where a person having secret information of the death of one of two

(a) Winter v. Anson (Lord), 3 Russ. 488; 6 L.J. (O.S.) Ch. 7; that no lien was created by the circumstances was held in Clarke v. Royle, 3 Sim. 499; Parrott v. Sweetland, 3 My. & K. 655; Jersey (Earl of) v. Briton Ferry Floating Dock Co., L.R. 7 Eq. 409; Brentwood Brick and Coal Co., In re, 4 Ch.D. 562; 46 L.J. Ch. 554.

(b) Partridge v. Strange, Plowd. 77, 88; Jenkins v. Jones, 9 Q.B.D. 128, 134; 51 L.J. Q.B. 438.

(c) Jenkins v. Jones, supra.

(d) Kennedy v. Lyell, 15 Q.B.D. 491.

(e) Shirley v. Stratton, 1 Br. C.C. 440; Edwards v. M'Leay, 2 Swanst. 287; Coop. Ch.C. 308; Peto v. Blades, 5 Taunt. 657; Fuller v. Wilson, 3 Q.B. 58; 11 L.J. Q.B. 251; cp. Leyland and Taylor's Contract, In re, (1900) 2 Ch. 625; 69 L.J. Ch. 764.

(f) Jackson v. Whitehead, 28 Beav. 154; Hume v. Pocock, L.R. 1 Ch. 379; 35 L.J. Ch. 731.

(g) Stevens v. Adamson, 2 Stark. 422.

tenants for life, purchases the reversion without disclosing the fact to selling reversioners (h). But in a general sale of an estate, if the vendor has said or done nothing to throw the purchaser off his guard or to conceal a patent defect, there is no fraudulent concealment on the part of the vendor (i). So, where a meadow is sold without notice being given to the purchaser of a public footway around the meadow and another across it, there is no fraudulent concealment on the part of the vendor (k). And where an estate was described as being within a ring-fence, but did not answer the description, and it appeared that the purchaser had lived in the neighbourhood all his life, and had gone over the estate before he entered into the contract, it was held that there was no warranty and no deceit (l). On the other hand, the purchaser may use his own knowledge, and is not bound to give the vendor information of the value of the property; thus, if an estate is offered for sale, and a person treats for it, knowing that there is a mine under it, and the vendor makes no inquiry, that person is not bound to give him any information of it (m).

Sale subject to any defect or error.—If it be made a term of the contract that the subject-matter of the sale is to be taken with all faults, this stipulation will release the vendor from the obligation of disclosing all such defects as are susceptible of discovery by a rigid examination of the subject-matter of sale (n). But where the vendor of a house, knowing of a defect in the main wall, plastered it up and papered it over for the purpose of concealing it from the purchaser, this was held to be a direct fraud, which avoided the contract of sale and enabled the purchaser to recover the purchase-money (o).

SECTION II.

ORDINARY CONTRACTS FOR SALE OF GOODS.

Preliminary.—The subject of buying and selling goods and chattels is now dealt with in the Sale of Goods Act, 1893 (p), but it is still necessary for the proper understanding of the subject-matter that reference should be made to the cases decided prior to that Act, and therefore many of the authorities

(h) Turner v. Harvey, 1 Jac. 169.

(i) Jones v. Bright, 3 Moo. & P. 155, 175; 7 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 213; Fitzh. N.B. 94, C.

(k) Bowles v. Round, 5 Ves. 508.

(l) Dyer v. Hargrave, 10 Ves. 505.

(m) Turner v. Harvey, Jac. 169, 178; Walters v. Morgan, 3 De G. F. & J. 718, 723; Coaks v. Boswell, 11 App.Cas. 232; 55 L.J. Ch. 761; Davis v. Ohrly 14 T.L.R. 260.

(n) Pickering v. Dowson, 4 Taunt. 779.

(o) Anon., cited in Pickering v. Dowson, supra, at p. 785.

(p) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71.

are retained as illustrations. It must be borne in mind that although the Act of 1893 is mainly a codification of the law, it is also in part an amending Act (q).

It should further be noticed in dealing with contracts of sale that the Act also provides generally that "where any right, duty, or liability would arise under a contract of sale by implication of law, it may be negatived or varied by express agreement or by the course of dealing between the parties, or by usage, if the usage be such as to bind both parties to the contract" (r).

Sale and agreement to sell (s).—"A contract of sale of goods is a contract whereby the seller transfers or agrees to transfer the property in goods to the buyer for a money consideration, called the price. There may be a contract of sale between one part owner and another (t). A contract of sale may be absolute or conditional (u). Where under a contract of sale the property in the goods is transferred from the seller to the buyer the contract is called a sale; but where the transfer of the property in the goods is to take place at a future time or subject to some condition thereafter to be fulfilled the contract is called an 'agreement to sell' (x). An agreement to sell becomes a sale when the time elapses or the conditions are fulfilled subject to which the property in the goods is to be transferred" (y).

A condition cannot be imposed on a sale of goods so as to

(q) The following are the principal saving clauses to the Act:—

By sect. 60 "the enactments mentioned in the schedule to this Act are hereby repealed as from the commencement of this Act to the extent in that schedule mentioned. Provided that such repeal shall not affect anything done or suffered, or any right, title, or interest acquired or accrued before the commencement of this Act, or any legal proceeding or remedy in respect of any such thing, right, title or interest."

By sect. 61, "(1.) The rules in bankruptcy relating to contracts of sale shall continue to apply thereto, notwithstanding anything in this Act contained.

"(2.) The rules of the common law, including the law merchant, save in so far as they are inconsistent with the express provisions of this Act, and in particular the rules relating to the law of principal and agent and the effect of fraud, misrepresentation, duress or coercion, mistake or other invalidating cause, shall continue to apply to contracts for the sale of goods.

"(3.) Nothing in this Act or in any repeal effected thereby shall affect the enactments relating to bills of sale, or any enactment relating to the sale of goods which is not expressly repealed by this Act.

"(4.) The provisions of this Act relating to contracts of sale do not apply to any transaction in the form of a contract of sale which is intended to operate by way of mortgage, pledge, charge, or other security."

(r) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 55.

(s) The following terms, which are used in sect. 1, are defined by sect. 62 of the Act:—

"Buyer" means a person who buys or agrees to buy goods.

"Goods" include all chattels personal other than things in action or money. The term includes emblements and things attached to or forming part of the land which are agreed to be severed before sale or under the contract of sale.

"Property" means the general property in goods, and not merely a special property.

"Sale" includes a bargain and sale as well as a sale and delivery.

"Seller" means a person who sells or agrees to sell goods.

(t) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 1 (1).

(u) Ib., s. 1 (2).

(x) Ib., s. 1 (3).

(y) Ib., s. 1 (4).

run with the goods and be enforceable against subsequent purchasers by the original vendor, even though the subsequent purchasers had notice of it at the time of their purchase (z).

Capacity to buy and sell.—"Capacity to buy and sell is regulated by the general law concerning capacity to contract, and to transfer and acquire property. Provided that where necessaries are sold and delivered to an infant (a), or to a person who by reason of mental incapacity (b) or drunkenness (c) is incompetent to contract, he must pay a reasonable price therefor. Necessaries in this section mean goods suitable to the condition in life of such infant or other person, and to his actual requirements at the time of the sale and delivery" (d).

Contract of sale, how made.—Subject to the provisions of the Act and of any statute in that behalf, "a contract of sale may be made in writing (either with or without seal), or by word of mouth, or partly in writing and partly by word of mouth, or may be implied from the conduct of the parties. Provided that nothing in this section shall affect the law relating to corporations" (e). A person takes a chattel as a general rule subject to what may turn out to be flaws in the title (f).

Contract of sale for 10*l. and upwards.*—"A contract for the sale of any goods of the value of ten pounds or upwards shall not be enforceable by action unless the buyer shall accept part (ff) of the goods so sold, and actually receive the same, or give something in earnest to bind the contract, or in part payment, or unless some note or memorandum in writing of the contract be made and signed by the party to be charged or his agent in that behalf (g). The provisions of this section apply to every such contract, notwithstanding that the goods may be intended to be delivered at some future time, or may not at the time of such contract be actually made, procured, or provided, or fit or ready for delivery (h), or some act may be requisite for the making or completing thereof, or rendering the same fit for delivery (i). There is an acceptance of goods within the meaning of this section when the buyer does any act in relation to the goods which recognises a pre-existing contract of sale

(z) McGruther v. Pitcher, (1904) 2 Ch. 306; 73 L.J. Ch. 653; Taddy & Co. v. Sterious & Co., (1904) 1 Ch. 354; 73 L.J. Ch. 191.

(a) As to infants' necessaries, see ante, pp. 408—412.

(b) As to contracts with persons of mental incapacity, see ante, p. 435.

(c) As to contracts with drunken persons, see ante, p. 435.

(d) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 2.

(e) Ib., s. 3.

(f) Cundy v. Lindsay, 3 App.Cas. 459; 47 L.J. Q.B. 481.

(ff) Prested Mines, &c. Lamp Co. v. Garner, (1910) 2 K.B. 776; 79 L.J. K.B. 1143; affirmed, (1911) K.B. 425.

(g) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 4 (1).

(h) "Delivery" means voluntary transfer of possession from one person to another: sect. 62.

(i) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 4 (2).

whether there be an acceptance in performance of the contract or not" (k).

The provisions of sect. 4, sub-sect. 1, are substituted for the repealed sect. 17 of the Statute of Frauds, while sub-sect. 2 is practically a re-enactment of the repealed sect. 7 of 9 Geo. 4, c. 14 (see also, ante, p. 28).

Memorandum.—Requisites.—The absence of a memorandum in writing and of the other conditions mentioned in sect. 4, sub-sect. 1, does not make the contract void or voidable; the only effect is that it is not enforceable. It would seem that the contract being good, all the legal consequences of a contract follow, so that if the contract is for the sale of specific goods the property in them passes to the buyer; and if the buyer after making the purchase refuses to fulfil any of the statutory conditions, the seller may call on the buyer to pay for the goods, and if he fails to comply may treat the contract as rescinded (l). The note or memorandum of the bargain should disclose the names of the vendor and purchaser, or their agents (m), the thing sold, and the price to be paid, if the price was agreed upon at the time of the making of the contract (n); but if no price was definitely agreed upon, the note or memorandum will be sufficient without any statement of price, and the law will infer that a reasonable price was to be paid (o) whether the goods were in existence at the date of the contract (p) or not (q). Any entry in a book, or any letter acknowledging the fact of the sale, mentioning the name of the vendor and the thing sold, and signed by the party to be charged or his agent, will take the case out of the statute (r), although it subsequently contains a repudiation of the bargain on bad and insufficient grounds (s). The contract may also be authenticated through the medium of bills of parcels, entries in books, letters, and separate writings, provided they refer to each other and to the same presons and things, and manifestly relate to the same contract (t). Where divers articles ordered by the defendant

(k) Ib., s. 4 (3).

(l) Taylor v. G. E. Ry., (1901) 1 K.B. 774; 70 L.J. K.B. 499; Nicholson v. Bower, 1 E. & B. 172; 28 L.J. Q.B. 97.

(m) Ante, p. 36.

(n) Elmore v. Kingscote, 5 B. & C. 583; 8 D. & R. 343; Goodman v. Griffiths, 1 H. & N. 574; 26 L.J. Ex. 145; ante, p. 38.

(o) Hoadly v. Maclaine, 4 M. & Sc. 340; 3 L.J. C.P. 162; Ashcroft v. Morrin, 4 M. & Gr. 450.

(p) Acebal v. Levy, 4 Moo. & Sc. 217; 3 L.J. C.P. 98; Joyce v. Swann, 17 C.B. N.S. 84, 103; Valpy v. Gibson, 4 C.B. 837; 16 L.J. C.P. 248.

(q) Hoadly v. Maclaine, supra.

(r) Newell v. Radford, L.R. 3 C.P. 52; 37 L.J. C.P. 1; ante, p. 37.

(s) Bailey v. Sweeting, 9 C.B. N.S. 843; 30 L.J. C.P. 150; M'Clean v. Nicolle, 9 W.R. 811.

(t) Saunderson v. Jackson, 2 Bos. & P. 238; Allen v. Bennet, 3 Taunt. 169; Boydell v. Drummond, 11 East, 142; Long v. Millar, 4 C.P.D. 450; 48 L.J. C.P. 596; Ridgway v. Wharton, 8 H.L. Cas. 238; 27 L.J. Ch. 46.

were entered in the plaintiff's order-book, and the defendant wrote his name at the foot of the entry, it was held that the entry and signature of the defendant might be taken in connection with an entry of the plaintiff's name in the book showing the book to be his book, so as to establish the requisite written memorandum of the contract (u). Where goods were sold by auction to an agent acting on behalf of an undisclosed principal, and the auctioneer wrote the initials of the agent's name, together with the prices, opposite the lots purchased by him, in the printed catalogue, it was held that the entry in the catalogue and a letter afterwards written by the principal to the agent, recognising the purchase, might be coupled together to constitute the requisite written memorandum of the contract (x). And, where a buyer wrote to the seller: "I give you notice that the corn you delivered to me, in part performance of my contract with you for one hundred sacks of good English seconds flour, at 45*s*. per sack, is so bad that I cannot make it into saleable bread, dated this 24th of September," and the seller replied: "I have your letter or notice of the 24th September, in reply to which I have to state that I consider I have performed my contract as far as it has gone," it was held that the first letter and the answer might be coupled together, and were sufficient evidence in writing to satisfy the terms of the Statute of Frauds, and enable the buyer to sue the seller for the non-delivery of an article corresponding with that mentioned in the buyer's letter (y).

But if there is any material discrepancy between the letters and entries—if they describe the quality or quantity of the thing sold differently, or otherwise vary in the statement of the terms of the contract—they will fail in establishing the bargain (z). Where an entry in the plaintiff's book, unsigned by the defendant, referred to an unconditional contract of sale, and a letter written by the defendant referred to certain conditions as to the time of delivery, which were never assented to by the plaintiff, it was held that the plaintiff could not avail himself of the letter for one purpose—to bind the defendant within the statute—and renounce it for another purpose, but that he must take it altogether; and then it was no recognition, but a repudiation, of

(u) Sarl v. Bourdillon, 1 C.B.N.S. 195; 26 L.J. C.P. 78.

(x) Phillimore v. Barry, 1 Campb. 513; Gibson v. Holland, L.R. 1 C.P. 1; 35 L.J. C.P. 5.

(y) Jackson v. Lowe, 7 Moore, 219, 228; 1 Bing. 9. As to insufficient connection between advice note and invoice of goods to constitute a memorandum in writing, see Taylor v. Smith, (1893) 2 Q.B. 65; 61 L.J. Q.B. 331.

(z) Smith v. Surman, 9 B. & C. 561, 569; 7 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 296.

the contract sought to be established by the entry (a). But, if the letter acknowledges the essential particulars of the contract, and then repudiates it on insufficient grounds, there will, as we have seen, be a good memorandum of the bargain (b).

Memorandum.—Brokers' bought and sold notes.—When sales are effected through the medium of brokers acting between the parties buying and selling, the broker is the agent of both parties, and as such may bind them by signing the same contract on behalf of buyer and seller (c); but, where the broker delivers notes of the contract materially differing in their terms, and there is no signed entry in the broker's books to cure the discrepancy, there is no proof of the assent of the parties to the same terms, and no valid bargain between them (d). It is the duty, but not always the practice, of brokers to make a memorandum of the contract in their books, to sign such memorandum, and to transcribe therefrom the bought and sold notes. If these notes are signed by the broker and agree, but differ from an unsigned entry in the book, the notes constitute the contract. If they agree, but differ from a signed entry, and the signed notes so agreeing have been adopted by the vendor and purchaser, they will, it seems, constitute a new contract in substitution of the contract evidenced by the signed entry (e). If they differ from each other, and one of them agrees with the signed entry, the entry and note agreeing with it may, it seems, be taken together as constituting the contract, to the exclusion of the other note. A broker in his book signed both the bought and sold note, but he did not sign the note he sent to the purchaser, who declined to accept on that ground; it was held that the purchaser by his conduct admitted that the broker had his authority, and consequently he was bound by the sold note signed and sent to the seller, and also that the entry in the broker's book was a sufficient memorandum to satisfy the Statute of Frauds (f). "A broker has only a special authority, not a general one; and, if you employ a broker to buy one kind of goods, and he buys another, you are not bound by his act" (g).

(a) Cooper v. Smith, 15 East, 103, 108; Richards v. Porter, 6 B. & C. 437; 5 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 175; Jordan v. Norton, 4 M. & W. 155; 7 L.J. Ex. 281; Archer v. Baynes, 5 Exch. 625; 20 L.J. Ex. 55.

(b) Ante, p. 38.

(c) Heyman v. Neale, 2 Campb. 337.

(d) Grant v. Fletcher, 5 B. & C. 436; Gregson v. Ruck, 4 Q.B. 737; Thornton v. Kempster, 5 Taunt. 786, 788. But an unimportant or immaterial variation will not avoid the bargain: Maclean v. Dunn, 1 Moo. & P. 778; 6 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 184.

(e) Thornton v. Charles, 9 M. & W. 807; 11 L.J. Ex. 302; Sievewright v. Archibald, 17 Q.B. 103; 20 L.J. Q.B. 535; Goom v. Aflalo, 6 B. & C. 117; 5 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 31; Thornton v. Meux, 1 Moo. & M. 43.

(f) Thompson v. Gardiner, 1 C.P.D. 777.

(g) Pitts v. Beckett, 13 M. & W. 743, 747; 14 L.J. Ex. 358; Bostock v. Jardine, 3 H. & C. 700; 34 L.J. Ex. 142.

In an action by the purchaser against the vendor on a contract made through a broker, it is sufficient for the purchaser to produce the bought note handed to him by the broker, and to show the employment of the latter by the vendor; if the sold note varies from the bought note, it lies on the vendor to prove that variance by producing the sold note (h). So, if the action be brought against the purchaser for not accepting goods sold, the sold note bearing the signature of the broker acting for both buyer and seller is a sufficient memorandum of the bargain (i). An apparent variance between bought and sold notes may be explained by mercantile usage (k). Letters constituting a sufficient contract to satisfy the Statute of Frauds are not annulled by bought and sold notes differing from them, unless it plainly appears that the notes were to constitute the contract to the exclusion of the letters (l). A custom of trade to the effect that, whenever a broker purchases or sells for his principal without disclosing the name of such principal, the broker himself is liable to be looked to as purchaser or seller, may be given in evidence to fix the broker on the contract (m), unless such custom is inconsistent with the particular contract in question (n).

Memorandum.—Signature.—The question has already been considered (ante, pp. 39—43) as to what is and what is not a signing of a contract so as to meet the requirements of the Statute of Frauds, and now also of sect. 4 of the Sale of Goods Act, 1893.

Acceptance and actual receipt of goods.—The acceptance of the goods may be either before or at the time of the receipt of them (o). Thus, if the purchaser selects the goods himself, and writes his name upon them (p), or sends his own packer and packs the goods (q), or orders them to be sent to his residence or place of business, and the selected goods are delivered to him or his servant, at the place indicated by him, there is evidence of an acceptance and an actual receipt of the goods within the meaning of the statute (r). The acceptance need not be an absolute acceptance; all that is necessary is an accept-

(h) Hawes v. Forster, 1 Moo. & R. 368.
(i) Parton v. Crofts, 16 C.B. N.S. 11; 33 L.J. C.P. 189; Thompson v. Gardiner, 1 C.P.D. 777.
(k) Bold v. Rayner, 1 M. & W. 343; 5 L.J. Ex. 172; Kempson v. Boyle, 3 H. & C. 763; 34 L.J. Ex. 191.
(l) Heyworth v. Knight, 17 C.B. N.S. 298; 33 L.J. C.P. 298.
(m) Humfrey v. Dale, E. B. & E. 1004; 27 L.J. Q.B. 390; Hutcheson v. Eaton, 13 Q.B.D. 861; Fleet v. Murton, L.R. 7 Q.B. 126; 41 L.J. Q.B. 49.
(n) Barrow v. Dyster, 13 Q.B.D. 635.
(o) Morton v. Tibbett, 15 Q.B. 428; 19 L.J. Q.B. 382.
(p) Hodgson v. Le Bret, 1 Campb. 233.
(q) Kershaw v. Ogden, 3 H. & C. 717; 34 L.J. Ex. 159.
(r) Cusack v. Robinson, 1 B. & S. 299; 30 L.J. Q.B. 261.

ance which could not have been made except upon admission that there was a contract, and that the goods were sent to fulfil that contract (s). So, where there was a sale of wheat by sample, and the purchaser, having received a number of sacks of wheat delivered under the contract into his premises, opened them to see if they were equal to sample, and immediately afterwards gave the seller notice that he refused the wheat, it was held that there had been an acceptance and actual receipt by him (t). Again, where the purchaser selected some sheep from the plaintiff's flock, and had them sent down to his own residence, and there counted them over, and said, "It is all right," and then sent them into his field, and the day after refused to keep them, saying they were not the sheep he bought, it was held that there was evidence for the jury of an acceptance of the sheep, and that, if the defendant had once really accepted them, his rejection of them afterwards would be of no avail unless they were not according to the contract (u). The acceptance must be made before the rescission of the contract; and if after goods are delivered to a carrier consigned to the vendee, and before any order has been given or act done constituting an acceptance of the goods, the contract is rescinded, no subsequent act by the vendee or by his trustee in bankruptcy will amount to an acceptance, so as to change the property in the goods, without the consent of the vendor (x).

To satisfy the section the purchaser must "accept" as well as "actually receive" the goods. The distinction between these two expressions is best shown where the purchaser separates the two acts by appointing an agent with authority to receive but not to accept. Thus, where a purchaser was alleged to have ordered goods to be separated from the bulk and sent to a wharfinger or carrier, and after this had been done refused to accept them, it was held that though there had been an actual receipt by the wharfinger or carrier there was no evidence of acceptance (y); for a carrier, though named by the purchaser, has primâ facie no authority to accept on his behalf (z).

(s) Kibble v. Gough, 38 L.T. 204; Morton v. Tibbett, 15 Q.B. 428; Abbott v. Wolsey, (1895) 2 Q.B. 67; 64 L.J. Q.B. 587; notwithstanding Norman v. Phillips, 14 M. & W. 277; 14 L.J. Ex. 306; and Taylor v. Smith, (1893) 2 Q.B. 65; 61 L.J. Q.B. 331.

(t) Page v. Morgan, 15 Q.B.D. 228; 54 L.J. Q.B. 434; Taylor v. Smith, supra.

(u) Saunders v. Topp, 4 Exch. 390; 18 L.J. Ex. 374.

(x) Smith v. Hudson, 6 B. & S. 431; 34 L.J. Q.B. 145.

(y) Hunt v. Hecht, 8 Exch. 814; 22 L.J. Ex. 293; Hart v. Bush, E. B. & E. 494; 27 L.J. Q.B. 271; see also Smith v. Hudson, 6 B. & S. 431; 34 L.J. Q.B. 145.

(z) Hanson v. Armitage, 5 B. & Ald. 557; Meredith v. Meigh, 2 E. & B. 364; 22 L.J. Q.B. 401; Norman v. Phillips, 14 M. & W. 277; 14 L.J. Ex. 306; Vigers v. Sanderson, (1901) 1 K.B. 608; 70 L.J. K.B. 383.

To constitute an actual receipt as well as an acceptance of the goods, it must appear that the vendor has parted with the possession of the goods, and placed them under the control of the purchaser, so as to put a complete end to all the rights of the unpaid vendor as such (a). Although, therefore, goods are selected by a purchaser, and ordered to be sent to the residence of the latter, yet, if the purchaser refuses to take them in when they arrive, there is no acceptance or actual receipt of them by the purchaser (b).

Receipt for inspection and approval.—When the specific articles have not been selected by the purchaser, there is no acceptance until he has had an opportunity of exercising his judgment with respect to the things sent; for he cannot be made the acceptor of whatever the vendor chooses to send him (c). If a purchaser sends his servant for goods, and, after they have been brought to him, sends them back, there is no acceptance and receipt. And the delivery of the goods into the hands of the intended purchaser, and the unpacking of them by the latter, are not sufficient if it appears that he has had them in his possession for no greater time than would reasonably suffice for him to examine the quantity and nature of the goods (d). Where a pair of earrings at a sale by auction were knocked down to the defendant, a foreigner, and delivered into his hands, but in a few minutes he handed them back and declined the purchase, on the ground that he had been mistaken as to the price at which they had been knocked down, it was held that, as by the conditions of sale the defendant had no right to remove the earrings until the deposit was paid, the mere delivery of them into his hands the moment he was declared the purchaser was not of itself evidence of an intention to part entirely with the possession of them, and that consequently there was not a complete delivery nor an acceptance and actual receipt (e). But acceptance may be inferred from the goods having been kept an unreasonable time (f).

Acceptance and receipt where goods purchased by bailee.—Whenever goods are in the hands of a hirer or bailee of them, and an oral bargain is made by him for the purchase of the

(a) Cusack v. Robinson, 1 B. & S. 299; 30 L.J. Q.B. 261.

(b) Baldey v. Parker, 2 B. & C. 37; 1 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 229.

(c) Hunt v. Hecht, 8 Exch. 814; 22 L.J. Ex. 293.

(d) Curtis v. Pugh, 10 Q.B. 111; 16 L.J. Q.B. 199; Jordan v. Norton, 4 M. & W. 155; 7 L.J. Ex. 281; Lucy v. Mouflet, 5 H. & N. 233; 29 L.J. Ex. 110.

(e) Phillips v. Bistolli, 2 B. & C. 511; 2 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 116; see also Hunt v. Hecht, supra; Coombs v. Bristol and Exeter Ry., 3 H. & N. 510; 27 L.J. Ex. 401; Smith v. Hudson, 6 B. & S. 431; 34 L.J. Q.B. 145.

(f) Coleman v. Gibson, 1 Moo. & R. 168; Lucy v. Mouflet, supra.

goods, and the bailee then takes to the goods as purchaser, and so changes the character in which he holds them, it is an acceptance as against him, and there will be a binding contract for the purchase of the goods (g); but if the parol authority to take to the goods as owner, resulting from the oral bargain with the vendor, has been revoked, and the vendor has withdrawn from the bargain, a subsequent taking to the goods by the buyer is unauthorised and tortious, and cannot be an acceptance, which to bind the bargain must be with the assent of the vendor (h).

Constructive acceptance. — There may be a constructive acceptance within the meaning of the statute, although the goods remain in the possession of the vendor (i). The question whether there has been such an acceptance is a question of fact depending on the inference to be drawn from the acts of the alleged purchaser in reference to the goods (k). Thus, an acceptance may be evidenced by acts of domination and ownership over things incapable of manual occupation and transfer from hand to hand (l). If the purchaser sells (m) or offers to sell (n) the chattel, or deals with it in a manner which is inconsistent with the right of property and possession being in anyone but himself, his conduct affords evidence of an acceptance and actual receipt of the thing (o). But it has been held that, so long as the vendor retains his right of lien for the price over the whole commodity sold, there can be no such acceptance and receipt as the statute requires (p).

Constructive possession by purchaser and extinction of right of lien.—Possession of goods may be given up, and the right of lien extinguished, although the goods are never actually removed from the premises of the vendor (q); and it has been held that, if an oral bargain is made for the purchase of goods, and the purchaser desires the vendor to keep them in his possession for an especial purpose, and the vendor assents thereto, there may

(g) Edan v. Dudfield, 1 Q.B. 302.

(h) Taylor v. Wakefield, 6 E. & B. 765, 769.

(i) Elmore v. Stone, 1 Taunt. 458; Beaumont v. Brengeri, 5 C.B. 301.

(k) Edan v. Dudfield, supra.

(l) Williams, J., Bushel v. Wheeler, 15 Q.B. 445; as to acceptance inferred from conduct, see Parker v. Wallis, 5 E. & B. 28; Currie v. Anderson, 2 E. & E. 592; 29 L.J. Q.B. 87.

(m) Morton v. Tibbett, 15 Q.B. 428; 19 L.J. Q.B. 382; Castle v. Sworder, 6 H. & N. 828; 30 L.J. Ex. 310.

(n) Blenkinsop v. Clayton, 1 Moore, 328; 7 Taunt. 597.

(o) Taylor v. G. E. Ry., (1901) 1 K.B. 774; 70 L.J. K.B. 499; Taylor v. Smith, (1893) 2 Q.B. 65; 61 L.J. Q.B. 331; as to what amounts to evidence of acceptance, see Abbott v. Wolsey, (1895) 2 Q.B. 97; 64 L.J. Q.B. 587.

(p) Tempest v. Fitzgerald, 3 B. & Ald. 680; Carter v. Toussaint, 5 B. & Ald. 855; Maberley v. Sheppard, 10 Bing. 99; 2 L.J. C.P. 181; Holmes v. Hoskins, 9 Exch. 753; Smith v. Surman, 9 B. & C. 561, 577; 7 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 296; Acraman v. Morrice, 8 C.B. 449; 19 L.J. C.P. 57; Bill v. Bament, 9 M. & W. 36; 11 L.J. Ex. 81.

(q) Jacobs v. Latour, 2 Moo. & P. 201; 6 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 243; Martin v. Reid, 11 C.B. N.S. 730; 31 L.J. C.P. 126.

be a constructive acceptance and constructive actual receipt, so as to satisfy the words of the statute. In cases of this sort the question will be whether the vendor had the subject-matter of the sale in his own possession, retaining his right of lien for the price, or whether he had the bare custody of the chattel as the servant of the purchaser, having no possession and no right of lien (r). Where a couple of horses had been sold by a livery-stable keeper at a fixed price, and the purchaser told the vendor that, as he had neither servant nor stable, the vendor must keep the horses at livery for him, whereupon the latter removed them from his sale-stable to his livery-stable, and there kept them at livery; it was held that this amounted to an actual delivery of the horses, that the vendor had parted with the possession of them, lost his lien for the price, and held the horses only as any other livery-stable keeper might have held them, having the bare custody of the horses and not the right of possession(s). And where there was an oral bargain for the sale of a horse, and the vendor asked the purchaser to lend him the horse for a few days till he got another, and the purchaser agreed to this, and the vendor kept the horse for a week and then sent it to the purchaser, who refused to receive it or pay for it: it was held that the purchaser by lending the horse to the seller had taken it as owner, and that the possession of the vendor under the loan was the possession of the purchaser (t).

Acceptance of bills of lading, delivery orders, and dock warrants.—The mere acceptance of a bill of lading of goods on board ship in transitu to the purchaser is not an acceptance and receipt of the goods; but if the purchaser retains possession of or exercises dominion and ownership over the bill of lading, this will be evidence of an acceptance and actual receipt (u). So the mere acceptance and receipt by a purchaser of a delivery order or dock-warrant is not an acceptance and actual receipt of the goods mentioned or comprised in such order or warrant until it has been presented to the warehouse-keeper or dock-keeper, and the latter has attorned to the purchaser, and consented to hold the goods on his account (x); but as soon as he has attorned, whether orally or by writing, and whether the documents are or are not filed in the warehouse, the warehouse-

(r) Castle v. Sworder, 6 H. & N. 828; 30 L.J. Ex. 310; Cusack v. Robinson, 1 B. & S. 299; 30 L.J. Q.B. 261.

(s) Elmore v. Stone, 2 Taunt. 458.

(t) Marvin v. Wallis, 6 E. & B. 735; 25 L.J. Q.B. 369.

(u) Meredith v. Meigh, 2 E. & B. 368; 22 L.J. Q.B. 403; Currie v. Anderson, 2 E. & E. 592; 29 L.J. Q.B. 87.

(x) Bentall v. Burn, 3 B. & C. 423; 3 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 42; Farina v. Home, 16 M. & W. 119; 16 L.J. Ex. 75; Lackington v. Atherton, 7 M. & Gr. 360; 13 L.J. C.P. 140.

keeper becomes the agent or trustee of the purchaser, and is bound to hold the goods at the disposal of the latter, and there is then an executed delivery as much as if the goods had been delivered into the purchaser's own hands, or had been removed to his warehouse, and there put under lock and key (y). A wharfinger who, receiving a delivery order for goods which at the time are not in his actual possession, promises to deliver them to the purchaser, is bound, if they afterwards come to hand, to hold them at the disposal of the party in whose favour the order has been made (z).

Acceptance and receipt of goods by carriers, forwarding agents, and agents for custody.—The acceptance and receipt of a carrier or wharfinger, or mere forwarding agent, appointed by the purchaser to be the vehicle of transmission to him, are not the acceptance and receipt of the purchaser (a), unless the latter so deals with the carrier or forwarding agent as to convert him into an agent for custody holding the goods as the purchaser's servant or agent (post, p. 615). When the purchaser refuses to receive the goods from the carrier, the latter holds them as the agent of the consignor from whom he received them, and there is no acceptance and actual receipt by the purchaser within the meaning of the statute, although the latter has directed the mode of conveyance, and pointed out the particular carrier to be employed (b). But a purchaser may, by his conduct and course of dealing with the carrier, convert the latter into an agent for custody holding the goods on his, the purchaser's, behalf (c). Thus, where a purchaser directs goods to be taken to a place of deposit indicated by him, and they are accordingly sent there, and dealt with under his directions, it is the same as if they are sent to his own warehouse (d).

Part acceptance and actual receipt binding the contract.—Where the acceptance of a part of goods sold is relied upon to take the case out of the statute, it must be an acceptance of a part of goods bought under the contract sought to be enforced. If two separate contracts are made, acceptance of goods under one of these contracts will not take the other out of the (y) Pearson v. Dawson, E. B. & E. 456; 27 L.J. Q.B. 248; Harman v. Anderson, 2 Campb. 243; Dickinson v. Marrow, 14 M. & W. 713.

(z) Holl v. Griffin, 10 Bing. 246; 3 L.J. C.P. 17.

(a) Smith v. Hudson, 6 B. & S. 431; 34 L.J. Q.B. 145; ante, p. 533.

(b) Astey v. Emery, 4 M. & S. 262; Norman v. Phillips, 14 M. & W. 277; 14 L.J. Ex. 306; Hanson v. Armitage, 5 B. & Ald. 557; 1 D. & R. 128; Meredith v. Meigh, 22 L.J. Q.B. 401; 2 E. & B. 364; Hart v. Bush, E. B. & E. 494; 27 L.J. Q.B. 271.

(c) Post, p. 615; Bushel v. Wheeler, 15 Q.B. 442.

(d) Dodsley v. Varley, 12 Ad. & E. 632.

statute (e). Generally speaking, when a person goes into a shop and buys several different articles at the same time, he does not make as many different contracts as there are articles purchased (f); but there is one contract for the whole, and the acceptance and receipt of any one of the articles so purchased will take the contract as to all of them out of the operation of the statute. Where the traveller of a steel manufacturer at Sheffield took an oral order from an edge-tool maker at Birmingham for thirty-five bundles of common steel at 34*s*., and five bundles of cast steel at 48*s*., it was held that this was one entire contract, and that the acceptance of the common steel took the cast steel out of the operation of the statute (g). But, where growing crops were put up to auction in several lots, and separately knocked down to a bidder at separate prices, it was held that there was a distinct contract of sale as to each lot (h). Where a party under one contract purchases goods ready made, and orders others to be made, an acceptance of the former goods will be a sufficient compliance with sect. 4 of the Sale of Goods Act, 1893 (i). If after a purchase the purchaser draws samples from the bulk of the commodity, this amounts to an acceptance of it (k). Certain sugars in a warehouse were advertised for sale by auction, and samples of half a pound weight from each hogshead, drawn after the sugars had been weighed, were produced to the assembled bidders, and after the biddings were closed, the samples were delivered to and accepted by each purchaser, as part of his purchase, to make up the quantity and weight of each lot, as specified in the catalogue, and it was held that the delivery and acceptance of the sample were an acceptance and receipt of part of the things sold, so as to remove the contract from the operation of the statute (l).

The acceptance takes the whole contract out of the statute, leaving it open to the parties to supply the terms of the bargain by oral evidence (m). If, therefore, the contract is made defeasible on certain conditions, the conditions will stand good as part of the contract. Where a mare was sold on the terms

(e) Price v. Lea, 1 B. & C. 156; Hart v. Mills, 15 M. & W. 85; 15 L.J. Ex. 200.

(f) Alderson, B., Scott v. Eastern Counties Ry., 12 M. & W. 38; 13 L.J. Ex. 14. See also Champion v. Short, 1 Campb. 53; Baldey v. Parker, 2 B. & C. 37; 1 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 229.

(g) Elliott v. Thomas, 3 M. & W. 170; 7 L.J. Ex. 129; Rohde v. Thwaites, 6 B. & C. 388; 5 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 163; Bigg v. Whisking, 14 C.B. 195, 198.

(h) Roots v. Dormer (Lord), 4 B. & Ad. 77; 1 N. & M. 667.

(i) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 4; also Lord Abinger, C.B., Scott v. Eastern Counties Ry., 12 M. & W. 38; 13 L.J. Ex. 14.

(k) Gardner v. Grout, 2 C.B. N.S. 340; Talver v. West, Holt, N.P. 178.

(l) Hinde v. Whitehouse, 7 East, 558, 570.

(m) Tomkinson v. Staight, 17 C.B. 697, 707; 25 L.J. C.P. 85.

that, in case she should prove in foal, she should be returned together with part of the price; and the mare was delivered and accepted, and afterwards proved to be in foal, but the purchaser refused to return her; it was held that the acceptance took the whole agreement out of the statute, and that the plaintiff might sue the defendant for the refusal to return the mare (n).

Earnest and part payment within second exception of statute.—The mere offer of earnest or part payment which is not accepted is not sufficient to bind the bargain (o). But the giving of any quantity of money, however small, by way of earnest or part payment, has the effect of taking the whole contract out of the operation of the statute. It binds the bargain as between the parties, provided the other requisites necessary to the completion of a contract of sale have been duly complied with, and operates as a transfer of the right of property to the purchaser (p). The vendor cannot sell to another until he has requested the vendee to remove the goods and pay the price, and the latter has repudiated his obligation to perform his part of the contract of sale (q). If there is a bargain for the sale of goods at a certain price, and subsequently an agreement that a debt due from the purchaser shall be wiped off from the amount of the price, and the debt is accordingly released and discharged, this may be equivalent to earnest and part payment (r).

Subject-matter of contract—Existing or future goods.—"The goods which form the subject of a contract of sale may be either existing goods, owned or possessed by the seller, or goods to be manufactured or acquired by the seller after the making of the contract of sale, in this Act called 'future goods' (s). There may be a contract for the sale of goods, the acquisition of which by the seller depends upon a contingency which may or may not happen (t). Where by a contract of sale the seller purports to effect a present sale of future goods, the contract operates as an agreement to sell the goods" (u). As a general rule a person may sell or offer for sale at any price whatsoever, remunerative or not, goods of which he is not the (n) Williams v. Burgess, 10 Ad. & E. 499; 8 L.J. Q.B. 286.

(o) Blenkinsop v. Clayton, 1 Moo. 328; 7 Taunt. 597.

(p) Bach v. Owen, 5 T.R. 409; Blakey v. Dinsdale, Cowp. 664.

(q) Langfort v. Tiler (Administratrix), 1 Salk. 113; Martindale v. Smith, 1 Q.B. 389; 10 L.J. Q.B. 155.

(r) Walker v. Nussey, 16 M. & W. 305; 16 L.J. Ex. 120; Norton v. Davison, (1899) 1 Q.B. 401; 68 L.J. Q.B. 265.

(s) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 5 (1). "Future goods" are defined by sect. 62 as "goods to be manufactured or acquired by the seller after the making of the contract of sale."

(t) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 5 (2).

(u) Sect. 5 (3).

owner, but which he hopes or expects to acquire, provided that he is acting honestly (x).

"Where there is a contract for the sale of specific goods (y), and the goods without the knowledge of the seller have perished at the time when the contract is made, the contract is void (z). Where there is an agreement to sell specific goods, and subsequently the goods, without any fault on the part of the seller or buyer, perish before the risk passes to the buyer, the agreement is thereby avoided" (a). Every contract for the sale of specific goods is made on the assumption that they are, or at the time of the sale shall be, in existence, and capable of being transferred; and if they have ceased to exist, and the vendor has not the power of making the transfer, there is no consideration for the payment of the purchase-money (b). Where a contract was made between two merchants, for the sale and purchase, at a fixed price, of an ascertained cargo of corn then on board a vessel at sea on its way from Turkey to Great Britain, and at the time of the making of the contract the vessel had been driven by stress of weather into an African port, and the cargo had become heated, and had been sold by the shipmaster to prevent its total destruction, it was held that the contract of sale made between the two merchants was a void sale, as the vendor had nothing to sell at the time of making the bargain; but it would have been otherwise if the cargo had been in existence on board the ship at the time of making the contract, and had been subsequently damaged and sold (c). A vendor may bind himself absolutely to deliver certain goods on a certain day, in which case he will be liable in damages if they have ceased to exist (d).

The price.—"The price in a contract of sale may be fixed by the contract, or may be left to be fixed in manner thereby agreed, or may be determined by the course of dealing between the parties (e). Where the price is not determined in accordance with the foregoing provisions the buyer must pay a reasonable price. What is a reasonable price is a question of fact

(x) Ajello v. Worsley, (1898) 1 Ch. 274; 67 L.J. Ch. 172.

(y) "Specific goods" mean goods identified and agreed upon at the time a contract of sale is made (sect. 62).

(z) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 6.

(a) Sect. 7. "Fault" means wrongful act or default (sect. 62).

(b) Howell v. Coupland, 1 Q.B.D. 258; 46 L.J. Q.B. 147; Nickoll v. Ashton, (1901) 2 K.B. 126; 70 L.J. K.B. 600.

(c) Hastie v. Couturier, 9 Exch. 102; 22 L.J. Ex. 299; 5 H.L. Cas. 673; 25 L.J. Ex. 253; Barr v. Gibson, 3 M. & W. 390; 7 L.J. Ex. 124.

(d) Baily v. De Crespigny, L.R. 4 Q.B. 180; 38 L.J. Q.B. 98.

(e) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 8 (1). As to selling at any price whatsoever, see Ajello v. Worsley, (1898) 1 Ch. 274; 68 L.J. Ch. 172.

dependent on the circumstances of each particular case (f). Where there is an agreement to sell goods on the terms that the price is to be fixed by the valuation of a third party, and such third party cannot or does not make such valuation, the agreement is avoided; provided that if the goods or any part thereof have been delivered to and appropriated by the buyer he must pay a reasonable price therefor (g). Where such third party is prevented from making the valuation by the fault of the seller or buyer, the party not in fault may maintain an action for damages against the party in fault" (h).

Increased customs duty upon goods warehoused added to price. —By sect. 10 of the Finance Act, 1901 (i), "(1) Where any new customs, import duty, or new excise duty is imposed or where any customs, import duty or excise duty is increased, and any goods in respect of which the duty is payable are delivered after the day on which the new or increased duty takes effect in pursuance of a contract made before that day, the seller of the goods may, in the absence of agreement to the contrary, recover, as an addition to the contract price, a sum equal to any amount paid by him in respect of the goods on account of the new duty or the increase of duty, as the case may be. (2) Where any customs, import duty or excise duty is repealed or decreased, and any goods affected by the duty are delivered after the day on which the duty ceases or the decrease in duty takes effect in pursuance of a contract made before that day, the purchaser of the goods, in the absence of agreement to the contrary, may, if the seller of the goods has had in respect of those goods the benefit of the repeal or decrease of the duty, deduct from the contract price a sum equal to the amount of the duty or decrease of duty, as the case may be. (3) Where any addition to or deduction from the contract price may be made under this section on account of any new or repealed duty, such sum as may be agreed upon or in default of agreement determined" in the manner provided in the sub-section "as representing in the case of a new duty any new expenses incurred, and in the case of a repealed duty any expenses saved, may be included in the addition to or deduction from the contract price, and may be recovered or deducted accordingly." And by sect. 9 of the Finance Act, 1900 (k), the duty to be paid on goods or commodities deposited in a customs or excise office is declared

(f) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 8 (2).
(g) Sect. 9 (1).
(h) Sect. 9 (2). As to transfer of property, see sect. 16, post, p. 579.
(i) 1 Edw. 7, c. 7, s. 10, which, by sub-sect. 4, repeals 38 & 39 Vict. c. 35, s. 20.
(k) 63 Vict. c. 7, s. 9.

to be the duty chargeable at the date of the actual removal of those goods or commodities from the warehouse, and if before that date any sums shall have been paid in respect of duty, the difference (if any) between the sums so paid and the actual duty chargeable shall be paid or repaid as the case may be.

Conditions and warranties as to time.—"Unless a different intention appears from the terms of the contract, stipulations as to time of payment are not deemed to be of the essence of a contract of sale. Whether any other stipulation as to time is of the essence of the contract or not depends on the terms of the contract (l). In a contract of sale 'month' means primâ facie calendar month" (m).

The question whether in a contract of sale the time for delivery of the goods, or payment of the price, or performance of any other term, is of the essence of the contract, so as to give the party insisting on performance a right to rescind the contract if the other party is in default, is, like all such questions, one of the intention of the parties. On the sale of a specific chattel where nothing is said as to the time for delivery or payment, it is usually the intention of the parties that the property in the chattel shall pass there and then, and that possession shall be given and taken and the price paid within a reasonable time after the date of the contract; the question of what is a reasonable time being one of fact depending on all the circumstances (n). But if delivery is unreasonably delayed, that of itself does not re-vest the property in the vendor, or excuse the purchaser from payment if the vendor afterwards tenders delivery. Similarly, if payment is unreasonably delayed that does not re-vest the property in the vendor, or excuse him from delivering if the price is subsequently tendered (o). If subsequently the purchaser absolutely refuses to take the chattel and pay the price, the vendor may rescind the sale (p); but mere default in payment not amounting to an absolute refusal does not entitle the vendor to rescind. Again, where goods are sold on credit and a time is specified for payment, it is clear that this time is not of the essence of the contract, because the property and right of possession have both passed to the purchaser before

(l) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 10 (1). As to stipulations as to time or otherwise, see Jud. Act, 1873, s. 25 (7), and per Cotton, L.J., Reuter v. Sala, 4 C.P.D. 249; 28 L.J. C.P. 492.

(m) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 10 (2).

(n) Ellis v. Thompson, 3 M. & W. 445; 7 L.J. Ex. 185.

(o) Martindale v. Smith, 1 Q.B. 389; 10 L.J. Q.B. 155; Bloxam v. Sanders, 4 B. & C. 941; Chinery v. Viall, 5 H & N. 288; 29 L.J. Ex. 180; Woolfe v. Horne, 2 Q.B.D. 355; 46 L.J. Q.B. 534; Page v. Cowasjee, L.R. 1 P.C. 127.

(p) Maclean v. Dunn, 4 Bing. 722; 6 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 184.

the time for payment has arrived (q). Therefore, in cases of sale of specific ascertained chattels, delay in delivery or payment may give a right of action, but no right to rescind the contract, and it would require a clear expression of intention to make the time for delivery or payment of the essence of the contract, or in other words to make the contract conditional on payment or delivery at the time named.

The case of a contract for the sale of unascertained goods is somewhat different. There it is not intended that the property shall pass at the date of the contract, but at some future date, which may well be of the essence of the contract (r); if the day for delivery be of the essence of the contract and payment is to be made upon delivery, then it would follow that the time for payment would also be of the essence of the contract. If by the terms of a contract delivery is to be made by instalments over a considerable period of time, the various dates for acceptance or delivery are not, as a general rule, of the essence of the contract (s), unless the delay amounts to a repudiation of the obligation to accept or deliver (t). Payment for each instalment as it falls due is not a condition precedent to the right to claim delivery of future instalments (u), unless expressly made so by contract, or in case of the insolvency of the purchaser (x), or under other circumstances involving a repudiation of his obligation (y). Whether the party insisting on performance can by notice to the party in default specify a time within which the contract must be performed or rescinded, would seem to depend upon whether the property in the goods had passed or not at the time of the notice (z); if it has not passed, it would seem that such a notice would be effectual provided a reasonable time were specified (a).

When a particular day is appointed for the delivery of the goods, or the payment of the price, the party has the whole of the day, and if one of several days, the whole of those days, for the performance on his part of the contract; but he must do all he can to make the payment or perform the act at a con-

(q) Martindale v. Smith, 1 Q.B. 389; 10 L.J. Q.B. 155.

(r) Bowes v. Shand, 2 App.Cas. at p. 467; 46 L.J. Q.B. 561; Coddington v. Paleologo, L.R. 2 Ex. 193; 36 L.J. Ex. 73.

(s) Withers v. Reynolds, 2 B. & Ad. 882; 1 L.J. K.B. 30; Simpson v. Crippin, L.R. 8 Q.B. 14; 42 L.J. Q.B. 28.

(t) Hoare v. Rennie, 5 H. & N. 19; 29 L.J. Ex. 73; Honck v. Muller, 7 Q.B.D. 92; 50 L.J. Q.B. 529.

(u) Mersey Steel and Iron Co. v. Naylor, 9 App.Cas. 434; 53 L.J. Q.B. 497.

(x) Chalmers, Ex parte, L.R. 8 Ch. 289; 42 L.J. Bankr. 37; Morgan v. Bain, L.R. 10 C.P. 15; 44 L.J. C.P. 47.

(y) Bloomer v. Bernstein, L.R. 9 C.P. 588; 43 L.J. C.P. 375.

(z) Martindale v. Smith, supra.

(a) Parkin v. Thorold, 16 Beav. 59; 22 L.J. Ch. 170; Crawford v. Toogood, 13 Ch.D. 153; 49 L.J. Ch. 108.

venient hour before midnight. Therefore, if he is to pay a sum of money, he must tender it a sufficient time before midnight for the party to receive it. If he is to deliver goods, he must deliver them in sufficient time for examination and receipt. If the payment or delivery is to be performed at a certain place on a specific day, the tender must be to the other party at that place; and, as the attendance of the other is necessary at that place to complete the act, the law, though it requires the other to be present, does not require him to be present through the whole day and therefore it fixes a particular part of the day; and it is enough if he is at the place a convenient time before sunset, so that the act may be completed; and, if the party who is to perform tenders to the party present, or, if absent, if the tender is made, before sunset, that is sufficient (b). Demand or tender of delivery may be treated as ineffectual, unless made at a reasonable hour; and what is a reasonable hour is a question of fact (c). Orders for goods to be delivered as soon as possible do not oblige the vendor who accepts the order to put everything else aside and execute it without any delay at all. He is only bound to execute the order within a reasonable time (d).

Enlargement of time of performance.—In the case of contracts required by sect. 4 of the Sale of Goods Act, 1893, to be in writing, it often appears that the time specified for delivery or acceptance of the goods or payment of the price is enlarged by one party at the verbal request of the other. The promise to deliver or pay at the substituted time cannot be sued on, and it appears that the original agreement is no longer the agreement between the parties. The difficulty on this point, which has been the subject of consideration in many cases (e), has now been set at rest, and the plaintiff must rely on the original agreement or nothing (f). If he can aver and prove that he was ready and willing to perform his part of it, and that the defendant made default on his part, the plaintiff proves a cause of action. Thus, where the time for delivery is extended at the request of the defendant, the plaintiff can prove that he was

(b) Startup v. Macdonald, 6 M. & Gr. 593; 12 L.J. Ex. 483. See ante, pp. 142, 146.

(c) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 29 (4).

(d) Attwood v. Emery, 1 C.B. N.S. 110; 26 L.J. C.P. 73; Tennant v. Bell, 9 Q.B. 684; 16 L.J. M.C. 31; Staunton v. Wood, 16 Q.B. 638; Duncan v. Topham, 8 C.B. 225; 18 L.J. C.P. 310.

(e) Cuff v. Penn, 1 M. & S. 21; Goss v. Nugent (Lord), 5 B. & Ad. 58: 2 L.J. K.B. 127; Stead v. Dawber, 10 Ad. & E. 57; 9 L.J. Q.B. 101; Marshall v. Lynn, 6 M. & W. 109; 9 L.J. Ex. 126; Moore v. Campbell, 10 Exch. 323; 23 L.J. Ex. 310; Noble v. Ward, L.R. 2 Ex. 135; 36 L.J. Ex. 91; Ogle v. Vane (Lord), L.R. 3 Q.B. 272; 37 L.J. Q.B. 77; Tyers v. Rosedale Iron Co., L.R. 10 Ex. 195; 44 L.J. Ex. 130; Leather Cloth Co. v. Hieronimus, L.R. 10 Q.B. 140; 44 L.J. Q.B. 54; Hickman v. Haynes, L.R. 10 C.P. 598; 44 L.J. C.P. 358; Plevins v. Downing, 1 C.P.D. 220; 45 L.J. C.P. 695.

(f) Plevins v. Downing, supra.

ready and willing to deliver at the time mentioned in the written agreement (g). But if the time were extended at the plaintiff's own request, he cannot sue on the original contract, since he was not ready and willing to perform his part; nor can he sue on the substituted agreement, because the term on which he insists is not in writing (h).

Conditions and warranties.—Express.—A warranty is an express or implied statement of something which the party undertakes shall be part of a contract; and though part of the contract, yet collateral to the express object of it (i). These statements may obviously vary in importance. On the one hand they may be such as, if untrue, to entitle a purchaser to rescind the contract of sale. On the other, they may be such as only to give rise to a claim for damages. It would be more convenient if the term "warranty" had been applied exclusively to statements of the latter kind, those of the former being termed "conditions"; this distinction has now been drawn in the Sale of Goods Act, 1893 (k); but for the present, until sect. 11 of the Act is dealt with, the term "warranty" will be used in the wider sense as including statements of both kinds.

Warranties made pending negotiation for sale of property.—The declaration in an action for breach of warranty always averred warrantizando vendidit (l), which meant that the defendant had sold by warranting. "As to the warrantizando vendidit," observes Holt, C.J., "that will be so, though the warranty be before the sale; as if, upon a treaty about the buying of certain goods, the buyer should ask the seller if he would warrant them to be of such a value, and to be his own goods, and the seller should warrant them, and then the buyer should demand, and the seller set the price, and then the buyer should take time to consider for two or three days, and then should come and give the seller his price; though the warranty here was before the sale, yet this will be well, because the warranty is the ground of the treaty, and this is selling" with a warranty. "But it is otherwise if the warranty be after the sale; as if a man sells goods and afterwards warrants them, such a warranty is not good. But in the other case the warranty is part of the contract" (m).

Private representations made prior to sale by auction forming (g) Hickman v. Haynes, ante, p. 544.

(h) Plevins v. Downing, ante, p. 544.
(i) Per Ld. Abinger, C.B., Chanter v. Hopkins, 4 M. & W. 399, 404; 8 L.J. Ex. 14.
(k) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, ss. 11, 12—14, 53, post.
(l) Margetson v. Wright, 8 Bing. 454; 1 L.J. C.P. 128.
(m) Lysney v. Selby, 2 Ld. Raym. 1120; Roscorla v. Thomas, 3 Q.B. 234; 11 L.J. Q.B. 214.

no part of public contract of sale.—If what passes between a vendor and purchaser forms no part of the negotiation ending in the purchase, it cannot be treated as a warranty. Thus in the case of a sale by auction, you cannot "tack on a previous private communication to what is said by the auctioneer at the time of the actual public sale, in order to constitute a warranty. To permit such a practice," observed Maule, J., during the argument, "would be to encourage a fraud upon all others attending the sale." If, therefore, a horse is advertised to be sold by auction without a warranty, and the owner privately represents the horse to be sound and free from vice, to a person who attends the sale and bids for and purchases the horse in reliance on the representation, the representation cannot be treated as a warranty. Those who bid at a public auction, bid against each other on the supposition that they all stand upon an equal footing; and if the sale is announced and conducted as a sale without a warranty, and the biddings are made upon that understanding, any secret underhand bargain for a warranty would be a fraud (n).

Representations amounting to warranty.—Many representations of the subject-matter of a contract are of such a nature, and have been made under such circumstances, that the party making them may fairly be considered to warrant his knowledge of their truth, so as to be estopped from afterwards setting up his want of knowledge. This is the case when the means of information are peculiarly within his reach, or he pretends to have informed himself upon the subject, when in truth he knows nothing at all about it (o). If a jeweller represents a piece of crystal to be a diamond, or a common stone to be a bezoar stone, this would now be considered to amount to a warranty of the fact to a purchaser, and the jeweller would be responsible accordingly, whethre he knew the representation to be true or false (p); for, wherever the means of obtaining correct information lie peculiarly with the seller, it is probable the purchaser relies on the assertion, and if the seller asserts a falsehood to be the truth, not knowing whether it is or is not, he probably would be liable as on a breach of warranty (q). Thus, if the vendor of a house and the goodwill of a business represents the business done on the premises to be greater than it really is, this amounts to a warranty of the facts stated, although the statement may have been the result of a mistake, (n) Hopkins v. Tanqueray, 15 C.B. 130; 23 L.J. C.P. 162.

(o) Schneider v. Heath, 3 Campb. 508; Pawson v. Watson, Cowp. 785; Adamson v. Jarvis, 4 Bing. 73; 5 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 68.

(p) Chandelor v. Lopus, Cro.Jac. 4; and the note, 2 Smith's L.C. 52 (10th ed.).

(q) Rawlins v. Wickham, ante, p. 125.

because the annual profit of the trade lies peculiarly within the private knowledge of the vendor (r). It must be imputed to him that he knew the fact; and whether he did or did not is of no matter: "he undertook to know, by undertaking to give the description" (s). A purchaser of a house gave 7,350*l*. for the house upon the faith of letters from the vendor stating that "the house was in so good a state as not to require any repairs whatever," whereas the house was, at the time the letters were written, affected with the dry rot, and the floors gave way shortly after the purchaser took possession of it; and it was held that the vendor was responsible to the purchaser for such a sum as would put the house into the state he had represented it to be in (t). It is not sufficient to show that an article delivered is equally good with that which was bargained for, although it is of a different description. If the article sold is described, the description amounts to a warranty that it shall be an article of the kind described (u).

Warranty on sales of horses.—The owner of a horse who has used and driven it, or has had the means of doing so, has greater means of knowledge than a stranger who knows nothing about the animal. If, therefore, the owner offers the horse for sale, every representation that he makes to the buyer respecting the qualities of the animal amounts to a warranty, although the word "warrant" is never used by him. "If parties are dealing for a horse, and the seller says, 'You may depend upon it that the horse is perfectly free from vice,' that is a very sufficient warranty, though the word WARRANT was not used" (x). If the purchaser of a horse tells the vendor in a letter, "You represented the horse to me as a five-year-old," and the defendant answers, "The horse is as I represented," this is evidence from which a WARRANTY may be inferred (y). If a horse offered for sale has a cough and running at the nose, and the vendor says that it is a mere cold, and that he will deliver the horse sound and free from blemish in a week, that amounts to a warranty to a purchaser that the horse has nothing more than a cold upon him and will be sound at the end of the week (z). "If a purchaser," observes Best, C.J., "asks

(r) Risney v. Selby, 1 Salk. 211; Taylor v. Green, 8 C. & P. 319; Rawlins v. Wickham, 3 De G. & J. 304; 28 L.J. Ch. 192; but see Joliffe v. Baker, 11 Q.B.D. 255; 52 L.J. Q.B. 609.

(s) Calverley v. Williams, 1 Ves. jun. 212.

(t) Grant v. Munt, Coop. Ch.C. 173. See also Redgrave v. Hurd, 20 Ch.D. 1; 51 L.J. Ch. 113; Smith v. Land Corporation, 28 Ch.D. 7.

(u) Bowes v. Shand, 2 App.Cas. 455; 46 L.J. Q.B. 561.

(x) Cave v. Coleman, 7 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 26; 3 M. & R. 2; Hopkins v. Tanqueray, 15 C.B. 130; 23 L.J. C.P. 162.

(y) Salmon v. Ward, 2 C. & P. 211.

(z) Liddard v. Kain, 9 Moore, 356; 3 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 246.

for a carriage horse, or a horse fit to carry a lady or a timid or infirm person, the seller who knows the qualities of the horse he supplies in answer to the demand, undertakes, on every principle of honesty, that it is fit for the purpose specified" (a). A warranty will not bind a man in a thing that is apparent (post, p. 549), as to warrant that a horse has both his eyes, when he has manifestly lost one of them (b). If, therefore, at the time of the sale of a horse the animal is warranted sound in wind and limb, that is understood to mean saving those manifest and visible defects which were obvious to all observers; and, if the horse was manifestly blind or obviously lame, and the purchaser examined the animal before he bought it, and must have been aware of these patent defects, the vendor's representation will give no cause of action. But a purchaser who relies upon a warranty is not bound to make a close or searching examination of a horse before he buys to ascertain whether a defect exists. If, relying upon a warranty, he omits to make such an examination of the animal, and consequently fails to discover a defect which might have been ascertained by examination, he is, nevertheless, entitled to maintain an action (c); and, if a manifest defect is not necessarily of a permanent nature—if a horse has a cough and running at the nose, and the vendor says that it is merely a cold, and that the horse will be sound and well in a given time, and the purchaser buys in reliance upon the truth of the representation — the vendor, as we have seen, will be responsible in damages if the horse continues unsound and permanently diseased (d).

Evidence of breach of warranty of horse.—What constitutes unsoundness.—The rule as to unsoundness is, that if at the time of the sale the horse has any disease, or has undergone any alteration of structure either from disease or accident, which actually does diminish the natural usefulness of the animal, so as to make him less capable of work of any description, or which in its ordinary progress, or from its ordinary effects, will diminish the natural usefulness of the animal, such horse is unsound (e). The word "sound" means, that the animal is free from disease at the time he is warranted. Of course, if the disease be slight, the unsoundness is proportionably so, and so also ought to be the damages (f). Convexity of the cornea, rendering a horse short-sighted, and causing him to shy, is un-

(a) Jones v. Bright, 3 Moo. & P. 155, 175; 7 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 213.
(b) Ekins v. Tresham, 1 Lev. 102.
(c) Holyday v. Morgan, 28 L.J. Q.B. 9; 1 E. & E. 1.
(d) Liddard v. Kain, supra.
(e) Coates v. Stevens, 2 Moo. & R. 157.
(f) Kiddell v. Burnard, 9 M. & W. 668; 11 L.J. Ex. 268.

soundness (g). It is not enough for the plaintiff to give evidence inducing a suspicion that the horse was unsound at the time of the warranty. If he only throws the soundness into doubt he is not entitled to recover (h).

Proof of manifest defects in horse not covered by warranty.—If the defendant can prove that the defect complained of by the plaintiff was a manifest defect obvious to all observers, and that the plaintiff examined the horse, and knew of the defect at the time he bought the animal, the defect will be excluded from the warranty. If the horse was naturally ill-formed from turning out one of its fore-legs, so as to be incapable of doing much work without cutting the ankle with the shoes so as to produce lameness, this is not unsoundness, rendering the vendor liable in damages for a breach of warranty (i). The peculiar form of hock called "curby hock," which is a natural defect, is not an unsoundness, if it has not occasioned lameness up to the time of the sale, although such horses are very liable to throw out a curb, and become lame (k). But bone spavin in the hock is unsoundness, although it may not produce lameness for years (l). A natural malformation of the animal, constituting a patent defect visible to the eye of every observer, must be taken to be known to a purchaser who has examined the horse, and he will be deemed to have bargained for the warranty of soundness subject to the patent defect; but if the defect is not obvious, it must be proved that the purchaser was cognizant of it at the time he purchased, for the very fact of the warranty having been given would tend to throw him off his guard, and prevent him from making a close examination of the animal (m).

Proof of vice.—If a horse has been warranted free from vice, and the horse is proved to be a crib-biter, the warranty is broken. "The habit of crib-biting," observes Parke, B., "may not indeed show vice in the temper of the animal, but as it is a habit decidedly injurious to its health, and tending to impair its usefulness, it comes within the meaning of the term 'vice'" (n).

Representations not amounting to warranty.—There is no warranty of the party's knowledge, or of the fact being as it is stated to be, if the representation is made concerning some matter the knowledge of which lies as much within the power of the one party as the other, and the correctness of which may

(g) Holyday v. Morgan, 28 L.J. Q.B. 9; 1 E. & E. 1.
(h) Eares v. Dixon, 2 Taunt. 343.
(i) Alderson, J., Dickinson v. Follett, 1 M. & Rob. 300.
(k) Brown v. Elkington, 8 M. & W. 132; 10 L.J. Ex. 336.
(l) Watson v. Denton, 7 C. & P. 85.
(m) Holyday v. Morgan, 28 L.J. Q.B. 9; 1 E. & E. 1.
(n) Scholefield v. Robb, 2 M. & Rob. 210.

be ascertained by the party interested in knowing the truth by the exercise of ordinary diligence, provided the representation is not made for the purpose of preventing him from making those inquiries which every prudent person ought to make(o). Where the statement is ambiguous, the party complaining of it must prove that he interpreted the words in the false sense in order to succeed in rescinding the contract (p). When a general warranty is given on a sale, defects which were apparent at the time of the making of the bargain, and were known to the purchaser, cannot be relied on as a ground of action (q). "If one sells purple to another, and saith to him, 'This is scarlet,' the warranty is to no purpose, for that the other may perceive this; and this gives no cause of action to him. To warrant a thing that may be perceived at sight is not good" (r).

Representations of matters of opinion and belief.—A representation, moreover, frequently amounts to a mere statement of the party's own opinion and belief upon a matter concerning which the other contracting party is to exercise his own judgment, and does not amount to a positive statement of a fact. Thus, if the vendor of a picture, submitted to the inspection of the purchaser, states it to be the work of a particular artist, it is always a question for the jury to determine whether the statement amounted to a mere expression of the vendor's own opinion and belief upon a matter concerning which the buyer was to exercise his own judgment, or whether it was understood to be a positive warranty of the fact (s). Where a purchaser inquires for himself, and acts upon his own opinion, he cannot say that he has been misled by the false statement of another(t); and, if he examines the article for himself, and selects it after exercising his own judgment upon it, the vendor only warrants that the article is, so far as he knows, what it appeared to be, and what he believed it to be, at the time he sold it (u). Thus, where the plaintiff, having heard that the defendant had some barley to sell, went to the defendant's counting-house, where a person who managed the defendant's business produced a sample of barley which he said was seed barley, and the plaintiff then looked at the barley, and said it was a good sample of seed

(o) Attwood v. Small, 6 Cl. & Fin. 338; Clapham v. Shillito, 7 Beav. 146.

(p) Smith v. Chadwick, 9 App.Cas. 187; 51 L.J. Ch. 597.

(q) Margetson v. Wright, 8 Bing. 454; 1 L.J. C.P. 128; Ekins v. Tresham, 1 Lev. 102.

(r) Baily v. Merrell, 3 Bulstr. 95.

(s) Jendwine v. Slade, 2 Esp. 572; Lomi v. Tucker, 4 C. & P. 15; De Sewhanberg v. Buchanan, 5 C. & P. 343; Power v. Barham, 4 Ad. & E. 473; 5 L.J. K.B. 88.

(t) Jennings v. Braughton, 22 L.J. Ch. 584; 17 Beav. 234.

(u) Ormrod v. Huth, 14 M. & W. 664; 14 L.J. Ex. 366.

barley, and bought it; and it turned out that both parties were mistaken, and that the barley was not what was ordinarily known in the market as "seed barley," but what was called "barley bigg"; and it appeared that both parties had equal means of knowledge of the true character of the article, that both had believed it to be seed barley, and that it was bought and sold as such; it was held that what the defendant's servant said about the article amounted, under the circumstances, merely to an expression of his own opinion and belief about it, and did not amount to a warranty (x). But, where the purchaser has not examined for himself, and has not relied upon his own judgment in the matter, but has acted upon the faith of the representation made to him, then the representation amounts, as we have seen, to a warranty of the fact.

Proof of warranties.—It has been held that a warranty made orally, on the completion of a written contract of sale, cannot be introduced as part of the contract, if the contract itself is silent as to the fact of the warranty, as it is a rule of law that oral evidence shall not be given "to superadd any term to a written agreement, for it would be setting aside all written contracts, and rendering them of no effect" (y). But, although a warranty cannot be superadded to a written contract by oral testimony, yet, if it can be shown that the contract was induced by an oral warranty made by one of two contracting parties, which was false to the knowledge of the party making it, and was made for the purpose of throwing the other contracting party off his guard, and fraudulently obtaining his consent to the bargain, this is a circumstance altogether collateral to the contract, and proof of it by oral testimony does not in anywise infringe upon the preceding rule of law. The oral evidence cannot be received to show that the contract itself was different from that authenticated by the written instrument; but it is admissible to show that the assent of the party to the contract was obtained under false pretences, and that the contract is bottomed in fraud, and has therefore no legal existence. Ex dolo non oritur contractus. The oral evidence of the false and fraudulent representation in such a case has not the effect of altering or adding to a written contract; but, admitting the contract in all its terms, it seeks to show that the party guilty of the fraud ought not to have the assistance of a court of justice for the enforcement of it. "If duress be pleaded, or a false reading of the deed, you avoid the deed at law by parol evidence: but then these facts are collateral to the import of the instrument; they do not vary or alter it" (z). The oral evidence is offered, not to affect the terms of the contract itself, but to destroy the remedy by way of action upon it (a). The facts may be pleaded not only as a defence to an action on the contract (b), but also as ground for an action of deceit (c). Where representations which may amount to a warranty are contained in letters which constitute a contract of sale, evidence is admissible of the surrounding circumstances for the purpose of showing that no warranty was contemplated by the parties (d).

(x) Carter v. Crick, 4 H. & N. 412; 28 L.J. Ex. 238.

(y) Powell v. Edmunds, 12 East, 6, 11.

Proof that the plaintiff relied upon the representation, and not upon his own examination and judgment.—"Cases have frequently occurred in which, upon entering into contracts, misrepresentations made by one party have not been in any degree relied upon by the other party. If the party to whom the representations were made, himself resorted to the proper means of verification before he entered into the contract, it may appear that he relied upon the result of his own investigation and inquiry, and not upon the representations made to him by the other party; or if the means of investigation and verification be at hand, and the attention of the party receiving the representations be drawn to them, the circumstances of the case may be such as to make it incumbent on a court of justice to impute to him a knowledge of the result which, upon due inquiry, he ought to have obtained, and thus the notion of reliance on the representations made to him may be excluded. Again, when we are endeavouring to ascertain what reliance was placed on representations, we must consider them with reference to the subject-matter and the relative knowledge of the parties. If the subject is capable of being accurately known, and one party is, or is supposed to be, possessed of accurate knowledge, and the other is entirely ignorant, and a contract is entered into after representations made by the party who knows, or is supposed to know, without any means of verification being resorted to by the other, it may well enough be presumed that the ignorant man relied on the statements made by him who was supposed to be better informed; but if the subject is in its nature uncertain, if all that is known about it is a matter of inference from some-

(z) Davis v. Symonds, 1 Cox, Eq.Cas. 405.

(a) Collins v. Blantern, 2 Wils. 347; Wright v. Crookes, 1 Sc. N.R. 698; Hutchinson v. Morley, 7 Sc. 341.

(b) Canham v. Barry, 15 C.B. 597; 24 L.J. C.P. 100.

(c) Dobell v. Stevens, 3 B. & C. 623; 3 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 89; Meyer v. Everth, 4 Campb. 22; Canham v. Barry, supra.

(d) Stucley v. Baily, 1 H. & C. 405; 35 L.J. Ex. 483.

thing else, and if the parties making and receiving representations on the subject have equal knowledge and means of acquiring knowledge, and equal skill, it is not easy to presume that representations made by one would have much or any influence upon the other" (e).

Construction of express warranties.—Where there was an agreement for the sale and purchase of all the naphtha the defendant might make during two years, "say from 1,000 to 1,200 gallons a month," it was held that these words did not amount to a warranty that that quantity of naphtha should be manufactured and sold per month (f). But where the agreement was to prepare and sell "say not less than 100," &c., it was held that the words did amount to a warranty or undertaking that at least the quantity specified should be prepared and sold (g). Warranties of quantity and quality made on sales of goods will be regulated by the apparent intention of the parties at the time the contract was entered into. There is no necessity that the word "warrant" or "promise" should occur in the bargain; but the representation must form part of the contract of sale (h). Where a sale-note made on the purchase of a horse described the animal as "a black gelding, about five years old constantly driven in the plough—warranted," it was held that, if the word "warranted" had been placed at the commencement of the sentence, it would have extended to the sex and age of the horse and his fitness for the plough; but, as it concluded the sentence, it extended only to the soundness of the animal, the preceding sentences being merely descriptive of the horse, and of the work to which it had been accustomed (i). And, where the seller gave the purchaser a written receipt for the purchase-money, describing the horse as a bay gelding got by Cheshire Cheese, warranted sound, it was held that the warranty was confined to the soundness of the animal, and did not extend to the description of his parentage (k). So, where a written receipt described the horse sold as "a gray four years old colt, warranted sound in every respect," it was held that the warranty did not extend to the description of the age of the animal, and that if the parties had meant to warrant the age as

(e) Lord Langdale, Clapham v. Shillito, 7 Beav. 149; Shrewsbury v. Blount, 2 Sc. N.R. 594.

(f) Gwillim v. Daniell, 2 Cr. M. & R. 61; 4 L.J. Ex. 174.

(g) Leeming v. Snaith, 16 Q.B. 275; 20 L.J. Q.B. 164; as to the effect of the words "about" or "more or less," see s. 30, post, p. 600; Bourne v. Seymour, 16 C.B. 337; 24 L.J. C.P. 202; McConnel v. Murphy, L.R. 5 P.C. 203.

(h) Hopkins v. Tanqueray, 15 C.B. 130; 23 L.J. C.P. 162.

(i) Richardson v. Brown, 8 Moore, 338.

(k) Dickenson v. Gapp, cited 1 Moo. & Sc. 78.

well as the soundness of the colt, the words should have been "warranted a four years old colt, and sound in every respect" (l). Where, on the sale of a horse, the seller signed the following warranty,—"Mr. C. bought of Mr. G. G. a bay horse for ninety pounds, warranted sound. 90*l*. Warranted sound for one month"—it was held that the latter words limited the duration of the warranty, and meant that it was to continue in force for one month only, and that complaint of unsoundness must, therefore, be made by the purchaser within one month of the sale (m). But the construction to be put upon contracts of this description will be regulated by the surrounding circumstances of each particular case, which must be regarded, in order that the true meaning of the parties may be discovered.

Warranties by agents.—The general presumption is that, where a principal intrusts property to an agent to sell, he authorises him to make all such warranties as are usual in the ordinary course of that particular business of selling, and that, if it is usual to sell with a warranty, he has an implied authority to warrant (n). The agent or servant of a horse-dealer has an implied authority to bind his principal or master by a warranty, even although (unknown to the buyer) he has express orders not to warrant; and evidence of an alleged custom among horse-dealers not to give a warranty where the purchaser obtains a veterinary surgeon's certificate of soundness, is not admissible to contradict such implied authority (o). But a servant intrusted on one particular occasion to sell has no implied authority to warrant so as to bind the owner (p).

Distinction between condition and warranty. The foregoing statements with reference to warranties generally apply equally to warranties strictly so called and to warranties which amount to conditions. A warranty strictly so called is an agreement with reference to goods which are the subject of a contract of sale, but collateral to the main purpose of such contract, the breach of which gives rise to a claim for damages, but not to a right to reject the goods and treat the contract as repudiated (q).

When condition to be treated as warranty.—"(a) Where a contract of sale is subject to any condition to be fulfilled by the seller, the buyer may waive the condition, or may elect to treat

(l) Budd v. Fairmaner, 1 Moo. & Sc. 74; 1 L.J. C.P. 16; as to unsoundness, see Kiddell v. Burnard, 9 M. & W. 668; 11 L.J. Ex. 268.

(m) Chapman v. Gwyther, L.R. 1 Q.B. 463; 35 L.J. Q.B. 142.

(n) Dingle v. Hare, 7 C.B. N.S. 145; 29 L.J. C.P. 148.

(o) Howard v. Sheward, L.R. 2 C.P. 148; 36 L.J. C.P. 42.

(p) Brady v. Tod, 9 C.B. N.S. 592; 30 L.J. C.P. 223; but as to this, see ante, p. 334.

(q) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 62.

the breach of such condition as a breach of warranty, and not as a ground for treating the contract as repudiated. (b) Whether a stipulation in a contract of sale is a condition, the breach of which may give rise to a right to treat the contract as repudiated, or a warranty, the breach of which may give rise to a claim for damages but not to a right to reject the goods and treat the contract as repudiated, depends in each case on the construction of the contract. A stipulation may be a condition, though called a warranty in the contract. (c) Where a contract of sale is not severable, and the buyer has accepted the goods, or part thereof, or where the contract is for specific goods, the property in which has passed to the buyer (qq), the breach of any condition to be fulfilled by the seller can only be treated as a breach of warranty, and not as a ground for rejecting the goods and treating the contract as repudiated, unless there be a term of the contract, express or implied, to that effect" (r).

Nothing in sect. 11 is to affect the case of any condition or warranty, fulfilment of which is excused by law by reason of impossibility or otherwise (s).

Conditional and defeasible sales.—If on the sale of a horse it is part of the bargain that the animal shall be taken back if it is unsound, the purchaser will be entitled to return the animal, and recover back the purchase-money, on proof of the unsoundness of the horse. Where an agent intrusted to sell a mare, but not being authorised to warrant her, refused to do so, but at the time of the sale told the purchaser that, if the mare was not all right, she was not his, and the purchaser then paid the price and took away the mare, and, the animal proving to be unsound, he returned her and sued for the price, it was held that the proper question for the jury was whether it was part of the contract that the mare should be returned if she proved to be unsound (t); so, where, pending a negotiation for a sale of hops, the growth of 300 acres, the purchaser declared that he would not have the hops if the bine had been sulphured, and required and received a written undertaking from the vendor that no sulphur had been used, and the hops were then delivered to and received by the purchaser, and it was then ascertained that sulphur had been used on five acres by way of experiment without the knowledge of the vendor, and that these sulphured hops were so mixed with the unsulphured as to be undistinguishable, it was held that the purchaser had a right to avail

(qq) Wallis, Son & Wells v. Pratt, (1910) 2 K.B. 1003; 79 L.J. K.B. 1013.
(r) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 11.
(s) Ib., s. 11 (3); Behn v. Burness, 3 B. & S. 756; 32 L.J. Q.B. 204.
(t) Foster v. Smith, 18 C.B. 156.

himself of the breach of the condition and annul the bargain (u). If goods are sold on the terms that the buyer is to have them a certain time on trial, the sale is conditional on the purchaser's approval after trial, so that, if he returns them after trial, there is no sale. In these cases no property passes until the purchaser has received and adopted the goods (x). In other cases the right of property in the specific thing sold passes subject to a condition. If the condition is fulfilled or waived, the sale becomes an absolute sale (y); if it is not fulfilled or waived, the party in whose favour and for whose protection the condition was imposed is entitled to repudiate the contract and return the subject-matter of the sale and recover the price (z). Where a mare was sold on the terms that, if she proved in foal, she was to be returned, and the mare proved in foal, it was held that the vendor had a right to have the animal returned to him (a). Where the sale is defeasible within a certain time, the fact that the thing sold has within that time and without any negligence on the part of the purchaser ceased to exist, does not disable the purchaser from avoiding the contract. Where a horse was sold with a condition that he might be returned within a specified time if he did not answer the description given of him, and within the time the horse injured itself without any negligence on the part of the purchaser, it was held that the latter was entitled to rescind the contract and recover the price of the horse which did not answer the description (b): and the same has been held where the horse died (c). Where a horse was sold with the condition that if it did not correspond with the warranty it must be returned on the second day after the sale, and while being ridden it fell and was so injured that it could not be returned on that day, it was held that the purchaser could, nevertheless, sue for breach of warranty (d).

A contract for the sale of goods "on arrival" (e), or to arrive (f), or that may be loaded (g), or expected to arrive (h), is conditional on the arrival or loading of the goods, so that, if no goods arrive or are shipped, there is no sale and no liability to deliver on the part of the vendor; but, it may be that if a man

(u) Bannerman v. White, 10 C.B. N.S. 844; 31 L.J. C.P. 28.

(x) Swain v. Shepherd, 1 Moo. & R. 223.

(y) Moss v. Sweet, 16 Q.B. 493; 20 L.J. Q.B. 167.

(z) Head v. Tattersall, L.R. 7 Ex. 7; 41 L.J. Ex. 4.

(a) Williams v. Burgess, 10 Ad. & E. 499; 8 L.J. Q.B. 286.

(b) Head v. Tattersall, supra.

(c) Elphick v. Barnes, 5 C.P.D. 321; 49 L.J. C.P. 698.

(d) Chapman v. Withers, 20 Q.B.D. 824; 57 L.J. Q.B. 457.

(e) Boyd v. Siffkin, 2 Campb. 326.

(f) Lovatt v. Hamilton, 5 M. & W. 639; Johnson v. Macdonald, 9 M. & W. 600; 12 L.J. Ex. 99.

(g) Hayward v. Scougall, 2 Campb. 56.

(h) Smith v. Myers, L.R. 7 Q.B. 139; 41 L.J. Q.B. 91.

takes upon himself to sell goods expected to arrive by a certain ship, and the goods afterwards arrive consigned to some third party, so that the intended vendor has no power of disposing of them, he is precluded from setting up that, in addition to the contingency of their arrival, there was implied the further contingency of their coming consigned to him. Having dealt with them as his own, he cannot be allowed to import into the contract a new condition, viz., that the goods on their arrival shall prove to be his (i); for, whenever the agreement is conditional upon an event which happens, the vendor will be liable for non-performance, although he is prevented from fulfilling his contract by reason of some mistake or accident over which he had no control; for he ought to have provided against the possible contingency by his contract. If, therefore, he agrees to sell certain cases of East Indian tallow to be delivered to the purchaser on the safe arrival of a certain ship, and the ship arrives, but without the tallow, the vendor is responsible for the non-performance of his contract (k), for a vendor may bind himself to deliver goods in any event (l).

Effect of a breach of warranty by the vendor.—If it appears to have been the intention of the parties that a sale of chattels should be an absolute sale with a warranty superadded, the purchaser cannot annul the sale and return the thing sold, unless there has been actual fraud, and the vendor knew, at the time of the sale, that the thing sold did not answer the warranty; but, if the sale is conditional on the thing sold being in accordance with the warranty, the purchaser will be entitled to annul the sale, and return the article and recover the price, if the condition is not fulfilled (m). Lord Eldon is reported to have said that, if a person purchases a horse which is warranted sound, and it afterwards turns out that the horse was unsound at the time of the warranty, the buyer might return the horse and bring an action to recover the full money paid, but that the seller had a right to expect that the horse should be returned in the same state he was in when sold, and not by any means diminished in value (n). "It is, however, extremely difficult, indeed impossible," justly observes Lord Tenterden, "to reconcile this doctrine with those cases in which it has been held that, where the property in the specific chattel has passed to the vendee, and the price has been paid, he has no right, upon the

(i) Fischel v. Scott, 15 C.B. 69; Gorrissen v. Perrin, 2 C.B. N.S. 681; 27 L.J. C.P. 29.

(k) Hale v. Rawson, 4 C.B. N.S. 85; 27 L.J. C.P. 189.

(l) Taylor v. Caldwell, 3 B. & S. 826; 32 L.J. Q.B. 164; Nickoll v. Ashton, (1901) 2 K.B. 126; 70 L.J. K.B. 600.

(m) Emanuel v. Dane, 3 Campb. 299.

(n) Curtis v. Hannay, 3 Esp. 82.

breach of the warranty, to return the article and re-vest the property in the vendor, and recover the price as money paid on a consideration which has failed, but must sue upon the warranty, unless there has been a condition in the contract authorising the return, or the vendor has received back the chattel, and has thereby consented to rescind the contract, or has been guilty of a fraud, which destroys the contract altogether." "If these cases," observes his lordship, after referring to certain authorities, "are rightly decided, and we think they are, and they certainly have been always acted upon, it is clear that the purchaser cannot by his own act alone, unless in the excepted cases above mentioned, re-vest the property in the seller, and recover the price when paid, on the ground of the total failure of consideration" (o).

Rejection and non-acceptance of goods sold.—In cases where the thing sold is not specific, and the property has not passed by the sale, the vendee may refuse to receive the thing proffered to him in performance of the contract on the ground that it does not correspond with the descriptive statement, or, in other words, that the condition expressed in the contract has not been performed (p). In cases of executory contracts when there is a warranty of quality, the purchaser is not only not bound to receive the goods unless they correspond with the warranty; but, even after they have been delivered by the vendor, he may reject them after discovering the defect, and, if he has paid for them, he may recover back the price. It is, however, generally necessary to enable a purchaser to reject goods after delivery, that he should not have done more than was necessary for a fair trial of them, or for the purpose of examination and comparison, that he should reject the goods within a reasonable time (q), and that he should not have done any act to alter the position of the vendor or to delay the return of the goods (r). If the purchaser has exercised acts of dominion over the goods, as by parting with the property in them, or has prevented the vendor being placed in the same situation, then, generally speaking, he will not be entitled to return or reject them (s). In determining what is a reasonable time for rejecting goods the conduct of the seller may be taken into consideration, as, for instance, a sub-

(o) Street v. Blay, 2 B. & Ad. 456; Dawson v. Collis, 10 C.B. 523; 20 L.J. C.P. 116; Parsons v. Sexton, 4 C.B. 899; 16 L.J C.P. 184; Toulmin v. Hedley, 2 Car. & K. 157; Foster v. Smith, 18 C.B. 156; Heyworth v. Hutchinson, L.R. 2 Q.B. 447; 36 L.J. Q.B. 270.

(p) Behn v. Burness, 3 B. & S. 756; 32 L.J. Q.B. 204.

(q) See 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, ss. 35, 56.

(r) Curtis v. Pugh, 10 Q.B. 111; 16 L.J. Q.B. 199; Street v. Blay, 2 B. & Ad. 456; Chapman v. Morton, 11 M. & W. 534; 12 L.J. Ex. 292.

(s) Bovill, C.J., Heilbutt v. Hickson, L.R. 7 C.P. 438; 41 L.J. C.P. 228.

sequent misrepresentation whereby he has induced the purchaser to prolong the trial (t).

Conditions and warranties—Implied undertaking as to title, &c.—"In a contract of sale, unless the circumstances of the contract are such as to show a different intention, there is—(1) An implied condition on the part of the seller that in the case of a sale he has a right to sell the goods, and that in the case of an agreement to sell he will have a right to sell the goods at the time when the property is to pass: (2) An implied warranty that the buyer shall have and enjoy quiet possession of the goods: (3) An implied warranty that the goods shall be free from any charge or encumbrance in favour of any third party, not declared or known to the buyer before or at the time when the contract is made" (u).

In Noy's Maxims it is affirmed to be a principle of law that "If I take the horse of another man and sell him, and the owner take him again, I may have an action of debt for the money; for the bargain was perfect by the delivery of the horse, et caveat emptor" (x). However true this may have been when Noy wrote, it is certainly not true as a general proposition at the present day. Wherever a man sells goods as owner, he impliedly undertakes that the goods are his own goods, and that he has a right to make the sale he professes to make; and, if he was not the owner at the time of the sale, and was not selling his own goods but the goods of a third party, who subsequently claims them and deprives the purchaser of them, he is responsible in damages for the breach of such implied undertaking (y). "By the civil law," observes Blackstone, "an implied warranty was annexed to every sale in respect of the title of the vendor; and so, too, in our law, a purchaser of goods and chattels may have a satisfaction from the seller, if he sells them as his own and the title proves deficient, without any express warranty for that purpose" (z). If goods are sold by a person who is not the owner, and the owner is found out and paid for the goods, the vendor who sold them cannot then call upon the purchaser for payment (a). "If a man takes the goods of S. tortiously and sells them to me for money as his own goods, and afterwards S. takes them away from me, I may have an action on the case

(t) Adam v. Richards, 2 H.Bl. 573.

(u) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 12.

(x) Noy's Maxims, ch. 42, p. 89.

(y) Eichholz v. Bannister, 17 C.B. N.S. 708; 34 L.J. C.P. 105.

(z) 2 Bl. Com. 451; 2 Kent's Com. s. 478; 2 Stephen's Com. 84 (ed. 11); see also Lee, C.J., in Ryall v. Rowles, 1 Ves. senr. 351, commenting on the unreported case of L'Apostre v. L'Plaistrier; Simms v. Marryatt, 17 Q.B. 281; 20 L.J. Q.B. 458.

(a) Dickenson v. Naul, 4 B. & Ad. 638; Allen v. Hopkins, 13 M. & W. 94; 13 L.J. Ex. 316.

against my vendor." "If the vendor affirm that the goods are the goods of a stranger, his friend, and that he had authority from him to sell them, and upon that B. buy them, when in truth they are the goods of another, yet, if he sell them fraudulently and falsely on this pretence of authority, though he do not warrant them, and though it be not averred that he sold them knowing them to be the goods of a stranger, yet B. shall have an action for this deceit" (b).

"Where one, having the possession of any personal chattel, sells it, the bare affirming it to be his amounts to a warranty of the fact: and an action lies on the affirmation; for his having possession is a colour of title, and perhaps no other title can be made out. Aliter, where the seller is out of possession; for then there may be room to question the seller's title; and caveat emptor in such a case to have either an express warranty or a good title" (c). This dictum of Lord Holt's would appear not to be warranted by later authorities. "This distinction by Holt," observes Buller, J., "is not mentioned by Lord Raymond, who reports the same case; and if an affirmation at the time of sale be a warranty, I cannot perceive a distinction between the vendor's being in or out of possession. The thing is bought of him in consequence of his assertion; and, if there be any difference, it seems to me that the case is strongest against the vendor when he is out of possession, because then the vendee has nothing but the warranty to rely on" (d).

The circumstances of the case may, however, rebut the warranty of title; or, in the words of sect. 12, the circumstances of the contract may be such as to show a different intention. Whenever a man does not sell goods as owner, but in some special character or capacity, and the purchaser has notice thereof, he is bound to look into the title of his vendor; for there is not, under such circumstances, any implied warranty of title on the part of the vendor (e). The latter merely undertakes and promises that he does not, at the time he sells, know of any defect in his authority or title to sell; and he cannot be made responsible for the repayment of the purchase-money, unless it can be proved that he knew he had no right or title to sell, and that consequently his conduct was fraudulent. Thus, in the

(b) 1 Rolle Abr. 90, pl. 5; 91, pl. 7; see Pasley v. Freeman, 3 T.R. 59.

(c) Medina v. Stoughton, 1 Salk. 210; Crosse v. Gardner, Carth. 90; Adamson v. Jarvis, 4 Bing. 66; 5 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 68; Harding v. Freeman, Sty. 310; Roswell v. Vaughan, Cro.Jac. 196.

(d) Pasley v. Freeman, 3 T.R. 51, 58; see also Morley v. Attenborough, 3 Exch. 500; 18 L.J. Ex. 148; Eichholz v. Bannister, 17 C.B. N.S. 708; 24 L.J. C.P. 105. The distinction taken by Lord Holt is, however, well recognised in America: see 2 Kent's Com. s. 478; Story on Sale, s. 367, n. 5, p. 436 (ed. 4).

(e) Bagueley v. Hawley, L.R. 2 C.P. 625; 36 L.J. C.P. 328.

case of sales by sheriffs of goods and chattels taken in execution, the sheriff does not impliedly warrant his title to sell, or warrant the purchaser against eviction; he merely promises that he does not, at the time he sells, know of any defect in his authority, or that he has no right or title to sell (f). So, in the case of sales by pawnbrokers of unredeemed pledges, the pawnbroker only warrants the subject-matter of the sale to be a pledge the time for the redemption of which has expired. He does not warrant or promise that the pledgor had a title to pledge the article; nor does he impliedly warrant the purchaser against eviction. As he has sold in a special character or capacity, he impliedly sells and agrees to transfer his own title and interest in the subject-matter of the sale, and no more; and, that being so, it is the duty of the purchaser to inquire into the title; and, if he neglects so to do, and it subsequently appears that the pledgor had no title to pledge nor the pawnbroker to sell, and the purchaser is evicted, he cannot recover compensation for his loss, unless he can establish a case of fraud (g). There may be no implied warranty of title on the part of a vendor, and yet the purchaser may be entitled to recover back the purchase-money, on the ground of a total failure of consideration. Thus, in the case of a sale of stock, scrip, or shares in joint stock companies, the law does not imply any undertaking or warranty from the vendor that the scrip, stock, or shares he sells are genuine; but, if the vendor has innocently sold forged or counterfeit stock, scrip, or shares, the purchaser is entitled, as we have seen, to a return of the purchase-money, on the ground that there has been a total failure of consideration (h). Where the plaintiff succeeded the defendant as the tenant of a dwelling-house, and agreed with him for the purchase of the tenant's fixtures in the house, and paid him the purchase-money, and it subsequently appeared that the fixtures belonged to the landlord, and that the tenant had no right to sell them, and the plaintiff was obliged to pay the value of them to the landlord, it was held that he was entitled to recover back the money he had paid to the defendant, on the ground that there had been a total failure of the consideration, and that the money had been paid under a mistake, although it appeared that the defendant had himself bought the fixtures bonâ fide of a preceding tenant in ignorance of the title of the landlord (i).

(f) Chapman v. Speller, 14 Q.B. 621; 19 L.J. Q.B. 239.

(g) Morley v. Attenborough, 3 Exch. 500; 18 L.J. Ex. 148.

(h) Westropp v. Solomon, 8 C.B. 345, 371; 19 L.J. C.P. 1.

(i) Robinson v. Anderton, 1 Peake, 129; Wilkinson v. Lloyd, 7 Q.B. 27, 43; sub nom. Leeman v. Lloyd, 14 L.J. Q.B. 165.

But, if the vendor does not pretend himself to be the owner of the goods he sells, but sells only such a title and interest as the law gives him in the subject-matter of the sale, the purchase-money cannot be recovered back on the ground of a failure of the consideration, if it turns out that the vendor had not the title or interest which he was supposed to have, unless the vendor knew of his want of title at the time of the sale, and there has been a fraudulent concealment (k). Where the plaintiff and defendant both attended a sheriff's sale where goods seized under a writ of execution were being sold by auction, and the defendant purchased a lot for 18*l*., and the plaintiff offered the defendant 5*l*. "to let him stand in his shoes," which offer the defendant accepted, and with the assent of the sheriff made over his bargain to the plaintiff, and the plaintiff paid down 23*l*., 18*l*. of which were handed to the sheriff as the price of the lot, and the remaining 5*l*. were retained by the defendant as his share of the purchase-money, and it was subsequently discovered that the goods had been seized by mistake, and were not the property of the debtor against whom execution had been issued, and the plaintiff was obliged to return the goods, and then brought an action against the defendant for the recovery of the 5*l*. on the ground that there had been a total failure of consideration, it was held that the true consideration was the transfer to the plaintiff of the defendant's right, such as it was, to the 18*l*. lot; and, having got that, the plaintiff had got all that he had bargained for, and agreed to buy, and the defendant to sell, and that there was no ground for claiming a return of the purchase-money. In deciding for the defendant, observes the court, "under the circumstances, we wish to guard against being supposed to doubt the right to recover back money paid upon an ordinary purchase of a chattel, where the purchaser does not have that for which he paid" (l). On a sale of letters patent there is no warranty that the patent is indefeasible, and the purchaser having the same means of knowledge as to the value of the patent as the seller, the maxim caveat emptor applies (m).

Conditions and warranties—Sale by description.—"Where there is a contract for the sale of goods by description there is an implied condition that the goods shall correspond with the description; and if the sale be by sample as well as by description, it is not sufficient that the bulk of the goods corresponds with the sample if the goods do not also correspond with the description" (n). If the thing delivered does not answer the description of that which was sold—if, that is, it differs in kind and not in quality only, so as to amount in effect to a different article—the buyer is not bound to take it; and, if he has paid for it, he may recover back the money (o).

(k) As to effect of fraud, see sect. 61, post.

(l) Chapman v. Speller, 14 Q.B. 621; 19 L.J. Q.B. 239.

(m) Hall v. Conder, 2 C.B. N.S. 53; 26 L.J. C.P. 138.

When the sale is a sale of particular classes and descriptions of goods to be selected by the vendor, such as a sale of so many measures of corn, wine, oil, or fruit, and not of any specific ascertained parcel of goods, the vendor will fulfil his contract by furnishing any goods fairly answering the description given by him. When, on the other hand, the precise article intended to be bought and sold was ascertained at the time of the making of the bargain, the vendor must deliver the identical thing so ascertained, and cannot fulfil his contract by delivering anything else of a corresponding nature. If the purchaser, instead of going in person to a shop, and selecting the goods himself, sends an order describing what he wants, the vendor, if he accepts the order, must select and send an article which fairly corresponds with the description. And this is so whether the purchaser has an opportunity of inspecting the goods and judging for himself or not (p). Thus, where a purchaser forwarded a written order to the vendor for "scarlet cuttings," to be shipped on his account for the Chinese market, and the vendor sent on board a different article, it was held that the plaintiff was entitled to recover from the vendor all the loss he had sustained in consequence of his not having had in China the goods which he had ordered (q). If, therefore, a shipowner supplies a ship ordered to be copper-fastened which is not copper-fastened, or a silversmith sells plated goods for silver (r), or if a merchant sells wine or beer described as "fit," or ordered by the purchaser to be "fit, for the Mediterranean," or "India market," and sends out a liquid which turns sour on the voyage, and is not saleable on its arrival as wine or beer (s), he is liable to an action for the breach of an implied undertaking to furnish the article described and (n) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 13; Nichol v. Godts, 10 Exch. 191; 23 L.J. Ex. 314. As to sale by sample, see sect. 15, post.

(o) Azémar v. Casella, L.R. 2 C.P. 677; 36 L.J. C.P. 263; Vigers v. Sanderson, (1901) 1 K.B. 608; 70 L.J. K.B. 383. As to the measure of damages for breach of implied condition on a sale by description, see Bostock & Co. v. Nicholson & Sons, (1904) 1 K.B. 725; 73 L.J. K.B. 524; and post, p. 629.

(p) Tye v. Fynmore, 3 Campb. 462; Josling v. Kingsford, 3 C.B. N.S. 447; 32 L.J. C.P. 94.

(q) Bridge v. Wain, 1 Stark. 504.

(r) Shepherd v. Kain, 5 B. & Ald. 240.

(s) Fisher v. Samuda, 1 Campb. 190.

ordered (t). Where a contract was entered into for the supply of a certain quantity of "best palm oil, usual tare and draft, wet, dirty, and inferior, if any, at a fair allowance," it was held that evidence was admissible to show that there was an established usage in the trade regulating the proportions of good and bad oil, and that the vendor under such a contract was bound to supply a certain proportion of the best oil (u).

The vendee may refuse to receive the thing proffered to him in performance of the contract on the ground that it does not correspond with the descriptive statement (x). A purchaser is not bound to accept goods partly of the quality bargained for and partly of an inferior quality, if they are mixed together so that the whole bulk becomes of an inferior quality to that bargained for (y). Where goods are sold under a certain denomination, the buyer is entitled to have such goods delivered to him as are commercially known under this denomination though he may have bought after inspection of the bulk (z).

Where there is a contract for the sale of specific or ascertained goods which the buyer has not seen, and he relies on the description given to him of them by the seller, the contract is for the sale of goods by description, and there is an implied condition that the goods shall correspond with the description (a).

Conditions and warranties—Implied conditions as to quality or fitness.—Subject to the provisions of the Act of 1893 and of any statute in that behalf, "there is no implied warranty or condition as to the quality (b) or fitness for any particular purpose of goods supplied under a contract of sale, except as follows:—(1) Where the buyer, expressly or by implication, makes known to the seller the particular purpose for which the goods are required, so as to show that the buyer relies on the seller's skill or judgment, and the goods are of a description which it is in the course of the seller's business to supply (whether he be the manufacturer or not), there is an implied condition that the goods shall be reasonably fit for such pur-

(t) Gardiner v. Gray, 4 Campb. 144; Powell v. Horton, 2 Bing. N.C. 668; 5 L.J. C.P. 204; Allan v. Lake, 18 Q.B. 560; Simond v. Braddon, 2 C.B. N.S. 324; 26 L.J. C.P. 198; Wieler v. Schilizzi, 17 C.B. 619; 25 L.J. C.P. 89.

(u) Lucas v. Bristow, E. B. & E. 907; 27 L.J. Q.B. 364.

(x) Behn v. Burness, 3 B. & S. 751; 32 L.J. Q.B. 204; Heilbutt v. Hickson, L.R. 7 C.P. 438; 41 L.J. C.P. 228.

(y) Nicholson v. Bradfield Union, L.R. 1 Q.B. 620; 35 L.J. Q.B. 176.

(z) Jones v. Just, L.R. 3 Q.B. 197; 37 L.J. Q.B. 89; Mody v. Gregson, L.R. 4 Ex. 49; 38 L.J. Ex. 12; Randall v. Newson, 2 Q.B.D. 102; 16 L.J. Q.B. 259; Bowes v. Shand, 2 App.Cas. 455, 480; 46 L.J. Q.B. 561.

(a) Varley v. Whipp, (1900) 1 Q.B. 513; 69 L.J. Q.B. 333.

(b) "Quality of goods" includes their state or condition: 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 62.

pose (c), provided that in the case of a contract for the sale of a specified article under its patent or other trade name, there is no implied condition as to its fitness for any particular purpose: (2) Where goods are bought by description from a seller who deals in goods of that description (whether he be the manufacturer or not), there is an implied condition that the goods shall be of merchantable quality (d); provided that if the buyer has examined the goods, there shall be no implied condition as regards defects which such examination ought to have revealed: (3) An implied warranty or condition as to quality or fitness for a particular purpose may be annexed by the usage of trade: (4) An express warranty or condition does not negative a warranty or condition implied by this Act unless inconsistent therewith" (e).

Implied warranty where nothing is said respecting quantity or quality—Caveat emptor.—The law does not imply from the mere seller of an article in its natural state, who has no better means of information than the purchaser, as, for instance, where the goods are in existence and can be inspected by the buyer (f), and who does not affirm that the article is fit for any particular purpose, any warranty or undertaking beyond the ordinary promise that he makes no false representation calculated to deceive the purchaser, and practises no deceit or fraudulent concealment, and that he is not cognizant of any latent defect materially affecting the marketable value of the goods (g). "In the general sale of a horse, the seller only warrants it to be an animal of the description it appears to be, and nothing more; and, if the purchaser makes no inquiries as to its soundness or qualities, and it turns out to be unsound and restive, or unfit for use, he cannot recover as against the seller, as it must be assumed that he purchased the animal at a cheaper rate" (h). So, on the sale and transfer of wares and merchandise, if nothing is said as to the character or quality of thing sold, the buyer takes the risk of all latent defects unknown to the seller at the time of entering into the contract of sale; all that the seller

(c) As to inference of sale for a particular purpose, cp. Preist v. Last, (1903) 2 K.B. 148; 72 L.J. K.B. 657; Frost v. Aylesbury Dairy Co., (1905) 1 K.B. 608; 74 L.J. K.B. 386 (milk supplied for domestic use). As to reasonable fitness, cp. Clarke v. Army and Navy Co-operative Society, (1903) 1 K.B. 155; 72 L.J. K.B. 153. As to damages recoverable, cp. Jackson v. Watson & Sons, (1909) 2 K.B. 193; 78 L.J. K.B. 587.

(d) Wren v. Holt, (1903) 1 K.B. 610; 72 L.J. K.B. 340 (case of illness caused by arsenical poison in beer); Bristol Tramways Co. v. Fiat Motors, (1910) 2 K.B. 831; 79 L.J. K.B. 1107.

(e) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 14.

(f) Jones v. Just, L.R. 3 Q.B. 197; 37 L.J. Q.B. 89.

(g) Barr v. Gibson, 3 M. & W. 390; 7 L.J. Ex. 124.

(h) Per Best, C.J., Jones v. Bright, 3 Moo. & P. at p. 175; 7 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 213.

answers for being that the article is, as far as he knows, what it appears to be.

Implied warranty where article sold to be used for specific purpose.—If the vendor is informed that an article of a certain quality, or description, suited for some specified purpose, is required, the law implies a promise from him that he will supply to the purchaser an article of the quality or description ordered, and reasonably fit for the purpose for which it is required. If a person purchases goods from a dealer in such goods, explaining the purpose for which they are to be used and leaving the selection of them to the seller, the latter thereby impliedly warrants that they are fit for the purpose for which they are so used, and is liable to the purchaser for damage occasioned by their unfitness, even though he was not the manufacturer of the goods sold by him (i). This warranty is of a general character and includes latent defects (k); as, for instance, in the case of milk supplied by a dairy company for domestic use, where the buyer relied upon the company's skill and judgment (l). Where an article which is primâ facie applicable to one purpose only, such as a hot water bottle, is sold by its ordinary recognised description, then, inasmuch as there is a sale for a particular purpose which is known both to the seller and buyer, the fact that the buyer does not make known to the seller the particular purpose for which the article is required, otherwise than by the ordinary description of the article, does not prevent the implication of a warranty, within sect. 14 (1) of the Act of 1893, that the article is reasonably fit for the purpose in question (m). It would seem that a rule of a co-operative society that "no warranties are given with the goods sold by the society, except on the written authority of one of the managing directors or the assistant manager" will not exclude from the contract of sale the implied warranty arising under sect. 14 (1) of the Act of 1893, that goods sold for a particular purpose are reasonably fit for such purpose (n).

The law generally implies a promise from a manufacturer that all goods manufactured and sold by him for a specific purpose, and to be used in a particular way, are reasonably fit for the

(i) Brown v. Edgington, 2 M. & Gr. 279; 10 L.J. C.P. 66; and see Bigge v. Parkinson, 7 H. & N. 955; 31 L.J. Ex. 301.

(k) Randall v. Newson, 2 Q.B.D. 102; 46 L.J. Q.B. 259; the doctrine of Readhead v. Midland Ry., L.R. 4 Q.B. 379; 38 L.J. Q.B. 169, does not apply.

(l) Frost v. Aylesbury Dairy Co., (1905) 1 K.B. 608; 74 L.J. K.B. 386.

(m) Preist v. Last, (1903) 2 K.B. 148; 72 L.J. K.B. 657.

(n) Clarke v. Army and Navy Co-operative Society, (1903) 1 K.B. 155; 72 L.J. K.B. 153. As to the duty of a seller of dangerous goods to warn the buyer, see Addison on Torts, 721 (ed. 8).

purpose for which he professes to make them, and for which they are known to be required. Thus, where the plaintiff bought a pole for his carriage from the defendant, who supplied a pole which broke short off and which the jury found was not reasonably fit for a carriage pole, it was held that the defendant was liable in an action for damages, though he did not know of any defect in the pole (o); again, where a tradesman manufactured and sold copper sheathing for vessels, it was held that he impliedly warranted that the copper he manufactured was reasonably fit for the purpose of sheathing vessels (p); and it would seem, indeed, that the mere seller of copper described as fit for sheathing vessels would be presumed to have a reasonable knowledge of the article so described, and that the law would imply a warranty that the article was reasonably fit for the purpose specified (q). Where a contract for the sale of goods is silent as to the purpose for which they are required, the antecedent course of conduct of the buyer and seller, and the fact that a document stating the purpose for which the goods are required was brought to the knowledge of the seller, are admissible in evidence in an action for breach of warranty brought upon the contract to show that the buyer relied on the seller's skill and judgment, and that there is an implied condition that the goods shall be reasonably fit for such purpose (r). But, when a known and defined article is ordered of a manufacturer, although it is stated to be required by the purchaser for a particular purpose, yet, if the known and defined thing is actually supplied, there is no warranty that it shall answer the particular purpose intended by the buyer. Thus, where a manufacturer invented and sold a "smoke-consuming furnace," and the defendant ordered it for his brewery, it was held that the law would imply no warranty that the machine was fit for the defendant's brewing-copper, and that the utmost that the vendor could be considered to undertake under such circumstances was that the machine would consume smoke, which it appeared to have done in other instances when applied to a different purpose. If the vendor had said, "I will send you one of my smoke-consuming furnaces which will suit your brewery," in such a case that would be a warranty that it would suit a brewery (s). In an action for the price of a printing-machine, it appeared that

(o) Randall v. Newson, 2 Q.B.D. 102; 46 L.J. Q.B. 259.

(p) Jones v. Bright, 3 Moo. & P. 155; 7 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 213.

(q) Gray v. Cox, 6 D. & R. 200; 4 B. & C. 108.

(r) Gillespie v. Cheney, (1896) 2 Q.B. 59; 65 L.J. Q.B. 552.

(s) Chanter v. Hopkins, 4 M. & W. 399; 8 L.J. Ex. 14; Camac v. Warriner, 1 C.B. 367; Prideaux v. Bunnett, 1 C.B. N.S. 613; Shepherd v. Pybus, 4 Sc. N.R. 434; 11 L.J. C.P. 101.

the plaintiff had obtained a patent for a machine of which he was the inventor, which he called "Ollivant's patent printing machine," the object of which was to print calico in two colours; that the defendant, hearing of the invention, wrote to the plaintiff to know the price; when the latter in reply said, "I undertake to make you a two colour printing machine on my patent principle"; whereupon the defendant ordered the machine, but could not make it print two colours, and therefore refused to pay the price; but it was held that, as the defendant had got a machine made on the plaintiff's "patent principle," he had got all he had bargained for, and that there was no implied undertaking that it would, in the defendant's hands and under his management, answer the purpose for which he wanted it (t). But a contract for the sale of goods by description is not "a contract for the sale of a specified article under its patent or other trade name" within the proviso in sect. 14, sub-sect. 1, of Sale of Goods Act, 1893 (u); and on a sale of unascertained goods, an express warranty that they shall conform to a certain standard does not exclude the implied warranty that they shall be reasonably fit for the purpose for which the vendor knows they are wanted (x). If a manufacturer sells an article which he knows is bought for a particular purpose he impliedly warrants that it is fit for that purpose (y), but it is unreasonable to require that he should be cognizant of all the purposes to which the article sold might be applied (z).

Warranty of merchantable quality.—Under a contract to supply goods of a specified description, which the buyer has no opportunity of inspecting, the goods must not only, in fact, answer the specific description, but must be merchantable under that description. The maxim caveat emptor does not apply to a sale of goods when the buyer has no opportunity of inspection (a). Where goods, as for instance beer in a tied house, are bought by description from a seller who deals in goods of that description within the meaning of sect. 14 (2) of the Sale of Goods Act, 1893 (b), there is an implied condition arising upon such sale that the goods are of merchantable quality (c).

When goods are sold by sample under circumstances in which,

(t) Ollivant v. Bailey, 5 Q.B. 288; 13 L.J. Q.B. 34.

(u) Gillespie v. Cheney, (1896) 2 Q.B. 59; 65 L.J. Q.B. 552.

(x) Bigge v. Parkinson, 7 H. & N. 955; 31 L.J. Ex. 301.

(y) Jones v. Bright, 5 Bing. 533; 7 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 213.

(z) Drummond v. Van Ingen, 12 App. Cas. 284; 56 L.J. Q.B. 563; Jones v. Padgett, 24 Q.B.D. 650; 59 L.J. Q.B. 261.

(a) Jones v. Just, L.R. 3 Q.B. 197; 37 L.J. Q.B. 89.

(b) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 14 (2).

(c) Wren v. Holt, (1903) 1 K.B. 610; 72 L.J. K.B. 340; Bristol Tramways Co. v. Fiat Motors, (1910) 2 K.B. 831; 79 L.J. K.B. 1107.

in the absence of a sample, there would have been an implied warranty that they were merchantable, such warranty is excluded only with respect to such matters as can be judged of by the sample. Where manufacturers contracted to supply to the plaintiffs a quantity of material to be in quality and weight according to sample, and goods according to sample and of the agreed weight were delivered and accepted, but it was afterwards discovered that owing to a certain defect the goods were unmerchantable, it was held that, although the defect existed in the sample, yet since it could not have been discovered by an ordinary examination, the implied warranty of merchantable quality was not excluded (d).

Implied warranties on sales of provisions.—Every victualler and dealer in provisions (dd), who sells provisions, impliedly warrants them to be wholesome and fit for food. "If I come to a tavern to eat, and the taverner gives and sells me meat and drink corrupted, whereby I am made sick, an action lies against him without any express warranty, because it is a warranty in law" (e). If a man contracts to supply victuals to a ship's crew, he impliedly warrants them to be good and wholesome, and fit for the sustenance of man (f). This is clearly so if he contracts as a purveyor of victuals. Before the Sale of Goods Act, 1893, there was a difference according to the character in which the vendor sold. Thus where one farmer sold the carcass of a pig to another, it was held that there was no warranty that the carcass was fit for human consumption (g); and even on a sale by a meat-salesman to a butcher it was held that there was no such warranty (h). It is at least doubtful how far these decisions can now be supported.

Implied warranty by seller that goods are his own manufacture.—It was formerly held that there was an implied contract on the part of a manufacturer that the goods delivered should be those of his own make (i). This, however, is no longer the law; one manufacturer may sell goods manufactured by another provided he complies with the directions of the Merchandise Marks Act, 1887 (k).

Warranty as to genuineness of articles with trade-marks.—

(d) Mody v. Gregson, L.R. 4 Ex. 49; 38 L.J. Ex. 12; Drummond v. Van Ingen, 12 App.Cas. 284; 56 L.J. Q.B. 563.

(dd) Jackson v. Watson & Sons, (1909) 2 K.B. 193; 78 L.J. K.B. 587.

(e) Year Book, 9 Hen. 6, 53; 1 Rolle, Abr. 90, P. pl. 1, 2.

(f) Bigge v. Parkinson, 7 H. & N. 955; 31 L.J. Ex. 301.

(g) Burnby v. Bollett, 16 M. & W. 644; 17 L.J. Ex. 190.

(h) Emmerton v. Matthews, 7 H. & N. 586; 31 L.J. Ex. 139.

(i) Johnson v. Raylton, 7 Q.B.D. 438; 50 L.J. Q.B. 753.

(k) 50 & 51 Vict. c. 28 (amended by 54 & 55 Vict. c. 15).

By sect. 17 of the Merchandise Marks Act, 1887, on the sale or in the contract for the sale of any goods to which a trade-mark or mark or trade description has been applied (l), the vendor shall be deemed to warrant that the mark is a genuine trade-mark, and not forged or falsely applied, or that the trade description is not a false trade description within the meaning of the Act, unless the contrary is expressed in some writing signed by or on behalf of the vendor, and delivered at the time of the sale or contract to and accepted by the vendee (m).

Warranty of description as to quantity or country.—By sect. 18, where, at the passing of the Act of 1887, "a trade description is lawfully and generally applied to goods of a particular class, or manufactured by a particular method, to indicate the particular class or method of manufacture of such goods, the provisions of this Act with respect to false trade descriptions shall not apply to such trade description when so applied; provided that where such trade description includes the name of a place or country, and is calculated to mislead as to the place or country where the goods to which it is applied were actually made or produced, and the goods are not actually made or produced in that place or country, this section shall not apply unless there is added to the trade description immediately before or after the name of that place or country, in an equally conspicuous manner, with that name, the name of the place or country in which the goods were actually made or produced, with a statement that they were made or produced there."

Conditions and warranties—Sale by sample.—"A contract of sale is a contract for sale by sample where there is a term in the contract, express or implied, to that effect" (n).

"In the case of a contract for sale by sample—(a) there is an implied condition that the bulk shall correspond with the sample in quality: (b) there is an implied condition that the buyer shall have a reasonable opportunity of comparing the bulk by the sample: (c) there is an implied condition that the goods shall be free from any defect, rendering them unmerchantable, which would not be apparent on reasonable examination of the sample" (o).

If goods are sold by description merely, without a sample, there is an implied condition that they are merchantable under that description (p). If a sample is exhibited at the time of (l) As to what amounts to "applying," see sect. 5.

(m) As to warranties on the sale of agricultural fertilisers and feeding stuffs, see 6 Edw. 7, c. 27, s. 1. This Act applies to wholesale as well as retail sales: see sect. 10 (2).

(n) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 15 (1).

(o) Ib., s. 15 (2).

(p) See sect. 13, ante, p. 562.

the contract, a question may arise whether the description or the sample was intended to be essential. The latter case is not strictly speaking a sale by sample within the Act of 1893, and it is sufficient if the goods correspond with the sample; in the former case they must answer the description as well (q). The question which of the two was to be "the touchstone of the contract" depends on the intention and object of the parties using the sample (r). Generally the description is the more important, as it goes to the nature of the goods, whilst the sample deals more with the quality (s). In any case the implied condition that the goods shall answer the description and be merchantable under it is excluded only in so far as the quality of the goods might have been ascertained by inspection of the sample, and the vendor remains liable for any defect which was not discoverable by reasonable inspection of the sample (t). On a sale by sample, if the goods are not equal to sample the purchaser may reject them (u). Moreover, he is entitled to inspect the bulk before accepting the goods, and if an opportunity of inspecting them is not given he may reject them (x). The place of delivery is usually the place for inspection (y).

Before the passing of the Act it was held that on a sale by sample the only warranty was that the sample was fairly taken from the bulk (z). The purchaser suing for damages on the ground that the bulk did not correspond with the sample had then to establish either a warranty or a false and fraudulent representation that the bulk was equal to the sample. If he relied on an implied warranty, the implication had to be based on facts other than the mere exhibition of the sample. If he relied on a misrepresentation, he had to prove that it was false to the knowledge of the vendor (a). It was formerly a question in each case whether the term that the goods should correspond with the sample was a condition entitling the purchaser in breach of it to rescind the contract, or merely a warranty giving him a right of action for damages; and on the sale of specific chattels the latter construction prevailed (b). The same result is now

(q) See sect. 13, ante, p. 562.
(r) Mody v. Gregson, L.R. 4 Ex. 49; 38 L.J. Ex. 12; Hill v. Smith, 4 Taunt. 520; Meyer v. Everth, 4 Campb. 22; Gardiner v. Gray, 4 Campb. 144.
(s) Nichol v. Godts, 10 Exch. 191; 23 L.J. Ex. 314.
(t) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 15 (2) (c); Drummond v. Van Ingen, 12 App.Cas. 284; 56 L.J. Q.B. 563.
(u) Hibbert v. Shee, 1 Campb. 113.
(x) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 15 (2) (b); Lorymer v. Smith, 1 B. & C. 1.
(y) Perkins v. Bell, (1893) 1 Q.B. 193; 62 L.J. Q.B. 91.
(z) Sayers v. London and Birmingham Flint Glass Co., 27 L.J. Ex. 294.
(a) Ormrod v. Huth, 14 M. & W. 651; 14 L.J. Ex. 306; Freeman v. Baker, 5 B. & Ad. 797; 3 L.J. K.B. 17; Moens v. Heyworth, 10 M. & W. 147; 10 L.J. Ex. 177.
(b) Heyworth v. Hutchinson, L.R. 2 Q.B. 447; 36 L.J. Q.B. 270.

arrived at through the combined operation of sects. 15 (2) (a) and 11 (1) (c) of the Act of 1893. The term is a condition, the breach of which gives, in case of unascertained goods, a right to rescind, but in case of specific goods a right to damages only. Where there is a written contract of sale, or any note or memorandum of the bargain in writing, the circumstance of the sale being by sample cannot be imported into the contract and made use of by the purchaser, if the note or memorandum is silent as to the sample (c), unless by custom of the trade the goods in question are sold by sample (d). Where both parties intended the written contract to contain a stipulation that the article purchased was to be according to sample, and that stipulation is omitted by mistake, the purchaser may decline to accept the article if it does not agree with the sample (e). Where goods have been sold by sample, evidence of a custom of trade, as to returning or making an allowance for such of the goods as do not answer the sample, is receivable (f). A trade custom, which imports into a contract for the sale of goods by sample a term that the purchaser shall not be entitled to reject the goods on account of variation between the sample and the bulk, provided that the variation is such that it can reasonably be remedied by an abatement of the price, and does not affect the purpose for which the goods were purchased, is a good custom (g).

Sales voidable on ground of fraudulent misrepresentation.—The position of a person who enters into a contract for the sale of goods relying upon the misrepresentation of the other party varies according as the misrepresentation is fraudulent or innocent. In the former case the person deceived may rescind the contract, or he may keep the goods and sue for damages. In the latter case, if the representation made amounts to a condition, the party misled may rescind the contract or retain the goods and sue for damages (h); if it amounts to a warranty strictly so called, he may sue for damages but cannot rescind the contract; if it does not amount either to a condition or to a warranty, he has no remedy. A contract induced by the fraudulent deceit of one of the parties is not void, but only voidable. But the person deceived can only rescind the contract and demand restitution, where he does not elect to sue for damages, on the terms that he himself makes restitution; and

(c) Meyer v. Everth, 4 Campb. 22; Gardiner v. Gray, ib. 144.
(d) Syers v. Jonas, 2 Exch. 111.
(e) Borrowman v. Rossell, 16 C.B. N.S. 68; 33 L.J. C.P. 11.
(f) Cooke v. Riddelien, 1 Car. & K. 561.
(g) Walkers v. Shaw, Son & Co., (1904) 2 K.B. 152; 73 L.J. K.B. 325.
(h) See ante, pp. 546, 547.

if, either from his own act or from misfortune, it is impossible to make such restitution, he is too late to rescind (i).

It is not every wilful false statement, made with full knowledge of its falsehood, that will amount in judgment of law to a fraud, so as to enable a purchaser to avoid a contract of sale. The ordinary praise or commendation, for example, bestowed by a vendor on the wares he sells, though embodying statements of fact known by the party making them to be not strictly true, does not vitiate the contract of sale. A misrepresentation, moreover, to enable a purchaser to avoid a sale on the ground of deceit and fraud, must be made concerning some matter material to the value of the contract, so that there may be fair ground for thinking that the contract would never have been entered into if the false statement had not been made. De minimis non curat lex; and, therefore, if a man represents his house to be in good repair, and a few tiles are off the roof, or two or three of the joists under the floor near the ground are rotted with the damp, or a pane of glass is broken in a garret window, such trifling defects, to use the language of Lord Kenyon, "are mere bagatelles," and afford no evidence of mala fides (k). To all trifling representations, not really inducing the contract (l), and to all affirmations of matters of opinion, not amounting to positive assertions of fact with knowledge of their falsehood, the maxim of caveat emptor must apply (m).

False representation through third party.—Where the defendant, who was in negotiation for the sale of a public-house, made a false representation to one Bourner as to the receipts of the house, whereby Bourner was induced to agree to buy it, and Bourner subsequently repeated the false representation to the plaintiff who then agreed to become the purchaser instead of Bourner and paid the purchase-money to the defendant, it was held that the plaintiff was entitled to sue the defendant for the deceit, although the false representation had not been made to him directly by the defendant, but through the medium of a third party; for the defendant, knowing that the fraudulent representation he had made to a third person had been communicated to the plaintiff, with whom he was about to contract, and withholding an explanation or denial of that third person's

(i) Houldsworth v. City of Glasgow Bank, 5 App.Cas. 317, 338.

(k) Bowles v. Atkinson, cited Sugden's V. & P. 334 (ed. 14); Geddes v. Pennington, 5 Dow, 164.

(l) Attwood v. Small, 6 Cl. & F. 444; Smith v. Kay, 7 H.L. Cas. 775; Lowndes v. Lane, 2 Cox, 363.

(m) Benham v. United Guar. Assur. Co., 7 Exch. 744; 21 L.J. Ex. 317; as to the avoidance of contracts on the ground of fraudulent misrepresentation, see ante, pp. 124—130.

authority for the communication, and suffering the plaintiff on the faith of that communication to enter into the contract, was as much guilty of a deceit on the plaintiff as if he had in terms repeated the statement himself (n).

Fraudulent breach of warranty.—Whenever the representation amounts to a warranty of the fact stated, and is untrue, it is immaterial whether there was knowledge or want of knowledge of the untruth on the part of the person making it. "If one man," observes Lord Ellenborough, "lull another into security as to the goodness of a commodity, by giving him a warranty of it, it is the same thing whether or not the seller knew it at the time to be unfit for sale: the warranty is the thing which deceives the buyer who relies on it, and is thereby put off his guard. Then if the warranty be the material averment, it is sufficient to prove that broken to establish the deceit" (o). If, therefore, a watchmaker warrants a watch to go well, or a horsedealer warrants his horse to be sound, or quiet and free from vice, or a wine-merchant warrants his claret to be in a fit state for exportation, or a copper manufacturer warrants his copper to be fit for sheathing vessels, and a purchaser buys on the faith of the warranty, and then finds that the watch will not go, or that the horse is unsound or vicious, or that the claret is sour, or that the copper is unfit for sheathing, this is sufficient, though in each of the cases mentioned the vendor was not aware of the fact at the time he gave the warranty (p). The purchaser of a warranted but worthless article is entitled to maintain an action, although he has stipulated that if he dis likes the article it shall be exchanged for another of the same value (q).

Counterfeiting trade-marks—Implied warranty on sale of marked goods—Fraudulent use of trade-mark with intent to deceive.— By sect. 17 of the Merchandise Marks Act, 1887 (r), on the sale or in the contract for the sale of any goods to which a trade-mark or mark or trade description has been applied (s), the vendor is deemed to warrant that the mark is a genuine trade-mark and not forged or falsely applied, or that the trade description is not a false trade description within the meaning of the Act, unless the contrary is expressed in some writing signed by or on behalf of the vendor and delivered at the time of the (n) Pilmore v. Hood, 5 Bing. N.C. 97, 109; 8 L.J. C.P. 11.

(o) Williamson v. Allison, 2 East, 446, 451.

(p) Wallace v. Jarman, 2 Stark. 162; Anon., Lofft, 146; Gresham v. Postan, 2 C. & P. 540; Williamson v Allison, supra.

(q) Wallace v. Jarman, supra.

(r) See 50 & 51 Vict. c. 28, s. 17.

(s) 5 Edw. 7, c. 15.

sale or contract to and accepted by the vendee. If a manufacturer has adopted a particular mark or name (t) to denote that the goods so marked were made by him, and the mark has become known and understood in the trade, he who uses the mark for the purpose of deceiving purchasers and making them believe the goods to be the goods of the manufacturer who has introduced the mark, is guilty of a false and fraudulent representation, and if this produces damage to another, the person injured is entitled to an action for the deceit (u).

Fraudulent concealment.—If a vendor has resorted to any contrivance for the purpose of concealing any defect in the subject-matter of a contract of sale, the purchaser may avoid the contract on the ground of fraud; but the vendor is not bound to point out defects which may be seen on examination (x). It has been held that there was a fraudulent concealment vitiating a contract of sale in the following cases:—where a partner who had the exclusive management and control of the partnership business agreed to purchase the share of his co-partner, but kept back from the knowledge of the latter the true state of the accounts and of the amount of profit realized, and by that means effected the purchase for a less sum than would have been taken if the state of the partnership had been fully disclosed and fairly stated (y);—where an intending purchaser of a policy of insurance, having secret information of the alarming illness and imminent danger of death of the party on whose life the policy had been effected, treated with an assignee of the policy for the purchase of it without disclosing the condition and state of health of the assured (z);—where the vendor of a mare stated, at the time of sale, that he believed the mare to be sound but would not warrant, and the mare was at the time unsound to his knowledge (a);—where the vendor of pimento, knowing it to be sea-damaged, sold it without disclosing the fact to the purchaser, there being a custom of the trade to disclose such defects at the time of the sale (b);—where the agent of the vendor of a picture, knowing that he had induced the purchaser to labour under a delusion with respect to the picture, which (t) Reddaway v. Banham, (1896) A.C. 199; 65 L.J. Q.B. 381; as to bonâ fide use of person's own name, see 5 Edw. 7, c. 15, s. 44; and see Addison on Torts, pp. 679 et seq. (ed. 8), as to trade marks generally.

(u) Crawshay v. Thompson, 4 M. & Gr. 386, n.; 11 L.J. C.P. 301; see also 33 Eliz., cited by Doderidge, J., Southern v. How, Cro. Jac. 471, n., as to the action for deceit.

(x) Horsfall v. Thomas, 1 H. & C. 90; 31 L.J. Ex. 322.

(y) Maddeford v. Austwick, 1 Sim. 89; Law v. Law, (1905) 1 Ch. 140; 74 L.J. Ch. 169.

(z) Jones v. Keene, 2 Moo. & R 348.

(a) Wood v. Smith, 5 Man. & R. 124; 8 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 50.

(b) Jones v. Bowden, 4 Taunt. 847.

materially influenced his judgment as to the value of it, permitted him to purchase without removing the delusion (c). But the vendor is not bound to inform the purchaser that the latter is under a mistake, where such mistake is not induced by the act of the vendor. Thus where the plaintiff offered to sell some oats to the defendant, and the defendant agreed to buy them supposing them to be old oats, but the plaintiff did nothing to induce the defendant to suppose so, it was held that the sale was valid (d). If the defect is patent, and can readily be discovered by proper examination, and the purchaser has the means of examination at hand, there is no fraudulent concealment, and the maxim of caveat emptor will apply. But the vendor must in no case resort to any art or contrivance to conceal a defect, for if he does he will be answerable, as we have just seen, for wilful deceit. "If I sell a horse that has lost an eye, no action lies against me for so doing; but if I sell him with a false and counterfeit eye, there an action lieth" (e). It would seem to follow that if the vendor of a glandered horse has resorted to any doctoring or contrivance for the purpose of suppressing the marks of the disease, and has thereby deceived the purchaser, the latter will be entitled to recover all the damages he has sustained by the deception (f).

In sales of manufactured articles and provisions, if the vendor is cognizant, at the time he sells the articles, of latent defects materially lowering their value, and rendering them totally unfit for the purpose for which they are known to be required, and neglects to disclose such defects to the purchaser, he is guilty of a fraudulent concealment (g). But, in a general sale of a horse, the vendor is not bound to disclose any unsoundness in the animal, although he may be aware of its existence; and, if the purchaser makes no enquiries as to its soundness or qualities, and the vendor has said or done nothing to throw the purchaser off his guard or to conceal a defect, there is no fraudulent concealment on the part of the vendor (h). The purchaser has an opportunity of inspecting and judging of the animal himself; and the principle of caveat emptor applies. The damage, however, resulting from the spread of infectious and contagious disorders amongst sheep and cattle is so serious, that every vendor who sells an animal knowing it to be labouring under

(c) Hill v. Gray, 1 Stark. 434; see the observations on this case by Jervis, C.J., Keates v. Cadogan (Earl), 10 C.B. 591; 20 L.J. C.P. 78.

(d) Smith v. Hughes, L.R. 6 Q.B. 597; 40 L.J. Q.B. 221.

(e) Southerne v. Howe, 2 Roll. 5.

(f) See Mullett v. Mason, L.R. 1 C.P. 559; 35 L.J. C.P. 299.

(g) Cp. p. 525, ante.

(h) Jones v. Bright, 3 Moo. & P. 175; Fitz. N.B. 94, C.; Hill v. Balls, 2 H. & N. 299; 27 L.J. Ex. 48.

a highly contagious or infectious disorder, ought to be held responsible for fraudulent concealment, if he fails to disclose the fact at the time he makes the bargain (i). Where a statute prohibited persons from sending animals affected with a contagious disease to market, and inflicted penalties on any person so sending them, the act of sending them, if known to be so infected, was a public offence, but did not amount by implication to a representation that they were sound, and did not of itself raise, as between the vendor and purchaser, any right on the part of the latter to claim damages arising from loss of his own animals by the spreading of the disease (k).

Sale "with all faults."—If it be a term of the contract that the subject-matter of the sale is to be taken with all faults, the stipulation relieves the vendor, where he does nothing to conceal the defects, from all liabilitiy in respect of any defect in the article sold (l). In such a sale the purchaser must use his own eyes and understanding to discover what faults there are (m). Where the sale is by description "with all faults," that expression means with all faults which an article may have consistently with its being the thing described (n). If the vendor is not to be responsible for any defect or "error," the stipulation will protect him from all unintentional misstatement (o). But an agreement "to take a thing with all faults does not mean that it is to be taken with all frauds" (p); and the stipulation will be of no avail to the vendor, if he has wilfully misled the purchaser, or thrown him off his guard by a wilful false representation, or has resorted to any contrivance to conceal a defect (q). Where the vendor of a vessel, "to be taken with all faults," knowingly represented the vessel in his handbills and advertisements as having been built in 1816, in order to get an increased price, whereas she had been launched in 1815, it was held that this was a fraud. "A person," observes Abbott, C.J., "ought either to be silent or speak the truth, and in case he spoke at all, he was bound to disclose the real fact" (r). If the defect, moreover, is of such a nature that (i) Cullen v. Trimble, L.R. 7 Q.B. 416; Blakemore v. Brist. & Ex. Ry., 8 E. & B. 1049; 27 L.J. Q.B. 167; Anderson v. Buckton, 1 Str. 192. By the Contagious Diseases (Animals) Act, 1894 (57 & 58 Vict. c. 57), extensive powers are given to the Board of Agriculture and the local authority to enable them to deal with animals suffering from contagious diseases.

(k) Ward v. Hobbs, 4 App.Cas. 13; 48 L.J. Q.B. 281.

(l) Ward v. Hobbs, supra.

(m) Pickering v. Dowson, 4 Taunt. 779.

(n) Shepherd v. Kain, 5 B. & Ald. 240.

(o) Taylor v. Bullen, 5 Exch. 779; 20 L.J. Ex. 21; see Ward v. Hobbs, supra.

(p) Marshall, Serj. arg. Pickering v. Dowson, supra.

(q) Schneider v. Heath, 3 Campb. 506.

(r) Fletcher v. Bowsher, 2 Stark. 561.

a purchaser cannot, by the most diligent examination, discover it, and the defect is known to the vendor at the time of the sale, the latter ought not, according to the opinion of Lord Kenyon, to be permitted to shelter himself from the consequences of a fraudulent concealment under a stipulation that the thing is to be taken with all faults (s). According to Lord Ellenborough, however, "where an article is sold with all faults it is quite immaterial how many belonged to it within the knowledge of the seller, unless he used some artifice to disguise them and to prevent their being discovered by the purchaser. The very object of introducing such a stipulation is to put the purchaser on his guard, and to throw upon him the burthen of examining all faults, both secret and apparent" (t). An examination, however, is useless if the defect is of such a nature that it cannot be detected by any examination, however careful; and a vendor who, knowing this, sells with all faults for the purpose of exonerating himself from liability to disclose the secret defect, seems to make use of the stipulation, "to be taken with all faults," in order to cover the perpetration of a fraud (u). In a case (x), which has been disapproved of by Lord Ellenborough (y), the twenty-two broken futtocks of the vessel were concealed only by the ballast. The defect was disclosed as soon as the ballast was taken out after the sale, and might have been easily discovered before the sale by a careful examination of the vessel. It was, therefore, wrongly described as "a defect which the purchaser could not, by any attention, possibly discover." The question whether the ballast had been put there for the purpose of concealing the defect does not appear to have been raised.

Purchaser electing to avoid contract.—If the purchaser is entitled to treat the contract of sale as a void contract, by reason of the fraud or deceit of the vendor, he may return the article and bring an action for the recovery of the money paid under the void contract, or, treating the contract as a subsisting contract, he may retain the thing sold in his own hands, or resell it, and sue to recover the damages he has sustained (z). He must make his election within a reasonable time, and when once made it is final (a). He must forthwith return or tender the subject-matter of the sale, or give notice to the vendor to take it back;

(s) Mellish v. Motteux, 1 Peake, 115.
(t) Baglehole v. Walters, 3 Campb. 155, 156.
(u) Sugd. V. & P. 333, 334 (ed. 14).
(x) Mellish v. Motteux, supra.
(y) Baglehole v. Walters, supra.
(z) Ante, pp. 130, 572; Clough v. L. & N. W. Ry., L. R. 7 Ex. 26; 41 L.J. Ex. 22.
(a) Ante, p. 130.

for if he keeps it an unreasonable time (b), or exercises the dominion of an owner over it, he cannot afterwards treat the sale as a void sale, and recover the purchase-money on the ground of a failure of consideration (c). He must also be in a situation to restore the subject-matter of the sale to the vendor (d). If he has changed the nature of it, so that he cannot restore it in the same state in which it was when bought, he cannot avoid the contract, but must resort to his cross action (e). Thus, where a log of mahogany was sold on the faith of a representation that the log was sound throughout, and the representation was fraudulently made, but the fraud was not discovered until the log had been cut through by the purchaser, it was said that the latter, by cutting the log, had made it his own property, and could not afterwards return it to the vendor (f).

Transfer of property—Intention of parties.—"Where there is a contract for the sale of unascertained goods, no property in the goods is transferred to the buyer unless and until the goods are ascertained" (g). "Where there is a contract for the sale of specific or ascertained goods, the property in them is transferred to the buyer at such time as the parties to the contract intend it to be transferred (h). For the purpose of ascertaining the intention of the parties, regard shall be had to the terms of the contract, the conduct of the parties, and the circumstances of the case" (i).

Rules for ascertaining intention.—"Unless a different intention appears, the following are rules for ascertaining the intention of the parties as to the time at which the property in the goods is to pass to the buyer.

Rule 1.—Where there is an unconditional contract for the sale of specific goods, in a deliverable state (k), the property in the goods passes to the buyer when the contract is made, and it is immaterial whether the time of payment or the time of delivery, or both, be postponed.

Rule 2.—Where there is a contract for the sale of specific goods and the seller is bound to do something to the goods,

(b) Clough v. L. & N. W. Ry., ante, p. 578.

(c) Fisher v. Samuda, 1 Campb. 190.

(d) Sheffield Nickel Co. v. Unwin, 2 Q.B.D. 214; 46 L.J. Q.B. 299; Houldsworth v. City of Glasgow Bank, 5 App. Cas. 317.

(e) Clarke v. Dickson, E. B. & E. 148; 27 L.J. Q.B. 222; Urquhart v. Macpherson, 3 App.Cas. 831; Tennent v. City of Glasgow Bank, 4 App.Cas. 615.

(f) See Udell v. Atherton, 7 H. & N. 172; 30 L.J. Ex. 337.

(g) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 16. As to passing of property in unascertained goods, see sect. 18, rule 5 (1), post.

(h) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 17 (1).

(i) Sect. 17 (2).

(k) Goods are in a "deliverable state" within the meaning of the Act when they are in such a state that the buyer would under the contract be bound to take delivery of them (sect. 62 (4)).

for the purpose of putting them into a deliverable state, the property does not pass until such thing be done, and the buyer has notice thereof.

Rule 3.—Where there is a contract for the sale of specific goods in a deliverable state, but the seller is bound to weigh, measure, test, or do some other act or thing with reference to the goods for the purpose of ascertaining the price, the property does not pass until such act or thing be done, and the buyer has notice thereof.

Rule 4.—When goods are delivered to the buyer on approval or 'on sale or return' or other similar terms (l) the property therein passes to the buyer:—(a) When he signifies his approval or acceptance to the seller or does any other act adopting the transaction: (b) If he does not signify his approval or acceptance to the seller but retains the goods without giving notice of rejection, then, if a time has been fixed for the return of the goods, on the expiration of such time, and, if no time has been fixed, on the expiration of a reasonable time. What is a reasonable time is a question of fact (m).

Rule 5.—(1) Where there is a contract for the sale of unascertained or future goods by description, and goods of that description and in a deliverable state are unconditionally appropriated to the contract, either by the seller with the assent of the buyer, or by the buyer with the assent of the seller, the property in the goods thereupon passes to the buyer. Such assent may be express or implied, and may be given either before or after the appropriation is made: (2) Where, in pursuance of the contract, the seller delivers the goods to the buyer or to a carrier or other bailee (whether named by the buyer or not) for the purpose of transmission to the buyer, and does not reserve the right of disposal, he is deemed to have unconditionally appropriated the goods to the contract" (n).

A contract for the sale of goods may operate as a direct transfer of the ownership and right of property in the thing sold to the purchaser, or may amount only to an agreement for a future transfer giving the purchaser a right of action against the vendor for a breach of contract, but not effecting any alteration of ownership. When the bargain operates as a transfer of ownership, the sale is complete; when it amounts only to an agreement to procure or manufacture an article of a given description, and then transfer it to the purchaser, and does not effect any immediate alteration of ownership, the sale is incomplete. A transfer to the purchaser of the right of property in the thing sold is naturally accompanied by a transfer of the risk of loss, so that, if, between the time of the making of the bargain and the delivery, the thing sold is destroyed, without any neglect on the part of the vendor, the loss is the loss of the purchaser, and he may be compelled to pay the price, although he can never have the thing for which he agreed to pay it. To constitute a complete sale, the precise thing sold as well as the price must be ascertained (o). Personal engagements may subsist between the parties; but there can be no transfer of ownership until such ascertainment has been accomplished (p).

(l) See Weiner v. Gill, (1906) 2 K.B. 574; 75 L.J. K.B. 516.

(m) See also 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 56, and Beverley v. Lincoln Gas Co., 6 Ad. & E. 829; 7 L.J. Q.B. 113; Moss v. Sweet, 16 Q.B. 493; 20 L.J. Q.B. 167; Elphick v. Barnes, 5 C.P.D. 321; 49 L.J. C.P. 698.

(n) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 18. As to delivery to carriers, see sect. 32, post.

Where ascertained existing goods are the subject of a contract of immediate sale, and whether there is a warranty of quality or not, the property generally passes to the purchaser upon the completion of the bargain, and the vendor thereupon has a right to recover the price, unless from other circumstances it can be collected that the intention was that the property should not vest in the purchaser. Such an intention is generally shown by the fact of some further act being first required to be done, such as, for instance, in most cases, delivery—in some cases actual payment of the price—and in other cases weighing or measuring in order to ascertain the price, or marking, packing, coopering, filling up casks, or the like. Where there is a warranty of the quality of such specific goods, that circumstance will not prevent the property in them passing to the purchaser, and, if it is simply a warranty, will not entitle the purchaser to refuse to accept the goods, or to return them, merely because the warranty is not fulfilled; and, in order to entitle the purchaser so to refuse or to return them, it must, in the case of specific goods, be a term of the contract that he shall be at liberty to do so. In the case of executory contracts where the goods are not ascertained or may not exist at the time of the contract, from the nature of the transaction no property in the goods can pass to the purchaser by virtue of the contract itself; but, where certain goods have been selected by the seller, and have been approved of by the buyer, then the case stands, as to the vesting of the property, very much in the same position as upon a contract for the sale of goods which are ascertained at the time of the bargain. In most cases of such executory contracts something more will generally remain to be done, as, for instance, selection or appropriation, approval, and delivery of some kind, before the property would be considered as intended to pass, and upon that taking place the property will pass, if it was intended to do so, equally as in the case of a contract for ascertained goods (q).

(o) As to ascertainment of price, see sects. 8, 9, and 18, rule 3.

(p) As to loss of goods by distress for rent after property in them has passed to purchaser, see Greaves v. Hepke, 2 B. & Ald. 131.

It may be the intention of the parties that no property shall pass until the price is paid. Thus, where the plaintiff sold to the defendant a certain unascertained quantity of oil, part of a large quantity lying at the plaintiff's wharf, and sent an order to the wharfinger to transfer the oil to the defendant, and the wharfinger made the transfer in his books to the defendant, and gave the plaintiff's clerk a paper acknowledging the transfer, and the clerk went with this paper to the defendant's counting-house and demanded a cheque in payment, and was refused, but the defendant took and retained the paper and sent to the wharfinger and obtained possession of the oil, it was held that, as there was no intention to part with the paper or the property in the goods without payment, there was no change of property in the goods in the hands of the wharfinger, and that the plaintiff was entitled to recover the oil or the value of it from the defendant (r).

When the subject-matter of the sale is ascertained at the time the bargain is struck, and the price is likewise agreed upon, the sale is a complete sale from the time of the making of the bargain, and the right of property in the thing sold and the risk of loss are transferred to the purchaser, although the right of possession may continue in the vendor until the purchase-money has been paid or tendered (s). The right of property and the attendant risk may be transferred by the buyer to a third party by another contract of sale, although the price may not have been paid and the right of possession divested out of the original vendor (t). Where the vendor agreed to sell, and the purchaser to buy, "a stack of hay standing in Canonbury Field, Islington, at the sum of 145*l*., the hay to be allowed to stand on the premises until the first of May next, and not to be cut till paid for," it was held that there was an immediate transfer of the right of property to the purchaser, and, the hay

(q) Per Bovill, C.J., in Heilbutt v. Hickson, L.R. 7 C.P. 438; 41 L.J. C.P. 228.

(r) Godts v. Rose, 17 C.B. 229; 25 L.J. C.P. 61.

(s) Bloxam v. Sanders, 4 B. & C. 941; Knight v. Hopper, Skin. 647; Noy's Maxims, ch. 42, p. 88; Bro. Abr. Contr. pl. 26.

(t) Scott v. England, 14 L.J. Q.B. 43.

having been accidentally destroyed by fire whilst it remained in the possession of the vendor, that the purchaser must bear the loss (u). A sale otherwise complete may, however, be made subject to the condition that if at the time for delivery the subject-matter is not in existence the contract shall be rescinded. Thus, where a crop of potatoes off a specified field was sold (although the crop was not then sown) and the crop failed, it was held that the seller was not liable for damages (x).

Although the vendor has given a delivery order, or a dock-warrant, to a warehouse-keeper, wharfinger, or bailee, having the custody of the goods, commanding him to deliver them to the purchaser, yet, so long as the precise quantity of goods to be delivered under the order has not been ascertained, and separated from the bulk, and put into a deliverable state, and placed at the disposal of the purchaser, the sale is not complete, and the right of property is not altered (y). If the bulk of the commodity has been identified, and the sale is a sale of an undivided quantity thereof, expressly sold as such at an ascertained price, whether the ownership of the share passes or not (z), it would seem that the risk of the loss of the subject-matter thereof will pass to the purchaser where the shares remain unseparated through his default (a).

Imperfect sales—Unascertained price.—Generally speaking, to constitute a sale which shall immediately pass the property it is necessary not only that the thing sold should be ascertained, but that there should be a price ascertained or ascertainable. But the parties may buy or sell a given thing, nothing remaining to be done for ascertaining it, but the price to be afterwards ascertained in the manner fixed by the contract of sale or on a quantum valebat; or they may agree that the sale shall be complete and the property pass although the delivery of possession is postponed, and although something shall remain to be done by the seller before the delivery; or they may agree that, nothing remaining to be done for ascertaining the thing sold, yet the sale shall not be complete and the property shall not pass before something is done to ascertain the amount of the price. The question must always be, what was the intention of the parties in that respect, and that has to be collected from the terms of the contract. If those terms do not show an

(u) Tarling v. Baxter, 6 B. & C. 360; 5 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 164.

(x) Howell v. Coupland, 1 Q.B.D. 258; 46 L.J. Q.B. 147, ante, p. 150; Taylor v. Caldwell, 3 B. & S. 826; 32 L.J. Q.B. 164.

(y) Busk v. Davis, 4 M. & S. 395; Shepley v. Davis, 5 Taunt. 617; Moakes v. Nicholson, 19 C.B. N.S. 290; 34 L.J. C.P. 273; Gabarron v. Kreeft, L.R. 10 Ex. 274; 44 L.J. Ex. 238.

(z) Martineau v. Kitching, L.R. 7 Q.B. 454, 456; 41 L.J. Q.B. 227.

(a) See 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s 37, post

intention of immediately passing the property until something is done by the seller before delivery of possession, then the sale cannot be deemed perfected and the property does not pass until that thing is done (b). Thus it has been said, "If I sell you all my corn for 12*d*. a bushel, you may not take it before it is measured, whereby the number of the bushels may be known and also the certainty of the sum which is to be paid for it, so that before the certainty is known, it cannot be adjudged any good contract or agreement" (c). Where a vendor sold the bark stacked at Redbrook at 9*l*. 5*s*. per ton of 21 cwt., to be weighed before delivery, and 8 tons 14 cwt. of the bark were weighed and delivered, but before the residue was weighed and the quantity thereof ascertained, a high flood arose and destroyed it, it was held that the right of property in the unweighed residue had not been altered, neither, consequently, had the risk of loss (d). But the distinction must be observed between a sale by measure or weight requiring the measuring or weighing to be accomplished for the purpose of determining and fixing the price, and a sale of specific goods in the lump at an ascertained price, accompanied with a representation or warranty of the weight or quantity, where the weighing or measuring is necessary only for the purpose of satisfying the purchaser that he has got the quantity bargained for (e). Moreover, if it appears by the terms of the contract that it was the intention of the parties that the property should pass to the buyer, it will pass, although the goods have still to be weighed, measured, or tested, provided the subject-matter of the sale is ascertained (f); and there may be a complete contract so as to pass the property in the goods, although the price has not been definitely agreed on (g), or although the goods are still unfinished (h), or unweighed (i). When the quantity is ascertained, the mere omission to add up the total contents according to weight or measure will not prevent the right of property and the risk from passing to the purchaser (k). If certain specific cases, bales, or packages of goods are sold in the lump,

(b) Logan v. Le Mesurier, 11 Jur. 1091; 6 Moo. P.C. 116; 2 Wms.Saund. 122, note (m) (ed. 1871).

(c) See Reniger v. Fogossa, Plowd. at p. 7, Bradshaw, arguendo.

(d) Simmons v. Swift, 5 B. & C. 857; 5 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 10; Hanson v. Meyer, 6 East, 614; Zagury v. Furnell, 2 Campb. 240.

(e) Swanwick v. Sothern, 9 Ad. & E. 895, 900; Gilmour v. Supple, 11 Moore, P.C. 571; Furley v. Bates, 33 L.J. Ex. 43; S. C. nom. Turley v. Bates, 2 H. & C. 200.

(f) Furley v. Bates, supra; Martineau v. Kitching, L.R. 7 Q.B. 436; 41 L.J. Q.B. 227.

(g) Joyce v. Swann, 17 C.B. N.S. 84.

(h) Young v. Matthews, L.R. 2 C.P. 127; 36 L.J. C.P. 61.

(i) Martineau v. Kitching, supra.

(k) Tansley v. Turner, 2 Bing. N.C. 151; 4 L.J. C.P. 272.

at the customary and reasonable price paid for such articles, the price is sufficiently ascertained, and the right of property will pass, although no definite sum has been agreed upon, and the time or mode of payment has not been specified (l).

Sale or return.—When goods are sold under a contract of "sale or return," the sale is a conditional sale. The property in the goods does not pass to the purchaser until he has done some act adopting the transaction (m). If the goods are returned or tendered back to the vendor within a reasonable time, the sale is annulled, and the latter cannot recover the price of them; but, if the purchaser, having got possession of the goods, fails to exercise his option of returning them within a reasonable time, the contract is discharged of the condition, the sale stands as an absolute sale, and the price of the goods may be recovered in an action for goods sold and delivered (n). Where goods delivered "on sale or return" are pledged by the buyer, the pledging of the goods by him is "an act adopting the transaction" within sect. 18, rule 4 (a), so as to pass the property in the goods to him (o).

Imperfect sales of unascertained chattels (p).—Until the parties are agreed on the specific goods, the contract can be no more than a contract to supply goods answering a particular description; and, since the vendor would fulfil his part of the contract by furnishing any parcel of goods answering that description, and the purchaser could not object to them if they did answer the description, it is clear there can be no intention to transfer the property in any particular lot of goods more than another, until it is ascertained which are the very goods sold (q). Hence a bargain and sale of 20 tons of oil, the vendor having more than 20 tons in divers cisterns, passes no property (r).

Contracts for sale and manufacture of goods.—A man may purchase a chattel whilst in process of making; or he may agree to purchase it when made (s); whether he does the one thing or the other depends on the intention of the parties. In

(l) Valpy v. Gibson, 4 C.B. 837; 16 L.J. C.P. 248; Joyce v. Swann, supra; Hoadly v. McLaine, 10 Bing. 482; 3 L.J. C.P. 162.

(m) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 18, r. 4 (a).

(n) Moss v. Sweet, 16 Q.B. 493; 20 L.J. Q.B. 167 (overruling Iley v. Frankenstein, as reported 8 Sc. N.R. 841); Wingfield, Ex parte, 10 Ch.D. 591, 593. See also Ray v. Barker, 4 Ex.D. 279; 48 L.J. Ex. 569.

(o) Kirkham v. Attenborough, (1897) 1 Q.B. 201; 66 L.J. Q.B. 149. See Weiner v. Gill, (1906) 2 K.B. 574; 75 L.J. K.B. 916; explained and not applied in Weiner v. Harris, (1910) 1 K.B. 285; 79 L.J. K.B. 342.

(p) See 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, ss. 16 and 18, r. 5, ante, pp. 579. 580.

(q) Blackburn on Sale, p. 125 (ed. 2); Logan v. Le Mesurier, 6 Moo. P.C. 116; 11 Jur. 1091; Heseltine v. Siggers, 1 Exch. 856; 18 L.J. Ex. 166.

(r) White v. Wilks, 5 Taunt. 176.

(s) Laidler v. Burlinson, 2 M. & W. 602; 6 L.J. Ex. 160.

the latter case, i.e., where a specific chattel is ordered to be made, the right of property is not vested in the party who gives the order, nor the right to the price in the vendor, until the thing ordered is completed and made ready for delivery, and has been approved of by the purchaser, or some person appointed on his behalf to inspect the materials and workmanship. The builder or maker is not bound to deliver to the purchaser the identical chattel which is in progress, although the purchase-money may have been paid in advance (t), but may, if he pleases, dispose of it to some other person, and deliver to the purchaser another chattel, provided it answers to the description contained in the contract (u). Where there was a contract for a complete ship, the property in materials for the ship, although marked with the ship's number and the place in the ship which they were intended to occupy, was held not to vest in the purchaser, but in the trustee of the bankrupt shipbuilder (x). Where, under a contract, a ship was to be built and paid for by instalments at certain specified periods of construction, and steam trials at sea were to be held at the builder's expense and delivery was to be considered complete after a satisfactory official trial and approval at a named port, it was held that the contract was for a completed ship and that no property passed to the purchaser until the ship was completed (y). On the other hand, it may be that the property was intended to pass before the chattel is completed; thus, where the contract provides that the article shall be manufactured under the superintendence of a person appointed by the purchaser, and also fixes the payment by instalments regulated by particular stages in the progress of the work, this shows an intention that the general property in the materials used is to vest in the purchaser at the time when they are put together under the approval of the superintendent, or at all events when the first instalment is paid, subject to the right of the builder to retain the fabric, in order to complete it and earn the rest of the price; and the rights of the parties are then in the same state as if so much of the article as is then constructed had originally belonged to the purchaser, and had been delivered by him to the builder to be finished (z). Or the true inference may be

(t) Mucklow v. Mangles, 1 Taunt. 318.

(u) Atkinson v. Bell, 8 B. & C. 277; 6 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 258; Laidler v. Burlinson, ante, p. 585; Elliott v. Pybus, 4 Moo. & Sc. 389, 397; 3 L.J. C.P. 182.

(x) Reid v. Macbeth, (1904) A.C. 223; 73 L.J. P.C. 57, following Seath v. Moore, 11 App.Cas. 350; 55 L.J. P.C. 54; Laing & Sons v. Barclay & Co., (1908) A.C. 35; 77 L.J. P.C. 33. See further Addison on Torts, 560 (ed. 8).

(y) Laing v. Barclay & Co., (1908) A.C. 35; 77 L.J. P.C. 33.

(z) Clarke v. Spence, 4 Ad. & E. 448; 5 L.J. K.B. 161; Woods v. Russell, 5 B. & Ald. 942; Read v. Fairbanks, 13 C.B.

that the component parts of the chattel as they are added to the fabric are appropriated to the purchaser by way of contract, so that neither could he refuse them when the chattel is completed, nor the vendor compel him to accept any other; and yet that no property in the chattel is to pass until completion(a). When the article is completed and made ready for delivery, and has been approved of by the purchaser, the general property therein is transferred to the latter, although the chattel may remain in the hands of the builder for the purpose of receiving some subsequent additions (b).

There is a great analogy, it has been observed by the civilians, between this description of contract of sale and the contract of letting and hiring of work and labour; and we are told in the Digest and in the Institutes how to discriminate between the one and the other. If, it is said, the materials for work, as well as the work itself, have been furnished by the workman, then the contract is a contract of sale. If, on the other hand, the employer has furnished the materials, and the undertaker of the work contributes his labour merely, the contract is a contract of letting and hiring of labour. Thus, to quote an example from the Roman law, "If Titius should agree with a goldsmith for the making of a certain number of golden rings, of a specified size and weight, for ten aurei, the goldsmith to furnish both the gold and workmanship, the contract would be a contract of buying and selling. But, if Titius should give his own gold, and agree to pay only for the workmanship, then the contract would be a contract of letting and hiring simply" (c).

Selection and appropriation of goods to use of purchaser.—If the commodity was selected in the bulk by the purchaser, the ownership and risk pass as soon as the quantity sold has been separated from the mass and tendered to the purchaser or placed at his disposal (d). If the bulk of the commodity bought and sold has not been selected by the purchaser in the first instance, the sale may be rendered complete, so as to operate as a transfer of the property and risk, by a subsequent selection by the vendor and approval by the purchaser, such subsequent selection and

692; 22 L.J. C.P. 206; Wood v. Bell, 6 E. & B. 361; 25 L.J. Q.B. 321; Bellamy v. Davey, (1891) 3 Ch. 540; 60 L.J. Ch. 778.

(a) Clarke v. Spence, supra.

(b) Carruthers v. Payne, 2 Moo. & P. 429; 7 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 84; Wilkins v. Bromhead, 7 Sc. N.R. 921; 13 L.J. C.P. 74.

(c) Dig. lib. 19, tit. 2, lex. 2; Instit. lib. 3, tit. 24, § 4; Cod. lib. 4, tit. 65; Lee v. Griffin, 1 B. & S. 272; 30 L.J. Q.B. 252; Atkinson v. Bell, 8 B. & C. 277; 6 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 258; Grafton v. Armitage, 2 C.B. 336; 15 L.J. C.P. 20.

(d) Rugg v. Minett, 11 East, 210; Simmons v. Swift, 5 B. & C. 857; 5 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 10; Aldridge v. Johnson, 7 E. & B. 885; 26 L.J. Q.B. 296; Langton v. Higgins, 4 H. & N. 402; 28 L.J. Q.B. 252; Langton v. Waring, 18 C.B. N.S. 315; Blackburn on Sale, p. 128 (ed. 2).

approval being the same as if the article had been fixed upon in the first instance (e); but a selection by the vendor only without the approval of the purchaser will not transfer the property in the goods so selected (f). If the article is to be selected by the vendor, but the purchaser makes its acceptance dependent upon his approval of it as regards workmanship, convenience, or taste, the latter will be entitled to reject it, if it does not meet his approval upon some one or more of the grounds stated (g). When everything that the seller is to do to complete the sale has been performed, the property and the attendant risk pass to the purchaser, although the latter may not have got the right of possession of the subject-matter of the sale, or perfect control over it, by reason of the non-performance of some act to be done exclusively by him, such as procuring wines and spirits to be gauged by a custom-house officer, in order to ascertain their strength preparatory to the calculation of the duty, payment of the duty when ascertained, or the non-performance of any other act which it is incumbent on the buyer alone to perform (h). But it is not competent to the buyer to perfect the contract and vest the property in himself by the performance of acts which it is the duty of the vendor to perform, unless the acts are done by the authority of the vendor (i).

Reservation of right of disposal.—"Where there is a contract for the sale of specific goods or where goods are subsequently appropriated to the contract, the seller may, by the terms of the contract or appropriation, reserve the right of disposal of the goods until certain conditions are fulfilled. In such case, notwithstanding the delivery of the goods to the buyer, or to a carrier or other bailee for the purpose of transmission to the buyer, the property in the goods does not pass to the buyer until the conditions imposed by the seller are fulfilled (k). Where goods are shipped, and by the bill of lading the goods are deliverable to the order of the seller or his agent, the seller is primâ facie deemed to reserve the right of disposal (l). Where

(e) Rohde v. Thwaites, 6 B. & C. 388; 5 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 163; Sparkes v. Marshall, 2 Bing. N.C. 761; 5 L.J. C.P. 286.

(f) Jenner v. Smith, L.R. 4 C.P. 270; Campbell v. Mersey Docks, 14 C.B. N.S. 412.

(g) Andrews v. Belfield, 2 C.B. N.S. 779.

(h) Rugg v. Minett, 11 East, 210; Studdy v. Sanders, 5 B. & C. 628; 4 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 290; Hinde v. Whitehouse, 7 East, 558; Turley or Furley v. Bates, 2 H. & C. 200; 33 L.J. Ex. 43; Sweeting v. Turner, L.R. 7 Q.B. 310; 41 L.J. Q.B. 58.

(i) Acraman v. Morrice, 8 C.B. 449; 19 L.J. C.P. 57.

(k) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 19 (1). As to the protection afforded to innocent purchasers, see sect. 25, post, pp. 595, 596; Cahn v. Pockett's Bristol Channel Co., (1899) 1 Q.B. 643; 68 L.J. Q.B. 515; 52 & 53 Vict. c. 45, ss. 2 (1), 9, and 10.

(l) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 19 (2).

the seller of goods draws on the buyer for the price, and transmits the bill of exchange and bill of lading to the buyer together to secure acceptance or payment of the bill of exchange, the buyer is bound to return the bill of lading if he does not honour the bill of exchange, and if he wrongfully retains the bill of lading the property in the goods does not pass to him" (m).

Delivery under bill of lading—Transfer by bill of lading.—A bill of lading is a receipt for goods shipped on board a ship signed by the person who contracts to carry them or his agent authorised to sign it and stating the terms on which the goods were delivered to and received by the ship. When signed by the carrier or his agent, who is often the master of the ship, the bill of lading is handed to the shipper. If the shipper intends the property in the goods to pass to a purchaser as soon as, or before, they are put on board, the bill of lading will naturally state that the goods are deliverable to the purchaser or his assigns. If he does not intend this, the bill of lading will state that the goods are to be delivered to the shipper or his assigns. A vendor may annex terms to a bill of lading preserving his control over the cargo and the jus disponendi of the goods on arrival at their destination (n); although they may be shipped on board the purchaser's ship, and may be in the hands of the purchaser's ship-master (o). Where a bill of lading states that goods are consigned to a merchant abroad, and that the goods are shipped by order and on account of the consignee, this is strong evidence that the property was intended to vest in the consignee from the time they are put on board (p). But, if goods are delivered to a ship-master, to be carried under a bill of lading, whereby the latter undertakes to carry them for and on account of the vendor, and deliver them to the vendor at the port of destination, or to the assignee of the bill of lading, this is evidence of an intention not to transfer the property until the bill of lading has been endorsed to the purchaser (q). So where a shipper keeps in his own or his agent's hands a bill of lading making the goods deliverable to his order until certain conditions have been fulfilled by the consignee, the property in the goods will not pass until such conditions are fulfilled by the

(m) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 19 (3).

(n) Van Casteel v. Booker, 2 Exch. 691; 18 L.J. Ex. 9; Jenkyns v. Brown, 14 Q.B. 496; 19 L.J. Q.B. 286; Gabarron v. Kreeft, L.R. 10 Ex. 274; 44 L.J. Ex. 238.

(o) Turner v. Liverpool Dock Trustees, 6 Exch. 543; 20 L.J. Ex. 393; Rosevear Clay Co., Ex parte, 11 Ch.D. 560; 48 L.J. Bankr. 100.

(p) Brown v. Hodgson, 2 Campb. 36.

(q) Wait v. Baker, 2 Exch. 1; 17 L.J. Ex. 307; Jenkyns v. Brown, 14 Q.B. 496; 19 L.J. Q.B. 286; Joyce v. Swann, 17 C.B. N.S. 84; Mirabita v. Imperial Ottoman Bank, 3 Ex.D. at p. 172; 47 L.J. Ex. 418.

consignee, or at least until he offers to fulfil the conditions, and demands the bill of lading. The vendor retains not only a lien but a power to dispose of the goods so long as the vendee continues in default (r). But if the bill of lading is only dealt with to secure the contract price, then, on payment or tender, the goods vest in the purchaser (s). Where goods destined for a foreign port are put on board ship, and the bill of lading and policy of insurance are handed over in exchange for part payment, this is evidence that the property and risk in the goods are intended forthwith to vest in the purchaser (t).

It is a common practice for the shipper, or other person to whom or to whose assigns the goods are deliverable, to indorse the bill of lading to a third person. The effect of such indorsement in passing the property in the goods from the indorser to the indorsee is often a question of great difficulty. In the absence of evidence to the contrary the indorsement shows an intention to pass the property. But in truth it is only evidence of the intention of the parties which has usually to be gathered from the contract of sale and other facts besides the mere indorsement. In this sense it is true to say that the indorsement passes such property as the parties intend and no more (u). Thus it may pass the property conditionally (x) or not at all (y). At common law the indorsee of a bill of lading could not sue the carrier on the contract contained in the bill of lading: but by sect. 1 of the Bills of Lading Act, 1855 (z), every consignee (a) of goods named in a bill of lading, and every indorsee of a bill of lading to whom the property in the goods mentioned therein passes, has transferred to him all such rights of suit, and is subject to the same liabilities in respect of such goods, as if the contract contained in the bill of lading had been made with himself; and every bill of lading representing goods to have been shipped on board is conclusive against the master or person signing the same, unless either the holder took the bill with actual notice that the goods were not on board, or the person signing shows that the mistake was made without his default, and wholly by the fraud of the shipper or of the holder or some

(r) Ogg v. Shaw, 1 C.P.D. 47; 45 L.J. C.P. 47.

(s) Mirabita v. Imperial Ottoman Bank, 3 Ex.D. 164; 47 L.J. Ex. 418.

(t) Tregelles v. Sewell, 7 H. & N. 574.

(u) Sewell v. Burdick, 10 App.Cas. 74; 54 L.J. Q.B. 156.

(x) Barrow v. Coles, 3 Campb. 92; Shepherd v. Harrison, L.R. 5 H.L. 116; 40 L.J. Q.B. 148; Sanders v. Maclean, 11 Q.B.D. 327, 341; 52 L.J. Q.B. 481.

(y) Clee v. Hewson, 4 East, 211; per Bowen, L.J., in Sanderson v. Sewell, 13 Q.B.D. 170; 53 L.J. Q.B. 399; Sewell v. Burdick, supra.

(z) 18 & 19 Vict. c. 111, ss. 1 and 3; The Figlia Maggiore, L.R. 2 Ad. & E. 106; 37 L.J. Adm. 52.

(a) A "consignee" does not cease to be such by merely parting with the beneficial interest in the goods: see Fowler v. Knoop, 4 Q.B.D. 299; 48 L.J. Q.B. 333.

person under whom the holder claims (b). The mere indorsement and delivery of a bill of lading by way of pledge for a loan does not pass the property in the goods to an indorsee so as to transfer to him all liabilities in respect to the goods within the meaning of the Bills of Lading Act, 1855 (c), if the indorsee has neither taken possession nor dealt with the goods.

As between the charterer and the shipowner the charter-party governs the contract, the bill of lading being a mere receipt for the goods (d); but where the bill of lading is indorsed over, then, as between the shipowner and the indorsee, the bill of lading contains the contract (e). The person who first gets a bill of lading (though only one of a set of three) gets the property which it represents, and need not do any act to ascertain his title which the transfer of the bill of lading of itself renders complete, so that any subsequent dealings with the others of the set are subordinate to the rights passed by that one (f); and where goods are shipped under a bill of lading drawn in parts, to be delivered to the consignee or his assigns, "the one of which bills being accomplished, the others to stand void," the warehouseman who has custody of the goods is justified in delivering them to the consignee on the production of one part, even although there has been a prior indorsement for value of another part, provided that the delivery be bonâ fide, and without notice or knowledge of the prior indorsement (g).

Risk primâ facie passes with property.—"Unless otherwise agreed, the goods remain at the seller's risk until the property therein is transferred to the buyer, but when the property therein is transferred to the buyer, the goods are at the buyer's risk whether delivery has been made or not. Provided that where delivery has been delayed through the fault of either buyer or seller the goods are at the risk of the party in default as regards any loss which might not have occurred but for such fault. Provided also that nothing in this section shall affect the duties or liabilities of either seller or buyer as a bailee of the goods of the other party" (h).

Undivided shares.—In the large majority of cases the risk passes to the purchaser with the property, and the test as to (b) Meyer v. Dresser, 16 C.B. N.S. 646; 33 L.J. C.P. 289.

(c) 18 & 19 Vict. c. 111, s. 1; Sewell v. Burdick, 10 App.Cas. 74; 54 L.J. Q.B. 156.

(d) Per Lord Bramwell, Sewell v. Burdick, supra, at p. 105; Rodocanachi v. Milburn, 18 Q.B.D. 67; 56 L.J. Q.B. 202.

(e) Leduc v. Ward, 20 Q.B.D. 475; 57 L.J. Q.B. 379.

(f) Barber v. Meyerstein, L.R. 4 H.L. 317; 39 L.J. C.P. 187.

(g) Glyn, Mills & Co. v. E. & W. India Dock Co., 7 App.Cas. 591; 52 L.J. Q.B. 146.

(h) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 20.

whether the risk has passed is the same as that to be applied to the question whether the property has passed. But the risk and the property are not inseparable (i): they may be separated by the express terms of the contract (k). Where a vendor sells an undivided share to be separated by the purchaser from an ascertained bulk, it would seem that the risk would pass to the purchaser if the share remained unseparated through his default, though the property would not pass until the share had been separated from the bulk (l).

Sale by person not the owner.—Subject to the provisions of the Act, "where goods are sold by a person who is not the owner thereof, and who does not sell them under the authority or with the consent of the owner, the buyer acquires no better title to the goods than the seller had, unless the owner of the goods is by his conduct precluded from denying the seller's authority to sell" (m). Provided also that nothing in the Act shall affect—"(a) The provisions of the Factors Acts, or any enactment enabling the apparent owner of goods to dispose of them as if he were the true owner thereof: (b) The validity of any contract of sale under any special common law or statutory power of sale or under the order of a court of competent jurisdiction" (n).

It is well established that if one person by his words or conduct induces another to believe in the existence of a state of circumstances and to act on that belief so as to alter his position, he cannot afterwards aver a different state of things against the party whom he has misled (o). Thus, the lessee of a public house who allowed another to sell the fixtures and fittings as if they were his own, whereby a third person was induced to purchase them bonâ fide, cannot recover them from the purchaser (p). But, where a firm of timber merchants kept stocks of timber warehoused in their own name with a dock company, to whom they gave instructions to accept all delivery orders signed by their clerk: and the clerk, who had authority from the timber merchants to sign delivery orders in relation to sales to their customers, fraudulently gave delivery orders in favour

(i) Martineau v. Kitching, L.R. 7 Q.B. 436; 41 L.J. Q.B. 227.

(k) Castle v. Playford, L.R. 7 Ex. 98; 41 L.J. Ex. 44; Anderson v. Morice, 1 App.Cas. 713; 46 L.J. C.P. 11.

(l) Martineau v. Kitching, per Blackburn, J., L.R. 7 Q.B., p. 456: see also s. 37, post.

(m) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 21 (1).

(n) Ib., s. 21 (2); as to the Factors Acts, see post, pp. 822 et seq.; as to sale of pledges by pawnbrokers, see post p. 829.

(o) Pickard v. Sears, 6 Ad. & E. 469; see ante, p. 72.

(p) Gregg v. Wells, 10 Ad. & E. 90; 8 L.J. Q.B. 193; Freeman v. Cooke, 2 Exch. 654; 18 L.J. Ex. 114; see further as to sales by ostensible agents, Ramazotti v. Bowring, 7 C.B. N.S. 851; 29 L.J. C.P. 30; Pole v. Leask, 9 Jur. N.S. 829; Edmunds v. Bushell, L.R. 1 Q.B. 97; 35 L.J. Q.B. 20.

of himself under an assumed name, and having procured timber from the dock company sold it to strangers; it was held that the clerk could give no better title than he had himself, and that no question arose of the timber merchants being estopped from denying his authority to dispose of the timber (q).

Market overt (r).—"Where goods are sold in market overt, according to the usage of the market, the buyer acquires a good title to the goods, provided he buys them in good faith and without notice of any defect or want of title on the part of the seller (s). Nothing in this section shall affect the law relating to the sale of horses" (t).

A sale in market overt forms another exception to the general rule that a bargain and sale passes no better title than the vendor had. By such a sale the purchaser obtains an absolute title against all persons, including the true owner (u), except in the case provided for by sect. 24 (post), in which stolen property revests in the owner on conviction of the thief. Every shop in the city of London is a market overt, but for such things only as by the trade of the owner are put there for sale; thus, if the sale be openly in a goldsmith's shop in the city so that anyone standing or passing by the shop might see it there, the sale would change the property; but if the sale be in the shop, either behind a hanging or behind a cupboard upon which his plate stands so that one who stood or passed by the shop could not see it, the property would not be changed; so also if the sale be not in the shop, but in the warehouse or other place in the house, it would not change the property (x), as, for instance, in a showroom above a jeweller's shop in the city to which access could only be obtained by the jeweller's special permission (y). It would seem, however, that the doctrine as to sales in market overt in the city of London does not apply to a sale by a customer to a shopkeeper (z). A sale in a warehouse used as a shop, having windows in which goods are exposed for sale, is a sale in market overt (a). To constitute a sale in market overt, the goods must be present in the market during the whole of the transaction, from the making of the contract to the delivery (b). A sale by sample is not entitled to the privileges

(q) Farquharson v. King, (1902) A.C. 325; 71 L.J. K.B. 667.

(r) See also Addison on Torts (ed. 8) at pp. 511 et seq.

(s) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 22 (1).

(t) Ib., s. 22 (2).

(u) Cundy v. Lindsay, 3 App.Cas. 459; 47 L. J.Q.B. 481.

(x) Case of Market Overt, 5 Co. 84; 2 W.Bl. 449; Wilkinson v. King, 2 Campb. 335.

(y) Hargreaves v. Spink, (1892) 1 Q.B. 25; 61 L.J. Q.B. 318.

(z) Hargreaves v. Spink, supra.

(a) Lyons v. De Pass, 11 Ad. & E. 326; 9 L.J. Q.B. 51.

(b) Crane v. London Docks Co., 5 B. & S. 313; 33 L.J. Q.B. 224.

of a sale in market overt (c). The same considerations apply to other markets in England which by custom are markets overt (d). The sale of a horse even in market overt does not confer an absolute title unless certain statutory (e) formalities are complied with (f).

Sale under voidable title.—"When the seller of goods has a voidable title thereto, but his title has not been avoided at the time of the sale, the buyer acquires a good title to the goods, provided he buys them in good faith (g), and without notice of the seller's defect of title" (h). If a vendor has parted with the possession of goods in fulfilment of a contract of sale, obtained by fraud on the part of the purchaser, the contract is voidable, but he cannot, after the goods have been re-sold and passed into the hands of a bonâ fide sub-purchaser, disaffirm the contract, and annul the title of the latter to the property (i). But, if the relation of the vendor and vendee does not subsist between the original owner and the person who commits the fraud, and the goods have been obtained by false pretences, in such a way as not to transfer the property in them, and have been afterwards disposed of to a bonâ fide purchaser by sale not in market overt, the latter does not acquire a title to the goods as against the person who has been defrauded (k).

Revesting of property in stolen goods on conviction of offender (l).—"Where goods have been stolen and the offender is prosecuted to conviction, the property in the goods so stolen revests in the person who was the owner of the goods, or his personal representative, notwithstanding any intermediate dealing with them, whether by sale in market overt or otherwise (m). Notwithstanding any enactment to the contrary, where goods have been obtained by fraud or other wrongful means not amounting to larceny, the property in such goods shall not revest in the person who was the owner of the goods, or his personal representative, by reason only of the conviction of the offender" (n). Formerly if the owner of goods had been induced to part with them by fraud, and they were afterwards

(c) Crane v. London Docks Co., 5 B. & S. 313; 33 L.J. Q.B. 224.

(d) Case of Market Overt, 5 Co. 84; 2 W. Bl. 449.

(e) See 2 Ph. & M. c. 7; 31 Eliz. c. 12

(f) Moran v. Pitt, 42 L.J. Q.B. 47.

(g) A thing is deemed to be done "in good faith" within the meaning of the Act when it is in fact done honestly, whether it be done negligently or not: sect. 62 (2).

(h) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 23.

(i) White v. Garden, 10 C.B. 919; 20 L.J. C.P. 166; Sheppard v. Shoolbred, Car. & M. 61; Attenborough v. St. Katharine's Docks Co., 3 C.P.D. 450; 47 L.J. C.P. 763; Whitehorn Brothers v. Davison, (1911) 1 K.B. 463.

(k) Higgons v. Burton, 26 L.J. Ex. 342; Kingsford v. Merry, 1 H. & N. 503; 26 L.J. Ex. 83; Cundy v. Lindsay, 3 App.Cas. 459; 47 L.J. Q.B. 481.

(l) See also Addison on Torts (ed. 8), at p. 513.

(m) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 24 (1).

(n) Ib., s. 24 (2).

bought, whether in market overt or elsewhere, by an innocent purchaser, nevertheless upon the prosecution and conviction of the fraudulent person, the property in the goods reverted to the original owner (o); but since the enactment of sect. 24, sub-sect. 2, the property in the goods does not under such circumstances revert to the original owner, notwithstanding the provisions of sect. 100 of the Larceny Act, 1861 (p), and of sect. 27, sub-sect. 3, of the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879 (q).

Seller or buyer in possession after sale.—"Where a person having sold goods continues or is in possession of the goods, or of the documents of title to the goods, the delivery or transfer by that person, or by a mercantile agent acting for him, of the goods or documents of title (r) under any sale, pledge, or other disposition thereof, to any person receiving the same in good faith and without notice of the previous sale, shall have the same effect as if the person making the delivery or transfer were expressly authorised by the owner of the goods to make the same (s). Where a person having bought or agreed to buy goods obtains, with the consent of the seller, possession of the goods or the documents of title to the goods, the delivery or transfer by that person, or by a mercantile agent acting for him, of the goods or documents of title, under any sale, pledge, or other disposition thereof, to any person receiving the same in good faith and without notice of any lien or other right of the original seller in respect of the goods, shall have the same effect as if the person making the delivery or transfer were a mercantile agent in possession of the goods or documents of title with the consent of the owner (t). In this section the term 'mercantile agent' has the same meaning as in the Factors Acts" (u). These provisions are a re-enactment of ss. 8 and 9 of the Factors Act, 1889 (x), with this modification, that they do not apply to the delivery or transfer of goods or documents of title "under any agreement for sale, pledge, or other disposition thereof."

Where a vendor sells goods which are warehoused, and agrees to retain the goods until demanded, and after the sale writes letters to the warehouseman appropriating the goods as security for money advanced by the warehouseman, these letters do not amount to "a delivery of the goods" or "a transfer of the (o) Bentley v. Vilmont, 12 App.Cas. 471; 57 L.J. Q.B. 18; overruling Moyce v. Newington, 4 Q.B.D. 32; 48 L.J. Q.B. 125, which is now reinstated by 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 24 (2).

(p) 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, s. 100.

(q) 42 & 43 Vict. c. 49, s. 27 (3).

(r) See 52 & 53 Vict. c. 45, s. 1 (4), for definition of "document of title."

(s) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 25 (1). See, as to Factors Acts, post, p. 824.

(t) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 25 (2).

(u) Ib., s. 25 (3); see 52 & 53 Vict. c. 45, s. 1 (1), for definition of "mercantile agent."

(x) 52 & 53 Vict. c. 45, ss. 8, 9.

documents of title" within sect. 25 of the Act (y). Where a seller of goods sent to the buyer under cover of a letter a bill of lading accompanied by a draft to be accepted by the buyer for the price of the goods contained in the bill of lading, but the buyer never accepted the draft and retained the bill of lading, which he indorsed to a sub-purchaser, who received it in good faith for valuable consideration and without notice of any right of the original seller in respect of the goods, it was held, the buyer having become insolvent, that he was in possession of the bill of lading with the consent of the seller so that its transfer to the sub-purchaser gave the latter a good title to the goods and that the original seller had no right to stop the goods in transitu (z).

Purchaser having notice of writ of execution.—A writ of fieri facias or other writ of execution against goods binds the property in the goods of the execution debtor as from the time when the writ is delivered to the sheriff to be executed; but no such writ is to prejudice the title to such goods acquired by any person in good faith and for valuable consideration, unless such person had at the time when he acquired his title notice that such writ or any other writ by virtue of which the goods of the execution debtor might be seized or attached had been delivered to and remained unexecuted in the hands of the sheriff (a).

Duties of seller and buyer.—"It is the duty of the seller to deliver the goods, and of the buyer to accept and pay for them, in accordance with the terms of the contract of sale" (b). Although a bargain and sale may be so far incomplete as not to operate as an immediate transfer of property, yet the engagements which naturally result from the contract are in existence as soon as it has been entered into. There is an implied promise or undertaking on the part of the vendor to put the vendee into possession of the thing sold without delay, if the contract makes no mention of the time of delivery, and an undertaking by the vendee to accept the goods and pay the price on the delivery of the subject-matter of the sale by the vendor. There is also an implied undertaking, on the part of the vendor of a specific chattel to be delivered at a future day, that he will not do anything inconsistent with the rights of the purchaser; and, if he wastes or re-sells the property, he is responsible in damages (c).

(y) Nicholson v. Harper, (1895) 2 Ch. 415; 64 L.J. Ch. 672.
(z) Cahn v. Pockett's Bristol Channel Co., (1899) 1 Q.B. 643; 68 L.J. Q.B. 515.
(a) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 26 (1).
(b) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 27; see also sect. 37, post.
(c) Chinery v. Viall, 5 H. & N. 288; 29 L.J. Ex. 180; Bowdell v. Parsons, 10 East, 359.

Actual and constructive delivery of goods.—The delivery of goods may be either real or symbolical, actual or constructive. When the subject-matter of the sale is capable of manual delivery, such as a watch, a book, or a gun, and is actually transferred from the hand of the vendor to that of the purchaser or his agent, there is an actual delivery. So, if, being a bulky commodity, it is removed from the warehouse of the vendor to that of the purchaser, and placed under the control of the latter, there is an actual delivery. But although there has been no manual transfer from hand to hand, and the goods have not been removed from the place where they were deposited at the time of the sale, if the vendor has handed to the purchaser the key of a box or warehouse where the goods were deposited (d) in order that he may remove them (e), or has given to the purchaser a delivery order or warrant for their removal (f), and placed them at the disposal of the latter, there is a constructive delivery, provided, at the time of the delivery of the key or warrant, the particular goods to be removed had been weighed out or measured, or separated from the bulk, and nothing but delivery remained to be performed by the vendor in order to complete his part of the contract of sale.

When goods are incapable of manual delivery, such as a haystack in a meadow, the same strict evidence of transfer cannot ordinarily be given, and it is enough for the vendor to show that the purchaser was himself to have fetched away the article, and that the vendor has given him the power and opportunity of removing it (g). But, if goods sold remain in the vendor's dwelling-house or warehouse, the mere circumstance that he has allowed the purchaser an opportunity of removing a trifling part is consistent with the intention of retaining the vendor's lien on the residue, and therefore would not be conclusive evidence of delivery (h). For it must be observed that the mere placing of goods at the disposal of the purchaser, or putting it in his power to remove them, will not in any case constitute a delivery, if the vendor retains his lien for the price or possesses any control over them (i).

Proof of delivery.—The question of delivery is a question of (d) Chaplin v. Rogers, 1 East, 194.

(e) Salter v. Woollams, 2 M. & Gr. 650; 10 L.J. C.P. 145; Bartlett v. Holmes, 22 L.J. C.P. 182; 13 C.B. 630.

(f) Greaves v. Hepke, 2 B. & Ald. 131; Marshall v. Green, 1 C.P.D. 35; 45 L.J. C.P. 153; Elmore v. Stone, 1 Taunt. 458.

(g) Smith v. Chance, 2 B. & Ald. 753; Wood v. Tassell, 6 Q.B. 236; Tansley v. Turner, 2 Bing. N.C. 151; 4 L.J. C.P. 272.

(h) Thompson v. Maceroni, 4 Dowl. & R. 619; 2 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 208.

(i) Goodall v. Skelton, 2 H.Bl. 316; Cusack v. Robinson, 1 B. & S. 299; 30 L.J. Q.B. 261; cf. Holderness v. Shackels, 8 B. & C. 621; 7 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 80.

fact, and is to be determined by reference to all the surrounding circumstances, which must be looked at in order to see if there has been a virtual change of possession as well as a change of ownership. The taking of samples, coopering casks, and the general exercise of acts of ownership by the purchaser over the subject-matter of the sale, in those cases where nothing but delivery remains to be performed to execute the contract, are circumstances from which an actual transfer of the possession of the article to the purchaser may be fairly inferred; but they are equivocal acts, open to explanation, and afford no sufficient proof of delivery, if they have been done without the knowledge or sanction of the vendor (k). Where goods are sold for ready money and the price is not paid, the marking of the goods and packing them up in boxes or cloths belonging to the purchaser do not constitute a delivery so long as the goods remain in the possession of the vendor, inasmuch as the latter has not, until he has actually parted with the possession of them, lost his lien for the price (l); and the delivery of part of the goods does not, unless so intended by the parties, operate as a constructive delivery of the whole, so as to deprive the vendor of his right to possession of the residue until payment of the price (m). The unpacking or unloading of goods for the purpose of inspection by a purchaser who has not previously selected (ante, p. 534) is not necessarily an acceptance of the goods by the purchaser so as to authenticate the contract of sale, and à fortiori is not sufficient to render him liable to an action for the price(n). But, if he lands and stores the goods, and keeps them an unreasonable time, or does more than is necessary to be done for inspection, he makes the goods his own (o).

Payment and delivery, concurrent conditions.—"Unless otherwise agreed, delivery of the goods and payment of the price are concurrent conditions, that is to say, the seller must be ready and willing to give possession of the goods to the buyer in exchange for the price, and the buyer must be ready and willing to pay the price in exchange for possession of the goods" (p). If a precise time has been appointed for the payment of the (k) Dixon v. Yates, 5 B. & Ad. 313; 2 L.J. K.B. 198; Craven v. Ryder, 6 Taunt. 433. See post, pp. 612 et seq.

(l) Boulter v. Arnott, 1 Cr. & M. 333; 2 L.J. Ex. 97.

(m) Bunney v. Poyntz, 4 B. & Ad. 568; 2 L.J. K.B. 55; Dixon v. Yates, supra; Hammond v. Anderson, 1 Bos. & P. N.R. 69.

(n) Curtis v. Pugh, 10 Q.B. 111; 16 L.J. Q.B. 199; Toulmin v. Hedley, 2 Car. & K. 157.

(o) Chapman v. Morton, 11 M. & W. 540; 12 L.J. Ex. 292; see also s. 35, post.

(p) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 28; Callonel v. Briggs, 1 Salk. 112; Morton v. Lamb, 7 T.R. 125; Rawson v. Johnson, 1 East, 203; Wilks v. Atkinson, 1 Marsh. 412; Withers v. Reynolds, 2 B. & Ad. 882; 1 L.J. K.B. 30; Bloxam v. Sanders 4 B. & C. 941.

price, and another and different time is fixed for the delivery, the acts are not concurrent, and do not constitute mutual conditions (q) unless they are made so by custom and usage of trade. Thus if a bought note specifies that certain goods have been "bought to be paid for by cash in one month," the buyer is entitled to call for delivery at any reasonable time from the making of the contract; but the vendor has no right to the money until the month has expired, unless a usage of trade, authorising the vendor to keep possession of the goods until the day of payment arrives, can be established (r). If the goods are to be delivered "forthwith," and the price is to be paid in a "fortnight" or "month," the delivery must be made within the period named (s). Where, by the terms of the contract, the goods were to be taken away at the purchaser's expense in fourteen days from the day of the sale, and the purchase-money was to be paid on or before the delivery of the goods, it was held that the seller was bound to deliver when called upon at any time during the fourteen days, and had not fourteen days to deliver the goods, although the purchaser had fourteen days to take them away (t).

Rules as to delivery.—"(1) Whether it is for the buyer to take possession of the goods or for the seller to send them to the buyer is a question depending in each case on the contract, express or implied, between the parties. Apart from any such contract, express or implied, the place of delivery is the seller's place of business, if he have one, and if not, his residence: Provided that, if the contract be for the sale of specific goods, which to the knowledge of the parties when the contract is made are in some other place, then that place is the place of delivery (u). (2) Where under the contract of sale the seller is bound to send the goods to the buyer, but no time for sending them is fixed, the seller is bound to send them within a reasonable time (x). (3) Where the goods at the time of sale are in the possession of a third person, there is no delivery by seller to buyer unless and until such third person acknowledges to the buyer that he holds the goods on his behalf; provided that nothing in this section shall affect the operation of the issue or transfer of any document of title to goods (y). (4) Demand or tender of delivery may be treated as ineffectual unless made at

(q) Ante, p. 542; Thorpe v. Thorpe, 1 Salk. 171; 1 Raym. 665; Spartali v. Benecke, 10 C.B. 212; 19 L.J. C.P. 293; Chinery v. Viall, 5 H. & N. 288; 29 L.J. Ex. 180.

(r) Field v. Lelean, 6 H. & N. 617; 30 L.J. Ex. 168.

(s) Staunton v. Wood, 16 Q.B. 638.

(t) Hagedorn v. Laing, 6 Taunt. 162

(u) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 29 (1).

(x) Ib., s. 29 (2).

(y) Ib., s. 29 (3).

a reasonable hour. What is a reasonable hour is a question of fact (z). (5) Unless otherwise agreed, the expenses of and incidental to putting the goods into a deliverable state must be borne by the seller" (a).

If the goods are in the hands of a warehouse-keeper, wharfinger, or other agent, for safe custody, and are to be fetched away by the purchaser, and the goods are weighed and set apart for the purchaser, and the agent consents to hold them at the disposal of the latter, there is a sufficient delivery on the part of the vendor; and, if the goods are improperly taken away by a third party, the vendor cannot then be sued for the non-delivery of them (b). Some auctioneers sold a rick of hay which had been distrained by a landlord for rent. By the conditions of sale the hay was to be removed by the purchaser, and, the time specified for its removal being considered too short, the tenant gave a written permission for the hay to remain on the land for a longer period. The price of the hay was paid at the time of the sale, and a few days afterwards the purchaser received from the auctioneers a written order, addressed to the tenant, requiring him to permit the purchaser to remove the hay; but the tenant then refused, and would not suffer him to come upon the land to take it. The purchaser then brought an action against the auctioneers for the non-delivery; and the defendants pleaded that they did deliver possession to the plaintiff: and it was held that this plea was supported by the facts; that the permission given by the tenant for the hay to remain on the land for the convenience of the purchaser amounted to an attornment from the tenant to the purchaser, and was equivalent to an express undertaking on the part of the tenant to hold the hay for the purchaser's use and at his disposal (c).

Delivery of wrong quantity.—"Where the seller delivers to the buyer a quantity of goods less than he contracted to sell, the buyer may reject them, but if the buyer accepts the goods so delivered he must pay for them at the contract rate (d). Where the seller delivers to the buyer a quantity of goods larger than he contracted to sell, the buyer may accept the goods included in the contract and reject the rest, or he may reject the whole. If the buyer accepts the whole of the goods so delivered he must pay for them at the contract rate (e). Where the

(z) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 29 (4); see ante, p. 544.
(a) Ib., s. 29 (5).
(b) Wood v. Tassell 6 Q.B. 234.
(c) Salter v. Woollams, 2 M. & Gr. 650; 10 L.J. C.P. 105.
(d) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 30 (1).
(e) Ib., s. 30 (2).

seller delivers to the buyer the goods he contracted to sell mixed with goods of a different description not included in the contract, the buyer may accept the goods which are in accordance with the contract and reject the rest, or he may reject the whole (f). The provisions of this section are subject to any usage of trade, special agreement, or course of dealing between the parties "(g).

If more goods are sent than the purchaser agreed to buy, he may refuse to receive any portion of the goods so sent, and is not bound to incur risk or trouble in selecting some of the things and sending back others (h); still more is this the case where the superfluous goods are not of the quality ordered (i). A contract for a cargo of about sixty fathoms of lathwood is not performed by the tender of that quantity out of a cargo of eighty-three fathoms (k). Similarly a purchaser cannot be compelled to take less than he has ordered (l). If the subject of the contract is the sale of a specific quantity of a given article with a margin for a moderate excess in or diminution of that quantity under the words "about" or "more or less" the seller cannot call upon the buyer to accept any greater or less quantity of the article bargained for than the quantity specified subject to a moderate margin (m). Thus, if a purchaser has agreed to buy "about 300 quarters (more or less) of foreign rye, &c.," he is not bound to accept 350 quarters (n). If the vendor has agreed to sell, and the purchaser to buy, a certain quantity, "say not less than 100, &c.," the words amount to a contract to deliver at least the quantity specified (o). If the quantity is to be between 1,800 and 2,200 quarters, the purchaser is not bound to accept more than 2,200 quarters, nor to accept less than 1,800 (p). But it is otherwise where the purpose of the parties is the delivery of the goods in any event, and the statement as to the quality is merely subsidiary. Thus, if the right of property in the subject-matter of the sale has

(f) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 30 (3); Levy v. Green, 1 E. & E. 969; 28 L.J. Q.B. 319; Nicholson v. Bradford Union, L.R. 1 Q.B. 620; 35 L.J. Q.B. 176.

(g) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 30 (4).

(h) Cunliffe v. Harrison, 6 Exch. 903; 20 L.J. Ex. 325; Dixon v. Fletcher, 3 M. & W. 146; Rylands v. Kreitman, 19 C.B. N.S. 351; Hart v. Mills, 15 M. & W. 85; 15 L.J. Ex. 200.

(i) Levy v. Green, 1 E. & E. 969; 28 L.J. Q.B. 319.

(k) Kreuger v. Blanck, L.R. 5 Ex. 179; 39 L.J. Ex. 160; Borrowman v. Drayton, 2 Ex.D. 15; 46 L.J. Ex. 273; Ireland v. Livingston, L.R. 5 H.L. 395; 41 L.J. Q.B. 201.

(l) Oxendale v. Wetherell, 9 B. & C. 386; 7 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 264; Colonial Ins. Co. of New Zealand v. Adelaide Mar. Ins. Co., 12 App.Cas. 138; 56 L.J. P.C. 19.

(m) Reuter v. Sala, 4 C.P.D. 239; 48 L.J. C.P. 492.

(n) Cross v. Eglin, 2 B. & Ad. 106; 9 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 145.

(o) Leeming v. Snaith, 16 Q.B. 275; 20 L.J. Q.B. 165. See Morris v. Levison, 1 C.P.D. 155; 45 L.J. C.P. 409.

(p) Tamvaco v. Lucas, 1 E. & E. 581; 28 L.J. Q.B. 153; Reuter v. Sala, 4 C.P.D. 239; 48 L.J. C.P. 492. As to defective deliveries on contracts to deliver by instalments, see sect. 31 (2), post, p. 602.

passed by the bargain from the vendor to the purchaser, the latter is not justified in refusing to accept it and pay the price, by reason of some unintentional misrepresentation of the quantity. Where the vendor agreed to sell and the purchaser to buy "the cargo Prima Donna as it stands, consisting of about 1,300 quarters Ibralia corn, at 30s. per quarter, the quantity to be taken from the bill of lading," and the bill of lading described the cargo as being 1,667 quarters; and afterwards when the corn came to be measured it was found to consist of only 1,614 quarters, it was held that the purchaser must put up with the loss, as there had been no intentional misrepresentation, and no fraud on the part of the vendor (q). If the right of property has not passed by the bargain, the purchaser cannot be made responsible for the non-acceptance of the subject-matter of the sale and non-payment of the price, unless the vendor can show that the article or chattel tendered for acceptance fairly corresponded in quantity with the thing agreed to be bought; for no man can be compelled to take more than he agreed to buy (r). The natural deterioration of an article between the time of the sale and delivery does not entitle the purchaser to refuse acceptance (s). With regard to the vendor, if the contract is entire for the purchase of a certain quantity of goods, he cannot be compelled to deliver a part only of the goods; and, if the purchaser declines to take the whole quantity he has ordered, the vendor may at once abandon the contract or sue for damages (t).

Delivery by instalments.—"Unless otherwise agreed, the buyer of goods is not bound to accept delivery thereof by instalments (u). Where there is a contract for the sale of goods to be delivered by stated instalments, which are to be separately paid for, and the seller makes defective deliveries in respect of one or more instalments, or the buyer neglects or refuses to take delivery of or pay for one or more instalments, it is a question in each case depending on the terms of the contract and the circumstances of the case, whether the breach of contract is a repudiation of the whole contract or whether it is a severable breach giving rise to a claim for compensation but not to a right to treat the whole contract as repudiated" (x).

The principle embodied in sect. 31 is the only one which

(q) Cox v. Bingham, 2 E. & B. 836; 23 L.J. Q.B. 27.

(r) Hart v. Mills, 15 M. & W. 85; 15 L.J. Ex. 200.

(s) Bull v. Robison, 10 Exch. 342; 24 L.J. Ex. 165; Beer v. Walker, 46 L.J. C.P. 677. See also sect. 33, post, p. 605.

(t) Kingdom v. Cox, 5 C.B. 522; 17 L.J. C.P. 155.

(u) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 31 (1).

(x) Ib., s. 31 (2).

can be deduced from the numerous conflicting authorities on the question as to when a single breach by one party to a contract to deliver or accept delivery by instalments entitles the other party to treat the whole contract as repudiated (y) or as merely giving rise to a claim for compensation (z). When a bargain has been made for the manufacture of a certain specified quantity of goods to be supplied from time to time, and paid for after delivery, if the purchaser, having accepted and paid for a portion of the goods contracted for, gives notice to the vendor not to manufacture any more, as he has no occasion for them, and will not accept or pay for them, the vendor may, without manufacturing and tendering the rest of the goods, maintain an action against the purchaser for damages (a). For in an action on a contract of sale for the non-acceptance of goods sold, it is sufficient, though also necessary, for the vendor to show that he was ready and willing to deliver the goods to the purchaser according to the terms of the contract (b). The plaintiffs undertook to supply the defendants with 30,000 tons of ore at 25*s.* 6*d.* per ton, cost freight and insurance, payment to be made by cash on delivery of each shipment, "deliveries to be made at the rate of from 800 to 1,300 tons per month, provided we are able to procure tonnage at or under 16*s.* 6*d.* per ton. No responsibility to attach to us should we be prevented from delivering all or any portion of the ore through any dangers of the mines, &c." The plaintiffs withheld ore while freights were above the limit, and then sought to deliver ore according to contract, and it was held that they might, but that they might not deliver ore which they had been prevented delivering by dangers of the mines, &c. (c). A purchaser of goods for delivery by instalments who has repudiated the contract on a wrong ground before delivery of any instalment has been tendered is not entitled in an action by the seller for breach of the contract to set up as a defence that an instalment which was subsequently tendered by the seller and repudiated on the same ground, such repudiation being accepted by the seller selling the goods, was

(y) See Withers v. Reynolds, 2 B. & Ad. 882; 1 L.J. K.B. 30; Hoare v. Rennie, 5 H. & N. 19; 29 L.J. Ex. 73; Roper v. Johnson, L.R. 8 C.P. 167; 42 L.J. C.P. 65; Bloomer v. Bernstein, L.R. 9 C.P. 588; 43 L.J. C.P. 375; Honck v. Muller, 7 Q.B.D. 92; 50 L.J. Q.B. 529; Rhymney Ry. v. Brecon, &c. Ry., 69 L.J. Ch. 813.

(z) See Jonassohn v. Young, 4 B. & S. 296; 32 L.J. Q.B. 385; Simpson v. Crippin, L.R. 8 Q.B. 14; 42 L.J. Q.B. 28; Freeth v. Burr L.R. 9 C.P. 208; 43 L.J. C.P. 91; Tyers v. Rosedale Iron Co., L.R. 10 Ex. 195; 44 L.J. Ex. 130; Mersey Steel and Iron Co. v. Naylor, 9 App.Cas. 434; 53 L.J. Q.B. 497.

(a) Cort v. Ambergate Ry., 17 Q.B. 148; 20 L.J. Q.B. 466.

(b) Boyd v. Lett, 1 C.B. 222; 14 L.J. C.P. 111; Hannuic v. Goldner, 11 M. & W. 849, 856; Granger v. Dacre, 12 M. & W. 434; 13 L.J. Ex. 93.

(c) De Oleaga v. West Cumberland Iron Co., 4 Q.B.D. 472; 48 L.J. Q.B. 753.

not according to contract, inasmuch as the wrongful repudiation absolved the seller from performance of the contract on his part (d).

Delivery to carrier.—"Where, in pursuance of a contract of sale, the seller is authorised or required to send the goods to the buyer, delivery of the goods to a carrier, whether named by the buyer or not, for the purpose of transmission to the buyer is primâ facie deemed to be a delivery (e) of the goods to the buyer (f).

"Unless otherwise authorised by the buyer, the seller must make such contract with the carrier on behalf of the buyer as may be reasonable having regard to the nature of the goods and the other circumstances of the case. If the seller omit so to do, and the goods are lost or damaged in course of transit, the buyer may decline to treat the delivery to the carrier as a delivery to himself, or may hold the seller responsible in damages (g).

"Unless otherwise agreed, where goods are sent by the seller to the buyer by a route involving sea transit, under circumstances in which it is usual to insure, the seller must give such notice to the buyer as may enable him to insure them during their sea transit, and, if the seller fails to do so, the goods shall be deemed to be at his risk during such sea transit" (h).

If the vendor is authorised to select the goods and forward them to the purchaser, the selection by the vendor, and the delivery of the goods to a carrier to be conveyed to the purchaser, will have the effect of transferring the ownership and risk to such purchaser provided the selection is made according to the orders or authority given (i). As soon as the goods are delivered into the hands of the carrier he becomes responsible to the purchaser to whom they are consigned (k), and there is an executed delivery as well as a transfer of the ownership and risk (l); but, if by the terms of the contract the delivery of the goods at their place of destination is made a condition precedent to the payment of the price, and the goods perish in (d) Braithwaite v. Foreign Hardwood Co., (1905) 2 K.B. 543; 74 L.J. K.B. 688.

(e) "Delivery" means voluntary transfer of possession from one person to another: sect. 62.

(f) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 32 (1).

(g) Ib., s. 32 (2).

(h) Ib., s. 32 (3).

(i) Fragano v. Long, 4 B. & C. 221; 3 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 177; Browne v. Hare, 4 H. & N. 822; 29 L.J. Ex. 6.

(k) Dawes v. Peck, 8 T.R. 330; Dutton v. Solomonson, 3 Bos. & P. 582; Bryans v. Nix, 4 M. & W. 791; 8 L.J. Ex. 137; Swain v. Shepherd, 1 Moo. & R. 223; Fragano v. Long, supra; Gronin v. Mendham, 5 M. & S. 189; Lord Cottenham, Dunlop v. Lambert, 6 Cl. & Fin. 621.

(l) Fragano v. Long, supra; Wiltshir Iron Co., In re, L.R. 3 Ch. 443; 37 L.J Ch. 554; Calcutta Steam Navigation Co v. De Mattos, 32 L.J. Q.B. 214.

the hands of the carrier, the vendor is not entitled to the price (m). And, if the purchaser's right to possession of the goods is made conditional on the prior performance of some act on his part, such as an acceptance of a bill of exchange, or the giving of a promissory note for the price, the vendor may resume the possession of them, if the purchaser neglects to fulfil the condition at the time appointed (n). The vendor, after he has once parted with the goods in fulfilment of an unconditional contract of sale, and placed them in a course of transmission to the purchaser, cannot lawfully re-take them from the carrier, unless the purchaser becomes bankrupt whilst they are in the hands of the carrier (o), or unless the goods have been sent merely on approval, or upon some condition which the purchaser is bound and fails to perform (p).

Deterioration to goods in transit.—"Where the seller of goods agrees to deliver them at his own risk at a place other than that where they are when sold, the buyer must, nevertheless, unless otherwise agreed, take any risk of deterioration in the goods necessarily incident to the course of transit" (q).

Buyer's right to examine goods.—"Where goods are delivered to the buyer, which he has not previously examined, he is not deemed to have accepted them unless and until he has had a reasonable opportunity of examining them for the purpose of ascertaining whether they are in conformity with the contract (r). Unless otherwise agreed, when the seller tenders delivery of goods to the buyer, he is bound, on request, to afford the buyer a reasonable opportunity of examining the goods for the purpose of ascertaining whether they are in conformity with the contract" (s).

A vendor tendering goods for acceptance must so tender them as to allow the purchaser an opportunity of inspecting them to see whether they are or are not the goods which he has bought; and the purchaser need not accept them if this opportunity is not given (t); and if on inspection they turn out to be different from those which were agreed to be sold, he may reject them (u). But, if the goods have been selected by the purchaser prior to

(m) Lord Cottenham, Dunlop v. Lambert, 6 Cl. & Fin. 621; Calcutta Steam Navigation Co. v. De Mattos, supra.

(n) Com. Dig. CONDITION (B. 13); Brandt v. Bowlby, 2 B. & Ad. 932; 1 L.J. K.B. 14; Moakes v. Nicholson, 19 C.B. N.S. 290; 34 L.J. C.P. 273.

(o) Rosevear Clay Co., Ex parte, 11 Ch.D. 560; 48 L.J. Bankr. 100.

(p) Wilmshurst v. Bowker, 7 M. & Gr. 882; 12 L.J. C.P. 475.

(q) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 33; see also s. 30, ante, p. 600.

(r) Ib., s. 34 (1).

(s) Ib., s. 34 (2).

(t) Isherwood v. Whitmore, 11 M. & W. 347; 12 L.J. Ex. 93; Lorymer v. Smith, 1 B. & C. 1.

(u) Tye v. Fynmore, 3 Campb. 462; Toulmin v. Hedley, 2 Car. & K. 157; Curtis v. Pugh, 10 Q.B. 111; 16 L.J. Q.B. 199.

the sale, or have been purchased with all faults, the purchaser has no right of inspection for the purpose of measuring or the like before payment (x). The place of delivery is usually the place for inspection (y).

Acceptance.—"The buyer is deemed to have accepted the goods when he intimates to the seller that he has accepted them, or when the goods have been delivered to him, and he does any act in relation to them which is inconsistent with the ownership of the seller, or when after the lapse of a reasonable time, he retains the goods without intimating to the seller that he has rejected them" (z). Where by the Act of 1893 any reference is made to a reasonable time, the question what is a reasonable time is a question of fact (a).

Generally speaking, a purchaser must be taken to have finally accepted goods when he has done more than is necessary for a mere trial of them or for the purpose of examination and comparison, and has done some act to alter the position of the vendor, or to delay the return of the goods (b). A purchaser who has exercised acts of dominion over the goods, as by parting with the property in them, or who has altered the position of the vendor in relation to the goods, will, generally speaking, be taken to have finally accepted them (c). "Unless otherwise agreed, where goods are delivered to the buyer, and he refuses to accept them, having the right so to do, he is not bound to return them to the seller, but it is sufficient if he intimates to the seller that he refuses to accept them" (d). Thus, he is not bound to place the goods in neutral custody (e). It is sufficient if he does some unequivocal act showing an intention to reject, giving notice to the vendor that he does so. The vendor is then bound to take them away, and if he refuses to do so, they remain at his risk, and if they are destroyed by accident the loss will fall on the vendor (f).

Liability of buyer—Neglect or refusal to take delivery—Risk.—"When the seller is ready and willing to deliver the goods, and requests the buyer to take delivery, and the buyer does not within a reasonable time after such request take delivery of the goods, he is liable to the seller for any loss occasioned by

(x) Pettit v. Mitchell, 4 M. & Gr. 836; 12 L.J. C.P. 9.

(y) Perkins v. Bell, (1893) 1 Q.B. 193; 62 L.J. Q.B. 91.

(z) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 35.

(a) Ib., s. 56.

(b) Curtis v. Pugh, 10 Q.B. 111; 16 L.J. Q.B. 199; Toulmin v. Hedley, 2 Car. & K. 157; Street v. Blay, 2 B. & Ad. 456; Chapman v. Morton, 11 M. & W. 534; 12 L.J. Ex. 292.

(c) Heilbutt v. Hickson, L.R. 7 C.P. 438; 41 L.J. C.P. 228.

(d) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 36.

(e) Grimoldby v. Wells, L.R. 10 C.P. 391; 44 L. J. C.P. 203.

(f) Okell v. Smith, 1 Stark. 107; Grimoldby v. Wells, supra.

his neglect or refusal to take delivery, and also for a reasonable charge for the care and custody of the goods. Provided that nothing in this section shall affect the rights of the seller where the neglect or refusal of the buyer to take delivery amounts to a repudiation of the contract" (g).

Unpaid seller's rights.—"Subject to the provisions of this Act, and of any statute in that behalf, notwithstanding that the property in the goods may have passed to the buyer, the unpaid seller (h) of goods, as such, has by implication of law—(a.) A lien on the goods for the price while he is in possession of them (i); (b.) In case of the insolvency (k) of the buyer, a right of stopping the goods in transitu after he has parted with the possession of them (l); (c.) A right of re-sale as limited by this Act" (m).

"Where the property in goods has not passed to the buyer, the unpaid seller has, in addition to his other remedies, a right of withholding delivery similar to and co-extensive with his rights of lien and stoppage in transitu where the property has passed to the buyer" (n).

The seller of goods is deemed to be an "unpaid seller" within the meaning of the Act of 1893—(a.) When the whole of the price has not been paid or tendered (o); (b.) When a bill of exchange or other negotiable instrument has been received as conditional payment, and the condition on which it was received has not been fulfilled by reason of the dishonour of the instrument or otherwise (p). In Part IV. of the Act—which includes ss. 38-48 inclusive—the term "seller" includes any person who is in the position of a seller, as, for instance, an agent of the seller to whom the bill of lading has been indorsed, or a consignor or agent who has himself paid, or is directly responsible for, the price (q).

The following persons have been held to be in the position of unpaid sellers for this purpose—a consignor of goods to be

(g) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 37. As to the obligation to accept, see sect. 27, ante, p. 596.

(h) See sect. 38 for definition of "unpaid seller" and "seller" in this part of the Act: ss. 38—48 inclusive.

(i) See sect. 41, post; Grice v. Richardson, 3 App.Cas. 319; 47 L.J. P.C. 48.

(k) A person is deemed to be insolvent within the meaning of this Act who either has ceased to pay his debts in the ordinary course of business, or cannot pay his debts as they become due, whether he has committed an act of bankruptcy or not: sect. 62 (3).

(l) See sects. 44 et seq., post.

(m) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 39 (1).

(n) Ib., s. 39 (2).

(o) Hodgson v. Loy, 7 T.R. 440; Sweet v. Pym, 1 East, 4; Feise v. Wray, 3 East, 93; New v. Swain, 1 Dan. & Ll. 193; Edwards v. Brewer, 2 M. & W. 375; 6 L.J. Ex. 135. See Weguelin v. Cellier, L.R. 6 H.L. 286; 42 L.J. Ch. 758.

(p) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 38 (1); Griffiths v. Perry, 1 E. & E. 680; 28 L.J. Q.B. 204; Valpy v. Oakeley, 6 Q.B. 941; 20 L.J. Q.B. 380.

(q) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 38 (2); The Tigress, 1 Br. & L. 38; 32 L.J. Adm. 97; Feise v. Wray, 3 East, 93.

sold on the joint account of himself and the consignee (r); a person who has an interest in or a right to receive goods and purports to sell them (s); but a mere surety for the payment of the price is not a person in this position (t), though it would probably be otherwise where he has actually paid it (u); and the rights of an unpaid vendor do not extend to persons who have forwarded goods to a creditor by way of payment, or in satisfaction and discharge of a debt due to the consignee (x).

Unpaid seller's lien.—Subject to the provisions of the Act of 1893 "the unpaid seller of goods who is in possession of them is entitled to retain possession of them until payment or tender of the price in the following cases, namely:—(a.) Where the goods have been sold without any stipulation as to credit; (b.) Where the goods have been sold on credit, but the term of credit has expired (y); (c.) Where the buyer becomes insolvent" (z).

"The seller may exercise his right of lien notwithstanding that he is in possession of the goods as agent or bailee for the buyer" (a).

Vendor's lien for price of goods sold.—When different times are not expressly appointed for payment and delivery, the acts of payment and delivery are, as we have seen, concurrent, and constitute mutual conditions to be performed at the same time, so that the purchaser cannot demand the thing sold without paying or offering to pay the price, nor the vendor the price without delivering or offering to deliver the subject-matter of the sale. "If I sell you my horse for 10*l.*, if you will have the horse, I must have the money; or, if I will have the money, you must have the horse" (b).

Insolvency of purchaser.—When the purchaser becomes insolvent before the contract for sale has been completely performed, the seller, notwithstanding he may have agreed to allow credit for the goods, is not bound to deliver any more goods under the contract until the price of the goods not yet delivered is tendered to him; and, if a debt is due to him for goods already delivered, he is entitled to refuse to deliver any more till he is (r) Newsom v. Thornton, 6 East, 17.

(s) Jenkins v. Usborne, 7 M. & Gr. 678; 13 L.J. C.P. 196.

(t) Siffken v. Ray, 6 East, 371.

(u) Imperial Bank v. London & St. Kath. Docks Co., 5 Ch.D. 195; 46 L.J. Ch. 335.

(x) Vertue v. Jewell, 4 Campb. 31.

(y) See New v. Swain, 1 Dan. & Ll. 193; Parsons on Contracts, 546 (ed. 8); Blackburn on Sale, 458 (ed. 2); Castle v. Sworder, 6 H & N. at p. 833; 30 L.J. Ex. 310.

(z) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 41 (1).

(a) Ib., s. 41 (2); Grice v. Richardson, 3 App.Cas. 319; 47 L.J. P.C. 48.

(b) Callonel v. Briggs, 1 Salk. 112; Lock v. Wright, 1 Str. 571; Morton v. Lamb, 7 T.R. 125; Rawson v. Johnson, 1 East, 203; Wilks v. Atkinson, 1 Marsh. 412; Withers v. Reynolds, 2 B. & Ad. 882; 1 L.J. K.B. 30; Bloxam v. Sanders, 4 B. & C. 941; Atkinson v. Smith, 14 M. & W. 695; 15 L.J. Ex. 59.

paid the debt due for those already delivered, as well as the price of those still to be delivered (c). And it makes no difference in this respect whether the contract is for the sale of specific goods or for the sale of goods to be delivered by instalments (d). But there must be such an admission or proof of insolvency as amounts to a refusal to pay (e). Until actual possession of goods sold has been delivered to the purchaser the vendor's right of lien can be set up as against the assignee or trustee of the purchaser upon the insolvency of the latter (f). The trustee has a right to elect to complete the contract by paying cash within a reasonable time, but if he neglects to do so the vendor may re-sell the goods, and it seems that a sub-purchaser would also have an option of completing the contract (g).

Countermand of delivery orders.—Similarly, if possession has not been given, and the delivery completed, under a delivery order or dock-warrant, the vendor may, if the purchaser becomes insolvent before payment, countermand the order or warrant, although it has been accepted by the person to whom it is addressed, and require the latter to hold the goods on his, the vendor's, account, as before the order was made, provided the goods have not been re-sold and the warehouse-keeper or bailee has not attorned to the sub-purchaser in the manner presently mentioned. It has been held that possession had not been given, and that delivery was not complete, so as to prevent the vendor from countermanding his delivery order by reason of the insolvency of the purchaser in the following cases:—where ten tons of Riga flax were sold at 118*l.* per ton, to be paid for by the purchaser's acceptance at three months, and the ten tons were to be separated from a larger quantity lying in bulk upon a wharf, and the vendor gave to the purchaser a delivery order on the wharfinger for the ten tons, which order was accepted by him and entered in his books, but, before the weighing and separation of the ten tons from the bulk, the purchaser became insolvent (h);—where fifty tons of oil were sold at a fixed price, and an order for the delivery thereof was given to the purchaser, and forwarded to the wharfinger who had the custody of the oil, but it was the custom of the trade for the casks to be searched by the cooper of the vendor, and

(c) Chalmers, Ex parte, Edwards, In re, L.R. 8 Ch. 289; 42 L.J. Bankr. 37; Morgan v. Bain, L.R. 10 C.P. 15; 44 L.J. C.P. 47.

(d) Chalmers, Ex parte, Edwards, In re, supra.

(e) Phœniæ Bessemer Steel Co., In re, 4 Ch.D. 108; 46 L.J. Ch. 115; Stapleton, Ex parte, 10 Ch.D. 586.

(f) Grice v. Richardson, 3 App.Cas. 319; 47 L.J. P.C. 48.

(g) Stapleton, Ex parte, supra.

(h) Busk v. Davis, 2 M. & S. 397; Shepley v. Davis, 5 Taunt. 617.

for the broker of both parties to examine them to ascertain the foot-dirt and water in each, with a view to certain allowances in respect thereof, and then the casks were to be filled up by the cooper at the expense of the vendor, and the purchaser became insolvent before these preliminary acts had been performed (i);—where a purchaser agreed to purchase the "small parcel of starch" belonging to the vendor, which he had seen lying at the warehouse of a third party, at 6*l.* per cwt., to be paid for by bill at two months, fourteen days to be allowed for delivery, and the vendor gave a note to the purchaser addressed to the warehouse-keeper, directing him to "weigh and deliver" to the purchaser "all his starch," which order was forthwith lodged at the warehouse, and a large portion of the starch, on that and two subsequent days, was weighed and delivered to the purchaser, and removed pursuant to the order, but the purchaser became bankrupt whilst the residue remained unweighed in the warehouse, and the vendor countermanded the delivery of the unweighed residue (k). But the question whether the delivery of dock-warrants or delivery orders will bar the unpaid vendor's lien or not, is really a question of the intention of the parties, and depends largely upon custom and upon the circumstances of each case (l).

Where, on the other hand, 130 bales of bacon, lying at a wharf, were sold and weighed by the vendor, and set apart for the purchaser; and the price was ascertained, and was to be paid by bill at two months; and an order was given to the wharfinger to deliver the goods to the purchaser, who went to the wharf and presented the order, and with the assent of the wharfinger took possession of them and weighed the whole, and took away part, but became bankrupt before he had removed the residue, whereupon the vendor countermanded the delivery order; it was held that, the order having been executed and the goods actually delivered under it to the purchaser, they had irrecoverably become the property of the latter (m). And, where a specified quantity of oats in a particular bin in a warehouse was sold at an ascertained price, and a delivery order was entered by the warehouse-keeper in his books, and the oats were transferred into the names of the purchasers, and there were no oats in the bin besides the oats in question, it was held that the delivery was complete by the transfer in the books of the

(i) Wallace v. Breeds, 13 East, 522.

(k) Hanson v. Meyer, 6 East, 614.

(l) Imperial Bank v. London and St. Katharine Docks Co., 5 Ch.D. 195; 46 L.J. Ch. 335; Merchant Banking Co. v. Phœnix Steel Co., 5 Ch.D. 205; 46 L.J. Ch. 418.

(m) Hammond v. Anderson, 1 Bos. & P. N.R. 69.

warehouse-keeper (n). Whenever the vendor has given the purchaser actual possession or what is equivalent to actual possession of the goods sold, all the vendor's rights over them are completely gone, although the things have not been removed from the vendor's premises (o).

Shares and undivided quantities sold as such.—If the vendor himself is possessed only of an undivided share of a commodity, such as a quarter of a particular pipe of wine, or cistern of oil, or the half of a specific cargo of sugar in the hands of other part owners, or of a common bailee, and he sells his share and interest as an undivided quantity, just as he possesses it, and gives the purchaser credit for the payment of the price, and hands him a delivery order which is accepted by the party having the custody of the property, the vendor cannot, if the purchaser becomes bankrupt before payment, annul the sale and prevent his assignees from obtaining separate possession of his share (p).

Part delivery.—Where an unpaid seller has made part delivery of the goods, he may exercise his right of lien on the remainder, unless such part delivery has been made under such circumstances as to show an agreement to waive the lien (q).

Termination of seller's lien.—"The unpaid seller of goods loses his lien thereon—(a) When he delivers the goods to a carrier or other bailee for the purpose of transmission to the buyer without reserving the right of disposal of the goods; (b) when the buyer or his agent lawfully obtains possession of the goods; (c) by waiver thereof" (r). "The unpaid seller of goods, having a lien thereon, does not lose his lien by reason only that he has obtained judgment for the price of the goods" (s).

Intervention of rights of sub-purchasers.—The indorsement and transfer of a delivery order from one purchaser to another will effect no change of possession of the goods, so long as the delivery order has not been presented to, and accepted by, the warehouse-keeper, or party holding the goods as the agent of the vendor, and will not deprive the unpaid vendor of his right of countermand in case of the insolvency of the first purchaser (t). If the vendor is his own warehouseman, and gives to the purchaser a delivery order, or an acknowledgment that (n) Swanwick v. Sothern, 9 Ad. & E. 895.

(o) Tansley v. Turner, 2 Bing. N.C. 151; 4 L.J. C.P. 272; Cooper v. Bill, 3 H. & C. 722; 34 L.J. Ex. 161.
(p) Whitehouse v. Frost, 12 East, 614.
(q) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 42. See s. 45, sub-s. (7), post.
(r) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 43 (1).
(s) Ib., s. 43 (2).
(t) M'Ewan v. Smith, 2 H. L. Cas. 309.

he holds the goods on account of, or to the order of, the latter, he has a right to revoke the order and retain possession of the goods in case of the insolvency of the purchaser before actual payment, so long as the delivery order remains in the hands of the latter, and the goods have not been re-sold, and the rights of third parties do not intervene (u). But, if the goods have been re-sold, and the second purchaser has received from his immediate vendor, the first purchaser, a delivery order addressed to the original vendor, which has been accepted by him, the original vendor cannot, after he has thus attorned to such second purchaser, refuse to deliver the goods to such second purchaser, pursuant to his acceptance, although the first purchaser to whom he sold becomes bankrupt before delivery and before payment of the price (x), and even although the goods were not weighed or measured over prior to the bankruptcy of the first purchaser (y). But it is otherwise, if the original vendor has given his immediate purchaser, the sub-vendor, no delivery order or dock-warrant, and has not furnished him with any evidence of title, or in any way been a party to the sub-sale (z).

Stoppage in transitu.—Subject to the provisions of the Sale of Goods Act, 1893, "when the buyer of goods becomes insolvent, the unpaid seller who has parted with the possession of the goods has the right of stopping them in transitu, that is to say, he may resume possession of the goods as long as they are in course of transit, and may retain them until payment or tender of the price" (a). The doctrine of stoppage in transitu applies only to the case of goods sold and delivered (b). If the purchaser becomes bankrupt or insolvent before payment of the price, the vendor is entitled, so long as the goods are in transitu, and have not reached their final destination or come into the manual possession of the purchaser, or that of any other party whom he may have appointed his agent finally to take possession of and keep the goods for him, to re-take them and put himself into the same situation as if he had never parted with the actual possession of them (c).

(u) Townley v. Crump, 4 Ad. & E. 58; 5 L.J. K.B. 14.

(x) Hawes v. Watson, 2 B. & C. 540; Green v. Haythorne, 1 Stark. 447; Stovold v. Hughes, 14 East, 308; Pearson v. Dawson, E. B. & E. 448; 27 L.J. Q.B. 248; Cooper v. Bill, 3 H. & C. 722; 34 L.J. Ex. 161.

(y) Woodley v. Coventry, 2 H. & C. 164; 32 L.J. Ex. 185; Knights v. Wiffen, L.R. 5 Q.B. 660; 40 L.J. Q.B. 15.

(z) Craven v. Ryder, 6 Taunt. 433; Griffiths v. Perry, 1 E. & E. 680; 28 L.J. Q.B. 294; Meekes v. Nicholson, 19 C.B. N.S. 290; 34 L.J. C.P. 273. See 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 47, post.

(a) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 44.

(b) Gibson v. Carruthers, 8 M. & W. 334; 11 L.J. Ex. 138, per Parke, B.

(c) Gibson v. Carruthers, 8 M. & W. 338—341; 11 L.J. Ex. 138; Lickbarrow v. Mason, 6 East, 21; 1 Sm. L.C. 693 (ed. 11); Kendall v. Marshall, Stevens & Co., 11 Q.B.D. 356; 52 L.J. Q.B. 313.

But when the goods have arrived at their destination, and have been delivered to the purchaser or his agent, or when the carrier holds them as warehouseman for the purchaser, and no longer as carrier only, the transit is at an end. The destination may be fixed by the contract of sale, or by directions given by the purchaser to the vendor. But, however fixed, the goods have arrived at their destination, and the transitus is at an end, when they have got into the hands of someone who holds them for the purchaser or for some other purpose than that of merely carrying them to the destination fixed by the contract or by the directions given by the purchaser to the vendor. The difficulty in each case lies in applying these principles (d).

Duration of transit—Carriers and forwarding agents.—"Goods are deemed to be in course of transit from the time when they are delivered to a carrier by land or water, or other bailee, for the purpose of transmission to the buyer, until the buyer, or his agent in that behalf, takes delivery of them from such carrier or other bailee" (e).

Goods delivered to a carrier to be conveyed from a vendor to a purchaser are held to be in transitu, although they may have been consigned to a carrier specially appointed by the purchaser to receive them (f), or may be under the charge of a general forwarding agent of the purchaser (g), or in the hands of a packer (h), or wharfinger (i), or innkeeper (k), or any other middleman forming a mere link in the chain of communication from the vendor to the purchaser, and they remain in transitu until they have reached the hands of the purchaser, or of one who is his agent, as a warehouseman, or a packer (l), or a shipping agent, to give them a new destination (m), or have been actually delivered to the purchaser or his agent for custody, and not a mere intermediary (n), although the goods may have been shipped and the prior carriage and wharfage dues paid by the general shipping agent of the purchaser (o).

The transitus is not determined merely by the arrival of the goods at the place of destination, but is deemed to continue

(d) Per Cave, J., in Bethell v. Clark, 19 Q.B.D. 553, 561; affirmed, 20 Q.B.D. 615; 57 L.J. Q.B. 302.

(e) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 45 (1).

(f) Rosevear Clay Co., Ex parte, 11 Ch.D. 560; 40 L.J. Bankr. 100.

(g) Nicholls v. Le Feuvre, 2 Bing. N.C. 81; 4 L.J. C.P. 281.

(h) Scott v. Pettit, 3 Bos. & P. 469.

(i) Jackson v. Nichol, 5 Bing. N.C. 508; 8 L.J. C.P. 294.

(k) Hunter v. Beale, 3 T.R. 466.

(l) Leeds v. Wright, 3 Bos. & P. 320.

(m) Dixon v. Baldwen, 5 East, 175; Allan v. Gripper, 2 Cr. & J. 218; 1 L.J. Ex. 71; Dodson v. Wentworth, 4 M. & Gr. 1080; 12 L.J. C.P. 59; Coates v. Railton, 6 B. & C. 422; 5 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 209; Bolton v. Lancashire and Yorkshire Ry., L.R. 1 C.P. 431; 35 L.J. C.P. 137; Rosevear Clay Co., Ex parte, supra.

(n) James v. Griffin, 2 M. & W. 623; 6 L.J. Ex. 241; Rosevear Clay Co., Ex parte, supra.

(o) Nicholls v. Le Feuvre, supra.

until they have come into the actual or constructive possession of the purchaser (p). If, therefore, they are in the hands of custom-house officers at the port of destination, or are placed in quarantine, the transitus is not determined, and the right of stoppage is not taken away (q). If the goods are not addressed directly to the purchaser, but to the vendor's own agent at the place of destination, accompanied by an order directing him to deliver them to the purchaser, the goods continue in the constructive possession of the vendor until they have been actually handed over to the purchaser, or until the vendor's agent has attorned to the latter and agreed to hold the goods on his account and subject to his orders as previously mentioned. But goods are not in transitu when they are journeying in the purchaser's own cart or carriage under the custody or care of his own servant or agent.

"If the buyer or his agent in that behalf obtains delivery of the goods before their arrival at the appointed destination, the transit is at an end" (r).

"If, after the arrival of the goods at the appointed destination, the carrier or other bailee acknowledges to the buyer, or his agent, that he holds the goods on his behalf and continues in possession of them as bailee for the buyer, or his agent, the transit is at an end, and it is immaterial that a further destination for the goods may have been indicated by the buyer" (s).

So long as the carrier holds the goods as a mere instrument of conveyance, or in the character of a forwarding agent, the transitus continues, and the unpaid vendor has a right to stop them; but, if the carrier enters expressly, or by implication, into a new agreement with the purchaser, distinct from the original contract for carriage, to hold the goods for the purchaser as his agent, not for the purpose of expediting them to the place of original destination pursuant to that contract, but in a new character for the purpose of custody on his account, and subject to some new or further order to be given by him, the transitus is at an end, and the goods are constructively in the possession of the purchaser, and cannot be re-taken by the vendor (t). But the assent of the carrier to hold the goods as an agent for custody on behalf of the purchaser must be

(p) Whitehead v. Anderson, 9 M. & W. 518; 11 L.J. Ex. 157; Coventry v. Gladstone, L.R. 6 Eq. 44; 37 L.J. Ch. 492.

(q) Northey v. Field, 2 Esp. 613; Holst v. Pownal, 1 Esp. 240.

(r) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 45 (2); Whitehead v. Anderson 9 M & W. 518; 11 L.J. Ex. 157; Ellis v. Hunt, 3 T.R. 464.

(s) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 45 (3).

(t) Slubey v. Heyward, 2 H.Bl. 504; Hammond v. Anderson, 1 Bos. & P. N.R. 69; Whitehead v. Anderson, 9 M. & W. 518; 11 L.J. Ex. 157; Cooper, Ex parte, 11 Ch.D. 68; 48 L.J. Bankr. 49.

clearly established in order to put an end to the transitus and deprive the vendor of his right to stop the goods. A mere promise by the carrier to deliver the goods to the purchaser as soon as they can be got at is not enough to bring them into the possession, actual or constructive, of the purchaser (u). If the purchaser, having no warehouse of his own, is in the habit of using the warehouse of his wharfinger, or carrier, or packer, as his own, and of making it the repository of his goods until he has sold them or shipped them for exportation, the transitus is at an end, and the delivery is complete, when the goods arrive at the warehouse and customary place of deposit; although they may immediately afterwards have received a fresh destination by command of the purchaser (x).

Goods in the hands of the purchaser's agents for custody, on the other hand, are not in transitu, but are in the actual possession of the purchaser, and cannot be re-taken by the unpaid vendor. An agent for custody, as distinguished from a forwarding agent, is a person who has received goods by the direction and authority of the purchaser as a depositary or bailee invested with authority to receive goods and sell them for the purchaser, or to hold them generally on account of the latter at his disposal, and not for the purpose of helping the goods on a stage further in a direct course of transmission to him. The delivery to such agent is a delivery to the principal, and the transitus, consequently, is determined as soon as the goods reach his hands; and, if the transit be once at an end, it cannot commence de novo, merely because the goods are again sent upon their travels towards a new destination (y). Where goods, ordered by a purchaser for the Valparaiso market, were forwarded by railway to the shipping agents of the purchaser at Liverpool, and were put on board a vessel bound for Valparaiso, but were afterwards re-landed by order of an agent of the purchaser to be re-packed, it was held that the transitus was determined, and that the goods had come into the actual possession of the purchaser (z).

"If the goods are rejected by the buyer, and the carrier or other bailee continues in possession of them, the transit is not

(u) Coventry v. Gladstone, L.R. 6 Eq. 44; 37 L.J. Ch. 492.

(x) Scott v. Pettit, 3 Bos. & P. 469; Allan v. Gripper, 2 Cr. & J. 218; 1 L.J. Ex. 71; Foster v. Frampton, 6 B. & C. 107; 5 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 71; Dodson v. Wentworth, 4 M. & Gr. 1080; 12 L.J. C.P. 59; Lickbarrow v. Mason, 1 Sm. L.C. 693 (ed. 11).

(y) Dixon v. Baldwen, 5 East, 175; Leeds v. Wright, 3 Bos. & P. 300; Kendall v. Marshall, Stevens & Co., 11 Q.B.D. 356; 52 L.J. Q.B. 313; Miles, Ex parte, Isaacs, In re, 15 Q.B.D. 39; 54 L.J. Q.B. 566.

(z) Valpy v. Gibson, 4 C.B. 837; 16 L.J. C.P. 241; for instance where transit held not to be ended, see Watson, Ex parte, 5 Ch.D. 35; 46 L.J. Bankr. 97.

deemed to be at an end, even if the seller has refused to receive them back "(a). The purchaser or consignee may prolong the right to stop in transitu by not taking possession of the goods on their arrival at the place of destination. Thus, although the goods may have been landed and warehoused at a place commonly used by the purchaser as a place of deposit, yet, if the latter, finding himself to be in failing circumstances, has previously declared it to be his intention not to accept the goods, and not to take possession of them as owner, there has been no actual delivery, and the unpaid vendor's right of recovering possession has not been destroyed (b). On the 27th October goods were delivered by the vendor in London for shipment to Falmouth, and an invoice sent to the purchaser. At Falmouth they were taken to the warehouse of an agent of the Steam Packet Company, who was in the habit of holding goods from steamers at the risk and to the order of the purchasers and giving notice to them. Before the goods were landed the purchaser committed an act of bankruptcy by absconding, and so no notice was given to him, and on November 4th he was adjudicated bankrupt. On that day the vendor stopped the goods in the warehouse. It was held that the transitus was not at an end (c).

Duration of transit—Delivery on buyer's ship.—"When goods are delivered to a ship chartered by the buyer it is a question depending on the circumstances of the particular case, whether they are in the possession of the master as a carrier, or as agent to the buyer" (d). If the purchaser charters and despatches a vessel to a distant port to receive the goods, and they are put on board, the fact of their being in transitu will depend upon the character in which the master or commander receives them. If the charter-party amounts, as it generally does, merely to a contract for the carriage of merchandise, the captain having the general control of the vessel, and continuing the servant of the shipowners, the goods will be received by him in the character of a carrier and will be in transitu (e). But, if the charter-party amounts to a demise or bailment of the ship, the charterer becoming the temporary owner, and the master or commander his servant or agent, the delivery of the

(a) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 45 (4).

(b) James v. Griffin, 2 M. & W. 623; 6 L.J. Ex. 241; Bolton v. Lancashire and Yorkshire Ry., L.R. 1 C.P. 431; 35 L.J. C.P. 137; see also Nicholson v. Bower, 1 E. & E. 172; 28 L.J. Q.B. 97; Heinekey v. Earle, 8 E. & B. 410; 28 L.J. Q.B. 79.

(c) Barrow, Ex parte, 6 Ch.D. 783; 46 L.J. Bankr. 71.

(d) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 45 (5).

(e) Bothlingk v. Inglis, 3 East, 381; Watson, Ex parte, 5 Ch.D. 35; 46 L.J. Bankr. 97; Rodger v. Comptoir d'Escompte de Paris, L.R. 2 P.C. 393; 40 L.J. P.C. 1.

goods on board will be a delivery to the charterer or purchaser, and the possession of the master his possession, and the vendor will have no right to re-take them (f), unless the goods are shipped under a bill of lading reserving to the vendor the control over them (g). A delivery on board the purchaser's own ship and to his own master is not inconsistent with the vendor's annexing terms to the delivery by bill of lading, which may enable him to retain a right to claim the goods, and prevent delivery if the terms are not complied with (h). Where goods shipped on board a vessel were to be delivered to the purchaser "in the port of London," and the vessel arrived at her moorings in the river Thames, and the goods were put into the lighters of a wharfinger employed and paid by the purchaser, it was held that the transitus was not determined (i). Neither is the transitus determined by the actual arrival of the goods in boats or lighters alongside the purchaser's wharf, if the boats and lighters are used merely as the vehicle of conveyance, and not as places of deposit and ultimate reception (k). Where the carrier or other bailee wrongfully refuses to deliver the goods to the buyer, or his agent in that behalf, the transit is deemed to be at an end (l). Where part delivery of the goods has been made to the buyer, or his agent in that behalf, the remainder of the goods may be stopped in transitu, unless such part delivery has been made under such circumstances as to show an agreement to give up possession of the whole of the goods (m). Where twenty mats of flax were sold by a merchant of Hull to a manufacturer near Leeds, and were forwarded by railway to Leeds, and arrived at the carriers' shed at the railway terminus at Leeds, and it was the custom of the carriers to give notice to the manufacturer of the arrival of goods consigned to him, and for the latter to send waggons to convey them to his mills to be manufactured; and, on the arrival of the flax, notice was given to the manufacturer by letter that, unless the goods were sent for, they would remain at warehouse rent; and the manufacturer sent his cart, and took away ten of the mats, but, before the others were removed, he became bankrupt; it was held that the goods had arrived at the place of destination,

(f) Hunter v. McTaggart, cited 3 East, 388; Schotsmans v. Lancashire and Yorkshire Ry., L.R. 2 Ch. 332; 35 L.J. Ch. 100.

(g) Van Casteel v. Booker, 2 Exch. 691; 18 L.J. Ex. 9; Turner v. Liverpool Docks Trustees, 6 Exch. 543; 20 L.J. Ex. 393; Berndtson v. Strang, L.R. 4 Eq. 481; 36 L.J. Ch. 879.

(h) Ogle v. Atkinson, 5 Taunt. 759; Moakes v. Nicholson, 19 C.B. N.S. 290; 34 L.J. C.P. 273.

(i) Jackson v. Nichol, 5 Bing. N.C. 508; 8 L.J. C.P. 294.

(k) Tucker v. Humphrey, 4 Bing. 516; 6 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 92.

(l) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 45 (6).

(m) Ib., s. 45 (7).

and had come into the constructive possession of the vendee, and that the transitus consequently was at an end (n).

It seems that the delivery of an essential part of a machine would operate as a delivery of the whole, so as to bar the right of stoppage in transitu (o).

The vendor's right to stop in transitu cannot be defeated by any claim of lien on the part of a carrier, wharfinger or any other middleman, to secure payment of a general balance due to such middleman from the consignee (p), nor by a foreign attachment laid upon the goods by a creditor (q). While a carrier retains his lien, there is no such delivery to the consignee as to take away the consignor's right to stop in transitu (r).

Mode of stopping in transitu.—"The unpaid seller may exercise his right of stoppage in transitu either by taking actual possession of the goods, or by giving notice of his claim to the carrier or other bailee in whose possession the goods are. Such notice may be given either to the person in actual possession of the goods or to his principal. In the latter case the notice, to be effectual, must be given at such time and under such circumstances that the principal, by the exercise of reasonable diligence, may communicate it to his servant or agent in time to prevent a delivery to the buyer" (s). "When notice of stoppage in transitu is given by the seller to the carrier, or other bailee in possession of the goods, he must re-deliver the goods to, or according to the directions of, the seller. The expenses of such re-delivery must be borne by the seller" (t). The old rule of law, that a stoppage in transitu could be effected only by the corporeal touch of the goods, no longer prevails (u). A notice to a carrier having charge of the goods is sufficient. The stoppage may be effected either by the unpaid seller himself or his authorised agent; but not by a person who has no authority from the seller to stop the goods; and a subsequent ratification by the seller of an unauthorised stoppage is not equivalent to a precedent authority (x).

Re-sale by buyer—Rights of sub-purchasers.—"Subject to (n) Wentworth v. Outhwaite, 10 M. & W. 436; 12 L.J. Ex. 172; see Dixon v. Yates, 5 B. & Ad. 313; 2 L.J. K.B. 198; Jones v. Jones, 8 M. & W. 431; 10 L.J. Ex. 481; Cooper, Ex parte, 11 Ch.D. 68; 48 L.J. Bankr. 49; Kemp v. Falk, 7 App.Cas. 573; 52 L.J. Ch. 167.

(o) Cooper, Ex parte, 11 Ch.D. 68; 48 L.J. Bankr. 49.

(p) Oppenheim v. Russell, 3 Bos. & P. 42; Richardson v. Goss, ib. 119.

(q) Salte v. Field, 5 T.R. 211.

(r) Crawshay v. Eades, 1 B. & C. 181; 1 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 90.

(s) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 46 (1); Whitehead v. Anderson, 9 M. & W. 518; 11 L.J. Ex. 157.

(t) Sect. 46 (2).

(u) Dixon v. Baldwen, 5 East, 175; Litt v. Cowley, 7 Taunt. 169; 2 Marsh. 457; Hutchings v. Nunes, 1 Moo. P.C. N.S. 243.

(x) Bird v. Brown, 4 Ex. 786; 19 L.J. Ex. 154; Hutchings v. Nunes, 1 Moo. P.C. N.S. 243.

the provisions of this Act, the unpaid seller's right of lien or stoppage in transitu is not affected by any sale, or other disposition of the goods which the buyer may have made, unless the seller has assented thereto. Provided that where a document of title to goods(y) has been lawfully transferred to any person as buyer or owner of the goods, and that person transfers the document to a person who takes the document in good faith and for valuable consideration, then, if such last-mentioned transfer was by way of sale the unpaid seller's right of lien or stoppage in transitu is defeated, and if such last-mentioned transfer was by way of pledge or other disposition for value, the unpaid seller's right of lien or stoppage in transitu can only be exercised subject to the rights of the transferee" (z). Under this section a mere assent by the unpaid seller of unascertained goods to the fact of a sale or other disposition thereof by the buyer will not deprive such unpaid seller of his right of lien(a).

If the purchaser re-sells the goods whilst they are in transitu, and receives the price, and then becomes insolvent, the first vendor may stop the goods at any time before they have come into the possession of such second purchaser, and hold them as a security for the due payment of the original purchase-money, unless the second purchaser claims as the bonâ fide indorsee and holder of a bill of lading. As between a vendor and his immediate vendee, a bill of lading may be countermanded, in case of the insolvency of the latter, at any time before it has been actually executed, like any other order or direction to a common carrier. But, as between a first vendor and bonâ fide sub-purchasers, the case is different. The first vendor by indorsing and delivering a bill of lading to his immediate purchaser, accredits the title of the latter to the goods, and holds him out to the mercantile world as the owner of them; and the bonâ fide indorsement and delivery by such purchaser of such bill of lading to a second purchaser deprive the first vendor of all power and control over the goods, and destroy his right to stop in transitu as against the latter (b). If the assignee of the bill of lading, however, has given no consideration for the indorsement of such bill of lading, or if he knew of the insolvency of his

(y) "Document of title to goods" has the same meaning as it has in the Factors Acts; and "Factors Acts" mean the Factors Act, 1889, and any enactment amending or substituted for the same: sect. 62.

(z) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 47.

(a) Mordaunt Bros. v. British Oil and Cake Mills, Ltd., (1910) 2 K.B. 502; 79 L.J. K.B. 967.

(b) Lickbarrow v. Mason, 6 East, 20 (a); 1 H.Bl. 357; 1 Sm. L.C. 693 (ed. 11); Gurney v. Behrend, 23 L.J. Q.B. 265; 3 E. & B. 622; Slubey v. Heyward, 2 H.Bl. 504; Hibbert v. Carter, 1 T.R. 745; Westzinthus, In re, 5 B. & Ad. 817; 3 L.J. K.B. 56; The Argentina, L.R. 1 A. & E. 370; Pease v. Gloahec, The Marie Joseph, L.R. 1 P.C. 219; 35 L.J. P.C. 66.

vendor at the time he took the bill, he will be in no better situation than the latter (c). It was held that a pre-existing debt was not such a consideration for the indorsement of a bill of lading as to defeat the right of the unpaid vendor to stop in transitu (d). But this has been dissented from, and it has been held that it is immaterial that the consideration was past and not given at the time when the bill of lading was transferred (e). A pledge of the bill of lading does not destroy the consignor's right of stoppage in transitu altogether; and he will be entitled to the surplus goods after satisfying the charge of the pledgee (f); nor does the fact of the bill of lading being made out in the name of a sub-purchaser defeat this right (g).

Effect on sale of lien or stoppage in transitu.—"Subject to the provisions of this section"—that is, sect. 48—"a contract of sale is not rescinded by the mere exercise by an unpaid seller of his right of lien or stoppage in transitu (h). Where an unpaid seller who has exercised his right of lien or stoppage in transitu re-sells the goods, the buyer acquires a good title thereto as against the original buyer" (i). It seems to be now established after considerable discussion that stoppage in transitu does not operate as a rescission of the contract of sale (k), but merely as a re-imposition of the unpaid vendor's lien. Consequently if a specific ascertained chattel has been sold, so that the right of property has passed to the purchaser, the exercise of the right of stoppage in transitu will not at once have the effect of re-vesting the right of property in the vendor (l).

Stoppage of part of goods sold under one entire contract of sale does not have the effect of re-vesting in the vendor that portion of them which has been actually delivered to the bankrupt purchaser. "What the effect of stoppage in transitu is," observed the Court of Exchequer, "whether entirely to rescind the contract, or only to replace the vendor in the same position as if he had not parted with the possession, and entitle him to hold the goods until the price be paid down, is a point not yet finally decided, and there are difficulties attending each construction. If the latter supposition be adopted (as most of us are strongly inclined to think it ought to be, on the weight

(c) Waring v. Cox, 1 Campb. 369; Cuming v. Brown, 9 East, 514.

(d) Rodger v. Comptoir d'Escompte de Paris, L.R. 2 P.C. 393; 38 L.J. P.C. 30.

(e) Leask v. Scott, 2 Q.B.D. 376; 46 L.J. Q.B. 576.

(f) Spalding v. Ruding, 12 L.J. Ch. 503; 6 Beav. 376; Westzinthus, In re, 5 B. & Ad. 817; 3 L.J. K.B. 56; Kemp v. Falk, 7 App.Cas. 573; 52 L.J. Ch. 167.

(g) Golding, Davis & Co., Ex parte, 13 Ch.D. 628.

(h) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 48 (1).

(i) Sect. 48 (2).

(k) Wentworth v. Outhwaite, 10 M. & W. 452; 12 L.J. Ex. 172; per Lord Blackburn in Kemp v. Falk, 7 App.Cas. 573, 581; 52 L.J. Ch. 167.

(l) Martindale v. Smith, 1 Q.B. 389; 10 L.J. Q.B. 155.

of authority), the vendor is entitled to retain the part actually stopped in transitu until he is paid the price of the whole, but has no right to re-take that which has arrived at its journey's end. His right of lien on the part stopped is re-vested, but no more" (m). If the sale is a sale of things of quantity generally, and the vendor will fulfil his contract by delivering any articles of the character and description mentioned in the contract, the vendor may, after he has recovered possession of the goods by the exercise of the right of stoppage, re-sell them (n); but he may be obliged to furnish other goods of a similar character and description to those originally bargained for, on tender of the price by the assignees.

When vendor may re-sell.—"Where the goods are of a perishable nature, or where the unpaid seller gives notice to the buyer of his intention to re-sell, and the buyer does not within a reasonable time pay or tender the price, the unpaid seller may re-sell the goods and recover from the original buyer damages for any loss occasioned by his breach of contract" (o). If ascertained chattels have been bargained and sold, and the right of property has passed to the purchaser, the vendor cannot rescind the contract and re-vest the right of property in himself, and re-sell the goods, by reason of the neglect of the vendee to take and pay for the goods at the time appointed (p); but, if the purchaser continues in default, and will not perform his part of the contract under such circumstances that his refusal amounts to a repudiation of his obligation, the vendor may rescind the contract and re-sell the goods within a reasonable period after he has given the purchaser express notice of his intention so to do. A mere notice to remove the goods and pay the price will not justify the vendor in re-selling (q); but, if the latter gives to the purchaser a distinct intimation of his intention to re-sell in case of the non-removal and non-payment of the goods within a reasonable period from the receipt of the notice, and the purchaser then refuses to pay for the goods, he may fairly be deemed either to have himself repudiated the contract, or to be an assenting party to the sale, or to have given the vendor an implied authority to re-sell (r). "Where the

(m) Wentworth v. Outhwaite, 10 M. & W. 451; 12 L.J. Ex. 172; Tanner v. Scovell, 14 M. & W. 28; 14 L.J. Ex. 321; Valpy v. Oakeley, 16 Q.B. 941; 20 L.J. Q.B. 380; Chalmers, Ex parte, L.R. 8 Ch. 289; 42 L.J. Bankr. 37; Cooper, Ex parte, 11 Ch.D. 68; 48 L.J. Bankr. 49.

(n) Clay v. Harrison, 10 B. & C. 99; 8 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 90.

(o) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 48 (3).

(p) Martindale v. Smith, 1 Q.B. 389; 10 L.J. Q.B. 155; Wilmshurst v. Bowker, 7 M. & Gr. 882; 12 L.J. C.P. 475; Key v. Cotesworth, 7 Exch. 607; 22 L.J. Ex. 4; Page v. Cowasjee, L.R. 1 P.C. 127.

(q) Greaves v. Ashlin, 3 Campb. 426.

(r) Maclean v. Dunn, 4 Bing. 722; 6 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 184; Langfort v. Tiler, seller expressly reserves a right of re-sale in case the buyer should make default, and on the buyer making default, re-sells the goods, the original contract of sale is thereby rescinded, but without prejudice to any claim the seller may have for damages" (s).

Actions for breach of the contract—Remedies of seller—Action for price.—"Where, under a contract of sale, the property in the goods has passed to the buyer, and the buyer wrongfully neglects or refuses to pay for the goods according to the terms of the contract, the seller may maintain an action against him for the price of the goods" (t). "Where, under a contract of sale, the price is payable on a day certain irrespective of delivery, and the buyer wrongfully neglects or refuses to pay such price, the seller may maintain an action for the price, although the property in the goods has not passed, and the goods have not been appropriated to the contract" (u).

The price of goods was formerly recoverable under one of two counts—namely, (1) goods bargained and sold, and (2) goods sold and delivered. The former count was applicable where upon the sale of goods the property had passed to the purchaser and the contract had been completed in all respects except delivery, and delivery was not part of the consideration for the price or a condition precedent to its recovery (x). The count for goods sold and delivered was applicable where upon the sale of goods the property had passed and the goods had been delivered to the purchaser and the price was payable at the time of action brought (y). The old forms of action have been abolished, and with them has departed much of the clearness of thought which evolved them and which they maintained. But even now for a clear understanding of the older cases it is advisable to study the different forms of action. The price is recoverable as soon as, but not before, the property has passed (z).

Non-payment of price—Goods bargained and sold.—If goods are sold subject to a condition that, if the purchase-money be not paid by a particular day, they may be re-sold by the vendor, and the loss on the re-sale recovered from the purchaser making default, and the right of re-sale is exercised, or if the purchaser has refused to take and pay for the goods, and the goods have been re-sold by the vendor, the vendor cannot, after such re-sale,

1 Salk. 113; Withers v. Reynolds, 2 B. & Ad. 882; 1 L.J. K.B. 30.

(s) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 48 (4).

(t) Sect. 49 (1).

(u) Sect. 49 (2).

(x) Bullen & Leake's Prec. p. 39 (ed. 1868).

(y) Ib., p. 39.

(z) Atkinson v. Bell, 8 B. & C. 277; 6 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 258; Simmons v. Swift, 5 B. & C. 857; 5 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 10; Turley v. Bates, 5 H. & C. 200; sub nom. Furley v. Bates, 33 L.J. Ex. 43.

recover the price of the goods, but only the damage he has sustained by reason of the non-payment of the price (a). If the price to be paid for the goods is to be fixed by the valuation or award of a third party to be named by the purchaser, and the latter refuses to name or appoint such valuer, it was doubtful whether the vendor could sue for the price, or must bring an action against the purchaser for refusing to make the nomination or appointment (b). Everything that is to be done on the part of the vendor to complete the sale, and transfer the ownership of the thing sold to the purchaser, and place it at his disposal, so far at least as to enable the latter to obtain possession of it, and deal with it as he may think fit, on payment or tender of the price, must be performed before an action for the price can be maintained (c). When the right of property in the subject-matter of the sale has passed by the bargain to the purchaser, the latter is not released from his obligation to pay the price, by reason of the vendor's neglect to deliver the goods at the time appointed for delivery, unless the time for delivery is of the essence of the contract, and it appears to have been the intention of the parties that the sale should be at an end in case of non-delivery on the day appointed. If the sale is a sale of an ascertained share of a particular chattel, such as a share of a coach or a horse, or a share of a butt of wine, or a cistern of oil, or a cargo of corn, sold as an undivided quantity at an ascertained price, the sale is complete, and the vendor is entitled to the price as soon as he has transferred his share and interest by a properly authenticated contract. In sales of this kind the vendor only undertakes to sell and transfer the share, and to convey to the purchaser the same right to the undivided quantity that he himself possessed. He does not engage to put the purchaser into possession of the coach, or the horse, or to divide the wine, or measure off the oil or the corn, and put the purchaser into separate possession of the share.

Goods sold and delivered.—An action for the price of goods sold and delivered could not be brought before delivery (d). When goods and chattels have been actually delivered to and received by a third party under circumstances fairly giving rise to a presumption that they were bought and sold, a jury may

(a) Lamond v. Davall, 9 Q.B. 1030; 16 L.J. Q.B. 136; Hore v. Milner, 1 Peake, 58; Hagedorn v. Laing, 6 Taunt. 162; Maclean v. Dunn, 4 Bing. 722; 6 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 184; Clarke v. Westrope, 18 C.B. 765; 25 L.J. C.P. 287; Keys v. Harwood, 2 C.B. 905; 15 L.J. C.P. 207; Bartholomew v. Markwick, 15 C.B. N.S. 711; 33 L.J. C.P. 145.

(b) Thurnell v. Balbirnie, 2 M. & W. 786; 6 L.J. Ex. 255.

(c) Smith v. Chance, 2 B. & Ald. 753; Boswell v. Kilborn, 15 Moo. P.C. 309.

(d) Smith v. Chance, supra; Boulter v. Arnott, 1 Cr. & M. 333; 2 L.J. Ex. 97.

infer the existence of a contract of sale between the parties, although not one word was said about buying and selling, and no price was mentioned (e). When an Act of Parliament, for the purpose of protecting buyers, prescribes regulations to be followed in the sale and delivery, the vendor cannot, if he neglects to observe such regulations, recover the price (f). Where goods have been sold and delivered, but it is a condition that the goods should be capable of performing certain work, and the buyer prevents the possibility of the seller performing the condition, it must be taken to be performed, and the price is recoverable (g).

Goods sold on credit.—If goods are sold on credit, the vendor cannot sue for the price until the period of credit has expired (h), unless the giving of credit has been made conditional on the performance of some precedent act by the purchaser and the terms on which it was given have not been performed, in which case the sale is not in truth a sale on credit at all. If a bill not payable on demand is taken for the price, the sale is a sale on credit and no action can be brought until the bill is due (i). If the goods are sold upon the terms that the purchaser is to give his acceptance at two or more months for the price, and are then delivered to the purchaser, and the latter refuses to give his acceptance according to the contract, the vendor cannot forthwith bring an action for goods sold and delivered, but must either sue on the promise to give the acceptance, or wait the termination of the period during which the bill had to run (k). If, however, the goods are sold on the terms that the vendor is to have a bill at three months or cash, and the purchaser fails to give the bill, the vendor may at once sue for a fair and reasonable price in cash (l). Where, by the terms of a contract of sale, the purchaser was to pay part of the price in cash and the residue by bills, payable in succession every three months, and the purchaser omitted to pay the cash, and to give the bills, it was held that the vendor could not maintain an action for the price of the goods until the expiration of the period at which the last bill would become due, but must sue on the special contract for the non-payment of the money and (e) Ante, p. 454; Bennett v. Henderson, 2 Stark. 550; Coles v. Bulman, 6 C.B. 184; 17 L.J. C.P. 302; see also Hart v. Mills, 15 M. & W. 85; 15 L.J. Ex. 200.

(f) Cundell v. Dawson, 4 C.B. 378; 17 L.J. C.P. 311.

(g) Mackay v. Dick, 6 App.Cas. 251.

(h) Paul v. Dod, 2 C.B. 800; 15 L.J. C.P. 177; Strutt v. Smith, 1 Cr. M. & R. 312; 3 L.J. Ex. 357; Price v. Nixon, 5 Taunt. 338.

(i) Helps v. Winterbottom, 2 B. & Ad. 431; 9 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 258.

(k) Mussen v. Price, 4 East, 147; Dutton v. Solomonson, 3 Bos. & P. 582.

(l) Rugg v. Weir, 16 C.B. N.S. 477. And see ante, p. 555, Conditional Sale.

the non-delivery of the bills (m). But, where the defendant, when a portion of the goods has been delivered under the contract, repudiates the transaction and refuses to receive any more, the plaintiff has a right to treat the contract as rescinded, and to sue for the value of the goods which have been delivered (n). If the contract is entire for the delivery of an undivided quantity of goods at a certain price by a certain time, the vendor cannot, after delivering part of the goods, sue for the price of that part until the whole has been delivered (o); but, if he delivers part, and such part is retained and used by the purchaser after the time for the delivery of the whole has expired, the purchaser is bound, notwithstanding the non-performance of the contract by the vendor, to pay what the part retained and used by him may be reasonably worth (p). Where delivery is to be made in different parcels over a specified period, the purchaser may be bound to accept such parcels as arrive in time though subsequent parcels may arrive late (q).

Damages for non-acceptance.—"Where the buyer wrongfully neglects or refuses to accept and pay for the goods, the seller may maintain an action against him for damages for non-acceptance (r). The measure of damages is the estimated loss directly and naturally resulting, in the ordinary course of events, from the buyer's breach of contract (s). Where there is an available market for the goods in question the measure of damages is primâ facie to be ascertained by the difference between the contract price and the market or current price at the time or times when the goods ought to have been accepted, or, if no time was fixed for acceptance, then at the time of the refusal to accept" (t). If the right of property has not been divested out of the vendor, he cannot bring an action for the price of the goods; for he cannot have both the goods and the price; but he may sue the purchaser for his breach of contract in not accepting them, in which case the measure of damages will be the difference between the agreed price and the marketable value of the goods at the time they were refused acceptance by the purchaser, in addition to the costs, charges, and expenses necessarily incurred by the vendor in fulfilling his part of the contract. But the vendor is not bound to wait until the time

(m) Paul v. Dod, 2 C.B. 800; 15 L.J. C.P. 177.

(n) Bartholomew v. Markwick, 15 C.B. N.S. 711; 33 L.J. C.P. 145; Lee v. Risdon, 7 Taunt. 189. See further Jackson v. Rotax Motor Co., (1910) 1 K.B. 937; 80 L.T. K.B. 38.

(o) Reuter v. Sala, 4 C.P.D. 239; 48 L.J. C.P. 492.

(p) Oxendale v. Wetherell, 9 B. & C. 386; 7 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 264.

(q) Brandt v. Lawrence, 1 Q.B.D. 344; 46 L.J. Q.B. 237.

(r) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 50 (1).

(s) Sect. 50 (2).

(t) Sect. 50 (3).

comes for acceptance. He may treat an unqualified refusal by the purchaser to accept as a repudiation once for all of the contract and sue immediately. The measure of damages is the same in either case; but in the latter the jury have to surmise, instead of merely computing the difference between the contract price and the market price at the date or dates when the goods ought to be accepted(u). If the market price of the article has declined after the making of the contract, and the purchaser gives notice to the vendor that he will not accept, the proper measure of damages is not the difference between the contract price and the market price on the day the notice was given, but at the time when the contract ought to have been fulfilled by the acceptance of the goods, if it had been carried into effect as originally intended (x). If the goods have been re-sold by the vendor within a reasonable time after the breach of contract by the purchaser, the measure of damages will be the difference between the price agreed to be given and the price realised on the re-sale, with the costs and expenses of the re-sale; but, if the re-sale has been unreasonably delayed until the market has fallen, the price realised on such re-sale will not afford a true criterion of the damage (y).

Remedies of the buyer—Damages for non-delivery.—"Where the seller wrongfully neglects or refuses to deliver the goods to the buyer, the buyer may maintain an action against the seller for damages for non-delivery" (z).

"The measure of damages is the estimated loss directly and naturally resulting, in the ordinary course of events, from the seller's breach of contract" (a).

"Where there is an available market for the goods in question the measure of damages is primâ facie to be ascertained by the difference between the contract price and the market or current price of the goods at the time or times when they ought to have been delivered, or, if no time was fixed, then at the time of the refusal to deliver" (b).

Where the defendant did not deliver a quantity of iron in three equal proportions as agreed, it was held that the true

(u) Cort v. Ambergate Ry., 17 Q.B. 127; 20 L.J. Q.B. 460; Hochster v. De la Tour, 2 E. & B. 687; 22 L.J. Q.B. 455; Frost v. Knight, L.R. 2 Ex. 111; 41 L.J. Ex. 78; Roper v. Johnson, L.R. 8 C.P. 167; 42 L.J. C.P. 65.

(x) Philpotts v. Evans, 5 M. & W. 475; 9 L.J. Ex. 33; Boorman v. Nash, 9 B. & C. 145; 7 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 150; Startup v. Cortazzi, 2 Cr. M. & R. 165; 4 L.J. Ex. 218.

(y) Stewart v. Cauty, 8 M. & W. 160; 10 L.J. Ex. 348; Pott v. Flather, 16 L.J. Q.B. 366.

(z) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 51 (1).

(a) Sect. 51 (2). See Hadley v. Baxendale, 9 Ex. 341; 23 L.J. Ex. 179.

(b) Sect. 51 (3); Barrow v. Arnaud, 8 Q.B. 595, 609; Gainsford v. Carroll, 2 B. & C. 624; 2 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 112; Peterson v. Ayre, 13 C.B. 353; Josling v. Irvine, 6 H. & N. 512; 30 L.J. Ex. 78.

measure of damages, in the absence of proof by the defendant that the plaintiff might have mitigated the loss, was the sum of the differences between the contract and market prices of each third of the quantity on the respective dates at which they ought to have been delivered (c). But the plaintiff cannot by keeping the goods increase the damages. Thus where the plaintiff, as trustee of L., sued the defendant for damages arising from the defendant having sold to L. rupee paper upon a false representation, and L. sold the rupee paper some time after at a great loss, it was held that the true measure of damages was not this loss, but was the difference between the price paid and the price in the market on the same day on which he bought from the defendant (d). Where, after breach of a written agreement to deliver goods, the buyer, at the seller's request, waited several months before buying goods in the place of those contracted for, it was held that the true measure of damages was the difference between the contract price and the price of the substituted goods though this price was greater than that of such goods when the contract was first broken (e). If there is no market for the article contracted for, the measure of damages is the value of it at the time of the breach, and if the plaintiff does the best he can, and buys the nearest in price and quality that he can get, he is entitled to recover the difference in the price (f). If the goods are ordered in England by a merchant abroad, for the purpose of being exported and re-sold in a foreign market, and the order is accepted, and the vendor, knowing that the goods are required for a foreign market, undertakes to forward the goods but neglects so to do, the measure of damages is not the difference between the agreed price and the marketable value of the goods in England, but between the price and the marketable value of the goods at the place where they would have been re-sold by the purchaser (g). The purchaser cannot recover as special damage the loss of anticipated profits in the home market; nor, if he has contracted to re-sell the goods at a profit, can he recover such profit (h), unless the loss of such

(c) Brown v. Muller, L.R. 7 Ex. 319; 41 L.J. Ex. 214; Roper v. Johnson, L.R. 8 C.P. 167; 42 L.J. C.P. 165. See also Tyers v. Rosedale Iron Co., L.R. 10 Ex. 195; 44 L.J. Ex. 130.

(d) Waddell v. Blockey, 4 Q.B.D. 678; 48 L.J. Ex. 517.

(e) Ogle v. Vane (Earl), L.R. 3 Q.B. 272; 37 L.J. Q.B. 77.

(f) Hinde v. Liddell, L.R. 10 Q.B. 265; 44 L.J. Q.B. 105.

(g) Bridge v. Wain, 1 Stark. 504; O'Hanlan v. G. W. Ry., 6 B. & S. 484; 34 L.J. Q.B. 154; Borries v. Hutchinson, 18 C.B. N.S. 445; 34 L.J. C.P. 169. But see as to this case Elbinger v. Armstrong, L.R. 9 Q.B. 473; 43 L.J. Q.B. 211; Grebert Borgnis v. Nugent, 15 Q.B.D. 55; 54 L.J. Q.B. 511.

(h) Williams v. Reynolds, 6 B. & S. 495; 34 L.J. Q.B. 221, qualifying and restricting Dunlop v. Higgins, 1 H.L. Cas. 403, and overruling Waters v. Towers, 8 Exch. 401; 22 L.J. Ex. 186. See also Thol v. Henderson, 8 Q.B.D. 457; Mayne on Damages, 62 (ed. 6).

profits was or might reasonably have been contemplated by the vendor as naturally flowing from his breach.

If the vendor has a month, or any specific period of time, allowed to him for making the delivery, and finds, before the time has elapsed, that he will be unable to complete the delivery, and gives notice to the purchaser that he refuses to proceed therewith, and the price rises, the measure of damages is the difference between the contract price and the higher price of the subject-matter on the last day of the period within which the delivery ought to have been made (i). If the vendor of shares neglects to deliver the shares or complete the transfer, the measure of damages is the difference between the price agreed to be paid and the market price on the day on which the sale should have been perfected; and the purchaser is not entitled to damages in respect of a further advance of price taking place afterwards (k). But when the vendor holds in his hands the money of the purchaser, and thereby prevents him from using it, and from buying other shares therewith, or wrongfully sells the shares, the proper measure of damages would seem to be the highest price for which the same number of shares might be purchased in the market, either on the day the contract was broken, or at any time between that day and the day of trial, if the action has been brought without any unreasonable or improper delay (l). When the action is not brought upon the special contract, but for the recovery of the purchase-money, as money had and received, on the ground of a total failure of the consideration for the payment, the whole purchase-money is recoverable (ante, p. 136).

Specific performance.—"In any action for breach of contract to deliver specific (m) or ascertained goods the court may, if it thinks fit, on the application of the plaintiff, by its judgment direct that the contract shall be performed specifically, without giving the defendant the option of retaining the goods on payment of damages. The judgment may be unconditional, or upon such terms and conditions as to damages, payment of the price, and otherwise, as to the court may seem just, and the application by the plaintiff may be made at any time before judgment" (n).

Damages are in general as complete a remedy for the pur-

(i) Leigh v. Paterson, 8 Taunt. 540; Loder v. Kekulé, 3 C.B. N.S. 128; 27 L.J. C.P. 27.

(k) Tempest v. Kilner, 3 C.B. 253; 15 L.J. C.P. 10; Gainsford v. Carroll, 2 B. & C. 624; 2 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 112; Shaw v. Holland, 15 M. & W. 138; 15 L.J. Ex. 87.

(l) Owen v. Routh, 14 C.B. 337; 23 L.J. C.P. 105; Shaw v. Holland, supra; Michael v. Hart, (1902) 1 K.B. 482; 71 L.J. K.B. 265.

(m) "Specific goods" mean goods identified and agreed upon at the time a contract of sale is made: sect. 62.

(n) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 52.

chaser as the delivery of the goods contracted for, inasmuch as with the damages he may ordinarily purchase the same quantity of the like goods (o). But a contract for the sale of a specific chattel, such as a barge or a vessel, may be enforced in specie (p); and the court has an inherent power to order the delivery of a specific chattel having a "pretium affectionis," or a peculiar value resting on its individuality, such as "the Pusey Horn" (q), St. Margaret's silver tobacco-box (r), the silver altar-piece of the Duke of Somerset (s), the insignia and decorations of a lodge of freemasons (t), and old family pictures (u) and heirlooms (x), and none the less because the plaintiff's right to possession is founded on a contract of sale (y). A contract for the sale of 500 chests of tea is not a contract which can be specifically performed, because it does not relate to any chests of tea in particular; but a contract to sell certain chests of a particular kind of tea deposited in a particular locality may be enforced in specie; and the purchaser may obtain an injunction to prevent the seller from delivering it to any other person (z). Wherever the object of sale is such that there is an uncertainty whether the purchaser can procure another chattel of the same kind and value, or the possession of it is desirable for certain purposes which no other chattel of the same kind will answer, a specific performance will be decreed (a).

Remedy for breach of warranty.—"Where there is a breach of warranty (b) by the seller, or where the buyer elects, or is compelled, to treat any breach of a condition on the part of the seller as a breach of warranty, the buyer is not by reason only of such breach of warranty entitled to reject the goods; but he may (a) set up against the seller the breach of warranty in diminution or extinction of the price (c); or (b) maintain an action against the seller for damages for the breach of warranty (d).

"The measure of damages for breach of warranty is the (o) Story's Eq. Jur. § 717; Buxton v. Lister, 3 Atk. 383; Pooley v. Budd, 14 Beav. 34.

(p) Claringbould v. Curtis, 21 L.J. Ch. 541.

(q) Pusey v. Pusey, 1 Vern. 273. See ante, p. 292.

(r) Fells v. Read, 3 Ves. 70.

(s) Somerset (Duke) v. Cookson, 3 P. Wms. 389.

(t) Lloyd v. Loaring, 6 Ves. 773.

(u) Arundel (Lady) v. Phipps, 10 Ves. 139; Lowther v. Lowther, 13 Ves. 95.

(x) Macclesfield (Earl) v. Davis, 3 Ves. & B. 16.

(y) Arundel (Lady) v. Phipps, supra; Lowther v. Lowther, supra.

(z) Ld. Westbury, Holroyd v. Marshall, 33 L.J. Ch. 196; 10 H.L. Cas. 209.

(a) Falcke v. Gray, 29 L.J. Ch. 28; 4 Drew. 651.

(b) See definition of "warranty," sect. 62; Cutler v. Close, 5 Car. & P. 337; Allen v. Cameron, 1 Cr. & M. 832; 2 L.J. Ex. 263; Turner v. Diaper, 2 M. & Gr. 241.

(c) See Bostock & Co. v. Nicholson & Sons, (1904) 1 K.B. 725; 73 L.J. K.B. 524; Poulton v. Lattimore, 9 B. & C. 259; 7 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 225.

(d) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 53 (1).

estimated loss directly and naturally resulting, in the ordinary course of events, from the breach of warranty (e).

"In the case of breach of warranty of quality such loss is primâ facie the difference between the value of the goods at the time of delivery to the buyer and the value they would have had if they had answered to the warranty (f).

"The fact that the buyer has set up the breach of warranty in diminution or extinction of the price does not prevent him from maintaining an action for the same breach of warranty if he has suffered further damage" (g).

Formerly there was a distinction between an action on the contract itself for the agreed price, and an action upon a bill of exchange or promissory note given by way of payment for the amount. In the former, the value only could be recovered; in the latter, the party holding bills given for the price of the goods supplied could recover on them, unless there had been a total failure of the consideration. If the consideration failed partially, as by the inferiority of the article furnished, the buyer had his remedy by cross-action (h). Thus, where a contract was entered into for the purchase of goods of "good quality and moderate price," and the price was estimated at 1,000*l*., and bills were given for that amount, it was held to be no defence to an action on the bills that the goods turned out to be worth much less than the estimated price, and that the acceptor had paid on the bills more than the real value of the goods(i).

Breach of warranty—Damages.—If the purchaser brings his action against the vendor for a breach of warranty of the quality or soundness of the thing sold, and the goods have been received back by the vendor (ante, pp. 555, 557), the measure of damages is the marketable value which the goods would have possessed in the hands of the purchaser at the time of the delivery, if they had corresponded with the warranty given. If they have not been returned by the purchaser, the measure of damages is then the difference between their marketable value to the purchaser in their defective state at the time of delivery, and the value they would have possessed had they answered the warranty; and, if they have been re-sold by the purchaser without delay, and before any considerable fluctuations in the market have taken place, it is the difference between the price realised

(e) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 53 (2).

(f) Sect. 53 (3).

(g) Sect. 53 (4); Mondel v. Steel, 8 M. & W. 858; 10 L.J. Ex. 426; Rigge v. Burbidge, 15 M. & W. 598; 15 L.J. Ex. 309.

(h) Tye v. Gwynne, 2 Campb. 346; Camac v. Warriner, 1 C.B. 357; Trickey v. Larne, 6 M. & W. 278; 9 L.J. Ex. 141; Warwick v. Nairn, 10 Exch. 762; compare also Moggridge v. Jones, 3 Campb. 38.

(i) Obbard v. Betham, M. & M. 483. See as to counterclaim, Ord. XIX. r. 3.

on the re-sale, after deducting the cost and expenses of the re-sale, and the price they would have fetched if they had answered the warranty.

Where goods had been purchased with a warranty in England, to be exported and re-sold in China, and the goods, on their arrival in Canton, were found not to answer the warranty, the measure of damages was held to be, not the difference between the agreed price and the price realised on the re-sale in China, but between the last-named price and what they would have sold for in the Chinese market had they corresponded with the warranty (k). Where the plaintiff purchased a horse at Northallerton Fair with a warranty of soundness, and after bringing it to London re-sold it with a similar warranty, but had to return the purchase-money because the horse proved to be unsound, it was held in an action against the original seller for breach of warranty that the plaintiff could not recover as special damage the loss of a bargain on the re-sale of the horse, though the contract of re-sale, at a profit, had been actually completed before the unsoundness was discovered (l). At the trial Lord Denman, C.J., ruled that in such a case the measure of damages would be the difference between the value of the horse if sound (of which the price given would be only strong evidence) and the sum it would bring as unsound; and he also ruled that the plaintiff was entitled to recover the cost of bringing the horse to London and of its keep, but not the expenses of obtaining a certificate of unsoundness from the Veterinary College, nor any legal expenses which were not the necessary result of the defendant's breach of contract (m). If the purchaser, as soon as he has discovered the unsoundness of a horse, and consequent breach of warranty, tenders back the horse to the vendor, he may, on the vendor's refusal to take it back, recover the expense of the keep whilst he is preparing to re-sell the animal to the best advantage (n).

Special damages—Re-sale with a warranty—Costs of legal proceedings.—If special damages of which the vendor has notice have been sustained by the purchaser, they may be recovered from the vendor (ante, p. 281). Thus, where the plaintiff, having bought of the defendant a horse warranted sound, re-sold the horse with a like warranty, and was sued for a breach thereof by the second purchaser, and then gave the defendant notice

(k) Bridge v. Wain, 1 Stark. 504.

(l) Clare v. Maynard, 6 Ad. & E. 519; 6 L.J. K.B. 138.

(m) Clare v. Maynard, 7 Car. & P. 741; Cox v. Walker, 7 Car. & P. 744; 6 Ad. & E. 523, note (a).

(n) Caswell v. Coare, 1 Taunt. 566; M'Kenzie v. Hancock, Ry. & M. 436; Chesterman v. Lamb, 2 Ad. & E. 129; Ellis v. Chinnock, 7 Car. & P. 169.

of the action, and offered him the option of defending it, but the defendant gave no answer, and the plaintiff failed in the action and had to pay damages and 88*l.* costs, it was held that he was entitled to recover these costs, in addition to the damages he had been compelled to pay to his immediate purchaser (o). So, where the defendant sold the plaintiff a picture warranted to be painted by Claude, and the plaintiff afterwards re-sold the picture with a like warranty, and the picture turned out not to be a Claude, and the second purchaser sued the plaintiff for the breach of warranty, and recovered a certain sum for damages, and costs, and the plaintiff then sued the defendant, it was held that he was entitled to recover the amount of the damages and costs paid to the second purchaser, and also his own costs incurred in defending the action brought by the latter (p). But, if the plaintiff has made a rash and improvident defence; if, for instance, he has had an opportunity of testing the thing purchased, and might have ascertained by examination whether it did or did not correspond with the warranty, and has neglected so to do, and runs his chance of an action, he will not be permitted to recover the cost of his defence (q). But, even where the purchaser is justified in defending the action brought against him by a sub-purchaser it would seem that he is entitled to recover his costs only as between party and party, and not as between solicitor and client, except in the case of a contract, express or implied, to indemnify (r).

Interest and special damages.—Nothing in the Sale of Goods Act, 1893, is to affect the right of the buyer or the seller to recover interest or special damages in any case where by law interest or special damages may be recoverable, or to recover money paid where the consideration for the payment of it has failed (s).

Sale by auction.—"In the case of a sale by auction—(1.) Where goods are put up for sale by auction in lots, each lot is primâ facie deemed to be the subject of a separate contract of sale: (2.) A sale by auction is complete when the auctioneer announces its completion by the fall of the hammer, or in other customary manner. Until such announcement is made any bidder may retract his bid: (3.) Where a sale by auction is not notified to be subject to a right to bid on behalf of the seller,

(o) Lewis v. Peake, 7 Taunt. 153.

(p) Pennell v. Woodburn, 7 Car. & P. 118; Dingle v. Hare, 7 C.B. N.S. 145; 29 L.J. C.P. 143; Randall v. Raper, E. B. & E. 84; 27 L.J. Q.B. 266; Hammond v. Bussey, 20 Q.B.D. 79; 57 L.J. Q.B. 58.

(q) Wrightup v. Chamberlain, 7 Sc. 598.

(r) Howard v. Loregrove, L.R. 6 Ex. 43; 40 L.J. Ex. 13, commenting on Grace v. Morgan, 2 Bing. N.C. 534; 5 L.J. C.P. 180.

(s) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 54.

it shall not be lawful for the seller to bid himself or to employ any person to bid at such sale, or for the auctioneer knowingly to take any bid from the seller or any such person: Any sale contravening this rule may be treated as fraudulent by the buyer: (4.) A sale by auction may be notified to be subject to a reserved price, and a right to bid may also be reserved expressly by or on behalf of the seller.

"Where a right to bid is expressly reserved, but not otherwise, the seller, or any one person on his behalf, may bid at the auction" (t).

Sale and transfer of tenant's fixtures and trade fixtures.—If an article affixed to the freehold is sold with a view to its immediate severance therefrom, the contract is simply a contract for the purchase and sale of a chattel (u). If it is not purchased with a view to immediate severance, the contract is then a contract for the sale and purchase of a fixture. A contract for the sale and fixing up in a dwelling-house of a copper or a stove is not a contract for the sale of fixtures, but of goods and chattels, and for the performance of work and labour. If a contract is made for the erection upon the soil, or in a dwelling-house, of machinery, presses, &c., the contract would seem to be properly a contract for work and labour and the supply of materials. It is a contract for the erection, and not for the sale, of a fixture, and is the same in principle as a contract to erect a pillar or build a house (x).

Authentication of contracts for the sale of fixtures.—A contract for the sale of fixtures, as such, is not a contract for the sale of an interest in land, nor for the sale of goods and chattels (ante, p. 28). A signed writing, consequently, is not necessary, as between vendor and purchaser, for the authentication of the contract (y). Where fixtures have been sold at a price to be ascertained by valuation, if, after the valuation has been made and delivered to the purchaser, the latter takes possession of the fixtures, or exercises dominion over them, he will be deemed to have adopted the valuation and assented to the price as ascertained by the brokers (z).

(t) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 58; as to sales by auction, see also ante, pp. 17, 476. As to claim against an auctioneer for damages for an alleged breach of warranty of authority to sell, see Rainbow v. Howkins, (1904) 2 K.B. 322; 73 L.J. K.B. 641, commented on in McManus v. Fortescue, (1907) 2 K.B. 1; 76 L.J. K.B. 393.

(u) See 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 62, under which "goods" includes things attached to or forming part of the land which are agreed to be severed before sale or under the contract of sale.

(x) Pinner v. Arnold, 3 Cr. M. & R. 613; 5 L.J. Ex. 1.

(y) Lee v. Gaskell, 1 Q.B.D. 700; 45 L.J. Q.B. 540.

(z) Salmon v. Watson, 4 Moore, 73.

SECTION III.

OF CONTRACTS FOR THE SALE OF INCORPOREALS.

Grants and transfers of incorporeal rights and incorporeal hereditaments, such as rights of common, rights of way or watercourse, advowsons, tithes, rents, annuities, and profits issuing out of land, must, in order to be valid and irrevocable at common law, be made by DEED (a). Thus a right to take tolls for the passage of a ferry or a bridge must be transferred by deed (b). A right to go upon another man's land, as to remove fixtures (c), or to shoot and sport over a manor, or to fish in the waters thereof, whether it be a mere licence of pleasure authorising the licensee to take, but not to carry away, or a licence of profit authorising him both to take and carry off, the game or the fish, is an incorporeal right lying in grant, and can only be created by deed (d). A parol licence or permission will, so long as it has not been countermanded, justify an entry upon the land (e); but it can confer no indefeasible right, and may be recalled at the pleasure of the grantor, even although money be paid for it, and without paying back the money paid for it (f). A licence properly passes no interest, nor alters or transfers property in anything, but only makes an action lawful which without it would be unlawful (g). But, although at common law to the creation of an indefeasible right a deed is required, yet a landowner may, by a writing satisfying the Statute of Frauds, agree to allow another person to come upon his land and take a profit from the soil, or to exercise and enjoy on his land certain privileges, an interruption in the enjoyment of which rights will render him responsible in damages (h). If a parol licence or permission is given to another person to enjoy some profit or privilege on the land of the licensor necessarily involving the expenditure of money, and the licensor stands by and allows the licensee to expend his money on the land in reliance on the enjoyment of the privilege, the licence cannot afterwards be withdrawn without tendering the licensee

(a) Bac. Abr. Grants, E.; Co. Litt. 9 a, 42 a; 14 Vin. Abr. Grant (G.) (a); 2 Roll. Abr. Grant (G.); Jones v. Robin, 10 Q.B. 620; 17 L.J. Q.B. 121.

(b) Reg. v. Salisbury (Marquis), 8 Ad. & E. 716, 739; 7 L.J. M.C. 110.

(c) Ruffey v. Henderson, 17 Q.B. 574; 21 L.J. Q.B. 49.

(d) Somerset (Duke) v. Fogwell, 5 B. & C. 875; 5 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 49; Bird v. Higginson, 6 Ad. & E. 824; 6 L.J. Ex. 282; Thomas v. Fredericks, 10 Q.B. 775; 16 L.J. Q.B. 393; Ewart v. Graham, 7 H.L.Cas. 331; 29 L.J. Ex. 88.

(e) Feltham v. Cartwright, 7 Sc. 695; 9 L.J. C.P. 67.

(f) Wood v. Leadbitter, 13 M. & W. 838; 14 L.J. Ex. 161.

(g) Per Vaughan, C.J., in Thomas v. Sorrell, Vaughan, 351.

(h) Smart v. Jones, 15 C.B. N.S. 717; 33 L.J. C.P. 154; Kerrison v. Smith (1897) 2 Q.B. 445; 66 L.J. Q.B. 762.

compensation for his expenditure (i). Where a colliery proprietor, wanting to construct a railway across the defendant's land, wrote a letter to the defendant, offering a fair price for the land, which letter was not answered, and, under the idea that he had the right to make the railway by virtue of a local Act, entered upon the defendant's land and constructed the railway and used it for three or four years with the acquiescence of the defendant, and the parties afterwards engaged in unsuccessful negotiations for a settlement of the price of the land, whereupon the defendant brought an action of ejectment, an injunction was granted to restrain the defendant from obstructing or interfering with the plaintiff's use of the railway, on a sum of money being paid into court sufficient to secure to the defendant the price of the land (k). So, when a party has agreed to pay a certain sum for a licence of profit, and has enjoyed the benefit of the licence, it is no answer, in an action for the money agreed to be paid, to say that the licence was not under seal. Thus, where an action was brought for a sum of money agreed to be paid for the use and enjoyment of a licence to fish, it was held to be no defence to the action that the licence was not under seal (l). A profit a prèndre cannot be claimed by custom (m); nor can there be prescription in a que estate for the exercise of such a right without stint in alieno solo (n). A bare licence to seize chattels cannot be legally assigned (o); and before a licence is revoked reasonable time should be allowed to the licensee to move off the premises (p). A parol licence to enjoy an easement over or upon the freehold of another is at once determined by a transfer of the property; and the grantee of the licence is consequently a trespasser, if he afterwards enters upon the land in the exercise of his supposed right, although he has received no notice of the transfer (q).

A mere licence of pleasure amounts only to a personal con-

(i) Ramsden v. Dyson, L.R. 1 H.L. 129, 170; Clavering's Case, 5 Ves. 690; Bankart v. Tennant, L.R. 10 Eq. 141; 39 L.J. Ch. 809.

(k) Powell v. Thomas, 6 Hare, 300; Laird v. Birkenhead Ry., 1 Johns. 500; 29 L.J. Ch. 218.

(l) Holford v. Pritchard, 3 Exch. 793; 18 L.J. Ex. 315; Smart v. Jones, 15 C.B. N.S. 717; 33 L.J. C.P. 154; Radcliff v. Hayes, (1907) 1 Ir. R. 101.

(m) Gateward's Case, 6 Rep. 59, b.

(n) Valentine v. Penny, Noy, 145; Cheedley v. Mellor, 1 Sid. 313; Clayton v. Corby, 5 Q.B. 415; 14 L.J. Q.B. 364; Ramsgate Corporation v. Debling, 70 J.P. 132; 22 T.L.R. 369; Chesterfield (Lord) v. Harris, (1908) 2 Ch. 397; 77 L.J. Ch. 688.

(o) Brown v. Metropolitan Counties Life Assurance Society, 28 L.J. Q.B. 236; Davis & Co., In re, Rawlings, Ex parte, 22 Q.B.D. 193.

(p) Cornish v. Stubbs, L.R. 5 C.P. 334, 339; Mellor v. Watkins, L.R. 9 Q.B. 400, 405. As to what amounts to reasonable notice, see Lowe v. Adams, (1901) 2 Ch. 598; 70 L.J. Ch. 783.

(q) Wallis v. Harrison, 4 M. & W. 538; 8 L.J. Ex. 44; Russell v. Harford, L.R. 2 Eq. 507; Roberts v. Rose, L.R. 2 Ex. 82; 35 L.J. Ex. 62.

tract, or to an ordinary covenant, and does not transfer to the licensee or his heirs any right to, or interest in, the soil and freehold of the licensor. "If one licence me and my heirs to come and hunt in his park, I must have a writing (that is a deed) of that licence; for a thing passes by the licence which endures in perpetuity: but, if he license me one time to hunt, this is good without deed; for no inheritance passes" (r). If the licence be a mere personal licence of pleasure, the licensee cannot take away for his own use the game killed, or go with servants upon the land, still less send servants to kill for him, or assign his licence to another.

A licence under seal to convey coals or timber in carts, or water in drains or channels, across the land of the licensor, is a licence of profit, and not one of pleasure, and will amount to a grant of a right of way or of a watercourse. A licence under seal may be of such a nature as to operate in respect of some things as a licence of pleasure merely, and as to others as a grant of an incorporeal hereditament and a direct transfer of an estate or interest in the land.

In a contract for the sale of a patent right, the vendor does not profess to sell an indefeasible patent right, but merely such a right as he actually possesses under the patent (s). If, therefore, subsequently to the sale, the patent turns out to be invalid, without any fraud on the part of the vendor, the purchaser has no ground for claiming back his purchase-money (t). A patentee who sells a patented article imposing no condition at the time of the sale cannot impose a condition subsequently, and unless the purchaser knows of a condition and buys subject to it he may use the article free of it; but if a subsequent purchaser buys from the holder of a conditional licence, he is bound by the condition whether he knows of it or not (u). A contract for the sale of a patent right may be specifically enforced (x).

Nature of shares in limited company.—A share is the interest of a shareholder in the company measured by a sum of money, for the purpose of liability in the first place, and of interest in the second, but also consisting of a series of mutual covenants entered into by all the shareholders inter se in accordance with sect. 14 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, 8 Edw. 7, (r) Year Book, 11 Hen. 7, fol. 86, cited by Parke, B., Wickham v. Hawker, 7 M. & W. 79; 10 L.J. Ex. 153. See also Addison on Torts, 385 (ed. 8).

(s) Hall v. Conder, 2 C.B. N.S. 22, 41; 26 L.J. C.P. 138.

(t) Lawes v. Purser, 6 E. & B. 935; 26 L.J. Q.B. 25.

(u) Badische Anilin, &c. Fabrik v. Isler, (1906) 1 Ch. 605; 75 L.J. Ch. 411; affirmed on facts, (1906) 2 Ch. 443; 75 L.J. Ch. 749.

(x) Cogent v. Gibson, 33 Beav. 557.

c. 69. It is made up of various rights contained in the contract in the articles of association, including the right to a sum of money of a more or less amount (y). The shares or other interest of a member in a company are personal estate, transferable in manner provided by the articles of association (z). A company limited by shares, if so authorised by its articles, may, with respect to any fully paid-up shares, or to stock, issue under the company's seal warrants to bearer transferable by delivery (a).

Title to shares in mining companies.—The shareholders in joint-stock companies possessed of land are entitled to no direct interest in the land. No part of the realty is held in trust for them; but all they are entitled to is, that the real and personal property held by the company should be used by the company for their benefit (b). A purchaser of shares in a mining company is not entitled to a regular deduction of the title of the vendor of the share as on the sale of real estate. The vendor may establish his title by the cost-book or register of the mine (c). The partners, in whom the legal right in the mine or minerals is vested by deed of grant, hold the mine and the partnership joint-stock plant and machinery, in trust to exercise the right to search for minerals, and make a profit for the benefit of the co-adventurers; and it has been held that the shares of this profit, and consequently the shares in the mine, are personal property, transferable without note in writing, the transfer passing no interest in the soil, but only a right to participate in the profits of the mine. When mining shares are sold in the share market, it is the practice for each party to make a memorandum of the sale in his own book, in the same manner as is done by brokers and jobbers on the Stock Exchange. The vendor afterwards hands a certificate of the sale to the captain or purser of the mine, authorising him to transfer the shares to the purchaser in the usual way; and the purchaser signs an acceptance of the shares written underneath the certificate of sale, which being presented to the captain or purser of the mine, the name of the purchaser is substituted in the place of the vendor in the cost-book, and the transfer is complete (d). And, as soon as the share or interest in the profits of the concern is transferred by the out-

(y) Per Farwell, J., in Borland's Trustee v. Steel Bros. & Co., Ltd., (1901) 1 Ch. 279, 288; 70 L.J. Ch. 51.

(z) 8 Edw. 7, c. 69, s. 22 (1).

(a) 8 Edw. 7, c. 69, s. 37. Such a share warrant is a negotiable instrument: Webb, Hale & Co. v. Alexandria Water Co., 93 L.T. 339.

(b) Watson v. Spratley, 10 Exch. 222, 244; 24 L.J. Ex. 53; Powell v. Jessop, 18 C.B. 336; 25 L.J. C.P. 199; Walker v. Bartlett, 18 C.B. 845; 25 L.J. C.P. 263; Edwards v. Hall, 25 L.J. Ch. 82; 6 De G. M. & G. 74; Caddick v. Skidmore, 3 Jur. N.S. 1185.

(c) Curling v. Flight, 5 Hare, 242.

(d) Watson v. Spratley, 10 Exch. 222; 24 L.J Ex. 53.

going shareholder, the latter is released from all liability upon contracts subsequently entered into by the purser or managers of the company (e).

Title to shares, scrip, and letters of allotment.—The mere possession of letters of allotment of shares or of scrip certificates of shares in projected railway companies is primâ facie evidence of ownership and of a power of disposition. But, in the case of registered joint-stock companies, or companies incorporated by Act of Parliament, the title to shares is evidenced by production of a certificate of proprietorship and by reference to the register of the shareholders of the company. The directors of every company must keep in one or more books a register of its members, and enter therein the names, addresses, and occupations of the members, and in the case of a company having a share capital a statement of the shares held by each member, distinguishing each share by its number (f), and of the amount paid or agreed to be considered as paid on the shares of each member; the date at which each person was entered in the register as a member; and the date at which any person ceased to be a shareholder in respect of any share (g). Provision is made by the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908 (h), and by the Railway Acts, for establishing the title to shares in case of the death or bankruptcy of shareholders. A certificate of shares is merely a solemn affirmation under the seal of the company that a certain amount of stock stands in the name mentioned in the certificate. A person, therefore, who receives such certificates as an equitable mortgage, must inquire into the title of the intended mortgagor, because if he is only trustee, the intending mortgagee's title will be inferior to that of the cestui que trust (i). Under the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, a certificate under the common seal of the company, specifying any shares or stock held by any member, is primâ facie evidence of the title of the member to the shares or stock (k).

(e) Harvey v. Kay, 9 B. & C. 356; 7 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 167.

(f) It would seem that a contract to issue fully paid-up shares need not specify the numbers of the shares: Delta Syndicate Co., In re, 30 Ch.D. 153; 54 L.J. Ch. 724; Jackson & Co., In re, (1899) 1 Ch. 348.

(g) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, 8 Edw. 7, c. 69, s. 25 (1). And see sects. 100—102 as to the keeping of a register of debenture-holders.

(h) First Sched., Table A., arts. 21—23.

(i) Shropshire Union Ry. v. Reg., L.R. 7 H.L. 496; 45 L.J. Q.B. 31; Carritt v. Real and Personal Advance Co., 42 Ch.D. 263; 58 L.J. Ch. 688 And see per Ld. Selborne, Société Générale de Paris v. Walker, 11 App. Cas. 20, 28; 55 L.J. Q.B. 169; Rimmer v. Webster, (1902) 2 Ch. 163, 169; 71 L.J. Ch. 561. As to the value of a certification of shares, see Bishop v. Balkis Consolidated Co., 25 Q.B.D. 77, 112; 59 L.J. Q.B. 565; Balkis Consolidated Co. v. Tomkinson, (1893) A.C. 396; 63 L.J. Q.B. 134; Dixon v. Kennaway, (1900) 1 Ch. 833; 69 L.J. Ch. 501; Whitechurch v. Cavanagh, (1902) A.C. 117, 125; 9 Manson, 351.

(k) 8 Edw. 7, c. 69, s. 23; cp. Cornwall Mining Co. v. Bennett, 5 H. & N. 423; 29 L.J. Ex. 157.

A transfer of the share or other interest of a deceased member of a company made by his personal representative shall, although the latter is not himself a member, be as valid as if he had been a member at the time of the execution of the transfer (l). On the application of the transferor of any share or interest, the company shall enter in its register of members the name of the transferee in the same manner and subject to the same conditions as if the application for the entry were made by the transferee (m).

Executory contracts for the sale of shares are generally effected by brokers on the Stock Exchange, who enter the transactions in their books, and transmit bought and sold notes to their principals, specifying the number and value of the shares and the price to be paid for them. Executory contracts for the sale of letters of allotment, scrip, and shares in railway companies, or shares in mining companies, or registered joint-stock companies, do not, as we have already seen, come within the operation of the Statute of Frauds, as they are neither an interest in land (n), nor goods, wares and merchandises (o), within the meaning of that Act. But, by 30 & 31 Vict. c. 29, contracts for the sale or transfer of any shares, stock, or other interest in a joint-stock banking company constituted under or regulated by any Act of Parliament, royal charter, or letters patent, issuing shares or stock transferable by any deed or written instrument (except by the Banks of England or Ireland), are null and void, unless they set forth and designate in writing such shares, stock, or interest by the respective numbers by which the same are distinguished on the register or books of the company. Where there is no register of shares or stock by distinguishing numbers, the contract must set forth the person in whose name such shares, stock, or interest, stand as the registered proprietor in the books of the company (p). When a bargain has been made for the sale of a certain number of ascertained shares in a particular railway company or a registered joint-stock company, the property in the shares passes by the bargain to the purchaser, and the latter becomes the (l) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, 8 Edw. 7, c. 69, s. 29.

(m) Sect. 28.

(n) Humble v. Mitchell, 11 Ad. & E. 205; 9 L.J. Q.B. 29; Bradley v. Holdsworth, 3 M. & W. 422; 7 L.J. Ex. 153; Colonial Bank v. Whinney, 11 A.C. 426, 439; 56 L.J. Ch. 43.

(o) Knight v. Barber, 16 M. & W. 66; 16 L.J. Ex. 18.

(p) A custom of the Stock Exchange to the contrary is void: see Neilson v. James, 9 Q.B.D. 546; 51 L.J. Q.B. 369; Perry v. Barnett, 15 Q.B.D. 388; 54 L.J. Q.B. 466; but see also Seymour v. Bridge, 14 Q.B.D. 460; 54 L.J. Q.B. 347. As to transfers of shares by executors, see Barton v. L. & N. W. Ry., 24 Q.B.D. 77; 59 L.J. Q.B. 33; Barton v. North Staffordshire Ry., 38 Ch.D. 458; 57 L.J. Ch. 800.

equitable owner of the shares, and is entitled to a decree for specific performance, when the time for the making of the transfer arrives (q). This transfer of the equitable ownership is naturally accompanied by a transfer of the benefit and the burthen incident to the holding of the shares, as in the case of the transfer of the equitable ownership of lands, so that, if a call is made on the shares between the time of the making of the bargain and the time appointed for the transfer of the shares, the purchaser will be bound to pay the call, and the Court will compel him to accept and register a transfer of the shares, and clothe himself with the legal title to them, and do all proper acts to relieve the vendor from liability as the registered legal owner (r). If, after the making of a bargain for the sale of shares, a dividend is declared, the dividend will belong to the purchaser (s); for by the custom of the Stock Exchange the dividend until it becomes payable is included in the price of the share; and, if the vendor receives it, he will hold it as a trustee for the purchaser. This trust will continue, even after transfer executed, where the company under powers in the articles of association refuses to register the transferee (t). If, on the other hand, before the transfer is executed, a petition is presented for winding up the company under the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908 (u), the contract is not rendered void by section 205 of that Act which avoids transfers made after the commencement of a winding up by or subject to the supervision of the Court or after the commencement of a voluntary winding up except to or with the sanction of the liquidator; and, if the broker has, in accordance with the rules and regulations of the Stock Exchange, been compelled to pay the price of the shares to the vendor, he will be entitled to recover from his principal the money so paid (x).

Agreements for transfer of shares.—If the owner of shares, subject to liabilities which deprive them of all marketable value, wishes to divest himself of the shares and the attendant liabilities, and another person is willing to accept the shares, and take the chances of the speculation, and they enter into an agreement for the purpose, the contract will be specifically enforced (y). But the court will not enforce an agreement to

(q) Duncuft v. Albrecht, 12 Sim. 189, 199; Ross v. Moses, 1 C.B. 227; Cheale v. Kenward, 3 De G. & J. 27; 27 L.J. Ch. 784.

(r) Straffon, Ex parte, 22 L.J. Ch. 194; 1 De G. M. & G. 576; Wynne v. Price, 3 De G. & S. 310; New Brunswick Co. v. Muggeridge, 4 Dr. 686.

(s) Black v. Homersham, 4 Ex.D. 24; 48 L.J. Ex. 79.

(t) Stevenson v. Wilson, (1907) S.C. 445 (Ct. of Sess.).

(u) 8 Edw. 7, c. 69.

(x) Chapman v. Shepherd, L.R. 2 C.P. 228; 36 L.J. C.P. 113.

(y) Cheale v. Kenward, 3 De G. & J. 27; 26 L.J. Ch. 784.

purchase, made after the presentation of a petition to wind up a company but before advertisement, by making the purchaser a contributory, when both parties were ignorant of the pending petition at the time of the agreement (z). A transfer of shares which is otherwise bonâ fide, cannot be set aside at the instance of the company, either because the vendor paid money to the purchaser to take the shares, or because the certificate of transfer contains false representations as to the consideration paid (a).

Mode of performance.—Where shares are bought or sold through a broker on the Stock Exchange, the principal enters into an implied contract to sell or buy according to the customs and usages prevalent in that body (b). According to the practice of the Stock Exchange, the broker who buys shares prepares the transfer deed and tenders it to the selling broker for execution (c), and pays the price on the transfer being returned to him executed by the vendor and accompanied by the vendor's certificates of proprietorship. Generally there are intermediate sales, and in that case the first purchaser on a day before the selling-day, called the name-day, gives to the vendor's broker the name of an ultimate purchaser to whom the shares are to be transferred. The vendor's broker thereupon prepares a deed of transfer to the ultimate purchaser, gets it executed by the vendor, and on the selling-day hands it and the share certificates to the broker of the ultimate purchaser, who pays the price agreed upon between the ultimate purchaser and the jobber, the vendor's broker paying the balance to or receiving it from the broker as the case may require. When this has been done, the liability of the first purchaser ceases, if the ultimate purchaser is a person to whom no reasonable objection can be made (d). In order to relieve the jobber from liability, the ultimate purchaser whose name is given on the name-day must be a person of full age (e), who is willing to accept and pay for the shares (f); but if such purchaser authorises his name to be given, he is bound by the acceptance of the transfer and payment of the price by his brokers on his

(z) Emmerson's Case, L.R. 1 Ch. 433; 36 L.J. Ch. 177.

(a) Hafod Lead Mining Co., In re, 35 L.J. Ch. 304; 35 Beav. 391.

(b) Hodgkinson v. Kelly, L.R. 6 Eq. 496; 37 L.J. Ch. 837; Forget v. Baxter, (1900) A.C. 467; 69 L.J. P.C. 101. As to customs on Stock Exchange, see post, p. 950.

(c) Stephens v. De Medina, 4 Q.B. 422; 12 L.J. Q.B. 120.

(d) Paine v. Hutchinson, L.R. 3 Ch. 388; 37 L.J. Ch. 485; Coles v. Bristowe, L.R. 4 Ch. 3; 38 L.J. Ch. 81; Grissell v. Bristowe, L.R. 4 C.P. 36; 38 L.J. C.P. 10; Maxted v. Paine, L.R. 6 Ex. 132; 40 L.J. Ex. 57; Loring v. Davis, 32 Ch.D. 625; 55 L.J. Ch. 725.

(e) Nickalls v. Merry, L.R. 7 H.L. 530; 45 L.J. Ch. 575.

(f) Maxted v. Paine, L.R. 4 Ex. 81; 38 L.J. Ex. 41.

behalf (g). The privity of contract implied between the selling jobber and the client of the purchasing broker is not affected where the purchasing broker has lumped his client's order with other orders provided the circumstances show that the intention of all parties was that privity should be established notwithstanding such lumping of several orders into one contract (h). In discovering what was the intention of all parties, the usages of the Stock Exchange may be important, but mere domestic rules of the Stock Exchange will not be allowed to override the rights and liabilities of the outside world (i). The jobber may agree to guarantee that the ultimate purchaser shall register the transfer; and, if he does so, and the transfer is not registered, he will be liable to indemnify the vendor against the consequences of such want of registration (k). It is not the duty of the vendor or of the selling broker to get the transfer registered. All he has to do is to execute the transfer deed and return it to the purchaser (l). It is then the duty of the latter to execute it and leave it, with the certificates of proprietorship, at the office of the company for registration and for new certificates of proprietorship to be granted to him in his own name. Until this is done, and the transfer has been registered, and the new certificates granted, the purchaser's title to the shares is incomplete (m). Each prior holder confers on the bonâ fide holders for value of certificates with blank transfers, an authority to fill in the names of the transferee, and each prior holder is estopped from denying such authority, and is estopped to this extent and no further from denying the title of such bonâ fide holder for the time being (n). A contract to deliver shares in a projected company does not require the actual delivery of scrip certificates, which are the mere indicia of property; but the party contracting to deliver sufficiently performs his engagement, when he places the other in the position of being the legal owner of them (o). It is not incumbent on the vendor to obtain the consent of the directors to the transfer, unless the deed of settlement, or articles of association of the

(g) Bowring v. Shepherd, L.R. 6 Q.B. 309; 40 L.J. Q.B. 129; Hardoon v. Belilios, (1901) A.C. 118; 70 L.J. P.C. 9.

(h) Scott and Horton v. Godfrey, (1901) 2 K.B. 726; 70 L.J. K.B. 954; cp. Beckhuson v. Hamblet, (1901) 2 K.B. 73; 70 L.J. K.B. 600.

(i) Levitt v. Hamblet, (1901) 2 K.B. 53; 70 L.J. K.B. 520; Beckhuson v. Hamblet, supra.

(k) Cruse v. Paine, L.R. 4 Ch. 441; 38 L.J. Ch. 225.

(l) Taylor v. Stray, 2 C.B. N.S. 175, 195; 26 L.J. C.P. 287.

(m) Stray v. Russell, 28 L.J. Q.B. 279, 287; 29 L.J.Q.B. 115; London Founders' Assoc. v. Clarke, 20 Q.B.D. 576; 57 L.J. Q.B. 291.

(n) Colonial Bank v. Hepworth, 36 Ch.D. 36; 56 L.J. Ch. 1089; Williams v. Colonial Bank, 38 Ch.D. 388; 15 A.C. 268.

(o) Hunt v. Gunn, 13 C.B. N.S. 226.

company, make the approval of the directors a condition precedent to the right of the shareholder to transfer his shares (p). A clause in a deed of settlement, that no shareholder shall transfer his shares except in such manner as the directors shall approve, does not prevent a shareholder from entering into a contract for the sale of his shares; and, if such a contract has been entered into, it will be enforced as between the vendor and purchaser, and the latter will be compelled to do all that is necessary to be done by him to obtain the consent of the directors to the registration of the transfer (q). But the court will not compel the directors to assent; nor will specific performance be decreed where they within their powers refuse to do so (r). Notwithstanding such refusal to register a transferee, the latter has nevertheless the sole beneficial interest in the shares and dividends and the transferor will hold these in trust for the transferee (s).

Executory contracts for the sale of shares in railway and parliamentary works' companies are fulfilled on the part of the vendor by a tender of letters of allotment of shares, if there are no shares in the market; and the letters of allotment are commonly bought and received as shares upon the Stock Exchange (t). In the case of the sale of scrip or letters of allotment of shares in projected companies which can be lawfully bought and sold, no right of property in any particular scrip or shares passes to the purchaser until actual delivery; and the vendor will fulfil his contract by tendering to the purchaser any scrip that may be in the market (u). But a purchaser is not, of course, bound to accept shares or scrip, or any securities, of a different kind from those he bargained for and agreed to buy (x). Prompt delivery, on a sale of shares, is an implied condition, and tender of certificates three months after sale is not such delivery of them as the purchaser is bound to accept (y). By the rules of the Stock Exchange, ten days are allowed for delivery, and, where this rule is not observed, a purchaser may intimate to his broker that he will not accept

(p) Wilkinson v. Lloyd, 7 Q.B. 27; 14 L.J. Q.B. 165; Stray v. Russell, 1 E. & E. 888; 29 L.J. Q.B. 115.

(q) Poole v. Middleton, 29 Beav. 646.

(r) Bermingham v. Sheridan, 33 Beav. 660; 33 L.J. Ch. 571; cp. Moffatt v. Farquhar, 7 Ch.D. 591; 47 L.J. Ch. 355.

(s) Stevenson v. Wilson, (1907) S.C. 445 (Ct. of Sess.).

(t) Stray v. Russell, 28 L.J. Q.B. 284; 29 L.J. Q.B. 115; Mitchell v. Newhall, 15 M. & W. 309; 15 L.J. Ex. 292; Tempest v. Kilner, 3 C.B. 249; 15 L.J. C.P. 10; Lamert v. Heath, 15 M. & W. 486; 15 L.J. Ex. 297.

(u) Heseltine v. Siggers, 1 Exch. 856; 18 L.J. Ex. 166; and see Hunt v. Gunn, 13 C.B. N.S. 226.

(x) Keele v. Wheeler, 7 M. & Gr. 665; 13 L.J. C.P. 170.

(y) Union Corporation v. Charrington and Brodrick, 19 T.L.R. 129; 8 Com. Cas. 99.

the shares, after which notice, if the broker still accepts and pays for the shares, he cannot call upon his client to indemnify him (z). But the regulations of the company issuing the shares must be had regard to, and delay in delivery occasioned by arbitrary conduct of the directors of such company will not be counted (a). Where the certificates of shares sold have been pledged, say, with a bank, the seller cannot require his broker to pay the bank or to ask the purchasing jobber to pay the bank and so release the shares (b).

Time of performance.—The time for the completion of an executory contract for the sale of shares is regulated by the custom of the Stock Exchange. If particular days are set apart for the settlement of accounts between brokers and their customers, and for the delivery and transfer of shares that have been agreed to be bought and sold in the intervening period, all contracts for the sale and purchase of shares to be completed on a particular day will be deemed to be made for the next settling day that will arrive after the time so appointed (c). When no time is specified for the completion of the contract, the printed rules and customs of the Stock Exchange are admissible in evidence to show what is a reasonable time under all the circumstances of the case for the fulfilment of the bargain (d). Where a written contract for the sale of mining shares was silent as to the time of the delivery of the shares, but fixed the time for payment of the price, it was held that evidence was admissible to show that, by a custom amongst brokers, the vendor under such a contract was not bound to deliver the shares until he was offered payment of the price (e).

Implied undertakings and indemnities annexed to contracts for sale and purchase of shares—Payment of calls.—Where the relation of trustee and cestui que trust has been created between the seller and the purchaser of shares there is a right in the trustee, in the absence of contract to the contrary, to be indemnified by his cestui que trust against calls (f). So where the plaintiff sold mining shares to the defendant, and did all that was incumbent on him to do to pass the property in the shares to the defendant, who thus became potentially the owner

(z) Benjamin v. Barnett, 19 T.L.R. 564 ; 8 Com.Cas. 241.

(a) Goldmann v. Kann, 23 T.L.R. 287.

(b) Hawkins v. Pearse, 9 Com.Cas. 87.

(c) Fletcher v. Marshall, 15 M. & W. 755 ; Bayliffe v. Butterworth, 1 Exch. 425 ; 17 L.J. Ex. 78.

(d) Stewart v. Cauty, 8 M. & W. 160 ; 10 L.J. Ex. 348.

(e) Field v. Lelean, 30 L.J. Ex. 168 ; 6 H. & N. 617 ; commenting on Spartali v. Benecke, 10 C.B. 212 ; 19 L.J. C.P. 293.

(f) Castellan v. Hobson, L.R. 10 Eq. 47 ; 39 L.J. Ch. 490 ; James v. May, L.R. 6 H.L. 328 ; 42 L.J. Ch. 802 ; Loring v. Davis, 32 Ch.D. 625, 634 ; 55 L.J. Ch. 725 ; Hardoon v. Belilios, (1901) A.C. 118 ; 70 L.J. P.C. 9.

of the shares, and might have made his title perfect at any time; it was held that there was an implied undertaking on the part of the defendant to indemnify the plaintiff in respect of all calls that might lawfully be made on the shares whilst they remained untransferred in the books of the company (g). Where shares are again sold, however, there is no implied contract of indemnity between the original vendor and those who buy from the first purchaser. The privity of contract, and the attendant liabilities, are confined to those who deal together as vendors and purchasers, and do not extend to parties who are strangers to each other and have never come together in any way (h). But, if shares are sold or bought through a broker on the Stock Exchange, the usages prevalent in that body are impliedly incorporated into the contract; and, therefore, no implied indemnity exists in respect of intermediate sales where the transfer is made by the original vendor direct to the ultimate purchaser; it then becomes the latter's duty to execute the deed and register the transfer (i), and this duty he may be compelled specifically to perform (j). Where the ultimate purchaser gave the name of one of his workmen as the person to whom the shares were to be transferred, and the transfer was executed to the workman, it was held that the master, as the real purchaser and equitable owner, was bound to indemnify the vendor against all subsequent calls in respect of the shares (k). The vendee does not become relieved from his obligation to indemnify his vendor by re-selling and transferring the shares to some third person (l).

Rights of scripholders.—Whether the holder of a scrip certificate is to be considered as a shareholder will depend upon the circumstances; he will be so if under his contract he is bound to take shares but not until he has complied with the conditions precedent, e.g., payment of instalments and registration (m) if under his contract he must put himself in the position of being entitled to come in and take shares. Where a defendant had signed the subscription contract of a projected railway company, and had received an allotment of shares with scrip certificates, which he sold before the special Act of incor-

(g) Walker v. Bartlett, 18 C.B. 863; 25 L.J. C.P. 263; Wynne v. Price, 3 De G. & S. 310.

(h) Sayles v. Blane, 14 Q.B. 205; 19 L.J. Q.B. 19.

(i) Hawkins v. Maltby, L.R. 4 Ch. 200; 38 L.J. Ch. 313.

(j) Overend, Gurney & Co., In re, Musgrave and Hart's Case, L.R. 5 Eq. 193; 37 L.J. Ch. 161.

(k) Castellan v. Hobson, L.R. 10 Eq. 47; 39 L.J. Ch. 490.

(l) Kellock v. Enthoren, L.R. 9 Q.B. 241; 43 L.J. Q.B. 90.

(m) McIlwraith v. Dublin Trunk Ry., L.R. 7 Ch. 134; 41 L.J. Ch. 262; Littlehampton, Havre and Honfleur Steamship Co., In re, Ormerod's Case, L.R. 5 Eq. 110; 37 L.J. Ch. 111; Eustace v. Dublin Trunk Ry., L.R. 6 Eq. 182; 37 L.J. Ch. 716.

poration of the company had been obtained, and the shares passed through several hands, and the holder neglected to send the scrip for registration, and the company entered the name of the original allottee in the register as the proprietor of the shares, who, apprehending that a call would be made upon him, again sold the shares; it was held that he was bound to pay over to the scripholder the amount of the purchase-money (n).

Transfer deeds.—It is essential to the validity of a deed of transfer of shares that it be duly stamped with the proper ad valorem stamp imposed on transfers made upon a sale (o), also that the name of the purchaser, the number and distinguishing marks of the shares, and the price to be paid for them, be inserted in the deed before the execution thereof by the vendor; for material blanks in a deed cannot, as we have seen, be afterwards filled up in the absence of the vendor. The rule of law upon this subject cannot be altered or affected by the practice or custom of the Stock Exchange (p). But an error in the transfer in distinguishing the numbers is immaterial, if the transferor has at the time a sufficient number of shares (q). Where a vendor of shares executed printed forms of deeds of transfer, in which the number of shares to be sold, the distinguishing marks of those shares, and the names of the transferees, were left in blank, but the stamps which the transfer bore were sufficient in value to cover a transfer of all the vendor's shares, and the broker, after the transfer deed had been delivered to him, fraudulently filled up the blanks with the whole of the vendor's shares, when he had been authorised to sell only a portion, and absconded with the purchase-money, and the fraud was discovered before the transfers had been registered, an injunction was granted to restrain the registration of the transfers, and prevent any steps being taken to complete the title of the purchaser (r). So where a broker employed to purchase shares procured the instrument of transfer

(n) Beckitt v. Billbrough, 19 L.J. Ch. 522.

(o) For stamp duties, see Stamp Act, 1891, 54 & 55 Vict. c. 39, First Sched., "Conveyance or Transfer," and sects. 54 to 61. In Maynard v. Consolidated Kent Collieries Corporation, (1903) 2 K.B. 121; 72 L.J. K.B. 681, it was held that a company was entitled to go behind what appeared on the face of a transfer in order to determine whether it was properly stamped.

(p) Hibblewhite v. M'Morine, 6 M. & W. 200; 9 L.J. Ex. 217; Tayler v. Great Indian Peninsular Ry., 4 De G. & J. 559, 574; 28 L.J. Ch. 285, 709; Swan, Ex parte, 7 C.B. N.S. 434, 448; 30 L.J. C.P. 113. See France v. Clark, 26 Ch.D. 257; 53 L.J. Ch. 585; Société Générale de Paris v. Walker, 11 App.Cas. 20; 55 L.J. Q.B. 569; Nanney v. Morgan, 37 Ch.D. 346; 57 L.J. Ch. 311; Roots v. Williamson, 38 Ch.D. 485; 57 L.J. Ch. 995.

(q) International Contract Co., In re, Ind's Case, L.R. 7 Ch. 485; 41 L.J. Ch. 564.

(r) Tayler v. Great Indian Peninsular Ry., supra; Swan, Ex parte, supra; Swan v. North British Australian Co., 2 H. & C. 175; 32 L.J. Ex. 273; France v. Clark, supra.

to the plaintiff and the plaintiff's signature thereto, and received from the plaintiff the certificate and transfer for the purpose of registration, and afterwards fraudulently procured the plaintiff to cancel his signature to the transfer and by means of the cancelled transfer and the certificates, induced the vendor to execute a fresh transfer to himself, it was held that the effect of the first transfer was not destroyed by the cancellation, fraudulently procured (s).

A contract for the sale of shares on the Stock Exchange does not import an undertaking by the seller that the company will register the transfer (t). Where the previous consent of the company is made essential to the validity of a transfer of shares, such consent may be presumed from the conduct and acts of the company (u). Transfer deeds of shares generally contain an agreement on the part of the purchaser to take and hold the shares subject to the conditions on which the transferor himself held them, or to hold them subject to the regulations of the particular company. One of these rules generally is that the registered owner shall pay calls. If, therefore, a purchaser of shares, after he has executed a deed of transfer, and had the deed delivered to him or to his agent for the purpose of registration, omits to get the deed registered, and the vendor is compelled to pay calls by reason of his name being left on the register, he is entitled to be indemnified by the transferee (x). A transfer of shares to an infant is not void, but only voidable; and, if the infant after arriving at full age keeps the shares, he cannot afterwards avoid the transfer on the ground of his infancy (y).

Share certificates.—The title of a registered holder of shares is usually evidenced by a certificate and it is also usual for such certificate to bear a note to the effect that no transfer of any portion of the shares comprised in it will be registered without production of the certificate. Such a certificate estops the company granting it from afterwards denying the title of the person named as proprietor of the shares (z). But a share certificate is not a negotiable instrument nor is it a warranty of title on the part of the company granting it and any person relying upon it is liable to find that another and better

(s) Donaldson v. Gillot, L.R. 3 Eq. 274.

(t) Casey v. Bentley, (1902) 1 Ir. R. 376.

(u) Lane, In re, 33 L.J. Ch. 84; 1 De G. J. & S. 504.

(x) Walker v. Bartlett, 18 C.B. 845, 863; 25 L.J. C.P. 263; distinguishing Humble v. Langston, 7 M. & W. 517; 10 L.J. Ex. 442.

(y) Lumsden's Case, L.R. 4 Ch. 31; 39 L.J. Ch. 124. See, however, ante, p. 404, 37 & 38 Vict. c. 62.

(z) Tomkinson v. Balkis Consolidated Co., (1891) 2 Q.B. 614; 60 L.J. Q.B. 558; Dixon v. Kennaway & Co., (1900) 1 Ch. 833; 69 L.J. Ch. 501.

title may be brought forward which will supersede that derived from it (a). Where a transfer was registered without production of the certificate on a declaration that the certificate was in the possession of a friend but not as a charge against any loan or other consideration and the person in whose possession it was as security for a loan afterwards presented an executed transfer to him with the certificate for registration, it was held that the company was affected with notice of the latter's charge (b).

Registration of forged transfers.—If a transfer of shares has been forged, and the forged transfer entered in the company's books, and the name of the shareholder expunged from the register on the strength of the forged document, the shareholder does not thereby lose one iota of his rights against the company; he can compel them to restore his name, and may enforce payment of the dividends due to him, whether his name be restored or not. So, where stock in a railway company stood in the names of two proprietors and the one sold the stock and signed a transfer of the shares, and forged the signature of his co-proprietor, and the company registered the forged transfer and paid the purchaser the dividends, and the forgery was not discovered for many years, the company was held bound to replace the stock (c). And where trust-money was invested in railway debentures made payable to three trustees, and the debentures were left in the hands of one of the trustees, who received the interest upon them, and subsequently sold the debentures to a bonâ fide purchaser, and forged the names of his co-trustees to a transfer of the debentures, and the purchaser got the debentures transferred into his own name, it was held that the transfer was null and void, and that the trustees were still entitled to the debentures; and the Court ordered them to be delivered up to the trustees, and directed the transfer and entry thereof in the company's books to be cancelled. "No laches," it was observed, "could be imputed to the trustees for suffering one of their number to hold the debentures; for some of them must hold them, unless they are deposited with bankers, or placed in a box secured by a number of different locks of which each trustee shall hold one of the keys; and negligence cannot be imputed to trustees for not taking such precautions as these" (d). If the company have registered a forged transfer, they are answerable to a purchaser under the forged transfer for the value of the shares (e). And, if both the shareholder and the party claiming under the forged transfer bring actions against the company for the recovery of the dividends declared on the shares, the court will not compel them to interplead to establish their rights. If the forgery has been occasioned by the plaintiff's gross negligence and misconduct, amounting to an estoppel or a ratification (f), or if he has acted so as to be particeps criminis, he will be precluded from setting up or relying upon the forgery (g); but the negligence or misconduct must be the proximate cause of the forgery and the direct means of effecting it (h). Where a forged transfer has been registered and the company has been compelled to reinstate the true owner of the stock or shares, the company will be entitled to recover the loss from the person at whose request the transfer was registered even though such person may have acted bonâ fide and without negligence (i).

(a) Longman v. Bath Electric Tramways, Ltd., (1905) 1 Ch. 646; 74 L.J. Ch. 424.

(b) Rainford v. James Keith and Blackman Co., (1905) 2 Ch. 147; 74 L.J. Ch. 531.

(c) Taylor v. Midland Ry., 28 Beav. 287; 29 L.J. Ch. 733; Sloman v. Bank of England, 14 Sim. 475; 14 L.J. Ch. 226; Barton v. N. Staffordshire Ry., 38 Ch.D. 458; 57 L.J. Ch. 800.

Specific performance of contracts for purchase and sale of stock and shares.—The court will not decree specific performance of a contract for the sale of stock in the public funds generally, as one portion of stock is as good as another, and it must be the same thing to the purchaser, whether he receives the stock agreed to be sold to him, or the money that will purchase it in the market. The purchaser, therefore, is left to his remedy by way of action for damages (k). There is, however, no analogy between a contract for the purchase of a quantity of three per cent. consols, or any other stock generally, and a contract for certain specific, numbered railway shares, mining shares, or scrip (l). So, if a contract is for certain specific stock or shares in a particular railway company, or

(d) Cottam v. Eastern Counties Ry., 1 Jo. & H. 243, 247; 30 L.J. Ch. 217.

(e) Dalton v. Midland Ry., 13 C.B. 474; 22 L.J. C.P. 177; Hildyard v. South Sea Co., 2 P.Wms. 75; Bahia and San Francisco Ry., In re, L.R. 3 Q.B. 584; 37 L.J. Q.B. 176; Shaw v. Port Philip Gold Mining Co., 13 Q.B.D. 103; 53 L.J. Q.B. 369; Hart v. Frontino and Bolivia, &c. Co., L.R. 5 Ex. 111; 39 L.J. Ex. 93; Johnston v. Renton, L.R. 9 Eq. 181; 39 L.J. Ch. 390; Sheffield Corporation v. Barclay, (1905) A.C. 392; 74 L.J. K.B. 747; Bank of England v. Cutler, (1907) 1 K.B. 889; 76 L.J. K.B. 504; see Simm v. Anglo-American Tel. Co., 5 Q.B.D. 188; 49 L.J. Q.B. 392; Balkis Consolidated Co. v. Tomkinson, (1893) A.C. 396; 62 L.J. Q.B. 134. As to power of companies to compensate purchasers of stock for losses by forged transfers, see 54 & 55 Vict. c. 43, and 55 & 56 Vict. c. 36.

(f) Ireland (Bank of) v. Evans' Charities, 5 H.L.C. 389, 413. See Cooper, In re, 20 Ch.D. 611; 51 L.J. Ch. 862.

(g) Swan, Ex parte, 7 C.B. N.S. 434; 30 L.J. C.P. 113.

(h) Swan v. North British Australian Co., 2 H. & C. 175; 32 L.J. Ex. 273, ante, p. 646.

(i) Sheffield Corporation v. Barclay, (1905) A.C. 392; 74 L.J. K.B. 747; Bank of England v. Cutler, (1907) 1 K.B. 889; 76 L.J. K.B. 504.

(k) Cud v. Rutter, 20 Vin.Abr. 538, pl. 21; 1 P. Wms. 570.

(l) Duncuft v. Albrecht, 12 Sim. 189, 199.

joint-stock company, the court will decree a specific performance as against the vendor, provided the rights of third parties have not in the meantime intervened (m). And a contract with a company to take up and pay for any debentures of the company may be enforced by an order for specific performance (n). A sale of an annuity payable out of the dividends of particular stock has been enforced in specie (o). Where certain numbered railway shares were sold by auction, and the purchaser paid his purchase-money, but did not take a transfer of the shares, and then sold to a third party who refused to register himself as owner of the shares, and calls were made on the shares which were left unpaid, it was held that the original vendor was entitled to a decree for specific performance against the original purchaser (p). The court will not enforce performance of a contract for the purchase of scrip certificates in projected companies, and will not, when the company has been completely registered or incorporated, compel the purchaser to take a transfer of the corresponding shares from his vendor, or to indemnify the latter from calls subsequently made (q). Nor will specific performance be decreed where the directors, under the powers conferred by a deed of association, refuse to assent to the transfer (r). If a party has signed an application for shares in a registered joint-stock company, and shares have been allotted to him in consequence of his application, the Court of Chancery will compel him to sign the written acceptance of the transfer, and pay the calls due on the shares (s).

(m) Doloret v. Rothschild, 1 Sim. & St. 590 ; 2 L.J. (O.S.) Ch. 125 ; Cheale v. Kenward, 3 De G. & J. 27 ; 27 L.J. Ch. 784.

(n) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, 8 Edw. 7, c. 69, s. 105.

(o) Withy v. Cottle, 1 Sim. & St. 174 ; 1 L.J. (O.S.) Ch. 117.

(p) Shaw v. Fisher, 12 Jur. 152 ; 2 De G. & S. 11 ; Paine v. Hutchinson, L.R. 3 Ch. 388 ; 37 L.J. Ch. 485.

(q) Jackson v. Cocker, 4 Beav. 59 ; 10 L.J. Ch. 236 ; Columbine v. Chichester, 2 Ph. 27 ; 15 L.J. Ch. 408.

(r) Bermingham v. Sheridan, 33 Beav. 660 ; 33 L.J. Ch. 571.

(s) New Brunswick Co. v. Muggeridge, 1 Dr. & S. 363 ; 30 L.J. Ch. 242.

CHAPTER II.

THE CONTRACT OF LETTING.

SECTION I.

LANDLORD AND TENANT.

Leases.—A lease is a contract whereby the temporary use and possession of a house or land are granted by the owner to another for a stipulated or implied remuneration. He who grants the possession and use of the property to be enjoyed for hire is called the lessor or landlord; and he who has the enjoyment of it, paying the rent or hire, is called the lessee or tenant. If the land or realty is granted by deed to be enjoyed for a term, without any payment of rent by the grantee, the grant amounts to a gratuitous loan of the use of the land, and does not create a contract of letting and hiring between the parties. On the other hand a demise for a term of years, if it is by deed, and for the whole term which the lessor has in the premises, operates as an assignment (a).

Agreements for leases.—All agreements for leases must be authenticated by some note or memorandum, signed according to the provisions of the Statute of Frauds (ante, p. 22); and all leases exceeding three years in duration, required by the Statute of Frauds to be evidenced by a signed writing, must now be authenticated by deed (ante, p. 42). Every lease, therefore, in writing, not under seal, for a term exceeding three years in duration, amounts only to an agreement to grant a lease for the term specified (b). But, if an oral agreement for a lease has been entered into, and the intended lessee, relying on the promise of the lessor to grant the lease, takes possession of the land, and expends money in building, draining, and improving, and there is, therefore, a part performance of the contract, the court will enforce the oral contract, and compel the lessor to grant the lease agreed upon, on the ground that, by refusing to grant the lease and give the party possession in execution of the contract, he is guilty of a direct fraud (c). Part performance by a sub-lessee is equivalent to part performance by the lessee (d). When a party has actually been let into possession under an oral contract of demise, and rent has been paid to and received by the landlord, a tenancy from year to year between the parties arises by implication of law (post, p. 659). Possession taken before but continued after an oral contract for a lease for more than three years, if unequivocally referable to the contract, constitutes part performance (e). Every contract to grant a lease implies an agreement by the party contracting to grant the lease that he has a good right and title so to do (f). There may be an independent and collateral agreement to hold land at a rent, which, although it does not operate as a demise without taking possession, yet is a binding undertaking to pay the amount of the rent (g).

(a) Parmenter v. Webber, 8 Taunt. 593; Beardman v. Wilson, L.R. 4 C.P. 57; 38 L.J. C.P. 91.

(b) Bond v. Rosling, Parker v. Taswell, Tidey v. Mollett, 16 C.B. N.S. 298; 33 L.J. C.P. 235, ante, p. 43; Burton v. Reevell, 16 M. & W. 307; 16 L.J. Ex. 85; Rollason v. Leon, 7 H. & N. 73; 31 L.J. Ex. 96.

Present demises.—No precise words are requisite to constitute a present demise. An estate or term of years in the land may be created and vested in a third party, by giving him a licence to enjoy a house, or making an agreement with him that he "shall reside" therein, provided some certain rent or specified service is reserved, or something is given as the consideration of the contract, and possession is given and accepted under the contract (h). If there are any words showing a present intention that one is to give and the other to have possession for a determinate term, a tenancy is created (i). Thus a licence to cut timber on land for a specified term of years, whereby exclusive possession of the land is conferred on the licensee, amounts to a demise of the land, even though there may be reservations or restrictions of the purposes for which the land is to be used (k). The intention may be manifested by expressions contained in a series of letters, as well as by the formal words of a single instrument (l). And, on the other hand, although there be formal words of present demise, yet, if there appears from the face of the entire contract a contrary intention, the instru-

(c) Morphett v. Jones, 1 Swanst. 172; Gregory v. Mighell, 18 Ves. 328; Mundy v. Joliffe, 5 Myl. & Cr. 167; 8 L.J. Ch. 62; Parker v. Smith, 1 Coll. 608. See, however, as to this case, the observations of Ld. Selborne, L.C., in Maddison v. Alderson, 8 App.Cas. 467, at p. 482; 52 L.J. Q.B. 737.

(d) Williams v. Evans, L.R. 19 Eq. 547; 44 L.J. Ch. 319.

(e) Hodson v. Heuland, (1896) 2 Ch. 428; 65 L.J. Ch. 754.

(f) Stranks v. St. John, L.R. 2 C.P. 376; 36 L.J. C.P. 118.

(g) Adams v. Hagger, 4 Q.B.D. 480.

(h) Co. Litt. 45, b; Bac.Ab. Leases (K.); Right v. Proctor, 4 Burr. 2209.

(i) Chapman v. Bluck, 5 Sc. 515, 531; 7 L.J. C.P. 100; Jones v. Reynolds, 1 Q.B. 506; 10 L.J. Q.B. 193.

(k) Glenwood Lumber Co. v. Phillips, (1904) A.C. 405; 73 L.J. P.C. 62.

(l) Chapman v. Bluck, supra; Jones v. Reynolds, supra.

ment will be considered only an agreement for a future lease, and will not operate as a present demise (m).

It is a rule of law that, whatever words are sufficient to explain the intent of the parties that the one shall divest himself of the possession and profits of the land, and the other come into them for such a determinate time, for a certain hire or rent, such words, whether they run in the form of an assignment, or of a licence, covenant, or agreement, are of themselves sufficient, and will in construction of law amount to a lease for years, as effectually as if the most proper and pertinent words had been made use of for that purpose (n). A lease may be made either for life, or for years, or at will; and a contract for letting and hiring of land will, if it cannot operate as an assignment, be supported as a lease, although it was intended to pass all the lessor's interest (o). Whenever the house or land of one man has been occupied by another, the primâ facie presumption is that the use and occupation are to be paid for; and the landlord is entitled to maintain an action to recover a reasonable hire and reward for the use of the land, unless the tenant can show that he entered into possession of the property under circumstances fairly leading to an opposite conclusion. A landlord, on the other hand, who has permitted a tenant to occupy property, and has received rent from the latter for such use and occupation, will be bound by his own acts, and cannot afterwards treat such tenant as a trespasser and turn him out of possession without a proper notice to quit. But, if the transaction amounts only to a commodatum, or gratuitous loan of the property for use, the possession and occupation do not raise a presumption of a contract of letting and hiring between the parties. The occupation of a servant or agent is the occupation of the master or principal; and the former may at any time be removed at the will and pleasure of the latter (p).

Proof of terms of holding.—If a tenancy is actually created by entry on the land and payment of rent, the terms of the tenancy may be proved by oral testimony. Where land was about to be let, and printed papers of the terms of holding were distributed among parties, who assented verbally to the printed terms, and subsequently became tenants, it was held that a

(m) Morgan v. Bissell, 3 Taunt. 72; Doe v. Powell, 8 Sc. N.R. 687; Gore v. Lloyd, 12 M. & W. 463; 13 L.J. Ex. 366; Doe v. Clarke, 7 Q.B. 211; 14 L.J. Q.B. 233; Taylor v. Caldwell, 3 B. & S. 826; 32 L.J. Q.B. 164.

(n) Bac.Abr. Leases (K); Shep. Touch. ch. 14, 272; Bro.Abr. (Lease), pl. 60; Cottee v. Richardson, 7 Exch. 143; 21 L.J. Ex. 52.

(o) Pollock v. Stacy, 9 Q.B. 1033; 16 L.J. Q.B. 132.

(p) Bertie v. Beaumont, 16 East, 33; Hunt v. Colson, 3 M. & Sc. 790; Rex v. Cheshunt, 1 B. & Ald. 473; Mayhew v. Suttle, 4 E. & B. 317; 24 L.J. Q.B. 54; White v. Bailey, 30 L.J. C.P. 253; 10 C.B. N.S. 227.

witness might look at the printed paper to refresh his memory when he was asked to prove the terms of the holding from recollection (q).

Lease by estoppel.—We have already seen (ante, p. 72) that no man is permitted to prove anything in contradiction of his own deed. Where, therefore, a man grants a lease under seal, he is not permitted to avoid his own grant by proving that he had no interest in the demised premises, unless he is a trustee for the public, deriving his authority from an Act of Parliament(r). As between him and his lessee, the lease operates by way of estoppel. "If one makes a lease for years, by indenture, of lands wherein he hath nothing at the time of such lease made, and after purchases those very lands, this shall make good and unavoidable his lease, as well as if he had been in the actual possession and seisin thereof at the time of such lease made; because he, having by indenture expressly demised those lands, is, by his own act, estopped and concluded to say he did not demise them; and if he cannot aver that he did not demise them, then there is nothing to take off or impeach the validity of the indenture, which expressly affirms that he did demise them, and, consequently, the lessee may take advantage thereof, whenever the lessor comes to such an estate in those lands as is capable to sustain and support that lease" (s). And, when the estoppel becomes good in point of interest, the heir of the lessor, and all persons claiming under the lessor by assignment or otherwise, are bound by the estoppel (t). Upon the execution of the lease there is created, in contemplation of law, a reversion in fee simple by estoppel in the lessor (u), which passes by descent to his heir, and by purchase to an assignee(x) or devisee (y). So long, therefore, as a lessee enjoys everything which his lease purports to grant, he has no concern with the title of the lessor or the heir or assignee of the lessor (z). If, however, it appears, by the recitals of the lease, that the lessor had no interest in the land, or that he had only an equitable interest, at the time of the demise, there will be no estoppel (a). The lessee is also in like manner estopped from

(q) Bolton (Lord) v. Tomlin, 5 Ad. & E. 856; 6 L.J. K.B. 45.

(r) Fairtitle v. Gilbert, 2 T.R. 169.

(s) Bac.Abr. Lease (O).

(t) Trevivan v. Lawrence, 1 Salk. 276; 2 Sm. L.C. (ed. 11), 742; Goodtitle v. Morse, 3 T.R. 365, 371; 2 Wms.Saund. 418, a; Doe v. Thompson, 9 Q.B. 1037.

(u) Sturgeon v. Wingfield, 15 M. & W. 224; 15 L.J. Ex. 212.

(x) Cuthbertson v. Irving, 6 H. & N. 135; 29 L.J. Ex. 485.

(y) Driver v. Lawrence, 2 W.Bl. 1259; Doe v. Birchmore, 9 Ad. & E. 662; 8 L.J. Q.B. 108.

(z) Cuthbertson v. Irving, supra.

(a) Pargeter v. Harris, 7 Q.B. 708; 15 L.J. Q.B. 113; Greenaway v. Hart, 14 C.B. 340; 23 L.J. C.P. 115; but see Jolly v. Arbuthnot, 4 De G. & J. 224; 28 L.J. Ch. 547; Morton v. Woods, L.R. 4 Q.B. 293; 38 L.J. Q.B. 81; Punnett, Ex

denying the lessor's title to grant the lease, and setting up such want of title as an answer to an action for the rent by the lessor or his assignee (b); for the law will not suffer the tenant to abuse a possession gained by the confidence of the landlord, and turn it to the injury of the latter (c). But he may show that the lessor's title has expired (d); or that he has been paying rent under a supposed legal obligation which did not in fact exist to a lessor who was not the real owner (e). If he is evicted and deprived of the use and enjoyment of the demised premises by some person claiming by title paramount, the eviction is pleadable in bar to a demand of the rent; but it must be an actual, and not a mere constructive, eviction (f). An attornment to a receiver appointed by the court constitutes a tenancy by estoppel between the tenant and the receiver (g) which the court applies for the purpose of collecting the rents till a decree can be pronounced, taking care that the tenant shall be protected both while the receiver continues to act and when he is withdrawn (h).

Demises by agents.—If the steward of a person not named says to an occupier, "I let you into possession in the name of the landlord," he may afterwards show by parol evidence who that landlord is; and it is not open to the tenant to dispute the title of the unnamed landlord (i). Where an agreement was entered into by an agent in his own name for the letting of a house, and the rent was made payable to the agent in his own name, but at the commencement of the agreement he described himself as agent for the proprietors, it was held that he might show who were the proprietors at the time the agreement was signed, and that the tenant was estopped from disputing their title (k). A land-agent, or collector of rents, has, as such, no implied authority to grant leases (l). But a power to a land-agent to "manage and superintend estates" authorizes him, on behalf of his principal, to enter into an agreement for the usual parte, 16 Ch.D. 226; 50 L.J.Ch. 212; and as to the present state of the authorities on this point, see the notes to Spencer's Case, 1 Sm. L.C. at pp. 97, 98 (ed. 11).

(b) Cuthbertson v. Irving, supra.

(c) Dolby v. Iles, 11 Ad. & E. 335; 9 L.J. Q.B. 51; Phipps v. Sculthorpe, 1 B. & Ald. 50; Levy v. Lewis, 30 L.J. C.P. 141; 9 C.B. N.S. 872.

(d) Claridge v. M'Kenzie, 4 Sc. N.R. 796, 811; 11 L.J. C.P. 72; Fenner v. Duplock, 2 Bing. 10; 2 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 102; Doe v. Skirrow, 7 Ad. & E. 157; Downs v. Cooper, 2 Q.B. 256; 11 L.J. Q.B. 2.

(e) Batten Pooll v. Kennedy, (1907) 1 Ch. 256; 76 L.J. Ch. 162.

(f) Delaney v. Fox, 2 C.B. N.S. 768; 26 L.J. C.P. 248.

(g) Hughes v. Hughes, 1 Ves. 161; Dancer v. Hastings, 4 Bing. 2; 5 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 3.

(h) Evans v. Mathias, 7 E. & B. 590; 26 L.J. Q.B. 309.

(i) Tindal, C.J., Fleming v. Gooding, 10 Bing. at p. 550; 3 L.J. C.P. 214.

(k) Per Mellor, J., Prescott v. Ingram, June 23rd, 1864; Fleming v. Gooding, supra. See further Tanner v. Christian, 4 E. & B. 591; 24 L.J. Q.B. 91; Chapman v. Smith, (1907) 2 Ch. 97; 76 L.J. Ch. 394.

(l) Collen v. Gardner, 21 Beav. 540

and customary leases, according to the nature and locality of the property (m).

Ascertainment and identification of subject-matter of demise.—It may always be shown by parol evidence what was, and what was not, parcel of the demise (n). The date of the demise is primâ facie the time to which the description is to be referred (o), and the intention of the parties is, if possible, to be ascertained (p). If a general description be used in a lease, all the things usually comprehended under such general description will pass to the lessee, unless the surrounding circumstances plainly show that such could not have been the intention. By parol evidence of extrinsic circumstances, a general term may be restricted so as to pass much less than is ordinarily comprised under the common legal acceptance of the term, and, on the other hand, a limited description may be enlarged, so as to comprehend much more than it generally comprises (q). Under the word "cottage" or "house," on the other hand, land may pass, if it can be shown that the land has for a length of time been used and occupied with the cottage or house at one entire rent, and has been commonly reputed to be part and parcel thereof. "Being found to be all one, it passeth well by the lease." Divers things that, by continual enjoyment with the principal thing demised, have by common reputation been deemed to belong to it, may well pass as part and parcel of the principal thing demised, if extrinsic circumstances show that such must have been the intention of the parties (r). Wherever there is a sufficient description to ascertain the thing demised, a part of the description which is inaccurate may be rejected (s).

Things appurtenant.—When a man grants a thing to be used for hire, he grants it with all such appurtenances as properly belong to it, and with all such rights of way as are necessary to enable the hirer to have that use of the thing demised for which the hire is agreed to be paid (t). But a grant of realty, to be used by the grantee for a term for rent or hire, transfers to the latter a right only, as we shall presently see, to use the subject-

(m) Peers v. Sneyd, 17 Beav. 151.

(n) Skipworth v. Green, 8 Mod. 311.

(o) Crisp v. Price, 5 Taunt. 548; Kerslake v. White, 2 Stark. 508.

(p) Doe v. Burt, 1 T.R. 701, 703.

(q) Doe v. Burt, supra; Bryan v. Wetherhead, Cro.Car. 17; Kerslake v. White, supra; Martyr v. Lawrence, 10 Jur. N.S. 859; 2 De G. J. & S. 261; Doe v. Galloway, 5 B. & Ad. 43; 2 L.J. K.B. 182.

(r) Gennings v. Lake, Cro.Car. 168; Ongley v. Chambers, 1 Bing. 483, 496; 2 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 49.

(s) Doe v. Galloway, 5 B. & Ad. 43 2 L.J. K.B. 182; Cowen v. Truefitt (1898) 2 Ch. 551; 67 L.J. Ch. 695; affirmed on other grounds, (1899) 2 Ch. 309; 68 L.J. Ch. 563.

(t) Morris v. Edgington, 3 Taunt. 24; Kooystra v. Lucas, 5 B. & Ald. 830; Harding v. Wilson, 2 B. & C. 96; 1 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 238; Maitland v. Mackinnon, 1 H. & C. 607; 32 L.J. Ex. 49. See also 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41, s. 6 (1), (2).

matter of the demise in the way in which it has been previously used. Many things, therefore, which pass by a grant in fee, so as to give the grantee an absolute dominion over them, do not pass by a lease so as to give the lessee a right to use them as part of the proceeds of the subject-matter of the demise. The lessee, for example, has a right only to the casual profits of trees; he has no right to cut them down and sever them from the freehold and inheritance (u). He has a right to the profits of mines and quarries opened at the time of the demise (x), but has no right to open fresh mines and quarries where none before existed.

Commencement and duration of leases.—Leases for lives, as well as leases for terms of years, may now be made to commence from a day that is passed, or from a day to come, as well as from the day of the making of the lease. If the lease is limited to commence "from the date," or "from the day of the date," the words are either inclusive or exclusive, according to the context of the written instrument, and the apparent intention of the contracting parties (y). A lease "from the day of the date," and "from henceforth," is the same thing; if, therefore, a lease be dated the 1st of December, and be granted to commence "from henceforth," and be sealed and delivered on the 12th of December, the lease commences in contemplation of law from the 1st of December (z). If in the case of a present demise no time is mentioned for the commencement of the lease (a), or if the date is an impossible date (b), the term will be deemed to begin from the day of the delivery of the deed, or of the making of the demise, if extrinsic circumstances do not rebut such a presumption (c). But it is otherwise in the case of an executory agreement for a lease (d). The commencement of the term is necessarily controlled by extrinsic circumstances, as well as by the express terms of the deed (e). Where a lease was dated the 25th of March, 1783, and the term was granted to commence "from the 25th of March now last past," and it was proved that the deed was not executed until some time after the day on which it was dated, it was held that the (u) See further post, p. 691; Addison on Torts (ed. 8), pp. 359 et seq., as to what constitutes waste.

(x) Co. Litt. 53, b, 54, b; Astry v. Ballard, 2 Mod. 193; Elias v. Snowdon Slate Co., 4 App.Cas. 454; 48 L.J. Ch. 811.

(y) Pugh v. Leeds (Duke), Cowp. 714; and see ante, p. 58.

(z) Llewelyn v. Williams, Cro.Jac.258.

(a) Co. Litt. 46, b.

(b) Bac.Abr. Leases (L) 1.

(c) Styles v. Wardle, 4 B. & C. 908; 4 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 81; Higham v. Cookes, 4 Leon. 144.

(d) Marshall v. Berridge, 19 Ch.D. 233; 51 L.J. Ch. 329, overruling Jaques v. Millar, 6 Ch.D. 153; 47 L.J. Ch. 544; Rock Portland Cement Co. v. Wilson, 52 L.J. Ch. 214.

(e) Lander's Contract, In re, (1892) 3 Ch. 41; 61 L.J. Ch. 707.

term commenced on the 25th of March, 1783, and not on the 25th of March, 1782 (f). If the land is demised "for a year, and so on from year to year," or "for a year, and afterwards from year to year," this is a lease for two years certain at least (g). But, if the demise is from year to year, so long as both parties please, it is a lease only for a year certain, and is determinable at the end of the first as well as of any subsequent year (h). If the demise is for "one year certain," and six months' notice afterwards, the lease is only a lease for a year (i). If the land is expressed to be demised for years generally, the lease is said to be good for two years at the least (k). A house and land were demised for the term of six months, and so on from six months to six months, until one of the parties shall give the other six calendar months' notice of his intention to determine the tenancy, and it was held that this was a lease for one year at least (l). An agreement to let premises "for a period of twelve months with the option of a lease of the same after the aforesaid time" at a specified rent per annum operates, upon the exercise of the option, as a tenancy for at least a further period of one year (m), and perhaps as a tenancy for the life of the lessee (n).

If a lease is granted for seven, fourteen, or twenty-one years, and the lessee enters and takes possession of the demised premises, the legal construction of the lease is that the lessee is entitled at his option to take that term which is most beneficial to himself. The lessee therefore has the option, at the expiration of the first seven years, of continuing the lease on for another seven years; and, after that term has expired, for the full period of twenty-one years if he chooses so to do, the courts leaning in favour of that construction which is the most favourable to the lessee (o). Where the lessor agreed not to raise the rent nor turn the tenant out of possession so long as the rent was duly paid quarterly, it was held that this operated as an agreement for a tenancy from year to year. If in a lease under seal the lessor covenants not to raise the rent, nor turn out the (f) Steele v. Mart, 6 D. & R. 392; 4 B. & C. 272.

(g) Bac.Abr. Leases (L), 838; Legg v. Strudwick, 2 Salk. 414; Denn v. Cartwright, 4 East, 29; Doe v. Green, 9 Ad. & E. 658; 8 L.J. Q.B. 100.

(h) Doe v. Smaridge, 7 Q.B. 957; 14 L.J. Q.B. 327.

(i) Thompson v. Maberly, 2 Campb. 573; Jones v. Dixon, 1 H. & C. 48; 31 L.J. Ex. 505.

(k) Bro.Abr. Lease, 13; 6 Co. 35, 36.

(l) Reg. v. Chawton Inhabitants, 1 Q.B. 247; 10 L.J. M.C. 55.

(m) Austin v. Newham, (1906) 2 K.B. 167; 75 L.J. K.B. 563; Bath's (Bishop of) Case, 6 Co. 34, b.

(n) Semble, per Kennedy, J., in Austin v. Newham, supra, based upon the authority of Kusel v. Watson, 11 Ch.D. 129; 48 L.J. Ch. 413.

(o) Dann v. Spurrier, 3 Bos. & P. 399, 404; Doe v. Dixon, 9 East, 15; Goodright v. Richardson, 3 T.R. 462.

tenant, so long as the rent is duly paid, this is a lease for life. If the undertaking is contained in a lease not under seal, it operates only as a simple contract or agreement, for a breach of which the tenant may recover damages from the lessor; but it does not prevent the latter from ejecting the tenant after the ordinary notice to quit (p). If the full extent and duration of the term are uncertain, but there is a certainty for some specific portion of time, the lease will be good for such term or portion of time, and void as to the residue (q). If no time at all is mentioned for the duration of the term, and there has been no entry upon the land nor payment of rent, there is no lease at all; but, if the lessee has actually entered and taken possession, the duration of the term of hiring will be regulated by the nature of the subject-matter of the demise, the times limited for the payment of the rent, and the custom of the country where the property is situate.

Leases from year to year.—In the case of a general demise of farms or lands, no term being mentioned, the presumption is by custom in favour of a yearly hiring (r) in the absence of an express limitation of the term. If a corn-field or an orchard is demised at a customary and ordinary rent, the hiring will be deemed to be for a year, and so on from year to year, in order that the tenant may reap the harvest and gather the fruits when they come to perfection, as the rent is reasonably presumed to be paid for the enjoyment thereof, and not for the barren occupation of the land itself. "If the produce of the demised lands require two years to come to perfection, as if it be licorice, madder, &c., a general holding will, it seems, enure as a tenancy from two years to two years, and cannot be determined by a notice to quit at the end of the first or third year" (s). Where lands were demised to J. H., his heirs, executors, and assigns for ever, at a yearly rent, with a proviso for re-entry in case of non-payment of rent, it was held that the deed created only a tenancy from year to year (t). If an intended lessee enters into possession of realty under an agreement for a lease, he is tenant at will or tenant by sufferance until the lease is made; but, if he remains in possession and pays rent, he becomes tenant from year to year until the lease is duly executed according to the agreement (u). In such a case the tenant holds on

(p) Doe v. Browne, 8 East, 165; see Wood v. Beard, 2 Ex.D. 30; 46 L.J. Ex. 100.

(q) Gwynne v. Mainstone, 3 C. & P. 320.

(r) 13 Hen. 8, 15, b; Doe v. Watt, 7 T.R. 83, 85.

(s) Adams on Eject. 99 (ed. 4), citing Roe v. Lees, 2 W.Bl. 1171.

(t) Doe v. Gardiner, 12 C.B. 319; 21 L.J. C.P. 222.

(u) Mann v. Lovejoy, R. & M. 355; Doe v. Pullen, 3 Sc. 271, 276; 5 L.J. C.P.

such of the terms of the agreement as are applicable to a yearly tenancy; and, if he enters under an agreement for a seven years' lease by which he is to do certain repairs in the last year of the term, and holds during the whole of the seven years, he must do the repairs (x). If a tenant holds over after the expiration of the term, and the landlord receives from him rent which has accrued due subsequently to the expiration of the lease, he becomes a tenant from year to year (y).

If a man takes possession of premises under an invalid lease from a tenant for life, and the remainderman accepts rent, or does any act recognising the party in possession as his tenant, the latter forthwith becomes a lessee from year to year (z); but the mere acceptance of two shillings and sixpence in a chief rent is not sufficient evidence of a tenancy from year to year (a). So, if a man enters into possession as an intended purchaser, and agrees "to pay and allow" to the vendor "at the rate of 100*l.* per annum from the time of taking possession of the premises until the completion of the purchase in equal half-yearly payments," he becomes tenant to the intended vendor "at a fixed rent of 100*l.* per annum, payable half-yearly" (b). A tenancy from year to year is ordinarily implied from the payment and acceptance of rent (c); but this primâ facie presumption may be rebutted by showing that the money was paid or received by mistake. Since the Judicature Act the rules of equity prevail; and if there is an agreement for a lease, the tenant holds under the terms of it before any payment of rent (d). The notion of a tenancy from year to year, the lessor binding himself not to give notice to quit, has long been exploded (e). A tenancy from year to year recommences every year (f). A demise by a tenant from year to year to another, also to hold from year to year, is, in con-

229; Doe v. Smith, 1 M. & R. 137; Knight v. Bennett, 11 Moore, 223; 4 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 95; Doe v. Amey, 12 Ad. & E. 476; 4 P. & D. 177; Braythwayte v. Hitchcock, 10 M. & W. 494; 12 L.J. Ex. 38.

(x) Martin v. Smith, L.R. 9 Ex. 50; 43 L.J. Ex. 42.

(y) Bishop v. Howard, 2 B. & C. 100; 1 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 243; and see Morgan v. Harrison, (1907) 2 Ch. 135; 76 L.J. Ch. 548.

(z) Doe v. Morse, 1 B. & Ad. 365.

(a) Smith v. Widlake, 3 C.P.D. 10; 47 L.J. C.P. 282.

(b) Saunders v. Musgrave, 6 B. & C. 524; 5 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 192.

(c) As to a yearly tenancy created by estoppel, see Jump v. Payne, 68 L.J. Q.B. 607.

(d) Walsh v. Lonsdale, 21 Ch.D. 9; 52 L.J. Ch. 2; Lowther v. Heaver, 41 Ch.D. 248; 58 L.J. Ch. 485; Allhusen v. Brooking, 26 Ch.D. 559; 53 L.J. Ch. 522; Zimbler v. Abrahams, (1903) 1 K.B. 577; 72 L.J. K.B. 103.

(e) Doe v. Browne, 8 East, 167.

(f) Tomkins v. Lawrance, 8 C. & P. 731; Berry v. Lindley, 3 M. & Gr. 498; 11 L.J. C.P. 27; Gandy v. Jubber, 33 L.J. Q.B. 151; 5 B. & S. 78; Doe v. Dobell, 1 Q.B. 806; 10 L.J. Q.B. 242; but this has been doubted, see Bartlett v. Baker, 34 L.J. Ex. 8, 11; 3 H. & C. 153.

templation of law, a demise from year to year during the continuance of the original demise to the intermediate landlord (g).

Half-yearly, quarterly, monthly, and weekly hirings.—If an annual rent is reserved, the holding is from year to year, although the contract of demise provides that the tenant shall quit at a quarter's notice (h). Such a contract differs only from the usual letting from year to year in the agreement by the parties to reduce the ordinary six months' notice to quit to three months. But, if it is expressly agreed that the tenant is always to be subject to quit at six months' notice given him at any time, this constitutes a half-yearly tenancy, and the lessee will be presumed to hold from six months to six months from the time that he entered as tenant. If he is to hold until one of the parties shall give unto the other three months' notice to quit at the expiration of such notice, the tenancy will be a quarterly tenancy (i). In the case of a demise of an unfurnished mansion at an annual rent, payable half-yearly or quarterly, the hiring is a hiring from year to year. In the case of cottages or unfurnished apartments in a house demised at a monthly or weekly rent, the presumption is in favour of a monthly or a weekly tenancy. Where a wharf, warehouse, and buildings were let on the terms that a quarter's rent should be paid down on the day of the commencement of the tenancy, and should be continued to be paid in advance during the continuance of the hiring, it was held that this was a quarterly and not a yearly hiring (k). There is no objection in law to a tenancy determinable by a week's notice to quit, and a reasonable time being allowed after the expiration of the notice for the tenant to remove his goods (l).

Tenancy at will.—If the lessor reserves to himself a right of re-entry at his own will and pleasure, or the lease contains an express stipulation to the effect that the tenancy may be put an end to at the will of either party (m), the holding is a tenancy at will (n). The reservation of a yearly or quarterly rent is not inconsistent with a tenancy at will (o). A mere permission to occupy creates a tenancy at will (p). If a tenant for

(g) Pike v. Eyre, 9 B. & C. 908 ; 8 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 69.

(h) See Lewis v. Baker (No. 2), (1906) 2 K.B. 599 ; 75 L.J. K.B. 848.

(i) Doe v. Grafton, 18 Q.B. 496 ; 21 L.J. Q.B. 276 ; Kemp v. Derrett, 3 Campb. 510.

(k) Wilkinson v. Hall, 4 Sc. 301 ; 6 L.J. C.P. 82 ; Towne v. Campbell, 3 C.B. 921 ; 16 L.J. C.P. 128.

(l) Cornish v. Stubbs, L.R. 5 C.P. 334 ; 39 L.J. C.P. 202.

(m) Co. Litt. 55, a.

(n) Richardson v. Langridge, 4 Taunt. 128 ; Cudlip v. Rundal, 4 Mod. 12 ; 3 Salk. 156 ; Bayley v. Fitzmaurice, 8 E. & B. 664 ; 27 L.J. Q.B. 143 ; Doe v. Wood, 14 M. & W. 682, 684 ; 15 L.J. Ex. 41.

(o) Litt. s. 72 ; Doe v. Davies, 7 Exch. 89, 91 ; 21 L.J. Ex. 60 ; Doe v. Cox, 11 Q.B. 122 ; 17 L.J. Q.B. 3.

(p) Doe v. Wood, 14 M. & W. 682 ; 15 L.J. Ex. 41.

years holds over with the landlord's consent after the expiration of his lease (q), or continues in possession pending a treaty for a further lease (r), or for an assignment of a lease (s), or is admitted into possession pending a treaty for a purchase which falls through subsequently (t), he is strictly a tenant at the will of the landlord, and may be turned out of possession without notice to quit; but if, during the continuance of such a tenancy at will, the landlord has accepted rent from the tenant for the use of the property, the law infers that a yearly tenancy was meant to be created between them (u). A cestui que trust, if in actual possession, is a tenant will to his trustee (x); so is a person who holds rent free by permission of the owner, as, for instance, a dissenting minister put into possession of a chapel and dwelling-house by trustees of a congregation, whose tenancy can be determined instanter by a demand of possession (y). A tenant at will is entitled to retain possession of the land he holds until the lessor has made a demand of possession on the land (z), or has intimated, either by express words or by his conduct and actions, his determination to put an end to the tenancy. The holding may be determined by a letter, stating that, unless the tenant pays the lessor what he owes him, he will, without delay, take measures for recovering possession of the property (a), or by a demand of possession on the part of the landlord (b), or by an agent on his behalf (c), or by his entry on the land (d) without the tenant's consent and making livery of seisin to another (e), or exercising acts of ownership (f); also by his alienation of the reversion (g); by the tenant's quitting the premises; by the death of either of the parties (h); by the bankruptcy of the lessor with the knowledge of the tenant (i);

(q) Doe v. Stennett, 2 Esp. 717.

(r) Com. Dig. tit. Estates (H. 1); Doe v. Stennett, supra; Doe v. Cartwright, 3 B. & Ald. 326.

(s) Doe v. Pullen, 2 Bing. N.C. 749; 5 L.J. C.P. 229.

(t) Doe v. Chamberlaine, 5 M. & W. 14; 9 L.J. Ex. 38; Right v. Beard, 13 East, 210; Howard v. Shaw, 8 M. & W. 118.

(u) Clayton v. Blakey, 8 T.R. 3; 2 Sm. L.C. 127 (ed. 11); Dougal v. McCarthy, (1896) 1 Q.B. 736; 62 L.J. Q.B. 462.

(x) Garrard v. Tuck, 8 C.B. 231; 18 L.J. C.P. 338; Melling v. Leak, 16 C.B. 652; 24 L.J. C.P. 187.

(y) Doe v. Jones, 10 B. & C. 718; 8 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 310; Doe v. M'Kaeg, 10 B. & C. 721.

(z) Co. Litt. 55, b; Right v. Beard, 13 East, 210.

(a) Doe v. Price, 2 M. & Sc. 464; 9 Bing. 356.

(b) Locke v. Matthews, 13 C.B. N.S. 753; 32 L.J. C.P. 98.

(c) Doe v. Price, supra.

(d) Co. Litt. 55, b.

(e) Ball v. Cullimore, 2 Cr. M. & R. 120; 4 L.J. Ex. 137.

(f) Turner v. Doe, 9 M. & W. 643; 11 M. & W. 453.

(g) Doe v. Thomas, 6 Exch. 854; 20 L.J. Ex. 367.

(h) James v. Dean, 11 Ves. 383, 391; Doe v. Rock, 4 M. & Gr. 30; 11 L.J. C.P. 194; Scobie v. Collins, (1895) 1 Q.B. 375; 64 L.J. Q.B. 10.

(i) Doe v. Thomas, supra.

by commission of voluntary waste by the tenant (j); and, in short, by the doing of any act which amounts to a determination of the will on either side. But an act done off the land by the landlord must, in order to bind the tenant, be brought to his notice (k). An entry by the landlord for the purpose of repairing the premises and without objection by the tenant does not determine the tenancy (l). But a tenant at will cannot determine his tenancy by assignment of his interest to a third party, without notice to his landlord (m). If the will is determined, and the landlord's consent to the occupation is withdrawn, so as to create an adverse possession, and the landlord afterwards does any act fairly leading to the presumption that he has renewed his consent to the holding, a fresh tenancy at will is created between the parties (n). A tenancy at will is determined by a mortgage of the premises by the landlord, such mortgage being brought to the knowledge of the tenant (o).

Tenancy by sufferance.—When the landlord has demanded possession, or has done any act which is tantamount to a determination of the will, or when the tenant holds over at the expiration of a lease against the will of the lord, or after the expiration of a notice to quit, the tenant is said to be a tenant at sufferance in contradistinction to a tenant at will (p). The expression, however, is not calculated to give a correct idea of the nature of the holding, and does not seem to have been very happily chosen. Although termed tenant by sufferance, he is understood to hold wrongfully and against the will, and contrary to the permission, of the landlord. He has, consequently, no estate or interest at all in the land; and an action of ejectment may at any time be brought against him without notice or demand of possession; and, if the lord can get possession peaceably, he is entitled to take and retain possession, and so oust the wrongdoer (q). The difference, therefore, between a tenancy at will and what is called a tenancy by sufferance is that, in the one case, the tenant holds by right, and has an estate or term in the land, precarious though it be, and the relationship of lessor and lessee subsists between the parties; in the other, the tenant holds wrongfully and against the will and permission

(j) Co. Litt. 57, a.

(k) Doe v. Thomas, supra; Doe v. Davies, 7 Exch. 89; 21 L.J. Ex. 60.

(l) Lynes v. Snaith, (1899) 1 Q.B. 486; 68 L.J. Q.B. 275.

(m) Pinhorn v. Souster, 8 Exch. 763; 22 L.J. Ex. 266; Co. Litt. 57, a; Shaw v. Barber, Cro.Eliz. 830.

(n) Doe v. Turner, 7 M. & W. 232; 10 L.J. Ex. 213; Turner v. Doe, 9 M. & W. 643; 11 L.J. Ex. 453; Doe v. Thomas, supra.

(o) Jarman v. Hale, (1899) 1 Q.B. 994; 58 L.J. Q.B. 681.

(p) Co. Litt. 57, b.

(q) Fox v. Oakley, Peake's Ad.Ca. 214. As to small tenements, see 1 & 2 Vict. c. 74.

of the lord, and has no estate at all in the occupied premises. When a tenancy at sufferance has existed for twenty (now twelve) years, the landlord's right of entry is barred by statute, and the tenant becomes the absolute and complete owner of the property (r).

Leases under powers.—If a lease granted in the intended exercise of a power of leasing is invalid by reason of the non-observance of the terms of the power, such lease, if made bonâ fide, and if the lessee has entered thereunder, is deemed a contract to grant the lease, and all persons who would have been bound by the lease, if lawfully granted under the power, will be bound by such contract. Acceptance of rent under such invalid lease is a confirmation of the lease as against the person so accepting rent. Leases, also, invalid at the time of the grant thereof, may become valid, if the grantor subsequently acquires the requisite power of leasing (s). In a lease under a power, a covenant to renew the lease at its expiration is a good covenant, even though the lease was for the full term authorised by the power; but when the term expires and the new lease is to be made, it must be shown that the rent and covenants stipulated for are the best rent and the most proper covenants at that time (t).

Rights and liabilities of lessor and lessee.—Every lessor binds himself to give possession and not to give the party to whom he demises a mere right to take possession from a wrong-doer by an action (u); and every lessee binds himself to accept possession and pay rent (v). If a party has agreed to take a house from a particular day, provided certain things are before then done by the landlord, and the things are not done, he may decline to go on with the contract, and may refuse to take possession (w). A lessee who has contracted orally for the hire of realty, and who neglects or refuses to accept possession of the demised premises, cannot, as we have seen (ante, pp. 22, 42), be sued upon such oral agreement for damages for not taking possession, nor upon any oral promise to pay rent, nor for use and occupation. In the case of leases under seal, the law implies from the words "yielding and paying," or any equivalent words

(r) Doe v. Gower, 17 Q.B. 589; 21 L.J. Q.B. 57; 37 & 38 Vict. c. 57, s. 1.

(s) 12 & 13 Vict. c. 26; 13 Vict. c. 17. See Gas Light & Coke Co. v. Towse, infra.

(t) Gas Light & Coke Co. v. Towse, 35 Ch.D. 519; 56 L.J. Ch. 889.

(u) Coe v. Clay, 3 Moo. & P. 57; 7 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 162; Jinks v. Edwards, 11 Exch. 775; Neale v. Mackenzie, 1 M. & W. 747; 6 L.J. Ex. 263; Bract. lib. 2. c. 28. fol. 62. As to agreements for a lease, see Drury v. Macnamara, 5 E. & B. 616; 25 L.J. Q.B. 5.

(v) Stanley v. Hayes, 3 Q.B. 105; 11 L.J. Q.B. 176; Kelly v. Rogers, (1892) 1 Q.B. 910; 61 L.J. Q.B. 604.

(w) Tidey v. Mollett, 16 C.B. N.S. 298; 33 L.J. C.P. 235, ante, p. 43.

amounting to a reservation of rent, a covenant on the part of the lessee to pay the rent so reserved, and, in the case of parol leases, a promise to the like effect (x). But the liability of a lessee upon all express and implied covenants and agreements for the payment of rent is dependent upon his being put into possession, or being tendered and offered the opportunity of taking possession (y). The quiet enjoyment also by the lessee, as against the lessor and all that come in under him by title, and against others claiming by title paramount, during the time in respect of which the rent is claimed to have accrued due, is a condition precedent to the tenant's liability for the payment of such rent. But the tenant is not released from liability by reason of a mere constructive eviction (z), or a disturbance from a mere wrongdoer.

Covenants for quiet enjoyment.—From the use by a grantor of certain words having a known legal operation the law infers a covenant on the part of such grantor to protect the estate; as, if a man by deed demises land for years, the word "demise" imports or makes a covenant in law for quiet enjoyment (a). If by the terms of a lease the lessor "warrants" the demised premises to the lessee, this amounts to an express covenant for quiet enjoyment during the whole term (b). It is in every case a question of fact whether there has been a breach of the covenant for quiet enjoyment; but where the ordinary and lawful use of the demised land is substantially interfered with by the acts of the lessor or those claiming under him, the covenant is broken, even although neither the title to the land nor the possession of the land is otherwise affected (c). The interruption must have been caused either by the direct act of the lessor or those claiming under him, or by some act the consequences of which might have been foreseen when the covenant was entered into (d); but the lessor is not responsible for wrongful or negligent acts which he has not authorised (e). It would seem that an implied covenant for quiet enjoyment does not extend to disturbance by those who hold by title para-

(x) Bac.Abr. Leases, 633; Covenant, B. 342; 1 Roll.Abr. 519.

(y) Holgate v. Kay, 1 Car. & K. 341.

(z) Delaney v. Fox, 2 C.B. N.S. 768; 26 L.J. C.P. 248, ante, p. 655.

(a) Hall v. City of London Brewery Co., 2 B. & S. 737; 31 L.J. Q.B. 257.

(b) Williams v. Burrell, 1 C.B. 429; 14 L.J. C.P. 98, ante, p. 50.

(c) Sanderson v. Berwick (Mayor), 13 Q.B.D. 547; 53 L.J. Q.B. 559. See Jenkins v. Jackson, 40 Ch.D. 71; 58 L.J. Ch. 124; Robinson v. Kelvert, 41 Ch.D. 88; 58 L.J. Ch. 392; Manchester, S. & L. Ry. v. Anderson, (1898) 2 Ch. 394; 67 L.J. Ch. 568; Tebb v. Cave, (1900) 1 Ch. 642; 69 L.J. Ch. 282, but it is doubtful whether this case was rightly decided on the ground of breach of covenant for quiet enjoyment, see Davis v. Town Properties Investment Corporation, (1903) 1 Ch. 797; 72 L.J. Ch. 389.

(d) Harrison v. Muncaster (Lord), (1891) 2 Q.B. 680; 61 L.J. Q.B. 102.

(e) Williams v. Gabriel, (1906) 1 K.B. 155; 75 L.J. K.B. 149.

mount to that of the lessor (f). Covenants for quiet enjoyment are broken, if the lessor builds on his own adjoining land so as to darken the lessee's windows, or does anything thereon which creates a nuisance. The erection of a gate across a lane through which the tenant has a way to the demised premises is a breach of a covenant for quiet enjoyment (g); and so is the placing of any structure upon any part of the demised premises (h). But a decree in Chancery that the land conveyed by the grantor is subject to a general right of common is not a breach of the grantee's covenant for quiet enjoyment where there has been no entry on the land (i). Where the lessors served the lessee's sub-tenants with notice not to pay rent to the lessee, and threatened legal proceedings, it was held to be a breach of the covenant for quiet enjoyment (k). The covenant is prospective, and is only a covenant that from the time of granting the lease the premises shall not be obstructed by any act done thereafter (l), or by the probable or necessary consequence of any act done before the granting of the lease (m). The usual express covenant by the lessor that the lessee shall quietly enjoy, &c., without interruption or disturbance by the lessor or any person claiming under him, is not broken by an entry on the tenant by the land-tax collector to distrain for arrears of land-tax due from the lessor, the disturbance not being by a person claiming by title from the lessor (n). And, where a covenant for quiet enjoyment is accompanied by a covenant by the lessee not to use the land for certain purposes, the first covenant does not guarantee to the tenant that he may lawfully use the land for any purpose not included in the restrictions in the lease (o). So, also, an express covenant that an underlessee should deliver up all landlord's fixtures at the end of the term does not raise an implied covenant that he may remove trade fixtures (p). Whenever a person demises the surface of land, reserving a right to win and work minerals, he cannot exercise the right so as to let

(f) See Markham v. Paget, (1908) 1 Ch. 697; 77 L.J. Ch. 451.

(g) Andrews v. Paradise, 8 Mod. 319; Morris v. Edgington, 3 Taunt. 24.

(h) Kidder v. West, 3 Lev. 167.

(i) Howard v. Maitland, 11 Q.B.D. 695; 53 L.J. Q.B. 42.

(k) Edge v. Boileau, 16 Q.B.D. 117; 55 L.J. Q.B. 90.

(l) Anderson v. Oppenheimer, 5 Q.B.D. 602; 49 L.J. Q.B. 708.

(m) Shaw v. Stenton, 2 H. & N. 858; 27 L.J. Ex. 253.

(n) Stanley v. Hayes, 3 Q.B. 105; 11 Q.B. 176; Kelly v. Rogers, (1892) 1 Q.B. 910; 61 L.J. Q.B. 604; Cohen v. Tannar, (1900) 2 Q.B. 609; 69 L.J. Q.B. 904. As to an implied covenant for title on the part of the lessor, or that he has power to grant an interest co-extensive with that which he assumes to grant, see Line v. Stephenson, 7 Sc. 69; 2 L.J. C.P. 263; Bandy v. Cartwright, 8 Exch. 913; 22 L.J. Ex. 285; Stranks v. St. John, L.R. 2 C.P. 376; 36 L.J. C.P. 118; Budd-Scott v. Daniel, (1902) 2 K.B. 351; 71 L.J. K.B. 706.

(o) Dennett v. Atherton, L.R. 7 Q.B. 316; 4 L.J. Q.B. 165.

(p) Porter v. Drew, 5 C.P.D. 143; 49 L.J. C.P. 482.

down or injure the surface; for that would be derogating from his own grant, and would also be a breach of a covenant for quiet enjoyment (q). It has been held that if a lessor's estate expires during the term, and the lessee is thereupon evicted by title paramount, no action can be maintained against the lessor for the breach of any implied covenant for title or for quiet enjoyment, any such implied covenant terminating with the expiration of the lessor's estate (r); but whether or not any contract is to be implied from the use of the word "let" in an agreement to let, there certainly cannot be implied from it a contract against persons not claiming under the lessor (s). It has also been decided that where there is an agreement to let which is to operate immediately a covenant at law either for quiet enjoyment or for title cannot be implied from the covenant to let or from the use of the word "let" in such an agreement (t).

Covenants for payment of rent.—A covenant for the payment of rent at a specified time, when no particular place of payment is mentioned, is analogous to a covenant to pay a sum of money in gross on a day certain; and it is accordingly incumbent on the covenantor to seek out the person to be paid, and pay or tender him the money (u), if he be intra quatuor maria (x). If the tenancy is a yearly tenancy, and no time is specified for the payment of the rent, the rent will be due once a year (y). If the rent is to be paid free of all outgoings, it must be paid free of land-tax and tithe commutation rent-charge (z). If money is advanced to the lessor by the tenant on account of rent not then due, such payment is a good answer to an action for rent by the lessor or his executors (a). Where the lessor let his land at a rent payable quarterly, and afterwards mortgaged it, but remained in possession, and obtained from the lessee, who had no notice of the mortgage, a year's rent in advance, it was held that the payment of the rent before it became due was not a good payment as against the mortgagee, who, before the rent became due, gave the lessee notice to pay the rent to him (b). A tenant

(q) Proud v. Bates, 34 L.J. Ch. 406. As to what is included under the term "minerals," see Bell v. Wilson, L.R. 1 Ch. 303; 34 L.J. Ch. 572.

(r) Baynes v. Lloyd, (1895) 2 Q.B. 610; 64 L.J. Q.B. 787.

(s) Per Collins, M.R., Jones v. Lavington, 72 L.J. K.B. 98, at p. 102; (1903) 1 K.B. 253.

(t) Jones v. Lavington, supra.

(u) Haldane v. Johnson, 8 Exch. 689, 696; 22 L.J. Ex. 264.

(x) Haldane v. Johnson, supra, at p. 695, citing Shep. Touchst. p. 378.

(y) Collett v. Curling, 10 Q.B. 785; 16 L.J. Q.B. 390.

(z) Parish v. Sleeman, 1 De G. F. & J. 326; 29 L.J. Ch. 96; Sweet v. Seager, 2 C.B. N.S. 119.

(a) Nash v. Gray, 2 F. & F. 391.

(b) De Nicholls v. Saunders, L.R. 5 C.P. 589; 39 L.J. C.P. 297; Cook v. Guerra, L.R. 7 C.P. 132; 41 L.J. C.P. 89.

having made such a payment voluntarily cannot recover it back from the lessor in an action for money had and received (c). Where under a lease for a fixed term, the lessees, a limited company, and the defendants as sureties covenanted for due payment of the rent "during the said term," and the lease with the lessor's consent was assigned to another company, the defendants remaining sureties, it was held upon the dissolution subsequently of the second company that the term had come to an end so that the sureties were no longer liable for the rent (d).

Covenants not to "let, set, or demise," restrain an assignment (e), and run with the land (f). Covenants not to "set, let, or assign over" (g), or not to "assign or otherwise part with," the demised premises (h), restrain an under-lease. It has been held that a covenant not to "grant any underlease, or let, assign, or otherwise part with, the demised premises or any part thereof," is not broken by taking in a lodger who has the exclusive possession of the room he occupies (i). Where a lessee took a person into partnership, and agreed that he should have the exclusive use of a back chamber and some other parts of the demised premises, and the joint use of the rest, it was held that the covenant had been broken, and that the right to re-enter had accrued (k). And, in the case of a lease to two partners, an assignment by one partner of his undivided moiety of the lease to the other partner is a breach of a covenant not to assign (l). The covenant is broken even where the lessee for the time being assigns to the original lessee (m). A covenant not to assign "the said premises" is not broken by the assignment of a portion only of the premises (n). A limited company has been held to come within the words "a respectable and responsible person" in a covenant against assigning without the lessor's consent (o). A covenant by a lessee that he will not let or underlet for more than a year does not prevent him from granting leases to commence at a future day (p). A devise of the term to a stranger is an

(c) Higgs v. Scott, 7 C.B. 63.

(d) Hastings Corporation v. Letton, (1908) 1 K.B. 378; 77 L.J. K.B. 149.

(e) Greenaway v. Adams, 12 Ves. 395.

(f) Per Ld. Russell of Killowen, see Horsey Estate v. Steiger, 68 L.J. Q.B. 743, at p. 746; (1899) 2 Q.B. 79, and authorities there cited.

(g) Roe v. Harrison, 2 T.R. 425.

(h) Doe v. Worsley, 1 Campb. 20.

(i) Doe v. Laming, 4 Campb. 73; but see Greenslade v. Tapscott, 1 Cr. M. & R. 55; 3 L.J. Ex. 328.

(k) Roe v. Sales, 1 M. & S. 297.

(l) See Bristol Corporation v. Westcott, 12 Ch.D. 461; Varley v. Coppard, L.R. 7 C.P. 505.

(m) M'Eacharn v. Colton, (1902) A.C. 104; 71 L.J. P.C. 20.

(n) Grove v. Portal, (1902) 1 Ch. 727; 71 L.J. Ch. 299.

(o) Wilmott v. London Road Car Co., (1910) 2 Ch. 525; 80 L.J. Ch. 1.

(p) Croft v. Lumley, 6 H.L.Cas. 672, 737; 27 L.J. Q.B. 321, 330.

assignment within the meaning of the proviso or covenant, but not a devise to the lessee's own executor (q), nor an assignment by act and operation of law (r), or by the act of God, nor an assignment by the sheriff under an execution, unless the execution has been obtained by collusion with the creditor in fraud of the covenant (s). If the lessee does assign or underlet, notwithstanding his covenant, the assignment or underlease is good, and the lessee is only liable to an action on his covenant (t), unless there is a proviso in the original lease for re-entry in case of a breach of the covenant (u). Where the lessee covenants not to assign without the consent of the lessor, "such consent not to be arbitrarily withheld," these words do not amount to a covenant by the lessor to give his consent; but an arbitrary refusal would leave the lessee at liberty to assign without consent (x). Where the covenant provided that the licence to assign was "not to be unreasonably withheld," and the lessor refused to give a licence to assign to the lessee's wife except on condition that the lessee himself covenanted to pay the rent and perform the covenants of the lease, it was held that the condition was unreasonable (y). Where the lessee covenanted to reside on the premises—a public-house—and personally conduct the business and also not to assign without the lessor's consent "not to be unreasonably withheld," it was held that the lessor could reasonably withhold his consent to a proposal to assign the lease to a limited company as the latter could not fulfil the covenant to reside on the premises and personally conduct the business (z). Where the lessor's consent is to be first obtained, and not to be unreasonably withheld from any assignment or underlease, an assignment or underlease without such consent is a breach of the covenant (a). Where a lessee under such a covenant contracted to assign subject to his landlord's approval, and he would not give leave, it was held that the lessee was not bound to take legal proceedings to compel his landlord to consent, but might

(q) Bac.Abr. Lease, T.

(r) Goring v. Warner, 7 Vin.Abr. 85, pl. 9; Doe v. Smith, 5 Taunt. 795.

(s) Doe v. Carter, 8 T.R. 57, 300.

(t) Paul v. Nurse, 8 B. & C. 486; 7 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 12.

(u) Roe v. Harrison, 2 T.R. 425; see also Metropolitan Water Board v. Solomon, (1908) 2 Ch. 214; 77 L.J. Ch. 517, and post, p. 712.

(x) Treloar v. Bigge, L.R. 9 Ex. 151; 43 L.J. Ex. 95; Lehmann v. McArthur, L.R. 3 Ch. 496; 37 L.J. Ch. 625; Sear v. House Property Society, 16 Ch.D. 387; 50 L.J. Ch. 77; Young v. Ashley Gardens Properties, (1903) 2 Ch. 112; 71 L.J. Ch. 520; Sparke's Lease, In re, (1905) 1 Ch. 456; 74 L.J. Ch. 318.

(y) Evans v. Levy, (1910) 1 Ch. 452; 79 L.J. Ch. 383.

(z) Jenkins v. Price, (1908) 1 Ch. 10; 77 L.J. Ch. 41.

(a) Eastern Telegraph Co. v. Dent, (1899) 1 Q.B. 835; 68 L.J. Q.B. 564. See Horsey Estate v. Steiger, (1899) 2 Q.B. 79; 68 L.J. Q.B. 743, as to a mere agreement to assign not being a breach of a covenant not to assign.

consider his contract with the third party at an end (b). By sect. 3 of the Conveyancing Act, 1892 (c), no fine or sum of money in the nature of a fine (d) may be exacted for a licence to assign unless it is expressly provided for in the lease; but the effect of that section is not to render the payment of money by the lessee to the lessor for giving his consent to an assignment illegal, but only to read into the lease the provisions of the section as a qualification of the covenant against assignment without consent (e). Where a lessor refuses his consent to an assignment except upon terms inconsistent with the provisions of sect. 3, the lessee may disregard the covenant and assign as if such consent had been given (f). A covenant not to assign is not a usual covenant (g). The fact that a debtor has been adjudicated bankrupt on his own petition does not constitute a breach of a covenant not to assign (h).

Non-execution of lease by lessee.—A person who has neither sealed and delivered an indenture of lease, nor entered and taken possession under it, cannot be made responsible upon the covenants contained in the indenture; but, if he enters and takes possession by force of the lease, he is deemed in law to have covenanted to hold upon the terms of the indenture and to observe the conditions of the lease, and the lessor, therefore, may distrain or bring an action for the arrears of rent (i). If land is leased to two for a term of years, and one puts his seal, and the other agrees to this lease, and enters and takes the profits with him, he shall be charged to pay the rent, though he has not put his seal to the deed; but, if there is a condition comprised in the deed which is not parcel of the lease, but a condition in gross, if he does not put his seal to the deed, though he is a party to the lease, he is not a party to the condition (k). Where three windmills were demised by letters-patent under seal, which letters-patent contained a clause to the effect that the lessee and his assignees should repair and maintain the windmills during the term, and yield them up in good condition

(b) Lehmann v. McArthur, ante, p. 669.

(c) 55 & 56 Vict. c. 13, s. 3. See Cosh's Contract, In re, (1897) 1 Ch. 9; 66 L.J. Ch. 28.

(d) As to what a "fine" includes, see 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41, s. 2 (9); Waite v. Jennings, (1906) 2 K.B. 11; 75 L.J. K.B. 542.

(e) Andrew v. Bridgman, (1908) 1 K.B. 596; 77 L.J. K.B. 272.

(f) Andrew v. Bridgman, supra, following the principle on which Treloar v. Bigge, L.R. 9 Ex. 151; 43 L.J. Ex. 95, was decided.

(g) Hampshire v. Wickens, 7 Ch.D. 555; 47 L.J. Ch. 243; Bishop v. Taylor, 60 L.J. Q.B. 556; Wilson v. Redhead, 28 W.R. 795.

(h) Riggs, In re, (1901) 2 K.B. 16; 70 L.J. K.B. 541.

(i) Brett v. Cumberland, 2 Roll. 63; Litt. sec. 58, 374; Lyme Regis (Mayor) v. Henley, 1 Bing. N.C. 237; Gregg v. Coates, 23 Beav. 33.

(k) Bro.Abr. Dette, pl. 80; Fitz.Abr. Dette, pl. 117; Co. Litt. 231, b; 2 Roll. Rep. 63.

at the expiration thereof, and the lessee entered under the grant and took possession of the windmills, it was held that there resulted from the acceptance of the estate an express covenant to repair, which was annexed to the term granted, and ran with the land, and bound both the lessee and his assignees by reason of the privity of estate (l). Where a lessee entered into possession of a house under an agreement to repair, and paid rent, and the lessor sold the estate and assigned all his interest to the plaintiff, and the lessee continued to occupy and paid rent to the plaintiff, it was held that the lessee must be presumed, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, to have agreed to continue to hold of the plaintiff on the same terms as he held of the original lessor, and that he was therefore responsible to the plaintiff for a breach of his agreement to repair (m).

Non-execution of lease by lessor.—It is said that, if an indenture of lease be sealed only on the part of the lessee, and not on the part of the lessor, nihil operat, neither in respect of the interest nor in respect of the covenants; for the covenants depend upon the lease, and if there is no lease there is no covenant; for, if the lease had been made and afterwards surrendered, all the covenants had been void (n). Where an indenture of demise for the term of eleven years, containing covenants to pay rent and repair, was executed by the lessee alone, and the latter entered and took possession and paid rent for several years, and the lessor assigned his reversion without ever having executed the lease, it was held that the assignee of the reversion could not sue upon any of the covenants of the lease, as the lease for eleven years to which they were annexed had never been created; that the only reversion which could carry with it the right to sue upon the covenant was a reversion expectant upon the determination of the term for eleven years, which reversion had never been in existence by reason of the non-execution of the lease by the lessor (o). But, as between the original parties, where a privity of contract exists between them, the lessee may, under certain circumstances, be held liable upon the covenants contained in the indenture, though the lease has not been executed by the lessor and the term created. It has been said that every lease must be construed in connection with surrounding circumstances, and that a lessee may, by entering upon, and taking possession of, tenements under an indenture sealed by him, and by dispensing with the

(l) Brett v. Cumberland, ante, p. 670.
(m) Arden v. Sullivan, 14 Q.B. 832; 19 L.J. Q.B. 268.
(n) Soprani v. Skurro, Yelv. 18.
(o) Cardwell v. Lucas, 2 M. & W. 111; 5 L.J. Ex 52.

execution of the indenture by the lessor, render himself liable to be sued upon his covenants, as independent covenants, on the ground that a party may waive a condition in his favour and dispense with its performance; and that, if a lessee executes his part of an indenture of lease, and enters and takes possession of the demised premises, and has the use of them, and gathers all the produce and profits of the soil for the whole term intended to be granted without ever having required the lessor to execute the indenture, he ought in justice to be deemed to have waived his right to treat the execution of the lease by the lessor as a condition precedent to his liability upon his covenants; and the Court of Queen's Bench has held that a lessee who has executed an indenture of demise containing a covenant to repair, and has entered and enjoyed for the whole term intended to be granted, is liable on his covenant, though the lease has never been executed by the lessor, and that the covenant becomes, under such circumstances, an independent covenant within the rule laid down in Comyn's Digest (p), "that, if one party executes his part of an indenture, it shall be his deed, though the other does not execute his part" (q). In a later case the Court of Exchequer held that the entry and taking of possession by the lessee before the execution of the lease by the lessor did not render the covenants to pay rent and repair independent covenants (r); but this would hardly be the case now if the lease were one in respect of which specific performance could be decreed (s).

Concealment of latent defects.—In contracts for the letting and hiring of realty, the lessor is not bound to disclose to the lessee latent defects interfering with the use and enjoyment of the property let to hire (t). A lessor of a house, for example, who knows that the house is in a ruinous and dangerous state and unfit for occupation, is not bound to disclose the fact to his lessee at the time that he grants the lease (u).

Having executed the lease, and put the lessee into possession of the demised premises, the lessor has done all that is necessary for him to do to entitle himself to the rent; he does not,

(p) Com. Dig. Fait (C.), 2.

(q) Cooch v. Goodman, 2 Q.B. 599; Littledale, J., Richardson v. Gifford, 1 Ad. & E. 55; 3 L.J. K.B. 122; Hughes v. Clark, 10 C.B. 905; How v. Greek, 3 H. & C. 391; 34 L.J. Ex. 4.

(r) Pitman v. Woodbury, 3 Exch. 4; 12; Swatman v. Ambler, 8 Exch. 72; 22 L.J. Ex. 81.

(s) Walsh v. Lonsdale, 21 Ch.D. 9; 52 L.J. Ch. 2; and see Manchester Brewery Co. v. Coombs, (1901) 2 Ch. 608; 70 L.J. Ch. 814.

(t) Hart v. Windsor, 12 M. & W. 68; 13 L.J. Ex. 129; Cornfoot v. Fowke, 6 M. & W. 358; 9 L.J. Ex. 297.

(u) Keates v. Cadogan (Earl), 10 C.B. 591; 29 L.J. C.P. 76. As to the implied condition that premises let to persons of the working classes are fit for human habitation at the commencement of the holding, see 53 & 54 Vict. c. 70, s. 12, post, p. 673.

in the case of demises of realty, warrant that the premises are, at the time of the demise, or that they shall continue to be during the term, in any particular condition, or fit for any particular purpose; and the lessee, therefore, is bound to pay his rent, although the subject-matter of the demise is not fit for the purpose for which he required it, and although he may have had no beneficial use of it. If, indeed, the lessor has been guilty of any fraudulent concealment of defects, or has resorted to any misrepresentation calculated to mislead the lessee in some important particular, the contract will be void, and the lessee will be discharged from the rent; but, in the absence of all fraud and deceit, he is bound by his express covenant or contract, and must pay his rent, although he has not had that beneficial use of the demised premises which was anticipated. Thus, there is no implied warranty on the part of a lessor who lets land for agricultural purposes, that no noxious plants are growing on the demised premises (x); and it has also been held, where the eddish or eatage of a meadow was let for a certain time at a specific rent, that there was no implied warranty by the lessor that the eatage was to be what might be denominated wholesome grass, reasonably fit for the food of cattle, and that the defendant was liable for the rent, although the eddish at the time of the demise was wholly unfit for the purpose for which it was taken, and the defendant had not had any beneficial use of it (y).

Demises of houses unfit for habitation.—Where the defendant in an action by the lessor for the non-payment of the rent of a house, which had been demised to him for a term of years, had declined to pay the rent upon the ground that it was unfit for habitation, and that he could not dwell therein, or have any beneficial use or occupation thereof, by reason of its being greatly infested with bugs, it was held that the law, in the case of demises of unfurnished houses, implies no warranty on the part of the lessor that the house is at the time of the demise, or at the commencement of the term, in a fit condition for habitation (z), or that it will continue to be in a fit condition during the term (a). By sect. 75 of the Housing of the Working Classes Act, 1890 (b), in any contract now made for "letting

(x) Erskine v. Adeane, L.R. 8 Ch. 756; 42 L.J. Ch. 835.

(y) Sutton v. Temple, 12 M. & W. 52; 13 L.J. Ex. 17; 27 Hen. 6 (Trin. Term), fol. 10, pl. 6; Hil. Term, 14 Hen. 4, fol. 27, pl. 35; Bro.Abr. Dette, pl. 18, fol. 220.

(z) Hart v. Windsor, 12 M. & W. 68; 13 L.J. Ex. 129; Manchester Bonded Warehouse Co. v. Carr, 5 C.P.D. 507; 49 L.J. C.P. 809; as to bugs in furnished lodgings, see Smith v. Marrable, 11 M. & W. 5; 12 L.J. Ex. 223, post, p. 761.

(a) Arden v. Pullen, 10 M. & W. 321; 11 L.J. Ex. 359.

(b) 53 & 54 Vict. c. 70, s. 75. Extended by Housing, Town Planning, &c. Act, 1909 (9 Edw. 7, c. 44), ss. 14, 15.

for habitation by persons of the working classes" (c) a house or part of a house a condition is to be implied that the house is at the commencement of the holding in all respects reasonably fit for human habitation; and by sect. 12 of the Act of 1903 (d), the above section of the principal Act is, as respects any contract now made, to take effect notwithstanding any agreement to the contrary, and any such agreement is void. The provisions of sect. 75 of the principal Act enable a tenant of premises within the Act to sue his landlord for damages for injuries caused by their being in a defective state of repair at the commencement of the tenancy (e).

Payment of rent.—Although, therefore, houses become ruinous and fall down, and fences and crops be destroyed by floods, or burned by lightning or accidental fire, or be thrown down by enemies, yet is the tenant liable to pay the rent so long as the land remains to him, and his legal title to the occupation and use thereof continues (f). If the landlord is bound by custom, or has entered into an express covenant to repair a house demised by him, and the lessee covenants to pay rent, the covenants are independent covenants, and the repairing of the house by the lessor is not a condition precedent to the liability of the lessee upon his covenant (g).

Payment of rent—Exception of damage by fire.—If the lessee has covenanted to pay rent, "damage by fire excepted," and part of the demised premises is destroyed by fire, the entire rent is not thereby suspended, but the tenant is entitled to an abatement proportionate to the part destroyed (h). And, if the lessee covenants to pay rent, and also to repair, with an express exception of casualties by fire and tempest, the exception is confined to the covenant to repair, and does not qualify or affect the liability upon the covenant to pay rent, unless it has been extended thereto by express words (i).

Payment of rent—Extinction and suspension of rent by eviction.—If the tenant loses the benefit of the enjoyment of (c) This expression means the letting for habitation of a house or part of a house at a rent not exceeding in England the sum named as the limit for the composition of rates by 32 & 33 Vict. c. 41, s. 3, and in Scotland or Ireland four pounds.

(d) 3 Edw. 7, c. 39, s. 12.

(e) Walker v. Hobbs, 23 Q.B.D. 458; 59 L.J. Q.B. 93, decided on 48 & 49 Vict. c. 72, s. 12 (rep.).

(f) Carter v. Cummins, cited 1 Ch.Ca. 84; Pindar v. Ainsley, cited 1 T.R. 312; Bayne v. Walker, 3 Dow, 233; Leeds v. Cheetham, 1 Sim. 146; 5 L.J. (O.S.) Ch. 105; Arden v. Pullen, 10 M. & W. 321; 11 L.J. Ex. 359; Bute (Marquis) v. Thompson, 13 M. & W. 493, 494; 14 L.J. Ex. 95; Lofft v. Dennis, 1 E. & E. 474; 28 L.J. Q.B. 168; Surplice v. Farnsworth, 7 M. & Gr. 576; 13 L.J. C.P. 215.

(g) T. Term, 27 Hen. 6, fol. 10, pl. 6; Bro.Abr. Dette, pl. 18; Surplice v. Farnsworth, supra.

(h) Bennett v. Ireland, E. B. & E. 326; 28 L.J. Q.B. 48.

(i) Monk v. Cooper, 2 Str. 763; Belfour v. Weston, 1 T.R. 310.

any portion of the demised premises by the act of the landlord, the entire rent is thereby suspended (k); but the act must be something of a grave and permanent character, dispossessing the tenant, and not a mere temporary trespass (l); and there must be an actual dispossession of the tenant, and not a mere constructive eviction (m). The tenant is not released from liability by reason of an eviction by a mere wrong-doer and trespasser who has no title. Thus, where an action of debt was brought for three years' arrears of rent reserved upon a lease of a farm, and the defendant pleaded that Prince Rupert, an alien and enemy of the king, invaded the realm, and with divers armed men did enter upon the demised premises, and expel him therefrom, and keep him out, so that he could not enjoy the land during the term, "it was resolved that the matter of the plea was insufficient." And this distinction was taken that, where the law creates a duty or charge, and the party is disabled to perform it without any default in him, and hath no remedy over, there the law will excuse him; but, when the party by his own contract creates a duty or charge upon himself, he is bound to make it good, notwithstanding any accident by inevitable necessity, because he might have provided against it by his contract. Another reason was added that, as the lessee is to have the advantage of casual profits, he must run the hazard of casual losses (n) and not lay the whole burthen of them upon his lessor (o). So, where the parliament, during the civil wars, took possession of a house which had been demised to a lessee for a term of years, and turned it into an hospital for maimed soldiers, and so prevented the lessee from having any beneficial occupation thereof for several years, notwithstanding which the lessor brought an action of debt for the rent, no question appears to have been made but that the lessee was bound at common law to make good the rent; and the lessee consequently brought his bill in equity for relief, on the ground that he had no remedy over against the wrong-doer, because it was an act of force in the parliament, which had been pardoned by the Act of Oblivion; but it does not appear that he got relief even in equity (p).

(k) Co. Litt. 148, b; Upton v. Townend, 17 C.B. 30; 25 L.J. C.P. 44.

(l) Upton v. Townend, 17 C.B. 30, 64; 25 L.J. C.P. 44; Carpenter v. Parker, 3 C.B. N.S. 206; 27 L.J. C.P. 78.

(m) Delaney v. Fox, 2 C.B. N.S. 768; 26 L.J. C.P. 248, ante, p. 655; Wheeler v. Stevenson, 6 H. & N. 155, 158; 30 L.J. Ex. 46.

(n) See Charlesworth v. Watson, (1906) A.C. 14; 75 L.J. K.B. 137, a case where the working of a mine became unprofitable to the lessee.

(o) Paradine v. Jane, Aleyn, 26; Sty. 47; Maryon v. Carter, 4 C. & P. 295; Jervis v. Tomkinson, 1 H. & N. 195; 26 L.J. Ex. 41; Brown v. Royal Insurance Soc., 28 L.J. Q.B. 275; 1 El. & El. 853.

(p) Harrison v. North (Lord), 1 Ch. Ca. 83; as to proof of expulsion, see

Payment of rent—Eviction by railway companies under statutory powers.—If the tenant is lawfully evicted by a railway company under the powers of its Act, the tenant is discharged from the accruing rent, but not from rent that was due and in arrear at the time of the eviction. Where a yearly tenant received notice from a railway company to give up possession of certain land within six months from the notice, and the notice expired in the middle of a half-year, and the tenant gave up possession to the company without obtaining or requiring compensation in respect of his unexpired term and interest in the premises, it was held that he was liable to his landlord for the whole of the half-year's rent (q). When a certain portion only of lands or tenements held by tenants or lessees has been taken by a railway company under the powers of its Act, the rent is to be apportioned; and the rent to be paid by the tenant for the residue of the lands not taken by the company must be settled by agreement of the parties, or by two justices, or by a jury (r).

Payment of rent—Assignment of reversion.—If the lessor, after granting the lease, conveys all his estate and interest in the demised premises, he has no longer any right to the accruing rent (s); nor has the assignee any right to rent accrued due before the assignment (t). The rent passes with the reversion to the lessor's grantee without any attornment on the part of the tenant; but the tenant is not to be prejudiced by payment of rent to the lessor (u), or by breach of any condition for non-payment of rent, before notice of the grant has been given to him by the grantee (x). Prepayment is a good discharge for all rent which has become due before notice of the transfer (y), but not for rent which becomes due after notice (z).

Payment of ground-rent by tenant—Deduction thereof from tenant's rent.—The immediate landlord is by the common law bound to protect his tenant from all paramount claims; and, when, therefore, the tenant is compelled, in order to protect himself in the enjoyment of the land in respect of which his Poole (Mayor) v. Whitt, 15 M. & W. 571; 16 L.J. Ex. 229; as to evidence of eviction, see Morrison v. Chadwick, 7 C.B. 266; 18 L.J. C.P. 189; Henderson v. Mears, 28 L.J. Q.B. 305; Wheeler v. Stevenson, 6 H. & N. 158; 30 L.J. Ex. 46; Pellatt v. Boosey, 31 L.J. C.P. 281.

(q) Wainwright v. Ramsden, 5 M. & W. 602; 9 L.J. Ex. 120; post, pp. 720 et seq.

(r) 8 & 9 Vict. c. 18, s. 119; Bac.Abr. Rent, M.; Ware, In re, 9 Exch. 395; 23 L.J. Ex. 145.

(s) Harmer v. Bean, 3 Car. & K. 307.

(t) Flight v. Bentley, 7 Sim. 149; Sharp v. Key, 8 M. & W. 379.

(u) 4 Anne, c. 16, s. 9.

(x) 4 Anne, c. 16, s. 10. See Allcock v. Moorhouse, 9 Q.B.D. 366. As to effect of payment to an equitable mortgagee, see Finch v. Tranter, (1905) 1 K.B. 427; 74 L.J. K.B. 345.

(y) Cook v. Guerra, L.R. 7 C.P. 132; 41 L.J. C.P. 89.

(z) De Nicholls v. Saunders, L.R. 5 C.P. 589; 39 L.J. C.P. 297; ante, p. 667.

rent is payable, to make payments which ought, as between himself and his landlord, to have been made by the latter, he is impliedly authorised to make the payment on the landlord's behalf; and the courts have held such payments to be payments in satisfaction of rent due, or accruing due, to the immediate landlord (a). But the tenant should deduct these payments from the next rent that becomes due, or from the rent of the current year; for, if he allows several payments of rent to pass without giving his immediate landlord notice of the payment, and claiming the deduction, he will lose his right to deduct the money he has paid from the rent (b). Payments of money on account of the landlord, not charged upon the demised premises and leviable upon the chattels of the occupier, cannot be given in evidence in satisfaction and discharge of the rent, unless they were expressly directed or sanctioned by the landlord (c).

Deduction of income-tax, land-tax, sewers rate, and other outgoings from rent.—As regards land-tax (d), property-tax (e), sewers rates, &c., charged on land demised to a tenant, the tenant ought to deduct the tax or rate out of the next rent that becomes due. If he fails to do this, he cannot deduct it from subsequent rent, nor can he recover it by action from the landlord (f). The Tithe Act, 1836 (g), has been held not to impose any liability on the landlord to pay the tithe rent-charge (h), but now by the Tithe Act, 1891 (i), the tithe rent-charge issuing out of land is payable by the owner of the lands (k), and in certain cases, where it has been paid by the tenant, may be deducted by him from any sums at any time becoming due from him to the landlord under whom he holds (l). If the landlord is entitled to be relieved from the assessment, it is his duty to take the necessary steps for the purpose; and,

(a) Graham v. Allsopp, 3 Exch. 186, 198; 18 L.J. Ex. 85; Taylor v. Zamira, 6 Taunt. 524; Jones v. Morris, 3 Exch. 742; 18 L.J. Ex. 477. As to deduction of proportionate part of land-tax from ground-rent, see Mansfield v. Relf, post, p. 678.

(b) Andrew v. Hancock, 3 Moore, 278; 1 B. & B. 37; Spragg v. Hammond, 4 Moore, 431; Dawes v. Thomas, (1892) 1 Q.B. 414; 61 L.J. Q.B. 482.

(c) Davies v. Stacey, 12 Ad. & E. 506; 9 L.J. Q.B. 393.

(d) As to land-tax, see 38 Geo. 3, c. 5, ss. 4, 17, 18, 35; and as to redemption of the tax, see 42 Geo. 3, c. 116, ss. 123, 126; 16 & 17 Vict. c. 117, s. 1.

(e) 5 & 6 Vict. c. 35, ss. 60, 103; 16 & 17 Vict. c. 34, s. 40; 27 & 28 Vict. c. 18, s. 15.

(f) Andrew v. Hancock, 3 Moore, 278; 1 B. & B. 37; Denby v. Moore, 1 B. & Ald. 123, 129; Cumming v. Bedborough, 15 M. & W. 438; Dawes v. Thomas, (1892) 1 Q.B. 414; 61 L.J. Q.B. 482.

(g) 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 71, s. 80; 54 & 55 Vict. c. 8, s. 4.

(h) Griffinhoofe v. Daubuz, 4 E. & B. 235; 24 L.J. Q.B. 20.

(i) 54 & 55 Vict. c. 8, s. 1.

(k) See ante, p. 90, as to contract for tenant to pay charge being void, and see 54 & 55 Vict. c. 8, ss. 1 (3), 2, as to modes of recovering tithe rent-charge.

(l) 54 & 55 Vict. c. 8, s. 4.

if, before he has done this, the assessment is made on the occupier, and the tax paid, it may be deducted from the rent, although at the time the deduction is made the landlord has obtained his exemption from the tax (m). The landlord is in general liable to pay taxes in proportion to the rent reserved, and not to the improved value (n). Where land and premises thereon were granted for a term at a ground-rent of 1*l.* 7*s.* per annum clear of all deductions except inter alia land-tax, the lessor covenanting to pay "the land-tax chargeable upon the premises," and the premises, the annual value of which had not increased since the granting of the lease, being assessed at the annual value of 32*l.*, and the land-tax charged thereon at 32*l.* per annum, amounting to 5*s.* 4*d.*, it was held that the lessee was only entitled when paying the ground rent to deduct that part of the land-tax which was proportionate to the ground-rent (o). Where a lessor covenanted to pay all present and future rates and taxes, and the lessee with his consent sub-let at profit rentals whereby the assessment of the premises demised at a rack-rent was increased, it was held that the lessor was liable for the whole of the increased rates (p). Where the lessor was also the owner of the tithe rent-charge upon the land, it was held that a covenant to pay "all taxes and assessments whatsoever for or in respect of the demised premises, save and except the level-tax, property-tax, and land-tax," did not include the tithe rent-charge, and that the lessee was not bound to pay it (q). An agreement by the landlord to repay the tenant all sums which he shall pay for the landlord's property-tax if the tenant will pay his rent in full without any deduction of landlord's property-tax, is good notwithstanding the provisions of the statute (r). But an agreement by the tenant to pay "by way of further rent so much as the landlord shall pay for tithe rent-charge on the said premsies" is void under sect. 1 of the Tithe Act, 1891 (s).

(m) Swatman v. Ambler, 24 L.J. Ex. 185.

(n) Smith v. Humble, 15 C.B. 321.

(o) Mansfield v. Relf, (1908) 1 K.B. 71; 77 L.J. K.B. 145; following Watson v. Home, 7 B. & C. 285; 6 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 73, and Smith v. Humble, supra.

(p) Salaman v. Holford, (1909) 2 Ch. 602; 79 L.J. Ch. 41. As to whether an underlessee is an assign of the lessee, see South of England Dairies v. Baker, (1906) 2 Ch. 631; 76 L.J. Ch. 78.

(q) Jeffrey v. Neale, L.R. 6 C.P. 240; 40 L.J. C.P. 191. See also Tithe Act, 1891 (54 & 55 Vict. c. 8).

(r) 5 & 6 Vict. c. 35, ss. 60, 103; Lamb v. Brewster, 4 Q.B.D. 220, 607; 48 L.J. Q.B. 421; as to agreements to pay rates, including a rate under 37 & 38 Vict. c. 54, s. 3 (rating of mines), see Chaloner v. Bolckhow, 3 App.Cas. 933; 47 L.J. C.P. 562. As to water rate, see Spanish Telegraph Co. v. Shepherd, 13 Q.B.D. 202; 53 L.J. Q.B. 420; Badcock v. Hunt, 22 Q.B.D. 145; 58 L.J. Q.B. 104; Floyd, In re, (1897) 1 Ch. 633; 66 L.J. Ch. 350; Bourn v. Salmon, (1907) 1 Ch. 616; 76 L.J. Ch. 374; 10 & 11 Vict. c. 17, s. 72; 50 & 51 Vict. c. 21, s. 4.

(s) 54 & 55 Vict. c. 8, s. 1; Ludlow (Baron) v. Pike, (1904) 1 K.B. 531; 73 L.J. K.B. 274. See also as to property-tax, Colbron v. Travers, 12 C.B. N.S. 181; 31 L.J. C.P. 257.

Where the lessee covenanted to pay the rent without any deduction, &c., and further "to pay all manner of taxes, &c., charges and impositions whatever, &c., imposed by the authority of parliament or otherwise howsoever," and the lessor was compelled under an Act to abate a nuisance from bad drainage, it has been held that he was not entitled to call upon the lessee to pay (t). A tenant who covenants to pay, bear, and discharge all assessments, charges, or impositions whatever, parliamentary, parochial, or otherwise, which at any time during the continuance of the demise may be charged, assessed or imposed on the lessor, for or in respect of the premises, is liable to recoup his landlord any expenses incurred by him in complying with an order made under the Public Health (London) Act, 1891, to abate a nuisance on the demised premises, inasmuch as such expenses are a charge on the lessor in respect of the premises (u). The word "impositions" in a somewhat similar covenant has been held to embrace an obligation imposed on a landlord in respect of a structural defect which he was called upon to remedy under the Act of 1891 (x), but in cases of this kind he can only recover the expenses if incurred under the order and compulsion of a public authority (y). The expenses of paving a street incurred by a landlord under sect. 150 of the Public Health Act, 1875, have been held not recoverable by him from a tenant under a lease by which the tenant covenanted to pay "all rates, taxes, the assessments whatsoever which then are or during the said term shall be imposed or assessed upon the premises, or the landlord or tenant in respect thereof, by authority of parliament or otherwise" (z); but it has more recently been held that such expenses are recoverable by a landlord under a covenant by his tenant to pay "all rates, taxes, and outgoings now payable or hereafter to become payable" in respect of the demised pre-

(t) Rawlins v. Briggs, 3 C.P.D. 368; 47 L.J. C.P. 487; Tidswell v. Whitworth, L.R. 2 C.P. 326; 36 L.J. C.P. 103; but see Foulger v. Arding, (1902) 1 K.B. 700; 71 L.J. K.B. 499. As to "all outgoings," see Aldridge v. Ferne, 17 Q.B.D. 212; 55 L.J. Q.B. 587.

(u) Smith v. Robinson, (1893) 2 Q.B. 53; 62 L.J. Q.B. 509.

(x) Foulger v. Arding, (1902) 1 K.B. 700; 71 L.J. K.B. 499; Thompson v. Lapworth, L.R. 3 C.P. 149; 37 L.J. C.P. 74.

(y) Hartley v. Hudson, 4 C.P.D. 367; 48 L.J. C.P. 751; Budd v. Marshall, 5 C.P.D. 481; 50 L.J. C.P. 24; Allum v. Dickinson, 9 Q.B.D. 632; 52 L.J. Q.B. 190; Foulger v. Arding, supra; Harris v. Hickman, (1904) 1 K.B. 13; 73 L.J. K.B. 31; Wix v. Rutson, (1899) 1 Q.B. 474; 68 L.J. Q.B. 298; Warriner, In re, (1903) 2 Ch. 367; 72 L.J. Ch. 701; Stockdale v. Ascherberg, (1904) 1 K.B. 447; 73 L.J. K.B. 206. As to lessee's liability under "outgoings" to pay expenses of structural alterations made under the Factory Act, 1901 (1 Edw. 7, c. 22), see Monk v. Arnold, (1902) 1 K.B. 761; 71 L.J. K.B. 441; Goldstein v. Hollingsworth, (1904) 2 K.B. 578; 73 L.J. K.B. 826; Morris v. Beal, (1904) 2 K.B. 585; 73 L.J. K.B. 830; Horner v. Franklin, (1905) 1 K.B. 479; 74 L.J. K.B. 291; Stuckey v. Hooke, (1906) 2 K.B. 20; 75 L.J. K.B. 504.

(z) Baylis v. Jiggens, (1898) 2 Q.B. 315; 67 L.J. Q.B. 793; Wilkinson v Collyer, 13 Q.B.D. 1; 53 L.J. Q.B. 278, mises (a). A covenant by the lessee to pay all "present and future" rates and "outgoings" charged on the demised premises, or the owner, does not cover charges incurred before but only payable after the lease has been granted (b). A lessee who covenanted with the lessor to pay "taxes, rates, duties, assessments and impositions . . . which now are or shall be . . . assessed or imposed on in respect of the . . . premises or of the rent hereby reserved" has been held liable, as between himself and the landlord, under the word "duties," to pay the cost incurred by the latter in abating a nuisance arising from drains in compliance with a notice served upon him under the Public Health (London) Act, 1891 (c). Where the tenant covenanted to pay charges imposed upon frontagers of premises and paid to a local authority under the Metropolis Management Act, 1862 (d), certain paving expenses it was held that such payment was not a payment of rent pro tanto which prevented the landlord from distraining for the amount when deducted by the tenant from the rent (e).

Right to distrain for rent.—The law relating to distress will be found under its respective heads treated at length elsewhere (f), but the right to distrain for rent is here stated generally. The lessor's right to enter in person or by deputy upon the demised premises and distrain the goods and chattels of the tenant for rent or services in arrear has existed in this country from so early a period, "that we have no memorial of its original with us" (g). This power is impliedly accorded to the lessor on every demise of realty where there is an express reservation of, or an agreement by the tenant to pay, a fixed ascertained rent or service (h). If there has been merely a permissive occupation of the property, without any previous payment of rent referable to some certain term of hiring, or to some definite portion of a year, the lessor has no right of entry upon the land nor power to distrain, but must proceed by way of action upon the implied promise of the tenant to pay a fair and reasonable compensation for the permissive use and enjoyment of property (i).

(a) Greaves v. Whitmarsh, Watson & Co., (1906) 2 K.B. 340; 75 L.J. K.B. 633.

(b) Surtees v. Woodhouse, (1903) 1 K.B. 396; 72 L.J. K.B. 302; Stock v. Meakin, (1900) 1 Ch. 683; 69 L.J. Ch. 401.

(c) Brett v. Rogers, (1897) 1 Q.B. 525; 66 L.J. Q.B. 287; Farlow v. Stevenson, (1900) 1 Ch. 128; 69 L.J. Ch. 106; see observations of Collins, M.R., on these cases in Foulger v. Arding, (1902) 1 K.B. 700; 71 L.J. K.B. 499.

(d) 25 & 26 Vict. c. 102, s. 96.

(e) Skinner v. Hunt, (1904) 2 K.B. 452; 73 L.J. K.B. 680.

(f) Post, p. 772; and see Addison on Torts (ed. 8), pp. 318—345.

(g) Gilbert on Distress, p. 2 (ed. 4); 2 Bro.Abr. Distress, fol. 252; Bradby, 2.

(h) Litt. sect. 214.

(i) Dunk v. Hunter, 5 B. & Ald. 322, 325.

Extinguishment of right to distrain by assignment of reversion.—If the lessor, after the making of the demise, conveys the property to a purchaser, he has no power to distrain for the rent that became due prior to the execution of the conveyance, as he is no longer possessed of the reversion expectant upon the determination of the lease (k). Neither can the purchaser distrain for such rent; for it was a fruit fallen from the reversion at the time of the conveyance of the demised premises to him (l). But if the conveyance was preceded by the ordinary agreement between vendor and purchaser vesting the equitable estate in the latter prior to the rent becoming due, the purchaser would be entitled to recover the rent by action (m).

Apportionment of rent and conditions.—The Apportionment Act, 1834(n), respecting the apportionment of rent did not apply to leases created by parol (o). But by the Apportionment Act, 1870 (p), rents are to be considered to accrue from day to day, and are to be apportionable in respect of time accordingly (q). By the Conveyancing Act, 1881, it is provided that, notwithstanding severance of the reversionary estate in any land or the cesser of the term granted by a lease as to part only of the land, every condition contained in the lease shall be apportioned (r). Where land demised under a lease is severed by reason of the assignment of a portion of it, the rent should be apportioned on the basis not of the area of each portion of the land, but of the value computed as at the date of the severance (s).

Compensation for use and occupation of land.—Where land or premises are occupied by the permission express or implied of the person between whom and the person occupying the relation of landlord and tenant exists, the former is entitled to sue the latter in an action for the use and occupation (t). But

(k) Bro.Abr. Dette, pl. 39; Parmenter v. Webber, 8 Taunt. 593; Preece v. Corrie, 5 Bing. 24; 6 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 205.

(l) Midgley v. Lovelace, Carth. 289; 12 Mod. 46.

(m) Anon., Skin. 367; Midgley v. Lovelace, Carth. 290; as to the mode in which a distress must be levied and other incidents, see Addison on Torts (ed. 8), pp. 318 et seq.

(n) 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 22.

(o) Cattley v. Arnold, 1 Jo. & H. 651; 28 L.J. Ch. 352; Plummer v. Whiteley, 29 L.J. Ch. 247; Johns. 585.

(p) 33 & 34 Vict. c. 35, s. 2. As to apportionment of first-fruits and tenths, see Rochester (Bishop) v. Le Fanu, (1906) 2 Ch. 513; 75 L.J. Ch. 743.

(q) Hastings (Lord), Ex parte, 62 L.J. Q.B. 628; Barnett v. Eastman, 67 L.J. Q.B. 517; Ellis v. Rowbotham, 69 L.J. Q.B. 379.

(r) 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41, s. 12; the section only applies to leases made after Dec. 31, 1881. In a case of a lease granted before the above Act, where there was a personal covenant by the defendant to pay rent, and he assigned the term, and his assignee surrendered a portion of the premises to the plaintiff, it was held that the plaintiff could recover rent for the portion not surrendered, and possibly, for the whole: Baynton v. Morgan, 22 Q.B.D. 74; 58 L.J. Q.B. 139.

(s) Salts v. Battersby, (1910) 2 K.B. 155; 79 L.J. K.B. 937.

(t) Turner v. Cameron's Steam Coal Co., 5 Exch. 932; 20 L.J. Ex. 71; Carmier v. Mercer, cited Birch v.

as formerly the plaintiff was nonsuited if a demise was proved, it was provided by sect. 14 of the Distress for Rent Act, 1737 (u), that the landlord, where the agreement is not by deed, is entitled to recover a reasonable satisfaction for the land or premises held or occupied by the defendant in an action for the use and occupation of what was so held or enjoyed; and that if in evidence on the trial of such action any parol demise or any agreement (not being by deed) whereon a certain rent was reserved shall appear the plaintiff is not to be nonsuited but may make use thereof as evidence of the quantum of the damages to be recovered.

Constructive occupation.—An actual personal occupation is not necessary to entitle the landlord to compensation, when the lessee has entered and taken possession, and the term has become vested in him (y). But there must be proof of an actual entry on the land (z) and taking of possession, or it must be shown that there has been an occupation by some other parties standing in such a relation to the defendant that their occupation is his and that he is personally liable for it (a). An entry by one of two joint lessees is an entry by both, so as to render both liable (b). The action is maintainable, where no certain rent has been reserved, and where there is, consequently, no right to distrain (c). The compensation accrues de die in diem, so that if there is no express contract for the payment of rent at specific periods, the lessor is entitled to be paid from day to day so long as the occupation lasts (d). Very slight circumstances, such as entry on the lands (e), the putting up a notice for the purpose of letting (f), sending a woman to clean windows or rooms, or workmen to put up paper or do repairs (g), will suffice to establish the fact of entry and of actual occupation.

An occupation by an under-tenant of the lessee is the lessee's own occupation, as much as if he were himself personally present upon the land (h). But, if one of two joint lessees

Wright, 1 T.R. 387; Newport (Mayor) v. Saunders, 3 B. & Ad. 411; 1 L.J. K.B. 147; Churchward v. Ford, 2 H. & N. 446; 26 L.J. Ex. 354.

(u) 11 Geo. 2, c. 19, s. 14; Churchward v. Ford, supra; Hellier v. Silleox, 19 L.J. Q.B. 295; Levy v. Lewis, 9 C.B. N.S. 872; 30 L.J. C.P. 141; Hardon v. Hesketh, 4 H. & N. 175; 28 L.J. Ex. 137.

(y) Baker v. Holtpzaffell, 4 Taunt. 45; Izon v. Gorton, 7 Sc. 537; 8 L.J. C.P. 272; Pollock v. Stacy, 9 Q.B. 1033; 16 L.J. Q.B. 132.

(z) Edge v. Stafford, 1 Cr. & J. 391; 9 L.J. (O.S.) Ex. 101; Lowe v. Ross, 5 Exch. 553; 19 L.J. Ex. 318; How v. Kennett, 3 Ad. & E. 659; 4 L.J. K.B. 220; Towne v. D'Heinrich, 13 C.B. 892; 22 L.J. C.P. 219.

(a) Bull v. Sibbs, 8 T.R. 327.

(b) Glen v. Dungey, 4 Exch. 61; 18 L.J. Ex. 359.

(c) Waring v. King, 8 M. & W. 571; 11 L.J. Ex. 49; Hamerton v. Stead, 3 B. & C. 478; 3 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 33.

(d) Packer v. Gibbins, 1 Q.B. 421; 10 L.J. Q.B. 224; Gibson v. Kirk, 1 Q.B. 850, 856; 14 L.J. Q.B. 297.

(e) Woolley v. Watling, 7 C. & P. 610.

(f) Sullivan v. Jones, 3 C. & P. 579.

(g) Smith v. Twoart, 2 M. & Gr. 841.

(h) Bull v. Sibbs, supra; Conolly v. Baxter, 2 Stark. 525; Smith v. Eldridge, 15 C.B. 234.

holds over after the expiration of his lease, without the assent of his co-lessee, the latter is not responsible in respect of the occupation of such co-lessee (i). The occupation of the wife before marriage is not the occupation of the husband (k). The actual possession and use by one of two executors of property holden on lease by their testator is not in law a possession and use by both, and does not render both chargeable as joint occupiers in their own right (l). If the testator held the premises, and if the executors, since his decease, have not actually occupied but have held only, they would not be personally liable for rent accrued, but the assets in their hands would be liable (m). If a lessor sells or transfers his legal estate and interest in the demised premises to a third party, and the lessee receives notice of the transfer, and is required to pay his rent to the transferee and refuses, he is liable to an action at the suit of the latter (n). The defendant may show that the plaintiff's interest in the premises has expired, or has been transferred to some third party; but he is estopped from denying the lessor's title to grant the property to be enjoyed, and cannot show that the lessor has only the equitable estate, or that he is entitled only as co-executor with others who do not join in the action (o). A tenant who has occupied land under a corporation and paid rent to the corporate body, is liable for use and occupation, although the corporation cannot in general contract except by virtue of its common seal (p); and a corporation which has actually occupied and used lands, &c., may be made liable during the period of occupation, but not afterwards, unless there is a demise under seal (q).

If a man is let into possession under an agreement for a lease to be granted at a future time, and occupies, and receives the profits of, the land, he is liable for a reasonable compensation to be paid to the owner for the use and enjoyment of the property (r). But, if he takes possession of property as a purchaser, under a contract of purchase and sale, and the vendor is unable to make out a title, and the bargain, consequently,

(i) Christy v. Tancred, 9 M. & W. 438; 11 L.J. Ex. 109; Draper v. Crofts, 15 M. & W. 166; 15 L.J. Ex. 92; Ibbs v. Richardson, 9 Ad. & E. 849; 8 L.J. Q.B. 126.

(k) Richardson v. Hall, 3 Moore, 307; 1 B. & B. 50.

(l) Nation v. Tozer, 1 Cr. M. & R. 175; 3 L.J. Ex. 234.

(m) Per Maule, J., Atkins v. Humphrey, 2 C.B. 654, 659; 15 L.J. C.P. 120.

(n) Lumley v. Hodgson, 16 East, 99; Birch v. Wright, 1 T.R. 378; Rennie v. Robinson, 1 Bing. 147; 1 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 30.

(o) Phipps v. Sculthorpe, 1 B. & Ald. 50.

(p) Stafford (Mayor) v. Till, 12 Moore, 260; 5 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 77; Thetford (Mayor) v. Tyler, 8 Q.B. 95; 15 L.J. C.P. 33.

(q) Finlay v. Bristol and Exeter Ry., 7 Exch. 409, 417; 21 L.J. Ex. 117; Lowe v. L. & N. W. Ry., 18 Q.B. 632; 21 L.J. Q.B. 361; see ante, p. 375.

(r) Thetford (Mayor) v. Tyler; supra.

goes off, the purchaser is not, in general, bound to pay any compensation or remuneration to the owner for the temporary occupation and enjoyment of the property (s). If, however, after a contract of purchase and sale has gone off or been abandoned, the intended purchaser continues to occupy and take the rents and profits of the land, by the sufferance and permission of a party who is then entitled to the immediate possession, he is bound to pay a reasonable compensation for the subsequent use and occupation (t). So, if the vendor of a house continues to reside in it after he has sold it, he is not liable in respect of such subsequent residence, in the absence of proof of an express or implied agreement that the occupation was to be paid for (u). If a lessor has agreed to put a house into repair, and the tenant enters and occupies, and the lessor neglects to fulfil his agreement, he is nevertheless entitled to recover such a sum as the use and occupation by the tenant may be reasonably worth (x). If the tenant or occupier has entered as a trespasser and wrongdoer, and has remained in possession and used and occupied the land to the exclusion of the owner, it appears to be somewhat doubtful whether the latter may waive the tort, and consent to the occupation, and sue the tenant upon the ordinary implied promise to pay a reasonable remuneration for the occupation and enjoyment of the property (y). But acceptance of rent by the owner from a trespasser, would be a waiver of the tort and a creation of a tenancy, with its accompanying rights and duties. If the landlord assigns his interest, and the tenant has notice of the assignment, and continues to occupy with the consent of the assignee, he may be sued by the latter (z), but not otherwise (a). A lessee is not liable for use and occupation after he has been adjudicated a bankrupt, whether the trustee accepts his interest in the premises or disclaims it (b).

Use and occupation by one of several joint tenants or tenants in common.—By 4 Anne, c. 16, s. 27, joint tenants and tenants in common, and their executors, and administrators, may maintain an action of account, against the others as bailiff, for re-

(s) Kirtland v. Pounsett, 2 Taunt. 145; Winterbottom v. Ingham, 7 Q.B. 611; 14 L.J. Q.B. 298.

(t) Howard v. Shaw, 8 M. & W. 118, 122; 10 L.J. Ex. 334.

(u) Tew v. Jones, 13 M. & W. 12; 14 L.J. Ex. 94; see Metropolitan Ry. v. Defries, 2 Q.B.D. 189, 387.

(x) Smith v. Eldridge, 15 C.B. 236.

(y) See per Parke, B., Turner v. Cameron's Steam Coal Co., 5 Exch. 932, 937; 20 L.J. Ex. 71; and observations of Bowen, L.J., Phillips v. Homfray, 24 Ch.D. 439, 461; 52 L.J. Ch. 833, 840.

(z) Standen v. Chrismas, 10 Q.B. 135; 16 L.J. Q.B. 265; see 4 Anne, c. 16, s. 9, as to attornment.

(a) Cook v. Moylan, 1 Exch. 67; 16 L.J. Ex. 253; Allcock v. Moorhouse, 9 Q.B.D. 366.

(b) 46 & 47 Vict. c. 52, s. 55. See Stacey v. Hill, (1901) 1 K.B. 660; 70 L.J. K.B. 435.

ceiving more than their just share or proportion (c). This statute applies to cases where two or more persons are tenants in common of land leased to a third party at a rent payable to each, or where there is a rent-charge, or any money payment, or payment in kind due to them from another person, and one receives the whole, or more than his proportionate share according to his interest in the subject of the tenancy, and not to cases where one has enjoyed more of the benefit of the land, and made more by personal occupation of it, than another. There are many cases in which a tenant in common may occupy and enjoy the common land solely, and have all the advantage to be derived from it, and yet not be liable to pay anything to his co-tenant in common (d); but where a tenant in common continues in occupation as tenant at sufferance after the expiration of a lease to him by his co-tenant, he will be liable in an action for use and occupation at the suit of the latter (e).

Covenants and agreements to repair.—There is no implied covenant or promise, either on the part of the lessor or the lessee of a house, to repair or uphold it during the term (f). There is no obligation on the part of a lessor to repair in the absence of an express contract in that behalf; and therefore, if a house demised falls, and destroys the furniture of the lessee, the landlord will not be responsible in damages (g). Where the lessor covenants to keep in repair, there is no breach until after notice of want of repair (h). Thus a covenant by a lessor to keep in repair the external wall or any part of a building is a covenant to repair on notice and not otherwise (i). But want of notice is no answer to an action for breach of a covenant to put into repair (k). Where the lessor covenants to keep in repair he must execute repairs having regard to the class of buildings to which the lease refers, and not merely to the condition of the particular building (l). Every covenant by a lessee that he will well and sufficiently repair and maintain the demised premises during the term, and deliver them up at the expiration thereof in good repair and condition, will be construed in connection with the age of the buildings, the state

(c) Jacobs v. Seward, L.R. 5 H.L. 464; 41 L.J. C.P. 221.

(d) Henderson v. Eason, 17 Q.B. 701; 21 L.J. Q.B. 82.

(e) Leigh v. Dickeson, 15 Q.B.D. 60; 54 L.J. Q.B. 18.

(f) Dyer, 36, b.

(g) Gott v. Gandy, 2 E. & B. 845; 23 L.J. Q.B. 1.

(h) Makin v. Watkinson, L.R. 6 Ex. 25; 40 L.J. Ex. 33; L. & S. W. Ry. v. Flower, 1 C.P.D. 77; 45 L.J. C.P. 54; Manchester Bonded Warehouse Co. v. Carr, 5 C.P.D. 507; 49 L.J. C.P. 809.

(i) Torrens v. Walker, (1906) 2 Ch. 645; 75 L.J. Ch. 166.

(k) Coward v. Gregory, L.R. 2 C.P. 153; 36 L.J. C.P. 1.

(l) Saner v. Bilton, 7 Ch.D. 815; 47 L.J. Ch. 267; such a covenant implies a licence from the tenant to enter for a reasonable time to do the repairs: Saner v. Bilton, supra.

and condition of them at the time of the demise and the length of the lease (m). If the house is an old house, the lessee is bound to keep it up only as an old house, and cannot be compelled to replace old materials with new (n). If the lessee has covenanted to keep the demised premises in good repair during the term, and at the time of the demise they were old and in bad repair, he must put them in good repair as old premises, and not keep them in bad repair because they happened to be in that state when he took them. The age and class of the premises, however, with their general condition as to repair, must be looked at in order to measure the extent of the repairs to be done (o). If the lessee has covenanted to keep buildings in repair, "the same being first put into repair by the lessor," the liability of the lessee does not arise until after all the buildings have been put into repair by the lessor (p), who is bound to repair in the first instance (q). When the lessee has entered into an express covenant or agreement to repair, uphold, and keep in repair a house, or any other structure or building demised to him, he is bound to re-build or re-construct it, if it is burned by an accidental fire, or blown down by tempest, or destroyed by floods or by an inevitable accident; for, when the party, by his own contract, creates a duty or charge upon himself, he is bound to make it good, notwithstanding any accident by inevitable necessity, because he might have provided against it by his contract. And therefore, if the lessee covenants to repair a house, or a bridge, and the house is burned down by lightning or an accidental fire, or thrown down by enemies, or the bridge is washed away, the lessee must rebuild (r). A covenant to repair remains in force although part of the premises has been acquired and demolished by a local authority under their statutory powers (s). The ordinary covenant to repair the "demised" tenements and dwelling-houses does not extend (so as to create a forfeiture under a proviso for re-entry in case of non-performance of covenant) to an

(m) Proudfoot v. Hart, 25 Q.B.D. 42; 59 L.J. Q.B. 389; London Corp. v. G. W. Ry., (1910) 2 Ch. 314; 79 L.J. Ch. 622.

(n) Harris v. Jones, 1 Moo. & R. 173; Gutteridge v. Munyard, 1 Moo. & R. 334; 7 C. & P. 129.

(o) Parke, B., Payne v. Haine, 16 M. & W. 545; 16 L.J. Ex. 130; Proudfoot v. Hart, supra; Lister v. Lane, (1893) 2 Q.B. 212; 62 L.J. Q.B. 583.

(p) Neale v. Ratcliff, 15 Q.B. 916; 20 L.J. Q.B. 130; Coward v. Gregory, L.R. 2 C.P. 153; 36 L.J. C.P. 1.

(q) Cannock or Connoch v. Jones, 3 Exch. 233; 18 L.J. Ex. 204.

(r) 40 Edw. 3, fol. 6, pl. 11; Paradine v. Jane, Aleyn, 26; 2 Saund. 421, a (2); Dyer, 33, a, pl. 10; Brecknock Co. v. Pritchard, 6 T.R. 750; Bullock v. Dommitt, ib. 650; Chesterfield v. Bolton, 2 Comyn, 627; Clark v. Glasgow Assur. Co., 1 Macq. 668. See ante, p. 149.

(s) Piggott v. Middlesex County Council, (1909) 1 Ch. 134; 77 L.J. Ch. 813; Manchester, Sheffield & Linc. Ry. v. Anderson, (1898) 2 Ch. 394; 67 L.J. Ch. 568.

entirely new structure erected during the term, not in existence and not forming part of any buildings on the premises at the time of the execution of the lease (t), unless it appears that the land was demised for building purposes, and that the erection of buildings by the lessee during the term was contemplated by the parties, and that the covenant was meant to extend to buildings thereafter to be erected (u).

Where a lease containing a covenant on the part of the lessee to repair is executed on a certain day but the habendum of the lease states that the premises are held from a previous day, the tenant who has entered between the two days is not liable on the covenant to repair for breach as committed during the interval, the habendum only marking the duration of the tenant's interest, and operating merely retrospectively as a grant (x). If the lease is under seal, and the tenant has bound himself by covenant to repair, and the landlord assigns his interest, the assignee is entitled (ante, p. 227) to sue upon the covenant (y). A covenant to put into repair is not a continuing covenant (z); but covenants to keep in repair are covenants which run with the land, and are continuing covenants to the end of the term (a), provided that they touch or concern the thing demised, and are not merely personal and collateral covenants (b). And the recovery of damages for a breach of them is no bar to an action for a subsequent breach, but only matter in mitigation of damages (c). Such covenants extend to all additions and enlargements of structures existing at the time of the demise, but not to detached independent buildings erected after the making of the lease (d). If the landlord has evicted the tenant from part of the demised premises, the tenancy is not thereby determined, and the tenant is not discharged from the performance of a covenant to repair (e). The landlord is entitled to recover damages (f) for breach of a covenant to yield up in repair at the end of the term, although he immediately proceeds to demolish the buildings (g).

(t) Cornish v. Cleife, 3 H. & C. 446; 34 L.J. Ex. 19.

(u) Douse v. Cale, 2 Vent. 136; Douse v. Earl, 3 Lev. 264; Lant v. Norris, 1 Burr. 287.

(x) Shaw v. Kay, 1 Exch. 412; 17 L.J. Ex. 17; Wyburd v. Tuck, 1 Bos. & P. 464.

(y) Bickford v. Parson, 17 L.J. C.P. 192; 5 C.B. 918.

(z) Coward v. Gregory, L.R. 2 C.P. 153; 36 L.J. C.P. 1.

(a) Martyn v. Clue, 22 L.J. Q.B. 147; 18 Q.B. 661.

(b) See Dewar v. Goodman, 78 L.J. K.B. 209; (1909) A.C. 72.

(c) Coward v. Gregory, L.R. 2 C.P. 153; 36 L.J. C.P. 1.

(d) Cornish v. Cleife, 34 L.J. Ex. 19; 3 H. & C. 446.

(e) Morrison v. Chadwick, 7 C.B. 266; 18 L.J. C.P. 189; see ante, p. 675.

(f) As to the measure of damages for breach of covenant to leave in repair, see Joyner v. Weeks, (1891) 2 Q.B. 31; 60 L.J. Q.B. 510, 515; Henderson v. Thorn, (1893) 2 Q.B. 164; 62 L.J. Q.B. 586.

(g) Rawlings v. Morgan, 18 C.B. N.S. 776; 34 L.J. C.P. 185.

Where articles of agreement under seal were entered into between an intended lessor and lessee for the grant of a lease for twenty-one years, as soon as a licence from the lord of the manor (the land being copyhold land) could be obtained, and the lessee covenanted to keep the premises in repair during the term so to be granted, and subsequently entered and took possession of the land, and occupied the same under the agreement for the full term of twenty-one years, it was held that he was responsible upon his covenant to repair, although the intended lease had never been made, nor any licence obtained from the lord (h). If the lessee has not entered and held under the indenture of demise executed by him, and upon the terms of the covenant he has thought fit to enter into, but under a distinct parol demise, then he is not liable upon the covenants of the lease (i). Where a lease made under a leasing power was void from non-compliance with the requirements of the power, but the lessee entered and took possession, and paid rent, and then assigned his interest, and the assignee entered and paid rent under the void lease, and continued in possession until the end of the term intended to have been granted, it was held that he must be taken to have promised to hold upon the terms of the lease, and that he was liable for not repairing according to the covenant therein contained (k). If a party assents verbally to certain printed terms of hiring, and enters and takes possession, he will be bound by the printed terms, although they are not signed either by him or by the lessor (l). Where a tenant gave a written undertaking to hire a house for three years, and to pay rent and repair during the term, but there was no lease or agreement on the part of the lessor, and the tenant entered and took possession and held the premises for more than three years, it was held that he was responsible for neglecting to repair (m).

The owner of two houses, 38 and 40, demised 38 by lease containing a covenant by the lessee to repair walls and party-walls. Afterwards he demised 40 similarly. No. 40 was built so as to extend over a gateway between it and 38, and it rested on the wall which was a party-wall between 38 and the gateway, but this wall did not belong to 40. In an action by the lessee of 40 against the owner, it was held that there was no (h) Pistor v. Cater, 9 M. & W. 315 ; 12 L.J. Ex. 129.

(i) See Pitman v. Woodbury, 3 Exch. at p. 12.

(k) Beale v. Sanders, 3 Bing. N.C. 850 ; 6 L.J. C.P. 283 ; Lee v. Smith, 23 L.J. Ex. 199.

(l) Bolton (Lord) v. Tomlin, 5 Ad. & E. 856 ; 6 L.J. K.B. 45.

(m) Richardson v. Gifford, 1 Ad. & E. 52 ; 3 L.J. K.B. 122.

implied covenant on his part to repair this party-wall (n). It was said that if an action were brought by the owner against the lessee of 40 it might be an answer to say that the owner had neglected some precedent obligation, because 40 could not be repaired without first repairing this party-wall; but the suggestion is not very clear (o).

By 4 Anne, c. 16, s. 10, as we have seen (ante, p. 676), the assignee of the reversion cannot sue for the rent without having given notice of the assignment; but there is no provision to that effect with respect to his right to sue or eject for a forfeiture for non-repair, for the tenant may not know to whom to pay the rent without notice, but he must know that he ought to repair (p). A covenant running with the reversion, such as a covenant to repair, entered into by a lessor with his lessee, remains binding on the lessor notwithstanding that he has assigned the reversion (q).

Tenant's liability for damage to demised premises.—In the absence of an express covenant or agreement to repair, there results from the demise and acceptance of the lease by the lessee an implied covenant or promise, according as the lease is by deed or by simple contract, to use the property demised in a tenant-like manner, and restore it, at the expiration of the term, in the same state and condition as it was in when demised, subject only to ordinary wear and tear and the reasonable use of it for the purpose for which it was known to be required. The extent of the liability of the tenant for the preservation of the property depends upon the duration and value of his own term and interest therein. A tenant for life or years, for example, is bound to watch over the interests of the reversioner, and is responsible for permissive as well as commissive waste, whilst a tenant at will, or from year to year, is responsible only for commissive waste (r).

Permissive waste by lessees for terms of years.—A tenant for a term of years is responsible for permissive as well as commissive waste (s); but where he has not obliged himself by covenant to do repairs, he is not bound to rebuild; for if the subject of occupation perishes from time and natural decay, (n) Colebeck v. Girdlers' Co., 1 Q.B.D. 234; 45 L.J. Q.B. 225.

(o) Colebeck v. Girdlers' Co., supra.

(p) Scaltock v. Harston, 1 C.P.D. 106; 45 L.J. C.P. 125.

(q) Stuart v. Joy, (1904) 1 K.B. 362; 73 L.J. K.B. 97, approving dictum in Eccles v. Mills, (1898) A.C. at p. 371; 67 L.J. P.C. at pp. 31, 32.

(r) See Addison on Torts (ed. 8), pp. 358—370, where the law relating to both permissive and commissive waste is treated at length; Harnett v. Maitland, 16 M. & W. 257; 16 L.J. Ex. 134; Herne v. Bembow, 4 Taunt. 764; Jones v. Hill, 7 Taunt. 392; 1 Moore, 100; Torriano v. Young, 6 C. & P. 12.

(s) Yellowly v. Gower, 11 Exch. 274, 294; 24 L.J. Ex. 294, 299.

the landlord is the person to provide a new one, if he think fit (t). A tenant for years must not suffer the roof of a house to remain uncovered, so as to let the timbers rot, and must use all reasonable endeavours to keep the buildings wind and water-tight; but he is not bound to repair the principal timbers of the roof, nor to replace old materials with new, except where the expense is of a trifling character, and the mischief, if neglected and left unrepaired, would operate to the lasting injury of the inheritance. If a roof is blown off by tempest, he is not bound to put on a new roof, but if a few tiles only are stripped off, he is bound to replace them, or adopt means to keep out the wet (u). The extent of the liability of a lessee, not holding under a covenant or agreement to repair, for permitting buildings demised to him to go to decay and ruin, will depend upon the age and general condition of the buildings at the time he took possession of them, the nature of the repairs required for their preservation, and the duration of his own term and interest in the property (x); for a tenant at will, or tenant from year to year, cannot be expected to do as much for the preservation of the property as a tenant for a long term of years. If a house is burnt by negligence, this, as we shall presently see, is waste; and if sea-walls and river-banks are destroyed from want of timely reparation, this will be waste; but if they receive the usual and customary repairs, and are destroyed by a great tempest or a violent inundation, the lessee is not responsible for waste if he fails to rebuild them (y). So, where a building is destroyed by what is under all the circumstances an apparently reasonable user of the building, the tenant is not liable for "waste" (z).

Commissive waste by lessees for terms of years.—The tenant by the lease has the use, not the dominion, of the property demised to him, and cannot make permanent changes and alterations in the property without the consent of the landlord, although such changes and alterations may greatly enhance the value of it; for the owner has a right to have his houses and lands kept in an unaltered state, surrounded by all their old features, landmarks, and associations (a). Therefore an action

(t) Bayley, J., Wise v. Metcalfe, 10 B. & C. 314; 8 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 126.

(u) See Shrewsbury's (Lady) Case, 5 Co. 13, b; M'Kenzie v. M'Leod, 4 M. & Sc. 253; 3 L.J. C.P. 79; Salop (Countess) v. Crompton, Cro.Eliz. 777.

(x) Ferguson v. ——, 2 Esp. 590; Anworth v. Johnson, 5 C. & P. 239.

(y) 2 Roll.Abr. Waste (C).

(z) Manchester Bonded Warehouse Co. v. Carr, 5 C.P.D. 507; 49 L.J. C.P. 809; following Saner v. Bilton, 7 Ch.D. 815; 47 L.J. Ch. 267.

(a) Smith v. Carter, 18 Beav. 78; West Ham Central Charity Board v. East London Waterworks, (1900) 1 Ch. 624; 69 L.J. Ch. 257.

is maintainable by the reversioner pending the term against the tenant for inclosing and cultivating waste land included in the demise, and for continuing the grievance (b); also for the pulling down of an old building, and the substitution in lieu thereof of tenements of greater value (c), for stopping up the windows (d), or for removing a partition-wall in a house and enlarging a chamber (e). Where a lessee opened a new door in a house, whereby the house was not in any respect weakened or injured, it was held to be a question for the jury whether there was or was not any injury to the rights of the reversioner (f). But, if there is any substantial alteration in the form and arrangement of the house, the house is no longer the same house, and there is an invasion of the proprietary rights of the landlord or reversioner. It is no answer to an action for the infringement of these rights to say that the defendant might, before the expiration of the lease, restore the premises to their former plight, and surrender them up to the landlord in their original condition (g).

The lessee cannot convert one species of edifice into another, such as a corn-mill into a fulling-mill, or malt-mill, or a water-mill into a wind-mill, though the conversion be to the pecuniary advantage of the landlord, as well as to the benefit of the tenant (h). He must not fell timber-trees (except for the necessary repairs of a house he has covenanted to repair), nor destroy spring-woods or young plants destined to become trees; but he may cut willows, maples, beeches, and thorns, if they do not shelter a dwelling-house or sustain a bank, or afford shelter to cattle, and the cutting of them is not prejudicial to the inheritance. He may also cut oaks and ashes where they are usually cut as underwood, and are in due course to grow up again from the stumps, and the cutting is warranted by local custom and usage. He must not dig for gravel, lime, clay, brick-earth, stone, or the like, except for the necessary repair and improvement of the demised premises, in fulfilment of the covenants of his lease. He must not remove virgin soil (i), nor open quarries or mines of metal or coal, for the purpose of selling the produce thereof; but he may work mines and quarries which were open and in existence at the time of the (b) Queen's College (Provost, &c.) v. Hallett, 14 East, 489.

(c) Cole v. Green, 1 Lev. 309.

(d) Thomlinson v. Brown, Sayer, 215.

(e) 2 Roll.Abr. 815, pl. 9.

(f) Young v. Spencer, 10 B. & C. 145; 8 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 106.

(g) Queen's College (Provost, &c.) v. Hallett, supra; Cole v. Forth, infra.

(h) Bac.Abr. Waste; Cole v. Forth, 1 Mod. 94; Co. Litt. 53, a, 53, b.

(i) Higgon v. Mortimer, 6 C. & P. 616.

demise, as they then form part of the annual profits of the land. He must not convert arable land into pasture, or pasture into arable land, or plough up a warren, or stub up a wood to make it pasture, or divert the courses of streams, nor dry up ancient pools or fish-ponds, nor destroy fences, nor put land under water, nor destroy the stock or breed of anything. He must not take all the fish out of a fish-pond, or the doves from a dovecote, or the deer from a park, or the rabbits and conies from a warren, or the game from preserves; but he is entitled to the reasonable use and enjoyment of them, leaving as many in store for the landlord when he goes out as he found when he was intrusted with the possession and use of the property (k).

Waste may be committed by removing glass annexed to windows, for it is parcel of the house; and although the lessee himself, at his own cost, put the glass in the windows, yet, being once parcel of the house, he cannot take it away or waste it. Wainscot also, whether annexed to the house by the lessor or the lessee, is parcel of the house, and cannot be removed, unless it is purely of an ornamental character (post, p. 696); and there is no difference in law if it be fastened by great nails, or little nails, or by screws or irons put through the posts or walls (l); for every chattel affixed to the soil of another becomes a part of the soil, and belongs to the owner of the land, unless it is shown to have been affixed there in the necessary enjoyment of an easement by the person entitled to the easement, in which case it will belong to the latter, and not to the owner of the soil (m).

Waste by tenant from year to year.—A tenant from year to year is not responsible for permissive waste. Where an action on the case was brought by a lessor against a lessee holding for a term not then determined, for suffering a house demised to him to go to ruin for want of repairs to the roof and windows, it was held that such an action was not maintainable. "There is no doubt," observes Mansfield, C.J., "but that an action on the case may be maintained for wilful waste; but, at common law, if any part of the premises are suffered to be dilapidated, it amounts to permissive waste; and if this action be maintainable, such an action might be brought against a tenant at will who omitted to repair a broken window. I think this action is an innovation, and I am not disposed to encourage it" (n). But every tenant from year to year is bound to take all due and reasonable care of the premises demised to him, and if windows are broken by the wind or hail, and the rain gets in, he is liable for the non-repair of them, if the consequences of his neglect would be damage to the building from the rain. A tenant at will, or a tenant from year to year, is not bound, unless by special contract, to expend money in repairs and improvements. The lessee of land who erects a building thereon does not commit waste by so doing, unless it can be shown that such building is an injury to the inheritance (o). And so where the tenant of a farm near London erected glass houses upon it and turned it in part into a market garden, it was held that there was no waste, and the opinion was expressed that the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1883, had abolished some of the old common law doctrine of waste, and that buildings erected by a lessee on a demised land which rendered it more profitable would be improvements and could not be regarded as waste (p).

(k) D'Arcy (Lord) v. Askwith, Hob. 234; Phillips v. Smith, 14 M. & W. 589; 15 L.J. Ex. 201; Bac.Abr. Waste; Litt. s. 71.

(l) Herlakenden's Case, 4 Co. 63, b; Wilde v. Waters, 16 C.B. 637; 24 L.J. C.P. 193.

(m) Lancaster v. Eve, 5 C.B.N.S. 717; 28 L.J. C.P. 235.

Timber trees.—Wherever trees are excepted from a demise, there is, by implication, a right in the landlord to enter on the land and cut the trees at all reasonable times (q).

Duty of tenant to preserve landlord's landmarks and boundaries.—Where a tenant for life, or for years, or at will, has land of his own adjoining to that which he holds as tenant, it is his duty to keep the boundaries between the two properties distinct, so that, at the expiration of the tenancy, the reversioner may be able without difficulty to resume the possession of what belongs to him; and, if the tenant neglects this duty, and suffers the boundaries to be confused, so that the reversioner cannot tell to what land he is entitled, the courts will give relief by compelling the tenant to restore the proper boundaries, if it can be done, or, if not, to give an equivalent. This relief is given not only against the party guilty of the neglect, but also against all those who claim under him, either as volunteers or purchasers without notice (r).

Fences.—There is no implied agreement on the part of a lessor to keep up the fences of closes which he retains in his own hands, and which abut on land demised to a tenant so as to prevent the tenant's cattle from straying on to them (s).

(n) Gibson v. Wells, 1 Bos. & P. N.R. 290; Herne v. Bembow, 4 Taunt. 764; Martin v. Gilham, 7 Ad. & E. 540; 7 L.J. Q.B. 11.

(o) Jones v. Chappell, L.R. 20 Eq. 539; 44 L.J. Ch. 658.

(p) Meux v. Cobley, (1892) 2 Ch. 253; 61 L.J. Ch. 449. See ante, p. 690.

(q) Hewitt v. Isham, 7 Exch. 77; 21 L.J. Ex. 35. As to waste in timber trees, see Addison on Torts (ed. 8), pp. 358, 361.

(r) Att.-Gen. v. Stephens, 6 De G. M. & G. 111; 25 L.J. Ch. 888.

(s) Erskine v. Adeane, L.R. 8 Ch. 756; 42 L.J. Ch. 835.

Restrictive covenants as to the user of premises entered into between lessor and lessee run with the land (ante, p. 305). When the benefit of a restrictive covenant has been once clearly annexed to one piece of land, there is a presumption that it passes by any assignment of that land without proof of special bargain (t). A general covenant by the lessee that he will not do, or suffer to be done, upon the demised premises anything which may become an annoyance to the tenants of the adjoining houses may prevent him from opening a shop or coal-office, or carrying on any trade or business in a dwelling-house (u).

A lessee covenanted not to do anything to annoy or diminish the value of the property adjoining, or build without the approval of the lessor, &c. The owner afterwards leased the adjoining property to another who made a similar covenant. The first lessee began to build with the approval of the lessor. It was held that the second lessee could not call upon the owner to restrain the first from building (x). The purchaser of each lot of a building estate entered into a covenant with the vendor and the purchasers of the other lots that he would not build beyond a specified line; a mortgagee of one of the lots, with notice of the covenant, but without restriction of his mortgagor, foreclosed and sold his lot to the defendant, with notice of the covenant; it was held that there was no implied restriction as between the mortgagor and mortgagee, and that the mortgagor was not entitled to enforce the restriction against the defendant (y). Where a building has been erected without complaint, the court will not grant a mandatory injunction to pull it down (z). Where a lessor covenanted that he would not let any other house in the same street "for the purpose of an eating house," and then let a house to a person who set up an eating house, although covenanting not to do so, it was held that the lessor was not liable to the first lessee (a). The erection of a clock outside trade premises by way of advertisement has been held not to be a breach of a covenant by the lessee not to make any "alteration to the premises" without the lessor's consent (b). A covenant by the lessee of a public-house

(t) Rogers v. Hosegood, (1900) 2 Ch. 388; 69 L.J. Ch. 652.

(u) Wilkinson v. Rogers, 10 Jur. N.S. 5; 2 De G. J. & S. 62.

(x) Master v. Hansard, 4 Ch.D. 718; 46 L.J. Ch. 505; Renals v. Cowlishaw, 11 Ch.D. 866; 48 L.J. Ch. 830. See, however, Nicoll v. Fenning, 19 Ch.D. 258; 51 L.J. Ch. 166; Spicer v. Martin, 14 App.Cas. 12; 58 L.J. Ch. 309; Mackenzie v. Childers, 43 Ch.D. 265; 59 L.J. Ch. 188.

(y) King v. Dickeson, 40 Ch.D. 596; 58 L.J. Ch. 464.

(z) Gaskin v. Balls, 13 Ch.D. 324.

(a) Kemp v. Bird, 5 Ch.D. 974; 46 L.J. Ch. 828; Fitz v. Iles, (1893) 1 Ch. 77; 62 L.J. Ch. 258; Ashby v. Wilson, (1900) 1 Ch. 66; 69 L.J. Ch. 47; Holloway Brothers v. Hill, (1902) 2 Ch. 612; 71 L.J. Ch. 818; Brigg v. Thornton, (1904) 1 Ch. 386; 73 L.J. Ch. 301.

(b) Bickmore v. Dimmer, (1903) 1 Ch. 158; 72 L.J. Ch. 96.

to "keep and conduct" it during the term in a regular and proper manner is broken by the conviction of the underlessee for permitting drunkenness upon the premises whereby the renewal of the licence was refused by the justices (c).

Where the lessee covenanted not to carry on any "business, &c., whatsoever, or anything of the nature thereof, or to suffer anything which may grow to the annoyance, &c. of the neighbourhood," he was prohibited from using the premises as a throat hospital, where small payments were made by the patients (d); and where the lessee covenanted not to use the house "for any other purpose than a private residence," it was held that he broke it by taking in as boarders pupils attending a school in the neighbourhood (e). Where there was a covenant to pay an extra rent in case any noxious trade was carried on, it was held that this was not a licence to carry on the trade paying the rent, but was a covenant rendering void the lease at the option of the lessor (f).

Fixtures.—The question as to what articles are fixtures has been the subject of much discussion. Fixtures are chattels which have been annexed to land; but whether a chattel has been so annexed to land as to become a fixture, depends on the circumstances of each case, and mainly on two circumstances as indicating intention, viz., the degree and the object of the annexation (g), and a chattel affixed to the land even slightly is to be considered as part of the land unless the circumstances are such as to show that it was intended all along to continue a chattel (h). It would seem that where articles are strictly and properly part of the architectural design, and put there as such (i), and for the purpose of improving the inheritance(k), they are fixtures. Tapestry, for instance, when physically

(c) Palethorpe v. Home Brewery, Ltd., (1906) 2 K.B. 5; 75 L.J. K.B. 555; distinguishing Bryant v. Hancock & Co., (1899) A.C. 442; 68 L.J. Q.B. 889. See, further, Mumford v. Walker, 71 L.J. K.B. 19; Wilson v. Twamley, (1904) 2 K.B. 99; 73 L.J. K.B. 703.

(d) Bramwell v. Lacy, 10 Ch.D. 691; 48 L.J. Ch. 339; see also German v. Chapman, 7 Ch.D. 271; 47 L.J. Ch. 250; Rolls v. Miller, 27 Ch.D. 71; 53 L.J. Ch. 682; Tod Heatly v. Benham, 40 Ch.D. 80; 58 L.J. Ch. 83; Wood v. Cooper, (1894) 3 Ch. 671; 63 L.J. Ch. 845; Wauton v. Coppard, (1899) 1 Ch. 92; 68 L.J. Ch. 8.

(e) Hobson v. Tulloch, (1898) 1 Ch. 424; 67 L.J. Ch. 205.

(f) Westcn v. Met. Asylum District, 9 Q.B.D. 404; 51 L.J. Q.B. 399; Harmann v. Powell, 60 L.J. Q.B. 628.

(g) As to intention of attachment, see Leigh v. Taylor, infra; Hulse, In re, (1905) 1 Ch. 406; 74 L.J. Ch. 246.

(h) See Addison on Torts, 611 (ed. 8). As to the classes of persons between whom questions arise respecting the right to what are ordinarily called fixtures, see per Ld. Ellenborough, Fisher v. Dixon, 12 Cl. & Fin. 312; Walmsley v. Milne, 7 C.B. N.S. 115; 29 L.J. C.P. 97.

(i) D'Eyncourt v. Gregory, L.R. 3 Eq. 382; 36 L.J. Ch. 107; see also Leigh v. Taylor, (1902) A.C. 157; 71 L.J. Ch. 272; Whaley, In re, Whaley v. Roehrich, (1908) 1 Ch. 615; 77 L.J. Ch. 367.

(k) Monti v. Barnes, (1901) 1 K.B. 205; 70 L.J. K.B. 225.

annexed to the walls has been held to be a fixture (l), but not a collection of stuffed birds attached to removable trays in cases affixed to the walls (m).

Landlord's fixtures.—The term "landlord's fixtures" means such things as the landlord chooses to annex to the freehold and demise with it, and which, of course, the tenant has no right to remove, and must restore at the end of the term: such as grates, marble chimney-pieces, locks, keys, bars and bolts (n), steam-engines and boilers, hay-cutters, malt-mills, corn-crushers, grinding-stones, &c. (o).

Tenant's fixtures.—The rule formerly was, that where a lessee, having annexed a personal chattel to the freehold during his term, afterwards took it away, it was waste. In the progress of time this rule was relaxed, and many exceptions have been grafted upon it. One has been in favour of ornament, as ornamental chimney-pieces, pier-glasses, hangings, wainscot fixed only by screws, and the like (p). Of all these, it is to be observed that they are exceptions only (q). Other exceptions have been grafted upon the rule in favour of the enjoyment of the occupation, and in favour of trade, and vessels, machinery, and utensils, which are immediately subservient to the purposes of trade (r). If a landlord lets a house unfurnished, without the conveniences of grates or gas-fittings, and the tenant, for the enjoyment of his occupation, fixes them in the house, he may, unless he has contracted to leave them behind, remove them during his term. Whether a particular fixed chattel belongs to the landlord or the tenant, must in some instances depend upon what the contracting parties propose to be the subject of the demise (s). Pillars of brick and mortar built on the floor of a dairy by a tenant to sustain milk-pans have, however, been held to be part of the freehold (t); also barns and beast-houses, waggon-houses, fuel-houses, pigeon-houses, carpenters' shops for mending waggons and carts, and agricultural buildings employed and used upon the farm, and let into the ground, and not merely placed on the surface thereof, or on a brick or stone floor (u); also railway-sleepers (x); also

(l) Norton v. Dashwood, (1896) 2 Ch. 497; 65 L.J. Ch. 737; see also Leigh v. Taylor, ante, p. 695.

(m) Hill v. Bullock, (1897) 2 Ch. 482; 66 L.J. Ch. 705.

(n) See Shep. Touch. 90; Bishop v. Elliott, 11 Exch. 113; 24 L.J. Ex. 229.

(o) Walmsley v. Milne, 7 C.B. N.S. 115; 29 L.J. C.P. 97

(p) See post, p. 699, and the cases collected in Amos & Ferard on Fixtures pp. 105 et seq. (ed. 3).

(q) Buckland v. Butterfield, 4 Moore, 440, 447; 2 Brod. & B. 54.

(r) See the cases collected in Amos & Ferard on Fixtures, pp. 97 et seq. (ed. 3).

(s) Bishop v. Elliott, supra; Sumner v. Bromilow, 34 L.J. Q.B. 130.

(t) Leach v. Thomas, 7 C. & P. 327.

(u) Elwes v. Maw, 3 East, 38; 2 Smith's L.C. 189 (ed. 11); Wood v. Hewett, 8 Q.B. 913; 15 L.J. Q.B. 247.

(x) Turner v. Cameron, L.R. 5 Q.B. 306; 39 L.J. Q.B. 125.

conservatories, hot-houses, or green-houses, erected on a brick or stone foundation, and attached thereto by permanent fastenings; so that if the tenant removes them after he has put them up he is guilty of waste (y). But if the tenant raises and constructs foundations of a permanent character for the reception of a superstructure of wood, and the superstructure merely rests on this foundation, or is attached thereto by screws or movable pins or bolts, so as to be removable at pleasure without material or permanent injury to the freehold, the movable structure placed on such foundation by the tenant continues the property of the latter, and may be carried away by him at the expiration of his lease (z). A door which may be lifted from its hinges, or a sliding fender used to prevent the escape of water from a mill-stream, does not necessarily become part of the freehold (a); nor a mooring-pile, driven into land for the accommodation of the navigation of a canal or river (b); nor looms of a worsted mill fixed by nails (c). But locks, keys, and bars belong to the landlord (d); and so does a shutter and sliding bolt, put up for the security of the premises. In determining whether a chattel has become a fixture or not, the intention of the person affixing it to the soil is only material so far as it is apparent from external facts (e).

Agricultural tenant's fixtures removable by statute.—Buildings and constructions of a permanent character, erected upon the demised premises by the tenant and attached to the freehold, are irremovable by him at common law, unless they have been erected for trading purposes. Where a tenant received from his landlord timber for the express purpose of erecting a shed, and used the timber in the construction of it, it was held that he had no right afterwards to remove it, although he had added a few materials of his own, and confounded them, in the erection, with those furnished by the landlord (f). By sect. 3 of the Landlord and Tenant Act, 1851 (g), if any tenant shall with

(y) Buckland v. Butterfield, 4 Moore, 440; 2 Brod. & B. 54; Jenkins v. Gething, 2 Jo. & H. 520; Sleddon v. Cruikshank, 16 M. & W. 71; 16 L.J. Ex. 61.

(z) Grymes v. Boweren, 6 Bing. 437; 8 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 140; Rex v. Otley, 1 B. & Ad. 161; 9 L.J. (O.S.) M.C. 11; Wansbrough v. Maton, 4 Ad. & E. 884; 5 L.J. K.B. 150; Davis v. Jones, 2 B. & Ald. 165; Rex v. Londonthorpe, 6 T.R. 377; Wiltshear v. Cottrell, 22 L.J. Q.B. 177; 1 E. & B. 674.

(a) Wood v. Hewett, 8 Q.B. 913; 15 L.J. Q.B. 247; Hobson v. Gorringe, (1897) 1 Ch. 182; 66 L.J. Ch. 114. As to machinery embedded in concrete floor passing to mortgagee, see Reynolds v. Ashby, (1904) A.C. 466; 73 L.J. K.B. 946.

(b) Lancaster v. Eve, 5 C.B. N.S. 717; 28 L.J. C.P. 235.

(c) Holland v. Hodgson, L.R. 7 C.P. 328; 41 L.J. C.P. 146; Astbury, Ex parte, L.R. 4 Ch. 630; 38 L.J. Bankr. 9; Longbottom v. Berry, L.R. 5 Q.B. 123; 39 L.J. Q.B. 37.

(d) See ante, p. 696.

(e) Hobson v. Gorringe, supra; see also ante, p. 695.

(f) Smith v. Render, 27 L.J. Ex. 83.

(g) 14 & 15 Vict. c. 25, s. 3.

the consent in writing of the landlord, at his own cost and expense, erect any buildings, engine, or machinery, for the purposes of trade or agriculture, such buildings shall be the property of the tenant, and shall be removable by him, one month's previous notice in writing being given of his intention, and the landlord or his agent being afforded an opportunity of purchasing the thing proposed to be removed, as therein mentioned.

By sect. 21, sub-sect. 1, of the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1908(h), "(1) any engine, machinery, fencing, or other fixture affixed to a holding by a tenant, and any building erected thereon for which he is not under this Act or otherwise entitled to compensation, and which is not so affixed or erected in pursuance of some obligation in that behalf or instead of some fixture or building belonging to the landlord, shall be the property of and be removable by the tenant before or within a reasonable time after the termination of the tenancy: Provided that—(i) Before the removal of any fixture or building the tenant shall pay all rent owing by him, and shall perform or satisfy all other his obligations to the landlord in respect of the holding: (ii) In the removal of any fixture or building the tenant shall not do any avoidable damage to any other building or other part of the holding: (iii) Immediately after the removal of any fixture or building the tenant shall make good all damage occasioned to any other building or other part of the holding by the removal: (iv) The tenant shall not remove any fixture without giving one month's previous notice in writing to the landlord of his intention to remove it: (v) At any time before the expiration of the notice of removal the landlord, by notice in writing given by him to the tenant, may elect to purchase any fixture or building comprised in the notice of removal, and any fixture or building thus elected to be purchased shall be left by the tenant, and shall become the property of the landlord, who shall pay to the tenant the fair value thereof to an incoming tenant of the holding; and any difference as to the value shall be settled by arbitration." The provisions of the section apply to a fixture or building acquired since December 31, 1900, by a tenant in like manner as they apply to a fixture or building affixed or erected by a tenant, but do not apply to any fixture or building affixed or erected before January 1, 1884 (i). The provisions of the Act relating to tenants' property in fixtures and buildings are extended to every fixture or building affixed or erected by the tenant to or upon the holding, or acquired by him since December 31, 1900, for the purposes of his trade or business as a market gardener (k). By the Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908(l), a tenant of any small holding or allotment may remove any toolhouse, shed, greenhouse, fowl-house or pigsty built or acquired by him for which he has no claim for compensation.

(h) 8 Edw. 7, c. 28, s. 21 (1).
(i) 8 Edw. 7, c. 28, s. 21 (2). See the corresponding provision in the repealed Act of 1900 (63 & 64 Vict. c. 50), s. 4.

Ornamental fixtures.—The ornamental fixtures now held removable by the tenant during the term, or within a reasonable time after its expiration (m), are chimney-glasses and pier-glasses (n), ornamental chimney-pieces (o), and stoves (p), tapestry and hangings nailed to the wall, in lieu of ornamental paper or panels (q), and ornamental cornices capable of being detached without injury to the building (r).

Domestic and trade fixtures.—Amongst the various fixtures held to be removable by the tenant are, in the case of fixtures for domestic use, gas-pipes and gas fittings, and water-pipes attached to buildings by metal bands and nails, grates, ranges and ovens, coppers, bells, blinds, fixed tables, water-butts, cupboards, &c. (s), and, in the case of trade fixtures, soap-boilers' furnaces, fat-vats, coppers, dyeing and brewing vessels, cider-mills, baking-ovens, steam-engines, and salt-pans (t); also machinery, engines, vats, plant and utensils used in trade, however bulky or complex they may be in their construction. The tenant may take them to pieces, and remove them, and put them together again in the same form in some other place. And where a shed or building is a mere accessory to a trade fixture, such as a shed, or any temporary building, erected merely for the purpose of covering and protecting a steam-engine, or machinery, or trade utensils, from the effect of the weather, it may be removable, together with the trade fixture to which it belonged, on the ground that "omne accessorium sequitur suum principale." But a building is not removable merely because it has been erected for manufacturing or trading purposes, or (k) 8 Edw. 7, c. 28, s. 42 (1) (ii). See sect. 3 (1) of the repealed Market Gardeners Compensation Act, 1895 (58 & 59 Vict. c. 27), and Mears v. Callender, (1901) 2 Ch. 388; 70 L.J. Ch. 621.

(l) 8 Edw. 7, c. 36, s. 47 (4).

(m) Climie v. Wood, L.R. 4 Ex. 328; 38 L.J. Ex. 223.

(n) Bech v. Rebow, 1 P.Wms. 94.

(o) Bishop v. Elliott, 11 Exch. 113; 24 L.J. Ex. 229; Leach v. Thomas, 7 C. & P. 327.

(p) Rex v. St. Dunstan, Kent (Inhabitants), 4 B. & C. 686; Reg. v. Lee, L.R. 1 Q.B. 241, 254; 35 L.J. M.C. 105.

(q) Leigh v. Taylor, (1902) A.C. 157; 71 L.J. Ch. 272.

(r) Avery v. Cheslyn, 3 Ad. & E. 75.

(s) Bishop v. Elliott, 11 Exch. 113; 24 L.J. Ex. 229, ante, p. 696.

(t) 42 Edw. 3, fol. 6, pl. 19; 20 Hen. 7, fol. 13, pl. 24; Poole's Case, 1 Salk. 368; Lawton v. Lawton, 3 Atk. 13; Lawton v. Salmon, 1 H.Bl. 260, n.; Penton v. Robart, 2 East, 88. As to glass houses, see Mears v. Callender, (1901) 2 Ch. 388; 70 L.J. Ch. 621, and 8 Edw. 7, c. 28, s. 42 (1) (ii), supra.

for the purpose of covering and protecting machinery. If the building is of a substantial character, standing on brick or stone foundations let into the soil, and is constructed so as not to be removable without the entire destruction of the fabric, it cannot be disannexed from the freehold and taken away, although it may be built over a steam-engine, and may contain nothing but steam-machinery, spinning-jennies, drums and wheels, all of which may be removable, and to all of which it may in a certain sense be accessory (u).

Fixtures removable by local custom and usage.—Things annexed to the freehold are sometimes held removable in accordance with local custom and usage in particular districts, such as barns and granaries erected on stone pillars, or on pattens, or blocks of timber (x). If the pillars or pattens merely rest on the ground, and are not attached to foundations sinking into the soil, they are removable without any custom (y). Where miners, under recognized customs embodied in an Act of Parliament, had lawfully erected machinery and buildings, accessory thereto, exclusively for mining purposes, but such buildings were attached to the soil so as to be part of it, and so that they could not be removed without some disturbance, which however did not amount to a destruction, of the soil, it was held that the miners were entitled to remove them while their interest in the mine continued, and were not liable to the surface owners for so doing (z). Local custom as to the removal of fixtures cannot, however, prevail where there is an express stipulation in a lease dealing with their removal (a).

Abandonment of right to remove ornamental and trade fixtures.—If the tenant has entered into an express covenant to yield up, at the expiration of his term, "all erections and buildings that may be erected," or "all improvements (b) that may be made," upon the demised premises, he cannot afterwards remove trade erections or buildings, or trade or ornamental or domestic fixtures (c). A covenant by a tenant to yield up trade fixtures at the end of the term will not prevent the removal of (u) Whitehead v. Bennett, 27 L.J. Ch. 474.

(x) 11 Vin. Abr. 154; EXECUTORS, U. pl. 74; Culling v. Tuffnell, Bull. N.P. 34.

(y) See notes to Elwes v. Maw, 2 Smith's L.C. 189 (ed. 11).

(z) Wake v. Hall, 8 App.Cas. 195; 52 L.J. Q.B. 494.

(a) Martyr v. Bradley, 9 Bing. 24; 1 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 147.

(b) See London and South African Exploration Co. v. De Beers Consolidated Mines, (1895) A.C. p. 455; 64 L.J. P.C. 125, per Ld. Macnaghten, as to meaning of "improvements."

(c) Naylor v. Collinge, 1 Taunt. 19; Thresher v. East London Waterworks, 2 B. & C. 608; 2 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 100; Martyr v. Bradley, 2 M. & Sc. 25; 1 L.J. C.P. 147; West v. Blakeway, 3 Sc. N.R. 218; 10 L.J. C.P. 173; Bishop v. Elliott, ante, pp. 696, 699; see also Dumergue v. Rumsey, 32 L.J. Ex. 88; 2 H. & C. 777; Sumner v. Bromilow, 34 L.J. Q.B. 130.

trade machinery fixed by bolts to the floors of the demised premises not as an integral part of, but only for the more convenient user of, the premises (d); and if such a covenant leaves the matter doubtful, the ordinary right of a tenant to remove trade fixtures will not be interfered with (e). A covenant in a lease to yield up the demised premises to the lessor at the expiration of the lease, together with all fixtures thereunto belonging, is confined to fixtures which belonged to the demised premises at the time of the execution of the lease, and does not extend to fixtures which were not then in existence; but a covenant to yield up fixtures belonging, or that may belong, to the demised premises, extends to fixtures that are afterwards put up by the tenant (f).

Inability of tenant to remove fixtures after expiration of term.—Whenever an outgoing tenant is possessed of fixtures which he has a right to remove, he must exercise such right prior to the determination of his tenancy (g); he cannot, after a formal disclaimer of the title of his landlord, or after he has once quitted the demised premises and given up the key to the landlord (h), re-enter for the purpose of severing and removing fixtures. "After the term they become a gift in law to him in reversion, and are not removable," unless the tenant, after the expiration of the term, has remained in possession, with the permission of the landlord, and actually removes them during the continuance of his lawful possession, after the expiration of the term; if he holds over wrongfully, he loses his right to remove his fixtures; and if he quits possession, and the tenancy is determined, his right to his fixtures is extinguished, and they become the property of the reversioner (i). It has been held that a tenant's fixtures not removed during the continuance of the tenancy become on its expiration part of the freehold even though they are on the premises by the parol consent of the lessor (k). If the lease becomes forfeited, and the tenant, whilst he continues in possession after the forfeiture, and before judgment in ejectment has been obtained against him, removes his fixtures, he will be entitled to retain those removed within a reasonable time, as they are not forfeited to the landlord

(d) Lambourn v. McLellan, (1903) 2 Ch. 268; 72 L.J. Ch. 617.

(e) Per Vaughan Williams, L.J., in Lambourn v. McLellan, supra.

(f) Hitchman v. Walton, 4 M. & W. 414; 8 L.J. Ex. 31; Metrop. Co. Ins. Soc. v. Brown, 28 L.J. Ch. 581; 26 Beav. 454.

(g) Lyde v. Russell, 1 B. & Ad. 394; 9 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 26.

(h) Brook, Ex parte, 10 Ch.D. 100, 110; 48 L.J. Bankr. 22.

(i) Leader v. Homewood, 5 C.B. N.S. 546; 27 L.J. C.P. 316; Roffey v. Henderson, 17 Q.B. 574; 21 L.J. Q.B. 49; Heap v. Barton, 12 C.B. 274; 21 L.J. C.P. 153.

(k) Thomas v. Jennings, 66 L.J. Q.B. 5; Roffey v. Henderson, supra.

by the forfeiture of the lease (l). But if the landlord re-enters for the forfeiture the tenant's right to remove the fixtures is gone (m). Under the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1908 (n), a tenant who has complied with the provisions of that Act is entitled to remove fixtures affixed by him to his holding within a reasonable time after the determination of his tenancy. Where a trustee in bankruptcy applies for leave to disclaim a lease the Court may make such orders with respect to fixtures as it thinks just (o); and the trustee upon disclaiming has a reasonable time within which to remove them where the landlord refuses to take them over at a valuation (p).

Right of purchasers, or mortgagees, to enter and remove fixtures.—The right of the assignee of the lessee can of course, in general, extend no further than the right of the lessee himself; but the tenant's right to remove fixtures is held to be so far connected with the land, that it may be considered as a right or interest in it, which, if the tenant grants away, he shall not be allowed to defeat his grant by a subsequent voluntary act of surrender; "for, as regards strangers who were not parties or privies to the surrender, the estate surrendered hath in law a continuance" (q); therefore, where a tenant surrenders his term and quits possession, a mortgagee or purchaser of the tenant's fixtures has a right to enter and remove them within a reasonable time after the surrender (r); and where a company forfeits a lease by passing a resolution for a voluntary winding-up, in which resolution the debenture holders do not concur, the latter have a similar right (s). Trade fixtures affixed to mortgaged premises by the mortgagor in a quasi-permanent manner, before or even after the mortgage (t), pass to the mortgagee (u). An equitable mortgagee has the same rights in this respect as a legal mortgagee (x). As a general

(l) Stansfeld v. Portsmouth (Mayor), 4 C.B. N.S. 120; 27 L.J. C.P. 124; Sumner v. Bromilow, 34 L.J. Q.B. 130; but see Storer v. Hunter, 3 B. & C. 368; 3 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 81. As to the issue of a writ in ejectment determining a tenancy, see Barff v. Probyn, 64 L.J. Q.B. 557.

(m) Pugh v. Arton, L.R. 8 Eq. 626; 38 L.J. Ch. 619. This decision has been questioned by Joyce, J., in Glasdir Copper Mines, Ltd., In re, (1904) 1 Ch. 819; 73 L.J. Ch. 461.

(n) 8 Edw. 7, c. 28, s. 21 (1). See also ante, p. 698.

(o) 46 & 47 Vict. c. 52, s. 55 (3).

(p) Moser, In re, 13 Q.B.D. 738.

(q) Co. Litt. 388, b.

(r) Lond. and Westminster Loan Co. v. Drake, 6 C.B. N.S. 798; 28 L.J. C.P. 297.

(s) Glasdir Copper Mines, Ltd., In re, (1904) 1 Ch. 819; 73 L.J. Ch. 461.

(t) Meux v. Jacobs, L.R. 7 H.L. 481; 44 L.J. Ch. 481.

(u) Cullwick v. Swindell, L.R. 3 Eq. 249; 36 L.J. Ch. 173; Climie v. Wood, L.R. 4 Ex. 328; 38 L.J. Ex. 223; see Boyd v. Shorrock, L.R. 5 Eq. 72; 37 L.J. Ch. 144; Astbury, Ex parte, L.R. 4 Ch. 630; 38 L.J. Bankr. 9; Longbottom v. Berry, L.R. 5 Q.B. 123; 39 L.J. Q.B. 37; Holland v. Hodgson, L.R. 7 C.P. 328; 41 L.J. C.P. 146. As to machinery embedded in concrete floor passing to mortgagee, see Reynolds v. Ashby, (1904) A.C. 466; 77 L.J. K.B. 946.

(x) Tebb v. Hodge, L.R. 5 C.P. 73; 39 L.J. C.P. 56.

rule no authority ought to be implied from a mortgagee to a mortgagor in possession to remove trade fixtures affixed to the mortgaged premises (y).

Abandonment of right to remove fixtures.—A covenant in a lease to yield up the demised premises, together with all fixtures thereunto belonging, is confined to fixtures which belonged to the demised premises at the time of the execution of the lease; but a covenant to yield up fixtures that may belong to the demised premises extends to fixtures that are afterwards put up by the tenant (z). It has been recently held that a covenant to deliver up premises "with all fixtures belonging thereto" is not, in the absence of explanatory words, confined to landlord's fixtures, but extends to all fixtures on the premises of whatsoever nature (a). Whenever the tenant has a right of removal, he must exercise such right prior to the determination of his tenancy; he cannot, after he has once quitted the demised premises, re-enter for the purpose of severing and removing fixtures (b). If the tenant holds over wrongfully, he loses his right to sever and remove fixtures (c); but, if a lease becomes forfeited, the tenant may, before the landlord re-enters, or before the forfeiture is established by the judgment of a court of law, but not afterwards (d), remove his fixtures, and cannot, it seems, be made responsible for so doing (e). If the landlord gives the lessee permission to leave the fixtures on the premises, and make the best terms he can for them with the incoming tenant, and the latter enters and takes possession of the fixtures, but refuses to pay for them, the lessee cannot enter to remove them, nor can he recover the value of them (f). When it is provided by the terms of a lease that the lessee, at the expiration or other sooner determination of the term, is to have certain fixtures, and the lease becomes forfeited, the lessee has a reasonable time from the date of the forfeiture for the removal of his fixtures (g). If a covenant in a lease to leave fixtures

(y) Ellis v. Glover, (1908) 1 K.B. 388; 77 L.J. K.B. 251.

(z) Hitchman v. Walton, 4 M. & W. 414; 8 L.J. Ex. 31; Metrop. Co. Insur. Co. v. Brown, 28 L.J. Ch. 581; 26 Beav. 454; Naylor v. Collinge, 1 Taunt. 19; Thresher v. East London Waterworks, 2 B. & C. 608; 2 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 100; Martyr v. Bradley, 9 Bing. 24; 1 L.J. C.P. 147; West v. Blakeway, 2 M. & Gr. 729; 10 L.J. C.P. 173; see also Dumergue v. Rumsey, 33 L.J. Ex. 88; 2 H. & C. 777; Sumner v. Bromilow, 34 L.J. Q.B. 30.

(a) Leschallas v. Woolf, (1908) 1 Ch. 641; 77 L.J. Ch. 345.

(b) Lee v. Risdon, 7 Taunt. 191; Quincy, Ex parte, 1 Atk. 477; Dudley v. Warde, Amb. 113; Lyde v. Russell, 1 B. & Ad. 394; 9 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 26.

(c) Leader v. Homewood, 27 L.J. C.P. 316; 5 C.B. N.S. 546.

(d) Heap v. Barton, 12 C.B. 274; 21 L.J. C.P. 153; Pugh v. Arton, L.R. 8 Eq. 626; 38 L.J. Ch. 619.

(e) Stansfeld v. Portsmouth (Mayor), 4 C.B. N.S. 120; 27 L.J. C.P. 124; Storer v. Hunter, 3 B. & C. 368; 3 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 81.

(f) Roffey v. Henderson, 17 Q.B. 574; 21 L.J. Q.B. 49; Thomas v. Jenkins, 66 L.J. Q.B. 5.

(g) Stansfeld v. Portsmouth (Mayor), 4 C.B. N.S. 131; 27 L.J. C.P. 124.

at the end of the term leaves the matter doubtful, the ordinary right of a tenant to remove trade fixtures will not be interfered with (h).

Licence to commit waste.—If a general or partial permission be given to the lessee by the lease to commit waste (i), he is so far tenant without impeachment of waste. Such permission vests the property of what is the subject of waste in the lessee, so that he avails himself of it during the continuance of his interest. It is so with respect to trees and minerals. Where land was demised for a term of years, with liberty to the lessee to dig half an acre of brick-earth to a certain depth annually, and the lessee covenanted that if he dug more he would pay an increased rent of 375*l.* for every half acre so dug, and a stranger dug and took away brick-earth, it was held that the lessee was entitled to recover from the stranger the full value of such brick-earth (k).

Right of reversioners to enter upon lands in possession of lessees to inspect waste.—The law gives to a lessor, or him who hath the reversion, liberty to enter upon the lands of the lessee for years, to see if there be waste, to the intent that he may have his action, if there be cause for it; and if the lessee prevents the inspection, he is liable to an action for damages (l).

Injuries to lands and tenements from fire.—The involuntary and unintentional burning of a house, through the negligence of the tenant or his servants, amounts, in contemplation of law, to no more than permissive waste; and for this a tenant at will or from year to year is not, as we have seen, responsible to the reversioner (m). Every landlord who demises buildings to a tenant must be taken to contemplate all the ordinary risks to which house property is exposed from fire and the negligence of servants intrusted with fire and candles (n); and if he wishes to be protected from these risks, he must either insure or take from his lessee a covenant to repair and maintain the premises. If he fails to do so, and the premises are destroyed by fire, without any gross or culpable negligence on the part of the tenant, the landlord will have no remedy for the loss. If the fire has been caused by such an amount of gross negligence as to give it the appearance of a wilful act, the party

(h) Per Vaughan Williams, L.J., Lambourn v. McLellan, (1903) 2 Ch. 268; 72 L.J. Ch. 617.

(i) By 52 Hen. 3, c. 23, a tenant is to do no waste without special licence.

(k) Attersoll v. Stevens, 1 Taunt. 183.

(l) Hunt v. Dowman, Cro.Jac. 478.

(m) Ante, p. 692. Shrewsbury (Countess) v. Crompton, Cro.Eliz. 777; Tindal, C.J., in M'Kenzie v. M'Leod, 4 M. & Sc. 253; 3 L.J. C.P. 79; Horsefall v. Mather, Holt, N.P.C. 9.

(n) See as to penalties on servants negligently causing fire, Addison on Torts, 707 (ed. 8).

guilty of the misconduct, whether it be the tenant or a stranger to the demise, will be answerable for commissive waste.

Every tenant of a house is responsible for not taking care that the stop-cocks for regulating the supply of gas to a house are properly turned; and if these stop-cocks are negligently left open by the tenant or servants when the gas-lights are not burning, and an explosion ensues, and injures the house, the tenant will be responsible for the injury. But if a thief enters the house in the absence of the tenant, and cuts and carries away a gas-pipe without the knowledge of the tenant, or against his will, the latter is not then responsible for the resulting damage. Where the entry of gas into a house was under the control of the occupants of the house, the gas company supplying the gas was held not to be bound by the Act under which it was incorporated, on receiving notice that no more gas would be required, to stop the supply from the outside by putting on an outer stop-cock, or cutting off the communication between the gas-pipes in the interior of the house and the main in the street (o). In supplying gas to a house, a gas company is bound to use every reasonable precaution to prevent injury during the operation of "tapping the main" (p).

Damages for waste.—In an action for waste (q), it is no objection to the landlord's claim to substantial damages, or to the judgment of the court, that the property has been improved in value by alterations made upon it, if those alterations have been made without the knowledge of the landlord, or in spite of his protest or objections. If a tenant convert a furze-brake, in which game have bred, into arable or pasture land, by which its real value is improved, but its value to the landlord is depreciated, the landlord is entitled to have damages assessed thereon (r), and to judgment, however small may be the damages recovered (s).

When the action is brought for a breach of duty by the defendant, in omitting or neglecting to restore or rebuild a house which the defendant has undertaken to maintain and keep up, and which has been accidentally burnt or destroyed, the measure of damages is not the cost of rebuilding the house, but only the loss which the plaintiff has sustained by the actual deterioration of his property. If the new house, when rebuilt, will be

(o) Holden v. Liverpool Gas Co., 3 C.B. 14; 15 L.J. C.P. 304.

(p) Blenkiron v. Gt. Central Gas Consumers' Co., 2 F. & F. 438.

(q) As to who may sue see R.S.C. Order XVI. r. 37. As to what constitutes waste, see ante, p. 689, and Addison on Torts, pp. 358 et seq. (ed. 8).

(r) Heath, J., Harrow School v. Alderton, 2 Bos. & P. 86, 88.

(s) Pindar v. Wadsworth, 2 East, 154

much more valuable to the plaintiff than the old house that was burnt or destroyed, the defendant is entitled to the benefit of the deduction of the increased value from the cost of the rebuilding (t). Where, however, there is a covenant not to commit waste, the measure of damages for a breach is not necessarily the sum required to reinstate the property, but is the diminution in the value of the reversion, less a discount for immediate payment (u).

Damages recoverable from tenant obstructing reversioner entering upon premises to inspect waste.—We have already seen (ante, p. 704) that the law gives to a lessor, or him who hath the reversion, liberty to enter upon the lands of the lessee for years, to see if there be waste, to the intent that he may have his action, if there be cause for it; and, therefore, if the lessee prevents the inspection, substantial damages may be recovered from him by reason of the infringement of the lessor's right, although no waste has actually been committed or damage done (x).

Injunction to restrain waste (y).—The courts will interfere by injunction to restrain lessees and mortgagees in possession from committing voluntary waste to the injury of the landlord or mortgagor; unless the wrongful act works a forfeiture of the estate, and the landlord has an immediate right of entry and fails to exercise it (z), or unless the parties have by their contract assessed the compensation in the shape of an increased rent or liquidated damages to be paid for the doing of the act (a), and not as a cumulative remedy (b). In determining whether an act of waste has been committed by a lessee on the demised premises, so as to entitle the lessor to an injunction to restrain further commission, the test is whether the act complained of by the lessor is one which substantially alters the nature of the thing demised (c).

Where a tenant from year to year received notice to quit, and then began to cut and damage the hedge-rows, and to take manure off the land, and remove straw, &c., contrary to the course of good husbandry (cc), the court granted an injunction to

(t) Yates v. Dunster, 11 Exch. 15; 24 L.J. Ex. 226; Lukin v. Godsall, 1 Peake, Add.Cas. 15.

(u) Whitham v. Kershaw, 16 Q.B.D. 613.

(x) Hunt v. Dowman, Cro.Jac. 478.

(y) See, further, Addison on Torts, pp. 365 et seq. (ed. 8).

(z) Lathropp v. Marsh, 5 Ves. 259.

(a) Woodward v. Giles, 2 Vern. 119; Carnes v. Nesbitt, 7 H. & N. 778; 30 L.J. Ex. 348; Rolfe v. Peterson, 2 Bro. P.C. 436.

(b) London (City of) v. Pugh, 4 Bro. P.C. 395.

(c) West Ham Central Charity Board v. East London Waterworks Co., (1901) 1 Ch. 624; 69 L.J. Ch. 257; Doherty v. Allman, 3 App.Cas. 709.

(cc) See Rush v. Lucas, (1910) 1 Ch 437; 79 L.J. Ch. 172.

stop the mischief (d). And where the tenant of a farm, having discovered valuable mineral deposits in a stream which ran from the Welsh mountains through his land, set to work to gather the minerals, and sell them, the court granted a perpetual injunction to restrain him from so doing (e). And so it will on a bill brought by a mortgagor, where the mortgagee in possession commits waste by cutting down timber, and the money arising from the sale of the timber is not applied in sinking the interest and principal of the mortgage. And where a mortgagor in possession commits waste, the court will, on a bill by the mortgagee, grant an injunction, for they will not suffer a mortgagor to prejudice the incumbrance (f).

Effect of acquiescence in commission of waste.—It is a principle of equity, that when a person has stood by seeing an act done, and has consented to it, he cannot complain of that which he has himself expressly or impliedly authorised or permitted (g).

Right of property in trees and bushes (h).—According to the old authorities, the general property in trees is in the landlord, and that in bushes is in the tenant, although if he exceeds his right—as by grubbing up or destroying fences—he may be liable to an action for waste. The tenant has the general property in the cuttings of a hedge, whoever cuts it (i).

Defeasible leases.—The lessor may reserve to himself a right to determine the lease and resume possession of the demised premises at any time on giving notice of his intention to the lessee (k). If a lease is made defeasible at the option of either of the parties, it may be determined by the lessor by a simple demand of possession, or the tenant may quit the demised premises and release himself from his contract by tendering possession to the landlord; but, if the lease is made determinable at the expiration of three, six, or nine years, or any particular interval of time, reasonable notice of the intention to determine the contract must be given by the party who intends to avail himself of the power of defeasance (l). If the lease is made determinable at the expiration of a certain time, "if the parties so think fit," both parties must concur in exercising

(d) Onslow v. ——, 16 Ves. 173. As to freedom of cropping and disposal of produce, &c., see now 8 Edw. 7, c. 28, s. 26.

(e) Thomas v. Jones, 1 Y. & C. 510.

(f) Farrant v. Lovel, 3 Atk. 722.

(g) Brydges v. Kilburne, cited Jackson v. Cator, 5 Ves. 688; Harrow School v. Alderton, 2 Bos. & P. 86, ante, p. 705; Rex v. Butterton, 6 T.R. 555; E. I. Co. v. Vincent, 2 Atk. 82; Parrott v. Palmer, 3 Myl. & K. 632, 640.

(h) See also Addison on Torts, p. 384 (ed. 8).

(i) Berriman v. Peacock, 9 Bing. 384; 2 L.J. C.P. 23.

(k) Doe v. Kennard, 12 Q.B. 244; Liddy v. Kennedy, L.R. 5 H.L. 134.

(l) Goodright v. Richardson, 3 T.R. 462.

the power to determine the lease (m). If power to determine the lease after a certain time is reserved, without saying by whom it is to be exercised, the law gives it to the lessee (n). If an agreement is entered into for a yearly tenancy, with a proviso for determining it in the middle of the year, "such a proviso does not prevent it from being a yearly tenancy; when the party is in, he is in of the whole estate for a year, liable to a defeasance on a particular event" (o). So, where there is a lease for twenty-one years, determinable at the end of seven or fourteen years, the party, when he enters, is in of a term of twenty-one years, but a defeasible term, and which may determinate by matter ex post facto (p). When the lease is determinable by notice, the notice may be given at any time, if no particular period for giving it is specified (q); but it must be in strict conformity with the terms of the power of defeasance; and, when performance of all the covenants that have been entered into by the lessee is made a condition precedent to his right to determine the lease, these covenants must be strictly fulfilled (r).

Disclaimer and forfeiture.—If a tenant from year to year disclaims the title of his lessor; if he claims the land as his own, and refuses to pay rent on the ground that he is himself the owner (s); or if he attorns (t) or delivers up possession to a stranger (u), or professes to sell or grant the property to another; if he cuts down timber, pulls down or alters dwelling-houses, or obliterates fences, boundaries, and land-marks, or opens and digs mines and quarries against the will of the landlord, the tenancy is determinable by the latter, and he has a right of re-entry upon the property, and may forthwith recover possession of the demised premises (x). Acts of this description on the part of a tenant from year to year work a forfeiture, or to speak more strictly constitute evidence of disclaimer, of his term and interest, and convert the possession into an adverse

(m) Fowell v. Franter or Tranter, 34 L.J. Ex. 6; 3 H. & C. 458.

(n) Dann v. Spurrier, 3 Bos. & P. 399; Powell v. Smith, L.R. 14 Eq. 85; 41 L.J. Ch. 734.

(o) Per Bayley, J., Rex v. Herstmonceaux, 7 B. & C. at p. 555; 6 L.J. (O.S.) M.C. 35.

(p) Id.

(q) Bridges v. Potts, 17 C.B. N.S. 314; 33 L.J. C.P. 338 (a case of a yearly tenancy of mines); Soames v. Nicholson, (1902) 1 K.B. 157; 71 L.J. K.B. 24; Lewis v. Baker, (1906) 2 K.B. 599; 75 L.J. K.B. 848.

(r) Friar v. Grey, 15 Q.B. 899; 19 L.J. Q.B. 393; 5 Exch. 584; 19 L.J. Ex. 368; in err., 5 Exch. 597; 20 L.J. Ex. 365.

(s) Doe v. Cooper, 1 Sc. N.R. 41; 9 L.J. C.P. 229; Doe v. Stanion, 1 M. & W. 695; 5 L.J. Ex. 253.

(t) Doe v. Litherland, 4 Ad. & E. 784; 6 L.J. K.B. 267; Doe v. Evans, 9 M. & W. 48; 11 L.J. Ex. 9.

(u) Doe v. Flynn, 1 Cr. M. & R. 137; 3 L.J. Ex. 221.

(x) Jones v. Mills, 10 C.B. N.S. 788; 31 L.J. C.P. 66. See, however, as to relief against forfeiture, post, p. 714.

possession, so that the tenant may at once be proceeded against without any notice to quit and without any demand of possession (y). But, if the lessor dies, and adverse claimants to the property appear and demand the rent of the tenant, and the latter refuses to pay it until the conflicting claims have been ascertained and settled, the refusal is not such a disclaimer of the title of the real owner as will justify the latter in treating the tenant as a trespasser (z). "To constitute a disclaimer there must be a renunciation by the party of his character of tenant, either by setting up the title of a rival claimant, or by asserting a claim of ownership in himself" (a). A mere refusal to pay rent, or a declaration by the tenant that he will continue to hold possession, or an omission to acknowledge the landlord as such by requesting further information as to title, when the property has changed hands, does not render the tenancy an adverse tenancy and possession (b). All verbal disclaimers operating as a forfeiture of the tenant's interest in, and right of possession of, the demised premises, and dispensing with the necessity of a notice to quit, are restricted to tenancies from year to year; and need not be in writing (c). A lease for a definite term of years cannot be forfeited by mere words (d). And if, after a disclaimer by a tenant from year to year, the landlord puts in a distress for rent which became due subsequently to the disclaimer, such distress is a waiver of the disclaimer, and again clothes the tenant with a lawful possession (e). Forfeiture is also incurred by the breach of conditions annexed to the demise; for the lessor, having the jus disponendi, may annex whatever conditions he pleases to his grant, provided they are not illegal or repugnant to the grant itself, and upon the breach of those conditions may avoid the lease (f). But the law does not favour forfeitures of estates; and strict proof of a breach of a condition or covenant working a forfeiture of a lease is always required (g); and relief against forfeiture can now be obtained under the Conveyancing Act, 1881 (h).

Provisoes for re-entry.—It is frequently made a term or con-

(y) Doe v. Frowd, 1 M. & P. 480; 6 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 114; Doe v. Flynn, 1 Cr. M. & R. 137; 3 L.J. Ex. 221; Doe v. Pittman, 2 N. & M. 673; Vivian v. Moat, 16 Ch.D. 730; 50 L.J. Ch. 331.

(z) Doe v. Pasquali, Peake, 259; Swinfen v. Bacon, 6 H. & N. 846; 30 L.J. Ex. 368.

(a) Doe v. Cooper, 1 Sc. N.R. 41; 9 L.J. C.P. 229; Hunt v. Allgood, 30 L.J. C.P. 313; 10 C.B. N.S. 253.

(b) Doe v. Cawdor, 1 Cr. M. & R. 398; 3 L.J. Ex. 239; Doe v. Stanion, 1 M. & W. 695, 703; 5 L.J. Ex. 253; Jones v. Mills, 10 C.B. N.S. 788; 31 L.J. C.P. 66.

(c) Doe v. Long, 9 C. & P. 773.

(d) Doe v. Wells, 10 Ad. & E. 427; 8 L.J. Q.B. 265.

(e) Doe v. Williams, 7 C. & P. 322.

(f) Bac.Abr. Leases, T. 2.

(g) 1 Wms.Saund. 287, b; 288, i; 1 Mad. ch. 36.

(h) 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41, s. 14, as amended by 55 & 56 Vict. c. 13. See also post, p. 714.

dition of the demise that the lease shall be forfeited and the lessor have a right to re-enter and re-possess himself of the demised premises for a breach of particular covenants contained in a lease. The right to take advantage of a proviso of this description is, of course, confined to the lessor and the assignee of the reversion or part of the reversion (i); and the lessee cannot be permitted to set up his own breach of contract as an avoidance of the lease; for no man is permitted to take advantage of his own wrong (j). If it is provided that, in case of non-payment of rent, it shall be lawful for the lessor "to enter on the premises for the same until it be fully satisfied," the lessor will be entitled at common law to enter and hold possession until the arrears of rent are satisfied; but, when they are satisfied, the lessee will be entitled to re-enter and hold under the lease as before (k). A power to re-enter if the lessee does not "observe perform and keep" the covenants, has been held to apply to a breach of a negative covenant (l); and where a lease contained a proviso for re-entry if the lessee should commit any breach of the "covenants hereinbefore contained" and upon his part "to be performed" it was held that these latter words did not limit the proviso to breaches of affirmative covenants, but applied to a breach of a covenant against assigning or sub-letting without the consent of the lessor (m). Provisoes in leases for re-entry in case of non-payment of rent or non-performance of covenants are not to be construed with the strictness of conditions at common law; but, being matters of contract between the parties, they should be construed like all other contracts (n). Where the lessee was to hold in consideration of the rent "and conditions" contained in the lease, and it was "stipulated and conditioned" that the lessee should not assign or underlet, it was held that the lease was forfeited, and that the lessor had a right to re-enter, on an assignment being made by the lessee (o). An agreement to hire a messuage "at or under" a certain rent is an agreement to pay that rent; and, therefore, if a power of re-entry is reserved "in

(i) See 22 & 23 Vict. c. 35, s. 3, which only applies where rent is legally apportioned.

(j) Reid v. Parsons, 2 Chit. 247; Doe v. Birch, 1 M. & W. 402; 5 L.J. Ex. 185; Jones v. Carter, 15 M. & W. 718, 725.

(k) Per Ld. Denman, C.J., Doe v. Bowditch, 8 Q.B. 973; 15 L.J. Q.B. 267; Co. Litt. 203.

(l) Evans v. Davis, 10 Ch.D. 747; 48 L.J. Ch. 223.

(m) Harman v. Ainslie, (1904) 1 K.B. 698; 73 L.J. K.B. 539; and see observations of Collins, M.R., on West v. Dobb, L.R. 5 Q.B. 460; 39 L.J. Q.B. 190; and Hyde v. Warden, 3 Ex.D. 72; 47 L.J. Ex. 121, in the latter case a power of re-entry being given upon the lessee "wilfully failing or neglecting to perform" any covenant.

(n) Ld. Tenterden, Doe v. Elsam, M. & M. 189, 191; Hayne v. Cummings, 16 C.B. N.S. 421.

(o) Doe v. Watt, 8 B. & C. 308; 6 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 185.

case of breach of any of the agreements" contained in the written instrument of demise, the lessor may re-enter for non-payment of rent (p). Where a lessee covenanted to pay rent and not to assign, and there was a proviso for re-entry if the rent was in arrear, or all or any of the covenants "hereinafter contained" on the part of the lessee should be broken, and there were no covenants on the part of the lessee after the proviso, but only a covenant by the lessor, that the lessee paying the rent, &c., should quietly enjoy, it was held that the lessor could not enter for breach of the covenant not to assign, as the proviso was restrained by the word "hereinafter" to subsequent covenants, and there were none such in the lease (q). Where there is a proviso for re-entry in case of non-performance of covenants, and the lease contains a general covenant to repair, and also a covenant to repair within a certain time after notice, the landlord may at once enter for breach of the general covenant (r); but, if he gives notice under the second covenant, this is a waiver of the forfeiture incurred by breach of the general covenant, and he cannot recover possession until after the time limited by the notice has expired (s). A notice to repair "in accordance with the covenants" (t) or "forthwith" (u) will not, however, amount to a waiver of the forfeiture incurred by a breach of the general covenant. Where a right of re-entry for waste is reserved, the proviso is understood to mean such waste as is injurious to the reversion (x). Where there is a proviso for re-entry for breach of a covenant to insure and keep insured, it does not mean that the lessee shall keep any one particular policy on foot, but that he shall always keep the premises insured by some one policy or another; and the breach will be a continuing breach so long as they remain uninsured (y).

A power of re-entry, in case the lessee carries on any trade or business upon the demised premises, authorises the lessor to re-enter if a school is established (z). But, when particular trades or occupations are specified, no trade or business which does not clearly fall within the description contained in the lease will come within the proviso (a). A proviso for re-

(p) Doe v. Kneller, 4 C. & P. 3.
(q) Doe v. Godwin, 4 M. & S. 265.
(r) Baylis v. Le Gros, 4 C.B. N.S. 537, but notice is now required under 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41, s. 14.
(s) Doe v. Meux, 4 B. & C. 606; 4 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 4.
(t) Few v. Perkins, L.R. 2 Ex. 92; 36 L.J. Ex. 54.
(u) Roe v. Paine, 2 Campb. 520.
(x) Doe v. Bond, 5 B. & C. 855; 5 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 68.
(y) Doe v. Peck, 1 B. & Ad. 428; 9 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 60.
(z) Doe v. Keeling, 1 M. & S. 95; Kemp v. Sober, 1 Sim. N.S. 517; 20 L.J. Ch. 602. As to restrictive covenants as to user of premises, see ante, pp. 694, 695.
(a) Jones v. Thorne, 1 B. & C. 715; 1 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 200.

entry may be reserved in case the tenant should become bankrupt or insolvent (b), or the term granted should be taken in execution by the sheriff (c), or, where the tenant is a limited company, on liquidation voluntary or compulsory (d). Where a sub-lease granted to a water company contained a covenant by them not to sell or sub-let without the consent of the lessors to whom was reserved a power of re-entry on breach of any covenant on the company's part and the undertaking and property of the latter was subsequently compulsorily transferred to the plaintiffs, who were empowered by statute to sell or underlet any lands or property so transferred to them, it was held that these statutory powers did not deprive the lessors of their right of re-entry on breach of the above-mentioned covenant (e). If the contingency provided for happens, the lessor will be entitled to take possession, and to enjoy the emblements (f). If a proviso for re-entry is insensible, it is of course nugatory; for the court cannot find a meaning for that which has no meaning (g).

If the lessor has the custody of the lease, and has in any wise misrepresented the nature of the proviso, or of the covenants to be fulfilled, or has withholden any necessary information from the lessee, or done anything to entrap the latter into a forfeiture, the law will not permit the lessor to avail himself of such forfeiture; for that would be permitting him to take advantage of his own wrong (h). When a party is let into possession under an agreement for a future lease, which is to contain certain covenants and a proviso for re-entry in case of the non-performance of those covenants, the tenant holds, as we have before seen (ante, p. 660), subject to all such of the terms of the intended lease as are applicable to a yearly tenancy; and if, before the lease is granted, the lessee does an act which would have worked a forfeiture if the lease had been granted, the landlord will have a right to re-enter, and may forthwith recover possession (i).

Effect of re-entry on lessee's liability on his covenants.—The forfeiture of the lease does not extinguish the liability of the lessee in respect of breaches of covenant that had accrued at the time of the forfeiture, so that the lessor, by taking

(b) Roe v. Galliers, 2 T.R. 133; Doe v. Ingleby, 15 M. & W. 465. See Smith v. Gronow, (1891) 2 Q.B. 394; 60 L.J. Q.B. 776.

(c) Rex v. Topping, M'Clel. & Y. 544.

(d) Fryer v. Ewart, (1902) A.C. 187; 71 L.J. Ch. 433.

(e) Metropolitan Water Board v. Solomon, (1908) 2 Ch. 214; 77 L.J. Ch. 517.

(f) Davis v. Eyton, 7 Bing. 154; 9 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 44.

(g) Doe v. Carew, 2 Q.B. 317; 11 L.J. Q.B. 5. As to clerical errors which can be rectified, see Hunt v. Bishop, 8 Exch. 67; 22 L.J. Ex. 337.

(h) Doe v. Rowe, Ry. & Mood. 346.

(i) Doe v. Amey, 12 Ad. & E. 476;

advantage of the forfeiture and re-entering, does not deprive himself of his remedies upon the covenants of the lease for any breach of those covenants up to the time of the re-entry (k). If the landlord does not think fit to avail himself of the forfeiture, the liability of the lessee upon the covenants of the lease remains unaffected by the forfeiture; but, if the landlord brings an action of ejectment, he cannot, in general, sue the lessee in respect of breaches of covenant that have accrued subsequently to the commencement of the action (l).

Waiver of forfeiture—Lessor's right of election.—The right of entry for forfeiture of a lease is governed by the general law that, where a man has a right to elect to do a thing to the injury of another, his election, when once made, is final and conclusive, and he cannot afterwards alter his determination. If, therefore, a lease has been forfeited, and there is an election on the part of the landlord to enter and defeat the lease or not as he pleases, and he by word or act manifests his intention that the lease shall continue, he waives the forfeiture, and cannot afterwards annul the lease. If, knowing of a forfeiture, he nevertheless tells his tenant that he is still tenant, and that he shall hold him to the covenants and stipulations of his lease, the election is made, and the landlord cannot afterwards enter for the forfeiture (m). On the other hand, if he brings ejectment for the forfeiture, he unequivocally declares his election to determine the lease (n); and a subsequent distress is no waiver of the forfeiture (o). Acceptance of rent, or demand of rent, or the bringing of an action for rent, or distraining for rent, accruing due after a forfeiture, will be considered as strong evidence of the lessor's determination to continue the lease and waive the forfeiture, if it appears that, at the time the lessor received the rent, he had notice of the breach of the condition (p). A forfeiture for not repairing may be waived by the receipt of rent which became due after the right of entry accrued, but not by the receipt of rent becoming due before the expiration of a notice to repair (q). A forfeiture is suspended, but not waived, Doe v. Ekins, Ry. & M. 29; Hayne v. Cummings, 16 C.B. N.S. 421.

(k) Hartshorne v. Watson, 5 Sc. 506; 7 L.J. C.P. 138; Blore v. Giulini, (1903) 1 K.B. 356; 72 L.J. K.B. 114.

(l) Jones v. Carter, 15 M. & W. 718.

(m) Ward v. Day, 33 L.J. Q.B. 13, 254; 5 B. & S. 359.

(n) Serjeant v. Nash, Field & Co. (1903) 2 K.B. 304; 72 L.J. K.B. 630.

(o) Grimwood v. Moss, L.R. 7 C.P. 360; 41 L.J. C.P. 239; Serjeant v. Nash, Field & Co., (1903) 2 K.B. 304; 72 L.J. K.B. 630.

(p) Bac. Abr. Leases, tit. 2; Ward v. Day, supra; Denby v. Nicoll, 4 C.B. N.S. 376; 27 L.J. C.P. 220; Croft v. Lumley, 27 L.J. Q.B. 321; 5 E. & B. 648; Cotesworth v. Spokes, 30 L.J. C.P. 220; 10 C.B. N.S. 103; Pellatt v. Boosey, 31 L.J. C.P. 281; Shepherd v. Berger, (1891) 1 Q.B. 597; 60 L.J. Q.B. 395.

(q) Doe v. Brindley, 4 B. & Ad. 84; 2 L.J. K.B. 7.

by allowing a tenant further time to repair (r). A waiver of one forfeiture does not prevent the lessor from availing himself of subsequent forfeitures (s); and a receipt of rent is no waiver of a continuing breach of a covenant to repair (t). Where a breach of covenant has continued upwards of twenty years with full knowledge of it on the part of the lessor, and no attempt has been made to take advantage of it, neither the lessor nor his assignee can avail himself of the breach to work a forfeiture; such knowledge is evidence from which a licence ought to be presumed (u). The mere fact of a landlord not objecting to assignees of a lessee taking possession is not sufficient in itself to imply a recognition of the assignees where the lease contains a covenant not to assign without the landlord's assent (x).

Relief against forfeiture -Breach of covenants or conditions respectnig insurance or payment of rent.—With respect to leases made before or after the commencement of the Conveyancing Act, 1881, and notwithstanding any stipulation to the contrary, relief (y) will now be given against forfeiture (except in cases of non-payment of rent, or breach of covenant not to assign or underlet) (z), unless notice has been given requesting the lessee to remedy the breach and make compensation, and the lessee has failed to comply (a). The Court however has power, under sect. 4 of the Conveyancing Act, 1892 (b), to grant relief to an underlessee against a forfeiture of the superior lease for non-payment of rent (c), or where the forfeiture has been

(r) Doe v. Meux, 4 B. & C. 606; 4 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 4; and see Few v. Perkins, L.R. 2 Ex. 92; 36 L.J. Ex. 54, ante, p. 711.

(s) Doe v. Bliss, 4 Taunt. 735; 23 & 24 Vict. c. 38, s. 6.

(t) Doe v. Jones, 5 Exch. 498; 19 L.J. Ex. 405.

(u) Gibson v. Doeg, 2 H. & N. 615; 27 L.J. Ex. 37; Summerson, In re, (1900) 1 Ch. 112, n.; 69 L.J. Ch. 57, n.; Hepworth v. Pickles, (1900) 1 Ch. 108; 69 L.J. Ch. 55.

(x) Elphinstone (Lord) v. Monkland Iron Co., 11 App.Cas. 332.

(y) As to the necessary parties to an application for relief, see Humphreys v. Morten, (1905) 1 Ch. 379; 74 L.J. Ch. 370.

(z) And in a mining lease, except as to covenants to allow access to books, &c., see 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41, s. 14 (6) (ii). Forfeiture in cases of bankruptcy or execution was excepted from relief by 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41, s. 14 (6); but now, by 55 & 56 Vict. c. 13, s. 2 (2), relief is allowed in these cases under certain restrictions. Notice is, therefore, a condition precedent to enforcing a forfeiture or bankruptcy or liquidation: Horsey Estate v. Steiger, (1899) 2 Q.B. 79; 62 L.J. Q.B. 743; Jacob v. Down, (1900) 8 Ch. 156; 69 L.J. Ch. 493; Fryer v. Ewart, (1902) A.C. 187; 71 L.J. Ch. 433. As to forfeiture for non-payment of rent, see 23 & 24 Vict. c. 126, s. 1; Howard v. Fanshawe, (1895) 2 Ch. 581; 64 L.J. Ch. 666.

(a) 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41, s. 14; the lessee may apply for relief in an action by the lessor. See Gentle v. Faulkner, (1900) 2 Q.B. 267; 69 L.J. Q.B. 777. A mere tenancy under an agreement for a lease is not a lease within the meaning of this section. An agreement with a right for specific performance is a lease: 55 & 56 Vict. c. 13, s. 5. The section extends to breaches committed before the Act came into operation: Quilter v. Mapleson, 9 Q.B.D. 672; 52 L.J. Q.B. 44. See Nind v. Nineteenth Century Building Society, (1894) 2 Q.B. 226; 63 L.J. Q.B. 636, as to the meaning of "lessee" in 55 & 56 Vict. c. 13, s. 2 (1).

(b) 55 & 56 Vict. c. 13, s. 4.

(c) Gray v. Bonsall, (1904) 1 K.B. 601; 73 L.J. K.B. 515. The contrary was held before the Act of 1892 in Burt v. Gray, (1891) 2 Q.B. 98; 60 L.J. Q.B. 664.

occasioned by a breach of covenant by the lessee not to assign or underlet without consent (d); but relief was refused where an underlessee did not investigate his lessor's title, and so failed to discover a covenant against assigning (e). The lessee cannot, however, apply under sect. 14 for relief after the lessor has actually re-entered(f). It is not necessary in all cases that the notice of a breach of covenant given under the section should require the lessee to make compensation if the lessor does not require compensation (g). The notice must specify in detail the particular breach so as to give the lessee precise information of what is alleged against him and what is demanded from him and thus enable him to remedy it before action brought, but a mere general notice of a breach of a specified covenant is insufficient (h). But where the notice refers to several breaches of covenant, it is not entirely invalidated because it turns out that some of the breaches cannot be relied upon (i). No relief would formerly be granted in the case of forfeiture for the breach of any covenant other than covenants to pay rent or insure, except in the case of accident, mistake, or fraud (k), or where the tenant has been misled by the conduct of the landlord amounting to a waiver (l). The effect of the relief granted to a lessee or his assign under sect. 14 is for all purposes and between all parties to wipe out the forfeiture just as if there never had been any (m).

Assignment after forfeiture.—A right of entry which has accrued on a forfeiture cannot be assigned; and the assignee of the reversion, therefore, cannot take advantage of any forfeiture incurred before the assignment; but he is entitled to the benefit of the covenant, and of the condition of re-entry, in respect of any subsequent or continuing breach (n).

(d) Imray v. Oakshette, (1897) 2 Q.B. 218; 66 L.J. Q.B. 544.

(e) Imray v. Oakshette, supra, followed in Matthews v. Smallwood, (1910) 1 Ch. 777; 79 L.J. Ch. 322.

(f) Rogers v. Rice, (1892) 2 Ch. 170; 61 L.J. Ch. 573.

(g) Lock v. Pearce, (1893) 2 Ch. 271; 62 L.J. Ch. 582.

(h) Fletcher v. Nokes, (1897) 1 Ch. 271; 66 L.J. Ch. 177; Serle, In re, (1898) 1 Ch. 652; 67 L.J. Ch. 344; Horsey Estate v. Steiger, (1899) 2 Q.B. 79; 68 L.J. Q.B. 743; Piggott v. Middlesex County Council, (1909) 1 Ch. 134; 77 L.J. Ch. 813. As to claim for rent after notice, see Penton v. Barnett, (1898) 1 Q.B. 276; 67 L.J. Q.B. 11.

(i) Pannell v. City of London Brewery Co., (1900) 1 Ch. 496; 69 L.J. Ch. 244.

(k) Gregory v. Wilson, 9 Hare, 683; 22 L.J. Ch. 159; Hughes v. Met. Ry., 2 App.Cas. 439, 448; 46 L.J. Ch. 583. As to mistake in respect of which the court will or will not grant relief, see Barrow v. Isaacs, (1891) 1 Q.B. 417; 60 L.J. Q.B. 179; Eastern Telegraph Co. v. Dent, (1899) 1 Q.B. 835; 68 L.J. Q.B. 564.

(l) Hughes v. Met. Ry., 2 App.Cas. 439. As to proper case for relief under the section, see Keith v. Gancia & Co., (1904) 1 Ch. 774; 73 L.J. Ch. 411.

(m) Dendy v. Evans, (1910) 1 K.B. 263; 79 L.J. K.B. 121.

(n) Crane v. Batten, 23 L.T. 220; Co. Litt. 215, a.

Costs.—By the Conveyancing Act, 1892 (o), a lessor shall be entitled to recover as a debt due to him from a lessee, and in addition to damages (if any), all reasonable costs and expenses properly incurred by him in employing a solicitor and surveyor, or valuer, or otherwise, in reference to any breach giving rise to a right of re-entry or forfeiture which he has waived by writing under his hand at the request of the lessee, or from which the lessee has been relieved (p) under the Conveyancing Acts.

Surrender—Deeds and agreements of surrender.—A surrender in writing of an interest in any tenements or hereditaments, not being a copyhold interest, and not being an interest which might by law have been created without writing, is void, unless it is made by deed (ante, p. 43). An estate for life or years, which cannot be created without deed, cannot be surrendered without deed (q); but, if the estate may be created, and has been created, without deed, it may be surrendered without deed (r). It is said that "a surrender immediately divests the estate out of the surrenderor and vests it in the surrenderee: for this is a conveyance at common law, to the perfection of which no other act is requisite but the bare grant; and, though it be true that every grant is a contract, and there must be an actus contra actum, or a mutual consent; yet that consent is implied; a gift imports a benefit, and an assumpsit to take a benefit may well be presumed; and there is the same reason why a surrender should vest the estate before notice or agreement, as why a grant of goods should vest the property" (s). But this must be understood only of surrenders of particular estates which are manifestly beneficial to the surrenderee. If the benefit is equivocal there will be no implied assent or acceptance, and the surrender will be nugatory without the express concurrence of the surrenderee (post, p. 718). If the tenant holds under a parol demise for a term not exceeding three years, the term may be surrendered by an agreement in writing, signed by the surrenderor and the surrenderee, provided it is intended to have an immediate effect. There cannot be a surrender to take place in futuro. If anything is to be done by either or both of the parties before the estate of the termor is to be

(o) 55 & 56 Vict. c. 13, s. 2 (1). This Act abrogates the decision in Skinners' Co. v. Knight, (1891) 2 Q.B. 542; 60 L.J. Q.B. 629.

(p) This provision would seem to apply only where the lessee has applied to the court for relief, see Nind v. Nineteenth Century Building Society, (1894) 2 Q.B. 226; 63 L.J. Q.B. 636.

(q) Shep. Touch. 397; Defeasance; Co. Litt. 338, a; 1 Wms.Saund. 236, a; Perkins v. Perkins, Cro.Eliz. 269; Lyon v. Reed, 13 M. & W. 285, 310; 13 L.J. Ex. 377.

(r) Farmer v. Rogers, 2 Wils. 26.

(s) Thompson v. Leach, 2 Salk. 617.

extinguished, the transaction amounts only to a covenant or agreement to surrender, and there is no actual surrender by the tenant, and no right of entry on the part of the landlord by the mere force of the contract (t). An insufficient notice to quit, therefore, accepted by the landlord, does not of itself amount to a surrender of the term by operation of law if the surrender is to operate in futuro (u). But an agreement between a landlord and a tenant holding a demise from year to year, that the tenancy should be determined, followed by the departure of the tenant, and an entry and taking of possession on the part of the landlord, becomes an actual surrender by act and operation of law (x). Where a dispute arose between a yearly tenant and the landlord, and the tenant said to the landlord, "I shall quit," and the latter said, "You may do so, and I shall be glad to get rid of you," and the tenant then removed her furniture and sent the keys of the house to the landlord, and the latter accepted them and took possession, it was held that there was a surrender of the lease by operation of law (y). But the mere delivery and acceptance of the key, without any entry on the demised premises and taking of possession by the landlord, would be no evidence of a surrender (z); and an abandonment of the demised premises by the tenant, and an entry of the landlord thereon for the purpose of repairing them, or airing or drying the rooms, or letting them, and not with a view of taking possession as owner, will not of course amount to a surrender (a). A landlord will not be bound by a surrender accepted under a mistake of fact induced by the tenant (b).

Surrenders by act and operation of law by way of estoppel take place "where the owner of a particular estate has been a party to some act, the validity of which he is by law afterwards estopped from disputing, and which would not be valid if his particular estate had continued to exist. . . . Thus, if lessee for years accept a new lease from his lessor, he is estopped

(t) Coupland v. Maynard, 12 East, 134; Weddall v. Capes, 1 M. & W. 50; 5 L.J. Ex. 111; Foquet v. Moor, 7 Exch. 870; 22 L.J. Ex. 35.

(u) Johnstone v. Hudlestone, 4 B. & C. 922; 4 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 71; Doe v. Milward, 3 M. & W. 328, 332; 7 L.J. Ex. 57.

(x) See 2 Smith's L.C. 837, 843 (ed. 11); Dodd v. Acklom, 7 Sc. N.R. 415; 13 L.J. C.P. 11; Furnivall v. Grove, 30 L.J. C.P. 3; 8 C.B. N.S. 496; Grimman v. Legge, 8 B. & C. 324; 6 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 321.

(y) Grimman v. Legge, 8 B. & C. 324; 6 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 321; Phenè v. Popplewell, 12 C.B. N.S. 334; 31 L.J. C.P. 235; Cadle v. Moody, 30 L.J. Ex. 385; see also Oastler v. Henderson, 2 Q.B.D. 575; 46 L.J. Q.B. 607; Panther Lead Co., In re, (1896) 1 Ch. 978; 65 L.J. Ch. 499.

(z) Cannan v. Hartley, 9 C.B. 634; 19 L.J. C.P. 323.

(a) Bessell v. Landsberg, 7 Q.B. 638; 14 L.J. Q.B. 355; Griffith v. Hodges, 1 C. & P. 419; Oastler v. Henderson, supra.

(b) Gray v. Owen, (1910) 1 K.B. 622; 79 L.J. K.B. 389.

from saying that his lessor had not power to make the new lease; and, as the lessor could not do this until the prior lease had been surrendered, the law says that the acceptance of such new lease is of itself a surrender of the former. So, if there be tenant for life, remainder to another in fee, and the remainderman comes on the land and makes a feoffment to the tenant for life, who accepts livery thereon, the tenant for life is thereby estopped from disputing the seisin in fee of the remainderman, and so the law says, that such acceptance of livery amounts to a surrender of his life estate. Again, if tenant for years accepts from his lessor a grant of a rent issuing out of the land and payable during the term, he is thereby estopped from disputing his lessor's right to grant the rent, and as this could not be done during his term, therefore he is deemed in law to have surrendered his term to the lessor. . . . The acts in pais which bind parties by way of estoppel are . . . all acts which anciently really were, and in contemplation of law have always continued to be, acts of notoriety, not less formal and solemn than the execution of a deed, such as livery, entry, acceptance of an estate, and the like. Whether a party had or had not concurred in an act of this sort, was deemed a matter which there could be no difficulty in ascertaining, and then the legal consequences followed" (c). But, if the original lease is under seal, the acceptance by the lessee of a mere parol demise from the lessor will not amount to a surrender of such original lease (d); and, if the new lease is wholly or partially invalid, and does not pass an interest according to the contract and the intention of the parties, it will not operate as a surrender of the former lease (e). A mere agreement for, or the payment and acceptance of, an increased (f), or diminished (g), rent will not have the effect of creating a new tenancy.

Substitution of new tenant in place of original tenant.—When there is an open and notorious shifting of the actual possession of corporeal property, in execution of an agreement between the lessor and lessee and a third party, to substitute such third party as the lessee in the place of the original lessee, there is a surrender by operation of law of such original lease (h). But a mere agreement with the lessor for the sub-

(c) Lyon v. Reed, 13 M. & W. 285, 306, 309; 13 L.J. Ex. 377; Fenner v. Blake, (1900) 1 Q.B. 426; 69 L.J. Q.B. 257; Knight v. Williams, (1901) 1 Ch. 257; 70 L.J. Ch. 92.

(d) Shep. Touch. 397.

(e) Doe v. Poole, 11 Q.B. 713; 17 L.J. Q.B. 143; Doe v. Courtenay, 11 Q.B. 702; 17 L.J. Q.B. 151.

(f) Geeckie v. Monk, 1 C. & K. 307; Doe v. Geekie, 5 Q.B. 841; 13 L.J. Q.B. 239; Donellan v. Read, 3 B. & Ad. 899, 905; 1 L.J. K.B. 269.

(g) Crowley v. Vitty, 7 Exch. 319; 21 L.J. Ex. 135.

(h) Davison v. Gent, 1 H. & N. 744; 26 L.J. Ex. 122; Nickells or Nicholls v. Atherstone, 10 Q.B. 944; 16 L.J. Q.B.

stitution of a new tenant, not followed up by any actual change of possession, or a mere change of possession unaccompanied by an agreement of substitution, does not amount to a surrender (i). Where a lessee assents to a lease being granted to another, and gives up his own possession to the new lessee, that is a surrender by operation of law; but the old tenant must give up possession to the new tenant at or about the time of the grant of the new lease to which he assents, since the change of possession is a necessary part of the consent (k). It must be shown that the incoming tenant has been expressly received and accepted by the landlord as his lessee, in the place and stead of the original lessee, by the mutual agreement of all parties (l); for the mere change of the possession is no evidence of the grant and acceptance of a new lease, the primâ facie presumption being that the incoming tenant has entered and taken possession as the under-tenant or assignee of the original lessee (m). The mere circumstance of the landlord's having accepted rent from an assignee or under-tenant in possession of the demised premises is not in itself sufficient evidence of an acceptance of such assignee or under-tenant as his lessee in the place of the original lessee, the primâ facie presumption being that the rent was paid by the latter as the agent of the original lessee and on his behalf (n).

Surrender and acceptance of surrender by joint tenants.—Every act done by one joint-tenant which is for the benefit of his companions will bind them; but those acts which prejudice his companions in estate will not bind them; and, if the benefit be doubtful, two joint-tenants have no right to elect for the third. A surrender, therefore, or acceptance of a surrender, by one of several joint-tenants, will not, in general, bind the others (o). If, however, one of two joint-lessors lies by and allows the other to act for him, and acquiesces in the acts of his co-owner, and intrusts the whole management of the business in which they are jointly interested to him, he will be bound by his acts (p).

371; Reeve v. Bird, 1 Cr. M. & R. 31; 3 L.J. Ex. 282; Walls v. Atcheson, 11 Moore, 379; Woodcock v. Nuth, 1 M. & Sc. 317; Thomas v. Cook, 2 B. & Ald. 119.

(i) Taylor v. Chapman, Peake's Add. Cas. 19; Cocking v. Ward, 1 C.B. 868; 15 L.J. C.P. 245; Kelly v. Webster, 12 C.B. 283; 21 L.J. C.P. 163.

(k) Wallis v. Hands, (1893) 2 Ch. 75; 62 L.J. Ch. 586.

(l) Graham v. Whichelo, 1 Cr. & M. 186; 2 L.J. Ex. 70; M'Donnell v. Pope, 9 Hare, 705; Mathews v. Sawell, 2 Moore, 262; 8 Taunt. 270.

(m) Doe v. Williams, 6 B. & C. 41; 9 D. & R. 30. See also Roe v. Street or Fairbanks, 2 Ad. & E. 329; 4 L.J. K.B. 67.

(n) Copeland v. Watts, 1 Stark. 96; Doe v. Wood, 14 M. & W. 682; 15 L.J. Ex. 41; Fryer v. Ewart, (1902) A.C. 187; 71 L.J. Ch. 433.

(o) Right v. Cuthell, 5 East, 491, 498.

(p) Dodd v. Acklom, 7 Sc. N.R. 415; 13 L.J. C.P. 11.

Non-extinguishment by surrender of derivative estates.—If a lessee from year to year grants an underlease of part of the premises demised to him, and then surrenders his term, the surrender will not destroy the estate and interest of the underlessee (q), even though the latter had notice of the surrender (r).

Effect of surrender on existing breaches of covenant.—The mere surrender of the lease does not relieve the lessee from his liability in respect of breaches of covenant that have accrued prior to the surrender. The lessor, therefore, after a surrender, remains a specialty creditor for all arrears of rent, which become due before the surrender, upon the lessee's covenants for the payment of rent (s).

Notice to quit, when necessary.—"When a lease is determinable on a certain event, or at a particular period, no notice to quit is necessary, because both parties are equally apprized of the determination of the term" (t). If, therefore, a lease is granted for a term of years, or for one year only, no notice to quit is necessary at the end of the term (u); but, if the tenancy is from year to year, a half-year's notice terminating with the end of the year must be given on either side in order to determine the tenancy, and this notice may be given in the first as well as in any subsequent year of the tenancy (x). If a man holds under an agreement for a lease, or under a lease void by reason of its not having been made by deed, for the full term intended to have been granted, an ejectment may be brought against him at the expiration of such term without any notice to quit (y). In the case of a tenancy at will (z) no notice to quit is necessary; but there must be a formal demand of possession, or notice of the determination of the will, on the part of the landlord, before any action of ejectment can be brought (a). The tenant at will, too, in order to discharge himself from his liability for rent, or for a reasonable compensation for the use and enjoyment of the demised premises, must (q) Co. Litt. 338, b; 4 Geo. 2, c. 28, s. 6; Pleasant v. Benson, 14 East, 237; Cousins v. Phillips, 3 H. & C. 892; 35 L.J. Ex. 84; G. W. Ry. v. Smith, 3 App. Cas. 165; 47 L.J. Ch. 97; Parker v. Jones, (1910) 2 K.B. 32; 79 L.J. K.B. 921 (a case where the lessor had no notice of the underlease).

(r) Cornish v. Stubbs, L.R. 5 C.P. 334; 39 L.J. C.P. 202; the same principle was applied to a licensee under a revocable licence in Mellor v. Watkins, L.R. 9 Q.B. 400.

(s) Att.-Gen. v. Cox, 3 H.L.Cas. 240.

(t) Right v. Darby, 1 T.R. 159, 162; Messenger v. Armstrong, ib. 53.

(u) Cobb v. Stokes, 8 East, 358.

(x) Doe v. Smaridge, 7 Q.B. 957; 14 L.J. Q.B. 327; Doe v. Nainby, 16 L.J. Q.B. 303; Doe v. Geekie, 5 Q.B. 841; 13 L.J. Q.B. 239. As to what is a reasonable notice to determine a yearly hiring of sporting rights, see Lowe v. Adams, (1901) 2 Ch. 598; 70 L.J. Ch. 783.

(y) Doe v. Stratton, 1 M. & P. 183; 6 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 50; Tress v. Savage, 4 E. & B. 36; 23 L.J. Q.B. 339.

(z) See ante, p. 662.

(a) Right v. Beard, 13 East, 210; Denn v. Rawlins, 10 East, 261; Doe v. Cox, 11 Q.B. 122; 17 L.J. Q.B. 3.

give notice to the landlord of the fact of his abandonment of the possession, and of his election to rescind the contract and put an end to the tenancy (b). If the occupation is the occupation of a servant or agent holding possession of the premises on account and on behalf of his master or principal (c), the possession of the occupier is the possession of the owner himself, and the latter may at any time remove the occupier, and resume possession of the property without any notice to quit (d). If the tenancy and possession are adverse, or if the occupier holds over after the expiration of a lease, or after a forfeiture, or after an agreement for a lease or a contract of sale has gone off and been abandoned (e), or after the tenancy has been determined by a dissolution of partnership, and continues in possession without the permission and against the will of the owner, no notice to quit is necessary; but the owner may at once proceed against the wrongdoer by action for the recovery of the demised premises, or he may enter and take possession if the tenant leaves the demised premises vacant (f).

If the lessor is only tenant at will, or has made a prior lease of the lands, or mortgaged them so as to give the mortgagee a right of entry and to deprive himself of the power of granting a lease for the term specified, the tenant may be turned out without any previous notice to quit from the party who has title (g). But, if the lessor at the time of making of the lease had full right and title to grant the demised premises to the lessee for the term, any subsequent grant, mortgage, sale, or lease, cannot affect the tenant's right of possession, or in any way dispense with the ordinary notice to quit (h).

Mode of giving notice.—A notice to quit may be given orally by the lessor, or by his agent (i), unless there has been an express agreement or stipulation for a notice in writing (k). By the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1908 (l), a notice to quit under the Act may be served on the person to whom it is to be given either personally or by leaving it at his last known place of abode in England or by sending it by post in a registered letter to him there; and in the case of a notice to a landlord "the

(b) See Co. Litt. 55, a; Cole on Ejectment, 453.

(c) As to occupation by servant for purpose of his employment, see Reg. v. Spurrell, L.R. 1 Q.B. 422; 35 L.J. M.C. 74.

(d) Doe v. Derry, 9 C. & P. 494; Mayhew v. Suttle, 4 E. & B. 347; 24 L.J. Q.B. 54; White v. Bailey, 30 L.J. C.P. 253; 10 C.B. N.S. 227.

(e) See ante, p. 662.

(f) Doe v. Sayer, 3 Campb. 8; Doe v. Miles, 1 Stark. 181; Doe v. Bluck, 8 C. & P. 464.

(g) Keech v. Hall, 1 Doug. 21; 1 Smith's L.C. 511 (ed. 11).

(h) As to when notice is necessary by statute, see 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41, s. 18; 53 & 54 Vict. c. 57, s. 2.

(i) Timmins v. Rowlinson, 3 Burr. 1603; Doe v. Crick, 5 Esp. 196.

(k) Legg v. Benion, Willes, 43.

(l) 8 Edw. 7, c. 28, s. 45.

person to whom it is to be given" includes any duly authorised agent of the landlord. The notice must be given by or on behalf of the person in whom the term is vested (m). A mere receiver of rents has no implied authority to give a notice to quit; but an agent or receiver who is intrusted with the general management of landed property, and has a general authority to let lands from year to year, has also authority to determine such tenancies by a notice to quit (n). And he may give the notice in his own name, as it is not necessary that his agency and the authority of his principals should appear on the face of the document (o). The steward of a corporation, who is intrusted with the letting of the corporate estates, may give a notice to quit (p) and needs no authority under seal from the corporation for the purpose (q). If there are several joint-lessors or joint-owners of the property, a notice to quit, given or signed by one or more of them, on behalf of all, is sufficient (r); and the subsequent assent of such joint-owners to a notice previously given by one or more of them, on behalf of all, is equivalent to a precedent authority (s). But, if it is expressly provided by the agreement of the parties that a written notice shall be given by all of them, under their respective hands, the notice must be signed by all, and a ratification given afterwards will not do (t). The notice may also be given by an agent on their behalf; but such notice, in order to be valid and effectual, must be given in the names of the joint-owners, the principals, and not in the name of the agent, unless the agent has a general authority to let their lands (u); and the agent ought to have authority to give the notice at the time it begins to operate; for, if the tenant could not safely have acted upon the notice at the time it was given, no subsequent recognition of it by the landlord will make it valid (x). If one or more of several joint-owners dissent from the notice, such of them as have joined in giving the notice to quit are entitled to enter into and hold possession of the demised premises, and receive the rents and profits of the land, jointly with the tenant or lessee of the others who

(m) Seaward v. Drew, 67 L.J. Q.B. 322.

(n) Doe v. Mizen, 2 M. & Rob. 56.

(o) Jones v. Phipps, L.R. 3 Q.B. 567; 37 L.J. Q.B. 198.

(p) Roe v. Pierce, 2 Campb. 96.

(q) Doe v. Bold, 11 Q.B. 127.

(r) Doe v. Hulme, 2 Man. & Ry. 433; 6 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 344; Doe v. Summersett, 1 B. & Ad. 135; 8 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 369; Alford v. Vickery, Car. & M. 280; Doe v. Hughes, 7 M. & W. 139; 10 L.J. Ex. 185.

(s) Abbott, C.J., Goodtitle v. Woodward, 3 B. & Ald. 689, 692.

(t) Right v. Cuthell, 5 East, 491.

(u) Jones v. Phipps, L.R. 3 Q.B. 567; 37 L.J. Q.B. 198.

(x) Doe v. Walters, 10 B. & C. 626; 8 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 297; Doe v. Goldwin, 2 Q.B. 146; 10 L.J. Q.B. 275; Goodtitle v. Woodward, supra. As to ratification of an unauthorized notice to quit, see London and Blackwall Ry. v. Cross, 31 Ch.D. 354, at p. 363; 55 L.J. Ch. 313.

have refused to join in such notice (y). One of two or more executors or administrators stands in the same position as regards giving notice to quit as one of several joint-tenants who demise premises (z).

Form and effect of notice—Alternative and peremptory notices.—A notice to quit "all the property you hold of me," addressed to the tenant, is a sufficient description of the demised premises; and any general description applicable to the whole of the property will suffice (a). But a landlord cannot give a notice to quit which is intended to apply to a part only of premises which have been demised together at one entire rent (b). Under the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1908 (c), however, where a notice to quit is given by the landlord of a holding to a tenant from year to year with a view to the use of land for the purpose of making certain improvements, the notice, if it states that it is given with a view to such use, cannot be objected to on the ground that it relates to part only of the holding (d); but the tenant may, within twenty-eight days after service of such notice, serve on the landlord notice in writing that he accepts it as a notice to quit the entire holding, to take effect at the expiration of the then current year of tenancy; and the notice to quit will have effect accordingly (e). A mere misdescription, however, of the premises (f), or a mistake in the Christian name of the tenant (g), does not invalidate the notice, provided the tenant has not been misled or prejudiced by such misdescription or mistake (h). If the notice applies to a year that is past, but was clearly intended to apply to the coming year, and the tenant must have known what time was meant, he is bound by the notice (i). If the notice is not a peremptory notice to quit, but is drawn up in the alternative, and seems to have been intended either to put an end to the lease or obtain an increased rent, the tenant may elect to remain in possession, paying an increased rent; and, such an option having been accorded to him, he cannot, if he chooses to occupy, be treated as a trespasser and wrongdoer and turned out of possession. If, however, the notice is a notice to quit or pay double the annual value under the statutes imposing penalties on tenants for holding over after a notice to quit, (y) Doe v. Chaplin, 3 Taunt. 120.

(z) Cole on Ejectment, p. 43 et seq.
(a) Doe v. Church, 3 Campb. 71.
(b) Doe v. Archer, 14 East, 245.
(c) 8 Edw. 7, c. 28, s. 23.
(d) Ib., s. 23 (a).
(e) See proviso to s. 23; and as to service of notices under the Act, see s. 45.
(f) Doe v. Roe, 4 Esp. 185; Doe v. Wilkinson, 12 Ad. & E. 743; 4 P. & D. 323.
(g) Doe v. Spiller, 6 Esp. 70.
(h) Doe v. Smith, 5 Ad. & E. 350; 5 L.J. K.B. 216. See post, p. 727.
(i) Doe v. Kightley, 7 T.R. 63.

the alternative notice so given will be construed as a peremptory notice to quit, accompanied by a warning to the tenant of the penal consequences of disobedience, and not as an offer on the part of the landlord of a new bargain and a new lease at an increased rent (k). A notice to determine a tenancy, although imperfectly expressed, is a good and valid notice if accepted as such at the time by the landlord (l). Where a tenant wrote to his landlord, from whom he had taken a house on a lease determinable at the end of seven or fourteen years, "I have just been looking at my lease, and I see that my first seven years will be determined on 25th December, 1894. . . . I understand that the rent is 50*l.* too high, and I shall not be able to stop unless some reduction is made. I give you an early intimation of this, so that you may have ample time to consider what course you would like to adopt," it was held, that the letter constituted a good and sufficient notice to determine the lease (m). Where a notice to quit on a day terminating the tenancy went on to say, "And I hereby further give you notice that, should you retain possession of the premises after the day before mentioned, the annual rental of the premises now held by you from me will be 160*l.*, payable quarterly in advance," it was held that the notice was not rendered invalid by the addition (n).

Length of notice.—We have already seen that, in the case of a tenancy from year to year, six calendar months' notice to quit is required to be given prior to the expiration of the current year of hiring, in order to determine the tenancy between the parties (o). But, whenever the tenancy commences and ends at any of the usual feasts, the customary half-year (i.e., 182 days) intervening between two half-yearly feasts constitutes a half-year's notice, although the intermediate time be not exactly six calendar months (p). And where the tenancy commenced on a feast day, and notice was given on the 26th of March to quit on the 29th September, it was held bad, although there were more than 183 days intervening (q). Although rent may be payable under the lease on the usual feast days, yet where the length of notice required by the terms of the lease is six calendar months, a notice given on the 29th September to quit on the (k) Doe v. Jackson, 1 Doug. 175; Doe v. Goldwin, 2 Q.B. 143; 10 L.J. Q.B. 275.

(l) General Assurance Co. v. Worsley, 64 L.J. Q.B. 253.

(m) Bury v. Thompson, (1895) 1 Q.B. 696; 64 L.J. Q.B. 500.

(n) Ahearn v. Bellman, 4 Ex.D. 201; 48 L.J. Ex. 681.

(o) Ante, p. 720; but see Rogers v. Kingston-upon-Hull Dock Co., 34 L.J. Ch. 165.

(p) Howard v. Wemsley, 6 Esp. 53; Rogers v. Kingston-upon-Hull Dock Co., supra.

(q) Morgan v. Davies, 3 C.P.D. 260.

25th March would be bad, as there are not six calendar months intervening. Under sect. 22 of the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1908 (r), where a half-year's notice, expiring with a year of tenancy, is by law necessary and sufficient for the determination of a tenancy of a holding from year to year, a year's notice so expiring shall by virtue of the Act be necessary and sufficient for such determination, unless the landlord and the tenant agree in writing that this section shall not apply, in which case a half-year's notice shall be sufficient; but nothing in this section extends to a case where a receiving order in bankruptcy is made against the tenant (s). Under the Act of 1883 it was held that, where by agreement a yearly tenancy was determinable on six months' notice, that Act did not apply (t).

Time of quitting specified in notice.—If the time at which the tenant is to quit is specified in the notice, the time should correspond with the termination of the term of hiring, unless the notice is given in the exercise of a power to determine the tenancy expressly reserved in the lease or agreement (u); for, if the term expires at one period, and the notice is to quit at another, that is, on the wrong day, such notice is bad (x). A tenant, under an agreement to quit at a quarter's notice, cannot be expelled at the expiration of any quarter that the lessor may choose to select, but the notice must be a quarter's notice to quit at the expiration of the current year (y). If the hiring is from half-year to half-year, determinable by six months' notice to quit, the tenancy may be determined by notice at the expiration of any half-year from its commencement (z). If it is a quarterly, a monthly, or a weekly hiring, the notice must be a notice to quit at the expiration of the current quarter, month, or week; if it breaks into the middle of the quarter, month, or week, it is not a good notice to quit. If the hiring is from month to month, and the rent is made payable weekly, a notice to quit at the expiration of the current month must be given, and not a notice expiring at any one of the weeks without reference to the termination of the month. The length of the notice, however, may be varied by local custom and usage, and by the agreement of the parties (a). When the hiring is

(r) 8 Edw. 7, c. 28, s. 22.

(s) Ib., s. 22.

(t) Barlow v. Teal, 15 Q.B.D. 501; 54 L.J. Q.B. 564; and see also Wilkinson v. Calvert, 3 C.P.D. 360; 47 L.J. C.P. 679, decided under 38 & 39 Vict. c. 92, s. 51 (repealed).

(u) Bridges v. Potts, 33 L.J. C.P. 338; 17 C.B. N.S. 314; Soames v. Nicholson, (1902) 1 K.B. 157; 71 L.J. K.B. 24.

(x) Doe v. Lea, 11 East, 312.

(y) Doe v. Donovan, 1 Taunt. 555; Dixon v. Bradford Coal Supply Co., (1904) 1 K.B. 444; 73 L.J. K.B. 136.

(z) Doe v. Grafton, 18 Q.B. 496; 21 L.J. Q.B. 276; and see Lewis v. Baker, (1906) 2 K.B. 599; 75 L.J. K.B. 848.

(a) King v. Eversfield, (1897) 2 Q.B. 475; 66 L.J. Q.B. 809. As to notice being necessary to determine a weekly for one single quarter, month, or week, no notice at all is requisite (b).

A notice "to quit at the end of the first year of your tenancy which expires half a year after the date of this notice," will be sufficient, and so also will a notice "to quit at the expiration of the current year of your tenancy," provided such notice was given half a year prior to the expiration of the current year of hiring (c). A notice to quit on the anniversary of the day "at," or "on," or "from," or "on and from" which the tenancy commenced is good (d). Sometimes the notice is given in the alternative, in order to hit one of two periods on which the term is believed to end, and it has been held that such a notice is a perfectly good notice, and possesses all the certainty that is reasonably requisite for the information of the tenant (e). A notice to a weekly tenant whose tenancy commenced on Wednesday, to quit on Friday, provided his tenancy commenced on Friday, or otherwise at the end of his tenancy next after one week from the date thereof, was held to be a good notice to determine the tenancy at the expiration of a week from the subsequent Wednesday (f).

Application of notice to current term of hiring.—The notice is always understood to apply to the year in which it is given, whether it expressly refers to the "current year" or not; and it will not operate as a notice to quit for the succeeding year, unless it appears plainly to have been the intention of the lessor that the notice, if invalid for the first year, should apply to the next year of holding (g). Where a notice dated the 27th, and served on the 28th, of September, required a tenant to quit "at Lady Day next, or at the end of your current year," and it appeared that the then current year of hiring ended on Michaelmas Day (the 29th of September), two days after the day of the date, and one day after the service of the notice to quit, it was held that it could not be presumed that the notice was intended to apply to the year in which it was given, and of which two days only remained, but that it must be taken to apply to the next year (h). So, where the term of hiring tenancy, see Bowen v. Anderson, (1894) 1 Q.B. 164, following Jones v. Mills, 10 C.B. N.S. 738; 31 L.J. C.P. 66; and explaining Sandford v. Clarke, 21 Q.B.D. 398; 57 L.J. Q.B. 507.

(b) Doe v. Bayley, 5 C. & P. 67; Doe v. Raffan, 6 Esp. 4; Doe v. Hazell, 1 Esp. 94; Kemp v. Derrett, 3 Campb. 510; Huffell v. Armistead, 7 C. & P. 56, commented on in Jones v. Mills, supra.

(c) Doe v. Butler, 2 Esp. 589.

(d) Sidebotham v. Holland, (1895) 1 Q.B. 378; 64 L.J. Q.B. 200.

(e) Doe v. Wrightman, 4 Esp. 5.

(f) Doe v. Scott, 4 Moo. & P. 20; 8 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 110.

(g) Mills v. Goff, 14 M. & W. 72; 14 L.J. Ex. 249.

(h) Doe v. Culliford, 4 D. & R. 248; Weide v. Dyer, (1900) 1 Q.B. 23; 69 L.J. Q.B. 17, commenting on Doe v. Morphett, 7 Q.B. 577; 14 L.J. Q.B. 345, in which Doe v. Culliford, supra, had been disapproved.

commenced and ended on the 2nd of February, and the lessor, on the 22nd of October, 1833, three months and ten days only before the expiration of the year, gave the tenant notice to quit "at the expiration of half a year from the delivery of this notice, or at such other time as your present year's holding shall expire after the expiration of half a year from the delivery of this notice," it was held that the notice, though bad for February, 1834, the succeeding February, was a good notice for February, 1835 (i).

The commencement of the current year of the tenancy is generally regulated by the commencement of the original holding. Where premises were demised by an agreement dated the "13th of August, 1838," for the term of "one year and six months certain," at a yearly rent payable quarterly, "three calendar months' notice to be given on either side previous to the termination of the tenancy," and the tenant entered and held possession beyond the year and six months, and on the 7th May, 1840, the lessor gave the tenant notice to quit on the 13th August next, the notice was held to be good, as the year of hiring was to be calculated from that day, and not from the termination of the year and six months (k). And, where a tenant entered into possession, under an agreement for a lease for a term of five years and a half, and the lease was never granted, but the tenant continued to occupy, and, when the five years and a half were nearly expired, negotiations were entered into for a further lease at an increased rent, to commence on the expiration of the term of five years and a half, and this second lease was never executed, but the defendant continued in the occupation of the premises, paying the increased rent, it was held that the current year of the tenancy must be calculated from the original entry of the tenant upon the premises (l). Where, on the other hand, a lessee of a term granted an underlease for fourteen years and a half from the 25th of December, and the term consequently expired on the 24th of June, and the underlessee continued in possession, paying rent, it was held that the subsequent tenancy commenced from the termination of the preceding underlease, and that a notice given on the 24th of December to quit on the 24th of June was a valid notice (m).

(i) Doe v. Smith, 5 Ad. & E. 350 ; 5 L.J. K.B. 216. See also ante, p. 723.

(k) Doe v. Dobell, 1 Q.B. 806 ; 10 L.J. Q.B. 242 ; Doe v. Samuel, 5 Esp. 173.

(l) Berrey v. Lindley, 3 M. & Gr. 498 ; 11 L.J. C.P. 27 ; and see Kelly v. Paterson, L.R. 9 C.P. 681 ; 43 L.J. C.P. 320.

(m) Doe v. Lines, 11 Q.B. 402 ; 17 L.J. Q.B. 108 ; Walker v. Gode, 6 H. & N. 594 ; 30 L.J. Ex. 172.

Calculation of current year from one of usual feast days.—The term of hiring is generally, by the express or implied agreement of the parties, calculated from some one or other of the quarterly feasts; and, if the tenant enters in the middle of a customary quarter, and afterwards pays his rent for that half-quarter, and continues then to pay from the commencement of a succeeding quarter, he is not a tenant from the time of his coming in, but from the succeeding quarter-day (n). But, if he pays his rent at the end of the quarter or half-year from the time of his coming in, the tenancy will commence from the day of his entry (o). If the notice be given to quit at Michaelmas generally, it is good for either Old or New Michaelmas. Primâ facie it would be for New Michaelmas; but, if the holding was from Old Michaelmas, this notice would do for that also (p). Where a notice was given on the 27th of September, "to quit at the expiration of the term for which you hold," evidence was permitted to be given of a general custom of the country to let from Lady Day, and of the fact of the rent being due at Michaelmas and Lady Day, and it was left to the jury to presume, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, that the tenancy, like other tenancies in that part of the country, was a tenancy from Lady Day to Lady Day (q). It has been held that, since the existence of the new style sanctioned by Act of Parliament, a lease by deed of lands "to be holden from the feast of St. Michael" must be taken to mean New Michaelmas, and that extrinsic evidence is not admissible to show that it meant a holding from Old Michaelmas (r). But, although the oral expressions and agreements of the parties are inadmissible to alter or contradict the written contract, yet all the surrounding circumstances may be regarded; and, if it can be shown that the rent has always been paid at Old Michaelmas, or that by the custom of the country lands are always let at Old Michaelmas, the holding would be deemed to be from the latter period (s).

Admissions by tenant of commencement of term.—The mere service upon the tenant of a notice to quit at a particular time is not primâ facie evidence of the termination of the term at the time mentioned in such notice (t). But, if the tenant is

(n) Doe v. Johnson, 6 Esp. 10; Doe v. Stapleton, 3 C. & P. 275. See also Sandill v. Franklin, L.R. 10 C.P. 377; 44 L.J. C.P. 216; Sidebotham v. Holland, (1895) 1 Q.B. 378; 64 L.J. Q.B. 200.

(o) Doe v. Matthews, 11 C.B. 675.

(p) Doe v. Perrin, 9 C. & P. 467; Doe v. Vince, 2 Campb. 256.

(q) Doe v. Lamb. Adams. Eject. 272 (ed. 1).

(r) Doe v. Lea, 11 East, 312; Smith v. Walton, 1 M. & Sc. 380; 2 L.J. C.P. 85.

(s) Furley v. Wood, 1 Esp. 198; Doe v. Benson, 4 B. & Ald. 588; Den v. Hopkinson, 3 D. & R. 507; 2 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 11.

(t) Doe v. Calvert, 2 Campb. 388.

expressly told that he must leave at the expiration of six months, or if a written notice is served personally on the lessee, and the latter reads it, and makes no objection to it, this is primâ facie evidence to go to a jury that the time of quitting is correctly stated in the notice. If he cannot read, or does not read the notice in the presence of the person who serves it upon him, it must go for nothing (u). An admission by the tenant of a holding corresponding with the time mentioned in the notice may be rebutted by direct evidence of a different holding (x). If the period of the commencement of the term is uncertain, and the lessor applies to the lessee to ascertain the time of the commencement of his lease, the lessee is bound by the information he gives, and cannot be permitted afterwards to set up a different holding for the purpose of defeating proceedings that have been taken by the landlord upon the faith of such statement (y).

Different periods of entry.—When the demised premises are entered upon at different periods, the notice to quit ought to refer to the time of the tenant's entry upon the principal subject-matter of the demise. Thus, if buildings and lands are let together, to be entered upon at different times, and the buildings constitute the principal subject-matter of demise, the notice to quit should refer to the tenant's entry upon the buildings, and not the land; and it is a question of fact which is the principal and which the accessorial subject of demise (z). Though part of a farm is to be entered upon and quitted at different periods, i.e., the pasture at Old Lady Day, the arable land at Old Candlemas, and the meadow at Old May Day, yet that is a letting from Lady Day to Lady Day; for it is no more than the custom of most counties would have directed without any special words for that purpose in any taking from Old Lady Day, viz., that the arable land shall be entered upon at Candlemas to prepare it for the Lent corn, and the meadows not till May Day, when in the northern counties they are usually heyned for hay (a). Where a tenant entered into possession of a farm, under an agreement to enter "on the tillage land at Candlemas last past, and on the house and all other the premises at Lady Day following," and to quit the farm "according to the times of

(u) Thomas v. Thomas, 2 Campb. 647; Doe v. Forster, 13 East, 405; Doe v. Woombwell, 2 Campb. 559.

(x) Oakapple v. Copous, 4 T.R. 361; Brown v. Burtinshaw, 7 D. & R. 610.

(y) Doe v. Lumbly, 2 Esp. 635. As to the converse case where the tenant made the enquiry, see General Assur. Co. v. Worsley, 64 L.J. Q.B. 253.

(z) Doe v. Howard, 11 East, 498; Doe v. Watkins, 7 East, 551, 556; Doe v. Hughes, 7 M. & W. 141; 10 L.J. Ex. 185; Doe v. Rhodes, 11 M. & W. 600; 12 L.J. Ex. 382.

(a) Doe v. Snowdon, 2 W. Bl. 1224.

entry as aforesaid," and the rent was reserved at Michaelmas and Lady Day, a notice to quit, delivered half a year before Lady Day, but less than half a year before Candlemas, was held good, the taking being in substance from Lady Day, with a privilege for the incoming tenant to enter on the arable land at Candlemas for the sake of ploughing, &c. (b).

Service of notice to quit.—If the notice to quit is served upon the actual occupiers of the demised premises, proof of such service is sufficient to sustain an action of ejectment (c). A notice to quit under the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1908 (d), may be served on the tenant either personally or by leaving it for him at his last known place of abode in England, or by sending it through the post in a registered letter addressed to him there, and in the case of a notice to a landlord it may be served either on the landlord or on his agent duly authorised in that behalf. Where the lessee puts another into possession of the demised premises, the party so let into possession is presumed to be the assignee of the lessee, and a notice to quit served upon such occupier will sustain an ejectment against the lessee (e). If the party in occupation of the house is the mere servant of the lessee, the notice should be a notice to the lessee to quit, and not a notice to the servant (f). A delivery of the notice to the wife or servant of the lessee, at the dwelling-house of the latter, is a sufficient service (g). But a servant to whom it is delivered should be expressly told that it is a notice to quit, and should be requested, either orally, or by means of a written direction, to deliver it to the tenant (h). If there is a personal service of the notice upon the tenant himself, no written direction upon the notice is necessary (i); and, if the notice is directed to the tenant by a wrong Christian name and he neglects to repudiate it, he is deemed to have waived the misdirection (k). Where a lease contained a proviso that the demise might be put an end to by delivery of written notice to that effect to the tenant or his assigns and the tenant, after mortgaging the premises by way of sub-lease, disappeared, it was held that a notice sent to the tenant's last known address, and delivery of a like notice to the mortgagee and to the occupier

(b) Doe v. Spence, 6 East, 120.
(c) Roe v. Street, 2 Ad. & E. 331; 4 L.J. K.B. 67.
(d) 8 Edw. 7, c. 28, s. 45; and see also Van Grutten v. Trerenen, 71 L.J. K.B. 514, decided on the repealed Act of 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 61), ss. 28, 33.
(e) Doe v. Williams, 6 B. & C. 41; 9 D. & R. 30.
(f) Doe v. Woodman, 8 East, 228.
(g) Jones v. Marsh, 4 T.R. 464; Doe v. Dunbar, M. & M. 10; Alford v. Vickery, 1 Car. & M. 280; Tanham v. Nicholson, L.R. 5 H.L. 561.
(h) Doe v. Lucas, 5 Esp. 152; Smith v. Clark, 9 Dowl. 202.
(i) Doe v. Wrightman, 4 Esp. 5.
(k) Doe v. Spiller, 6 Esp. 70.

of the premises was not a service of the notice on the lessee, and that as he had not assigned the premises no other service would satisfy the proviso (l). If two or more persons hold possession of the demised premises as joint-tenants or tenants in common, notice to one of them is sufficient notice to all to determine the tenancy (m).

Service of notice through post-office.—Where a notice to quit properly addressed to the landlord's authorised agent had been put into the post-office, and delivered within the usual business hours, on the 25th of March, it was held to be a good notice for the 29th of September following, although the agent, owing to absence, did not actually receive it until the 26th (n).

Acceptance of informal notice—Proof of notice.—If a tenant gives his landlord an insufficient notice to quit, and the landlord at first assents, but ultimately refuses to accept the notice, and the tenant quits according to his notice, the tenancy is not determined (o). A written notice to quit may be proved by the production of a copy, although no notice has been given to produce the original (p).

Waiver of notice to quit.—If the tenant remains in possession after the expiration of a good notice to quit, his possession then becomes an adverse tenancy, and the landlord may either bring an action of ejectment against him, or in the case of premises not exceeding a certain value or rent proceed in the county court (q) or before justices of the peace (r), for the recovery of the possession of the demised premises. But, if he permits the tenant to remain in possession after the expiration of the notice, and demands and accepts rent subsequently to the notice, this amounts strictly speaking to a waiver of the right to enforce the notice (s). The same result follows, if the lessor distrains for rent which he claims to be due in respect of the tenant's occupation subsequently to the expiration of the notice (t). But, if a banker or agent of the lessor, without any special authority from the latter, receives rent from the tenant, the act of such unauthorised agent does not amount to a waiver of the notice (u). The money, moreover, must be paid and accepted as rent, and not by way of satisfaction of the lessor's

(l) Hogg v. Brooks, 15 Q.B.D. 256.

(m) Doe v. Crick, 5 Esp. 196 ; Doe v. Watkins, 7 East, 551.

(n) Papillon v. Brunton, 5 H. & N. 518 ; 29 L.J. Ex. 265. As to service by post on an incorporated company, see 8 & 9 Vict. c. 16, s. 135, or under the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1908, see 8 Edw. 7, c. 28, s. 45.

(o) Bessell v. Landsberg, 7 Q.B. 638 ; 14 L.J. Q.B. 355.

(p) Doe v. Somerton, 7 Q.B. 58 ; 14 L.J. Q.B. 210.

(q) See post, p. 739.

(r) Ib.

(s) Goodright v. Cordwent, 6 T.R. 219; Doe v. Batten, Cowp. 243 ; Blyth v. Dennett, 13 C.B. 178 ; 22 L.J. C.P. 79.

(t) Zouch v. Willingale, 1 H.Bl. 311.

(u) Doe v. Calvert, 2 Campb. 387.

claim for double rent or double value, under the statutes for holding over. The giving of a second notice to quit before or after the expiration of the first notice does not necessarily amount to a waiver of the latter (x); but merely raises a presumption against the person giving it, which may be rebutted, of an existing tenancy (y). Nor does a collateral promise by the lessor not to act upon the notice in the case of the happening of a certain event amount to a waiver of the notice (z). If a tenant retains possession and receives the produce and profits of the demised premises after the expiration of a notice to quit given by him, this will, in general, as against the tenant, amount to a waiver of the notice (a). A waiver of a notice to quit coupled with a continued occupation after the expiration of the notice creates a new tenancy taking effect at the expiration of the old one (b).

Proof and effect of holding over.—There is no holding over by a tenant from the mere fact of his not sending the keys of a house to the landlord. It is enough if the tenant vacates the house and gives the landlord the means and opportunity of taking possession when he pleases; for possession is to be given on the land, and the landlord must come and take it. But, if the tenant continues to use and occupy the premises after the term has ceased, he will be responsible for holding over. And the tenant is responsible, if his sub-tenant holds over (c). But one joint-tenant is not responsible for a holding over without his assent by the other (d). Mere holding over does not create a new tenancy; nor is it in itself any evidence of an agreement to renew the previous tenancy (e). There must be a payment and acceptance of rent which accrued subsequently to the expiration of the lease; and then the tenant holds as tenant from year to year upon all such of the terms of the original lease as are applicable to a yearly tenancy (f). The same principle is applicable where an express tenancy at (x) Doe v. Humphreys, 2 East, 237; Doe v. Steel, 3 Campb. 115.

(y) Doe v. Palmer, 16 East, 53; Messenger v. Armstrong, 1 T.R. 53.

(z) Whitcacre v. Symonds, 10 East, 13.

(a) Jones v. Shears, 4 Ad. & E. 832; 5 L.J. K.B. 153.

(b) Tayleur v. Wildin, L.R. 3 Ex. 203; 37 L.J. Ex. 173; see Holme v. Brunskill, 3 Q.B.D. 495; 47 L.J. Q.B. 610.

(c) Henderson v. Squire, L.R. 4 Q.B. 170; 38 L.J. Q.B. 73; Roe v. Wiggs, 2 Bos. & P. N.R. 330; Caldecott v. Smythies, 7 C. & P. 808.

(d) Draper v. Crofts, 15 M. & W. 166; 15 L.J. Ex. 92; Christy v. Tancred, 9 M. & W. 438; 11 L.J. Ex. 109; Tancred v. Christy, 12 M. & W. 316.

(e) Gray v. Bompas, 11 C.B. N.S. 520; Jenner v. Clegg, 1 Moo. & R. 213.

(f) Torriano v. Young, 6 C. & P. 11; Thomas v. Packer, 1 H. & N. 671; 26 L.J. Ex. 207; Bishop v. Howard, 3 D. & R. 298; Buckworth v. Simpson, 1 Cr. M. & R. 843; 4 L.J. Ex. 104; Arden v. Sullivan, 14 Q.B. 839; 19 L.J. Q.B. 271; Beale v. Sanders, 3 Bing. N.C. 850; 6 L.J. C.P. 283.

will has been created on the termination of a lease (g), and it has been held that where an arbitration clause in the old lease was not inconsistent with such a tenancy it applied during the continuance of such tenancy (h). If, therefore, the lease contained a proviso for re-entry in case of non-payment of rent, the proviso is impliedly annexed to the yearly tenancy (i). But, if there is any evidence to show that the holding after the expiration of the lease was upon new and different terms, the legal presumption is rebutted (k), and the nature of the holding becomes a question of fact. Whether any particular covenant is applicable to a yearly tenancy is in some cases a question of fact (l). In other cases it will be a question of law. When a demise is determined by the expiration of the landlord's estate, and the tenant continues to hold under the remainder-man paying the same rent, and nothing passes between them except the payment and receipt of rent, the new landlord is not bound by a stipulation contained in the former tenancy, which is not known to him in fact, and is not according to the custom of the country (m).

Double yearly value for holding over.—By sect. 1 of the Landlord and Tenant Act, 1730 (n), any tenant wilfully holding over and retaining possession of the demised premises after the determination of his term, and after possession has been demanded and notice in writing has been given him by the lessor, is liable to pay to the person kept out of possession double the yearly value of the lands, &c. detained (o). An action for the recovery of this penalty may be brought only by the landlord or the person who stands in the situation of landlord, and not by any one who derives title from the lessor (p), either before or after he has recovered possession of the land by an action of ejectment (q). But it has been held that the Act of 1730 applies only to the case of a wilful and contumacious holding over by the tenant after a valid notice to quit, and not to a holding over under a bonâ fide claim of title or right, though

(g) Morgan v. Harrison, Ltd., (1907) 2 Ch. 137; 76 L.J. Ch. 548.

(h) Ib.

(i) Williams, J., Doe v. Amey, 12 Ad. & E. 480; Hutton v. Warren, 1 M. & W. 466; 5 L.J. Ex. 234.

(k) Thetford (Mayor) v. Tyler, 8 Q.B. 95; 15 L.J. Q.B. 33.

(l) Hyatt v. Griffiths, 17 Q.B. 505; Oakley v. Monck, L.R. 1 Ex. 159; 35 L.J. Ex. 87.

(m) Oakley v. Monck, supra.

(n) 4 Geo. 2, c. 28, s. 1.

(o) As to the computation of the yearly value, see Robinson v. Learoyd, 7 M. & W. 48; 10 L.J. Ex. 166.

(p) Blatchford v. Cole, 5 C.B. N.S. 514; 28 L.J. C.P. 140.

(q) Soulsby v. Neving, 9 East, 310; Wright v. Smith, 5 Esp. 203; Harcourt v. Wyman, 3 Exch. 817; 18 L.J. Ex. 453; Swinfen v. Bacon, 6 H. & N. 846; 30 L.J. Ex. 368. By R.S.C. Ord. XVIII. r. 2, claims for double rent may be joined without leave in actions for recovery of land.

erroneous (r). Where there was a demise to a woman and notice to quit given to her, after which, but before the time it expired, she married, it was held that it was not necessary to give a notice to the husband subsequent to the marriage, in order to support an action against him for double value, Mansfield, C.J., observing that if a man marry a woman who is tenant to another, he is bound to enquire under what conditions she holds the estate, and whether she has received any notice to quit, and that the obligation of the woman to pay double the yearly value, in case the notice be not complied with, can never be got rid of by the husband's omitting to make enquiry or the wife deceiving him, or concealing the notice to quit (s). A weekly or quarterly tenant has been held not to come within the operation of the statute (t). In the case of a tenancy from year to year, the ordinary notice to quit at the end of the current year of hiring is a sufficient demand of possession to entitle the lessor to double yearly value (u). If the tenant holds under a lease for a term of years certain, a notice to quit at the expiration of such term is likewise a sufficient demand of possession, and such notice may be given previous to the expiration of such term, or at any time afterwards, so long as the tenant continues to hold as a tenant at will (x). If the landlord has done any act amounting to a waiver of his notice to quit, he cannot make such notice the foundation of an action for double value (y); and acceptance of single rent is a waiver of the double value (z).

Double rent for holding over.—By sect. 18 of the Distress for Rent Act, 1737 (a), if any tenant gives notice to the lessor of his intention to quit at a particular time, and does not deliver up possession of the premises at the time mentioned, such tenant, his executors, &c., shall from thenceforward pay to the landlord or lessor double the rent which he would otherwise have paid, to be levied, sued for, and recovered at the same time and in the same manner as the single rent could be levied, &c. The tenant's notice to quit need not be in writing in order to support the lessor's claim to double rent, nor need the lease

(r) Hirst v. Horn, 6 M. & W. 393; Page v. More, 15 Q.B. 684; Swinfen v. Bacon, supra.

(s) Lake v. Smith, 1 Bos. & P. N.R. 174, 179; Wilkinson v. Colley, 5 Burr. 2694. As to how far the liability of the husband is probably now limited, see 45 & 46 Vict. c. 75, s. 14.

(t) Lloyd v. Rosbee, 2 Campb. 453; Sullivan v. Bishop, 2 C. & P. 359; but it is doubtful whether this latter case was rightly decided, see Bullen on Distress (ed. 2), p. 135, note (c).

(u) Wilkinson v. Colley, 5 Burr. 2694, 2698; Poole v. Warren, 8 Ad. & E. 582; Lake v. Smith, 1 Bos. & P. N.R. 174, 179.

(x) Cutting v. Derby, 2 W.Bl. 1075; Messenger v. Armstrong, 1 T.R. 53.

(y) Ryal v. Rich, 10 East, 48.

(z) Doe v. Batten, Cowp. 243; 9 East 314 (n.).

(a) 11 Geo. 2, c. 19, s. 18.

which the tenant has determined by his notice to quit be a lease in writing (b). But the notice must be a good notice to quit at some fixed time, and at a period when the tenant is able by notice to put an end to the tenancy. If the tenant merely gives notice that he will quit "as soon as he can possibly get another situation" (c), or gives notice to quit in the middle instead of at the termination of the current term of hiring, or a notice of too short a duration, and which does not therefore bind the lessor, the lease is not determined, and there cannot, consequently, be any holding over by the tenant (d). A tenant who holds over for one year after notice to quit, paying double rent, may quit at the end of such year without fresh notice (e).

Determination of tenancies by railway notices.—If lands held by tenants from year to year are required by a railway company for the making of a railway, the company may, in general, under the powers of their Act, either give the ordinary landlord's notice to quit ending with the current year of the tenancy, in which case no compensation would be payable in respect of any unexpired term, or six months' notice under their Act to be given at any time, in which case the tenant would be entitled to compensation for the value of the term between the expiration of the six months' notice and the time when a regular landlord's notice would have expired. If, after having given a notice not ending with the expiration of the current year, the company inform the tenant that he may hold on till the end of the current year, and he does so, the situation of the parties is the same as if a regular landlord's notice had been originally given (f). If the tenant continues in possession after the expiration of the notice he holds simply as a tenant at sufferance, without any estate or interest at all in the premises, unless rent is received from him, or the premises are re-demised to him (g).

Recovery of possession.—Possession of land cannot be gained by an act of trespass which has never been acquiesced in by the landowner. Every person who trespasses upon another man's land and remains there tortiously may be expelled by main force (h). But if he has once gained a lawful possession which is determined, and he then continues unlawfully to hold the land, the landowner is punishable for a forcible entry, if he

(b) Timmins v. Rowlinson, 3 Burr. 1608.

(c) Farrance v. Elkington, 2 Campb. 591.

(d) Johnstone v. Hudlestone, 4 B. & C. 922; 4 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 71.

(e) Booth v. Macfarlane, 1 B. & Ad. 904; 9 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 161.

(f) Reg. v. L. & Southampton Ry., 10 Ad. & E. 3; 8 L.J. Q.B. 220. As to the effect of a tenant terminating his interest by notice to the railway company, see Reg. v. Poulter, 20 Q.B.D. 132; 57 L.J. Q.B. 138.

(g) Nadin, Ex parte, 17 L.J. Ch. 421.

(h) Browne v. Dawson, 12 Ad. & E. 624, 629; 10 L.J. Q.B. 7.

enters with a strong hand to dispossess him (i). The tenant, however, cannot maintain an action for damages against the landlord for a trespass upon the realty in respect of the forcible entry; for there is no trespass by the latter in entering on property which is his own, and on which he has a legal right to enter (k). Where a tenant wrongfully remained in possession, and the landlord, for the purpose of rebuilding the premises, removed the roof and in so doing unavoidably damaged the tenant's furniture, it was held that no action would lie (l). It is now well-established law that at the determination of the term the landlord may legally enter and take possession of the demised premises, and, after civilly requesting the tenant to depart, may, in the case of his refusal, gently lay hands upon him and turn him out, subject only to the liability to be indicted for a forcible entry (m). If the landlord, having no right to enter, takes advantage of the temporary absence of the tenant to fasten up the door of his apartments and exclude him from re-entering, the tenant may recover damages against the landlord for breaking and entering, although the landlord has never actually entered the rooms (n).

Licence to eject.—Where it was provided that, in case of non-payment of rent or non-performance of covenants, the lessor and his agents might immediately enter upon and take possession of the demised premises, and expel the lessee and all persons claiming under him, without any legal process, it was held that the lessor had a right, as between himself and the lessee, under the agreement, to eject the lessee by main force, and might plead the leave and licence of the lessee in bar of an action of trespass brought by the latter (o). But it has been held that a similar proviso, being in effect a licence to commit a crime made illegal by 5 Rich. 2, stat. 1, c. 8, is void (p).

Recovery of land under provisoes for re-entry.—When the lessor has a right to re-enter in case of non-payment of rent, and brings an action, he must show that demand was made of the rent upon the demised premises, unless there is no one there

(i) Rex v. Bathurst, Say. 227; Rex v. Wilson, 8 T.R. 361.

(k) Burling v. Read, 11 Q.B. 890, 904; 19 L.J. Q.B. 291; Davison v. Wilson, 17 L.J. Q.B. 196; 11 Q.B. 890; Harvey v. Brydges, 14 M. & W. 437; 14 L.J. Ex. 272.

(l) Jones v. Foley, (1891) 1 Q.B. 730; 60 L.J. Q.B. 464.

(m) Davis v. Burrell, 10 C.B. 822; Harvey v. Brydges, supra; Jones v. Chapman, 2 Exch. 803, 821; 18 L.J. Ex. 456; Pollen v. Brewer, 7 C.B. N.S. 371; Laws v. Telford, 1 App.Cas. 414; 45 L.J. Ex. 613; Beddall v. Maitland, 17 Ch. 174; 50 L.J. Ch. 401. See also Addison on Torts, 317 (ed. 8).

(n) Lane v. Dixon, 3 C.B. 776; 16 L.J. C.P. 129.

(o) Kavanagh v. Gudge, 7 Man. & Gr. 316; 13 L.J. C.P. 99. Such a proviso is now within 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41, s. 14 (1).

(p) Edwick v. Hawkes, 18 Ch. D. 199; sub nom. Edridge v. Hawker, 50 L.J. Ch. 577, sed quære.

on whom demand can be made, and that the demand has been made on the party liable to pay (q), and that the same or some part thereof has not been paid (r), unless the proviso is for re-entry without any demand of the rent (s). The demand must be of the precise sum due (t), and must be made on the day when the rent was due and payable by the terms of the lease, and at a convenient time (which ought to be an hour) before sunset (u). Where the proviso is for re-entry in case of non-payment of rent within a specified number of days after it has become due, the demand cannot be made until the expiration of the last of the specified days (x). Where rent was payable quarterly, and two quarters were in arrear and were demanded together, it was held that the lessor could not avail himself of the proviso for re-entry in case of non-payment for twenty-one days, as the first quarter ought to have been demanded on the twenty-first day after it had become due (y).

Where there is no sufficient distress and one half-year's rent is due and in arrear, and the lessor has a right by law to re-enter for non-payment thereof, proceedings may be taken under sect. 210 of the Common Law Procedure Act, 1852 (z). The operation of the statute appears to be confined to cases where the tenant was six months in arrear at the very time when the landlord had recourse to the statutory remedy (a). Proof of no sufficient distress being on the premises on any one day after the right to re-enter accrued is primâ facie proof of there being no sufficient distress at the time of the service of process (b). If more than half a year's rent is in arrear, the case is within the statute (c), when there is not sufficient distress on the premises to countervail all the arrears due (d).

(q) Manser v. Dix, 8 De G. M. & G. 703; Phillips v. Bridge, L.R. 9 C.P. 48; 43 L.J. C.P. 13.

(r) Bro.Abr. Demande, 19; Kidwelly v. Brand, Plowd. 70, a, b.

(s) Doe v. Masters, 2 B. & C. 490; 2 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 117.

(t) Fabian v. Winston, Cro.Eliz. 209; Scot v. Scot, ib. 73; Doe v. Paul, 3 C. & P. 613.

(u) Co. Litt. 202, a; 1 Saund. 287, n. 16; Tinckler v. Prentice, 4 Taunt. 549; Doe v. Brydges, 2 D. & R. 29; 1 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 9; Acocks v. Phillips, 5 H. & N. 182.

(x) Phillips v. Bridge, L.R. 9 C.P. 48; 43 L.J. C.P. 13; Hill v. Grange, Plowd. 172, a, 173; Clun's Case, 10 Co. 129, a; Wood v. Chivers, 4 Leon. 179; Doe v. Wandlass, 7 T.R. 117.

(y) Doe v. Paul, 3 C. & P. 613. As to recovery of possession by landlord of a company being wound up or entering into liquidation, see General Share Co. v. Wetley Brick Co., 20 Ch.D. 260; Horsey Estate v. Steiger, (1899) 2 Q.B. 79; 68 L.J. Q.B. 743.

(z) 15 & 16 Vict. c. 76, s. 210; Doe v. Franks, 2 C. & K. 678. See Shepherd v. Berger, (1891) 1 Q.B. 597; 60 L.J. Q.B. 395. As to costs of obtaining relief in contested proceedings, see Howard v. Fanshawe, (1895) 2 Ch. 581; 64 L.J. Ch. 666; Humphreys v. Morten, (1905) 1 Ch. 739; 74 L.J. Ch. 370.

(a) Cotesworth v. Spokes, 30 L.J. C.P. 220, 222; 10 C.B. N.S. 103; Thomas v. Lulham, (1895) 2 Q.B. 400; 64 L.J. Q.B. 720; Rickett v. Green, (1910) 1 K.B. 253; 79 L.J. K.B. 193.

(b) Doe v. Fuchau, 15 East, 286.

(c) Doe v. Alexander, 2 M. & S. 525.

(d) Cross v. Jordan, 8 Exch. 149; 22 L.J. Ex. 70, overruling Doe v. Roe, 9 Dowl. 548.

But the distress must be available; and therefore, if the tenant locks up the premises, so that the landlord cannot get at the goods which may happen to be upon them, he may proceed under the statute (e). The right of re-entry must be absolute and unqualified. If he has a right only to re-enter and hold until arrears of rent are satisfied, and not to avoid the lease altogether, he cannot avail himself of the statute (f). The tenant or his assignee may, at any time before trial (sect. 212), stay all further proceedings by paying or tendering to the lessor, or bringing into court, the rent and arrears with costs, or may obtain relief upon similar terms after trial and within the time limited by sect. 210 (g). A sub-lessee in possession, who has not proved any title under the original lessee but who has paid rent to the lessor, is a tenant within the meaning of, and therefore entitled to the benefit of, sect. 212 (h).

Recovery of possession of deserted demised premises.—Sect. 16 of 11 Geo. 2, c. 19 (local), and 57 Geo. 3, c. 52, give a summary remedy by proceedings before justices for recovery of demised premises, when the tenant has deserted them, and left them uncultivated or unoccupied, so that no sufficient distress can be had. And by 3 & 4 Vict. c. 84, police magistrates and police constables within the metropolitan police district are enabled to put the lessor into possession and determine the lease. But this power is not by any of the provisions of the last-named statute, or by 11 & 12 Vict. c. 43, s. 34, vested in the Lord Mayor or alderman sitting in the justice room at the Mansion House or Guildhall (i). The record of the proceedings need not show that any complaint or inquiry was made before the justices upon oath, nor state that the landlord had a right of re-entry (k). Where a bankrupt lessee of a dwelling-house went away, leaving a person in the house whose possession was merely colourable, it was held that the justices were warranted in finding that the lessee had deserted the premises (l). But where the tenant, having left his wife and children in the house, took away his furniture and went away himself, it was held that there was no desertion; and the judges of assize, on (e) Doe v. Dyson, M. & M. 77.

(f) Doe v. Bowditch, 8 Q.B. 973; 15 L.J. Q.B. 267.

(g) See 23 & 24 Vict. c. 126, s. 1. After judgment and execution, no relief can be given to an assignee of a lease, an under-lessee, mortgagee or any other person interested in the lease unless the original lessee is made a party to the application or good ground shown for omitting to do so: see Hare v. Elms, (1893) 1 Q.B. 604; 62 L.J. Q.B. 187.

(h) Moore v. Smee, (1907) 2 K.B. 8; 76 L.J. K.B. 658, which applied Doe v. Byron, 1 C.B. 623; 14 L.J. C.P. 207, decided on 4 Geo. 2, c. 28, s. 4 (repealed).

(i) Edwards v. Hodges, 15 C.B. 477; 24 L.J. M.C. 81.

(k) Basten v. Carew, 5 D. & R. 558; 3 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 111.

(l) Pilton, Ex parte, 1 B. & Ald. 369.

appeal, ordered restitution of the demised premises with costs (m). Where the justices go the first time and find the premises deserted, then, unless some one appears and pays the rent, when they go the second time they are to deliver possession to the lessor. The proceedings of the justices are examinable in a summary way by the judges (sect. 17).

Recovery of possession of houses and small tenements.—The Small Tenements Recovery Act, 1838 (n), enables justices of the peace to give possession to the landlord of houses and land held for a term not exceeding seven years, rent free or at a rent not exceeding 20*l.* per annum, upon which no fine is payable, provided the tenancy has been duly determined, and notice has been given as therein provided (o). If under this statute a tenancy is proved, and a determination of that tenancy, and a refusal to quit, it is not competent to the tenant to set up the title of any third party, or raise any question of title (p). By sect. 138 of the County Courts Act, 1888 (q), when the term and interest of the tenant, where neither the value of the premises nor the rent payable in respect thereof exceed 50*l.* by the year, has expired or been duly determined by notice to quit, and the tenant refuses to deliver up possession, the landlord may, by proper proceedings in the county court, obtain a warrant of possession. The plaint must be brought in the district where the tenements are situate; and the court will have jurisdiction, even though a bonâ fide question of title is raised, where neither the annual value of the lands nor the rent payable in respect thereof exceed 50*l.* by the year (r). If, however, the annual value or rent exceed that sum, the jurisdiction of the court will be ousted if a bonâ fide question of title is raised; and, even if neither rent nor value exceed 50*l.* by the year, yet the defendant may have the action tried in the high court if he can satisfy a judge that the title to lands of greater annual value than 50*l.* will be affected by the decision (s). A tenant is, in general, estopped from disputing his landlord's title; but he may show that it has expired; and, if there is some evidence to support the defence, and the rent or annual value of the premises exceed 50*l.*, the judge of the county court should refrain from trying the question (t).

Where on the hearing of a plaint it appeared that one of

(m) Ashcroft v. Bourne, 3 B. & Ad. 684; 1 L.J. K.B. 209.
(n) 1 & 2 Vict. c. 74.
(o) Delaney v. Fox, 1 C.B. N.S. 166; 26 L.J. C.P. 5.
(p) Rees v. Davies, 4 C.B. N.S. 56, 62.
(q) 51 & 52 Vict. c. 43, s. 138.
(r) 51 & 52 Vict. c. 43, s. 60.
(s) Ib., s. 59.
(t) Mountnoy v. Collier, 1 E. & B. 630; 22 L.J. Q.B. 124; Marsh v. Dewes, 17 Jur. 558; Kerkin v. Kerkin, 3 E. & B. 399; Latham v. Spedding, 17 Q.B. 440; 20 L.J. Q.B. 302.

the matters seriously in dispute was whether the whole or part of a house had been demised, it was held that the inquiry involved a question of title, and that the county court had no jurisdiction in the matter (u). A decision of a county court judge, that the title is not in question, is by no means conclusive of the fact. The question may be determined by an application either to the high court or to a judge thereof during the sittings or in vacation (x) for a writ of prohibition; the matter is to be finally disposed of by order, no declaration or further proceedings in prohibition being allowed; and the application is to be proceeded with and heard in the same manner as an appeal brought from a decision of a judge (y). Neither the tenant nor any one claiming through him, nor any one put into possession by him, can, during the demise, controvert the landlord's title in an action of ejectment; but he may show that the title has expired (z). But a third person not claiming possession to the land, who has brought goods on to the land by the licence of the tenant, is not estopped from disputing the lessor's title (a). If a tenancy is sought to be established through the medium of payment of rent to the plaintiff or to his agent, it must be shown that the rent was either paid by the defendant himself, or by some person through whom he claims, or by his authorised agent; for an unauthorised payment of rent by a stranger will not be binding on the defendant. Where a party distrained for rent, and the lessee paid the rent due under the distress without protest, it was held that he could not after that controvert the title of the plaintiff (b).

Rights of outgoing and incoming tenants—Away-going crops, allowances for tillage, manure, &c.—The rights of tenants to way-going crops, tillages, and value of improvements, &c., are now dealt with in the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1908 (c), which consolidated the enactments relating to agricultural holdings in England and Wales (d), and which came into operation

(u) Chew v. Holroyd, 8 Exch. 249; 22 L.J. Ex. 95.

(x) 51 & 52 Vict. c. 43, s. 127.

(y) Ib., s. 128.

(z) Ante, p. 655; Doe v. Smythe, 4 M. & S. 347; Doe v. Mills, 2 Ad. & E. 17; 4 L.J. K.B. 10; Doe v. Baytup, 3 Ad. & E. 190; 4 L.J. K.B. 263.

(a) Tudman v. Henman, (1893) 2 Q.B. 168.

(b) Doe v. Mitchell, 3 Moore, 229; Hitchings v. Thompson, 5 Exch. 50; 19 L.J. Ex. 146.

(c) 8 Edw. 7, c. 28. The Act applies to a "holding," which is defined as meaning any parcel of land held by a tenant which is either wholly agricultural or wholly pastoral, or in part agricultural and as to the residue pastoral, or in whole or in part cultivated as a market garden and which is not let to the tenant during his continuance in any office, appointment, or employment held under the landlord: s. 48. See also s. 46 as to general saving of rights, and s. 47 as to improvements executed under repealed enactments.

(d) These enactments are 46 & 47 Vict. c. 61; 53 & 54 Vict. c. 57; 58 & 59 Vict. c. 27; 63 & 64 Vict. c. 50; 6 Edw. 7, c. 56; 7 Edw. 7, c. 54. See on Jan. 1, 1909 (e). The Act makes provision for the payment to a tenant, on quitting his holding, of compensation for such improvements as are specified in Sched. I. of the Act (f); also for damage by game and for disturbance (g); and in cases where a person occupies a holding under a contract of tenancy (h) with a mortgagor which is not binding on the mortgagee (i). The Act applies to crown lands (k), to lands of the Duchy of Lancaster (l) or of Cornwall (m); and also to ecclesiastical (n) and charity (o) land. Special provisions are also made with regard to agreements in writing that a holding shall be let or treated as a market garden (p). The compensation for any improvement comprised in Sched. I. to the Act to which a tenant of a holding is entitled, at the determination of a tenancy (q), on quitting his holding is such sum as fairly represents the value of the improvement to an incoming tenant (r); but nothing in sect. 1 is to prejudice the right of a tenant to any compensation to which he may be entitled under custom, agreement, or otherwise, in lieu of any compensation provided by the section (s). Compensation under specific agreements is substituted in certain cases for the compensation given by the Act (t). An incoming tenant, who with the consent in writing of his landlord has paid compensation for improvements to an outgoing tenant, is entitled on quitting the holding to claim compensation under the Act in like manner as the outgoing tenant would have been entitled if he had remained tenant of the holding and quitted it at the time at which the incoming tenant quits it (u). A tenant who has remained in his holding during two or more tenancies is not, on quitting his holding, deprived of his right to claim compensation by reason only that the improvements were not made during the tenancy on the determination of which he quits the holding (x). Restrictions are imposed on claims for compensation in respect of improvements made by a tenant who is about to quit a 8 Edw. 7, c. 28, s. 41, and Sched. IV., as to extent to which they have been repealed.

(e) 8 Edw. 7, c. 28, s. 50.

(f) Ib., ss. 1—9.

(g) Ib., ss. 10, 11.

(h) "Contract of tenancy" means a letting of or agreement for letting land for a term of years, or for lives, or for lives and years, or from year to year: see s. 48 (1).

(i) 8 Edw. 7, c. 28, s. 12.

(k) Ib., s. 37.

(l) Ib., s. 38.

(m) Ib., s. 39.

(n) Ib., s. 40.

(o) Ib., s. 41.

(p) Ib., s. 42, and Sched. III.

(q) "Determination of tenancy" means the cesser of a contract of tenancy by effluxion of time or from any other cause: see s. 48 (1). The determination of the tenancy takes place when the holding ends under the custom of the country: Paul, In re, 24 Q.B.D. 247; 59 L.J. Q.B. 30.

(r) 8 Edw. 7, c. 28, s. 1 (1), and Sched. I. As to mode of ascertaining the amount to be paid to the tenant, see s. 1 (2).

(s) 8 Edw. 7, c. 28, s. 1 (3).

(t) Ib., ss. 2, 3, 4, 6 (4).

(u) Ib., s. 7.

(x) Ib., s. 8.

holding (y). The compensation for any improvement due, under the Act of 1908 or under custom or agreement, to a tenant which has been ascertained before the landlord distrains for rent, may be set off against the rent, and the landlord may not distrain for more than the balance (z). The compensation to be given to tenants for improvements is subject to certain deductions (a). The consent of the landlord is necessary in the case of some improvements (b), and in the case of drainage improvements notice must have been given to him (c) in order to entitle the tenant to compensation, but the notice may be dispensed with by agreement or by the contract of tenancy (d). Any contract (whether under seal or not) made by a tenant by which he is deprived of his right to claim compensation for any improvement is void so far as it deprives him of that right (e). The landlord paying compensation may obtain from the Board of Agriculture an order charging the holding or any part thereof (f). The term "landlord" was held under the repealed Act of 1883 (g) to include the executor of the landlord (h). The landlord of a holding or any person authorised by him has a right of entry at all reasonable times for the purpose of viewing the state of the holding (i); and notwithstanding any provision in a contract of tenancy, making the tenant liable to pay a higher rent or damages in the event of any breach or non-fulfilment of a term or condition in the contract, a landlord cannot recover, by distress or otherwise, any sum in consequence thereof in excess of the damage actually suffered by him from such breach or non-fulfilment; but this does not apply to any term or condition in a contract against breaking up permanent pasture, grubbing underwoods, or felling, cutting, lopping or injuring trees, or regulating burning of heather (k).

All claims to compensation, whether under the Act or under custom or agreement or otherwise, are, in case of difference, to be settled by arbitration (l), due notice having been given to the landlord of the claim (m); and the arbitration is, after a specified notice has been given either by the landlord or by

(y) 8 Edw. 7, c. 28, s. 9.
(z) Ib., s. 31.
(a) Ib., s. 1 (2).
(b) Ib., s. 2, and Sched. I., Pt. I.
(c) Ib., s. 3, and Sched. I., Pt. II.
(d) Ib., s. 3 (4).
(e) Ib., s. 5.
(f) Ib., s. 15. See, as to the incidence of a charge, s. 16; as to advances made by a company, s. 17; as to the certificate as to charges, s. 18; and as to registration of charges, s. 19.
(g) 46 & 47 Vict. c. 61.
(h) Gough v. Gough, (1891) 2 Q.B. 665; 60 L.J. Q.B. 726.
(i) 8 Edw. 7, c. 28, s. 24.
(k) Ib., s. 25.
(l) Ib., s. 6 (1).
(m) Ib., s. 6 (2). As to the meaning of "determination of the tenancy" in the proviso, see Morley v. Carter, (1898) 1 Q.B. 8; 66 L.J. Q.B. 843.

the tenant, extended to certain claims in addition to a claim by the tenant for compensation for improvements (n). The Arbitration Act, 1889 (o), does not apply to any arbitration under the Act of 1908 (p). The arbitration, notwithstanding any agreement under the contract of tenancy or otherwise providing for a different mode of arbitration, is to be determined by a single arbitrator in accordance with the provisions set out in the Act (q). The award is final and binding on the parties and persons claiming under them (r); but it may be set aside by the county court (s) when an arbitrator has misconducted himself, or when an arbitration or award has been improperly procured (t). The costs of and incidental to the arbitration and award are in the discretion of the arbitrator (u). The arbitrator may at any stage of the proceedings, and shall, if so directed by the county court judge, state a special case for the opinion of the county court on any question of law arising during the arbitration (x), and the opinion of that court is to be final, unless either party, in accordance with the rules of the Supreme Court, appeals to the Court of Appeal, from whose decision no appeal lies (y).

All tenants who held by an uncertain tenure, and whose interest might at any time be determined by the will of the lord, were by the common law entitled to emblements and the crops and annual produce of the soil which had been sown or planted by them, and which had not come to maturity at the period of the determination of their interest (z). In farming leases, the custom of the country (a) with respect to the mode of cultivation (b) and the right to the away-going crop, is impliedly annexed to the terms of the lease, unless it is excluded by express provisions and stipulations (c). The general rule in the case of farm leases is that the tenant is bound to leave the land, when he quits, in the same state as he found it on taking possession (cc). If he has taken the farm under a custom by which the outgoing tenant is bound to leave a certain quantity of growing wheat or other produce, or a certain quantity of hay

(n) 8 Edw. 7, c. 28, s. 6 (3).
(o) 52 & 53 Vict. c. 49.
(p) 8 Edw. 7, c. 28, s. 13 (4).
(q) Ib., s. 13 (1), and Sched. II.
(r) Ib., Sched. II. (11).
(s) An order of the county court cannot be quashed for want of form or removed by certiorari or otherwise into any superior court: see s. 43.
(t) 8 Edw. 7, c. 28, Sched. II. (13).
(u) Ib., Sched. II. (14), (15).
(x) Ib., Sched. II. (9).
(y) Ib., s. 13 (3).
(z) Litt. ss. 68, 69.
(a) See Dixon's Law of the Farm. (ed. 6), pp. 710—747, for a statement of agricultural customs prevailing in different parts of England and Wales.
(b) See Hutton v. Warren, 1 M. & W. 466; 5 L.J. Ex. 234, as to cultivation regulated by the custom of the country.
(c) Wigglesworth v. Dallison, 1 Doug. 201; 1 Smith's L.C. 545 (ed. 11).
(cc) See Rush v. Lucas, (1910) 1 Ch. 437; 79 L.J. Ch. 172.

and straw, or manure, on the demised premises, he must in his turn, when he quits the land, leave it in the same state and condition, and with the same privileges and advantages for the benefit of his successor, that he himself enjoyed when he entered upon it.

By the custom of the country in some districts, the outgoing tenant takes two-thirds of particular crops, leaving one-third to the incoming tenant (d). In some districts, all the hay and straw must be left to be consumed on the farm; whilst in others, the tenant is entitled to take it away with him. Sometimes the landlord or the incoming tenant has a right, and in some instances he is bound by custom, to take the away-going crops, and also the straw and hay, and sometimes the manure, from the outgoing tenant at a valuation; and, when such a custom exists, the tenant has a right, after the expiration of his lease, and after he has quitted the premises, to enter upon the land as occasion may require to tend the crop. If the landlord or the incoming tenant does not take the crop at a valuation, the tenant has, by general custom and usage, all such rights and privileges as are necessary to enable him to gather it in, and secure it, and sell it when arrived at maturity, such as free ingress and egress into and from the demised premises, the temporary use of the barns to thrash it out, and yard-room for the straw; and he has a right, moreover, to the possession of the field for a reasonable time for the carrying away as well as the cutting of his corn (e). If no custom exists giving the tenant a right to the away-going crop, the landlord is entitled thereto. The tenant, therefore, must in all cases make out and establish the custom (f). If no such custom existed, the natural consequence would be that the tenant would not till or sow the ground at the close of his term of hiring; and a custom therefore prevails, in many localities (g) where the outgoing tenant is not entitled to the away-going crop, for the incoming tenant or the landlord to enter to manure and till the land, and plant the spring corn, and prepare for the harvest, prior to the termination of the lease and the commencement of his own term and interest. The custom varies according to the locality, and whether the hiring commences at Lady Day or Michaelmas Day.

(d) Holding v. Pigott, 5 Moo. & P. 427; 9 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 124; Griffiths v. Tombs, 7 C. & P. 810.

(e) Boraston v. Green, 16 East, 81; Beaty v. Gibbons, ib. 118; Strickland v. Maxwell, 2 Cr. & M. 539; 3 L.J. Ex. 161; Griffiths v. Puleston, 13 M. & W. 358; 14 L.J. Ex. 33.

(f) Caldecott v. Smythies, 7 C. & P. 808.

(g) See Dixon's Law of the Farm (ed. 6), pp. 710 et seq., where the customs prevailing in different counties on this point are set out.

Whatever custom regulates the tenant's rights (h) on entering, the same custom regulates his rights on leaving; and the custom may be given in evidence, although there is a lease under seal, or a written contract of demise between the parties (i). All customary allowances, also, as between the outgoing tenant and the landlord or incoming tenant, are impliedly annexed to the express terms of the lease, such as allowances for expenses incurred in draining lands that required draining according to good husbandry, though the drainage was done without the landlord's knowledge or consent (k); also for manuring, tilling, fallowing, half-fallowing, and sowing the land, for seeds, and labour, foldage, and manure (l). The tenant's rights to growing crops and produce are in all cases strictly confined to annual crops, or the first year's produce of seeds and roots sown or planted by him during the last year of his tenancy, and do not extend to trees, shrubs, and plants of a perennial character (excepting the fruit-trees, plants, and shrubs of seedsmen and nursery gardeners, an exception introduced for the benefit of trade) (m). Thus a border of box, planted by a tenant in a garden demised to him, cannot be taken up and removed at the expiration of his term (n), nor a strawberry-bed (o), nor hedges, nor fruit-trees (p).

The person primarily liable to the outgoing tenant is the landlord (q), who, on the other hand, is entitled to be allowed the amount of rent due to him. But it constantly happens that the incoming tenant, who in the end, by his bargain with the landlord, is to take and pay for the tillages, in order to avoid circuity and the trouble and expense of two valuations, agrees with the outgoing tenant that the valuation shall be made directly from the latter to him. That, however, does not rest upon the custom, but is a mere conventional arrangement with-

(h) As to the saving of tenant's rights by Agricultural Holdings Act, 1908, see 8 Edw. 7, c. 28, s. 1 (3).

(i) Wigglesworth v. Dallison, 1 Doug. 201; 1 Smith's L.C. 545 (ed. 11); Hutton v. Warren, 1 M. & W. 466; 5 L.J. Ex. 234; Wilkins v. Wood, 17 L.J. Q.B. 319.

(k) Mousley v. Ludlam, 21 L.J. Q.B. 64. As to the right of a tenant to compensation for drainage improvements executed with the consent of the landlord, see the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 28), s. 3.

(l) Dalby v. Hirst, 3 Moore, 536; 1 B. & B. 224; Hutton v. Warren, 1 M. & W. 466; 5 L.J. Ex. 234; Wilkins v. Wood, 12 Jur. 583; 17 L.J. Q.B. 319; Faviell v. Gaskoin, 7 Exch. 273; 21 L.J. Ex. 85; Martin v. Coulman, 4 L.J. K.B. 37. See also Dixon's Law of the Farm, pp. 710 et seq.

(m) Wardell v. Usher, 3 Sc. N.R. 508; 10 L.J. C.P. 316.

(n) Empson v. Soden, 4 B. & Ad. 655.

(o) Watherell v. Howells, 1 Campb. 227.

(p) Wyndham v. Way, 4 Taunt. 316.

(q) Bradburn v. Foley, 3 C.P.D. 129; 47 L.J. C.P. 331; Faviell v. Gaskoin, supra; Mansel v. Norton, 22 Ch.D. 769; 72 L.J. Ch. 357; Bennett v. Stone, (1902) 1 Ch. 226; 71 L.J. Ch. 60; and see Codd v. Brown, 15 L.T. 536, as to when an incoming tenant may be sued.

out which there would be no privity between the outgoing and the incoming tenant. There is, generally speaking, no formal agreement, but each appoints a valuer, and the valuers settle the amount to be paid; and in that case there is an implied contract that if rent is due from the outgoing tenant to the landlord, and such rent is paid by the incoming tenant, it may be set off against the value of the tillages (r).

Where the lease or tenancy determines by the death or cesser of the estate of any landlord entitled for his life, or for any other uncertain interest, the tenant, instead of claims to emblements, may continue to hold the farm or lands until the expiration of the then current year of his tenancy (s); and the succeeding landlord is entitled to recover and receive of the tenant a fair proportion of the rent for the period which may have elapsed from the lessor's death or cesser of the estate of such lessor to the time of the tenant's quitting; and may distrain for such proportion (t).

Sale of hay, straw or manure off land.—If by the terms of the lease the hay, straw or manure are to be consumed by the tenant on the land, and the lessee sells the crop, and the purchaser removes it, the landlord may under sect. 11 of the Sale of Farming Stock Act, 1816 (u), maintain an action against the purchaser for the value of the hay, straw or manure, &c. so removed (x). It is no answer to an action for carrying away and selling manure, contrary to a covenant against so doing, to show that the tenant has brought back an equivalent in the shape of manure (y). It is doubtful, where the value of straw sold off is to be returned in manure, whether the tenant would be bound to return in manure the price or market value of the straw itself or whether he would be only bound to spend upon the land as much manure as the straw would have produced if it had not been sold (z). In one case it was proved that according to the custom of the country in the particular

(r) Stafford v. Gardner, L.R. 7 C.P. 242. As to setting off amount of valuation against arrears of rent where the tenant becomes bankrupt, see Wilson, In re, Hastings (Lord), Ex parte, 62 L.J. Q.B. 628.

(s) 14 & 15 Vict. c. 25, s. 1; if there are from the nature of the case no claims to emblements, the section will not apply: Haines v. Welch, L.R. 4 C.P. 91; 38 L.J. C.P. 118.

(t) Haines v. Welch, L.R. 4 C.P. 91; 38 L.J. C.P. 118.

(u) 56 Geo. 3, c. 50, s. 11; repealed as to assignee of insolvent debtor, see St. L. R. Act, 1873. This section is with this exception still in force, see Lybbe v. Hart, 29 Ch.D. 8; 54 L.J. Ch. 860.

(x) Wilmot v. Rose, 3 E. & B. 563; 23 L.J. Q.B. 281; see Hawkins v. Walrond, 1 C.P.D. 280; 45 L.J. C.P. 772. As to the covenant, on a demise by a mortgagee as agent, running with the reversion, see Chapman v. Smith, (1907) 2 Ch. 97; 76 L.J. Ch. 394.

(y) Legh v. Lillie, 6 H. & N. 165, 171; 30 L.J. Ex. 25.

(z) See Lowndes v. Fountain, 11 Exch. 487, 491; 25 L.J. Ex. 49, where the Court was divided upon this point.

district, the incoming tenant, in the absence of a special agreement, would pay the outgoing tenant a consuming price, or two-thirds the market price for the straw; but that, if the outgoing tenant was bound to consume all the manure on the farm, the allowance in respect of straw, as between him and the incoming tenant, would be only half the market price, called a fodder price (a). Where there is no special agreement to the contrary, the tenant is often by custom entitled to go out as he came in (b). An outgoing tenant, therefore, who on coming in has paid for straw in accordance with the custom, is entitled to be paid for straw on going out; and a stipulation in a lease binding the tenant during the term to "consume with stock on the said farm all the hay, straw, and clover grown thereon, which manure shall be used on the said farm," has, in the absence of any provision as to straw unconsumed on quitting, been held to be in nowise inconsistent with the tenant's customary right to receive payment for the unconsumed straw on his going out (c).

Non-payment of tithe rentcharge by tenant.—By sect. 4 of the Landlord and Tenant Act, 1851 (d), if any occupying tenant quits leaving unpaid any tithe rentcharge, and the tithe-owner gives notice of proceeding by distress for its recovery, the landlord or succeeding tenant may pay the tithe rent and any expenses incident thereto, and may recover the amount from the outgoing tenant or his legal representatives, in the same manner as if the same were a debt by simple contract due to the landlord or tenant making such payment. By the Tithe Act, 1891 (e), tithe rentcharge as defined by the Act (f) issuing out of any land is payable by the owner of the lands, notwithstanding any contract between him and the occupier of such lands, and any contract made between an occupier and owner of lands, after the passing of the Act, for the payment of the tithe rentcharge by the occupier is void. Where the occupier is liable under any contract made before the passing of the Act to pay the tithe rentcharge, then he ceases to be bound by that part of his contract, but is liable to pay the owner such sum as the latter has properly paid on account of the tithe rentcharge which such occupier is liable under his contract to pay exclusive of any costs incurred or paid by the owner in respect of such rentcharge (g); and such sum is recoverable from the occupier

(a) Clarke v. Westrope, 18 C.B. 765, 774; 25 L.J. C.P. 287.
(b) Clarke v. Westrope, supra.
(c) Muncey v. Dennis, 1 H. & N. 216, 220; 26 L.J. Ex. 66.
(d) 14 & 15 Vict. c. 25, s. 4.
(e) 54 & 55 Vict. c. 8, s. 1 (1).
(f) Ib., s. 9 (2).
(g) Ib., s. 1 (2).

by distress as provided by the Tithe Act, 1836 (h), and amending enactments and not otherwise (i).

Inclosures of waste land by tenants.—If the tenant during the demise has inclosed land from the adjoining waste, and used it in common with the demised premises, the title of the landlord will, as between him and the tenant, prevail over the whole whether the tenant made the inclosure with or without the assent of the landlord (k); unless the encroachment has been made under circumstances which show that the tenant intended to hold it for his own benefit alone, and not as part of his holding under the landlord (l). The rule is not confined to cases where the encroachment is upon land to which the landlord is entitled, but applies to cases where the land encroached upon does not belong to the landlord (m). The encroachment need not adjoin the holding; it is enough if it is so near that by nature of its nearness the tenant gained the opportunity of making it (n). In either case, the Statute of Limitations will not begin to run against the landlord until the termination of the tenancy (o). But one who occupies, as his own, land belonging to another, and before he has acquired a title by the Statutes of Limitation, becomes tenant to the latter of land adjacent to the land so occupied, does not thereby change the character of his possession, but can, whilst he remains tenant, acquire, as against his landlord, a title to the land first occupied by him (p). The doctrine that encroachments made by tenants enure for the benefit of their landlords involves, however, a presumption of fact which is capable of being rebutted (q).

Leases obtained by misrepresentation.—An estate or interest in land, once vested, cannot afterwards be divested on the ground that the deed creating the estate has been obtained by a fraudulent misrepresentation respecting some matter collateral to the contract. Where, therefore, a lessor had been induced to execute a lease by reason of a fraudulent representation on the part of the lessee as to the use to which he intended to apply the premises, it was held in an action of ejectment by the lessee that the lease was not thereby avoided and the term

(h) 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 71, ss. 81, 85.

(i) 54 & 55 Vict. c. 8, s. 1 (3).

(k) Andrews v. Hailes, 22 L.J. Q.B. 409; 2 E. & B. 349; Kingsmill v. Millard, 11 Exch. 313.

(l) Whitmore v. Humphries, L.R. 7 C.P. 1; 41 L.J. C.P. 43; Tabor v. Godfrey, 64 L.J. Q.B. 245.

(m) Whitmore v. Humphries, supra; Att.-Gen. v. Tomline, 5 Ch.D. 750; 46 L.J. Ch. 654.

(n) Lisburne (Earl) v. Davies, L.R. 1 C.P. 259; 35 L.J. C.P. 193; East Stonehouse Urban Council v. Willoughby, (1902) 2 K.B. 318; 71 L.J. K.B. 873.

(o) Whitmore v. Humphries, supra; Att.-Gen. v. Tomline, supra.

(p) Dixon v. Baty, L.R. 1 Ex. 259.

(q) Per Thesiger, L.J., Att.-Gen. v. Tomline, 15 Ch.D. at p. 161.

gone, but that the lessor's proper remedy, if any, was in a court of equity (r); but, where the lease is granted for the express purpose of carrying into effect an illegal act, the courts will not lend their aid for the enforcement of any of the provisions of the illegal contract (s).

The cancellation of a lease after entry by mutual consent of the parties discharges the covenants and promises therein contained, but does not divest the estate created by the lease, or destroy the lessor's right of action for the rent founded on the privity of estate. Arrears of rent, therefore, which accrue due prior to the cancellation of a lease may be recovered by the landlord in an action founded on the privity of estate (t).

Assignment.—The doctrine of covenants running with the land is confined to covenants annexed to the land by the indenture of demise; and the assignment of a parol tenancy does not pass to the assignee a right of action upon a special stipulation between the original landlord and the lessee (u). If, however, the landlord has consented to the substitution of the assignee in the place of the original tenant, that will create a new contract between the landlord and the assignee upon which either may sue (x). The equitable assignee of a legal term is not liable to the lessor for rent, or for damages in respect of breaches of covenants, even though he may have been in possession (y).

Breach of contract to grant lease.—The rule which governs sales of real property, that, if the vendor fails to make a good title, the purchaser is only entitled to recover the amount of his deposit and the expenses to which he has been put (z), does not apply to the case of a lease granted by a lessor in excess of his leasing powers, and containing a covenant for quiet enjoyment; and, if the lease is repudiated by a person having a good title so to do, the lessee is entitled to recover the full value of the lease; and it makes no difference that the lease was a reversionary lease, and that it was repudiated before the lessee had entered into possession under it. In such a case it was held that the lessee was entitled to recover the value of the

(r) Feret v. Hill, 15 C.B. 207, 226; 23 L.J. C.P. 185, 190.

(s) Gas Light Co. v. Turner, 6 Bing. N.C. 324; 9 L.J. Ex. 336; Ritchie v. Smith, 6 C.B. 462; 18 L.J. C.P. 9. See also ante, p. 85.

(t) Ward (Lord) v. Lumley, 5 H. & N. 87, 656; 29 L.J. Ex. 322; Bolton v. Carlisle (Bishop), 2 H.Bl. 263; Doe v. Bingham, 4 B. & Ald. 672, 677.

(u) Elliott v. Johnson, L.R. 2 Q.B. 120; 36 L.J. Q.B. 44.

(x) Buckworth v. Simpson, 1 Cr. M. & R. 834; 4 L.J. Ex. 104.

(y) Cox v. Bishop, 8 De G. M. & G. 815; 26 L.J. Ch. 389. See Haywood v. Brunswick Building Society, 8 Q.B.D. 403; 51 L.J. Q.B. 73; Ramage v. Womack, (1900) 1 Q.B. 116; 69 L.J. Q.B. 40; Bagot Tyre Co. v. Clipper Tyre Co., (1902) 1 Ch. at p. 156; 71 L.J. Ch. at p. 161. As to effect of subsequent bankruptcy, see Stein v. Pope, (1902) 1 K.B. 595; 71 L.J. K.B. 322.

(z) See Flureau v. Thornhill, 2 W.Bl. 1078; Bain v. Fothergill, L.R. 7 H.L. 158; 43 L.J. Ex. 243; and ante, p. 513.

lease and the expense of the lease so repudiated, but not the expense of a lease of the demised premises which he took from the person really entitled to grant one after the repudiation of the first lease, nor to a 10*l.* per cent. compensation given by the jury, on a supposed analogy to the case of a compulsory sale to a railway company under an Act of Parliament (a). If a man contracts to grant a good and valid lease, without having any colour of title to the premises intended to be demised, the intended lessee is to be placed as far as money can do it in the same position as he would have been in if the contract had been fulfilled, and may recover all the damages he has sustained by reason of the non-performance of the contract, including the loss of the lease (b), but not damages and costs arising out of the re-sale of the lease to a third person, these being too remote (c).

Actions by landlords for use and occupation of premises.—If lands and houses have been occupied by a tenant under a lease void as to the duration of the term by the Statute of Frauds, the rent reserved in the lease will be the measure of damages resulting from the breach of the implied contract to pay for the actual use and occupation of the property (d). But, when no rent has been fixed upon or ascertained by the agreement of the parties, or the contract has been so far departed from that the stipulated rent forms no just criterion of value, the actual value of the occupation will constitute the damage recoverable by the plaintiff (e). In case of an eviction from part of the premises, the jury must ascertain, independently of any agreement, what ought to be paid (f).

Damages for breach of covenants for quiet enjoyment.—A lessee under a void lease who has been ejected by a rightful owner has a right, in an action against the lessor for breach of an absolute covenant for quiet enjoyment contained in his lease, to recover not only the full value of the unexpired term, but also the costs of defending an action of ejectment, and the amount recovered against him for mesne profits (g). If however the rightful owner subsequently grants a new lease the difference between the value of the two leases may be used

(a) Lock v. Furze, L.R. 1 C.P. 441 ; 35 L.J. C.P. 141.

(b) Robinson v. Harman, 1 Exch. 855; 18 L.J. Ex. 202. See, however, Wigsell v. School for Indigent Blind, 8 Q.B.D. 357 ; 51 L.J. Q.B. 330 ; see ante, p. 283.

(c) Spedding v. Nevell, L.R. 4 C.P. 212 ; 38 L.J. C.P. 133.

(d) Ante, pp. 681 et seq. ; De Medina v. Polson, Holt, 47.

(e) Thetford (Mayor) v. Tyler, 8 Q.B. 95 ; 15 L.J. Q.B. 33.

(f) Tomlinson v. Day, 5 Moore, 558 ; 2 B. & B. 680 ; and see observations of Ld. Denman on this case in Neale v. Mackenzie, 1 M. & W. at p. 764.

(g) Williams v. Burrell, 1 C.B. 402 ; 14 L.J. C.P. 98.

as a test of the amount of the damages (h). Where a lessee has been evicted, so that he cannot have another action under the covenant, the damages must be assessed once for all; but where there has been no eviction, only the damages actually sustained are recoverable (i).

Damages for breach of covenant not to assign.—The measure of damages for a breach by an assignee of the lessee of a covenant not to assign without licence in such a sum as will, as far as money can, put the lessor in the same position as if he had still the original assignee's liability, instead of the liability of a subsequent assignee of inferior pecuniary ability, for breaches both past and future (k). Where a lessee sub-let the demised premises, without obtaining the lessor's consent, to a person who (to the lessee's knowledge) intended to, and in fact did, use them, for the purpose of carrying on a dangerous business, and the premises were damaged by a fire caused by such use, it was held in an action by the lessor claiming damages for breach of a covenant not to sub-let without his consent that he could recover the full damage caused by the fire, as it was the natural and probable result of the breach of covenant (l).

Damages for breach of covenant to repair (m).—In estimating the damages recoverable for breach of a covenant to keep in repair, all the circumstances must be taken into consideration, and the damages must be assessed at such a sum as reasonably represents the diminution of the value of the reversion by the breach (n); and the statement by Lord Holt, that the proper measure of damages is the amount that it will take to put the premises into repair (o), if it meant to lay down a hard-and-fast rule as to the damages recoverable by the lessor during the currency of a lease for breach of a covenant to keep in repair, has been criticised in several cases (p). In estimating the damages to be recovered, the age and general state and condition of the property at the time of the demise must, as we have already seen, be taken into consideration (q). If build-

(h) Lock v. Furze, L.R. 1 C.P. 441; 35 L.J. C.P. 141.

(i) Per Jessel, M.R., Child v. Stenning, 11 Ch.D. 82, 85; 48 L.J. Ch. 392.

(k) Williams v. Earle, L.R. 3 Q.B. 739; 37 L.J. Q.B. 231.

(l) Lepla v. Rogers, (1893) 1 Q.B. 31.

(m) As to covenants to repair, see ante, pp. 685 et seq.

(n) Conquest v. Ebbetts, (1896) A.C. 490; 65 L.J. Ch. 808; Smith v. Peat, 9 Exch. 161; 23 L.J. Ex. 84; Turner v. Lamb, 14 M. & W. 412. As to damages for breach of covenant to leave premises in repair, see Davies v. Underwood, 2 H. & N. 571; 27 L.J. Ex. 113; Joyner v. Weeks, (1891) 2 Q.B. 31; 60 L.J. Q.B. 510; Henderson v. Thorn, (1893) 2 Q.B. 164; 62 L.J. Q.B. 586.

(o) Vivian v. Champion, 2 Ld. Raym. 1125; 1 Salk. 141.

(p) See per Ld. Herschell in Conquest v. Ebbetts, supra; and per Parke, B., in Turner v. Lamb, supra.

(q) Ante, pp. 685—689; Burdett v.

ings fall to the ground by reason of the neglect of the covenantor to repair them, or if they are blown down by the wind, or burned by an accidental fire, the proper measure of damages is the amount that it will take to rebuild, deducting the difference in value between old materials and new, as the landlord is not entitled to be put in a better position than he was in before the fire took place, and cannot have the value of a new house when the one he has lost was an old house (r). If there be both a covenant to repair and a covenant to insure against loss from fire for a specific sum, the liability of the covenantor in respect of the cost of rebuilding in case the premises are burned down is not limited to the amount of the sum covenanted to be insured (s). If the party suing upon the covenant is only tenant for life, with remainder in tail and a reversion in fee, he can only recover such damages as are commensurate with the injury done to his life estate (t). Where a defendant held premises under a lease with a covenant to keep and yield them up in repair, and at the expiration of the lease the premises were dilapidated to an amount fixed by the jury at 22*l*., and the plaintiff had, before this time, made a verbal agreement with a third person to grant him a lease for a long term, and at once proceeded to pull down the premises, it was held that the plaintiff was, notwithstanding, entitled to recover substantial damages (u).

If a lessor has covenanted to repair a dwelling-house demised by him, and the building is destroyed by fire or becomes ruinous and uninhabitable, the lessee may rebuild, if the lessor neglects so to do within a reasonable period after request; and the measure of damages to be recovered by the lessee in such a case will be the costs and expenses of the rebuilding. Covenants to pay rent and covenants to repair, contained in a lease, are independent covenants, and the lessee is not exonerated from his liability to pay rent under his covenant so to do by reason of the non-performance of the lessor's covenant to repair (ante, p. 674). A lessor who covenants to repair and to keep in repair is not bound to find the lessee another residence whilst part of the demised premises is being rebuilt any more than he would have been bound to do so if the premises had been consumed by fire. Thus, where the lessor had positively refused

Withers, 7 Ad. & E. 136; 6 L.J. K.B. 219; Payne v. Hayne, 16 M. & W. 541; 16 L.J. Ex. 130. See also Mayne on Damages, p. 289 (ed. 7).

(r) Yates v. Dunster, 11 Exch. 15; 24 L.J. Ex, 226.

(s) Digby v. Atkinson, 4 Campb. 275.

(t) Evelyn v. Raddich, Holt, 543. As to damages recoverable by a reversioner, see Bedingfield v. Onslow, 3 Lev. 209.

(u) Rawlings v. Morgan, 18 C.B. N.S. 776; 34 L.J. C.P. 185.

to repair, it was held that the lessee could not recover either the rent and taxes of a house taken and occupied during the execution of the repairs, or the sums expended on the house for alterations and work done there, or a sum paid for restoring the house when he quitted it (x). If an action is brought against an assignee of a lease for damages for a breach of covenant to repair, in respect of dilapidations that accrued during the time he was assignee, the measure of damage is the loss which the landlord would sustain by the non-repair if he went into the market to sell the reversion (y). If an under-lessee refuses to repair according to his agreement, and his immediate lessor (the mesne landlord), who is himself a lessee, and bound under pain of forfeiture to keep the premises in repair, enters and repairs them, the measure of damages is the sum necessarily expended in putting them into repair, and not the costs of an action brought by the original lessor against the mesne landlord for non-repair, unless the under-lease contains a covenant to indemnify (z), or to perform the covenants of the head lease (a). Where an under-lease is granted containing similar covenants to those in the lease as to repair, with notice to the under-lessee of the original lease, and the lessee sues the under-lessee for breach of such covenants, the liability of the lessee on the covenants in the original lease must be taken into account in assessing the damages (b).

Breach of covenants to consume hay and straw on farm.—If a tenant who has covenanted not to carry away hay or straw from the demised premises (c) nevertheless sells it off the land, the proper measure of damages is not the value of the hay or straw, which is the property of the tenant, but the value of it to the land in the shape of manure, if it had been eaten and consumed by cattle and deposited on the soil. Where the landlord had agreed to purchase the outgoing tenant's straw at a valuation, and the tenant by the terms of the lease was to return the manure value of straw sold off, it was held that the landlord must pay a fodder price, which is one-half of the market

(x) Green v. Eales, 2 Q.B. 225 ; 11 L.J. Q.B. 63.

(y) Per Martin, B., Smith v. Peat, 9 Exch. 161 ; 23 L.J. Ex. 84 ; Doe v. Rowlands, 9 C. & P. 734, 739 ; Mills v. East London Union, L.R. 8 C.P. 79 ; 42 L.J. C.P. 46.

(z) Logan v. Hall, 4 C.B. 598 ; 16 L.J. C.P. 252 ; Smith v. Howell, 6 Exch. 737 ; 20 L.J. Ex. 377 ; Walker v. Hatton, 10 M. & W. 249 ; 11 L.J. Ex. 361 ; Colley v. Streeton, 2 B. & C. 273 ; 2 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 25 ; Clow v. Brogden, 2 Sc. N.R. 303 ; 2 M. & Gr. 39.

(a) Hornby v. Cardwell, 8 Q.B.D. 329; 51 L.J. Q.B. 89.

(b) Conquest v. Ebbetts, (1896) A.C. 490 ; 65 L.J. Ch. 808 ; Clare v. Dobson, (1911) 1 K.B. 35 ; 80 L.J. K.B. 158.

(c) As to a tenant's right to dispose of produce notwithstanding any custom of the country or contract of tenancy, see Agricultural Holdings Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 28), s. 26.

price (d); and, where the tenant was not to sell straw off the land without returning the value of it in manure, it was held that the tenant was not bound to return the marketable value, but the manure value of the straw to the premises (e). Where a tenant agreed to stack on the premises all hay and corn arising from the farm and to consume all hay, straw, chaff, &c., arising therefrom, and the stacks were destroyed by an accidental fire, it was held that he had not committed any breach of the agreement, which only applied to things in existence which could be consumed on the farm (f).

Damages for holding over.—If the tenant holds over, the landlord may, in some cases (see ante, p. 734), recover double the yearly value, or he may recover the reasonable damages and costs he has incurred by not being able to give possession to the succeeding tenant (g), and also the costs incurred in ejecting the person in possession (h).

Mortgagor becoming tenant to mortgagee.—If the mortgage deed contains a clause whereby the mortgagor attorns (i) and becomes tenant to the mortgagee at a specified annual rent payable half-yearly so long as the mortgage money remains secured upon the mortgaged premises, and the mortgagor continues in the occupation of the mortgaged premises and pays rent, the subsequent occupation taken in connexion with the clause of attornment constitutes the relation of landlord and tenant between the parties, and the mortgagee may distrain for the rent, although he never himself executed the mortgage deed (k). And this is so though there may have been a prior mortgage and attornment to another mortgagee (l). Such attornment clause must be bonâ fide, and not merely for the purpose of enabling the mortgagee to oust the creditors (m). The proceeds of a distress for rent under an attornment clause

(d) Clarke v. Westropp, 11 C.B. 765, 774; 25 L.J. C.P. 287; ante, p. 747.

(e) Lowndes v. Fountain, 11 Exch. 487, 491; 25 L.J. Ex. 49. The Court, however, were equally divided on this point, ante, p. 746.

(f) Hull v. Mews (Lady), In re, (1905) 1 K.B. 588; 74 L.J. K.B. 252.

(g) Bramley v. Chesterton, 2 C.B. N.S. 592; 27 L.J. C.P. 23; and see Watson v. Lane, 11 Exch. 769; 25 L.J. Ex. 101, per Martin, B.

(h) Henderson v. Squire, L.R. 4 Q.B. 170; 38 L.J. Q.B. 73.

(i) As to an attornment clause being "deemed to be" a bill of sale, and void so far as it gives power to distrain unless registered, see Green v. Marsh, (1892) 2 Q.B. 330; 61 L.J. Q.B. 442; 44 & 45 Vict. c. 31, s. 6; 45 & 46 Vict. c. 43, s. 8.

(k) West v. Fritche, 3 Exch. 216; 18 L.J. Ex. 50; Morton v. Woods, L.R. 4 Q.B. 302; 38 L.J. Q.B. 81; Threlfall, In re, infra; Voisey, Ex parte, 21 Ch.D. 442; 52 L.J. Ch. 121; Scobie v. Collins, (1895) 1 Q.B. 375; 64 L.J. Q.B. 10.

(l) See Punnett, Ex parte, 16 Ch.D. 226; 50 L.J. Ch. 212.

(m) Jackson, Ex parte, 14 Ch.D. 725; Stockton Iron Co., In re, 10 Ch.D. 335; 48 L.J. Ch. 417; Threlfall, In re, 16 Ch.D. 274; 50 L.J. Ch. 318; and Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 52), s. 42, which gives a landlord certain rights where the tenant becomes bankrupt.

are applicable to the payment of principal as well as interest(n). When the mortgage deed contains a clause of this description, a right of entry should be reserved in default of payment of the rent, so as to enable the mortgagee, in case the rent remains unpaid, to enter upon the lands or bring an action of ejectment, without giving a notice to quit (o). If by the terms of the mortgage deed the mortgagor is to hold possession for any certain or determined period, there will then be a demise to him of the mortgaged estate for the term specified. If he is to hold until the happening of some uncertain event, he will have a conditional estate, and will be tenant to the mortgagee until the event has happened. If the mortgage deed contains a clause of attornment, or creates a tenancy as between the mortgagor and mortgagee, but does not create any definite or certain term of holding, the mortgagor will be tenant at will. The reservation of a yearly rent is not inconsistent with a tenancy at will (ante, p. 661). Therefore, a clause in a mortgage deed that the mortgagor shall become tenant to the mortgagee at a yearly rent does not necessarily create a yearly tenancy (p). If by the mortgage deed it is covenanted or agreed that the mortgagor shall hold as tenant at will to the mortgagee at an annual rent recoverable by distress, and the mortgagor demises the premises to a third party, the tenancy at will is not determined, and the mortgagee is not deprived of his right to distrain (q). But where the mortgage deed provided that, in case of default in payment, the mortgagor should hold the premises as yearly tenant to the mortgagees from the date of the deed at a specified rent which might be recovered by distress, it was held that the mortgagees, in the absence of notice of their intention to treat the mortgagor as tenant, were not entitled to distrain where he had made default (r).

When the mortgaged premises are in the possession and occupation of lessees or tenants holding under leases granted by the mortgagor prior to the making of the mortgage, the mortgagee takes the mortgaged premises subject to those leases. The mortgage in such a case operates as a grant of the reversion and with it of the rent; and the mortgagee is entitled, as assignee of the reversion, to the rent reserved on such leases,

(n) Harrison, Ex parte, 48 Ch.D. 127; 50 L.J. Ch. 832.

(o) Doe v. Tom, 4 Q.B. 615; 12 L.J. Q.B. 264; Metropolitan Counties Assurance Co. v. Brown, 4 H. & N. 434; 28 L.J. Ex. 340.

(p) Doe v. Davies, 7 Exch. 89; 21 L.J. Ex. 60; Doe v. Goldwin, 2 Q.B. 143; 10 L.J. Q.B. 275.

(q) Pinhorn v. Souster, 8 Exch. 763; 22 L.J. Ex. 266; Brown v. Metropolitan Counties Assurance Soc., 28 L.J. Q.B. 236; Kearsley v. Phillips, 11 Q.B.D. 621; 52 L.J. Q.B. 581.

(r) Clowes v. Hughes, L.R. 5 Ex. 160; 39 L.J. Ex. 62.

after he has given the lessees notice of the mortgage, and required them to pay their rents to him. Though attornment is no longer necessary to perfect the title of a mortgagee of the reversion to the rent reserved on the demise, yet notice of the mortgage must be given to the tenants to enable the mortgagee to maintain an action against them for use and occupation, or to distrain for arrears of rent (s). When there is no clause in the mortgage deed giving to the mortgagor a right to the possession of the mortgaged premises, and creating a tenancy between the mortgagor and mortgagee, the mortgagee has a right to all the rents which have become due subsequently to the making of his mortgage, and which are unpaid at the time the occupying tenant from whom such rent is due receives notice of the mortgage. The tenant is not bound to pay the mortgagee without notice; and if, at the time he receives notice, he has paid the rent to the mortgagor, it is a good excuse for him (t); but payment of the rent to the mortgagor before it is due is no answer to a claim by the mortgagee for rent which has accrued due after the giving of the notice (u). When lands in the possession of tenants holding under-leases have been mortgaged, the mortgagee, as assignee of the reversion, may sue on any of the covenants which are annexed to the reversion and run with the land; and he is also liable to be sued thereon. Hence it followed that, whenever a man had demised to a tenant at a rent, and then had mortgaged his reversion, the mortgagor could not bring an action of ejectment, nor an action for the rent in his own name, nor sue upon any covenants running with the land, whether the mortgagee had or had not given notice of the mortgage, for the tenant might avail himself of the defence that the lessor had assigned all his estate and interest in the demised premises (x). But, by the Judicature Act, 1873 (y), "a mortgagor entitled for the time being to the possession or receipt of the rents and profits of any land as to which no notice of his intention to take possession, or to enter into the receipt of the rents and profits thereof, shall have been given by the mortgagee, may sue for such possession, or for the recovery of such

(s) 4 & 5 Ann. c. 16, ss. 9, 10; Moss v. Gallimore, 1 Doug. 279; 1 Smith's L.C. 514 (ed. 11); Lumley v. Hodgson, 16 East, 99; see Allcock v. Moorhouse, 9 Q.B.D. 366.

(t) Buller, J., Birch v. Wright, 1 T.R. 384, 885.

(u) De Nicholls v. Saunders, L.R. 5 C.P. 589; 39 L.J. C.P. 297; Cook v. Guerra, L.R. 7 C.P. 132; 41 L.J. C.P. 89; ante, p. 667.

(x) Doe v. Edwards, 5 B. & Ad. 1065; Mountnoy v. Collier, 1 E. & B. 636; 22 L.J. Q.B. 124.

(y) 36 & 37 Vict. c. 66, s. 25 (5). See Fairclough v. Marshall, 4 Ex.D. 37; 48 L.J. Ex. 146. As to right of mortgagor, where lease granted before mortgage, to sue in his own name to recover damages for breach of covenant, see 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41, s. 10, and Turner v. Walsh, (1909) 2 K.B. 484; 78 L.J. K.B. 753.

rents or profits, or to prevent or recover damages in respect of any trespass or other wrong relative thereto in his own name only, unless the cause of action arises upon a lease or other contract made by him jointly with any other person." This enactment does not give a mortgagor any rights which he did not possess before, and he cannot as reversioner sue for possession and damages on the ground of breach of a covenant in a lease granted before the mortgage (z). And, if the mortgagee does not give notice to the tenant to pay the rent to himself, but permits the mortgagor to go on receiving the rent as before the mortgage was made, and does not think fit to interfere with the tenancy, the mortgagor is deemed in law to have authority from the mortgagee to distrain for the rent if it falls into arrear, the rent being the obvious and natural source for the mortgagor to obtain funds from, to enable him to pay the interest of the mortgage debt. He may distrain in the mortgagee's name as the mortgagee's bailiff; and, if he distrains in his own name, he may justify in the name of the mortgagee (a).

Leases by mortgagor and mortgagee after making of mortgage. —If no right of possession is reserved by the mortgage deed to the mortgagor, and no tenancy is created between him and the mortgagee, and the mortgagor remains in possession on sufferance after the making of the mortgage, and demises the mortgaged land to a tenant at a rent, the demise is absolutely void as against the mortgagee, but it is nevertheless valid, by estoppel, as between the mortgagor and his tenant until the mortgagee interferes. As between himself and the tenant, the mortgagor may exercise all the ordinary rights of a landlord, unless the mortgagee interferes to prevent him; for the lessee cannot deny his lessor's title at the time of granting the lease (b); and the mortgagor is entitled to receive the rent for his own use and to distrain for it in his own name if it is not paid when due. Mere notice by the mortgagee to the tenant to pay the rent to the mortgagee is not an attornment to the latter, and is, without actual payment, no answer to the mortgagor's claim for rent (c). If the mortgagor assigns his interest, such as it is, his assignee has the same title by estoppel against the lessee, and, as assignee of the reversion by estoppel, may sue the tenant for waste in breach of the covenants in the

(z) Molyneux v. Richard, (1906) 1 Ch. 34; 75 L.J. Ch. 39; following Matthews v. Usher, (1900) 2 Q.B. 535; 69 L.J. Q.B. 856.

(a) Trent v. Hunt, 9 Exch. 14; 22 L.J. Ex. 320; Snell v. Finch, 32 L.J. C.P. 117; 13 C.B. N.S. 651.

(b) Wheeler v. Branscombe, 5 Q.B. 373; 13 L.J. Q.B. 83; Wilton v. Dunn, 17 Q.B. 294; 21 L.J. Q.B. 60.

(c) Hickman v. Machin, 4 H. & N. 716; 28 L.J. Ex. 310.

lease (d). A tenant who comes in under the mortgagor after the mortgage may be treated by the mortgagee as a trespasser, and may be ejected without any notice to quit (e), unless the mortgagee is a party to, or has authorised the making of, the lease; or he may be converted into a tenant to the mortgagee by continuing to occupy the mortgaged premises by the sufferance and permission of the mortgagee, after he has received notice of the mortgage. But where a person occupies a holding—which is within the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1908 (f) or the Tenants' Compensation Act, 1890 (g)—under a contract of tenancy with a mortgagor, which is not binding on the mortgagor, then if the contract of tenancy is for a tenancy from year to year or for a term of years, not exceeding twenty-one, at a rackrent, the mortgagee must before he can deprive the occupier of possession otherwise than in accordance with the contract of tenancy, give the occupier six months' notice in writing (h). The mortgagee cannot, by giving notice to the tenant, entitle himself to distrain for the rent that the tenant has contracted to pay to the mortgagor; nor can he sue for any arrears of such rent (i). But, if there is a clause in the mortgage deed creating a tenancy as between himself and the mortgagor at a specified rent, he may, of course, distrain on the mortgaged premises for that rent (k). And, if rent is due on a demise from the mortgagee to the mortgagor after the making of the mortgage, and the mortgagee threatens to distrain for such rent, or to evict the tenant, and the latter pays the rent to avoid the threatened distress or eviction, such payment is a good payment as against the mortgagor on the ground that the tenant has been compelled to pay for the mortgagor what the mortgagor ought himself to have paid (l).

By sect. 18 of the Conveyancing Act, 1881 (m) a mortgagor in possession as against every incumbrancer, and a mortgagee in possession as against all prior incumbrancers, have power to make agricultural or occupation leases (n) for any term not

(d) Cuthbertson v. Irving, 29 L.J. Ex. 485; 6 H. & N. 135.

(e) Keech v. Hall, 1 Doug. 21; 1 Smith's L.C. (ed. 11); Thunder v. Belcher, 3 East, 449.

(f) 8 Edw. 7, c. 28.

(g) 53 & 54 Vict. c. 57, s. 2; 8 Edw. 7, c. 36, s. 47.

(h) 8 Edw. 7, c. 28, s. 12 (2).

(i) Rogers v. Humphreys, 4 Ad. & E. 299; 5 L.J. K.B. 65; Wilton v. Dunn, 17 Q.B. 294; 21 L.J. Q.B. 60; Turner v. Cameron's Coal Co., 5 Exch. 932; 20 L.J. Ex. 71.

(k) See Kearsley v. Phillips, 11 Q.B.D. 621; 52 L.J. Q.B. 581; also Morton v. Woods, L.R. 4 Q.B. 293; 38 L.J. Q.B. 81; West v. Fritche, 3 Exch. 216; 18 L.J. Ex. 50.

(l) Johnson v. Jones, 9 Ad. & E. 809; 8 L.J. Q.B. 124; approved in Underhay v. Read, 20 Q.B.D. 209; 57 L.J. Q.B. 129; Poole (Mayor) v. Whitt, 15 M. & W. 571; 16 L.J. Ex. 229.

(m) 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41, s. 18.

(n) The provisions of s. 18 apply to any letting or agreement to let whether in writing or not: see 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41, s. 18 (17).

exceeding twenty-one years, and building leases for any term not exceeding ninety-nine years (o), if made according to the provisions of the section (p). A contract to make or accept a lease under this section may be enforced by or against every person on whom the lease, if granted, would be binding (q). A lease which in other respects complies with the requirements of sect. 18 is not rendered invalid because it contains an option of renewal, or because it may be determined at the lessee's option at definite periods during the term (r). Where a lease is made by a mortgagor in possession under sect. 18, the mortgagee, on giving notice to the tenant and going into possession, is entitled by virtue of the Act to enforce the covenants and conditions in the lease in the same manner as if he had been a party to it, and such right cannot be affected by any collateral agreement between the mortgagor and the lessee (s). A mortgagor who has granted a lease under the powers given by sect. 18 of the Act of 1881 cannot accept a surrender of the lease without the concurrence of the mortgagee (t).

Notice of mortgage to lessee.—Where a tenancy is created subsequently to a mortgage, the mortgagee cannot by merely giving notice of the mortgage to the lessee and requiring the rent to be paid to himself make the lessee his tenant (u); and if the tenant continues in possession after the receipt of such a notice, he will not be deemed to hold as tenant to the mortgagee in the absence of any other circumstance from which an agreement for a tenancy can be inferred (x). A payment of rent to a mortgagee by the mortgagor's lessee under an authority given by the mortgagor to the mortgagee for that purpose makes no change in the tenancy, but leaves the lessee still tenant to (o) Leases are not to be made for a longer term or on any conditions except such as could be granted or imposed by the mortgagor with the concurrence of all the incumbrancers without the Act: s. 18 (15). Special provisions may be made as to leasing, and leases so made are in the same position as leases authorized by the section, see s. 18 (14).

(p) The section only applies when no contrary intention is expressed in the mortgage deed or otherwise in writing: s. 18 (13). As to sporting rights, see Browne v. Peto, (1900) 2 Q.B. 653; 69 L.J. Q.B. 869.

(q) 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41, s. 18 (12). The section only applies to mortgages made after the Act, but it may be agreed to apply it to those before the Act, so as not to prejudicially affect any right of a mortgagee not adopting the agreement: s. 18 (16).

(r) King v. Bird, (1909) 1 K.B. 837; 78 L.J. K.B. 499; Edwards v. Millbank, 4 Drew. 606; 29 L.J. Ch. 45.

(s) Municipal Investment Building Soc. v. Smith, 22 Q.B.D. 70; 58 L.J. Q.B. 81. As to the lease being binding on the mortgagee, see Wilson v. Queen's Club (1891) 3 Ch. 522; 60 L.J. Ch. 698.

(t) Robbins v. Whyte, (1906) 1 K.B. 125; 75 L.J. K.B. 38.

(u) Evans v. Elliott, 9 Ad. & E. 342; 8 L.J. Q.B. 51; approved of in Towerson v. Jackson, infra. The statement to the contrary effect in Waddilove v. Barnett, 2 Bing. N.C. 538; 5 L.J. C.P. 145, doubted in Partington v. Woodcock, 6 Ad. & E. 690, 695; 4 L.J. K.B. 239; Wilton v. Dunn, 17 Q.B. 294, 301; 21 L.J. Q.B. 60.

(x) Towerson v. Jackson, (1891) 2 Q.B. 484; 61 L.J. Q.B. 36, doubting Brown v. Storey, post, p. 760, on the point as to the effect of notice.

the mortgagor (y). A new tenancy, however, may be created at the old rent where such a notice has been given, and the rent paid accordingly to the mortgagee (z): and the new tenancy will be a yearly tenancy (a). A mortgagee who gives notice of the mortgage to a tenant let into possession by the mortgagor subsequently to the making of the mortgage, cannot maintain an action either for mesne profits (b), or for the recovery of any satisfaction (c), in respect of the use and occupation of the mortgaged property by such tenant prior to the receipt of the notice; for in the former case the doctrine of relation applies only as between disseisor and disseisee, and an estate which was lawful at its commencement cannot be made tortious by a subsequent act, and in the latter there is no contract between the mortgagee and the tenant before notice of the mortgage.

Contracts for letting and hiring of furnished houses and lodgings.—Contracts for the letting and hiring of ready-furnished houses and apartments are contracts of a mixed nature, partaking partly of the nature of a demise of realty, and partly of a contract for the letting and hiring of movable chattels (post, p. 806); and the lessor, therefore, in contracts of this description, is clothed with the duties and responsibilities resulting from contracts for the letting and hiring of chattels in addition to those which have been previously described as flowing from demises of realty simply.

Implied warranties on part of lessor of furnished apartments.—If a man furnishes a dwelling-house or an apartment in a house, and offers it to be let ready-furnished, he impliedly holds it out as fit for immediate habitation and use, and the contract for the letting and hiring of it is analogous to a contract for the letting and hiring of a ship rigged and manned and prepared for sea, or of a carriage horsed and equipped and made ready for a journey on land: and there is, consequently, an implied warranty on the part of the lessor that such ready-furnished house or lodging is reasonably fit for habitation and occupation by a tenant. If apartments have been taken on condition that they were reasonably fit for habitation and the furniture for use, and the furniture is unfit for use, or is encumbered with a nuisance of so serious a nature as to deprive the (y) Wheeler v. Branscombe, 5 Q.B. 373; 13 L.J. Q.B. 83.

(z) Per Pattison, J., Partington v. Woodcock, ante, p. 759; per Kay, L.J., Towerson v. Jackson, ante, p. 759.

(a) Doe v. Bucknell, 8 C. & P. 566; Doe v. Ongley, 10 C.B. 25; 20 L.J. C.P. 26; Brown v. Storey, 1 M. & Gr. 117; 9 L.J. C.P. 225.

(b) Litchfield v. Ready, 5 Exch. 939; 20 L.J. Ex. 45; Buller, J., Birch v. Wright, 1 T.R. 378, 382.

(c) Turner v. Cameron's Coal Co., 5 Exch. 932; 20 L.J. Ex. 71.

tenant of all beneficial enjoyment of it, the latter is entitled to throw up both house and furniture, and bring an action against the landlord for a breach of contract. Thus, where the beds of a ready-furnished house, let to a tenant at a rent of eight guineas per week, were so infested and overrun with bugs that they could not be slept in, it was held that the tenant was justified in leaving the house and resisting the landlord's demand for the rent (d). In the case of a contract for the hire of a ready-furnished house, observes Lord Abinger, "the letting of the goods and chattels, as well as the house, implies that the party who lets it so furnished is under an obligation to supply the other contracting party with whatever goods and chattels may be fit for the use and occupation of such a house, according to its particular description, and suitable in every respect for his use" (e). In a contract for the letting of a furnished house or rooms there is no implied condition that the house shall continue fit for habitation during the term (f).

Rights and liabilities of lodging-house keepers and lodgers.—It has been held that a contract for board and lodging, where the lodging-house keeper undertakes generally to provide food and shelter for man and beast, and does not agree to let any particular room, is not a contract for an interest in land (g). A tenant of lodgings is not always entitled to the exclusive possession of his rooms. He may sometimes have "a mere easement of sleeping in one room and eating and drinking in another;" and the landlord and his servants may have a right to enter at all times (h). When a man lets apartments in a house, he impliedly demises them with all their proper accompaniments, and warrants to the hirer the use of all such accessorial things as are necessary to enable him to enjoy the principal subject-matter of the demise in the manner intended (i). The lodging-house keeper, moreover, who remains in the general possession of the house, is bound to exercise all ordinary and reasonable (k), but it is suggested not more than reasonable (l), care for the protection of the persons and property of his tenants and lodgers. He is bound, moreover, to exercise ordinary care and vigilance in the selection and appointment of the servants

(d) Smith v. Marrable, 11 M. & W. 5; 12 L.J. Ex. 223; cited in Sutton v. Temple, 12 M. & W. 60; 13 L.J. Ex. 17; Campbell v. Wenlock (Lord), 4 F. & F. 716.

(e) Sutton v. Temple, 12 M. & W. at p. 61; see also Wilson v. Finch Hatton, 2 Ex.D. 336; 46 L.J. Ex. 489.

(f) Sarson v. Roberts, (1895) 2 Q.B. 395; 65 L.J. Q.B. 37.

(g) Ante, p. 24.

(h) Maule, J., Lane v. Dixon, 3 C.B. 784; 16 L.J. C.P. 129.

(i) Underwood v. Burrows, 7 C. & P. 28.

(k) Scarborough v. Cosgrove, (1905) 2 K.B. 805; 74 L.J. K.B. 892.

(l) Holder v. Soulby, 8 C.B. N.S. 254; 29 L.J. C.P. 246.

and domestics within the house, and to take all such precautions as a prudent householder may be expected to take to guard against robbery and fire; and if, after having taken ordinary care in the selection of his servants, a theft is committed on the property of a lodger, in consequence of the front door having been incautiously left open by one of the servants who has been sent out on an errand by the guest, the lodging-house keeper is not responsible for the loss (m). A lodging-house keeper, to whom a lodger has delivered property for safe custody, is bound to use ordinary diligence in the care and custody of the property entrusted to him (n). The lodger on the other hand may be sued for use and occupation (ante, p. 682); and, if he brings goods and chattels of his own upon the premises, it would seem that they can only be distrained for the rent of the lodgings if there has been something more than a mere licence to use the premises, as, for instance, a demise of premises with furniture therein, the rent in such case being deemed to issue out of the realty alone (o). A lodger's goods are protected from distress levied by a superior landlord if they come within the provisions of the Law of Distress Amendment Act, 1908 (p), which repeals the Lodgers' Goods Protection Act, 1871 (q), wherever and so far as the Act of 1908 applies (r). If the possession as well as the use of the furniture is granted to the lessee, the latter is bound to deliver up the furniture at the expiration of the term in good order and condition, deteriorated only by ordinary wear and tear and the reasonable use of it. If he received linen, plate, and household utensils clean and fit for use, and agreed "to leave them as he found them," he is bound to render the things back to the lessor in a clean state (s).

Destruction of buildings by fire.—Where a contract is entered into for the use of a furnished saloon for the giving of a concert, and the saloon is destroyed by fire before the time appointed for the concert, the parties to the contract are excused from performance of it (t).

Proof of duration of term of hiring.—Lodgings and ready-furnished apartments are rarely the subject of a yearly hiring;

(m) Dansey v. Richardson, 3 E. & B. 144; 23 L.J. Q.B. 217.

(n) See post, p. 846; Addison on Torts (ed. 8), pp. 747, 748; 1 Smith's L.C. (ed. 11), p. 204, notes to Coggs v. Bernard, Ld. Raym. 909; Scarborough v. Cosgrove, ante, p. 761; Dansey v. Richardson, supra.

(o) See Newman v. Anderton, 2 Bos. & P. N.R. 227; and Foa on Landlord and Tenant (ed. 4), pp. 480, 481.

(p) 8 Edw. 7, c. 53.

(q) 34 & 35 Vict. c. 79.

(r) 8 Edw. 7, c. 53, s. 8.

(s) Stanley v. Agnew, 12 M. & W. 827; 13 L.J. Ex. 197.

(t) Taylor v. Caldwell, 32 L.J. Q.B. 164; 3 B. & S. 826; see observations of Baggallay, L.J., on this case in Marshall v. Schofield & Co., 52 L.J. Q.B. 58, at p. 60.

and there is no presumption, from a general holding thereof, in favour of a hiring for a year, and from year to year, as in the case of a demise of land (u). The duration of the term corresponds, in general, with the time limited for the payment of the rent. If the rent is payable quarterly, the presumption is in favour of a hiring by the quarter; if, on the other hand, it is payable monthly or weekly, there is a hiring by the month or week. Where a tenant agreed to pay for the occupation of furnished apartments, "from March the 4th to September the 4th, the sum of 52*l.* 10*s.*," also "to occupy the rooms from the 4th of September to the 4th of December on the same terms, viz., 26*l.* 5*s.* for the three months, or to take them unfurnished at the rate of 84*l.* per annum," it was held that this was a lease for six months and for a further period of three months, and not a lease from year to year (x).

Notice to quit.—If the tenancy is for one single quarter, month, or week, no notice to quit is requisite, as the duration of the holding is fixed and determined; but if the hiring be from half-year to half-year, half a year's notice to quit must be given; if from quarter to quarter, a quarter's notice; if from month to month, a month's notice, and if from week to week, a week's notice to quit is, in general, requisite by custom and usage (y). If there is no custom, a reasonable notice is requisite (z); and, where a lodger quits his apartments without giving such notice, he is liable to the payment of a quarter's, a month's, or a week's rent, according to the term of hiring; and the lodging-house keeper may recover such rent, although he has put a bill in the windows advertising the apartments to be let, or has lighted fires in the rooms (a), or has temporarily occupied them either by his servants or his workmen but without any intention of taking possession of them (b). The length of the notice may be otherwise regulated by the express agreement of the parties, and also by the custom and usage of the district. It must, however, in all cases, expire at the end of the current term of hiring. If a tenant remains in possession of lodgings after the termination of his term of hiring, or after the expiration of a notice to quit, the landlord may, as we have seen (ante, p. 736), assert his rights by force.

(u) Wilson v. Abbott, 3 B. & C. 88; 2 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 215.

(x) Atherstone v. Bostock, 2 Sc. N.R. 643; 10 L.J. C.P. 113.

(y) But the custom must be proved: Huffell v. Armitstead, 7 C. & P. 56.

(z) Jones v. Mills, 10 C.B. N.S. 788; 31 L.J. C.P. 66; Bowen v. Anderson, (1894) 1 Q.B. 164; explaining Sandford v. Clarke, 21 Q.B.D. 398; 57 L.J. Q.B. 507.

(a) Redpath v. Roberts, 3 Esp. 225; Griffiths v. Hodges, 1 C. & P. 419; ante, p. 682.

(b) Oastler v. Henderson, 2 Q.B.D. 575; 46 L.J. Q.B. 607.

Letting and hiring places of stowage and deposit.—A contract for the letting and hiring of a vault, or store, or place of deposit in a warehouse, is a contract analogous to the letting and hiring of an apartment in a house for the occupation of a tenant or lodger. But the landlord only contracts that the place is fit for use so far as reasonable care can make it so; and therefore, where a tenant hired the ground-floor of a warehouse, the upper part of which was occupied by the landlord himself, and the water from the roof was collected by gutters into a box, from which it was discharged by a pipe into the drains, and a hole was made in the box by rats, through which the water entered the warehouse and wetted the tenant's goods, but the landlord had exercised reasonable care in examining and seeing to the security of the gutters and box, it was held that he was not liable for the damage so caused (c); but it is otherwise where a landlord had notice of the condition of a gutter and delayed taking any steps to clear it out, owing to which delay the tenant's floor was flooded (d).

Room or standing-places in factories.—An agreement for the use of room in a factory for the purpose of working machines will amount to a demise, if it is a letting of a defined portion of the room separated from the remaining portion, with exclusive possession by the person taking it; but will not amount to a demise if it is a mere letting of an on-stand for a machine (e), or is a mere contract to supply power (f).

Innkeepers—Who is a common innkeeper.—Every person who makes it his business to entertain travellers and passengers, and provide lodging and necessaries for them and their horses and attendants, is a common innkeeper; and it is in no way material whether he have any sign before his door or not (g). A London "coffee-house," where beds and provisions are furnished by the day, or for the night, or for a longer period, to all persons who may think fit to apply for them, is a common inn; and all persons who are willing and able to pay the customary hire are entitled to be received as guests at an inn, whether they are wayfarers or travellers, or merely residents in the locality (h). But, if a man merely opens a house

(c) Carstairs v. Taylor, L.R. 6 Ex. 217; 40 L.J. Ex. 129.

(d) Hargroves, Aronson & Co. v. Hartop, (1905) 1 K.B. 472; 74 L.J. K.B. 233.

(e) See Selby v. Greares, L.R. 3 C.P. 594; 37 L.J. C.P. 251, where it was held there was a demise; and Hancock v. Austin, 14 [C.B. N.S. 634; 32 L.J. C.P. 252, where the contrary was held; see also 1 Edw. 7, c. 22, s. 149, as to meaning of "tenement factory."

(f) Bentley Bros. v. Metcalfe & Co., (1906) 2 K.B. 548; 75 L.J. K.B. 891.

(g) Bac.Abr. Inns (B.); Parker v. Flint, 12 Mod. 255.

(h) Thompson v. Lacy, 3 B. & Ald. 283.

for the sale of provisions and refreshments, and does not profess to furnish beds and lodging for the night, he is not a common innkeeper (i). And, if he professes to let only private lodgings, and does not offer his house to the public as a house for all comers who are able and willing to pay for the accommodation offered, he cannot be said to keep a common inn.

Innkeepers—Duty to receive guest.—Every man who opens an inn and professes to exercise the business of a common innkeeper, is bound to afford such accommodation as he possesses to all travellers (k) who are ready to pay the customary hire, and are not drunk or disorderly, or labouring under contagious or infectious diseases. And, if he neglects so to do, he is liable in an action for damages (l) and also to an indictment at common law (m); but if all his bedrooms be full he is not bound to receive a traveller who asks to be allowed to pass the night in the empty coffee room (n). The innkeeper is bound, if he has room in his stables, to receive the horses of travellers intending to become guests; but he is not bound to receive horses from parties who merely intend to make use of his stables as livery stables, resorting elsewhere for lodging and entertainment; nor is he bound to receive the goods of a person who professes merely to make use of the inn as a place of deposit, and not to lodge there as a guest (o). Neither is he bound to provide for his guest the precise room that the latter may choose to select, nor to provide him with a bedroom, if he declares it to be his intention to sit up all night; all that he is required to do is to find reasonable accommodation for his guests; and, if he tenders such accommodation, and the guest refuses it, he may compel the latter to quit the inn, and seek for accommodation elsewhere (p). A traveller who goes to a common inn is not necessarily entitled to accommodation therein as long as he chooses to remain on payment of the inn charges and conducting himself properly, and if he forms an intention of staying in the inn and has no intention of going on to any other place, he ceases to be a traveller, and the innkeeper is entitled to terminate the relation of host and guest by reasonable notice (q). The question whether a traveller staying in a

(i) Doe v. Laming, 4 Campb. 77.

(k) Taylor v. Humphreys, 30 L.J. M.C. 242; 10 C.B. N.S. 429; see Copley v. Burton, L.R. 5 C.P. 489; 39 L.J. M.C. 141.

(l) See Le Blanche v. London & N. W. Ry., 1 C.P.D. 286; 45 L.J. C.P. 521.

(m) Hawthorn v. Hammond, 1 C. & K. 404; Howell v. Jackson, 6 C. & P. 725; Rex v. Ivens, 7 C. & P. 219.

(n) Browne v. Brandt, (1902) 1 K.B. 696; 71 L.J. K.B. 367.

(o) Smith v. Dearlove, 6 C.B. 132; 17 L.J. C.P. 219; Binns v. Pigot, 9 C. & P. 209; but see Day v. Bather, 2 H. & C. 14; 32 L.J. Ex. 171.

(p) Fell v. Knight, 8 M. & W. 276; 10 L.J. Ex. 277.

(q) Lamond v. Richard, (1897) 1 Q.B. 541; 66 L.J. Q.B. 315.

common inn has ceased to be a traveller is a question of fact, in determining which the length of his stay in point of time must be taken into consideration, but is not of itself conclusive (r).

Innkeepers—Extent of obligation.—The extent of the obligation of the innkeeper depends mainly upon the nature of his public profession. If he has only a stable for a horse he is not bound to receive a carriage. If he professes only to receive ordinary luggage accompanying the person of a traveller, he is not bound to take in articles of extraordinary bulk, nor goods which do not accompany the person of the guest (s). An innkeeper is not an insurer of the goods of his guest, but is answerable for negligence (t). The innkeeper cannot discharge himself of the duty imposed upon him by the common law by express notice to his guests (u), or under pretence of sickness, want of understanding, or absence from home (x); but if an infant keeps a common inn, an action upon the custom of inns will not lie against him, for his privilege of infancy shall be preferred, and take place of the custom (y). The liability of the innkeeper continues during the temporary absence of his guest (z).

Innkeepers—Protection of guest from loss of goods.—The relationship of guest and innkeeper must be completely established in order to render the innkeeper liable for the loss of a guest's goods (a). The responsibility of an innkeeper for the safety of a guest's property begins the moment the relation of guest and innkeeper arises—a relation which arises as soon as the guest enters the inn with the intention of using it as such, and is received on that basis by the innkeeper (b); and this is so notwithstanding the fact that some one other than the particular guest is to pay for the accommodation received by him (c). It is said that the innkeeper is not liable for the loss of his guest's goods by burglary or robbery with violence where he can show that the force which occasioned the loss was truly irresistible (d). But however this may be, it is certain that

(r) Lamond v. Richard, ante, p. 765.

(s) Broadwood v. Granara, 10 Exch. 423; 24 L.J. Ex. 1.

(t) Calye's Case, 1 Smith's L.C. 119 (ed. 11); Dawson v. Chamney, 5 Q.B. 164; 13 L.J. Q.B. 33. As to liability to person coming to the inn but not to deal there, see Oxford v. Prior, 14 W.R. 611; and as to a temporary caller for refreshment, see Bennett v. Mellor, 5 T.R. 173.

(u) Morgan v. Rarey, 6 H. & N. 265; 30 L.J. Ex. 131; see, however, 26 & 27 Vict. c. 41, post, p. 769.

(x) Bac.Abr. Inns, C. 4.

(y) Crosse v. Andrews, Roll.Abr. 2; Carth. 161.

(z) Day v. Bather, 2 H. & C. 14; 32 L.J. Ex. 171.

(a) Strauss v. County Hotel Co., 12 Q.B.D. 27; 58 L.J. Q.B. 25; Medawar v. Grand Hotel Co., (1891) 2 Q.B. 11; 60 L.J. Q.B. 209.

(b) Wright v. Anderton, (1909) 1 K.B. 209; 78 L.J. K.B. 165.

(c) Ib.

(d) Jones on Bailment, 96 (ed. 4).

to the obligations which attach to innkeepers in common with all lodging-house keepers and lessors of furnished rooms and apartments for immediate occupation (ante, p. 761), the law has superadded the duty of protecting the goods of their guests from robbery (e). But if the guest's servant, or he who comes with him, or he whom he desires to be lodged with him, steals or carries away his goods, the innkeeper shall not be charged; for there the fault is in the guest to have such a companion or servant (f). The question as to what constitutes negligence on the part of the landlord or of the guest depends on the particular circumstances of each case (g). The rule of law resulting from all the authorities is, that the goods remain under the charge of the innkeeper and the protection of the inn, so as to make the innkeeper liable for a breach of duty, unless the negligence of the guest occasions the loss in such a way as that the loss would not have happened if the guest had used the ordinary care that a prudent man might reasonably have been expected to take under the circumstances (h).

"If a guest come to a common innkeeper to harbour there, and he say that his house is full of guests, and do not admit him, &c., and the party say he will make shift among the other guests, and be there robbed of his goods, the innkeeper shall not be charged" (i). And if a guest takes upon himself the exclusive charge of the goods which he brings into the house of an innkeeper, he cannot afterwards charge the innkeeper with the loss (k). "All that Lord Coke in Calye's Case (l) means when he says the innkeeper is liable though the guest has a key and does not use it is that the innkeeper cannot get rid of his common law liability by giving the guest a key. But he by no means lays it down that a guest may not be guilty of negligence in abstaining from using it. For instance, if there were races in the neighbourhood which caused a great number of suspicious characters to be about the inn" (m). "If there

(e) Morgan v. Ravey, 6 H. & N. 265; 30 L.J. Ex. 131; but see now 26 & 27 Vict. c. 41, post, p. 769; as to the sufficiency of notice under the Act, see Spice v. Bacon, 3 Ex.D. 463; 46 L.J. Ex. 713.

(f) Calye's Case, 8 Co. Rep. 32, a; 1 Smith's L.C. 119 (ed. 11).

(g) Kent v. Shuckard, 2 B. & Ad. 803 (bag containing money left in bedroom); Richmond v. Smith, 8 B. & C. 9; 6 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 219 (goods left in commercial room); Armistead v. White, 20 L.J. Q.B. 524; S. C. nom. Armistead v. Wilde, 17 Q.B. 261; Burgess v. Clements, 1 Stark. 251, n.; 4 M. & S. 306; Sandars v. Spencer, Dyer, 266, a.

(h) Cashill v. Wright, 6 E. & B. 891, 900; Oppenheim v. White Lion Hotel Co., L.R. 6 C.P. 515; 40 L.J. C.P. 231.

(i) White's Case, Dyer, 158, b; Bac. Abr. Inns, C. 4.

(k) Farnworth v. Packwood, 1 Stark. 249. But see Bennett v. Mellor, 5 T.R. 276 (goods left on floor of inn in servant's charge).

(l) 8 Co. 32; 1 Smith's L.C. 119 (ed. 11).

(m) Per Willes, J., Oppenheim v. White Lion Hotel Co., L.R. 6 C.P. 515, at p. 520; 40 L.J. C.P. 231.

is evidence," observes Lord Ellenborough, "that the guest accepted the key, and took on himself the care of his goods, surely it is for the jury to determine whether the evidence of his receiving the key proves that he did it animo custodiendi, and with a purpose of exempting the innkeeper, or whether he took it merely because the landlord forced it on him, or for the sake of securing greater privacy, in order to prevent persons from intruding themselves into his room" (n). The weight of the evidence depends upon the state of society and the place, for "What would be prudent in a small hotel, in a small town, might be the extreme of imprudence at a large hotel in a city like Bristol, where probably three hundred bed-rooms are occupied by people of all sorts" (o).

Whenever the goods and chattels of the guest have been actually delivered to the innkeeper or his servants the latter cannot discharge himself from the strict common-law responsibility by showing that the goods were stolen outside the inn, if he has himself placed them in the spot from whence they have been taken (p). The innkeeper is also liable, although sick at the time and incapable of attending to his affairs, for he is bound to retain trusty servants to secure the goods of his guests when incapable of doing so himself (q). Where the plaintiff, on his way home from business in the evening, called at the defendants' hotel for the purpose of dining only, and was supplied with dinner in the dining-room of the hotel, a large room structurally forming part of the hotel and reached by the same entrance as the rest of the hotel, but capable of accommodating and wont to accommodate a large number of persons in addition to those who were staying in the house: it was held that there was evidence that the relationship of guest and innkeeper existed between him and the defendants so as to make them liable for the value of his overcoat lost in the hotel (r). The extended responsibility of the innkeeper, which makes him an insurer of the goods against loss by robbery, does not extend to losses occasioned by an accidental fire (14 Geo. 3, c. 78, s. 86), nor to damage or injury to the goods which is the result of accident. The innkeeper is not responsible for injuries which the horses of guests inflict upon each other in the stables of the inn, provided he has taken

(n) Burgess v. Clements, 4 M. & S. at p. 310; 1 Stark. 252, n.

(o) Per Montague Smith, J., Oppenheim v. White Lion Hotel Co., L.R. 6 C.P. at p. 522.

(p) Jones v. Tyler, 1 Ad. & E. 522; 3 L.J. K.B. 166 (gig stolen from outside an inn).

(q) Cross v. Andrews, Cro.Eliz. 622.

(r) Orchard v. Bush & Co., (1898) 2 Q.B. 284; 67 L.J. Q.B. 650.

all due care to prevent the introduction into the stables of vicious and kicking horses (s).

Innkeepers—Limitation by statute of liability of innkeepers.—By sect. 1 of the Innkeepers' Liability Act, 1863 (t), no innkeeper is to be liable to make good to any guest any loss of, or injury to, goods or property brought to his inn, not being a horse or other live animal, or any gear appertaining thereto, or any carriage, to a greater amount than the sum of thirty pounds; except where such goods or property have been stolen, lost, or injured through the wilful act, default, or neglect of such innkeeper, or any servant in his employ, or where such goods or property have been deposited expressly (u) for safe custody with such innkeeper (v); and in the case of a deposit for safe custody, the innkeeper may require, as a condition of his liability, that the goods or property be deposited in a box or other receptacle, fastened and sealed by the person depositing the same (w). If an innkeeper refuses to receive for safe custody any goods or property of his guest, or if any guest, through any default of the innkeeper, is unable to deposit such goods or property as are mentioned in the Act, the innkeeper will not be entitled to the benefit of the Act in respect of such goods or property (s. 2).

Every innkeeper is required to cause at least one copy (x) of the first section of the Act, printed in plain type, to be exhibited in a conspicuous part of the hall or entrance to his inn, and he is entitled to the benefit of the Act in respect of such goods or property only as shall be brought to his inn while such copy shall be exhibited (s. 3). By the interpretation clause (s. 4) the word "inn" means any hotel, inn, tavern, public-house, or other place of refreshment, the keeper of which is now by law responsible for the goods and property of his guests, and the word "innkeeper" means the keeper of any such place.

Innkeepers—Who is a guest and traveller.—He who seeks to charge another as an innkeeper for the loss of goods must show that he was a traveller and guest at the inn. If a man who has

(s) Dawson v. Chamney, 5 Q.B. 164; 13 L.J. Q.B. 33, explained and qualified by Morgan v. Ravey, 30 L.J. Ex. 134; 6 H. & N. 265.

(t) 26 & 27 Vict. c. 41.

(u) The word "expressly" means that the guest's intention must be brought to the mind of the innkeeper or his servant in some reasonable and intelligible manner, so that he may, if so minded, insist on the precautions prescribed in the section: Whitehouse v. Pickett, (1908) A.C. 357; 77 L.J. P.C. 89.

(v) Medawar v. Grand Hotel Co., (1891) 2 Q.B. 11; 60 L.J. Q.B. 209.

(w) Medawar v. Grand Hotel Co., supra.

(x) Such copy should be a correct copy: see Spice v. Bacon, 2 Ex.D. 463; 46 L.J. Ex. 713.

been a guest gives up his room and quits the inn for a few days, intending to return, and asks for permission to leave his goods at the inn, and the innkeeper takes charge of them, the latter is clothed only with the ordinary duties and responsibilities of a bailee, for a man does not become a guest at an inn by the mere delivery of goods to the landlord to keep (y). It has been said, however, that a man may become "a guest by leaving his horse as much as if he had stayed himself, because the horse must be fed, by which the innkeeper has gain, otherwise than if he had left a trunk or a dead thing" (z). "If an host invite one to supper, and, the night being far spent, invites him to stay all night, if he is robbed, yet shall not the host be charged" (as an innkeeper), "for this guest was no traveller" (a).

The question whether a person staying at a common inn has ceased to be a traveller, is a question of fact (ante, p. 765), in determining which the length of his stay in point of time must be taken into consideration, but is not of itself conclusive (b). Thus, "if A. comes with goods to an inn in London, and stays there for a week, month, or longer, and is there robbed of them, he shall have an action against his host; though perhaps, being at the end of his journey, he cannot then be said transeuns according to the writ in the register" (c). But if a man takes apartments in an inn for a term, by the week, month, or year, for example, or if he resides in an inn under a special contract for his bed and board, he is not in contemplation of law sojourning at the inn as a traveller but rather in the character of a lodger at a private boarding-house. If, therefore, he is robbed in the house, he cannot charge the landlord as an innkeeper (d). Holt, C.J., is reported to have held, "that if one come to an inn and make a previous contract for lodging for a set time, and do not eat or drink there, he is no guest, but a lodger, and as such he is not under the innkeeper's protection; but if he eat and drink there it is otherwise, or if he pay for his diet there, though he do not take it there" (e). A person taking a meal at an inn has been held to be a guest (f), and so has a person making use, for the purpose of washing and dressing, of a room already engaged by a guest (g); but a person taking

(y) Gelley v. Clerk, Cro.Jac. 188; Smith v. Dearlove, 6 C.B. 132; 17 L.J. C.P. 219.

(z) York v. Grindstone, 1 Salk. 388; Bather v. Day, 32 L.J. Ex. 171; 2 H. & C. 14.

(a) Bac.Abr. Inns, C. 5.

(b) Lamond v. Richard, (1897) 1 Q.B. 541; 66 L.J. Q.B. 315.

(c) Bac.Abr. Inns, C. 5.

(d) Warburton, J., Watbroke v. Griffith, Moore, 877; Grimston v. An Innkeeper, Hetley, 49.

(e) Parker v. Flint, 12 Mod. 255.

(f) Orchard v. Bush & Co., (1898) 2 Q.B. 284; 67 L.J. Q.B. 650.

(g) Medawar v. Grand Hotel Co., (1891) 2 Q.B. 11; 60 L.J. Q.B. 209.

a drink at the counter of the bar of an inn (h), or one taking temporary refreshment at a railway company's refreshment-room has been held not to be a guest (i).

Innkeepers' lien.—An innkeeper has a lien upon goods belonging to the guest, and brought by him to the inn, for his charges for board and lodging supplied to the guest (j); and it has been held that the lien attaches even when the goods do not belong to the guest, if the innkeeper receives them in the belief that they do so belong; and when the goods are such as the innkeeper was not bound to receive (k); and also when the goods are deposited with him by his guest (l). The lien upon the goods of a commercial traveller who is a guest extends to all goods which a commercial traveller would in the ordinary course carry about with him to the inns at which he puts up as part of the regular apparatus of his calling, though they be in fact the property of the firm for whom he travels. If the goods are received as part of the commercial traveller's baggage, it makes no difference whether they were brought with him originally or were afterwards sent to him at the inn (m). An innkeeper does not waive his lien by accepting security for the charges incurred, unless there is something in the nature of the security or in the circumstances under which it was given which is inconsistent with the continuance of the lien (n). But he cannot detain the person of his guest, or take off his clothing, in order to obtain payment of his bill (o). If he sells the goods his lien is destroyed (p). He has a right to sell goods left at his inn after six weeks, where the person depositing is his debtor, subject to certain provisions (q). Where a husband and wife stayed at the plaintiffs' hotel, the wife bringing with her a quantity of luggage, which was her separate property, and credit being given to the husband, who made payments on account, it was held that the plaintiffs were entitled to a lien upon the wife's luggage, notwithstanding that it was her separate property, for the unpaid balance of the plaintiffs' bill (r).

The innkeeper holds the chattels detained by him in the nature of a pledge, so that if he once permits his guest to take them away, and so relinquishes his pledge, he cannot afterwards re-

(h) Reg. v. Rymer, 2 Q.B.D. 136; 46 L.J. M.C. 108.
(i) Strauss v. County Hotel Co., 12 Q.B.D. 27; 53 L.J. Q.B. 25.
(j) Thompson v. Lacy, 3 B. & Ald. 283.
(k) Threfall v. Borwick, L.R. 10 Q.B. 210; 44 L.J. Q.B. 87.
(l) Mulliner v. Florence, 3 Q.B.D. 484; 47 L.J. Q.B. 700.
(m) Robins v. Gray, (1895) 2 Q.B. 501; 65 L.J. Q.B. 44.
(n) Angus v. McLachlan, 23 Ch.D. 330; 52 L.J. Ch. 587; see post, p. 905.
(o) Sunbolf v. Alford, 3 M. & W. 248; 7 L.J. Ex. 60.
(p) Mulliner v. Florence, supra.
(q) 41 & 42 Vict. c. 38.
(r) Gordon v. Silber, 25 Q.B.D. 491; 59 L.J. Q.B. 507.

take them. Therefore, if the innkeeper allows his guest to remove his horses after a debt has been incurred for keeping them, and they are afterwards brought to the inn and a new debt contracted, the innkeeper can detain them for the latter portion of the debt, but not for the former (s). And it is said that if several horses are brought to an inn by the guest, each is a pledge for its own keep, but not for the keep of the others; so that if the hosteller permit him to take away all but one, he cannot retain that one until the expense of the whole is paid (t). If the guest takes the chattel away without the hosteller's consent, the latter may take it on a fresh pursuit as a distress rescued, if he follow promptly, but not otherwise (u). However long horses may remain at an inn, the relative duties and obligations of innkeeper and guest continue until some fresh contract or arrangement is made (v). Where an innkeeper is holding goods of his guest under his lien he is not bound to take greater care of them than if he were an ordinary bailee of them (w). The lien upon a traveller's goods terminates at the same time as the right of the traveller to be lodged in the inn as a traveller (x).

Sub-section I.

distress for rent.

Distress for rent in arrear.—By the common law, as we have seen (ante, p. 680), landlords to whom rent is due, and who are clothed with the immediate reversion of the premises out of which the rent issues, have the power of entering in person, or by their certified bailiff (y), upon the demised premises (z), and seizing the movables and personal property thereon, with certain exceptions, and holding them as a pledge for the payment of the rent, and they have now by statute the power of selling the things distrained.

It is essential to the lawful exercise of the power of distress, that there be a tenancy (a) for a term, or at the least, at will,

(s) Jones v. Thurloe, 8 Mod. 173; Jones v. Pearle, 1 Str. 556, 557.

(t) Moss v. Townsend, 1 Bulstr. 207.

(u) Rosse v. Bramsteed, 2 Roll. 438.

(v) Allen v. Smith, 12 C.B. N.S. 638; 31 L.J. C.P. 306.

(w) Angus v. McLachlan, 23 Ch.D. 330; 52 L.J. Ch. 587.

(x) Lamond v. Richard, (1897) 1 Q.B. 41; 66 L.J. Q.B. 315.

(y) See 51 & 52 Vict. c. 21, and Addison on Torts, 320 (ed. 8) as to the appointment of a bailiff to distrain.

(z) See Selby v. Greaves, L.R. 3 C.P. 594; 37 L.J. C.P. 251.

(a) See Clowes v. Hughes, L.R. 5 Ex. 160; 39 L.J. Ex. 62, in which case the distress was made by a mortgagee upon the mortgaged lands under an agreement contained in the mortgage deed:

at an ascertained rent (b), and that the distrainor be the person entitled to the reversion of the premises distrained upon, on the determination of the existing tenancy. If he has made a lease without having any right or title to grant a lease, or if, after the making of the lease, he has sold and transferred his estate or interest to some third party (c), or, being himself only a lessee, he has assigned his lease, or if, after granting an underlease, he is evicted by title paramount, and the superior landlord has entered, and the under tenant has attorned to the latter (d), or if his lease expires (e), he has no right or power to distrain. A sublease for a period co-extensive with, or longer than, the sub-lessor's term operates as an assignment, and the sub-lessor cannot distrain for rent in arrear (f). It has been held, that a tenant from year to year underletting from year to year, has a reversion which enables him to distrain for rent reserved upon such underlease (g). However, although the distrainor be not entitled to the immediate reversion, the distrainee may be estopped from denying that he is entitled to it (h). A landlord who has merely a reversion by estoppel cannot distrain the goods of a third person brought upon the demised premises by leave of the tenant (i).

If the lease has been put an end to by a surrender of the term, or by a notice to quit, and the tenant, notwithstanding the termination of the demise, continues to hold, with the permission of the landlord, as tenant-at-will, or adversely and against the will of the lord as a wrongdoer, the lessor has no power at common law to distrain the goods and chattels of the tenant for rent in respect of such occupation (j). Neither can he distrain, except under the statute of Anne (post, p. 778), for rent that accrued due before the determination of the lease. But any slight evidence of a renewal of the tenancy, and of an agreement to hold upon the former terms, would be sufficient to justify the landlord in distraining for the old rent (k). A Kearsley v. Phillips, 11 Q.B.D. 621 ; 52 L.J. Q.B. 581.

(b) Anderson v. Midland Ry., 30 L.J. Q.B. 94 ; 3 E. & E. 614 ; Howe v. Scarrott, 28 L.J. Ex. 325 ; 4 H. & N. 723 ; Jolly v. Arbuthnot, 28 L.J. Ch. 547 ; 4 De G. & J. 224.

(c) Parmenter v. Webber, 8 Taunt. 593 ; 2 Moore, 656 ; Preece v. Corrie, 5 Bing. 24 ; 6 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 205 ; Smith v. Mapleback, 1 T.R. 441.

(d) Hopcroft v. Keys, 2 M. & Sc. 760 ; 9 Bing. 613 ; Langford v. Selmes, 3 K. & J. 220.

(e) Burne v. Richardson, 4 Taunt. 720.

(f) Lewis v. Baker (No. 1), (1905) 1 Ch. 46 ; 74 L.J. Ch. 39.

(g) Curtis v. Wheeler, M. & M. 493.

(h) Morton v. Woods, L.R. 4 Q.B. 293 ; 38 L.J. Q.B. 81 ; Alchorne v. Gomme, 2 Bing. 54 ; 2 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 18.

(i) Tadman v. Henman, (1893) 2 Q.B. 168.

(j) Jenner v. Clegg, 1 M. & Rob. 213 ; Alford v. Vickery, 1 Car. & Marsh. 283 ; Phené v. Popplewell, 12 C.B. N.S. 334 ; 31 L.J. C.P. 235.

(k) Zouch v. Willingale, 1 H.Bl. 311 ; Beavan v. Delahay, 1 H.Bl. 8.

distress affirms the tenancy up to the day when the rent became due (l).

By sect. 42 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (m), as amended by the Bankruptcy Act, 1890 (n), if a tenant becomes bankrupt the landlord or other person to whom any rent is due may either before or after the commencement of the bankruptcy distrain upon the goods and effects of the bankrupt, but if the distress be levied after the commencement of the bankruptcy, it is available only for six months' rent accrued due prior to the date of the order of adjudication (o); but the landlord or other person to whom the rent may be due from the bankrupt may prove under the bankruptcy for the surplus due for which the distress may not have been available. A fortiori therefore if the trustee in bankruptcy declines to take the lease, the lessor is not, in case the bankrupt tenant continues to hold the property, deprived by the bankruptcy of his right to distrain (p). The protection afforded by the above enactment applies in terms only to the goods or effects of the bankrupt, and not to those of third persons which may be upon the demised premises (q). If a lessee, having granted an underlease, becomes bankrupt, the lessor, upon disclaimer of the lease by the trustee under sect. 55 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (r), is entitled to distrain for the rent reserved (s). The power of distress is always subservient to prerogative process issued by the crown, such as an extent; and the sheriff may consequently take goods that have been distrained out of the hands of the landlord or his bailiff, and sell them for the benefit of the crown (t).

By sect. 28 of the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1908 (u), it shall not be lawful for a landlord entitled to the rent of a holding to distrain for rent which became due in respect of that holding more than one year before the making of the distress, unless the payment of rent has, according to the ordinary course of dealing between the landlord and tenant, been de-

(l) Cotesworth v. Spokes, 10 C.B. N.S. 103; 30 L.J. C.P. 220. See Shepherd v. Berger, (1891) 1 Q.B. 597; 60 L.J. Q.B. 395; Thomas v. Lulham, (1895) 2 Q.B. 400; 64 L.J. Q.B. 720.

(m) 46 & 47 Vict. c. 52, s. 42.

(n) 53 & 54 Vict. c. 71, s. 28.

(o) Hart Dyke, Ex parte, 22 Ch.D. 410; 52 L.J. Ch. 570; Birm. & Staff. Gas Light Co., Ex parte, L.R. 11 Eq. 615; 40 L.J. Bankr. 52; see Hill, Ex parte, 6 Ch.D. 63; Harrison, Ex parte, 13 Q.B.D. 753; 53 L.J. Ch. 977; and Lundy Granite Co., In re, L.R. 6 Ch. 462; 40 L.J. Ch. 588; Wilson, In re, 62 L.J. Q.B. 628; Howell, In re, (1895) 1 Q.B. 844; 64 L.J. Q.B. 454.

(p) Briggs v. Sowry, 8 M. & W. 729; 11 L.J. Ex. 193; Newton v. Scott, 10 M. & W. 471; 12 L.J. Ex. 488; Phillips v. Shervill, 6 Q.B. 944; 14 L.J. Q.B. 144; see 46 & 47 Vict. c. 52, s. 55.

(q) Brocklehurst v. Lawe, 7 E. & B. 176; 26 L.J. Q.B. 107; Railton v. Wood, 15 App.Cas. 363; 59 L.J. P.C. 84; Addison on Torts, 324 (ed. 8).

(r) 46 & 47 Vict. c. 52, s. 55.

(s) Walton, Ex parte, 17 Ch.D. 746; 50 L.J. Ch. 657.

(t) Rex v. Cotton, Parker, 112.

(u) 8 Edw. 7, c. 28, s. 28.

ferred until the expiration of a quarter or half-year after the date at which the rent legally became due, in which case, the rent shall, for the purposes of the section, be deemed to have become due at the expiration of that quarter or half-year, and not at the date at which it legally became due. In such a case the landlord may distrain for rent then legally due, but not yet payable according to the ordinary course of dealing, and also for rent which has become legally due more than a year previously, but has become payable according to the ordinary course of dealing less than a year previously, and he may do this even although the total amount distrained for exceeds one year's rent (v).

Distress—No right to distrain where no certain ascertained rent.—To entitle a landlord to distrain the rent must be ascertained (x). Where lands and tithes were let at one entire rent upon a parol agreement which was void as to the tithes, it was held that the landlord could not distrain, because the amount in respect of the part of the land for which the agreement was good was not ascertained (y). But where a new agreement is come to, providing for a specified reduction of rent, or for an ascertained and settled compensation in respect of the part held under the prior demise, such agreement may operate as a re-demise at an ascertained rent, recoverable by distress (z). If there be a tenancy of a brickfield, the tenant paying a fixed sum for every thousand bricks made, the landlord may distrain, for id certum est quod certum reddi potest (a).

Formerly if a tenant entered into possession under an agreement which did not operate as a present demise at a fixed rent, but merely as an executory contract for a future lease afterwards to be granted, and no lease was granted, the landlord had no right to distrain (b); but since the Judicature Acts, a landlord may distrain where the tenant has entered under an agreement of which the landlord may have a decree for specific performance (c). But whenever there is an agreement for a tenancy at a fixed rent, though it be a tenancy-at-will only (d), or whenever by payment of rent, or otherwise, any tenancy at a

(v) Bull, Ex parte, Bew, In re, 11 Q.B.D. 642; 56 L.J. Q.B. 270.

(x) 2 Wms.Saund. 284, c, note (e), notes to Poole v. Longueville. See, further, Addison on Torts, 319 (ed. 8).

(y) Gardiner v. Williamson, 2 B. & Ad. 336; 9 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 233; Neale v. Mackenzie, 1 M. & W. 747; 6 L.J. Ex. 263.

(z) Watson v. Waud, 8 Exch. 335; 22 L.J. Ex. 161.

(a) Daniel v. Gracie, 6 Q.B. 145; 13 L.J. Q.B. 309; Pollitt v. Forrest, 11 Q.B. 909; 16 L.J. Q.B. 424.

(b) Hegan v. Johnson, 2 Taunt. 148.

(c) Walsh v. Lonsdale, 21 Ch.D. 9; 52 L.J. Ch. 2; Swain v. Ayres, 21 Q.B.D. 289; 57 L.J. Ch. 428; Lowther v. Heaver, 41 Ch.D. 248; 58 L.J. Ch. 482. See also Addison on Torts, 319 (ed. 8).

(d) Anderson v. Midland Ry., 30 L.J. Q.B. 94; 3 E. & E. 614.

fixed rent can be implied, the landlord may distrain for all rent subsequently accruing due (e). And if the tenant, after he has taken possession, "promises to pay a rent certain, or settles it in account, the landlord will then have a right to distrain" (f). So, if a man, on being let into possession under an agreement for purchase, signs an agreement admitting that he is tenant at a certain rent, he may be distrained upon (g).

By sect. 1 of the Landlord and Tenant Act, 1851 (h), where the lease or tenancy of any farm or lands shall determine by the death or cesser of the estate of a landlord entitled for life or for any other uncertain interest, instead of claims to emblements, the tenant shall continue to hold until the expiration of the then current year of his tenancy, and shall then quit upon the terms of his lease, in the same manner as if his lease had then expired by effluxion of time; and the succeeding landlord shall be entitled "to recover and receive of the tenant" a fair proportion of the rent for the period since the lessor's death. The above Act applies to all tenancies in respect of which there exists a valid claim to emblements, and confers a right to distrain for the rent as well as to recover it by action (i).

Distress—Conditions precedent to the right to distrain.—The right to distrain may be made conditional, or may be postponed by the contract of the parties (k). Whenever a covenant or promise to pay rent is conditional and dependent, and the lessor is ready and willing to fulfil the condition on his part, but the lessee prevents him, the lessor will have his power of distress.

Distress—Agreements not to distrain.—The right to distrain, not being an inseparable incident to a rent service, may be waived, abandoned, or postponed by the express contract or agreement of the landlord (l), or by conduct (m). If, therefore, a landlord has agreed with the owner of cattle not to distrain them if they are put into a particular close, and they are afterwards distrained there by the landlord, in violation of his agreement, an action for a trespass in taking the cattle is maintainable against him (n).

(e) M'Leish v. Tate, Cowp. 781.

(f) Knight v. Bennett, 11 Moore, 222; 4 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 95; Cox v. Bent, 2 M. & P. 281; 7 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 68.

(g) Yeoman v. Ellison, L.R. 2 C.P. 681; 36 L.J. C.P. 326; see Morton v. Woods, L.R. 4 Q.B. 293; 38 L.J. C.P. 81; ante, p. 773.

(h) 14 & 15 Vict. c. 25, s. 1.

(i) Haines v. Welch, L.R. 4 C.P. 91; 38 L.J. C.P. 118; see The Apportionment Act, 1870 (33 & 34 Vict. c. 35).

(k) Giles v. Spencer, 3 C.B. N.S. 244; 26 L.J. C.P. 237; Regnart v. Porter, 5 M. & P. 370; 9 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 168; Mechelen v. Wallace, 7 Ad. & E. 54, n.

(l) Giles v. Spencer, 3 C.B. N.S. 244; 26 L.J. C.P. 237.

(m) Horsford v. Webster, infra; Papé v. Westcott, (1894) 1 Q.B. 272; 63 L.J. Q.B. 222.

(n) Horsford v. Webster, 1 C. M. & R. 696; 4 L.J. Ex. 100; Welsh v. Rose, 6 Bing. 638; 8 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 246.

Distress—Acceptance of bill or note by way of payment.—A landlord is not deprived of his right to distrain by taking a bill, or note, or other security for the rent, unless it be proved that the landlord, at the time he accepted the security, bound himself not to distrain (o), or unless it be proved that the note was paid at maturity (p). The mere fact that a bill of exchange is given by a tenant to his landlord in respect of rent due is some evidence of an agreement by the landlord to suspend his right of distress until the bill matures (q). If the landlord's receiver or bailiff relinquishes a distress on receiving a bill or note for the rent from the tenant, and pays over the amount of the note to the landlord, and the note is subsequently dishonoured, the landlord may return the money to the bailiff or treat it as an advance or loan from him, and distrain again for the unpaid rent (r).

Distress—Rent payable in advance (s).—Rent may be made payable in advance, either by agreement (t) or by custom (u), so as to entitle the landlord to distrain for it at the commencement instead of at the end of each quarter.

Distress—Rent when payable—Several demises.—When there is a reservation of an annual rent, or a covenant or agreement by a tenant to pay so much a year, a stipulation for the determination of the tenancy at the expiration of any one quarter of a year, by a six or three months' notice, will not raise a presumption that the rent was to be paid quarterly (x). Where a landlord agreed to let a house at a yearly rent of 50*l.*, and likewise the stable and loft at a further rental of 25*l.* per annum, to be paid on the usual quarter-days, it was held that this was a demise of two different sets of premises at separate rents, payable at different periods; that the 50*l.* rent was payable yearly, and the 25*l.* rent payable quarterly (y). Where a contract was entered into for the letting and hiring of a house for a year certain, at a rent payable quarterly, "or half-quarterly if required," and the tenant entered into possession, and paid his rent quarterly for the first year of the tenancy, at the expiration

(o) Davis v. Gyde, 2 Ad. & E. 623; 4 L.J. K.B. 84; see Bramwell v. Eglinton, 33 L.J. Q.B. 130; 5 B. & S. 39.

(p) Harris v. Shipway, Bull. N.P. 182, a.

(q) Palmer v. Bramley, (1895) 2 Q.B. 405; 65 L.J. Q.B. 42. Where there is a covenant to pay rent in advance, evidence of a parol agreement to give bills of exchange is not admissible, Henderson v. Arthur, (1907) 1 K.B. 10; 76 L.J. K.B. 22.

(r) Parrott v. Anderson, 7 Exch. 93; 21 L.J. Ex. 291.

(s) See De Nicholls v. Saunders, L.R. 5 C.P. 589; 39 L.J. C.P. 297; post, p. 780.

(t) Lee v. Smith, 9 Exch. 662; 23 L.J. Ex. 198; London & Westminster Loan Co. v. L. & N. W. Ry., (1893) 2 Q.B. 49; 62 L.J. Q.B. 370.

(u) Buckley v. Taylor, 2 T.R. 600.

(x) Collett v. Curling, 10 Q.B. 785; 16 L.J. Q.B. 390.

(y) Coomber v. Howard, 1 C.B. 440.

of which period the lessor, without any previous demand or notice to the tenant, distrained for half a quarter's rent then alleged to be due, it was held that the lessor had no right so to do without giving a previous intimation and notice to the tenant of his election to take the rent half-quarterly (z). If the lessor distrains before the rent has become due, the tenant may resist the entry and seizure by force, and after a seizure has been made, he may rescue his goods at any time before they have been impounded; but when once the goods have been impounded, they are in the custody of the law, and the tenant cannot then break the pound and retake them (a).

Distress after termination of term.—At common law the landlord could not, it seems, have distrained after the expiration of the term for rent that accrued due before the termination thereof, as his reversion was then gone, the entire estate being revested in him in possession (b); but by 8 Anne, c. 14, ss. 6, 7, it is enacted, that it shall be lawful for any person, having rent in arrear or due upon any lease ended or determined, to distrain for such arrears after the determination of the lease in the same manner as he might have done if such lease had not been ended or determined; provided such distress be made within six calendar months after the determination of the lease, and during the continuance of the landlord's title or interest, and during the possession of the tenant from whom such arrears became due (c). Primâ facie, therefore, the executors or other personal representatives of a tenant could not be distrained upon; but a distress has been held to be good during the possession of the executors, when the tenancy was not determined by the death of the tenant (d). Where, however, there is no possession by any one who can be said to be the representative of the tenant, and the tenancy is determined by the death of the tenant, the statute of Anne does not apply, and there is no power to distrain (e). Where a tenant went away, leaving behind him a cow and a few pigs, without asking permission to leave them, or saying when he was going to take them away, and the succeeding tenant entered and took possession, it was held that the lessor had no right to distrain the things so left, as the tenant was not then in the possession and occupation of the

(z) Mallam v. Arden, 3 M. & S. 795; 3 L.J. C.P. 48.

(a) 1 Inst. 47, b, 161, a; Gilbert on Distress, 61.

(b) Williams v. Stiven, 9 Q.B. 14; 15 L.J. Q.B. 321.

(c) This right of the landlord is not affected by the Bankruptcy Act, 1890 (53 & 54 Vict. c. 71), s. 11; Mackenzie, In re, (1899) 2 Q.B. 566; 68 L.J. Q.B. 1003.

(d) Braithwaite v. Cooksey, 1 H.Bl. 465.

(e) Turner v. Barnes, 2 B. & S. 435; 31 L.J. Q.B. 170; see the Apportionment Act, 1870 (33 & 34 Vict. c. 35).

premises (f). And where a tenant, in order to prevent a distress, fraudulently removed his goods on the day on which his tenancy came to an end, it was held that the landlord could not follow and distrain the goods because the tenant's interest in the premises had come to an end, and he was no longer in possession (g). The customary right of the tenant to an away-going crop always operates as a prolongation of the term as to the land on which the crop grows for the period allowed by the custom for getting in and gathering the crop; all the rights and properties belonging to the original contract are continued during the period in question, and among them the landlord's right to distrain; and, therefore, where a part of the tenant's corn remained in a barn on the demised premises beyond the period of six calendar months, but within the term allowed by custom for the outgoing tenant to get in and dispose of his crop, it was held that the corn might be distrained by the landlord (h). Where a new tenancy has been created as to part of the property comprised in a lease of which notice to quit has been given, a landlord, after the expiration of such notice, is not entitled to distrain on such new tenancy for arrears of rent due in respect of the old tenancy, the distress not being made "during the possession of the tenant" within the meaning of 8 Anne, c. 14, s. 7 (i). If, by the tacit consent of the landlord and tenant, the contract between them continues beyond the time for which they originally contracted, all the rights and properties belonging to the original contract are also continued, and among them the landlord's right to distrain. It has often been determined that if there be a lease, and after the determination of it, the tenant holds over, with the consent of the landlord, he must hold upon the terms, and is liable to all the conditions and covenants, of the lease (k). If, after the determination of a tenancy by the expiration of a notice to quit the tenant holds over, and the landlord distrains for rent, the landlord thereby waives the notice, and affirms and continues the tenancy (l).

Distress by agents—Joint tenants—Tenants in common, &c.—A mere receiver of rents (not being a receiver appointed by the Court of Chancery) has no power to distrain, although he may be authorized to collect and receive the rents for his own

(f) Taylerson v. Peters, 7 Ad. & E. 110; 2 N. & P. 622.

(g) Gray v. Stait, 11 Q.B.D. 668; 52 L.J. Q.B. 412.

(h) Beavan v. Delahay, 1 H.Bl. 5; Lewis v. Harris, ib. 7, n. (a); Nuttall v. Staunton, 4 B. & C. 51; 3 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 135.

(i) Wilkinson v. Peel, (1895) 1 Q.B. 516; 64 L.J. Q.B. 178.

(k) Beavan v. Delahay, supra; ante, p. 773.

(l) Zouch v. Willingale, 1 H.Bl. 311.

benefit (m). And when an agent or bailiff receives a special authority from the lessor to levy a distress upon the demised premises, the authority should be given and acted upon in the name of the lessor or reversioner (n). But if the agent distrains in his own name, and gives a notice in writing, stating the rent to be due to himself, he may, nevertheless, justify in the name and as the bailiff of the lessor (o). A person beneficially interested in the demised premises may use the name of the owner of the legal estate to levy a distress. The cestui que trust, therefore, may distrain in the name of the trustee; and a mortgagor, in certain cases, in the name of the mortgagee (p). Where a receiver is appointed by a mortgagee under s. 24 of the Conveyancing Act, 1881 (q), he only or a person with his authority, and not the mortgagor, is empowered to distrain (r). A receiver appointed by the Court of Chancery has a power of distress, and need not previously apply to the court for a particular order for that purpose (s). One joint-owner or joint-reversioner may distrain alone, but he must, it seems, avow and justify the taking of the distress in his own right, and as bailiff to the other (t). He may also sign a warrant of distress, and appoint a bailiff to distrain for rent due to all, unless the others expressly dissent (u). The same rule prevails in the case of co-parceners and co-heirs in gavelkind, any one of whom may avow and justify the distress in his own right, and make conusance as the bailiff of the others without averring or showing any express authority from them to distrain (x). If one of several joint tenants of the reversion to which the rent is incident conveys away all his estate and interest in the demised premises, the right to distrain for the rent is extinguished, for there can be no apportionment of the rent by the severance of the reversion (y). The payment of rent in advance to a landlord mortgagor, unless by agreement the tenant is bound to do it, is not valid as against mortgagees, who may consequently distrain for it (z).

(m) Ward v. Shew, 9 Bing. 608; 2 L.J. C.P. 58.

(n) Bullen on Distress, 78.

(o) Trent v. Hunt, 9 Exch. 14; 22 L.J. Ex. 320.

(p) Trent v. Hunt, supra; Snell v. Finch, 32 L.J. C.P. 177; 13 C.B. N.S. 651; see, further, 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41, s. 18.

(q) 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41, s. 24.

(r) Woolston v. Ross, (1900) 1 Ch. 788; 69 L.J. Ch. 363.

(s) Brandon v. Brandon, 5 Madd. 473; Bennett v. Robins, 5 C. & P. 379.

(t) Pullen v. Palmer, 5 Mod. 73, 150; 3 Salk. 207.

(u) Robinson v. Hoffman, 4 Bing. 562; 6 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 113.

(x) Leigh v. Shepherd, 5 Moore, 297; 2 B. & B. 465.

(y) Staveley v. Allcock, 16 Q.B. 636; 20 L.J. Q.B. 321.

(z) De Nicholls v. Saunders, L.R. 5 C.P. 589; 39 L.J. C.P. 297; Cook v. Guerra, L.R. 7 C.P. 132; 41 L.J. C.P. 89. By 51 & 52 Vict. c. 21, s. 7, any bailiffs distraining on any holding to which that Act applies must be authorised by a county court judge, who, under s. 1, has power at any time to

Tenants in common who have several estates, and are severally entitled to the rent and the reversion of the demised premises, should make several distresses (a). They may, of course, authorize a bailiff to distrain on behalf of all, or one tenant in common may distrain on his own account, and as the bailiff and agent of others, but they must avow and justify the taking of the distress separately in respect of their several shares (b). And one of two tenants in common may distrain for his own share of the rent, although the rent has been reserved in one sum payable to both generally, and not in several sums payable to each, if the lessee after notice not to do so, has paid the whole of the rent to the other tenant in common (c). Where fifty acres of arable land were demised by four persons (whose original title did not appear) at one entire rent of 94*l.* per annum, to be divided and paid to the four lessors separately in equal portions, it was held that as between themselves and the lessee they must be taken to be tenants in common of the reversion, and that one of the four was entitled to distrain for a fourth part of the rent independently of the rest (d).

Distress by executors and administrators.—By 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, ss. 37, 38, the executors and administrators of any lessor may distrain upon lands demised for any term or at will for arrearages of rent accrued to such lessor during his lifetime. The distress however if made after the determination of the term must be made within six calendar months from such determination and during the continuance of the possession of the tenant from whom the arrears became due (e). A distress may be levied by executors before probate has been obtained (f).

Distress—Tender of rent before distress renders the distress wrongful ab initio. If, therefore, after a broker has received a warrant of distress, but, before it is executed, the rent is tendered, the right to distrain is gone (g).

Distress—Time, mode and place of distraining.—The tenant has the whole day on which the rent becomes due to pay such rent; and a distress therefore cannot be made until the day after the day appointed for the payment of the rent (h); nor cancel their certificates; Hogarth v. Jennings, (1892) 1 Q.B. 907; 61 L.J. Q.B. 601.

(a) As to distress against one of several tenants in common of land held under separate demises: see Parke, Ex parte, L.R. 18 Eq. 381; 43 L.J. Bankr. 139.

(b) Litt. sects. 314—317; Philpott v. Dobbinson, 3 M. & P. 320; 7 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 248.

(c) Harrison v. Barnby, 5 T.R. 246.

(d) Whitley v. Roberts, M'Cl. & Y. 107.

(e) See 8 Anne, c. 14, s. 7.

(f) Whitehead v. Taylor, 10 Ad. & E. 210; 9 L.J. K.B. 65.

(g) Bennett v. Bayes, 5 H. & N. 391; 29 L.J. Ex. 224; Holland v. Bird, 10 Bing. 15; 2 L.J. C.P. 201; see, further, Addison on Torts (ed. 8), pp. 339 et seq.

(h) 21 Hen. 6, 40; Duppa v. Mayo, 1 Saund. 287.

can it be made between sunset and sunrise (i). A landlord or his certified bailiff (k) cannot lawfully break open gates, or break down inclosures, or force open the outer door of any dwelling-house or building (l), or even enter by a window which is shut but not fastened (m), in order to make a distress, but he may enter by a door which is shut but not fastened, for that is the ordinary method of entry, and a person who leaves his door unfastened implies a licence to any one who has business to enter the premises, and so he may draw a staple or undo fastenings which are ordinarily opened from the outside of the house (n), or enter by an open window (o), or by further opening a window which is partly opened (p). At common law (q), and by the Statute of Marlbridge (r), it is unlawful for any person (except the Crown and its officers) to make a distress out of his fee, or in the King's highway, or in the common street. But he may enter upon any part of the land out of which the rent issues (s). A distress, moreover, cannot be made upon land which does not form part or parcel of the demise, and from which the rent reserved does not issue (t), unless the goods of the tenant have been removed thereto from the demised premises within sight of the lord coming to distrain, or unless they have been fraudulently removed thereto by the tenant to avoid the distress (u). If, therefore, a tenant enjoys an easement over, or a right to use, the land of a third person, and has, in the bonâ fide exercise of such right, placed his goods and chattels on the land of such third person, the lessor has no right to distrain them there (x). For the same reason a landlord could not, by the common law, distrain the beasts and cattle of a tenant feeding upon a common, and which had been placed there by the tenant in the bonâ fide exercise of a right of common vested in him in his own right, or as appurtenant to the land demised to him by the lessor; but by 11 Geo. 2, c. 19, s. 8, lessors or landlords are empowered to take and seize, as a distress for arrears of rent, any cattle or stock of their tenants

(i) Co. Litt. 142, a; Gilbert on Distress, 50; Tutton v. Darke, 5 H. & N. 647; 29 L.J. Ex. 271.

(k) See 51 & 52 Vict. c. 21, s. 7, and Addison on Torts, 320 (ed. 8).

(l) Brown v. Glenn, 16 Q.B. 254; 20 L.J. Q.B. 205.

(m) Nash v. Lucas, L.R. 2 Q.B. 590.

(n) Ryan v. Shilcock, 7 Exch. 72; 21 L.J. Ex. 55.

(o) Nixon v. Freeman, 5 H. & N. 647; 29 L.J. Ex. 271.

(p) Crabtree v. Robinson, 15 Q.B.D. 312; 54 L.J. Q.B. 544; see, further, as to mode of entry, Addison on Torts, 321 (ed. 8).

(q) Co. Inst. 131.

(r) 52 Hen. 3, c. 15.

(s) Capel v. Buszard, 6 Bing. 150, at p. 161.

(t) Lewis v. Read, 13 M. & W. 834; 14 L.J. Ex. 235.

(u) See 11 Geo. 2, c. 19, and post, p. 794.

(x) Buszard v. Capel, 8 B. & C. 141; 6 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 267; in error, 6 Bing. 150.

feeding or depasturing upon any common appendant or appurtenant or any ways belonging to all or any part of the demised premises. By the terms of the lease a right to distrain upon other lands may be given (y).

Distress—Things not distrainable.—The property of the Crown, even though the Crown be not the tenant, is not distrainable (z). Tenants' fixtures (a) annexed to the freehold by nails and permanent fastenings, such as furnaces, chimney-pieces, kitchen-ranges, stoves, coppers, grates, &c., are not distrainable, as they cannot be removed and restored without sustaining some injury (b). But if they are attached to the freehold by bolts and screws, so as to be movable, they may be distrained and taken. Therefore cotton-spinning machines fixed by means of screws, some into a wooden floor and others into lead which had been poured in a molten state into holes in stones for the purpose of receiving the screws, but fastened so as to be readily removable, have been held to be by law distrainable (c); but it has been doubted (d) whether the law laid down in this case, which has often been recognized (e) was correctly applied to the facts. It has been recently held (f) that a gas engine laid on a raised bed of concrete and screwed down on to bolts sunk in the concrete and fastened into the ground is a fixture, and is therefore not distrainable. Where, under an agreement by which the landowners let to a company the right to fix advertisement hoardings on their land for a term of seven years at a specified rent, the company erected on the land hoardings supported by vertical posts sunk four feet into the ground and strengthened by cross-pieces attached to them and further secured from behind by a strut and stay let substantially into the ground, the court held that the hoardings, though removable by the company during the term were so affixed to the land that they could not be distrained for rent due under the agreement (g).

(y) Daniel v. Stepney, L.R. 9 Ex. 185; 41 L.J. Ex. 208.

(z) Secretary of State for War v. Wynne, (1905) 2 K.B. 845; 75 L.J. K.B. 25.

(a) As to what are tenant's fixtures, see ante, p. 696, and Addison on Torts, 326 (ed. 8).

(b) Co. Litt. 47, b; Pitt v. Shew, 4 B. & Ald. 207; Darby v. Harris, 1 Q.B. 898; 10 L.J. Q.B. 294; Dalton v. Whittem, 3 Q.B. 961; 12 L.J. Q.B. 55.

(c) Hellawell v. Eastwood, 6 Exch. 295; 20 L.J. Ex. 154.

(d) Holland v. Hodgson, L.R. 7 C.P. 328; 41 L.J. C.P. 146; see also Mather v. Fraser, 2 K. & J. 536; 25 L.J. Ch. 361.

(e) Waterfall v. Penistone, 6 E. & B. 876; 26 L.J. Q.B. 100; Longbottom v. Berry, L.R. 5 Q.B. 123; 39 L.J. Q.B. 37; Holland v. Hodgson, L.R. 7 C.P. 328; 41 L.J. C.P. 146; Sheffield, &c. Building Soc. v. Harrison, 15 Q.B.D. 358; 54 L.J. Q.B. 15 (cases as between mortgagor and mortgagee).

(f) Crossley v. Lee, (1908) 1 K.B. 86; 77 L.J. K.B. 199; following Hobson v. Gorringe, (1897) 1 Ch. 182; 66 L.J. Ch. 114, and Reynolds v. Ashby & Son, (1903) 1 K.B. 87; 72 L.J. K.B. 51.

(g) Provincial Bill-posting Co. v. Low Moor Iron Co., (1909) 2 K.B. 344; 78 L.J. K.B. 702; Darby v. Harris, 1 Q.B. 895; 10 L.J. Q.B. 294.

A millstone in a mill, and an anvil in a smith's shop, however, cannot be distrained for rent, although the anvil be removed out of the stock, or the millstone out of the socket to be picked, for the anvil is accounted part of the forge, and the millstone part of the mill, though when taken it is not actually affixed to the freehold (h). Tram-plates and sleepers of a railway merely laid upon the ground, although they have become indented in the soil by user, are distrainable (i); but if they have been packed in ballast, so that they cannot be removed without making holes in the ballast, they are not (k).

By 51 Hen. 3, stat. 4, no man of religion, nor other person, shall be distrained by his beasts that gain his land, nor by his sheep, by the king's or other bailiffs, so long as they can find other distress, or other chattels sufficient for the levying of the distress. Beasts of the plough are by common law exempt from distress; but to render other animals exempt on the ground that they profit the land, within the above statute, it is not enough to show that they are occasionally used in manuring the soil: it must be proved that they have been broken to harness, and are regularly employed in ploughing, harrowing, or drawing carts or waggons upon the farm, in the ordinary cultivation of the land. Heifers and steers, therefore, and young colts not broken to harness, are not "beasts that gain" the land within the meaning of the statute. Sheep, also, are exempt from distress at common law, independently of the statute, so long as there are other distrainable chattels and animals, not being beasts of the plough, sufficient to satisfy the rent (l).

Implements of husbandry are also exempt from distress (m), and so are the tools and implements of a man's trade (n) or profession, such as the books of the scholar, the axe of the carpenter, the anvil of the smith, the loom (o) or the stocking-frame of the weaver (p), the threshing-machine of the farmer (q), and the spade and axe of the labourer, so long as they are in actual use, or there are other goods on the demised premises sufficient to satisfy the rent without them (r). Wear-

(h) Bro.Abr. Distress, pl. 23.

(i) Beaufort (Duke) v. Bates, 3 De G. F. & J. 381; 31 L.J. Ch. 481.

(k) Turner v. Cameron, L.R. 5 Q.B. 306; 39 L.J. Q.B. 125.

(l) Keen v. Priest, 4 H. & N. 236; 28 L.J. Ex. 157.

(m) Davies v. Aston, 1 C.B. 746; 14 L.J. C.P. 228.

(n) As to statutory exemption in case of tools and implements of trade, see post, p. 786.

(o) Gorton v. Falkner, 4 T.R. 565; Harvey v. Pocock, 11 M. & W. 740; 11 L.J. Ex. 434.

(p) Simpson v. Hartopp, Willes, 512; 1 Smith's L.C. 437 (ed. 11).

(q) Fenton v. Logan, 9 Bing. 676; 21 L.J. C.P. 102.

(r) Simpson v. Hartopp, supra; Wood v. Clarke, 1 Cr. & J. 484; 9 L.J. (O.S.) Ex. 187; Harvey v. Pocock, supra; Co. Litt. 47, a; Nargatt v. Nias, 28 L.J. Q.B. 143; 1 E. & E. 439.

ing apparel, also, in actual use about the person of the wearer, is not distrainable, whether it be the wearing apparel of the tenant himself or of a guest in his house (s). A cab let to the driver for the purposes of his trade has been held to be an implement of trade (t); but a typewriter carried as a sample of his employers' machines by a traveller employed to sell typewriters has been held not to be a tool or implement of trade (u).

Distress—Perishable articles, growing crops, fruit, money, &c., have always been considered to be unfit to be taken and detained as a pledge for rent, inasmuch as they are liable to rapid deterioration, and cannot be restored to the tenant in as good plight as they were in when taken, within the period allowed by law for their redemption. Therefore fruit, milk, the flesh of animals recently slaughtered (x), and other things of a perishable nature, could not be distrained; but as 2 W. & M. c. 5, s. 3, directs the distress to be sold within five days unless replevied, perhaps the ancient rule of the common law with respect to the perishable nature of the distress no longer extends, in the case of a distress for rent, to anything which is not liable to deterioration within the period prescribed by the statute for the sale of it. As the things distrained were regarded at common law in the light of a pledge, to be returned to the tenant when the rent was paid, it was held that money could not be distrained unless in a bag, because the identical pieces could not be known and restored again in the same condition (y); and that grain or flour could not be taken out of a sack, or hay from a barn, because it could not well be ascertained whether the identical quantity taken had been returned. Corn in the sheaf was not distrainable (z), unless found in a cart (a). Growing corn, grass, fruits, hops, roots, and growing produce, also, were not distrainable, as the crop was attached to the freehold, and could not be taken up and returned to the tenant, in case he chose to redeem the pledge, in the same state and condition as it was in when removed (b). But now by 2 W. & M. c. 5, s. 3, the lessor can distrain for rent in arrear any corn in the sheaf, or corn loose or in the straw, or hay lying or being in any barn or granary or otherwise upon any part of the demised land, and

(s) Bac.Abr. Inns, B. As to special statutory exemption of wearing apparel, bedding and tools, see post, p. 786.

(t) Lavell v. Ritchings, (1906) 1 K.B. 480; 75 L.J. K.B. 287; and see post, p. 787.

(u) Addison v. Shepherd, (1908) 2 K.B. 118; 77 L.J. K.B. 534.

(x) Morley v. Pincombe, 2 Exch. 101; 18 L.J. Ex. 272.

(y) Bac.Abr. Distress, B.

(z) Simpson v. Hartopp, Willes, 512; 1 Smith's L.C. (11th ed.) 437; Wilson v. Ducket, 2 Mod. 61.

(a) Co. Litt. 47, a; Johnson v. Faulkner, 2 Q.B. 925; 11 L.J. Q.B. 193.

(b) 1 Roll.Abr. 667; Bradby on Distress, 213; Gilbert on Distress, 32.

by 11 Geo. 2, c. 19, ss. 8 and 9, all sorts of corn and grass, hops, roots, fruits, pulse, or other produce whatsoever growing on any part of the demised land. These Acts, however, do not extend to trees, shrubs, and plants growing in nursery gardens, nor to money (c).

Distress—Property of strangers on demised premises in their own possession.—The landlord has no right to distrain the carriage and horses of a stranger; if, however, they are left upon the premises, in the possession or use, or under the care of the tenant or his servants, then they are distrainable (d). But the goods and chattels and wearing apparel of a guest in the tenant's house, in the actual possession and use of such guest, cannot be distrained for rent, whether the house in which the guest is lodged is a private dwelling-house or a common inn; nor the goods and chattels of third persons placed upon the demised premises, in the possession and under the care of the tenant, in the ordinary course of trade; nor the goods and chattels, horses and carriages of travellers, deposited in hostelries and public stables, or in a market or fair where things are taken to be bought or sold; nor goods delivered to a carrier to be carried for hire. The horse in the smith's shop shall not be distrained for the rent issuing out of the shop, nor the horse, &c., in the hostelry, nor the materials in the weaver's shop for the making of cloth, or cloth or garments at a tailor's, nor sacks of corn nor meal in a mill, nor in a market, for it is in custody (protection) of law (e).

Distress—Property of strangers placed on the demised premises with the leave and licence of the landlord is not distrainable. If, for example, the landlord's permission to place cattle on the demised premises has been sought for and obtained, and the beasts are placed thereon with his authority, he is held impliedly to have undertaken not to exercise his power of distress as against them (f).

Distress—Statutory exemption—Wearing apparel, bedding, tools and implements of trade.—By the combined operation of sect. 4 of the Law of Distress Amendment Act, 1888 (g), and sect. 147 of the County Courts Act, 1888 (h), which is substituted for sect. 96 of the County Courts Act, 1846 (i), the wear-

(c) Clark v. Gaskarth, 2 Moore, 491; 8 Taunt. 431.

(d) Muspratt v. Gregory, 3 M. & W. 677; 7 L.J. Ex. 385; Rede v. Burley, Cro. Eliz. 596.

(e) 7 Hen. 7, 1 b; Bro.Abr. Distress, pl. 57, 71; 1 Roll.Abr. 688, pl. 12; Co. Litt. 47, a; Gisbourn v. Hurst, 1 Salk. 249.

(f) Joyce v. Fowkes, 2 Vern. 129; Horsford v. Webster, 1 Cr. M. & R. 696; 4 L.J. Ex. 100; Giles v. Spencer, 3 C.B. N.S. 244; 26 L.J. C.P. 237.

(g) 51 & 52 Vict. c. 21, s. 4.

(h) 51 & 52 Vict. c. 43, s. 147.

(i) 9 & 10 Vict. c. 95, s. 96.

ing apparel and bedding (k) of a tenant or his family, and the tools and implements of his trade, to the value of 5*l.*, are to that extent exempt from distress for rent. But this enactment does not extend to any case where the lease, term or interest of the tenant has expired, and where possession of the premises in respect of which the rent has been demanded, and where the distress is made not earlier than seven days after such demand. The goods which are exempt from seizure are limited to the above-mentioned goods to the total value of 5*l.*; so that if, for instance, under a distress, wearing apparel and bedding, together of the value of 5*l.*, were left on the demised premises, all implements of trade would be liable to seizure (l); but if the only chattel on the premises is an implement of trade exceeding the value of 5*l.*, it cannot be distrained (m). A typewriter, carried as a sample of his employer's machines by a traveller employed to sell typewriters, is not a tool or implement of trade within sect. 147 of the County Courts Act, 1888 (n). By sect. 4 of the Law of Distress Amendment Act, 1895 (o), a court of summary jurisdiction on complaint that goods or chattels exempt under sect. 4 of the Act of 1888 from distress for rent, have been taken under such distress, may, by summary order, direct that the goods and chattels so taken, if not sold, shall be restored; or if they have been sold, that such sum as the court may determine to be the value thereof shall be paid to the complainant by the person who levied the distress or directed it to be levied.

Distress—Statutory exemption—Goods of undertenant and lodger.—By the Law of Distress Amendment Act, 1908 (p), if the goods of an undertenant (q) or of a lodger (r) or of any other person whatsoever not being a tenant of, and not having any beneficial interest in any tenancy of, the premises or any part thereof (s), are taken as a distress by the superior landlord for arrears of rent due by his immediate tenant, such undertenant, &c., may serve upon the landlord or his bailiff a declaration (ss) in writing that the immediate tenant has no right of property or beneficial interest in the goods and that such goods are the (k) "Bedding" includes a bedstead: Davis v. Harris, (1900) 1 Q.B. 729; 69 L.J. Q.B. 232.

(l) Boyd v. Bilham, (1909) 1 K.B. 14; 78 L.J. K.B. 50.

(m) Lavell v. Ritchings, (1906) 1 K.B. 480; 75 L.J. K.B. 287.

(n) Addison v. Shepherd, (1908) 2 K.B. 118; 77 L.J. K.B. 534.

(o) 58 & 59 Vict. c. 24, s. 4.

(p) 8 Edw. 7, c. 53, s. 1.

(q) See ib., s. 5, as to certain undertenants who are excluded from the Act.

(r) "Lodger," see Heawood v. Bone, 13 Q.B.D. 179; Morton v. Palmer, 51 L.J. Q.B. 7.

(s) These words were introduced to meet the decision in Challoner v. Robinson, (1908) 1 Ch. 49; 77 L.J. Ch. 72.

(ss) As to the form, see Rogers, Eungblut & Co. v. Martin, (1911) 1 K.B. 19; 80 L.J. K.B. 208.

property or in the lawful possession of such undertenant, &c., and are not goods or live stock to which the Act is expressed not to apply (t); and also, in the case of an undertenant or lodger, setting forth the amount of rent (if any) then due to his immediate landlord, and the times at which future instalments of rent will become due and the amount thereof and containing an undertaking to pay to the superior landlord any rent so due or to become due to his immediate landlord, until the arrears of rent in respect of the distress have been paid off, and to such declaration shall be annexed a correct inventory, subscribed by the undertenant, &c., of the goods referred to in the declaration. An inventory is sufficiently subscribed by the undertenant, &c., if it is referred to in the declaration to which it is annexed and the declaration is signed by the undertenant, &c. (u). By sect. 2, if after service of such declaration and inventory or after the undertaking has been given and the amount of rent (if any) then due has been paid or duly tendered, the superior landlord proceeds with the distress, he will be deemed to be guilty of an illegal distress (x), and application may be made to a stipendiary magistrate or to two justices where there is no stipendiary magistrate for an order for the restoration of the goods, and the superior landlord will be liable to an action at law at the suit of the undertenant, &c., in which action the truth of the declaration and inventory may likewise be inquired into. The declaration it would seem must be made afresh each time that a distress is levied on the goods (y), but it need not state that the declarant is an undertenant or lodger, or that no rent is due, if such is in fact the case (z). Where the rent of the immediate tenant is in arrear, the superior landlord, in order to avoid a distress, may serve by registered post upon any undertenant or lodger a notice stating the amount of arrears of rent and requiring all future payments of rent, whether already accrued due or not, to be made by the undertenant or lodger direct to the superior landlord giving the notice until the arrears have been duly paid, and the notice so given entitles the landlord to give a discharge for such rent (a).

Distress—Statutory exemption—Live stock and machinery.—By the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1908 (b), where live stock (t) See 8 Edw. 7, c. 53, s. 4. Shenstone v. Freeman, (1910) 2 K.B. 84; 79 L.J. K.B. 982.

(u) See Godlonton v. Fulham Property Co., (1905) 1 K.B. 431; 74 L.J. K.B. 242.

(x) See Lowe v. Dorling, (1906) 2 K.B. 772; 75 L.J. K.B. 1019.

(y) Thwaites v. Wilding, 12 Q.B.D. 4; 53 L.J. Q.B. 1.

(z) Harris, Ex parte, 16 Q.B.D. 130; 55 L.J. M.C. 24.

(a) 8 Edw. 7, c. 53, s. 6.

(b) 8 Edw. 7, c. 28, s. 29. The Law of Distress Amendment Act, 1908, does not apply to any live stock to which s. 29 applies. See 8 Edw. 7, c. 53, s. 4 (1).

belonging to another person has been taken in by the tenant of a holding to be fed at a fair price (c), the stock shall not be distrained by the landlord for rent where there is other sufficient distress to be found, and, if so distrained by reason of other sufficient distress not being found, there shall not be recovered by that distress a sum exceeding the amount of the price agreed to be paid for the feeding, or any part thereof which remains unpaid (d). The owner of the stock may, at any time before it is sold, redeem the stock by paying to the distrainor a sum equal to such amount as aforesaid, and any payment so made to the distrainor will be in full discharge as against the tenant for the amount due to him in respect of the price of feeding (e); but any portion of the stock so long as it remains on the holding continues liable to be distrained for the amount for which the whole of the stock is distrainable (f).

Agricultural or other machinery which is the property of a person other than the tenant, and is on the holding under an agreement with the tenant for the hire or use thereof in the conduct of his business, and also live stock belonging to a stranger but on the holding of the tenant solely for breeding purposes, cannot be distrained for rent (g).

Distress—Statutory exemption—Railway rolling stock.—By 35 & 36 Vict. c. 50, the rolling stock (h) of a railway company at any works to which there is a siding, which rolling stock is not the property of the tenant of such works, is exempt from distress if it has a distinguishing brand or other conspicuous mark sufficiently indicating the actual owner (i); but the landlord may distrain upon the rolling stock, where it is partly the property of the tenant, to the extent of the tenant's interest in it (k). A summary order for restoration may be made if rolling stock is distrained contrary to the above provisions.

Distress—Other statutory exemptions.—By various statutes, frames, looms, and apparatus entrusted or hired for use in textile manufactories (l), gas meters and fittings (m), water meters (n), and communication pipes (o), electric meters, accu-

(c) See London and Yorkshire Bank v. Belton, 15 Q.B.D. 457; 54 L.J. Q.B. 468; Masters v. Green, 20 Q.B.D. 807.

(d) 8 Edw. 7, c. 28, s. 29 (1).

(e) Ib., s. 29 (2).

(f) Ib., s. 29 (3).

(g) Ib., s. 29 (4). The county court or a court of summary jurisdiction has cognizance of any dispute relating to a distress under the Act of 1908: see ss. 30, 43, 44, and 51 & 52 Vict. c. 21.

(h) 35 & 36 Vict. c. 50, s. 3.

(i) As to the meaning of "rolling stock," "rent," and "tenant," see 35 & 36 Vict. c. 50, s. 2.

(k) 35 & 36 Vict. c. 50, s. 5.

(l) 6 & 7 Vict. c. 40, s. 18.

(m) 10 & 11 Vict. c. 15, s. 14; 34 & 35 Vict. c. 41, s. 18. A gas stove let for hire by a gas company is exempt: Gas Light Co. v. Hardy, 17 Q.B.D. 619; 56 L.J. Q.B. 168.

(n) 26 & 27 Vict. c. 93, s. 14.

(o) 10 & 11 Vict. c. 17, s. 44.

mulators, lines, fittings and apparatus (p) belonging to public companies, are exempt from distress.

Distress—Materials placed on demised premises to be manufactured or worked upon.—The goods and chattels of third persons placed on the demised premises for trading or manufacturing purposes are, by the policy of the law, exempt from distress; such as goods sent to a market to be sold, or being in a common inn (q), or delivered to a carrier to be carried, or a horse sent to a smith to be shod (r); yarn sent to a stocking weaver, to be woven into stockings, but not the frame delivered to the weaver to enable him to weave the yarn (s); also silk delivered to a silk weaver to be made into velvet at his own house (t); beasts sent to a slaughterer (u); corn sent to a miller to be ground; or clothes to a tailor, casks to a cooper, or boats to a boat builder, to be repaired (x); goods sent to a weigher to be weighed (y), or to an auctioneer to be sold (z), or to commission agent (a), factor (b), warehouseman (c), granary keeper (d), wharfinger (e), pawnbroker (f), to be dealt with in the course of trade. But in order that they may be exempt from distress, the goods must have been delivered by the owner to the tenant of the premises to be worked upon in the way of his trade; and therefore, where a ship was being built upon premises of which a shipbuilder was tenant, it was held not to be exempt from distress for rent of the premises (g). If the trade can be carried on with profit and advantage without the particular goods being left upon the demised premises, the goods are not exempt. Therefore, barges sent to salt works, and awaiting their turn to be loaded, have been held distrainable (h). Casks sent by a brewer to the keeper of a public-house to be returned when empty are not exempt from distress (i); nor are horses and carriages standing at livery (k),

(p) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 56, s. 25.

(q) Simpson v. Hartopp, Willes, 512; 1 Smith's L.C. 437 (ed. 11).

(r) Y.B. Mich. 7 Hen. 7, f. 2, pl. 1; Co.Litt. 47, a.

(s) Wood v. Clarke, 1 Cr. & J. 484; 9 L.J. (O.S.) Ex. 187.

(t) Gibson v. Ireson, 3 Q.B. 39.

(u) Brown v. Shevill, 2 Ad. & E. 138; 4 L.J. K.B. 50.

(x) Bac.Abr. Distress B.; Co.Litt. 47, a; 3 Bl.Com. 8. See also Wood v. Clarke, 1 Cr. & J. 484; 9 L.J. (O.S.) Ex. 187; and per Parke, B., Muspratt v. Gregory, 7 M. & W. 633; 7 L.J. Ex. 385.

(y) Read v. Burley, Cro. Eliz. 596.

(z) Adams v. Grane, 1 Cr. & M. 380; 2 L.J. Ex. 105; Brown v. Arundell, 10 C.B. 54; 20 L.J. C.P. 30; Williams v. Holmes, 8 Exch. 861; 22 L.J. Ex. 283.

(a) Findon v. M'Laren, 6 Q.B. 891; 18 L.J. Q.B. 183.

(b) Gilman v. Elton, 6 Moore, 243.

(c) Miles v. Furber, L.R. 8 Q.B. 77; 42 L.J. Q.B. 41.

(d) Matthias v. Mesnard, 2 C. & P. 353.

(e) Thompson v. Mashiter, 8 Moore, 254; 1 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 104.

(f) Swire v. Leach, 18 C.B.N.S. 479; 34 L.J. C.P. 150.

(g) Clarke v. Millwall Dock Co., 17 Q.B.D. 494; 55 L.J. Q.B. 378.

(h) Muspratt v. Gregory, 1 M. & W. 633; 7 L.J. Ex. 385.

(i) Joule v. Jackson, 7 M. & W. 450; 10 L.J. Ex. 142.

(k) Parsons v. Gingell, 4 C.B. 545; 16 L.J. C.P. 227; following Francis v. Wyatt, 3 Burr. 1498; 1 W.Bl. 483.

nor are goods to be sold not upon the premises of the auctioneer but upon those of the owner (k).

Distress—Property of guests at a common inn cannot be distrained for the rent of the inn, for it would be a sore detriment to travellers and wayfarers who are obliged by necessity to resort to common inns, if their goods and effects were liable to be seized and sold in case of non-payment of the rent of the inn (m).

Distress—Chattels in custody of law not distrainable.—Goods and chattels which have been actually seized under a fi. fa. or taken under an attachment, and are in the possession of a sheriff's officer or bailiff, cannot be distrained for rent, as they are in the custody of the law (n); but if the landlord is beforehand with the sheriff, and puts in a distress before the sheriff's officer has got possession, the sheriff cannot then seize them. The landlord is entitled to distrain for six years' arrears of rent (o), and if he gets possession before the sheriff he is entitled to retain and sell, and satisfy the whole six years' arrears if they be due. If growing crops have been taken in execution and sold by the sheriff, such crops, as long as they remain on the demised premises, are liable to be distrained for rent accruing due subsequently to the execution and sale (14 & 15 Vict. c. 25, s. 2), in default of sufficient distress of the goods and chattels of the tenant; and if the execution is fraudulent (p), or the sheriff's officer, after the seizure of the goods, relinquishes the possession, and leaves no one in possession of them, then they may be distrained and taken (q).

The landlord is entitled, in some cases, to a year's rent (r) and in other cases to four weeks' arrears of rent (s), before goods taken in execution can be removed from the premises either by the sheriff in the former case or by the bailiff of a county court in the latter case.

Distress—Statutory exemption—Foreign ambassadors.—By 7 Anne, c. 12, s. 3, on grounds of public policy, process of distress against the goods of any ambassador, or other public minister of any foreign prince or state authorised and received as such by the crown, or of his domestic servants, shall be void.

Sed quære, see Miles v. Furber, L.R. 8 Q.B. 77; 42 L.J. Q.B. 41.

(l) Lyons v. Elliott, 1 Q.B.D. 210; 45 L.J. Q.B. 159.

(m) Bro.Abr. Distress, pl. 57, 71; 1 Roll.Abr. 68, pl. 12; Y.B. Mich. 7 Hen. 7, f. 2, pl. 1; Co. Litt. 47, a.

(n) Wharton v. Naylor, 12 Q.B. 673; 17 L.J. Q.B. 278.

(o) 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 27, s. 42; Humfrey v. Gery, 7 C.B. 567.

(p) Smith v. Russell, 3 Taunt. 400; St John's College v. Murcott, 7 T.R. 263.

(q) Blades v. Arundale, 1 M. & S. 713.

(r) 8 Anne, c. 14, s. 1. See Addison on Torts, 970 (ed. 8).

(s) 51 & 52 Vict. c. 43, s. 160. See Addison on Torts, 990 (ed. 8).

Distress—Statutory exemption—Companies in liquidation.—Sect. 211 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908 (t), provides that where any company (being a company registered in England or Ireland) is being wound up by, or subject to the supervision of the court (u), any attachment, sequestration, distress or execution, put in force against the estate or effects of the company after the commencement of the winding up, shall be void to all intents (x). And sect. 142 provides that when a winding-up order has been made, no action, or proceeding shall be proceeded with or commenced against the company except by leave of the court and subject to such terms as the court may impose (y). However, if a company, being equitable owner of a lease, continues in occupation after a winding-up order, the landlord would not be prevented by either of the above sections from distraining upon the goods of the company for rent accrued since the winding up (z); and if he has no right of proof for the rent he may distrain where the company is undertenant to a lessee (a); but he cannot distrain where he has a right to prove in the bankruptcy in respect of a collateral security for the rent (b).

Distress—Things distrainable—Chattels of traders left on demised premises in possession of tenant.—With the exception of fixtures, perishable articles, and things used in trade or placed on the demised premises for trading or manufacturing purposes, or standing there in the custody or possession of the owner, as previously mentioned (ante, pp. 785, 786), all the goods and chattels on the demised premises, whether they belong to the tenant himself or to strangers who have placed them in the custody or possession of the tenant, are distrainable for the rent due from such premises. If a trade can be carried on with profit and advantage, without the things used in the trade being left on the demised premises in the custody

(t) 8 Edw. 7, c. 69, s. 211, re-enacting 25 & 26 Vict. c. 89, s. 163.

(u) I.e., in the case of companies registered in England, the High Court, the Chancery Courts of the Counties Palatine of Lancaster and Durham, and the County Courts, see 8 Edw. 7, c. 69, ss. 131, 285.

(x) See Progress Assurance Co., In re, L.R. 9 Eq. 370; 39 L.J. Ch. 504.

(y) 8 Edw. 7, c. 69, s. 142, re-enacting 25 & 26 Vict. c. 89, s. 87. A similar provision is made in respect to companies authorized to be registered under Part VII. of the Act by s. 266, and in respect of unregistered companies by s. 271.

(z) See Lundy Granite Co., In re, L.R. 6 Ch. 462; 40 L.J. Ch. 588; whether the leave of the court is necessary, quære; S. C. See Oak Pits Co., In re, 21 Ch. D. 322; 51 L.J. Ch. 768; Lancashire Cotton Co., In re, 35 Ch.D. 656; 56 L.J. Ch. 761. As to rent payable in advance, see Shackell v. Churlton, (1895) 1 Ch. 378; 64 L.J. Ch. 353.

(a) Clemence, Ex parte, 23 Ch.D. 154; 52 L.J. Ch. 472.

(b) See on this point, New City Constitutional Club, In re, 34 Ch.D. 646; 56 L.J. Ch. 332; and Harpur Cycle Fittings Co., In re, (1900) 2 Ch. 731; 69 L.J. Ch. 841, in which case Clemence, Ex parte, supra, was not followed.

and possession of the tenant, they are not there ex necessitate, and are consequently distrainable (c). A carriage sent to a coach-maker to be repaired if left on the premises, after the repairs have been completed, for purposes foreign to the trade of a coach-maker, is distrainable, unless the coach-maker exercise some other trade thereon, and the carriage is left with him to be dealt with by him in the exercise of such trade; but if the trade of a commission agent for the sale of coaches and carriages is exercised as well as that of a coach-maker, and the carriage is left with him to be sold, it would then come within the principle of the exemption (d). It has been held that a carriage standing at livery is distrainable (e). Whenever a chattel, such as a threshing-machine, or a loom, found upon the demised premises, has been lent or let by the owner to the tenant, it is distrainable, if not in actual use at the time of the levying the distress (f). Goods warehoused in the ordinary course of business at a furniture depository are privileged from distress (g).

Distress—Chattels mortgaged by tenant.—Where a tenant from whom rent was due assigned all his goods and chattels by a registered bill of sale by way of mortgage, and was left in possession of the mortgaged chattels, and the landlord distrained them for rent, and caused them to be appraised, and removed to an auction-room to be sold, and the mortgagee, before the sale, and whilst the goods were in the custody of the law, gave notice to the landlord of the mortgage, and required the landlord to deliver to him, the mortgagee, any goods that might remain after the landlord had sold enough to satisfy the distress and costs, and the landlord promised so to do, and the landlord carried back to the demised premises part of the goods remaining unsold, and returned them to the mortgagor, it was held that the landlord was not liable to an action at the suit of the mortgagee, as it did not appear that he had been guilty of any tortious act, or that the mortgagee had sustained any damage in respect of the removal of those goods which had been returned to the mortgagor, in whose possession the mortgagee had left them, and which were as much subject to the provisions of the bill of sale after their return as they had been

(c) Muspratt v. Gregory, 3 M. & W. 677; 7 L.J. Ex. 385; Joule v. Jackson, 7 M. & W. 450; 10 L.J. Ex. 142.

(d) Findon v. M'Laren, 6 Q.B. 891; 14 L.J. Q.B. 183.

(e) Francis v. Wyatt, 3 Burr. 1498; 1 W.Bl. 483; Parsons v. Gingell, 4 C.B. 545.

(f) Fenton v. Logan, 3 M. & Sc. 82; 2 L.J. C.P. 102; Gorton v. Falkner, 4 T.R. 565.

(g) Miles v. Furber, L.R. 8 Q.B. 77; 42 L.J. Q.B. 41.

before they were taken away (h). If, after the tenant has mortgaged the goods and chattels on the demised premises, the mortgagee enters and takes possession, and the tenant becomes bankrupt, owing more than six months' rent (i), and the landlord distrains, he is entitled to make the distress available for the whole rent due to him, as the Bankruptcy Act was never intended to favour the mortgagee at the expense of the landlord, and applies only to the goods or effects of the bankrupt (k).

Distress—Things distrainable under licence to distrain.—If a debtor gives his creditor a licence to enter upon the debtor's land and distrain all the goods and chattels upon the debtor's premises (l), and sell them in satisfaction and discharge of the debt, this will not enable the creditor to seize and sell the property of a stranger, for a licence of this sort cannot be made to extend to and to bind those who are not parties to it (m). A licence to seize chattels is a mere personal authority, to be exercised by the licensee, and cannot be granted over or assigned to another (n). The grantee of a rent-charge, with power of distress, may justify the taking corn, &c., in a stack or in trusses, under 2 Will. & M. sess. 1, c. 5 (ante, p. 785), in the same way as a landlord under a distress for rent; also the taking of the goods of a stranger on the premises charged with the rent. If the plaintiff, whose goods have been taken, held under a demise prior to the rent-charge, he ought to reply that fact (o).

Distress—Seizure of goods fraudulently removed.—By 11 Geo. 2, c. 19, s. 1, it is enacted (p), that if any tenant of any lands or tenements, upon the demise or holding whereof any rent is reserved, fraudulently or clandestinely conveys away from the demised premises his goods or chattels, to prevent the landlord from distraining for arrears of rent, the landlord, or any person by him for that purpose lawfully empowered, may, within thirty days next ensuing the carrying away of the goods, seize the same wherever they may be found, as a

(h) Evans v. Wright, 2 H. & N. 527; 27 L.J. Ex. 50.

(i) See 53 & 54 Vict. c. 71, s. 28.

(k) Brocklehurst v. Lawe, 7 E. & B. 185; 26 L.J. Q.B. 107; s. 129 of the old Act (12 & 13 Vict. c. 106), under which this case was decided, and s. 42 of the present Act (46 & 47 Vict. c. 52) are substantially the same. See also Railton v. Wood, 15 App.Cas. 363; 59 L.J. P.C. 84.

(l) As to after-acquired property, see Reeve v. Whitmore, 32 L.J. Ch. 497; 33 ib. 63.

(m) Howes v. Ball, 7 B. & C. 481; 6 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 106; Freeman v. Edwards, 2 Exch. 739; 17 L.J. Ex. 258.

(n) Brown v. Metrop. Counties Assur. Soc., 28 L.J. Q.B. 236; 1 E. & E. 838; Davis & Co., In re, 22 Q.B.D. 193.

(o) Johnson v. Faulkner, 2 Q.B. 936; 11 L.J. Q.B. 193; as to a distress for tithe rent-charge, see Arnison, Ex parte, L.R. 3 Ex. 57; 37 L.J. Ex. 57.

(p) See also Addison on Torts, 322 (ed. 8).

distress for such arrears of rent, and sell and dispose of them as if they had been actually distrained upon the demised premises (q); but sect. 2 provides that no landlord or lessor, or other person entitled to such arrears shall take or seize any such goods or chattels as a distress for the same which have been sold bonâ fide and for a valuable consideration, before such seizure made, to any person not privy to such fraud. Where the goods have been placed in any building or inclosure locked or fastened, the landlord, his bailiff or agent, first calling to his assistance a constable or peace-officer, &c., may in the daytime break open the building and seize the goods; but, before breaking open a dwelling house, oath must be made (s. 7), before a justice of the peace, that there is reasonable ground to suspect that such goods and chattels are in the dwelling house (r). The statute only applies where the goods, had they remained on the premises, could have been distrained (s).

If it appears that rent was due at the time of the removal of the goods, and that the goods were taken away on or after the day the rent became due, for the purpose of putting them out of reach of a distress, the removal is a fraudulent removal within the meaning of the statute (t). If, therefore, goods are removed on quarter-day, they may be followed, though the rent is not in arrear, and there is no right to distrain until the day after (u). But if the rent is not due, or there is sufficient distress on the demised premises, independently of the goods removed, to satisfy the rent, the removal is not fraudulent, and the lessor cannot consequently follow and distrain the goods (x). The statute applies solely to the goods of a tenant, and not to those of a stranger (y); if, therefore, a lodger removes his goods to prevent them from being distrained for rent due from the tenant whose lodger he is, the landlord cannot follow them and distrain them (z). To deter tenants from fraudulently removing their goods to avoid a distress, a penalty to the amount of double the value of the things distrained is imposed upon the offender, which may be recovered by an action of debt (a),

(q) The goods must have been fraudulently removed before the termination of the tenancy: Gray v. Stait, 11 Q.B.D. 668; 52 L.J. Q.B. 412.

(r) As to the mode of preventing the fraudulent removal of goods within the Metropolitan Police district, see 10 Geo. 4, c. 44, s. 4; 2 & 3 Vict. c. 47, ss. 2, 67. As to pleas of justification of the seizure of goods under this statute, see Williams v. Roberts, 7 Exch. 629; 22 L.J. Ex. 61.

(s) See Gray v. Stait, supra.

(t) Opperman v. Smith, 4 D. & R. 33, 2 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 108; John v. Jenkins, 1 Cr. & M. 227; 2 L.J. Ex. 83.

(u) Dibble v. Bowater, 2 E. & B. 564; 22 L.J. Q.B. 396.

(x) Rand v. Vaughan, 1 Sc. 670; 4 L.J. C.P. 239.

(y) Tomlinson v. Consolidated Credit Corporation, 24 Q.B.D. 135.

(z) Thornton v. Adams, 5 M. & S. 38.

(a) 11 Geo. 2, c. 19, s. 3.

or (if the goods do not exceed 50*l.* in value) by a summary proceeding before two justices (b), or a magistrate (c).

Distress—What amounts to distress for rent.—It is sufficient to constitute a distress if the lessor, in person or by deputy, enters upon the demised premises and announces to the tenant, or his servants, or the persons in actual occupation of the property, that he detains the things intended to be distrained for his rent (d). But a mere intention to distrain will not be sufficient if it is not carried into effect (e); nor will a mere notice by a landlord that he has distrained things which are not distrainable, unaccompanied by any seizure or removal of the goods, constitute any cause of action (f). If a warehouse-keeper, who lets out warehouse-room and places of deposit for goods, or receives goods to be warehoused and kept at a certain rent, and has power to distrain the goods in his hands for the warehouse-rent, gives notice to the owner of the goods that he will not deliver certain goods in his warehouse to the order of the latter until the rent due for warehouse-room is paid, and then detains the goods, the detainer and notice amount to a distress for the rent (g). Where a lodging-house keeper, claiming rent to be due to him from his lodger, locked up the goods of the latter in the room which the lodger held, and in which they had been placed by him, and kept the key in his pocket, refusing the lodger access to them, saying that nothing should be removed until his bill was paid, and the lodger brought an action of trespass for a seizure of the goods, it was held that the action was not maintainable (h).

Distress for more rent than due.—If a landlord who has distrained, not excessively, for rent in arrear demands a larger sum for arrears than the tenant admits to be due, that alone does not make the detention of the goods by the landlord or his bailiff unlawful. The tenant must be taken to know, that neither the validity of the distress nor of the detainer depends on that demand but upon the amount due in fact, and that if he wishes to make the detainer unlawful he should tender the sum which is due, together with the costs of the distress (i).

(b) 11 Geo. 2, c. 19, s. 4; Horsefall v. Davy, 1 Stark. 169; Bromley v. Holden, M. & M. 175; Bach v. Meats, 5 M. & S. 200.

(c) 21 & 22 Vict. c. 73, s. 1.

(d) Wood v. Nunn, 2 Moo. & P. 30; 6 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 198; Cramer v. Mott, L.R. 5 Q.B. 357; 32 L.J. Q.B. 172; Swann v. Falmouth (Earl), 8 B. & C. 456; 6 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 374; Thomas v. Harries, 1 Sc. N.R. 524; 9 L.J. C.P. 308.

(e) Spice v. Webb, 2 Jur. 943.

(f) Beck v. Denbigh, 29 L.J. C.P. 273.

(g) Green v. St. Kath. Dock Co., 19 L.J. Q.B. 53.

(h) Hartley v. Moxham, 3 Q.B. 701; 12 L.J. Q.B. 41; Cotton v. Bull, Easter Term, 1857, C.P.; Cramer v. Mott, supra.

(i) Tancred v. Leyland, 16 Q.B. 669; 20 L.J. Q.B. 316; Glynn v. Thomas, 11 Exch. 870; 25 L.J. Ex. 125; Stevenson v

Distress—Repeated distresses for same rent.—A landlord cannot lawfully distrain twice for the same rent (k), unless the distress has been withdrawn at the instance of the tenant (l), or unless there has been some mistake as to the value of the things seized (m), or there was not sufficient distress on the premises, and the claim for rent is still unsatisfied (n); or unless the distress has been rendered abortive by the threats or misconduct of the tenant. But if there is a fair opportunity, and there is no lawful or legal cause why the landlord should not work out the payment of rent by reason of his first distress, his duty is to work it out, and he cannot distrain again (o). Where the former proceeding was a trespass by reason of the bailiff having broken open the front door, and the rent remained unsatisfied owing to the bailiff having left the premises and having been refused re-admittance, it was held that the former proceeding was void as a distress (p), and that the landlord might distrain again (q). If, after a sale of chattels that have been distrained and sold in due course of law, the tenant by force or threats prevents the purchaser from taking the chattels off the land, the landlord may re-enter and distrain again (r). And if the landlord's receiver or bailiff relinquishes a distress on receiving a bill or note for the rent from the tenant, and the note is dishonoured when it arrives at maturity, the landlord may distrain again (s).

Distress—Impounding goods (t).—At common law the distrainor could not impound the distress upon the demised premises (u); but now by statute (x) the distrainor may impound or otherwise secure the distress in such place or on such part of the premises chargeable with the rent as shall be most fit and convenient for the impounding and securing the distress. As soon as the distrainor has made out and delivered to the tenant, or has left upon the premises, an inventory of the goods he has taken, they are impounded within the meaning of the statute. Cattle are sufficiently impounded if they are Newnham, 13 C.B. N.S. 285]; 22 L.J. C.P. 110; French v. Phillips, 1 H. & N. 564; 26 L.J. Ex. 82.

(k) See Hutchins v. Chambers, 1 Burr. 579.

(l) Hutchins v. Chambers, supra; Bagge v. Mawby, 8 Exch. 641; 22 L.J. Ex. 236; Wollaston v. Stafford, 15 C.B. 278.

(m) Bagge v. Mawby, supra.

(n) Smith v. Goodwin, 4 B. & Ad. 413; 2 L.J. K.B. 192; Dawson v. Cropp, 1 C.B. 961; 14 L.J. C.P. 281.

(o) Per Parke, B., Bagge v. Mawby, supra.

(p) On the authority of Attack v. Bramwell, 3 B. & S. 520; 32 L.J. Q.B. 146.

(q) Grunnell v. Welch, (1905) 2 K.B. 650; aff., (1906) 2 K.B. 555; 74 L.J. K.B. 925.

(r) Lee v. Cooke, 3 H. & N. 203; 27 L.J. Exch. 337.

(s) Parrott v. Anderson, 7 Exch. 93; 21 L.J. Ex. 291.

(t) As to pound-breach and rescue, see Addison on Torts, 336, 337 (ed. 8).

(u) Bro.Abr. Distress, 30; Vin.Abr. Distress, E. 4.

(x) 11 Geo. 2, c. 19, s. 10.

allowed to remain in the field where they are distrained, and the gates of the field are properly secured (y). It is not necessary that the goods should be locked up, or even placed together in order to constitute an impounding under 11 Geo. 2, c. 19; it seems to be sufficient if the landlord seizes and gives notice to the tenant of his intention to impound the goods (z). Where the landlord's bailiff walked round the demised premises (a wharf) and left a written notice that the goods thereon were distrained for rent and would be appraised and sold if not replevied within five days, this was treated by the court as a sufficient impounding (a). The person distraining must not remain longer on (b), nor exclude the tenant from the demised premises more than is reasonably necessary for effectually impounding the distress (c). If goods are all put into one room, and notice is given to the tenant that they are distrained and impounded, that is a good impounding; and so also if, instead of being placed in one room, they are, with the assent of the tenant, left unmoved in the house, and a man is put in possession (d). It is not necessary, when once the distress is impounded, for the distrainor, or anyone on his behalf, to remain in possession of them, because they are then in the custody of the law (e). It is the duty of the distrainor to find a fit and proper pound (f).

Formerly the distrainor, in removing the goods distrained, might have removed them to any place he thought fit for the purpose of impounding them; but it was enacted by the statute of Marlbridge (52 Hen. 3, c. 4), and re-enacted by 3 Edw. 1, c. 16, that persons should not chase beasts distrained out of the shire where they were taken; and by 1 & 2 Ph. & M. c. 12, s. 1, no distress of cattle shall be driven out of the hundred, rape, wapentake, or lathe where it is or shall be taken, except it be to a pound overt within the same shire, not above three miles distant from the place where such distress was taken; and further that no cattle or other goods distrained or taken by way of distress for any manner of cause at one time, shall be impounded in several places, whereby the owner or owners shall be constrained to sue several replevies for the (y) Castleman v. Hicks, Car. & M. 266.

(z) Firth v. Purvis, 5 T.R. 432; Thomas v. Harries, 1 M. & G. 695; 9 L.J. C.P. 308.

(a) Swann v. Falmouth (Earl), 8 B. & C. 456; 6 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 374.

(b) See Winterbourne v. Morgan, 11 East, 395; Ladd v. Thomas, 12 Ad. & E. 117; 9 L.J. Q.B. 345, per Ld. Denman, C.J.

(c) Woods v. Durrant, 16 M. & W. 149; 16 L.J. Ex. 313.

(d) Tennant v. Field, 8 E. & B. 336; 27 L.J. Q.B. 33.

(e) Jones v. Beirnstein, (1900) 1 Q.B. 100; 69 L.J. Q.B. 1.

(f) Wilder v. Speer, 8 Ad. & E. 547; 7 L.J. Q.B. 249; Bignell v. Clarke, 5 H. & N. 485; 29 L.J. Ex. 257.

delivery of the distress so taken at one time; upon pain every person offending contrary to this Act shall forfeit to the party grieved for every such offence 100*s*. and treble damages. In the case of live-stock being impounded, the distrainor is bound, by statute (g) to provide the stock or cattle with food and water, and he is empowered to sell them in order to reimburse himself (h). If the distrainor uses or consumes for his own private use things distrained and impounded; if he draws beer out of a barrel (i), tans hides, or uses or works beasts or cattle (k), he subjects himself to an action for damages at the suit of the owner thereof (l). Where the distress is being used in a manner which the law will not justify, the owner may interfere to prevent the abuse (m). If the pound is broken, and the goods are unlawfully taken away, the landlord may follow them and recapture them, but he must not break open the doors of a private house, or stable, or inclosure, nor enter the grounds of a third person for the purpose of retaking the goods, except it be on fresh pursuit (n).

Although a landlord can impound either upon or off the premises provided that in the latter case the distress is removed to a proper pound (o), yet there are two cases in which he has no choice, but must impound upon the premises. Those cases are (1) sheaves and cocks of corn, or corn loose or in the straw, or hay lying or being in any barn or granary, or upon any hovel, stack or rick, or otherwise upon any part of the land or ground charged with the rent (p); and (2) corn, grass, hops, roots, fruits, pulse or other product growing on the demised premises, which by statute are to be cut, gathered, made, cured, carried, and laid up, when ripe, in the barns or other proper place on the demised premises, if there be such a place; if not, the landlord or lessor may place them in any other barn or proper place hired or procured by him for the purpose, and as near as may be to the premises; after which they are, in a convenient time, to be appraised, sold, or otherwise disposed of towards satisfaction of the rent and charges, &c., the appraisement to be taken after the crops have been cut, gathered, cured and made, and not before; but in the event of payment of (g) 12 & 13 Vict. c. 92, s. 15, and 17 & 18 Vict. c. 60, s. 1.

(h) Layton v. Hurry, 8 Q.B. 811; 15 L.J. Q.B. 244.

(i) Dod v. Monger. 6 Mod. 216.

(k) Oxley v. Watts, 1 T.R. 12; Six Carpenters' Case, 8 Co. 146, a.

(l) Duncomb v. Reeve, Cro.Eliz. 783; see also 11 Geo. 2, c. 19, s. 19.

(m) Smith v. Wright, 6 H. & N. 821; 30 L.J. Ex. 313.

(n) Rich v. Woolley, 5 M. & P. 675; 7 Bing. 651.

(o) As to where premises are not suitable for impounding, see Smith v. Ashforth, 29 L.J. Q.B. 259.

(p) 2 Will. & M. sess. 1, c. 5, s. 3.

the whole rent then in arrear, with the costs and charges of the distress, or upon lawful tender thereof actually made, whereby the end of such distress will be fully answered, the same is to cease, and the crops and produce distrained are to be delivered up to the tenant (q).

Distress—Abandonment of distress.—Leaving possession of goods distrained does not necessarily amount to an abandonment of the distress (r). If, therefore, a bailiff or party in possession leaves the premises temporarily and with no intention of abandoning the distress, and on his return is refused readmission, he may break open the outer door of the house to recover possession of the distress (s).

Distress—Statutory power of sale.—By 2 Will. & M. c. 5, s. 2, amended by 35 & 36 Vict. c. 92, s. 13, where any goods or chattels shall be distrained for any rent reserved and due upon any demise, lease, or contract whatsoever, and the tenant or owner of the goods shall not, within five days next after such distress taken and notice thereof (with the cause of such taking) left at the chief mansion-house, or other most notorious place on the premises charged with the rent distrained for, replevy the same with sufficient security, &c., then, after such distress and notice, and after the expiration of the said five days, the person distraining "shall and may" (t), cause the goods and chattels so distrained to be appraised by two appraisers, and after such appraisement "shall and may lawfully sell (u) the goods so distrained for the best price (x) that can be gotten towards satisfaction of the rent" and charges, leaving the overplus (if any) in the hands of the sheriff, undersheriff, &c., for the owner's use. But now, by the Law of Distress Amendment Act, 1888 (y), the necessity for appraisement is abolished unless the tenant or owner require in writing an appraisement to be made, in which case he must pay the costs of it. By the same Act the period of five days for replevying is extended to a period of not more than fifteen days if the tenant or owner make a request in writing in that behalf to the landlord or other person levying the distress, and also give security for any additional cost that may be occasioned thereby, but the person levying has power, with the consent in writing of the tenant or owner, (q) 11 Geo. 2, c. 19, s. 8.

(r) Swann v. Falmouth (Earl), 8 B. & C. 456; 6 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 374.

(s) Bannister v. Hyde, 29 L.J. Q.B. 141; 2 E. & E. 627; Eldridge v. Stacey, 15 C.B. N.S. 458; Kerby v. Harding, 6 Exch. 234; 20 L.J. Ex. 163.

(t) Hudd v. Racenor, 2 B. & B. 662; 2 J. B. Mo. 542.

(u) See King v. England, 33 L.J. Q.B. 145; 4 B. & S. 782, post, p. 805; Sharp v. Fowle, 12 Q.B.D. 385; 53 L.J. Q.B. 309.

(x) See Hawkins v. Walrond, 1 C.P.D. 280; 45 L.J. C.P. 772.

(y) 51 & 52 Vict. c. 21, s. 5.

to sell the goods at any time before the expiration of the extended period (z).

Distress—Tender of rent before sale.—If, after the impounding, and before the sale, a tender of the rent and expenses is made, the landlord cannot lawfully proceed to sell the things distrained; for upon the equity of the statute, 2 Will. & M. sess. 1, c. 5, s. 2, which gives the tenant five days to replevy the things distrained, the tenant has the same time for tendering the rent and expenses, and an action is maintainable against a landlord who persists in selling after tender of the rent and costs within the time allowed for replevy (a). In the case of a distress of growing crops the tenant may tender the rent and expenses at any time before the crops are ripe (b). Whenever goods have been seized as a distress for rent, and a tender is made of a sum sufficient to cover the rent actually due, and the cost of the distress up to the time of the tender, and the bailiff refuses to give up the goods and the tenant is obliged to pay a larger sum to get back his goods, he is entitled to an action for damages (c). But if the landlord distrains for a larger sum than is due, but not excessively, the tenant should tender the amount really due, if he wishes to make the detention of the goods unlawful (d).

Distress—Parties to whom tender may be made.—A bailiff authorised to distrain for rent has power given him at the same time to receive the rent (e), and the landlord has no right to circumscribe the bailiff's authority in this respect (f), for a tenant whose goods are seized under the extraordinary power vested in the landlord of distraining, ought to be enabled in all cases to release them at once by tender of the rent and costs to the bailiff. The power to receive the rent is therefore necessarily annexed to the warrant to distrain (g); but it does not follow, that because the tender may be made to the bailiff who distrains, it may be made also to any bailiff's follower who may be put into temporary possession of the goods (h).

Distress—Notice of distress is not essential at common law to the validity of the distress (i). It has been expressly laid

(z) 51 & 52 Vict. c. 21, s. 6.

(a) Johnson v. Upham, 21 L.J. Q.B. 252; 2 E. & E. 250, overruling, on this point, Ladd v. Thomas, 12 Ad. & E. 117; 9 L.J. Q.B. 345, and Ellis v. Taylor, 8 M. & W. 415; 10 L.J. Ex. 462. See also Addison on Torts, 340 (ed. 8).

(b) Owen v. Leigh, 3 B. & Ald. 470.

(c) Loring v. Warburton, 28 L.J. Q.B. 31; E. B. & E. 507; Johnson v. Upham, supra.

(d) Glynn v. Thomas, 11 Exch. 870; 25 L.J. Ex. 125. See also ante, p. 796.

(e) Bennett v. Bayes, 5 H. & N. 391; 29 L.J. Ex. 224.

(f) Hatch v. Hale, 15 Q.B. 10; 19 L.J. Q.B. 289.

(g) Hatch v. Hale, supra.

(h) Boulton v. Reynolds, 29 L.J. Q B. 11; 2 E. & E. 369.

(i) Trent v. Hunt, 9 Exch. 20; 22 L.J. Ex. 318; Sims v. Tuffs, 6 C. & P. 207.

down, that if the lord distrain for rent or services, he has no occasion to give notice to the tenant for what thing he distrains, for the tenant by intendment knows what things are in arrear for his lands as rent and services, &c. (k); but 2 Will. & M. c. 5, s. 2, requires, as we have seen (ante, p. 800), notice of the distress to be given preparatory to a sale by the landlord, and 11 Geo. 2, c. 19, authorising the distress and sale of goods fraudulently removed (ante, p. 794), and of the cattle and stock of tenants depasturing on commons appurtenant or belonging to the demised premises, and growing crops (ante, p. 785), requires (s. 9) notice of the place where the goods and chattels distrained shall be lodged, to be given within one week to the tenant, or left at his last place of abode.

As the tenant is to have five days (or fifteen upon request (l)), under the statute of Will. & Mary, to replevy from the time he receives notice of the distress, the notice should be given as soon as the distress has been levied. If the distress is not clearly intended to include all the goods and chattels upon the demised premises, the landlord must give the lessee distinct notice of the things included in such distress, in order that he may know what he is to replevy. And for this purpose, as soon as the distress is made, whether by the lessor or his bailiff, an inventory of the goods distrained should be made and served upon the lessee, together with the notice of the distress. The notice of the distress, which must be in writing (m), should set forth the amount of rent distrained for, as well as the particular things taken (n). A written notice of distress is not invalidated by a statement that the rest is due to A., whereas it is due to B., provided B has authorised the distress (o). If the landlord removes and sells goods and chattels which were not included in the inventory and notice, and which have not consequently been comprised in the distress, he is liable to an action for damages at the suit of the tenant (p).

Distress Sale.—If the tenant, after he has received notice of the distress, neglects for the period given, to be reckoned exclusively both of the day of distress and of the day of sale, to pay the rent, the lessor or distrainor may sell the goods for the best price (q) that can be got for them, and apply the purchase-money in discharge of the rent and the costs of the (k) 1 Roll.Abr. 647, Distress, pl. 1; Tancred v. Leyland, 16 Q.B. 669; 20 L.J. Q.B. 316.

(l) 51 & 52 Vict. c. 21, s. 6.

(m) Wilson v. Nightingale, 8 Q.B. 1034; 15 L.J. Q.B. 309.

(n) Wakeman v. Lindsey, 14 Q.B. 625; 19 L.J. Q.B. 166; Kerby v. Harding, 6 Exch. 234; 20 L.J. Ex. 163.

(o) Trent v. Hunt, ante, p. 801.

(p) Bishop v. Bryant, 6 C. & P. 484.

(q) See 2 Will. & M. sess. 1, c. 5, s. 2.

sale (r), leaving the surplus, if any, in the hands of the sheriff, under-sheriff, or constable, for the owner's use. If the tenant holds under a covenant not to carry hay or straw off the demised premises, the landlord who has distrained hay or straw must, nevertheless, sell it in the ordinary way for the best price; if he sells it, subject to a condition that the purchaser shall consume it on the land, he is liable to an action by the tenant for not selling it at the best price (s).

Distress—Costs and expenses.—By 57 Geo. 3, c. 93, s. 1, no person making any distress for rent, where the sum demanded and due does not exceed 20*l.* shall have, take, or receive out of the produce of the goods or chattels distrained upon and sold any more than the costs and charges then fixed by the schedule to that Act. These costs and charges are now regulated by the Distress for Rent Rules, 1888, rr. 15, 16, different scales being provided according as to whether the amount of rent demanded and due does or does not exceed 20*l.* In the latter case the charges are, for levying the distress, 3*s.*; for the man in possession, 4*s.* 6*d.* per day (to provide his own board in every case) (t); for appraisement, whether by one or more broker, 6*d.* in the pound on the value as appraised, in addition to the amount for the stamp; for advertisements, 10*s.*; for removal (at tenant's request), reasonable expenses, to be taxed in case of difference by the registrar; for commission, catalogues, sale and delivery of goods to the purchaser, 1*s.* in the pound on the net produce of the sale (u). If more costs and charges are levied than those allowed by the Act, the party aggrieved has a summary remedy before a justice of the peace for treble the amount of the charges, or he may bring an action for the recovery of them (x); but it is provided (s. 4) that no order or judgment shall be given against the landlord for such treble costs, unless he has personally levied the distress. Every broker or other person who shall make and levy any distress whatsoever is to give a copy of his charges, and of all the costs and charges of the distress, signed by him, to the person or persons on whose goods and chattels any distress shall have been levied, although the amount of the rent demanded may exceed the sum

(r) Robinson v. Waddington, 18 L.J. Q.B. 250; the marginal note of this case, in 13 Q.B. 753, is incorrect.

(s) Ridgway v. Stafford (Lord), 6 Exch. 404; 20 L.J. Ex. 226; Hawkins v. Walrond, 1 C.P.D. 280; 45 L.J. C.P. 772; ante, p. 800.

(t) Even this charge may not under all circumstances be justifiable; see Arnison, Ex parte, L.R. 3 Ex. 56; 37 L.J. Ex. 57.

(u) As to charges for impounding goods distrained in public pound, see 1 & 2 Ph. & M. c. 12, s. 2; Child v. Chamberlain, 5 B. & Ad. 1049.

(x) 57 Geo. 3, c. 93, s. 2, as amended by 47 & 48 Vict. c. 43, s. 4; and see Robson v. Biggar, (1907) 1 K.B. 690; 76 L.J. K.B. 248.

of 20*l.* (y). When the rent distrained for exceeds 20*l.*, the costs are now provided for by the Distress for Rent Rules, 1888, Append. II., Scale I. (z).

Distress—Effect of non-compliance with statutes authorising sale.—By sect. 19 of 11 Geo. 2, c. 19, where any distress shall be made for any kind of rent justly due, and any irregularity or unlawful act shall be afterwards done by the party distraining, or by his agents, the distress itself shall not be therefore deemed to be unlawful, nor the party making it be deemed a trespasser ab initio; but the party aggrieved by such unlawful act of irregularity may recover full satisfaction for the special damage he shall have sustained thereby, and no more. The plaintiff, therefore, can only recover for an irregularity in distraining and selling where actual damage is proved. Where there is no special damage there can be no satisfaction, and a verdict for nominal damages is not sustainable. Where the damages are merely nominal the defendant is entitled to a verdict (a). The statute does not apply to cases where the original entry upon the premises was effected in an unlawful manner, as by breaking open an outer door, and where, consequently, no valid distress has ever been effected (b).

Distress—Keeping distress without selling.—It has generally been considered that the words in the 2 Will. & M. c. 5, s. 2, "shall and may lawfully sell," mean that the landlord must give the statutory notice of the distress, and must proceed to sell, if the tenant does not replevy within the due period, or desire the landlord not to sell. If, however, the landlord should neglect to give notice of the distress, and to sell, but should content himself with keeping the goods in his hands, he will not be liable to an action for the detention or conversion of the chattels, unless the tenant can prove that he had gained a right to have the goods delivered up to him, and that he had sustained some special damage by the detention (c). The landlord has a lien for his rent upon the things distrained, and has at common law a right to keep them as a pledge until his rent is paid (ante, p. 772), and he can only be made responsible for not selling

(y) 57 Geo. 3, c. 93, s. 6; see also Distress for Rent Rules, 1888, r. 18.

(z) These rules were made pursuant to 51 & 52 Vict. c. 21, s. 8, under which the Lord Chancellor has power from time to time to make rules for regulating the fees, charges, and expenses incidental to distresses, and for regulating the securities to be given by bailiffs.

(a) Rodgers v. Parker, 18 C.B. 112; 25 L.J. C.P. 220; Lucas v. Tarleton, 3 H. & N. 116; 27 L.J. Ex. 246; Proudlove v. Twemlow, 1 Cr. & M. 326; 2 L.J. Ex. 111.

(b) Attack v. Bramwell, 32 L.J. Q.B. 146; 3 B. & S. 520; see Addison on Torts, 340 (ed. 8).

(c) West v. Nibbs, 4 C.B. 186; Glynn v. Thomas, 11 Exch. 870; 25 L.J. Ex. 125; Rodgers v. Parker, supra; see Fell v. Whittaker, L.R. 7 Q.B. 120; 41 L.J. Q.B. 78.

in an action founded upon the statute; but the landlord may, with the assent of the tenant, detain the things distrained, or convert them to his own use in satisfaction and discharge of the rent (d). To obtain a title as against a third person whose goods have been distrained, there must be an actual sale; a taking of the goods by the landlord at the appraised value is not sufficient (e). The landlord cannot himself become the purchaser of goods sold by him under a distress (f). When a landlord distrains and does not sell he cannot while he holds the distress bring an action for rent (g).

SECTION II.

THE LETTING OF CHATTELS.

Bailments for hire.—The term bailment denotes, in the common law, a delivery or transfer of a chattel from one person to another, in order that something may be done with it, either for the benefit of the owner, or of the party who receives it as the temporary possessor, or for the mutual benefit of both of them, and is applied to contracts for the letting and hiring of chattels, as well as to contracts for the delivery of them to persons for safe custody or to workmen to be worked upon or dealt with in the course of their employment. The term is also equally applicable to contracts for the letting and hiring of realty, although it is not used in the common law to denote that class of contracts. In this class of contracts, the person who delivers the chattel for the purposes of the contract is called the bailor, and the party who receives it the bailee. If one man bails or delivers a chattel to another to be used for hire upon the express or implied understanding that the chattel is to be put into a serviceable state and made ready for immediate use by the hirer, there is no implied warranty or undertaking on the part of the bailor that the chattel is in any particular state or condition, or fit for any particular purpose. But, if he expressly or impliedly represents it to be fit for immediate use, or to be applicable to any particular purpose, he impliedly warrants the use for which he receives the hire.

(d) Jones v. Sawkins, 5 C.B. 142; 17 L.J. C.P. 92.

(e) King v. England, 33 L.J. Q.B. 145; 4 B. & S. 782.

(f) Moore, Nettlefold & Co. v. Singer Manufacturing Co., (1904) 1 K.B. 820; 73 L.J. K.B. 457.

(g) Lehain v. Philpott, L.R. 10 Ex. 242; 44 L.J. Ex. 245.

If a man, for example, lets out the naked hull or the mere fabric of a vessel, upon the terms that the hirer is to man and equip her, and get her ready for sea, there is no implied warranty or undertaking on the part of the shipowner that the vessel is in any particular state and condition at the time of the making of the contract. But, if he mans and provisions and equips the vessel himself, and holds her out as fit for immediate use, there is an implied promise or undertaking on his part that she is seaworthy and fit for use, and properly found and provided with stores and provisions, seamen and officers, and all things needful to the due prosecution of the voyage (h). And, if a man lets out furniture for immediate use, there is an implied warranty on his part that it is fit for use, and free from all defects inconsistent with the reasonable and beneficial enjoyment of it (i). The owner of furniture agreed to let it on hire at a monthly rent in consideration of the hirer agreeing to pay a sum of 35*l.* as the consideration for an option of purchase. The agreement provided that if the hirer did not duly perform it, the owners might re-take possession of the furniture; that the hirer might terminate the hiring by a week's notice and giving up the furniture; that if the agreement were duly performed by the hirer he might at any time during the continuance thereof purchase the furniture; and that the hirer should not be entitled to credit for the amount paid for the option or for rent except on purchase of the furniture. The hirer having made default in payment of some of the monthly instalments, the owners resumed possession of the furniture, and in a subsequent action brought by the hirer counterclaimed for the amount of the arrears of rent. It was held that the owner by so retaking possession had not abandoned his right to sue for the arrears of rent (j). If a man lets out a horse bridled and saddled, and prepared for immediate use by an equestrian, he impliedly warrants the equipments to be road-worthy and fit for use, and the horse itself to be well shod (k), and free from such vices and defects as render it dangerous and unfit to ride.

(h) Lyon v. Mells, 5 East, 437; Burges v. Wickham, 33 L.J. Q.B. 17; 3 B. & S. 669; Stanton v. Richardson, L.R. 9 C.P. 390; 43 L.J. C.P. 230; Steel v. State Line Steamship Co., 3 App.Cas. 72; Tattersall v. National Steamship Co., 12 Q.B.D. 297; 53 L.J. Q.B. 332; The Glenfruin, 10 P.D. 103; 54 L.J. P. 49; The Laertes, 12 P.D. 187; 56 L.J. P. 108; Gilroy v. Price, (1893) A.C. 56; Queensland National Bank v. P. & O. Co., (1898) 1 Q.B. 567; 67 L.J. Q.B. 402; Maori King v. Hughes, (1895) 2 Q.B. 550; 65 L.J. Q.B. 168; see Addison on Torts, p. 746 (ed. 8).

(i) Sutton v. Temple, 12 M. & W. 60; 13 L.J. Ex. 17.

(j) Brooks v. Beirnstein, (1909) 1 K.B. 98; 78 L.J. K.B. 243.

(k) Blakemore v. Bristol & Exeter Ry., 8 E. & B. 1051; 27 L.J. Q.B. 167.

Duties and responsibilities of hirers of chattels.—If a coach-proprietor lets his coach and horses for a journey, and the coach is driven by the coachman, and is under the direction and management of the servants of the owner, the latter is bound to keep the horses properly shod, and the carriage in good travelling order; but, if the possession thereof is transferred to the hirer, and the carriage is driven and managed by the hirer's servants, this duty then falls upon the hirer, although the owner or letter of the chattel may, under certain circumstances, be obliged to repay to the hirer the money expended by him in repairs. Whenever a chattel delivered to a hirer to be used for hire has sustained a partial injury through an inherent defect in the article itself, or by reason of some inevitable accident which threatens its destruction, and the effects of such partial injury may be obviated and the chattel preserved for future use by repairs, there is an implied authority from the owner to the hirer to undertake the necessary repairs, and incur all such expenses as a prudent man would, under the circumstances, incur for the preservation of his own property.

Use of chattels let to hire—Losses from negligence.—Every hirer of a chattel is bound to use the thing let in a proper and reasonable manner, to take the same care of it that a prudent and cautious man ordinarily takes of his own property (l), and to return it to the bailor or owner at the time appointed for its return (or within a reasonable period after request, if no such time has been agreed upon), in as good condition as it was in at the time of the bailment, subject only to the deterioration produced by ordinary wear and tear and reasonable use, and by injuries caused by accidents which have happened without any fault or neglect on the part of the hirer. Where the hirer contracted to deliver up a barge at the conclusion of the hiring "in good working order with all her rigging, gear, and implements complete," it was held that this must be construed with reference to the condition of the barge (which was an old one) at the commencement of the hiring (m).

Losses from piracy, robbery, theft, disease, and accident.—If the thing let to hire perishes, or is destroyed by fire, or is stolen without any neglect on the part of the hirer, the latter will not be responsible for the loss (n); but in cases of stealing, a robbery by force must be proved, or, if there has been a secret theft, it must be shown by the hirer that he had taken all such precautions as are ordinarily taken by prudent men to protect their own property. If a ship hired for a particular voyage, and placed in the possession and under the control of the hirer, be captured by pirates, or be lost in a storm in the ordinary course of the voyage, the owner must bear the loss; but, if the hirer has deviated from the ordinary course, and sailed unnecessarily through dangerous channels, or into seas infested with pirates, and needlessly encountered risks not contemplated by the owner at the time of the hiring, and which would probably not have been run by him except for a greatly increased rate of remuneration, the hirer is liable for the loss. An owner of a chattel which is out on hire for an unexpired term may maintain an action against a third person for a permanent injury thereto (o).

(l) Coupé Co. v. Maddick, (1891) 2 Q.B. 413; 60 L.J. Q.B. 676.

(m) Shroder v. Ward, 13 C.B. N.S. 410; 32 L.J. C.P. 150.

(n) Williams v. Lloyd, W.Jones, 179; Taylor v. Caldwell, 3 B. & S. 836; 32 L.J. Q.B. 164; see Addison on Torts, p. 747 (ed. 8).

Determination of bailment.—If chattels have been bailed or let to hire for a certain term, and the bailee does an act which is equivalent to the destruction of the chattels, or which is entirely inconsistent with the terms of the bailment; if he sells, or attempts to sell, the chattels, or to dispose of them in such a way as to put it out of his power to return them, the act operates like a disclaimer of tenancy (ante, p. 708), the bailment is at an end, and the possessory title reverts to the bailor, and entitles him to maintain an action for the value of the chattels (p).

Loans of money to be used for hire.—The lending of money for hire is ordinarily denominated a loan at interest, as distinguished from a commodatum or gratuitous loan, where the sum advanced only is paid back without any interest or fruits of increase. A loan of money to be used for hire is a loan for use and consumption, the identical thing lent not being intended to be returned, but its equivalent in value and kind. The absolute property, therefore, in the subject-matter of the loan passes together with the transfer of the possession to the hirer or borrower; and the latter becomes indebted to the lender in an equivalent in value and amount, with interest, which must be paid and rendered to the latter at the time agreed upon, or within a reasonable period after demand made, in case no time for its return has been limited. The liability of the hirer or borrower, consequently, to repay the equivalent amount is not discharged by the loss of the money from robbery, fire, or inevitable accident. On a contract to lend money, no action will lie for the money; an action will only lie for breach of the contract; the measure of damages will be the loss sustained by the borrower by reason of the breach (q).

(o) Mears v. L. & S. W. Ry., 11 C.B. N.S. 850; 31 L.J. C.P. 220; and see Lancashire Waggon Co. v. Fitzhugh, 6 H. & N. 502; 30 L.J. Ex. 231; see Addison on Torts, p. 578 (ed. 8).

(p) Fenn v. Bittleston, 7 Exch. 159; 21 L.J. Ex. 41.

Moneylenders.—The rights of persons lending money at interest are dealt with by the Moneylenders Act, 1900 (r). The term "moneylender" is defined to include every person whose business is that of moneylending, or who advertises or holds himself out as carrying on that business; but does not include pawnbrokers, registered friendly, building or loan societies, any corporate body authorised by statute to lend money or any person bonâ fide carrying on banking or insurance business, or "any business not having for its primary object the lending of money in the course of which and for the purposes whereof he lends money" (s). Sect. 2 compels moneylenders to register their names and to carry on business in their registered names (ss). If a moneylender enters into any agreement in the course of his business as a moneylender with respect to the advance and repayment of money, or takes any security for money in the course of such business, without having registered himself as a moneylender, as required by sect. 2, sub-sect. 1 (a) of the Moneylenders Act, 1900, his contract is rendered illegal by sect. 2, sub-sect. 1 (c), and cannot be enforced (t). Not every man who lends money at interest carries on the business of moneylending within the meaning of the Moneylenders Act, 1900. Speaking generally, a man who carries on a moneylending business is one who is ready and willing to lend to all and sundry provided that they are, from his point of view, eligible. But this does not mean that a moneylender can avoid the Act by limiting his clientèle to those whom he chooses to designate "friends." Each case must be decided on the particular facts (u).

Where any such moneylender takes proceedings for the enforcement of any agreement or security for money lent the court may re-open the transaction if it is satisfied that the

(q) South African Territories v. Wallington, (1897) 1 Q.B. 692; 66 L.J. Q.B. 551.

(r) 63 & 64 Vict. c. 51.

(s) Sect. 6.

(ss) Kirkwood v. Gadd, (1910) A.C. 422; 79 L.J. K.B. 815; Staffordshire Fin. Co. v. Valentine, (1910) 2 K.B. 233; 79 L.J. K.B. 680.

(t) Bonnard v. Dott, (1906) 1 Ch. 748; 75 L.J. Ch. 446; see also Lodge v. National Union Investment Co., (1907) 1 Ch. 300; 76 L.J. Ch. 187; Chapman v. Michaelson, (1909) 1 Ch. 238; 78 L.J. Ch. 272; Gadd v. Provincial Union Bank (No. 1), (1909) 2 K.B. 353; 78 L.J. K.B. 815; Stirling v. Silburn, (1910) 1 K.B. 67; 79 L.J. K.B. 336. As to carrying on business at registered place, see Jackson v. Price, (1910) 1 K.B. 143; 79 L.J. K.B. 130; Hopkins v. Hills, (1910) 2 K.B. 29; 79 L.J. K.B. 825; Sadler v. Whiteman, (1910) A.C. 514; 79 L.J. K.B. 1050.

(u) Litchfield v. Dreyfus, (1906) 1 K.B. 584; 75 L.J. K.B. 447.

interest charged is excessive and that the transaction is harsh and unconscionable, and may relieve the person sued from the payment of any amount in excess of the sum which the court may adjudge to be fairly due. The like powers may be exercised on an application for a proof by a moneylender in any bankruptcy proceedings (x). The jurisdiction conferred by the Moneylenders Act, 1900, is a new jurisdiction conferred on all the courts, and is not confined to cases in which courts of equity would have intervened before the Act. Excessive interest may of itself show that a transaction is "harsh and unconscionable" within the meaning of the Act. A bargain in which the agent of the moneylender receives commissions from both sides and is a co-adventurer with the moneylender is fraudulent apart from the Moneylenders Act, 1900 (y). A misstatement made by a moneylender to a borrower during negotiations is a fact to be borne in mind in determining whether the transaction is harsh and unconscionable (z). The court, when asked to re-open a moneylending transaction under sect. 1 of the Moneylenders Act, 1900, on the ground of excessive interest charged by the lender, is entitled to consider, amongst "all the circumstances," the fact that the borrower thoroughly understood the transactions, and without any misrepresentation or pressure, other than the mere request to pay so much interest, voluntarily agreed to pay it; and when the court finds these to be the facts it ought to hold that the interest which the borrower agreed to pay is reasonable and not excessive within the meaning of the Act. In considering the "risk" incurred by the moneylender in making an advance, it is not the real risk as ascertained after the event which has to be looked at, but how the matter presented itself to the moneylender at the time he made the advance with the experience he would have of borrowers (a).

Liabilities of borrower—Care to be taken of things borrowed —Negligence and misconduct of borrower. The borrower is obliged to render back the identical thing lent in as good a condition as it was in when borrowed, subject only to the deterioration resulting from inherent defects or produced by ordinary wear and tear and the reasonable use of it for the purpose for which it was known to be required (b). "The borrower is bound," observes Holt, C.J., "to the strictest care and diligence to keep the goods so as to restore them back again

(x) 63 & 64 Vict. c. 51, s. 1.

(y) Samuel v. Newbold, (1906) A.C. 461; 75 L.J. Ch. 705.

(z) Victorian Daylesford Syndicate v. Dott, (1905) 2 Ch. 624; 74 L.J. Ch. 673.

(a) *Carrington*s, Ltd. v. Smith, (1906) 1 K.B. 79; 75 L.J. K.B. 49.

(b) Handford v. Palmer, 5 Moore, 74.

to the lender, because the bailee has a benefit by the use of them, so that, if the bailee be guilty of the least neglect, he will be answerable; as if a man should lend another a horse to go westward, and the bailee go northward, if any accident happen to the horse on the northern journey, the bailee will be chargeable, because he has made use of the horse contrary to the trust he was lent to him under; and it may be, if the horse had been used no otherwise than as he was lent, that accident would not have happened to him" (c). If a horse is lent for the performance of an ordinary journey, and the borrower leaves the high road and travels unnecessarily through by-paths or dangerous roads, and the horse falls and is injured, he will be responsible to the lender; but, if the horse is lent for the purpose of hunting, then the borrower may expose it to all the ordinary risks of the chase, which must have been contemplated by the lender.

The owner must stand to all the ordinary risks to which the chattel is naturally liable, but not to risks occasioned by negligence or want of ordinary caution on the part of the hirer. If a carriage, for example, let to hire, breaks down on the ordinary public thoroughfare, through the badness of the road, or is injured by a flood or inundation, the owner must bear the loss, although the carriage was driven by the servants and horses of the hirer. But if the hirer had gone out of his way to meet the danger—if he had travelled by unusual and difficult roads, or crossed a plain subject to floods, when he might have kept the high ground, and been safe, he must make good the loss that has been occasioned thereby. If the owner sends his own postilion or coachman to drive the carriage, the hirer is discharged from all attention to the horses and the risks of the road, and is bound only to take ordinary care of the glasses and inside of the carriage whilst he sits in it, unless he officiously interferes and gives orders, and takes the management and direction of the vehicle into his own hands (d). If a horse is hired as a saddle-horse, the hirer has no right to use it in a cart, or as a beast of burden; if it is hired to go to Richmond, he has no right to go with it to York; and if, during such misuser, a loss occurs, the hirer will be responsible therefor. If a horse hired for a journey is taken ill on the road, and the hirer calls in a farrier, he will not be responsible if the horse dies, although the death may have been occasioned by the injudicious treatment of the latter; but if the hirer neglects to avail himself of proper advice and assistance, or chooses ignorantly to prescribe himself, and from unskilfulness gives the horse improper medicine, and the horse dies, he is liable to the owner for the loss (e). It is of course the primary duty of the hirer, in the absence of an express stipulation to the contrary, to supply an animal hired by him with suitable food during the time it is intrusted to him for use; and if a hired horse is exhausted, or becomes ill, and refuses its food, and the hirer notwithstanding pursues his journey, and by so doing injures or kills the horse, he will be responsible therefor to the owner (f).

(c) Coggs v. Bernard, 2 Raym. 915; Bract. lib. 3, ch. 2, s. 1, pp. 99, 100.

(d) Jones on Bailments, 88 (ed. 4).

The gratuitously permitting a person to use a shed, by himself or his servant for a particular purpose, is a mere revocable licence, and has no analogy to a bailment of personal property; and the only duty imposed on such person is that there shall not be negligence in the use of the shed; and he is not liable for the negligence of his servant not within the scope of his employment (g).

Losses from ordinary casualties.—The measure of care and diligence to be exercised for the protection and preservation of a thing bailed by way of commodatum, whilst it remains in the possession of the borrower, is that amount of care, prudence, and foresight which the most vigilant and careful of men exercise for the preservation and protection of their own property. The foundation for this increased liability on the part of the borrower, in comparison with the hirer of a chattel, arises from the fact that the lender himself derives no benefit from the contract, but in making the bailment performs a gratuitous act of kindness dictated by his confidence in the bailee. The borrower cannot be made responsible for inevitable accidents, or casualties which could not have been foreseen, and which no human prudence could have guarded against; but he will be answerable for the "least neglect." If the borrower of a horse puts the horse in the stable, and the horse is stolen from thence, the borrower will not be answerable for him. But, if the borrower or his servant leave the stable-door open at night, and thieves take the opportunity of that and steal the horse, he will be chargeable for the loss; for the neglect to lock the door may have encouraged the thieves, and been the occasion of the robbery (h).

Misuser by borrower—Want of skill.—If the borrower takes (e) Deane v. Keate, 3 Campb. 4.

(f) Handford v. Palmer, 5 Moore, 74; Bray v. Mayne, 1 Gow, N.P.C. 1.

(g) Williams v. Jones, 33 L.J. Ex. 297; 3 H. & C. 256; see Addison on Torts, pp. 706, 707 (ed. 8).

(h) Coggs v. Bernard, 2 Raym. 916; Bract. lib. 3, ch. 2, p. 99; Doctor and Student, Dial. 2, ch. 38.

the horse off the high road against the will of the lender, and rides him into wet and slippery ground, and the horse slips and is injured, the borrower must make good the loss. It has been said that every lender of a horse for riding impliedly bargains, at the time he makes the loan, for the exercise on the part of the borrower of competent skill in riding and the management of a horse (i); but, if the bailor chooses, without making any previous inquiry, to entrust a fiery and high-spirited horse to a stranger of whose skill in horsemanship he knows nothing, he has no right to expect the management and dexterity of an experienced rider. Neither, if he lends valuable property to a notorious drunkard or a notoriously wild and reckless character, has he any right to expect the care and attention of a very vigilant and painstaking person (k). The use of the loan, moreover, is strictly personal to the borrower, founded on the confidence reposed in him, and does not, in general, warrant a user by his servants. Therefore if A. lends his horse to B. to ride to a particular place, B. cannot give licences to another to ride, but if he hires the horse he may let another ride it (l).

Restoration of thing borrowed or its equivalent—Loss by robbery, fire, or inevitable accident.—In the case of a loan by way of MUTUUM, the borrower is bound to restore, at the time agreed upon or within a reasonable period after request, an article of the same kind and quality as the one originally lent to him. If, by the agreement of the parties, an article of a different character is to be returned, the contract is not a mutuum, but an exchange or sale (m). As the right of property in the thing bailed is transferred to the bailee by a bailment by way of mutuum, so also is the risk of loss. If, therefore, the bailee is robbed before he reaches home, or the thing bailed is destroyed by wreck, fire, or inevitable accident before it can be used, the bailee must, nevertheless, pay the equivalent which he owes to the bailor at the time appointed (n). When the loan is made by way of COMMODATUM, the borrower must return the specific thing lent within a reasonable period after request, and if he neglects so to do, he is responsible for all accidents that afterwards happen to it. He has no right to detain the thing borrowed for any antecedent debt due to him. "The plain reason is that it would be a departure from the tacit obligations of the contract. No intention to give a lien for a

(i) Jones on Bailments, 65 (ed. 4); Wilson v. Brett, 11 M. & W. 115.
(k) Bract. lib. 3, tit. 2, s. 1, 99, b.
(l) Bringloe v. Morrice, 1 Mod. 210.
(m) South Australian Insurance Co. v Randall, L.R. 3 P.C. 101.
(n) Doct. & Stud. Dial. 2, ch. 38; Bract. 99, a, b.

debt can be implied from the grant of a mere favour." Neither can the borrower set up a right to detain the chattel for the payment of necessary expenses incurred by him in the keeping and preserving it (o).

Adverse claimants.—Eviction by title paramount, post, p. 848.

Implied obligations and duties of lender.—There is an implied undertaking on the part of the lender to the borrower of a chattel not to conceal from the borrower secret defects in the chattel known to the lender, which may make the use of the chattel perilous to the borrower. Thus, if one man lends a gun to another, and the lender knows at the time he lends the gun that it is unsafe and dangerous to use, and neglects to disclose the fact to the borrower, he will be responsible in damages to the latter if the gun bursts and injures him (p). But a gratuitous lender of an article is not liable for injury resulting to the borrower or his servant, while using it, from a defect not known to the lender (q).

Loans of money to one of several partners.—Money lent to one partner for his own expenses while engaged in the partnership business is a partnership debt (r). But, if the partner professes to borrow money for the firm, and misapplies it, and there be proof that the plaintiff lent it under circumstances of negligence, and out of the ordinary course of business, he cannot recover the amount from the other partners (s). And, if the creditor lending the money advances it at the request of one of the partners, for the known private purposes and private accommodation of the latter, and not for the trading purposes of the co-partnership, such creditor cannot make the firm responsible for the repayment of the money (t). But, where a member of a partnership was in the habit of drawing bills in his own name upon the firm, and getting them discounted, and applying the proceeds to the general purposes of the partnership, and the firm regularly accepted and paid the bills so drawn until it became bankrupt, it was held that the members of the firm must be taken to have given their co-partner authority to raise money for the use of the firm upon the bills in question, and that the money advanced by way of (o) Turner v. Ford, 15 M. & W. 212; 15 L.J. Ex. 215.

(p) Blakemore v. Bristol & Exeter Ry., 8 E. & B. 1051; 27 L.J. Q.B. 167; Coughlin v. Gillison, (1899) 1 Q.B. 145; 68 L.J. Q.B. 147.

(q) MacCarthy v. Young, 6 H. & N. 329; 30 L.J. Ex. 227.

(r) Rothwell v. Humphreys, 1 Esp. 405; and see now 53 & 54 Vict. c. 39, s. 5, ante, p. 359.

(s) Loyd v. Freshfield, 9 D. & R. 19.

(t) Bishop v. Jersey (Countess), 23 L.J. Ch. 483; 2 Drew. 143; Emly v. Lye, 15 East, 11; Smith v. Craven, 1 Cr. & J. 500; 9 L.J. (O.S.) Ex. 174; Bevan v. Lewis, 1 Sim. 376.

discount upon them might be treated as a loan to the partnership (u). There is no implication of law from the mere existence of a trade partnership, that one partner has authority to bind the firm by opening a banking account on its behalf in his own name (x).

Loans to registered companies.—A company shall not commence any business or exercise any borrowing powers unless shares held subject to the whole amount thereof in cash have been allotted to an amount not less in the whole than the minimum subscription (y). If the directors of a registered joint-stock company are empowered to borrow money, the power to be exercised in accordance with certain prescribed formalities, and the directors borrow money without complying with the formalities, this is a matter between them and the shareholders, and does not deprive the lender of his rights against the company (z), for he has a right to presume that the formalities have been gone through (a); but if they have no such powers, the lender should have informed himself of the fact, and he cannot recover from the company (b). Although the managers of the company are raising money for purposes unauthorized by the deed of settlement or articles of association, yet, if the shareholders, with full knowledge of these transactions, take no steps to ascertain whether the capital has been properly increased or not, but reap the benefit derived from the increase, they cannot be afterwards heard to say that the money was not advanced for the general use and purposes of the partnership (c). Debentures issued by a company under a general power of borrowing, in part discharge of existing debts (d), or debts of another for which the company is ultimately liable (e) are valid.

Damages in actions for not replacing stock.—In an action for not replacing stock lent on a given day, the measure of damages is the value of the stock in the market on the day on which it ought to have been replaced, or at the time of trial, at the option of the plaintiff (f). Where, however, a stock mortgage was made

(u) Denton v. Rodie, 3 Campb. 493; Bolitho, Ex parte, Buck, 100; and see now 53 & 54 Vict. c. 39, s. 6, ante, pp. 359, 370.

(x) Alliance Bank v. Kearsley, L.R. 6 C.P. 433; 40 L.J. C.P. 249.

(y) The Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 69), s. 87 (1); M'Dougall v. Jersey Imp. Hotel Co., 34 L.J. Ch. 28; 2 H. & M. 528.

(z) Agar v. Athenæum Life Assur. Co., 3 C.B. N.S. 725; 27 L.J. C.P. 95; Royal British Bank v. Turquand, 6 E. & B. 332; 25 L.J. Q.B. 317; Fountaine v. Carmarthen Ry., L.R. 5 Eq. 316; 37 L.J. Ch. 429; Romford Canal Co., In re, 24 Ch.D. 85; 52 L.J. Ch. 729.

(a) Biggerstaff v. Rowatt's Wharf, (1896) 2 Ch. 93; 65 L.J. Ch. 536.

(b) Irvin v. Union Bank of Australia, 2 App.Cas. 366; 46 L.J. P.C. 87.

(c) Magdalena St. Nav. Co., In re, 29 L.J. Ch. 667; Johns. 690; Elect. Tel. Co., In re, 30 Beav. 225; Troup's Case, 29 Beav. 353.

(d) Inns of Court Hotel Co., In re, L.R. 6 Eq. 82; 37 L.J. Ch. 692.

(e) Seligman v. Prince, (1895) 2 Ch. 617; 64 L.J. Ch. 745.

(f) Shepherd v. Johnson, 2 East, 211;

for a term of years, for securing the re-transfer of stock at the end of the term, and payment in the meantime of interest calculated on the proceeds of the stock sold to raise the loan, and, the mortgage having been allowed to run after the end of the term, the stock fell in price, it was held that the mortgagee was not entitled to the market value of the stock at the end of the term, but that the mortgagor could redeem on replacing the specific amount of stock originally sold (g). If dividends are to be paid in the intermediate time, interest may be given upon the value of the capital stock (h).

M'Arthur v. Seaforth (Lord), 2 Taunt. 257; Downes v. Back, 1 Stark. 318; Owen v. Routh, 14 C.B. 327; 23 L.J. C.P. 105; see Michael v. Hart, (1902) 1 K.B. 482; 71 L.J. K.B. 265.

(g) Blyth v. Carpenter, L.R. 2 Eq. 501; 35 L.J. Ch. 823.

(h) Dwyer v. Gurry, 7 Taunt. 14.

CHAPTER III.

CONTRACTS OF SECURITY.

SECTION I.

GENERAL PRINCIPLES.

The contract of mortgage, founded upon our common law doctrine of conditions, is a contract whereby a debtor grants or conveys an estate or interest in land, or transfers goods and chattels to his creditor, subject to a proviso that, if the debt is discharged by a day named, the grant or transfer shall be void, and the debtor shall be again entitled to his lands or his goods, and shall hold them as if the grant or transfer had never been made (a). There are two elements in the contract: a personal obligation for a debt, and an estate or goods transferred by way of pledge or security for such debt. For every other purpose the estate is the estate of the mortgagor, and when the debt is paid all the mortgagee's right and interest in the estate ceases. If the mortgagee has chosen to take possession, he is accountable for the profits, which are applicable, in the first instance, to pay the principal and interest of his debt, and, as soon as the mortgagee is paid, he becomes a mere naked trustee, holding the legal estate for the benefit of the mortgagor, the cestui que trust (b).

It has been considered advisable to omit from the present edition the general law relating to mortgages of realty, as the subject is too large to be capable of adequate treatment in this work, and the reader is referred to special treatises on the subject.

The contract of pledge is a bailment or delivery of goods and chattels by one man to another, to be held as a security for the payment of a debt or the performance of some engagement, and upon the express or implied understanding that the thing deposited is to be restored to the owner as soon as the debt is discharged, or the engagement has been fulfilled. The thing deposited as a security is called a pawn or pledge; the party making the deposit, the pawnor or pledgor; and the person who receives it into his possession, the pawnee or pledgee. The contract is to be distinguished from the contract of hypothecation by the transfer of the possession, or the actual delivery of the thing intended to be charged, to the creditor, and from the contract of mortgage by the absence of a transfer of the ownership or right of property thereof to the pawnee during the continuance of the trust (c). A lien, on the other hand, is merely a personal right to retain goods, and gives no right of property to the person entitled to it, and continues only so long as the holder keeps possession, either by himself or his servant; there is, therefore, no right to sell or otherwise dispose of the subject-matter of a lien (d).

(a) Per Lindley, M.R., in Santley v. Wilde, (1899) 2 Ch. 474; 68 L.J. Ch. 686. Cp. the definition of mortgage in the Stamp Act, 1891, 54 & 55 Vict. c. 39, s. 86.

(b) Per Plummer, V.-C., Quarrel v. Beckford, 1 Mad. 278.

SECTION II.

MORTGAGE, ETC., OF CHATTELS.

Mortgages of goods and chattels.—A mortgage of goods and chattels may be made not only by deed, but also by simple contract (e). But where the mortgage falls within the definition of "bill of sale" (f) in the Bills of Sale Act, 1878 (g), it must be substantially in accordance with the form in the Schedule to the Bills of Sale Act, 1882 (h). And with regard to mortgages and charges created by joint stock companies the requirements

(c) Ryall v. Rowles, 1 Ves. Sen. 348, 358; Bristol and West of England Bank v. Mid. Ry., (1891) 2 Q.B. 653; 61 L.J. Q.B. 115.

(d) Gibbs, C.J., Pothonier v. Dawson, Holt, N.P. 385; Donald v. Suckling, L.R. 1 Q.B. 585, 606; 35 L.J. Q.B. 232.

(e) Flory v. Denny, 7 Exch. 581; 21 L.J. Ex. 223; Maughan v. Sharpe, 17 C.B. N.S. 443; 34 L.J. C.P. 19.

(f) The rights and liabilities of parties to bills of sale will be found fully described in Addison on Torts, pp. 520—543 (ed. 8).

(g) 41 & 42 Vict. c. 31, s. 4.

(h) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 43; Thomas v. Kelly, 13 App.Cas. 506; 57 L.J. Q.B. 330; Simmons v. Woodward, (1892) A.C. 100; 61 L.J. Ch. 252; De Braam v. Ford, (1900) 1 Ch. 142; 69 L.J. Ch. 82; Davies v. Jenkins, (1900) 1 Q.B. 133; 69 L.J. Q.B. 187; Swanley Coal Co. v. Denton, (1906) 2 K.B. 873; 75 L.J. K.B. 1009. Note that transactions permitting the taking of immediate possession are not within the Bills of Sale Acts: Charlesworth v. Mills, (1892) A.C. 231; 61 L.J. Q.B. 830; Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire Ry. Co. v. North Central Wagon Co., 13 App.Cas. 554; 58 L.J. Ch. 219; nor are pledges of goods even where the rights of parties are laid down in an accompanying memorandum: Wilkinson v. Gerard Frères, 7 T.L.R. 266; Hardwick, In re, Hubbard, Ex parte, 17 Q.B.D. 690; 55 L.J. Q.B. 490.

of sections 93—102 of the Companies Act, 1908 (i), must be complied with. If, by the terms of a bill of sale or assignment by way of mortgage of chattels, the mortgagor is to hold and enjoy the chattels as the mere servant or agent of the mortgagee, or at the will of the mortgagee, the latter is entitled to the possession whenever he thinks fit to call for it, and may seize and carry away and sell the chattels (k). It is unnecessary that the advance of the money and the delivery of the possession should be contemporaneous; it is sufficient if the goods be delivered within a reasonable time of the advance in pursuance of the contract of pledge (l). If the mortgage debt is to be paid on demand, and the mortgagor is to possess the mortgaged property until default has been made in payment, the mortgagee has no right of possession until demand has been made (m). If the mortgage debt is to be paid by a day named, and the mortgagor is to hold possession until default has been made, there is a re-grant and bailment of the goods to the mortgagor for the intervening period, and the mortgagee has no right to the possession of them until the mortgagor's time of holding has expired, so that, if he takes possession, he will subject himself to an action (n). But, if the mortgagor deals fraudulently with the mortgaged goods thus left in his possession, e.g., if he attempts to sell them, the bailment is determined, the possessory title reverts to the mortgagee, and he may immediately commence an action for delivery of the goods or their value (o). Where the title-deeds of land have been deposited, the equitable mortgagee is entitled to foreclosure, but this remedy is not available to a pledgee of personal chattels, who is only entitled to an order for sale (p).

If goods are assigned to the mortgagee upon trust to permit the mortgagor to hold and enjoy them until default has been made in payment of the mortgage-debt and interest by a day named, and upon further trust to sell them upon such default being made, the mortgagee has the legal right of possession incumbered with the trust as well as the right of property, and may maintain an action against anyone who wrongfully converts them (q). A proviso in a mortgage of chattels that,

(i) 8 Edw. 7, c. 69.

(k) Mayhew v. Suttle, 4 E. & B. 347; 24 L.J. Q.B. 54.

(l) Hilton v. Tucker, 39 Ch.D. 669; 57 L.J. Ch. 973.

(m) Bradley v. Copley, 1 C.B. 685, 699; 14 L.J. C.P. 222.

(n) Brierly v. Kendall, 17 Q.B. 937; 21 L.J. Q.B. 161.

(o) Fenn v. Bittleston, 7 Exch. 152; 21 L.J. Ex. 41.

(p) Carter v. Wake, 4 Ch.D. 605; 46 L.J. Ch. 841. As to the nature of an equitable mortgage by deposit of title deeds, see Gilligan v. National Bank, (1901) 2 Ir.R. 513.

(q) White v. Morris, 11 C.B. 1015; 21 L.J. C.P. 185.

after default made in payment of the mortgage-debt after notice, it shall be lawful for the mortgagee to receive and take into possession, and thenceforth to hold and enjoy, the mortgaged chattels, and to sell and dispose of them, and that, until default, it shall be lawful for the mortgagor to hold and make use of them, does not prevent the mortgage from operating as an immediate transfer of the right of property in the chattels to the mortgagee. The latter is the legal owner, whether in or out of possession (r).

A mortgage of goods and chattels and movables (excepting ships) will, in general, be found to be a doubtful and inadequate security for the payment of money; for, the mortgagor being left in the possession of the goods, and continuing the apparent owner of them, will be able to defeat the title of the mortgagee in a variety of ways. He may sell the goods in market overt to a bonâ fide purchaser, without notice of the mortgage, and so divest the mortgagee of his right of property; and if the mortgagor becomes bankrupt, the chattels may become lost to the mortgagee by reason of their having been left in the possession of the mortgagor as reputed owner (s).

Pledges of goods and chattels—What may be given in pledge.—By the common law, all kinds of goods and chattels, title-deeds, and securities for money, promissory notes and bills of exchange, letters of allotment and scrip, certificates of shares, and even money itself when marked or inclosed in a bag, purse, or parcel, so as to be capable of identification, may be pledged (t).

Who may pledge.—One man cannot, as a general rule, convey to another a right over property which he does not himself possess. If a servant takes his master's jewels and pledges them, the pledge cannot alter the ownership, or give the pledgee any right to detain the jewels as against the owner (u). But, if a man obtains goods under colour of a contract intended to transfer the property in them to him, and then pledges the goods, the pledgee will have a lien upon them to the amount of his advances. For example, if a man purchases and obtains possession of a specific chattel, and pays for it by a fictitious bill of exchange, or by a cheque on a bank where he has no funds, and then pledges the article with a party who advances

(r) Gale v. Burnell, 7 Q.B. 850; 14 L.J. Q.B. 340.

(s) Shuttleworth v. Hernaman, 1 De G. & J. 322; 26 L.J. Bankr. 61.

(t) Isaack v. Clark, 2 Bulstr. 306; Ross v. Moses, 1 C.B. 227. As to title deeds, see Barton v. Gainer, 3 H. & N. 387; Swanley Coal Co. v. Denton, (1906) 2 K.B. 873; 75 L.J. K.B. 1009.

(u) 34 Hen. 6, fol. 25, pl. 33; Hartop v. Hoare, 3 Atk. 44; 2 Str. 1187.

money upon it without any knowledge of the fraud, the pledgee will have a lien on the article in respect of his advances as against the vendor who has been defrauded (x); but, if the property has not passed—if, for instance, the article has been stolen, or possession thereof has been obtained by false pretences—and it has then been pledged, the pledgee will have no lien upon it as against the owner. If a person acquires possession of a delivery order, dock warrant, or any documentary evidence of title to goods on the strength of a false and fraudulent representation, and obtains delivery of the goods, or a transfer into his name, or a warrant for delivery to his order, and then pledges the goods or warrant, the pledgee will have no title as against the owner, who has been defrauded (y). If the pawnor has only a limited interest in the subject-matter of the pledge, he can only pawn to the extent of such interest, and, when that interest expires, the pawnee must surrender the pledge to the party who succeeds to the legal ownership. Therefore, where a quantity of plate was settled upon a widow for life, and she pawned it and then died, it was held that the pawnee had no right to detain the pledge as against the remainderman, although he had no notice of the widow's limited interest when he advanced the money (z). If the vendor of an estate delivers the conveyance as an escrow, to take effect on payment of the residue of the purchase-money, the property in the title-deeds is so vested in the purchaser, that the vendor obtaining possession of them and pawning them confers on the pawnee no right to detain them after tender of the residue of the purchase-money (a).

Implied warranty of title by pledgor.—Every person who pledges personal property impliedly undertakes that the property pledged is his own; and, if it turns out not to be so, the pledgee may restore it to the lawful owner coming forward and claiming it, and may set up jus tertii in answer to an action by the pledgor for the recovery of the pledge (b). On the other hand,

(x) Parker v. Patrick, 5 T.R. 175; White v. Garden, 10 C.B. 919; 20 L.J. C.P. 166.

(y) Kingsford v. Merry, 1 H. & N. 503; 26 L.J. Ex. 83; discussed by Ld. Halsbury in Henderson v. Williams, (1895) 1 Q.B. 521, 525; 64 L.J. Q. B. 308; Cole v. North Western Bank, L.R. 10 C.P. 354, 373; 44 L.J. C.P. 233; and see also Factors Act, 1889, 52 & 53 Vict. c. 45, s. 9; and Sale of Goods Act, 1893, 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 25.

(z) Hoare v. Parker, 2 T.R. 376.

(a) Hooper v. Ramsbottom, 6 Taunt. 12.

(b) Cheesman v. Exall, 6 Exch. 344; 20 L.J. Ex. 209; Jones v. Peppercorne, 28 L.J. Ch. 158; Johns. 430; Biddle v. Bond, 34 L.J. Q.B. 137; 6 B. & S. 225; Rogers v. Lambert, (1891) 1 Q.B. 318; 60 L.J. Q.B. 187; but if the bailee always knew of the adverse claim, and has dealt with the goods in a way creating an estoppel, he cannot afterwards set up such adverse claim as against the bailor: Davies, Ex parte, Sadler, In re, 19 Ch.D. 86. As to pledge of negotiable instruments, see Baker v. Nottingham Banking Co., 60 L.J. Q.B. 42.

every person who receives goods and chattels into his possession by way of pledge, impliedly undertakes to return them to the pawnor as soon as the object of the pledge has been accomplished, unless it be shown that the pledgor had no right to pledge them, and the owner has intervened and claimed them. Nothing contained in the Factors Act, 1889, is to prevent the owner of goods from recovering them from an agent or his trustee in bankruptcy, or from having the right to redeem such goods or documents of title, at any time before they have been sold, upon satisfying the claims thereon, or from recovering from any person with whom the goods have been pledged by the agent any balance of the produce of the sale of the goods less the amount of his lien (c). If the pledge has been received as security for the due payment of a debt or the performance of a contract, it must be returned by the pawnee as soon as the debt is discharged or the contract has been fulfilled, unless it has been lost or destroyed by accident, without any default or misconduct or want of proper care on the part of such pawnee.

By the Factors Act, 1889, where a mercantile agent (d) is with the consent of the owner (e) in the possession of goods, or of the documents of title to goods, any sale, pledge, or other disposition of the goods made by him in the ordinary course of business (f) of a mercantile agent, shall, subject to the provisions of the Act, be as valid as if he were expressly authorised by the owner of the goods to make the same; provided that the person taking under the disposition acts in good faith, and has not, at the time, notice that the person making the disposition has not authority to make the same (g). Subject to this proviso, a disposition of goods by a mercantile agent, after the consent of the owner to his possession of them is withdrawn, is valid (h).

Where a mercantile agent has obtained possession of any documents of title to goods, by reason of his being or having been, with the consent of the owner, in possession of the goods represented thereby, or of any other documents of title to the goods, his possession of the first-mentioned documents shall be deemed to be with the consent of the owner (i). The consent of the

(c) 52 & 53 Vict. c. 45, s. 12.

(d) See sect. 1 for definition of the terms "mercantile agent," "possession," "goods," "pledge," and "person."

(e) Where possession has been acquired by a trick, it is not with consent of the owner; see Hardman v. Booth, 1 H. & C. 803; 32 L.J. Ex. 105; Cole v. North Western Bank, L.R. 10 C.P. 354; 44 L.J. C.P. 233; Cahn v. Pockett's Bristol Channel Steam Packet Co., (1899) 1 Q.B. 643; 68 L.J. Q.B. 515; Oppenheimer v. Frazer & Wyatt, (1907) 2 K.B. 50, 61; 76 L.J. K.B. 806.

(f) As to meaning of "ordinary course of business," see Biggs v. Evans, (1894) 1 Q.B. 88.

(g) 52 & 53 Vict. c. 45, s. 2 (1).

(h) Sect. 2 (2).

(i) Sect. 2 (3).

owner is to be presumed in the absence of evidence to the contrary (k). The authority given by sect. 2 is a general authority, and is not restricted by the existence in any particular trade of a custom that a mercantile agent employed in that trade to sell goods has no authority to pledge them (l).

A pledge of the documents of title to goods is to be deemed to be a pledge of the goods (m). Where a mercantile agent pledges goods as a security for a debt or liability due from him to the pledgee, the latter shall acquire no further right to the goods than could have been enforced by the pledgor at the time of the pledge (n).

Where a person pledges goods entrusted to him for the purpose of sale only, he is a mercantile agent "acting in the ordinary course of business of a mercantile agent," within sect. 1 (1), and the pledgee is protected by sect. 2 (1) from an action by the owner to recover the value of the goods (o). But where a fraudulent sale is made to joint purchasers, one of whom does not act in good faith, none of such joint purchasers is protected by the sub-section (p).

Any valuable consideration—including a payment in cash, or the delivery or transfer of other goods, or of a document of title to goods, or of a negotiable security—is sufficient for the validity of a disposition of the goods under the Act; but where the goods are pledged by a mercantile agent, in consideration of the delivery or transfer of other goods, or of documents of title to goods, or of a negotiable security, the pledgee shall acquire no right or interest in the goods greater than the value of the goods, documents, or security so given in exchange (q).

An agreement with a mercantile agent through his clerk or other person, authorised in the ordinary course of business to make contracts of sale or pledge on his behalf, is for the purposes of the Act to be deemed to be an agreement with the agent (r).

Where the owner of goods has given possession of them to another person for the purpose of consignment or sale, or has shipped the goods in the name of another person, and the consignee has no notice that such person is not owner of the goods, the consignee is, in respect of any advances to such person, to (k) 52 & 53 Vict. c. 45, s. 2 (4). As to circumstances negativing presumption of consent, see cases, supra, note (e).

(l) Oppenheimer v. Attenborough, (1908) 1 K.B. 221; 77 L.J. K.B. 209.

(m) Sect. 3. This section, like sects. 2—7, only applies to pledges by mercantile agents: Inglis v. Robertson, (1898) A.C. 616; 67 L.J. P.C. 108.

(n) Sect. 4.

(o) Weiner v. Harris, (1910) 1 K.B. 285; 79 L.J. K.B. 342, overruling Hastings v. Pearson, (1893) 1 Q.B. 62; 62 L.J. Q.B. 75.

(p) Oppenheimer v. Fraser & Wyatt, (1907) 2 K.B. 50; 76 L.J. K.B. 806.

(q) Sect. 5.

(r) Sect. 6.

have the same lien on the goods as if he were the owner (s); but nothing in the section is to limit or affect the validity of any sale, pledge, or disposition by a mercantile agent (t).

Where a person having sold goods continues or is in possession of them, or of the documents of title to them, the delivery or transfer by him, or by a mercantile agent acting for him, of such goods or documents, under any sale, pledge, or other disposition or agreement for the same, to any person receiving the same in good faith and without notice of the previous sale, shall have the same effect as if the person making the delivery or transfer were expressly authorised by the owner of the goods to do so (u). Where a person having bought or agreed to buy goods obtains, with the consent of the vendor, the possession of the goods or of the documents of title to them, the delivery or transfer by such vendee, or by a mercantile agent acting for him, of the goods or documents under any sale, pledge, or other disposition, or any agreement for the same, to any person receiving them in good faith and without notice of any lien or right of the original vendor, shall have the same effect as if the person making the delivery or transfer were a mercantile agent in possession of the goods or documents of title, with the consent of the owner (v). The expression "a person having agreed to buy goods" does not include a person who has an option to buy, the owner being bound to sell if the option is exercised. So where the owner of a piano let it on hire, the hirer agreeing that he should pay monthly instalments and might terminate the agreement by delivering up the piano, but that the piano should be his on payment of all the instalments, and until then the piano should be the property of the owner, it was held that the hirer had only an option to buy, and did not come within sect. 9 of the Factors Act, 1889 (x). A hire-and-purchase agreement under which the hirer has no power to determine the agreement by returning the goods is an agreement to buy within the section (y). The section protects an auctioneer who, in good faith and without notice of any lien of the original seller, receives and sells goods delivered to him by a person who had obtained them under a hire-and-purchase agreement providing for pay-

(s) 52 & 53 Vict. c. 45, s. 7 (1)

(t) Sect. 7 (2).

(u) Sect. 8. This section is reproduced in sect. 25 (1) of the Sale of Goods Act, 1893, 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, ante, p. 595.

(v) Sect. 9. This section has no application where the pledgor nas obtained the documents of title from the warehouse-keeper by virtue of the pledgor's ownership of the goods: Inglis v. Robertson, (1898) A.C. 616; 67 L.J. P.C. 108.

(x) Helby v. Matthews, (1895) A.C. 471; 64 L.J. Q.B. 465, distinguishing Lee v. Butler, (1893) 2 Q.B. 318; 62 L.J. Q.B. 591.

(y) Hull Ropeworks Co. v. Adams, 65 L.J. Q.B. 114.

ment by instalments which had not been paid (z). For this section to apply, it seems unnecessary that there should be a memorandum of the contract of sale, so as to satisfy the requirements of sect. 4 of the Sale of Goods Act, 1893 (a).

Where a document of title to goods has been lawfully transferred to a person as buyer or owner of the goods, and he transfers it to a person who takes it in good faith, and for valuable consideration, such transfer shall have the same effect in defeating the vendor's lien or right of stoppage in transitu as the transfer of a bill of lading (b).

The transfer of a document may be either by indorsement or in some cases by delivery (c).

Pledgor's right of redemption.—A thing may be pledged for a certain period, or it may be pledged indefinitely, no time being fixed for its redemption, or for the happening of the event which is to give the pledgor a right to have it back. In the first case the pledgee cannot demand payment of the debt, nor can the pledgor lawfully demand the restoration of the pledge, until the time appointed has expired. In the second case the pledgor is entitled to redeem at any time, by tendering to the pledgee the amount due to him, and the pledgee may compel the pledgor to redeem, or be foreclosed and lose his right of redemption altogether. If the debtor pays the debt due, or tenders it to the creditor, and demands the pledge, and the creditor refuses to deliver it up, the debtor may maintain an action for its recovery, unless his right to redeem has been barred by judgment of foreclosure, or has been forfeited under an express clause of forfeiture in the original contract, or unless the pledge has been sold by the creditor pursuant to a power of sale reserved to him (d).

Sale of pledgor's right of property and right of redemption.—As the ownership and general right of property in the pledge remain vested in the pledgor, the latter may sell the pledge subject to the lien of the pledgee, and substitute the purchaser in his place, so as to entitle the latter to redeem (e). If several chattels are pawned for one sum, separate sales may be made of them to different purchasers; but the pawnee will not be bound to part with any of the chattels until his whole debt is paid. Subject to the claim of the pawnee, the pawnor has the same (z) Shenston v. Hilton, (1894) 2 Q.B. 452; 63 L.J. Q.B. 584.

(a) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71; Hugill v. Masker, 22 Q.B.D. 364; 58 L.J. Q.B. 171, decided on the similar provisions of 40 & 41 Vict. c. 39, s. 4 (repealed).

(b) 52 & 53 Vict. c. 45, s. 10.

(c) Sect. 11.

(d) Ratcliffe v. Davies, Cro.Jac. 245; Yelv. 178; 1 Bulst. 29, 31; Kemp v. Westbrook, 1 Ves. Sen. 278.

(e) Franklin v. Neate, 13 M. & W 481; 14 L.J. Ex. 59.

right over each chattel separately which he had before the pawn was made.

Forfeiture of pledge.—Common law does not follow the later Roman and Continental law in treating agreements for the forfeiture of pledges as null and void, as being contrary to public policy. The court, however, will relieve against the forfeiture in the case of pledges of land; but it will not, in general, interfere in the case of pledges of movables (f), unless the value of the pledge greatly exceeds the amount of the debt which it was intended to secure.

Foreclosure of right of redemption—Pledgee's power of sale.—It would appear to be an implied term of every contract of pledge that the thing deposited shall be available for the liquidation of the debt secured by it, in case the pledgor is unable or unwilling to pay such debt (g). The pawnee is said by Lord Coke (h) to have a "property in and not a custody only" of the article pawned; that is, the pawn is a security to the pawnee, that he shall be repaid his debt and to compel the pawnor to pay him (i). Lord Hardwicke is reported to have said that a decree of foreclosure is not necessary, in pledges of personal chattels, to bar the pledgor's right of redemption, and enable the pledgee to sell (k); but, so long as the ownership and right of property in the pledge have not been vested in the pledgee, the latter cannot sell more than his own claim or lien upon the pledge, and can only transfer the pledge burthened with the pledgor's right of redemption, unless a power of sale has been expressly or impliedly reserved to him by contract (l). In order to make himself the owner of the pledge, the pledgee must bar the pledgor's right of redemption by a decree of foreclosure (m). "A right of lien gives no right to sell the goods:" but, if it is reasonably to be inferred, from the nature of the transaction between the parties, that the contract was to this effect, "If I (the borrower) re-pay the money, you must re-deliver the goods; but, if I fail to repay it, you may use the security I have left in your hands to re-pay yourself," the pledgee will then be entitled to sell, on default in re-payment at the time appointed, or, if no time be fixed, then after a reasonable notice to the pledgor of his intention, and to satisfy the debt out of the proceeds of such sale (n). If notice is given to the pledgor

(f) Lockwood v. Ewer, 9 Mod. 278.
(g) Story on Bailments, s. 311.
(h) Co.Litt. 89 a; Southcote's Case, 4 Rep. 83 b.
(i) Per Holt, C.J., Coggs v. Bernard, 2 Ld. Raym. 916, 917.
(k) Lockwood v. Ewer, 9 Mod. 279.
(l) Mickletlwaite v. Merrill, 19 L.T. 61.
(m) Wayne v. Hanham, 9 Hare, 62; 20 L.J. Ch. 530.
(n) Pothonier v. Dawson, Holt, N.P. 383, 385; Willes, J., Martin v. Reid, 11 C.B. N.S. 730; 31 L.J. C.P. 126; Pigot

that, unless the pledge is redeemed, and the debt due thereon paid by a given day (a reasonable time for redemption being allowed), the pledge will be sold by public auction, and the proceeds of the sale applied in liquidation of the debt, and the pledgor neglects to redeem, and pays no attention to the notice, and the sale then takes place, the pledgor may fairly be deemed to have authorised the sale, or to be an assenting party thereto (o).

Accounts between pledgor and pledgee.—Whenever the pledge has been sold by the pledgee, he is liable to be called upon to account for the proceeds of the sale, and to pay over to the pledgor any surplus that may be found to exist after deducting the debt, costs, and expenses. The possession of the pledge does not suspend the right of the pledgee to proceed personally against the pledgor for the recovery of the debt in respect of which the pledge was taken, as it is only a collateral security (p).

Custody and safe keeping of pledge.—Every person who receives goods into his possession by way of pledge impliedly undertakes to take the same care of them that a prudent man ordinarily takes of his own property. His liability, in this respect, is analogous to that of the hirer of chattels for use (ante, p. 805), the contract being, like the contract of letting and hiring, a contract for the mutual benefit of both parties. The pawnee or pledgee, consequently, is not responsible for the loss of the goods by robbery or accident, if he has taken reasonable care of them (q); and he may, notwithstanding the loss and his consequent inability to return the deposit, sue for the recovery of his debt. But, if the goods have been stolen under circumstances manifesting a want of reasonable care for their safety, he will of course be responsible for the loss. It is for the pawnee to prove the loss by robbery or accident, and to show that he was free from blame (r).

Use of things pledged.—"If the pawn be something that will be the worse for wear, as clothes, the pawnee cannot use it; but if it will not be the worse for wear, as jewels, the pawnee may use them; but then it must be at his peril, for, if he is robbed in wearing them, he is answerable. Also, if the pawn be of such a nature that the keeping is a charge to the pawnee,

v. Cubley, 15 C.B. N.S. 701; 33 L.J. C.P. 134; Deverges v. Sandeman, Clark & Co., (1902) 1 Ch. 579; 71 L.J. Ch. 328.

(o) Wilson v. Tooker, 5 Bro. P.C. 193.

(p) Lawton v. Newland, 2 Stark. 72; South Sea Co. v. Duncomb, 2 Str. 919; Holt, 461; Anon., 12 Mod. 564; Scott v. Parker, 1 Q.B. 809; 10 L.J. Q.B. 244.

(q) Syred v. Carruthers, E. B. & E. 469; 27 L.J. M.C. 273.

(r) Doorman v. Jenkins, 2 Ad. & E. 256; 4 L.J. K.B. 29.

as if it be a cow or horse, the pawnee may milk the cow or ride the horse; and this is in recompense of the keeping. If the money for which the goods were pawned be tendered to the pawnee before they are lost, then the pawnee shall be answerable for them at all events; because the pawnee, by detaining them after tender of the money" (the time of payment having arrived, or no time being fixed), "is a wrongdoer, and it is a wrongful detainer of the goods; and a man that keeps goods by wrong must be answerable for them at all events" (s). If a pawnee re-pawns or sells, before any default in payment by the original pawnor, the latter cannot sue the sub-pawnee or vendee to recover the pledge without tendering the amount for which the pledge was originally made (t).

As the right of property in the pledge remains in the pledgor until foreclosure, forfeiture, or sale, the pledgor may maintain an action against a stranger who unlawfully possesses himself of the goods; but, if there is any injury or conversion by a stranger for which an action will lie on the part of both the pledgor and pledgee, a recovery by one ousts the right to recover of the other; for there cannot be a double satisfaction (u). If the pledgor has sold his interest in the pawn to a third party, the latter will be the proper person to sue for damages resulting from injury to the pawn from the default or negligence of the pawnee, as the owner for the time being is the proper plaintiff (x). But a pawnbroker's interest in a redeemable pledge may be seized in execution by the sheriff under a fi. fa. (y).

Statutory rights and liabilities of pawnbrokers.—The rights and liabilities of pawnbrokers are regulated by the Pawnbrokers Act, 1872 (z). The Act, however, does not apply to loans of above ten pounds (a).

Who are to be deemed pawnbrokers.—Every person who keeps a house, shop, or other place for the purchase or sale of goods or chattels, or for taking in goods or chattels by way of security for money advanced thereon, and who purchases, or receives, or takes in any goods or chattels, and pays, or advances, or lends thereon any sum of money not exceeding 10*l.*, with or under any agreement or understanding, express or implied, or

(s) Coggs v. Bernard, 2 Ld. Raym. 912.

(t) Johnson v. Stear, 15 C.B. N.S. 330; 33 L.J. C.P. 130; Johnson v. Lanc. & Y. Ry., 3 C.P.D. 499; Donald v. Suckling, L.R. 1 Q.B. 585; 35 L.J. Q.B. 232; Halliday v. Holgate, L.R. 3 Ex. 299; 37 L.J. Ex. 174. As to sale by pawnee, see 56 & 57 Vict. c. 71, s. 21.

(u) Bac.Abr. Trover, C.; Rooth v. Wilson, 1 B. & Ald. 59.

(x) Franklin v. Neate, 13 M. & W. 486; 14 L.J. Ex. 59.

(y) Rollason, In re, 34 Ch.D. 495; 56 L.J. Ch. 768.

(z) 35 & 36 Vict. c. 93.

(a) Sect. 10.

to be from the nature and character of the dealing reasonably inferred, that such goods or chattels may be afterwards redeemed or repurchased on any terms whatever, is to be deemed to be a pawnbroker within the meaning of the Act (b). Every pawnbroker's name must be placed over the door of his place of business (c); wherefore a secret partnership in the business of a pawnbroker is illegal and void (d).

Sale of unredeemed pledges.—Pawnbrokers' sales are regulated by the provisions of the Pawnbrokers Act. If, at any time before the sale has actually taken place, the pledgor tenders the principal, interest, and expenses incurred, he has a right to have back the things pledged, and the pawnbroker cannot lawfully proceed with the sale (e). A special contract pawn ticket, given in the form prescribed by the Act, does not exclude the common law right of the pawnbroker to recover the balance due to him if the article pawned is sold for less than the amount of the debt (f).

Warranties on sales of unredeemed pledges.—We have already seen that, in the case of sales by pawnbrokers of unredeemed pledges expressly sold as such, the pawnbroker only warrants the subject-matter of the sale to be a pledge, the time for the redemption of which has expired. He sells merely his own title and interest in the pledge; and it is the duty of a purchaser to investigate that title (g); and, if he is evicted by reason of the want of title in the pledgor to make the pledge, he has no remedy over against the pawnbroker, unless the latter expressly warranted the title. The indemnity given by sect. 25 to a pawnbroker who delivers a pledge to the person producing the pawn ticket applies only as between the pawnor or owner who has authorised the pledging of the goods, but does not affect the common law rights of an owner of goods pledged against the owner's will (h).

Imperfect hypothecation—Licences to seize in case of non-payment of debt.—The common law does not recognise hypothecation of chattels or movables in the general and extended signification of the term, as conferring a right to have a debt paid out of property of which the creditor has not the possession; for, if parties who had bought things in a public market, or in the ordinary way of trade, of persons who had the possession

(b) 35 & 36 Vict. c. 93, s. 6.
(c) Sect. 13.
(d) Armstrong v. Lewis, 2 Cr. & M. 274, 297; 3 L.J. Ex. 359; Armstrong v. Armstrong, 3 Myl. & K. 45; 3 L.J. Ch. 101; Gordon v. Howden, 12 Cl. & Fin. 237; Fraser v. Hill, 1 Macq. 392.
(e) Walter v. Smith, 5 B. & Ald. 441.
(f) Jones v. Marshall, 24 Q.B.D. 269; 59 L.J. Q.B. 123.
(g) Ante, p. 565.
(h) Singer Manufacturing Co. v. Clark, 5 Ex.D. 37; 49 L.J. Ex. 224.

and visible ownership of them, were liable, after they had paid the purchase-money, to be called upon by third parties who had secret charges or liens upon such goods for further payment, all public confidence would be destroyed, and trade and commerce annihilated. But the law permits goods and chattels to be subjected to what is called by Continental jurists imperfect hypothecation, i.e., a debtor may, by deed under seal, grant to his creditor a right to seize and sell a specified chattel, or all his goods and chattels generally, in satisfaction and discharge of the debt, in case of the non-payment thereof at an appointed period. Such a power must be clearly and distinctly conferred before a court of justice can be expected to recognise it (i). The creditor, however, has no right to follow the goods into the hands of third parties; but so long as they remain in the possession of the debtor himself and continue his property, the creditor may seize them in the same way that a landlord distrains and sells the goods and chattels of his tenant on the demised premises for rent in arrear (k). A power of this description may be made to extend to all the after-acquired chattels of the debtor, as well as to the goods and chattels of which he was possessed at the time of the creation of such power. Where the owner of a cow, being indebted to the defendant for agistment, and being desirous of contracting a further debt for straw, &c., agreed with the defendant that the cow should be security for the debt, and that the defendant should be at liberty, upon a certain contingency, to take the cow wherever he could find her, and hold her till he was paid, and, on the happening of the contingency, the defendant seized the cow, it was held that he had a right so to do, and that he was entitled to detain the cow against the owner until he received payment of his debt (l). The right of detainer gives no right of sale, although it is exercised at great expense (m); but, if a debtor gives to his creditor a licence to enter upon his land and seize his cattle and crops and sell them in satisfaction and discharge of the debt, the licensee will be justified as against the licensor in seizing and selling under the licence (n). But the operation of a licence of this description cannot be extended beyond the immediate parties to it; and, therefore, as soon as the rights of third parties intervene, the power or authority becomes nugatory and

(i) Turner v. Haji Goolam Mahomed Azam, (1904) A.C. 826, 837; 74 L.J. P.C. 17.

(k) Chidell v. Galsworthy, 6 C.B. N.S. 471.

(l) Richards v. Symons, 8 Q.B. 90; 15 L.J. Q.B. 35.

(m) Thames Iron Works Co. v. Patent Derrick Co., 29 L.J. Ch. 714; 1 Jo. & H. 93.

(n) Carr v. Allatt, 27 L.J. Ex. 385.

useless. Thus, where a vendor entered into a written agreement for the sale of a coach on credit, upon the terms that, if the price was not paid pursuant to the agreement, he "should have and hold a claim upon the coach;" and the purchaser died, and, the money not being paid, the vendor got possession of the coach and detained it as a security for the debt; it was held that, although he would have been justified in doing so as between himself and the purchaser, yet, the latter being dead, he had no right to detain the coach as against the purchaser's personal representative (o), or against a trustee in bankruptcy (p). Neither can the licence be assigned or granted over to another so as to enable the assignee to distrain upon the licensor (q); nor can it prevail against the claim of a judgment creditor, so long as parties claiming under it have not perfected their title by taking possession of the property before it is seized in execution by the sheriff. A legal interest in the property, bonâ fide acquired before possession taken by the person claiming under the licence, will prevail over the claim of the latter (r). A promise to pay money when the debtor receives a debt due to him from a third person does not amount to an equitable charge on the debt (s).

Revocation of licence by act of bankruptcy.—A licence to seize and sell chattels in satisfaction and discharge of a debt gives no title to any specific chattels; but, when executed by the creditor taking possession of property under the licence, it clothes the licensee with the ownership of such property (t). If, therefore, after a debtor has granted his creditor a licence of this description, he commits an act of bankruptcy, and a receiving order is made against him, the licence will be annulled as regards his trustee (u).

Mortgages of ships and shares in ships.—It was at one time held that the Court of Chancery would give no effect to a contract to assign a ship as security for money due not registered in accordance with the Merchant Shipping Acts (x). But by

(o) Howes v. Ball, 7 B. & C. 481, 484; 6 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 106.

(p) Carr v. Acraman, 11 Exch. 566; 25 L.J. Ex. 90.

(q) Brown v. Metropolitan Counties Assur. Soc., 1 E. & E. 838; 28 L.J. Q.B. 236; Davis & Co., In re, Rawlings, Ex parte, 22 Q.B.D. 193.

(r) Reeve v. Whitmore, Martin v. Whitmore, 33 L.J. Ch. 63; and see Holroyd v. Marshall, 10 H.L.C. 191; 33 L.J. Ch. 193.

(s) Field v. Megaw, L.R. 4 C.P. 660.

(t) Congreve v. Evetts, 10 Exch. 308; 23 L.J. Ex. 273.

(u) Carr v. Acraman, supra; Baker v. Gray, 17 C.B. 462; 25 L.J. C.P. 161; Cole v. Kernot, L.R. 7 Q.B. 534; 41 L.J. Q.B. 221.

(x) Liverpool Borough Bank v. Turner, 30 L.J. Ch. 379; see Chasteauneuf v. Capeyron, 7 App.Cas. 127; 51 L.J. P.C. 37. A British ship seems to be a ship intended to be the property of a British owner: Union Bank of London v. Lenanton, 3 C.P.D. 243; 47 L.J. C.P. 409.

sect. 57 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894 (y), the expression "beneficial interest," whenever used in the Act, includes interests arising under contract and other equitable interests; and the intention of the Act is declared to be that, without prejudice to the provisions contained therein for preventing notice of trusts from being entered in the register book or received by the registrar, and without prejudice to the powers of disposition and of giving receipts conferred by the Act on registered owners and mortgagees, and without prejudice to the provisions therein contained relating to the exclusion of unqualified persons from the ownership of British ships, equities may be enforced against owners and mortgagees of ships in respect of their interests therein in the same manner as in respect of any other personal property (z). A legal mortgage of a ship has, however, priority over an equitable charge previously given, even where the legal mortgagee takes with notice of the charge (a). The mortgagee is not to be deemed to be the owner of the ship or share (b), nor the mortgagor to have ceased to be owner, except in so far as may be necessary for making such ship or share available as a security for the mortgage debt (c). The mortgagor in possession may employ and charter the ship and enter into all contracts touching the disposition of the ship which may be necessary to enable him to get the full value and the full benefit of his property; and the court will restrain the mortgagee from interfering with his contracts (d). But, while the mortgagor's dealings with regard to the ship will be valid and effectual, provided that they do not materially impair the security of the mortgagee, if his dealings are of such a character as to be inconsistent with the sufficiency of the security, the mortgagee may take possession although there may not have been any actual default on the part of the mortgagor under the mortgage and although the mortgagee may not have commenced any formal proceedings (e). The mortgagee has power absolutely to dispose of the mortgaged ship or share, and to give effectual

(y) 57 & 58 Vict. c. 60.

(z) See Ward v. Beck, 32 L.J. C.P. 113; 13 C.B. N.S. 668; and Hughes v. Sutherland, 7 Q.B.D. 160; 50 L.J. Q.B. 567.

(a) Black v. Williams, (1895) 1 Ch. 408; 64 L.J. Ch. 137; Barclay & Co. v. Poole, (1907) 2 Ch. 284; 76 L.J. Ch. 488.

(b) European, &c. Mail Co. v. Royal Mail Packet Co., 4 K. & J. 676; Dickinson v. Kitchen, 8 E. & B. 789; Marriott v. Anchor Reversionary Co., 30 L.J. Ch. 571; 3 De G. F. & J. 177.

(c) Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, 57 & 58 Vict. c. 60, s. 34.

(d) Collins v. Lamport, 34 L.J. Ch. 196; The Celtic King, (1894) P. 175; 63 L.J. P. 37; The Heather Bell, (1901) P. 272; 70 L.J. P. 57.

(e) The Manor, (1907) P. 339; Law Guarantee and Trust Society v. Russian Bank for Foreign Trade, (1905) 1 K.B. 815; 74 L.J. K.B. 577 (in the latter of which cases, ships were chartered to carry contraband of war without being insured against war risks).

receipts for the purchase-money; but, when there are several mortgages, no subsequent mortgagee can, except under an order of court, sell such ship or share without the concurrence of every prior mortgagee. An unsatisfied registered mortgage of a ship sold abroad may be enforced in any competent court of His Majesty's dominions if the ship comes within the jurisdiction of such court (f). A registered mortgage of a ship or share is not affected by any act of bankruptcy committed by the mortgagor after the date of the record of the mortgage, notwithstanding the mortgagor at the time of his becoming bankrupt may have the ship in his possession and disposition, and be reputed owner thereof. Provision is made for the transfer of mortgages, and for the transmission of the interest of mortgagees by death, bankruptcy, insolvency or marriage (g). Invalid or void transfers placed on the register may be expunged by order of the court in the exercise of its inherent jurisdiction (h). A mortgage of a ship passes to the mortgagee articles on board the ship necessary for her navigation or for the prosecution of the adventure on which she was engaged at the time of the mortgage (i). The guardian of a registered infant owner of a ship has no power under sect. 55, sub-sect. 1, of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894 (k), to sell or mortgage the ship on behalf of the infant (l).

A mortgagee who takes possession of a ship, or gives the charterer notice of his mortgage, and demands the freight before the freight becomes payable, is entitled, as against the mortgagor and his assigns, to receive it (m); but until the mortgagee takes possession or does some equivalent act, the mortgagor is entitled to the freight previously earned, and is not accountable to the mortgagee for what he receives (n). When the mortgage is of the entirety of the vessel, the mortgagee may take exclusive possession; when it is of shares only, he cannot take possession so as to prevent the other part-owners from also taking possession. A mortgagee of shares in a ship may, without formally taking possession, give notice of his interest, and require payment to himself of his share of the freight (o). Until possession

(f) Merchant Shipping Act, 1906, 6 Edw. 7, c. 48, s. 52.

(g) 57 & 58 Vict. c. 60, ss. 31—46.

(h) Brond v. Broomhall, (1906) 1 K.B. 571; 75 L.J. K.B. 548.

(i) Coltman v. Chamberlain, 25 Q.B.D. 328; 59 L.J. Q.B. 563.

(k) 57 & 58 Vict. c. 60, s. 55 (1), which replaces sect. 99 of the Act of 1854.

(l) Michael v. Fripp, L.R. 7 Eq. 95; 38 L.J. Ch. 29.

(m) Rusden v. Pope, L.R. 3 Ex. 269; 37 L.J. Ex. 137; Brown v. Tanner, L.R. 3 Ch. 597; 37 L.J. Ch. 923; Wilson v. Wilson, L.R. 14 Eq. 32; 41 L.J. Ch. 423.

(n) Keith v. Burrows, 2 App.Cas. 636; 46 L.J. C.P. 801; Anderson v. Butler's Wharf Co., 48 L.J. Ch. 824, 828; Shillito v. Biggart, (1903) 1 K.B. 683; 72 L.J. K.B. 294.

(o) Cato v. Irving, 21 L.J. Ch. 675; 5 De G. & Sm. 210; Gardner v. Cazenove, is taken by the mortgagee, the mortgagor remains dominus of the ship with regard to everything connected with its employment (p). A mortgagee of a ship is entitled to payment in priority to materialmen not in such actual possession at the time of supplying the materials as to give them a lien (q). A subsequent mortgage, duly registered, of a ship has priority over a claim for necessaries (r). The first registered mortgagee of a ship, by taking possession of her before the freight is completely earned, obtains a legal right to receive the freight, and to retain thereout, not only what is due on his first mortgage, but also the amount of any subsequent charge he may have acquired on the freight, in priority to every equitable charge of which he had no notice; and it makes no difference that a subsequent incumbrancer was the first to give notice to the charterers of his charge on the freight (s). The effect of an omission to register a mortgage of a ship is to postpone the mortgagee's claim to that of a subsequent registered mortgagee or transferee; but such omission is no answer to a claim by the first mortgagee for freight, as against a purchaser of the cargo without notice of the mortgagee's title (t). If the mortgagor of a ship attaches the goods to the ship in such a way as to make them part of the ship's equipment, then such act, if followed by the mortgagee taking possession, will constitute a "delivery" of the goods by the hirer under a "disposition" to the mortgagee within sect. 9 (u).

Maritime lien—Bottomry.—The contract of hypothecation of ships known to the civil law, and enforced in our Courts of Admiralty, is a contract whereby the captain of a vessel in a foreign port, not having any credit in the port where the vessel is lying, is enabled to obtain money for the repair and equipment of the vessel, and for supplies and sea stores for the prosecution of the voyage (x), by creating a charge or lien upon the vessel itself in favour of the lender, so that, if the vessel is sold or mortgaged by the owners, it will pass burdened with the charge or debt into the hands of the purchaser or mortgagee.

1 H. & N. 423; 26 L.J. Ex. 17; Willis v. Palmer, 7 C.B. N.S. 340; 29 L.J. C.P. 194; Rusden v. Pope, L.R. 3 Ex. 269; 37 L.J. Ex. 137.

(p) Per Cairns, L.C., Keith v. Burrows, 2 App.Cas. 636, 645; 46 L.J. C.P. 801.

(q) The Scio, L.R. 1 A. & E. 353.

(r) The Pacific, 2 Br. & L. 243; 33 L.J. Adm. 120; The Two Ellens, L.R. 4 P.C. 161; 41 L.J. Adm. 33.

(s) Liverpool Marine Credit Co. v. Wilson, L.R. 7 Ch. 507; 41 L.J. Ch. 798.

(t) Keith v. Burrows, 1 C.P.D. 722; 45 L.J. C.P. 876, reversed on appeal upon another point; 2 C.P.D. 163; 46 L.J. P.C. 452; affirmed, 2 App.Cas. 636; 46 L.J. C.P. 801.

(u) Hull Ropeworks Co. v. Adams, 65 L.J. Q.B. 114.

(x) The Huntley, 1 Lush. 24; The Edmond, 30 L.J. Adm. 128; but disbursements for charges for which the consignee of the cargo is liable are not the subject of bottomry: Ib.

The charge or lien created by a contract of this description is called a maritime lien. Wherever a maritime lien exists, it gives a right or claim upon a vessel capable of being enforced by legal process. This right travels with the vessel, and may be the subject of a proceeding in rem in the Court of Admiralty (y). No such right can be acquired but by express agreement; and a ship-master can only make such an agreement if he act within the scope of his authority (z). The contract by which a maritime lien is generally created by English ship-masters is termed a contract of bottomry, from the keel or bottom of the vessel being generally expressly hypothecated, or charged with the payment of the debt, and being used figuratively in the contract to denote the whole ship. It is essential to the validity of this species of hypothecation that the sea risk should be incurred by the lender, that is to say, that the debt should be incurred, and charged upon the vessel, upon the understanding that, if the vessel is lost, the lender loses his money, but, if it arrives safe at the port of destination, it shall stand charged with the payment of the debt (a). The master has no authority to hypothecate the vessel in any other manner (b); and the Court of Admiralty has no jurisdiction to enforce any other contract (c). As a remuneration for this risk, the creditor has always been entitled to take and charge upon the vessel any rate of interest or remuneration for the loan or debt that the parties might agree upon, termed maritime interest (d). The only events which will discharge a bottomry bond are payment and an absolute total loss. A constructive total loss of the ship does not discharge the bond (e).

Power of ship-master to hypothecate.—The extent of the authority of the master of a vessel to bind the owners either of the ship or cargo, is derived from, and governed by, the law of (y) Harmer v. Bell, 7 Moore, P.C. 267; Menetone v. Gibbons, 3 T.R. 267; Ladbrooke v. Crickett, 2 T.R. 649.

(z) It has been held that the Admiralty Court Act, 1840, 3 & 4 Vict. c. 65, s. 6, does not give a maritime lien in respect of necessaries supplied to a foreign ship in an English port: The Henrich Björn, 11 App.Cas. 270; 55 L.J. P. 80; nor in respect of mere towage apart from salvage: Westrup v. Gt. Yarmouth Co., 43 Ch.D. 241; 59 L.J. Ch. 111; nor in respect of brokerage on a charter-party: The Marianne, (1891) P. 180; 60 L.J. P. 39; nor does the Admiralty Court Act, 1861, 24 Vict. c. 10, s. 10, give the master a maritime lien for disbursements: The Sara, 14 App.Cas. 209; 58 L.J. P. 57; though by the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, 57 & 58 Vict. c. 60, s. 167, he has the same remedies and rights with regard to these as he has for the recovery of his wages: see post, p. 966.

(a) As to what amounts to a valid bottomry bond, see The Haabet, (1899) P. 295; 66 L.J. P. 121.

(b) Stainbank v. Fenning, 11 C.B. 51; 20 L.J. C.P. 226.

(c) The Royal Arch, Swabey, 269, 281; The Indomitable, Swabey, 446; 5 Jur. N.S. 632; The Ida, L.R. 3 A. & E. 542; 41 L.J. Adm. 85.

(d) Joy v. Kent, Hardr. 418.

(e) Thomson v. Royal Exchange Assur. Co., 1 M. & S. 30; Broomfield v. Southern Insurance Co., L.R. 5 Ex. 192; 39 L.J. Ex. 186.

the flag (f). By our law the ship-master has no right to create a lien upon the vessel, until he has made every reasonable endeavour to obtain supplies, repairs, or money, upon his own personal credit or that of the owners (g). It is not until all other means of obtaining necessaries fail that he has authority to hypothecate the ship, and to give maritime interest, which is in effect defeating the object of the adventure, and transferring to the creditor much of the profits of the voyage (h). If the master at a foreign port is able to communicate speedily with the owners, it is his duty to do so before he orders repairs or supplies (i); and, where practicable, he must do so before he can create a lien on the vessel or cargo (k). It is no excuse for not communicating with the owner under such circumstances, that he is insolvent, unless he has been judicially declared so, and the ownership of the vessel has vested in his trustee in bankruptcy, in which case notice should be given to the trustee (l). If the ship-master borrows money for his own purposes or for those of the consignee of the cargo (m), as distinguished from those of the ship-owners, his contract will fail to create a lien upon the vessel (n). Repairs executed, or advances made, on personal credit cannot afterwards be converted into a bottomry transaction. There are, however, cases of extreme urgency, where the master is dead, and the merchant advances money intending to require a bottomry bond from the beginning, and gives the owners the earliest possible notice of his intention, in which case the bond may be upheld, though no agreement for it was originally made; but they are cases of exception to the general principle. The master ought, in general, to be distinctly apprised of the intention of a lender of the money to require a bottomry bond, that he may have time and opportunity to exercise his discretion as to entering into the contract, or to try at least to take other means to avoid the necessity, to advise with the owners of the ship and cargo, if it be practicable, or, if not, at least to consult with persons on the spot.

But, although when a ship-master orders repairs and supplies on credit given to him personally, those who gave the credit cannot take a bottomry bond, yet a merchant, a stranger to

(f) The Karnak, L.R. 2 P.C. 505; 38 L.J. Adm. 57.

(g) Heathorne v. Darling, 1 Moore, P.C.C. 5; The Nelson, 1 Hagg. 176; La Ysabel, 1 Dodson, 273; The Orelia, 3 Hag. 84; The Dunregan Castle, ib. 331.

(h) The Pontida, 9 P.D. 177; 53 L.J. P. 78.

(i) Wallace v. Fieldin, 7 Moore, P.C.C. 398; Duranty v. Hart, 2 Moo. P.C. N.S. 289; 33 L.J. Adm. 116; The Olivier, Lush. 484; The Hamburg, 32 L.J. Adm. 161.

(k) Kleinwort & Co. v. Cassa Maritima of Genoa, 2 App.Cas. 156.

(l) The Panama, L.R. 3 P.C. 199; 39 L.J. Adm. 37.

(m) The Edmond, 30 L.J. Adm. 128.

(n) The Reliance, 3 Hag. 66.

the transaction, or even an agent, if he has not made himself responsible, may advance money on bottomry to liquidate those demands (o); and a bottomry bond may, it seems, be given at the same time with, and as a collateral security for, bills of exchange for repairs and necessaries for the voyage, in this sense that, if the bills of exchange are honoured, the bottomry bond is discharged (p).

If, after a bond hypothecating the vessel has been entered into, the vessel becomes damaged, and puts into a foreign port for shelter, it cannot be sold by the master so as to extinguish the maritime lien; and, as the doctrine of constructive total loss does not apply to bottomry bonds, if the ship is found unseaworthy and sold, the bondholder will be entitled to a first charge on the proceeds (q). In the case of British ships, the certificate of registry is (r) the chief evidence of title; and all bottomry bonds and hypothecations ought to be, and generally are, indorsed upon it; and no man should purchase a British ship, even in a foreign port, without seeing the certificate. It is the duty of purchasers of British ships in foreign ports to make strict inquiries and be especially careful to guard themselves against liens which adhere to the ship; and they cannot be safe in cases of sale by the master, unless recourse is had to a court of justice, and a decree is obtained for the sale of the vessel (s). A British consul in a foreign port is entitled, under certain circumstances of urgent necessity, when the master is dead, to hypothecate a vessel and cargo through the medium of a bottomry bond (t).

Lien on vessels causing damage.—The owner of a vessel damaged at sea by collision with another vessel has a lien upon the vessel causing the damage, which may be enforced in the Court of Admiralty by a proceeding in rem against the vessel, so that, if the vessel causing the damage is carried to a distant port, and sold to a bonâ fide purchaser without notice of the lien, the vessel may nevertheless be attached in the hands of such bonâ fide purchaser and sold to satisfy the damage. But this lien may be lost by negligence or delay, where the rights of third parties are thereby compromised (u). A maritime lien is inchoate from the moment the claim or privilege attaches, and, when carried into effect by legal process by a proceeding in rem,

(o) The Wave, 15 Jur. 518; The Augusta, 1 Dodson, 283; The Laurel, 33 L.J. Adm. 17; Br. & L. 191.

(p) Stainbank v. Shepard, 22 L.J. Ex. 341; 13 C.B. 418; The Emancipation, 1 Wm.Rob. 124.

(q) The Great Pacific, L.R. 2 P.C. 516; 38 L.J. Adm. 45.

(r) See Addison on Torts, p. 621 (ed. 8).

(s) The Catharine, 15 Jur. 231.

(t) The Cynthia, 16 Jur. 748.

(u) The Europa, 2 Moo. P.C. N.S. 1; 32 L.J. Adm. 189.

relates back to the period when it first attached (x). But no bottomry bondholder or mortgagee can be a competitor with a successful suitor in a cause of damage in the Admiralty Court. The lien of the latter will prevail over both the mortgage and the bottomry bond, unless the bottomry bond has been granted after the damage has been done.

Priority of maritime liens.—Where there were two bottomry bonds attaching on the vessel causing the damage, one entered into before, and the other after, the collision, it was held that the lien for the damage must be preferred to the lien of the first bondholder, but that it did not extend to the increased value of the vessel resulting from repairs effected at the cost of the second bondholder (y). Where several bottomry bonds have been given by the master at different periods during the voyage, those of the latest date have the priority of payment, on the supposition that the last bond operates for the protection of the prior interests (z). A bottomry bond also executed under the pressure of necessity at a foreign port will supersede a previous mortgage of the ship (a).

Hypothecation of cargo and merchandise.—The master of a ship may, under the pressure of extreme necessity, and where he is unable to communicate with the owner (b), hypothecate the cargo as well as the ship, to enable him to raise funds to prosecute the voyage and deliver the goods at the port of destination. He is clothed with an implied authority to take whatever steps ought to be taken to protect the cargo from impending destruction (c). But he can do no more than the owners themselves could if actually present; and he cannot sell against their will (d). He may create and continue a charge upon the cargo in favour of the lender of the money so long as such cargo remains in his possession; but he has no power to hypothecate it so as to enable the creditor to follow it after it has been sold or transferred (e). Where a ship, freight, and cargo were all hypothecated by one bottomry bond at a foreign port for necessary repairs, and the plaintiff's goods formed part of the cargo so hypothecated, and the ship and freight realised less than the sum borrowed, so that the goods became liable for the deficiency, (x) Harmer v. Bell, 7 Moore, P.C. 267, 285; The Elin, 8 P.D. 129; 52 L.J. P. 55.

(y) The Aline, 1 W.Rob. 111, 120.

(z) The Betsy, 1 Dodson, 289; The Rhadamanthe, ib. 201.

(a) The Duke of Bedford, 2 Hag. 294.

(b) Australasian Steam Navigation Co. v. Morse, L.R. 4 P.C. 222.

(c) The Gratitudine, 3 Rob. 240; The Soblomstem, L.R. 1 A. & E. 293, 299; 36 L.J. Adm. 5.

(d) Australasian Steam Navigation Co. v. Morse, supra; Acatos v. Burns, 3 Ex.D. 282; 47 L.J. Ex. 566.

(e) Busk v. Fearon, 4 East, 319.

it was held that the plaintiff might maintain an action against the shipowner for the recovery of the money he had been obliged to pay to release his cargo; also that the shipowner could not abandon the ship and freight, and refuse to ratify the act of the master, because the costs and expenses exceeded the value of the ship, when repaired, and the freight; and that "a merchant advancing money on bottomry in a foreign port, though bound to show a reasonable case of unprovided necessity for the advance, from the want of repair, or otherwise, is not bound to inquire into the expediency of incurring the expense of these repairs with reference to the interest of the owner" (f). By the French law, on the contrary, the shipowner in a similar case may abandon the ship and freight, and, if he does so, will not be liable to the shipper for money paid to release the cargo (g).

Illegal pledges.—By the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894 (h), any pledge of the certificate of registry of a ship is made illegal and void; and, therefore, if a sole owner and captain pledges the certificate for good consideration, he may nevertheless re-demand the document for the purposes of navigation, and may maintain an action against the pledgee if it is not delivered up on request (i).

Mortgage of fixtures.—This may be made through the medium of any instrument of conveyance in writing, and need not be by deed (k). If certain fixtures are enumerated in a mortgage-deed, and there is then a clause embracing all fixtures upon the premises, fixtures of all kinds will pass to the mortgagee (l). If the mortgagor makes default in payment of the mortgage debt at the time appointed, the mortgagee may proceed to sell, without taking proceedings to foreclose, and may apply the proceeds of the sale in liquidation of the mortgage debt, interest and costs (m). But he will be ordered to account for and pay over any surplus that may remain (n). If he does not think fit to (f) Duncan v. Benson, 1 Exch. 537, 554; 17 L.J. Ex. 238; affirmed, 3 Exch. 644; 18 L.J. Ex. 169.

(g) Lloyd v. Guibert, L.R. 1 Q.B. 115; 35 L.J. Q.B. 74; but as to when French law applies, see Greer v. Poole, 5 Q.B.D. 272; 49 L.J. Q.B. 463.

(h) 57 & 58 Vict. c. 60, s. 15.

(i) Wiley v. Crawford, 1 B. & S. 253; 30 L.J. Q.B. 319. See also Addison on Torts, p. 621 (ed. 8).

(k) Thompson v. Pettitt, 10 Q.B. 101; 16 L.J. Q.B. 162. By the Bills of Sale Act, 1878, 41 & 42 Vict. c. 31, s. 4, personal chattels include fixtures when separately assigned or charged; cp. the Bills of Sale Act, 1882, 45 & 46 Vict. c. 43, s. 6; as to when fixtures are deemed to be separately assigned or charged, see ss. 5 and 7.

(l) Haley v. Hammersley, 30 L.J. Ch. 771; 3 De G. F. & J. 587; Southport and West Lancashire Banking Co. v. Thompson, 37 Ch.D. 64; 57 L.J. Ch. 114; cp. Lambourn v. McLellan, (1903) 2 Ch. 268; 72 L.J. Ch. 617.

(m) Wilson v. Tooker, 5 Bro. P.C. 193; Lockwood v. Ewer, 2 Atk. 303; Kemp v. Westbrook, 1 Ves.Sen. 278.

(n) Harrison v. Hart, 1 Comyns, 393.

sell, he can obtain a decree of foreclosure, and bar the equity of redemption, and make the property his own (o).

Right to fixtures as between mortgagor and mortgagee.—A mortgagor in possession may become tenant at will to the mortgagee, or tenant at sufferance; but he is not, in general, tenant for any term. The cases, therefore, respecting the right to disannex and remove fixtures as between landlord and tenant, have no application to the case of mortgagor and mortgagee. A mortgage made by the owner of the inheritance will, in general, pass all the fixtures thereon, though they are not named in the deed, and although they are trade fixtures which have been annexed to the freehold for the more convenient using of them and not to improve the inheritance, and are capable of being removed without any appreciable damage to the freehold (p). They pass to the mortgagee as part and parcel of the inheritance; and the mortgagor does not, by becoming tenant to the mortgagee, acquire any right to remove any portion of them, although they would be removable in ordinary cases as between landlord and tenant (q). Trade fixtures, affixed to mortgaged freehold premises after the mortgage, by the mortgagor and partner, occupying the premises for the purpose of their trade, pass to the mortgagee (r). But this is not so when the fixtures belong to a tenant of the mortgagor (s). In the absence of express stipulation to the contrary, a mortgagee of business premises, by leaving the mortgagor in possession, impliedly authorizes him to carry on his business and to do everything which is usual and proper for that purpose, including the erection and removal of trade fixtures, but the right of removal ceases when the mortgagee takes possession (t).

(o) Wayne v. Hanham, 9 Hare, 62; 20 L.J. Ch. 530

(p) Climie v. Wood, L.R. 4 Ex. 328; 38 L.J. Ex. 223; Holland v. Hodgson, L.R. 7 C.P. 328; 41 L.J. C.P. 146; Cumberland Union Banking Co. v. Maryport Hematite Co., (1892) 1 Ch. 415; 61 L.J. Ch. 335; Hobson v. Gorringe, (1897) 1 Ch. 182; 66 L.J. Ch. 114; Reynolds v. Ashby, (1904) A.C. 466; 73 L.J. K.B. 946; cp Lyon v. London, City and Midland Bank, (1903) 2 K.B. 135; 72 L.J. K.B. 465. As to things not strictly fixtures substituted to improve the inheritance, see Monti v. Barnes, (1901) 1 K.B. 205; 70 L.J. K.B. 225.

(q) Walmsley v. Milne, 7 C.B. N.S. 115; 29 L.J. C.P. 97; Mather v. Fraser, 2 K. & J. 536; 25 L.J. Ch. 361; Haley v. Hammersley, 30 L.J. Ch. 771; 3 De G. F. & J. 587; Reynolds v. Ashby, supra.

(r) Cotton, Ex parte, 2 M. D. & D. 725; Cullwick v. Swindell, L.R. 3 Eq. 249; 36 L.J. Ch. 173; Longbottom v. Berry, L.R. 5 Q.B. 123; 39 L.J. Q.B. 37; Sheffield Building Society v. Harrison, 15 Q.B.D. 358; 54 L.J. Q.B. 15.

(s) Sanders v. Davis, 15 Q.B.D. 218; 54 L.J. Q.B. 576.

(t) Gough v. Wood & Co., (1894) 1 Q.B. 713; 63 L.J. Q.B. 564; Thomas v. Jennings, 66 L.J. Q.B. 5; Hobson v. Gorringe, (1897) 1 Ch. 182; 66 L.J. Ch. 114; Ellis v. Glover and Hobson, (1908) 1 K.B. 388; 77 L.J. K.B. 251. As to an equitable mortgagee's rights to fixtures being subject to a hire-purchase agreement, see Allen & Sons, In re, (1907) 1 Ch. 575; 76 L.J. Ch. 362.

SECTION III.

MORTGAGE, ETC., OF INCORPOREALS.

Mortgages of shares and stock.—These may be effected by the execution by the mortgagor of an ordinary deed of transfer conveying the shares to the mortgagee in consideration of the payment of the mortgage-money, as in the case of an absolute sale, taking at the same time a separate deed from the mortgagee, admitting that the transfer, though absolute on the face of it, was in reality made by way of mortgage, and undertaking to re-transfer the shares by a given day on repayment by the transferor of the mortgage-money. If the transfer is on the face of it made conditional by way of mortgage, and not in the ordinary form of transfer given by the statute incorporating the company, the company will refuse to register it, as they cannot, as we shall see, place on the register transfers complicated with trusts and conditions (u). Foreclosure, and not sale, is the remedy of an equitable mortgagee of shares (x).

If a person transfers his shares in a company by way of mortgage, and the mortgagee, as registered owner, becomes liable for calls or other payments (y), he cannot compel his mortgagor to indemnify him, unless he comes to redeem the shares (z).

It is not uncommon that an equitable mortgage of shares is effected by deposit with the mortgagee of the certificates accompanied by blank transfers. In such a transaction the mortgagee is impliedly authorised to fill up the blank left for the name of the transferee and get himself registered by way of realising the security (a). Where transfer must be by deed, however, a blank transfer so filled up will merely pass an equitable interest unless it has been re-delivered after being filled up (b).

A fraudulent transfer by the mortgagee will be ineffectual as against the owner after the transferees have had notice of the true ownership (c).

Mortgages of stock and shares void by reason of reputed

(u) Reg. v. General Cemetery Co., 6 E. & B. 415 ; 25 L.J. Q.B. 342.

(x) Harrold v. Plenty, (1901) 2 Ch. 314 ; 70 L.J. Ch. 562 ; cp. Redmayne v. Forster, L.R. 2 Eq. 467 ; 35 L.J. Ch. 847.

(y) See Bloomenthal v. Ford, (1897) A.C. 156 ; 66 L.J. Ch. 253.

(z) Smith's Man. of Eq. 303 (ed. 15).

(a) In re Tahiti Cotton Co., Ex parte Sargent, L.R. 17 Eq. 273 ; 43 L.J. Ch. 425 ; Hooper v. Herts, (1906) 1 Ch. 549 ; 75 L.J. Ch. 253.

(b) Hibblewhite v. M'Morine, 6 M. & W. 200 ; Tees Bottle Co., In re, 33 L.T. 834.

(c) Ortigosa v. Brown, 47 L.J. Ch. 168.

ownership.—If money is advanced on the security of a transfer of shares made by way of mortgage, and the transfer is not registered in the register of shareholders of the company, so that the mortgagor still appears on the register as the holder of the shares, the shares will be in his order and disposition, and, in case of his bankruptcy, will pass to his trustee; but, if the transfer cannot be made without the production of the mortgagor's certificates of proprietorship, and these certificates have been placed in the hands of the mortgagee so as to give the latter an equitable lien upon them, then, as the mortgagor has no power to transfer, the shares are not in his order and disposition (d).

Lien upon shares and stock.—Certificates of proprietorship of shares frequently have a notice upon them, warning that no transfer of the shares can be effected without the production of the certificates; and the companies will refuse to register transfer-deeds, unless the certificates of proprietorship of the transferor have previously been deposited at the transfer office. If, therefore, a shareholder borrows money on the security of shares, and deposits his certificates in the hands of the lender, accompanied by an agreement, in writing, to transfer the shares to the lender, or to his nominee, in case of the non-payment of the money by the time appointed, there will be a good charge upon the shares (e); but, to perfect the equitable title, notice of the deposit of the certificates must be given to the company, to prevent the shareholder from transferring his shares or obtaining fresh certificates by perjury or fraud, and if shares are equitably assigned or are left standing in the name of a bankrupt shareholder, they will pass to his trustee under the order and disposition clause unless notice has been given as aforesaid (f).

The fact that the company is not bound to take notice of any trust will not render nugatory a notice to them of the deposit of the certificates by way of security for a loan, and will not prevent a deposit of the certificates of proprietorship by way of security for a loan from constituting a valid charge upon the shares (g).

Where a sister advanced her brother 1,800*l*. on the security of a deposit of mining shares belonging to the brother, and received

(d) Harrison, Ex parte, 3 Dea. 196.

(e) Richardson, Ex parte, 3 Dea. 496, 503; Littledale, Ex parte, 6 De G. M. & G. 730; Stewart, Ex parte, 34 L.J. Ch. 6.

(f) Société Générale de Paris v. Tramways Union Co., 14 Q.B.D. 424; 54 L.J. Q.B. 177; affirmed, 11 A.C. 20; 55 L.J. Q.B. 169.

(g) Stewart. Ex parte, supra, explaining and qualifying Boulton, Ex parte, 1 De G. & J. 163; 26 L.J. Bankr. 45.

the certificates of the shares, together with an undertaking, signed by the brother, to complete the transfer of the shares when required, and placed the certificates and the undertaking in an inclosure which she sealed with her seal, and then deposited in an iron safe belonging to her brother for greater security, it was held that the certificates were not in his possession, order, or disposition at all. He had certainly the custody of the packet, but could not lawfully have broken the seal to get at the contents (h).

(h) Richardson, Ex parte, 3 Dea. 503.

CHAPTER IV.

CONTRACTS FOR SERVICES.

SECTION I.

WORK AND LABOUR.

Deposit or simple bailment may be defined to be a delivery or bailment of goods in trust to be kept for the bailor and re-delivered on demand. It is of the very essence of a deposit that it be gratuitous; for, if anything is to be paid for the care and custody of the article, it immediately becomes a contract for the letting and hiring of labour and services and care to be employed upon the chattel. Where shares were deposited with bankers by a customer under such circumstances as would have entitled the bankers to a lien upon them for their general banking account, it was held that they were bailees for reward (a).

Requisites of deposit—Executory and executed promises.—To constitute a deposit, the subject-matter of the bailment must be either actually or constructively delivered to the bailee, or it must be in his possession or under his control at the time he undertakes the charge of it. But a man cannot be made a depositary without his knowledge and consent; he cannot have the possession of another man's property, with its accompanying duties and responsibilities, forced upon him against his will. Thus, if a tradesman anxious to sell his wares and merchandise sends them to my house without any previous communication with me, and without having obtained my previous consent, and they are taken in by my servant, in my absence, or without my knowledge, I do not by reason thereof become the depositary of the goods, and clothe myself with the care of them (b).

Liabilities of depositary—Negligent keeping—Ordinary casualties.—A bailee or depositary is not in general liable as an insurer, but is only bound to take that care of things accepted by him to keep, which a reasonably prudent man takes of his own property of a like description (c). He will be liable to make compensation to the owner, if the goods are stolen, damaged, or lost by reason of negligence in the keeping of them; but he is not responsible for slight neglect or ordinary casualties (d). But if he is guilty of negligence, it is no answer to say that he lost his own goods at the time he lost the goods of the bailor (e). Where goods are given into the sole custody of a person and accepted by him as bailee, and they are lost while in his custody, the onus lies upon him to show circumstances negativing negligence on his part (f). If a man takes charge of money, and leaves it upon a shelf, or in an open drawer in a place of public resort, when he might have placed it under lock and key, this is evidence of negligence. If a package or a box, sealed or locked, be deposited, and the depositary is not made acquainted with the contents, he is bound only to take that care of the article which its general appearance seems to require; and in case it should be lost or destroyed through neglect, he will only be liable to the extent of the apparent value of the article, without reference to the contents; but, if he is made acquainted with the contents—if he is told that the box contains gold or jewels, glass or china, of great value—he is then bound to exercise a degree of care proportioned to the proper keeping of such articles; and, if he then exposes the box in unsafe places, or subjects it to improper treatment, and the contents are damaged or destroyed, he must make compensation to the owner to the full extent of the injury sustained (g). Where property is deposited with bankers gratuitously, they are only liable for gross negligence (h). An executor stands in the position of a gratuitous bailee in respect of the assets (i).

(a) Johnston's Claim, L.R. 6 Ch. 212; 40 L.J. Ch. 286.

(b) Lethbridge v. Phillips, 2 Stark. 544; Howard v. Harris, 1 C. & E. 253.

Carelessness on part of depositor in selecting person notoriously unfit to be trusted.—The law, however, expects a depositor to exercise a reasonable amount of vigilance in the protection of his own interests; and, if he will blindly deposit goods in the hands of a person of weak intellect, or a child, or a minor

(c) Giblin v. McMullen, L.R. 2 P.C. 317; 38 L.J. P.C. 25; Bullen v. Swan Electric Engineering Co., 23 T.L.R. 258.

(d) Coggs v. Bernard, 2 Raym. 913; Lane v. Cotton, 1 ib. 655; Southcote's Case, 4 Co. 83, b; Jones v. Lewis, 2 Ves. Sen. 240; Taylor v. Caldwell, 32 L.J. Q.B. 164; 3 B. & S. 826; ante, p. 762.

(e) Doorman v. Jenkins, 2 Ad. & E. 256; 4 L.J. K.B. 29.

(f) Phipps v. New Claridge's Hotel, Ltd., 22 T.L.R. 49.

(g) Bonion's Case, Pasch. 8 Edw. 2; Mayn. Year Book, 275; Fitz.Abr. Detinue, 59.

(h) Giblin v. McMullen, L.R. 2 P.C. 317; 38 L.J. P.C. 25.

(i) Job v. Job, 6 Ch.D. 562.

without experience, or a notoriously idle and careless, or drunken fellow, he cannot expect the same care from them as from a prudent and cautious housekeeper. If the goods are injured or lost by the gross negligence of such depositaries, he must bear the consequence of his own rashness and folly, and put up with the loss (k).

Theft by servant of depositary.—If a servant steps out of the course of his employment to do a wrong, either fraudulently or feloniously, towards another, the master is no more answerable than any stranger (l). If the carefully-selected servant of the depositary negligently leaves the door of a house or warehouse open, and thieves avail themselves of the opportunity thus afforded them to enter the house and steal the deposit, it appears that the depositary is not responsible for the theft (m). It is laid down by Holt, C.J., that "no master is chargeable with the acts of his servant, but when he acts in execution of the authority given by his master; and then the act of the servant is the act of the master" (n). If, therefore, a servant "quits sight of the object for which he is employed, and, without having in view his master's orders, pursues that which his own malice suggests, he no longer acts in pursuance of the authority given him, and his master will not be answerable for such act" (o). It is the custom of bankers to receive and keep for the accommodation of their customers boxes of plate and jewels, wills, deeds, and securities; and, as no charge is made for the keeping of these things, they are, as we have seen, gratuitous deposits. The bankers, therefore, are not bound to exercise more than ordinary care of the deposits entrusted to them, and the negligence for which alone they are liable is the want of that ordinary diligence which a reasonably prudent man takes of his own property of the like description; and, if they are stolen by a clerk or servant employed about the bank, the bankers are not responsible, unless they have knowingly hired or kept in their service a dishonest servant (p).

Use and enjoyment by depositary of subject-matter of deposit.—A depositary has no right to make use of the deposit for his (k) Coggs v. Bernard, 2 Raym. 914, 915.

(l) Doct. & Stud. ch. 42; Gayford v. Nicholls, 9 Exch. 702; 23 L.J. Ex. 205.

(m) Dansey v. Richardson, 3 E. & B. 144, 169; 23 L.J. Q.B. 217; ante, p. 762, and post, p. 900. The Court was divided on this point, but the views of Campbell, C.J., and Coleridge, J. were approved in Scarborough v. Cosgrove, (1905) 2 K.B. 805; 74 L.J. K.B. 892; see further Addison on Torts (ed. 8), 725, 748.

(n) Middleton v. Fowler, 1 Salk. 282.

(o) Ld. Kenyon, M'Manus v. Crickett, 1 East, 107; Reedie v. L. & N. W. Ry., 4 Exch. 244; 20 L.J. Ex. 65; Peachey v. Rowland, 13 C.B. 182; 22 L.J. C.P. 81.

(p) Giblin v. McMullen, L.R. 2 P.C. 317; 38 L.J. C.P. 25, ante, p. 845.

own benefit and advantage; if he does so, and the thing is lost or injured, or deteriorated in value, through such user, the depositary must make good the loss (q). If, however, the subject-matter of the bailment is a living animal, such as a hound or a horse, which requires air and exercise, the bailee has an implied authority from the owner to use it to a reasonable extent, and is under an implied engagement to give it proper air and exercise. Where corn was deposited by a farmer with a miller, to be used as part of the miller's current consumable stock, subject to the right of the farmer to claim at any time an equal quantity of wheat of similar quality, or, in lieu thereof, the market price of such quantity, it was held that this was a sale and not a bailment (r).

Transfer of deposit to stranger—Remedy of depositor.—If a depositary commits a breach of trust, and sells or wastes the deposit, the depositor may maintain an action against the purchaser for the recovery of the value of the deposit if the latter neglects to yield it up on demand (s), unless the thing has been purchased in market overt (t). Where a depositary has wrongfully sold the goods deposited with him, the bailor may sue him immediately for the conversion. If he does not discover the conversion until after the lapse of six years, he is, nevertheless, entitled to sue the depositary for refusing to deliver up the goods, and the Statute of Limitations will run only from the refusal to deliver on request, and not from the sale (u).

Restoration of deposit.—The depositary is bound to deliver up the deposit to the owner on demand, although the latter may be an entire stranger to him. A person has no right to keep the property of another, and charge for the standing of it, unless there was a previous bargain between him and the owner of the property or between him or some agent authorised by the owner (x). The bailee has no better title than the bailor; and, consequently, if a person entitled to the property as against the bailor claims it, the bailee must give it up to him (y). No action can be brought for the return of the deposit until a demand

(q) See Sanderson v. Collins, 89 L.T. 42; and The Coupé Co. v. Maddick, (1891) 2 Q.B. 413; 60 L.J. Q.B. 676.

(r) South Australian Ins. Co. v. Randell, L.R. 3 C.P. 101.

(s) Cooper v. Willomatt, 1 C.B. 672; 14 L.J. C.P. 219; Fenn v. Bittlestone, 7 Exch. 152; 21 L.J. Ex. 41; White v. Spettigue, 13 M. & W. 603; 14 L.J. Ex. 99.

(t) Addison on Torts, p. 515 (ed. 8).

(u) Wilkinson v. Verity, L.R. 6 C.P. 206; 40 L.J. C.P. 141. See Miller v. Dell, (1891) 1 Q.B. 468; 60 L.J. Q.B. 404; 12 Ed. 4, fol. 13, pl. 9; fol. 9, pl. 5; Loeschman v. Machin, 2 Stark. 311.

(x) Buxton v. Baughan, 6 C. & P. 674.

(y) Biddle v. Bond, 6 B. & S. 225; 34 L.J. Q.B. 137; Batut v. Hartley, L.R. 7 Q.B. 594; 41 L.J. Q.B. 273; Rogers v. Lambert, (1891) 1 Q.B. 318; 60 L.J. Q.B. 187. See, however, Davies, Ex parte, 19 Ch.D. 86; post, p. 954.

has been made, and the period of limitations does not begin to run until the demand has been made (z).

Joint and several deposits.—Where goods and chattels are deposited in the hands of a bailee by the concurring will of several joint owners, one of them has no right to demand them back without the authority of all the joint depositors. If some of them ask the bailee to return the property, and others desire him to keep it, the bailee is not liable to an action at the suit of those who require him to return it (a). If the bailee is bound by his contract to deliver the goods to the two jointly, his refusal to deliver them on the demand of one party alone is not a conversion, nor is his detention from such one party an unlawful detainer. But, if an action is brought by several joint bailors against the bailee for non-delivery of the goods, it is a good defence to the action that the goods have been delivered up to one of them (b). And, wherever several joint owners allow one of them to deal with their property, and place it in the hands of a bailee, the latter is accountable to the owner with whom he deals (c).

Transfers of subject-matter of bailment—Adverse claimants.—When chattels have been bailed, to be holden by the bailee at the disposal of the bailor, a question often arises as to the nature and extent of the liabilities of the bailee to persons who claim to be the owners of the chattels by sale or mortgage from the bailor. If the bailee has received the chattels upon the terms that he is to deliver them to the bailor, or to any person authorised by him to receive them, a bonâ fide purchaser or mortgagee, who is in possession of a bill of sale, or assignment, or mortgage, executed by the bailor, transferring all the bailor's interest in the chattels to such purchaser or mortgagee, may, on presenting such bill of sale or mortgage to the bailee, lawfully demand possession of the chattels, and, in case of the refusal of the latter to deliver them to him, may maintain an action for their recovery, the bill of sale or mortgage signed by the bailor being an authority or direction to the bailee to deliver up the chattels to the purchaser or mortgagee.

Eviction by title paramount.—A bailee can never be in a better position than the bailor. If the bailor has no title, the bailee can have none, for the bailor can give no better title

(z) Tidd, In re, (1893) 3 Ch. 154 ; 62 L.J. Ch. 915.

(a) Atwood v. Ernest, 22 L.J. C.P. 225 ; 13 C.B. 889 ; May v. Harvey, 13 East, 197.

(b) Burke v. Bryant, Addison on Torts, p. 609 (ed. 8) ; Brandon v. Scott, 7 E. & B. 237 ; 26 L.J. Q.B. 163 ; Watson v. Evans, 1 H. & C. 662 ; 32 L.J. Ex. 137.

(c) Martin, B., Walshe v. Provan, 8 Exch. 851 ; 22 L.J. Ex. 355 ; Broadbent v. Ledward, 11 Ad. & E. 209.

than he has (d). So, where a bailor mortgages a chattel bailed, and the mortgagee has a right to demand possession from the bailee and does demand it, the latter may refuse to give the chattel up to the bailor (e).

Stakes in hands of stakeholders to abide event of lawful game, or money deposited upon condition.—If money has been deposited in the hands of a stakeholder to abide the event of a lawful game or race, and then to be paid over to the winner, the stakeholder holds the money as agent of the winner, and is bound on demand to pay it over to him (f). But, if the party is not strictly a stakeholder holding money in that character, but receives it as agent for a known principal, he is accountable only to the latter for the money (g). As soon as the stakeholder has received the deposit, he is bound to hold it to abide the event, and must not pay it over to either party until the condition upon which it was made payable or returnable has been accomplished. Thus, where an auctioneer has received a deposit from the purchaser of an estate, to be paid over to the vendor if a good title to the property is made out by the latter, and, in default thereof, to be returned to the intended purchaser, the latter has no right to demand back the deposit, and the auctioneer is not justified in returning it, without the consent of the vendor. But, if the vendor is not able to establish his title, or the contract is rescinded or abandoned by the mutual consent of the contracting parties, the auctioneer then holds the deposit for the use, and at the disposal, of the party from whom he received it, and is bound to return it on the request of the latter (h). So long as the contract between the parties interested in the deposit remains open, and the event is undetermined, the right to the deposit remains in suspension, and each of the parties has an equal interest in the due fulfilment of the trust by the stakeholder. Stewards of a horse-race do not stand in the position of arbitrators between the persons who have horses in the race; and it is not necessary that they should meet together and come to a joint decision as to which

(d) Wilson v. Anderton, 1 B. & Ad 457; 9 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 48; Shelbury v. Scotsford, Yelv. 23; Biddle v. Bond, 34 L.J. Q.B. 137; 6 B. & S. 225; Rogers v. Lambert, (1891) 1 Q.B. 318; 60 L.J. Q.B. 187; Ranson v. Platt (1911), 1 K.B. 499; 80 L.J. K.B. 250. See, however, Davies, Ex parte, 19 Ch.D. 86, post, p. 954.

(e) European, &c. Mail Co. v. Royal Mail Packet Co., 30 L.J. C.P. 247.

(f) Applegarth v. Colley, 10 M. & W. 723, 733; 11 L.J. Ex. 350.

(g) Bamford v. Shuttleworth, 11 Ad. & E. 926; Edgell v. Day, L.R. 1 C.P. 80; 35 L.J. C.P. 7; Marryat v. Broderick, 2 M. & W. 372; 6 L.J. Ex. 113; Emery v. Richards, 14 M. & W. 728; 15 L.J. Ex. 49; Eltham v. Kingsman, 1 B. & Ald. 683.

(h) Burrough v. Skinner, 5 Burr. 2639; Edwards v. Hodding 5 Taunt. 815; Gray v. Gutteridge, 1 Moo. & R. 614; Duncan v. Cafe, 2 M. & W. 246; 6 L.J. Ex. 81.

horse has won, to enable the winner to recover the stakes (i). If the deposit has been made to abide the event of a wager, or for the purpose of carrying into effect an unlawful transaction, the depositor may at any time before the event has happened or the deposit has been paid over, demand it back and maintain an action for its recovery (k).

Power of depositary to compel rival claimants to establish their title by interpleader.—If the event, when it does transpire, is not of a decisive character, and both parties set up a title to the deposit, the depositary may compel them to interplead, and so establish the right. This may be done when the depositary claims no interest in the deposit, and is not colluding with either party (l). A stakeholder may also pay money into court under the Trustee Act, 1893 (m).

Liabilities of depositary holding possession wrongfully.—If the depositary is in default in neglecting to return the chattel on demand, he is responsible for all injuries that may afterwards happen to it. He must restore it, moreover, with all its increase and profits.

Liabilities resulting from the taking possession of goods by finding.—A man may clothe himself with the liabilities of a depositary by finding and taking possession of the lost property of another as well as by receiving property direct from the hands of the owner (n). "Although a finder may not be compellable to take goods which he finds, as it is a mere deed of charity for the owner: yet, when he does undertake the custody, he ought to exercise reasonable diligence in preserving the goods. And the least degree of care known to our law, that is, slight diligence, may well be required by him, being that which is applied to gratuitous acts of kindness" (o).

Liabilities of depositor—Lien of depositary.—No depositary is ever permitted in this country to set up a right of lien upon the chattel for the mere expenses he has incurred in keeping and preserving it.

Deposits of money with one of several partners.—A receipt

(i) Parr v. Winteringham, 1 E. & E. 394; 28 L.J. Q.B. 123.

(k) Ante, p. 104; Holmes v. Sixsmith, 7 Exch. 802; 21 L.J. Ex. 312; O'Sullivan v. Thomas, (1895) 1 Q.B. 698; 64 L.J. Q.B. 398. See also ante, p. 123.

(l) Crawshay v. Thornton, 7 Sim. 398; 4 L.J. Ch. 177; Pearson v. Cardon, 2 Russ. & M. 606; Tanner v. European Bank, L.R. 1 Ex. 261; 35 L.J. Ex. 151; Nelson v. Baxter, 23 L.J. Ch. 705; 2 H. & M. 334; Attenborough v. St. Katharine's Dock, 3 C.P.D. 450; 47 L.J. C.P. 763; Ord. LVII. r. 3. See Laing v. Zeden, L.R. 9 Ch. 736; 43 L.J. Ch. 626.

(m) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 53, s. 42; United Kingdom Life Assurance Co., In re, 34 L.J. Ch. 554; 34 Beav. 493.

(n) Dial. 2, ch. 38; Story on Bailments, 85.

(o) Story on Bailments, 87; Isaack v. Clark, 2 Bulst. 312. As to recovering the halves of bank notes, see Smith v. Mundy, 29 L.J. Q.B. 172.

of money by one partner on account of the firm, in the ordinary course of the business of the co-partnership, is the receipt of the co-partnership at large; and all the partners are individually responsible for the proper application of the money deposited (p).

Where, by any wrongful act or omission of any partner acting in the ordinary course of the business of the firm, or with the authority of his co-partners, loss or injury is caused to any person not being a partner in the firm, or any penalty is incurred, the firm is liable therefor to the same extent as the partner so acting or omitting to act (q).

The firm is liable to make good the loss in the following cases—namely: (a) Where one partner acting within the scope of his apparent authority receives the money or property of a third person and misapplies it; and (b) Where a firm in the course of its business receives money or property of a third person, and the money or property so received is misapplied by one or more of the partners while it is in the custody of the firm (r). Every partner is liable jointly with his co-partners and also severally for everything for which the firm while he is a partner therein becomes liable under either sect. 10 or sect. 11 of the Partnership Act, 1890 (s).

If one of several partners in trade obtains money in the ordinary course of dealing of the co-partnership, but by means of false and fraudulent representations, and converts the money, when received, to his own use in fraud of his partners, the partnership is nevertheless responsible for the moneys so received in the name of the firm; and an innocent partner may, consequently, be as much bound by such fraudulent acts and transactions as if he himself had personally been a party to them (t). But, if the fraud has not been committed in the course of the partnership dealings, but in the private and separate transactions of the single partner himself with third

(p) Dundonald (Earl) v. Masterman, L.R. 7 Eq. 504; 38 L.J. Ch. 350; St. Aubyn v. Smart, L.R. 3 Ch. 646; Willet v. Chambers, Cowp. 814; Harman v. Johnson, 2 E. & B. 61; 22 L.J.Q.B. 297; Plumer v. Gregory, L.R. 18 Eq. 621; 43 L.J. Ch. 803; Phosphate Sewage Co. v. Hartmont, 5 Ch.D. 394; 46 L.J. Ch. 661; Cleather v. Twisden, 28 Ch.D. 340; 54 L.J. Ch. 408; Rhodes v. Moules, (1895) 1 Ch. 236; 64 L.J. Ch. 122; and see post, p. 862. See now sect. 5 of the Partnership Act, 1890, ante, p. 359.

(q) 53 & 54 Vict. c. 39, s. 10. See Moore v. Knight, (1891) 1 Ch. 547; 60 L.J. Ch. 271.

(r) Ib., s. 11. Under clause (a), the receipt and misapplication of the money, &c. must be by the same partner. Under clause (b), the firm, having once become responsible is liable for misapplication by any of its members. See Blair v. Bromley, 2 Ph. 354; 16 L.J. Ch. 105, 495; St. Aubyn v. Smart, L.R. 3 Ch. 646; and Plumer v. Gregory, L.R. 18 Eq. 621, 627; 43 L.J. Ch. 803.

(s) Ib., s. 12; Atkinson v. Mackreth, L.R. 2 Eq. 570; 35 L.J. Ch. 624.

(t) Rapp v. Latham, 2 B. & Ald. 795; Stone v. Marsh, 6 B. & C. 551; 5 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 201; Keating v. Marsh, 1 Mont. & Ayr. 582.

parties, the innocent partner cannot be made responsible to those who have been defrauded in the course of such transactions. Thus, if a partner, who holds money in his hands as a trustee for third parties, brings that money into the partnership account, and employs it in the business as his own money, the other partners cannot be made responsible for the repayment of the money so employed in the business, unless they knew at the time that the money was trust money, and not the property of their co-partner (u). But, if money is deposited in the hands of one of several partners of a banking firm at the bank, to be held temporarily by the bank, and subsequently applied in the purchase of some particular security, and the partner absconds with the money, the firm is responsible for the repayment of the amount, although they had given no authority to their partner to receive money for investment, and the transaction, so far as it related to the application of the money when received, was not in the ordinary course of business (x).

Deposits of money with bankers.—Money deposited in the hands of bankers in the ordinary course of business is money lent to the banker by the depositor, with a superadded obligation that it is to be repaid when called for by cheque. If interest is to be paid by the banker, the transaction amounts to a letting and hiring of the money or a loan at interest; if no interest is to be paid on the deposit, it is a commodatum or gratuitous loan; and in this last case, if the money remains for six years in the banker's hands without any payment by him of any part of the principal, or any acknowledgment by him in writing of the existence of the loan and of the debt, the statute of limitations will be a bar to its recovery by action (y). In ordinary cases of deposits of money with bankers the transaction amounts to a mutuum or loan for use and consumption, it being understood that the banker is to have the use of the money in return for his consent to take charge of it (z). Money, when paid into a bank, ceases altogether to be the money of the depositor. The banker is not answerable to the principal if he puts it in jeopardy by engaging in hazardous speculations; but he is, of course, answerable for an equivalent amount to (u) Heaton, Ex parte, Buck. 386; Smith v. Jameson, 5 T.R. 601.

(x) Thompson v. Bell, 10 Exch. 10; 23 L.J. Ex. 321; La Marquise de Ribeyre v. Barclay, 23 Beav. 125; 26 L.J. Ch. 747.

(y) Pott v. Clegg, 16 M. & W. 321; 16 L.J. Ex. 210; Howard v. Danbury, 2 C.B. 803, 806; Bridgman v. Gill, 24 Beav. 302. Proof of a deposit with a banker, and payment of interest by him, is evidence of money lent: Sutton v. Toomer, 7 B. & C. 416; 6 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 49.

(z) Alderson, B., Robarts v. Tucker, 16 C.B. 575; 20 L.J. Q.B. 270; Pott v. Clegg, supra; Sims v. Bond, 5 B. & Ad. 389.

be paid to his customer when demanded, the relation between them being that of debtor and creditor (a).

Deposit of bills, notes, and securities in hands of bankers.—But bills deposited in the hands of a banker remain the property of the customer (b) unless there be a special agreement transferring the property in them to the banker, so that, upon the death or failure of the banker, the customer has a right to the bills so long as they remain in specie (c); but the banker has a lien upon them, if the customer has overdrawn his account (post, p. 860). Where a customer paid a bank-note into the bank after the ordinary hours of business, and the bankers, having previously resolved to stop payment, did not carry the amount of the note to the customer's account, but placed it aside in a separate place of deposit, taking care not to mix it with the general assets of the house, it was held that the note still remained the property of the customer (d). If bank-notes deposited by a customer turn out to be worthless paper, by reason of the insolvency of the bank which issued the notes, the loss falls upon the customer, if there has been no laches on the part of the banker with whom the notes were deposited. If the banker gives a receipt for the notes as cash, he is not precluded by such receipt from subsequently showing that what he received was not cash, but spurious paper (e).

Receipt of cheques by bankers on account of customers.—When a cheque is paid into a bank to be placed to the account of a customer, the banker is bound to use due diligence in getting the cheque paid, and must give prompt notice to his customer in case it is not paid; and, if he omits to do either of these things, he makes the cheque his own, and must bear the loss, if loss there be. Where the plaintiff received a cheque drawn upon his own bankers, and took it to their bank, and handed it to a clerk, with directions to place it to his account, and the clerk received the cheque without any observation, and the bankers, finding that the drawer of the cheque had overdrawn his account and was keeping out of the way, gave the plaintiff notice on the following day that the cheque would not be honoured by them, and that the amount of it would not be placed to his credit, it was held that the bankers were not

(a) Foley v. Hill, 2 H.L. Cas. 28; Derbyshire, In re, Webb v. Derbyshire, (1906) 1 Ch. 135; 75 L.J. Ch. 95; post, p. 858.

(b) See Dawson v. Isle, (1906) 1 Ch. 633; 75 L.J. Ch. 338.

(c) Thompson v. Giles, 2 B. & C. 422; 2 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 48. As to the effect of drawer's bank certifying cheques, see Gaden v. Newfoundland Savings Bank, (1899) A.C. 281; 68 L.J. P.C. 57.

(d) Sadler v. Belcher, 2 Moo. & R. 489; post, p. 855.

(e) Timmins v. Gibbins, 18 Q.B. 722; 21 L.J. Q.B. 403.

precluded, by their having received the cheque without comment in the first instance, from subsequently refusing to credit the plaintiff with the amount; but that, if the plaintiff, at the time he deposited the cheque, had asked the bankers whether they would pay it, he would have been entitled to an answer, and that the bankers would have been bound by such answer (f). It is often impossible to ascertain till the close of the day at the clearing-house what sums of money may be paid in to each particular account, and what are the drafts upon it; and bankers, therefore, may receive cheques drawn upon them by their customers, and may reserve to themselves the right of honouring them, or not honouring them, according to the result of the day's transactions at the clearing-house. Where bankers, at the time of receiving a cheque drawn upon them by one customer and presented by another, stated that they were not then in funds, but that they would keep the cheque in the hope of being furnished with money to pay it in the course of the day, it was held that they were bound to appropriate the first money they received from the drawer, in satisfaction and discharge of such cheque (g).

Duty of bankers to honour drafts of customers—Payment of cheques.—It is the duty of the banker to pay the debt due to the customer pursuant to the order, cheque, or draft of the latter. The customer may order the debt to be paid to himself or anybody else, or he may order it to be carried over or transferred from his own account to the account of any other person he pleases. He may do so by written instrument or verbal direction; but the banker is entitled to require some written evidence of the order for the transfer (h). The banker is bound by law to honour the cheques and drafts of his customers, provided they are presented within banking hours, and provided he has in his hands sufficient funds for the purpose belonging to the customer (i); and, if he refuses, he is liable to an action by the customer for substantial damages, without proof of actual damage; for it is a discredit to the customer to have his cheque refused payment (k). The acceptance by a customer of a bill of exchange payable at his bankers is tantamount to an order

(f) Boyd v. Emmerson, 2 Ad. & E. 184, 202; 4 L.J. Q.B. 43.

(g) Kilsby v. Williams, 5 B. & Ald. 819.

(h) Watts v. Christie, 11 Beav. 546; 18 L.J. Ch. 173.

(i) Agra, &c. Bank v. Hoffman, 34 L.J. Ch. 285.

(k) Marzetti v. Williams, 1 B. & Ad. 424; 9 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 42; Rolin v. Steward, 14 C.B. 595; 23 L.J. C.P. 148; Boyd v. Emmerson, supra; Whitaker v. Bank of England, 1 C. M. & R. 744; 4 L.J. Ex. 57; Cumming v. Shand, 5 H. & N. 95; 29 L.J. Ex. 129; Shillibeer v. Glyn, 2 M. & W. 143; 6 L.J. Ex. 21; Wheatley v. Low, Cro.Jac. 667; Loe's Case, Palm. 281. As to orders on bankers operating by way of novation and substitution, see ante, p. 180.

from him to his banker to pay the bill to the person who, according to the law merchant, is capable of giving a good discharge for it, i.e., to a person who becomes the holder by a genuine indorsement, or, if the bill is originally payable to bearer, or if there is afterwards a genuine indorsement in blank, to the person who seems to be the holder (l). If bankers have indorsed a bill of exchange accepted by a customer, and the bill is presented to them when it arrives at maturity, and they pay it on the day it becomes due, the bankers so paying may reserve to themselves the right to examine into the state of the accounts between them and the acceptor, their customer, and determine whether they honour the bill for the acceptor, or take it up on their own account as indorsers (m). As to determination of authority of bankers, see sect. 75 of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, post, p. 1291.

Joint accounts and joint deposits with bankers.—Where money is paid into a bank to the joint account of several persons nominatim, it cannot be drawn out by one of them alone; for the bankers are not discharged from liability by payment to one of the depositors without the authority of the others (n). But, when one dies, the money may be drawn out by the survivor. Such is the case with money deposited in a bank in the joint names of husband and wife (o).

Deposits and accounts with bankers in names of trustees, agents, and receivers.—In a banking account of the ordinary kind between a banker and his customers it is not competent to any third party to interpose and to say that the customer was his agent, and that the banker has contracted with such third party through the medium of such customer, his agent. All cheques and money paid into the bank by the customer are, as between the banker and the customer, the cheques and money of the customer, whoever may be the real owner of them. If the owner of the cash allows his agent to deal with it as his own, and pay it into the bank in his own name, he has no power over it after it has reached the banker's hands. On the other hand, it is not competent to the banker, after he has placed the money to the credit of a customer, to deny the title of the latter to the money, and to set up a jus tertii, or to revoke the credit (p). If several joint owners of a sum of money allow one of them to

(l) Kymer v. Laurie, 18 L.J. Q.B. 218; Robarts v. Tucker, 16 Q.B. 578; 20 L.J. Q.B. 270; post, p. 858.

(m) Pollard v. Ogden, 2 E. & B. 459; 22 L.J. Q.B. 439.

(n) Innes v. Stephenson, 1 Moo. & R. 147; Sims v. Brittain, 4 B. & Ad. 375.

(o) Williams v. Davies, 33 L.J. P. & M. 127; 3 Swa. & T. 437.

(p) Tassell v. Cooper, 9 C.B. 533.

deal with their money and place it in the hands of a banker to his separate account, the banker must treat that as a contract with the one individual dealing with him, and the latter cannot impose upon the banker as many contracts as there are owners of the money (q).

Separate accounts opened by same person in different capacities.—Generally, as between banker and customer, the banker looks only to the customer in respect of the account opened in that customer's name, and whatever cheques that customer chooses to draw the banker is to honour, and is not to inquire what the moneys are that are paid into that account, or for what purpose they are drawn out. But, when the customer opens two separate accounts, the one being a private account of his own, and the other an account as trustee or receiver of the moneys of a known third party, the bankers are bound to take notice that the moneys placed to the last-named account are not the moneys of their customer, and they cannot make an arrangement with the latter for an appropriation of the balance in their hands on the fiduciary account to liquidate a balance due to them from their customer upon his own private account. They have no right to combine with the receiver for the appropriation of his principal's money to discharge the private debt due to them from the receiver; for no person dealing with another, and knowing him to have in his hands or under his control money belonging to a third person, can deal with the individual holding that money for his own private benefit, when the effect of the transaction is that a fraud is necessarily committed upon such third party (r).

Loss of trust-money in hands of bankers.—If an agent or trustee who has received a sum of money for the use of his principal or beneficiary pays the money into a bank in the name of the principal or beneficiary, and places it to the account of the latter, the amount then remains in the bank at the risk of the principal; and if the banker fails the principal must bear the loss. But, if the agent or trustee pays in the money to his own account and his own credit, this is a user of the money for which he will be responsible. If he had an implied authority to use the money, and has so exercised it, then he stands, as before mentioned, in the position of a borrower for use and consumption. In either case he is bound to make good the loss (s).

(q) Sims v. Brittain, 4 B. & Ad. 375; Pinto v. Santos, 5 Taunt. 447.

(r) Bodenham v. Hoskins, 21 L.J. Ch. 864; 16 Jur. 721; affirmed, 2 De G. M. & G. 903; Bridgman v. Gill, 24 Beav. 302; Kingston, Ex parte, L.R. 6 Ch. 632; 40 L.J. Bankr. 91; per Blackburn, J., Bailey v. Finch, L.R. 7 Q.B. 42; 41 L.J. Q.B. 83; Morier, Ex parte, 12 Ch.D. 491; 49 L.J. Bankr. 9; Coleman v. Bucks and Oxon Union Bank, (1897) 2 Ch. 243; 66 L.J. Ch. 564.

Payment of forged cheques, drafts, and orders on bankers—Negligence of banker and of customer.—See Bills of Exchange, post, Ch. VI. If bankers pay a cheque under circumstances of suspicion which ought to have put them on their guard and induced them to make inquiry before paying it, they cannot debit the customer with the amount, if the cheque was never uttered or put into circulation by the customer. Thus, where the customer, finding that he had drawn a cheque for a wrong sum, tore it into four pieces and threw them away, and these four pieces were picked up, and neatly pasted together, and presented at the bank by a stranger for payment, but the rents and the pasting of the paper were quite visible, and the face of the cheque was soiled and dirty, and the cashier, nevertheless, paid it without demur or inquiry, it was held that the bankers had been guilty of a neglect of duty, and could not, under the circumstances, debit their customer with the payment (t). But, if the tearing is done in such a way that it is reasonable to presume it to have been done for the purpose of transmitting the cheque through the post, there will then be no neglect of duty on the part of those who pay the cheque in ignorance of its having been torn up with the intention of cancelling it (u). If money is drawn out of the bank by means of a forged order purporting to have been made by the customer, the banker must sustain the loss. Where a cheque drawn by a customer on his banker for a sum of money described in the body of the cheque in words and figures was afterwards altered by the holder, who substituted in a different handwriting a larger sum than that mentioned in the cheque, in such a manner that no one, in the ordinary course of business, would have observed it, and the banker paid the larger sum to the holder, it was held that he could not lawfully debit the customer with the over-payment (x). But, if the banker has been defrauded through the carelessness or negligence of the customer in drawing the cheque, the loss must be borne by the customer. Where the customer signed several blank cheques and left them in the hands of his wife to

(s) Robinson v. Ward, R. & M. 276 ; Wren v. Kirton, 11 Ves. 377 ; Rocke v. Hart, ib. 61 ; Massey v. Banner, 4 Mad. 418, 419 ; 1 Jac. & Walk. 241.

(t) Scholey v. Ramsbottom, 2 Campb. 485.

(u) Ingham v. Primrose, 28 L.J. C.P. 294 ; 7 C.B. N.S. 82.

(x) Hall v. Fuller, 5 B. & C. 750 ; 4 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 297 ; Scholfield v. Londesborough (Earl), post, p. 858 ; as to advances by bankers, at the request of their customers on forged securities, see Woods v. Thiedemann, 1 H. & C. 478 ; or on securities fraudulently obtained, Carew's Act, In re, 30 Beav. 274 ; 31 L.J. Ch. 214 ; 31 Beav. 39. See Vagliano v. Bank of England, (1891) A.C. 107 ; 60 L.J. Q.B. 145 ; post, pp. 897, 1244.

be filled up, and she handed a cheque to a clerk to be filled up for 50*l.* 2*s.* 3*d.*, and the clerk filled up the cheque for the specified amount, and showed it to the wife, but the "fifty" was commenced in the middle of the line, so that the words "three hundred and" could easily be written before it, and space was left at the bottom of the cheque for the insertion of the figure 3 between the £ and the figures 50, and the clerk on his way to the bank altered the cheque to 350*l.*, and got that amount from the bankers and absconded, it was held that the customer must bear the loss, as it had been occasioned by his own negligence and the negligence of his agent in dealing with the blank cheque (y). Negligence in dealing with a cheque or draft must, in order to amount to an estoppel, be negligence in the transaction itself and the proximate cause of leading the third party into mistake, and must be a breach of some duty owing to such third party or to the public at large (z). But where a bill of exchange for 500*l.* was presented for acceptance with a stamp of much larger than the necessary amount, and with spaces left which enabled the drawer after acceptance to turn it into a bill for 3,500*l.*, it was held that the acceptor was not liable to a bonâ fide holder for value for more than the 500*l.* (a).

Forged indorsements.—If a bill of exchange has been accepted by a customer payable to order at his bankers, the acceptance of the bill is an authority to the bankers to pay the bill only to a person who becomes the holder by a genuine indorsement from such customer. If bankers wish to avoid the responsibility of deciding on the genuineness of the indorsement, they must require their customer to make his bills payable at his own offices, and to honour the bills by giving a cheque on them; for they cannot debit a customer with a payment made to a party who claims through a forged indorsement and so cannot give a valid discharge for the bill, unless there are circumstances amounting to a direction from the customer to the bankers to pay the bill without reference to the genuineness of the indorsement, or a subsequent admission on the part of the customer of the genuineness of the indorsement inducing the bankers to alter their position, so as to preclude the customer from showing it to be forged (b). But, by 16 & 17 Vict. c. 59, s. 19, as extended

(y) Young v. Grote, 4 Bing. 253; 5 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 165.

(z) Arnold v. Cheque Bank, 1 C.P.D. 578; 45 L.J. C.P. 562; Patent Safety Gun Cotton Co. v. Wilson, 49 L.J. Q.B. 713; Merchants of the Staple v. Bank of England, 21 Q.B.D. 160; 57 L.J. Q.B. 418.

(a) Scholfield v. Londesborough (Earl), (1896) A.C. 514; 65 L.J. Q.B. 593.

(b) Robarts v. Tucker, 16 Q.B. 578; 20 L.J. Q.B. 270; sect. 24 of 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, post, p. 1259, and Addison on Torts, 628 (ed. 8).

by 35 & 36 Vict. c. 44, s. 11, any draft or order drawn upon a banker for a sum of money payable to order on demand, which shall when presented for payment purport to be indorsed by the person to whom the same shall be drawn payable, shall be sufficient authority to the banker to pay the amount of such draft or order to the bearer thereof; and it shall not be incumbent on the banker to prove that such indorsement or any subsequent indorsement was made by and under the direction or authority of the person to whom the draft or order was or is made payable, either by the drawer or any indorser thereof. But this enactment does not extend to protect any other person who takes the cheque upon the faith of such forged indorsement (c): see also sects. 30 and 60 of Bills of Exchange Act, post, pp. 1257, 1259. An indorsement of a cheque "per proc." or "as agent" is an indorsement by the payee within the statute, although the indorser has no authority to indorse (d).

Cheques paid by mistake.—If a banker pays the cheque of a customer, supposing that he has funds, and afterwards finds that the customer has overdrawn his account, and that he has no funds, the banker cannot recover the money from the party who presented the cheque (e); but, if the cheque was not drawn on the banker, and the latter does not pay the cheque as a banker honouring the draft of his customer, but in the same way as if he were giving change for a bank-note, all parties believing the cheque to be genuine, he can recover back the money he has paid, if the cheque turns out to be forged and worthless (f).

Payment of cheques at branch banks.—The different branch banks of a banking company are, as regards their separate customers, separate companies, so that a customer who keeps an account with one branch has no right to draw cheques upon, and have them cashed by, another branch. They are also separate and distinct for many other purposes (g). But in principle they are agencies of one principal banking firm, although regarded as distinct for special purposes (h). Where a customer had an account with two branches of a bank, it was held that in the absence of any special agreement with their customer the bank had a right to consider the two accounts as

(c) Ogden v. Benas, L.R. 9 C.P. 513; 43 L.J. C.P. 259; Bobbett v. Pinkett, 1 Ex.D. 368; 45 L.J. Ex. 555.

(d) Charles v. Blackwell, 2 C.P.D. 151; 46 L.J. C.P. 368.

(e) Chambers v. Miller, 13 C.B. N.S. 125; 32 L.J. C.P. 30; London Chartered Bank of Australia v. McMillan, (1892) A.C. 292; 61 L.J. P.C. 444.

(f) Woodland v. Fear, 7 E. & B. 522; 26 L.J. Q.B. 202.

(g) Woodland v. Fear, supra; Clode v. Bayley, 12 M. & W. 51; 13 L.J. Ex. 17.

(h) Prince v. Oriental Bank Corporation, 3 App.Cas. 325; 47 L.J. P.C. 42.

one, and to refuse the customer's cheque when, on adding the two accounts together, the balance was against him (i).

Crossed cheques.—As to crossed cheques, see post, Ch. VI.

Lien of bankers.—Bankers have a lien upon all the securities of their customers in their hands for advances in the ordinary course of business, unless such securities have been received under special arrangement inconsistent with the exercise of the right (k), or for some special purpose (l). But they have no lien on boxes and their contents deposited with them for convenience and safe custody merely (m).

Damages for non-payment of cheques by bankers.—Substantial damages may be recovered against a banker, for dishonouring an acceptance and cheques of a customer, there being sufficient assets in his hands at the time to meet them (n).

Mandate or gratuitous commission—Non-feazance and misfeazance.—It has been said, in reference to gratuitous undertakings to perform work, that, if the promisor does not proceed on the work, no action will lie against him for the non-feazance; but, "if he proceeds on the employment, he makes himself liable for any misfeazance in the course of that work." But, when a man promises to perform work upon, or to do something with, the chattel of another, and the chattel is bailed to him for the purpose expressed, his acceptance of the possession of the chattel in execution of his engagement is an "entering on the work and employment;" and if, after having accepted such possession and taken the chattel away with him, he neglects to do that which he promises to perform, this neglect is a misfeazance, for which he shall be responsible (o). Where a sum of money was bailed to a party upon the faith of an undertaking made by him to cause the sum to be paid to the bailor or his order at a distant place, it was held that the bailment of the money was a sufficient consideration for the undertaking, and that the mandatary was responsible for the non-fulfilment of his engagement (p). If a party undertakes to procure an insurance for another, and proceeds to carry his undertaking into effect by

(i) Garnett v. M'Kewan, L.R. 8 Ex. 10; 42 L.J. Ex. 1.

(k) Jones v. Peppercorn, 28 L.J. Ch. 158; Johns. 430; Meadows, In re, 28 L.J. Ch. 891; 26 Beav. 588; City Bank, Ex parte, 3 L.T. 792; European Bank, In re, L.R. 8 Ch. 41.

(l) Brandao v. Barnett, 12 Cl. & Fin. 787; Wilde v. Radford, 33 L.J. Ch. 51; London Chartered Bank of Australia v. White, 4 App.Cas. 413; 48 L.J. P.C. 75; Bowes, In re, 33 Ch.D. 586; 56 L.J. Ch. 143; London and Globe Finance Corporation, In re, (1902) 2 Ch. 416; 71 L.J. Ch. 893.

(m) Leese v. Martin, L.R. 17 Eq. 224; 43 L.J. Ch. 193.

(n) Rolin v. Steward, 14 C.B. 595; 23 L.J. C.P. 148.

(o) Holt, C.J., Coggs v. Bernard, 2 Raym. 919, 920; Elsee v. Gatward, 5 T.R. 149; Balfe v. West, 22 L.J. C.P. 175; 13 C.B. 466.

(p) Shillibeer v. Glyn, 2 M. & W. 143; 6 L.J. Ex. 21.

getting a policy underwritten, but deals so negligently with the policy that the benefit of the insurance is totally lost to the party for whom he promised to effect it, he is liable to an action (q).

Bailment of money and chattels to be carried gratuitously—Loss or damage from negligence.—A bailee who has undertaken gratuitously to convey money or goods from one place to another, and has entered upon the trust by accepting possession of the money or the goods, is bound to exercise the same care and diligence in the execution of the task as a person of ordinary care and prudence might be expected to exercise in the conveyance of his own property; and he is consequently only liable for gross negligence (r). Primâ facie a gratuitous carrier of goods for another, who keeps them with the same care that he keeps his own of the same description, is not guilty of gross negligence; but this presumption may be repelled by evidence of actual negligence, or of conduct, which, though applied to his own goods as well as to those of the bailor, would be deemed negligence in a man of ordinary prudence. In considering what is gross negligence, the nature and value of the property delivered to a carrier to be carried gratuitously must be considered (s). "For all practical purposes the rule may be stated to be, that the failure to exercise reasonable care, skill, and diligence is gross negligence. What is reasonable varies in the case of a gratuitous bailee and that of a bailee for hire. From the former is reasonably expected such care and diligence as persons ordinarily use in their own affairs, and such skill as he has. From the latter is reasonably expected care and diligence, such as are exercised in the ordinary and proper course of similar business, and such skill as he ought to have, namely, the skill usual and requisite in the business for which he receives payment" (t).

Bailments of chattels to be mended or repaired gratuitously—Employment of unskilful persons.—If a chattel is bailed to a workman in some particular craft, upon the faith of an undertaking made by the bailee to mend it gratuitously for the benefit of the mandator, the mandatary must complete the work within a reasonable period, and must be especially mindful that the article is not injured in his hands during the performance of the work through a want of that skill which every workman in his particular craft is bound to possess (post, p. 889).

(q) Wallace v. Tellfair, cited Wilkinson v. Coverdale, 1 Esp. 76.

(r) Coggs v. Bernard, 1 Smith's L.C. p. 173 (ed. 11).

(s) Angell on Carriers, pp. 29—31 (ed. 5).

(t) Beal v. South Devon Ry., 3 H. & C. 337, at p. 341.

But, if a person, known to be unskilled in the particular work he gratuitously undertakes, does the work at the solicitation of a friend with such ability as he possesses, he stands excused, although it is unskilfully done: for it is the mandator's own folly to trust him, and the party engages for no more than a reasonable exertion of his capacity (u).

In respect of the custody and safe keeping of the chattel, the mandatary is clothed with the ordinary liabilities and responsibilities of a depositary.

Bailment of money for investment.—If money is bailed to a man upon the faith of a promise or assurance made by him to place it out at interest, or to purchase an annuity with it for the benefit of the bailor, the mandatary who accepts the money impliedly promises to be careful in the fulfilment of his undertaking, and to exercise ordinary care in the selection of a safe investment; and, if the money is lost by his neglect, an action will lie against him for the loss (x). But the mandatary is not responsible (if he does not exercise any trade or profession denoting that he has peculiar skill in money matters) for the exercise of more than ordinary care; and he is not liable for the failure of the investment, if he has used such knowledge as he possessed, and has acted with honesty of purpose in the transaction (y). But a solicitor, whose profession and employment naturally leads him to have some knowledge of securities for money and pecuniary investments, is responsible for the exercise of a reasonable amount of professional skill in the selection of a safe investment, although he acts gratuitously (z). His profession implies skill, and invites confidence: and an omission of that skill is imputable to him as gross negligence (a).

Bailments of living animals—Negligent management.—If the subject-matter of the bailment consists of living animals, such as horses, oxen, cattle or sheep, the mandatary is bound to furnish them with suitable food, and to give them a reasonable amount of exercise and fresh air. If a man takes charge of cattle or sheep, and afterwards takes no heed of them, but lets them stray away on a common, and get drowned or lost, this is a breach of trust, and he is responsible for the loss (b). If he turns a horse, of which he has consented gratuitously to take (u) Shiells v. Blackburne, 1 H. Bl. 159; Moore v. Mourgue, 1 Cowp. 479.

(x) Coggs v. Bernard, 2 Raym. 910; Whitehead v. Greetham, 10 Moore, 183; 2 Bing. 464.

(y) Dartnall v. Howard, 4 B. & C. 345, 350; 3 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 246.

(z) Donaldson v. Haldane, 7 Cl. & Fin. 762; Bourne v. Diggles, 2 Chitt. 311; Craig v. Watson, 8 Beav. 427; Smith v. Pococke, 23 L.J. Ch. 545; 2 Drew. 197.

(a) Shiells v. Blackburne, supra. See also ante, pp. 808, 813.

(b) Hil. Term, 2 Hen. 7, 9, b; Coggs v. Bernard, 2 Raym. 913.

charge, into a dangerous pasture after dark, and the horse falls into a pit or well, or into the shaft of a mine, this is a gross neglect and breach of trust, and he shall be responsible for the loss (c).

What is, and what is not, gross negligence amounting to a breach of trust is often a mixed question of law and fact, but more generally a pure question of fact. It must be judged of by the actual state of society, the general usages of life, and the dangers peculiar to the times, as well as by the apparent nature and value of the subject-matter of the bailment, and the degree of care it seems to require (d). Where a man proved to be conversant with, and skilled in, horses was commissioned to ride a horse to a neighbouring village, for the purpose of showing it for sale, and on his arrival he rode the horse into the race-ground, which was wet and slippery, and the horse slipped and fell several times, and at last in falling broke one of its knees, it was held that the bailee had been guilty of a culpable neglect and breach of trust, and was answerable for the damage (e). If a farrier undertakes to treat a living animal for some disorder gratuitously, he is nevertheless bound to exercise the ordinary knowledge and skill of his profession, and will be responsible for injuries resulting from his neglect to do so (f).

Bailments of perishable commodities.—If the subject-matter of the bailment is a perishable commodity, the bailee is bound to bestow such an amount of labour and vigilance for its preservation as would ordinarily be bestowed by a prudent owner. If the mandatary of a valuable painting lets it lie on the damp ground, or places it in a kitchen, or against a damp wall in a room where there is no fire, when he might have placed it in a dry situation and in perfect security, this is an act of negligence (g) for which he is liable to an action.

Use of subject-matter of mandate.—A mandatary has no implied right to make use of the subject-matter of the bailment for his own gain and advantage unless such a right is expressly given (h); if he does so, and it is lost, or in any way injured or deteriorated in value by reason of the user, he must, in common with a depositary, make good the loss. When money is handed by one man to another for safe custody, with permission to use it in his business, the depositary stands in a fiduciary position, and the transaction must be distinguished from a loan

(c) Rooth v. Wilson, 1 B. & Ald. 61, 62.
(d) Story on Bailments, 9, 10.
(e) Wilson v. Brett, 11 M. & W. 113; 12 L.J. Ex. 264.
(f) Shiells v. Blackburne, 1 H.Bl. 162.
(g) Mytton v. Cock, 2 Str. 1099.
(h) Tidd, In re. Tidd v. Overell. (1893) 3 Ch. 154; 62 L.J. Ch. 915.

or debt (i). Where goods are sent voluntarily, and without request, by one person to another, no duty is cast on the recipient with respect to them (k).

Theft and negligence by servants of bailee.—If the bailee has not been guilty of any negligence and the goods are stolen he is not liable to an action for negligence. The onus probandi of negligence lies on the plaintiff. The bailee has a right to prosecute the thief (l). A bailee in possession may recover against a stranger for loss of bailed goods by negligence, although he would have had a good answer to an action by the bailor for damages for loss of the goods bailed (m). A bailee is not liable for injury to the subject-matter of the bailment, when such injury immediately results from an act of his servant not in the course of his employment (n).

Payment of expenses.—If the mandatary must necessarily incur expense in the execution of the commission entrusted to him, he is clothed with an implied authority from the mandator to defray such expenses (o); but no lien is permitted to be claimed by one upon the property of another for the expenses attendant upon the execution of a gratuitous commission.

Warehousing of chattels for reward.—When chattels are delivered to a warehouseman or storekeeper to be taken care of or kept for hire, the contract is a contract for the letting and hiring or for care and custody. Where a livery-stable keeper undertakes for reward to receive a carriage and lodge it in a coach-house, he is bound to take reasonable care that the building in which it is placed is in a proper state, so that the carriage may be reasonably safe in it; but there is no implied warranty on his part that the building is absolutely safe, and the fact that the building has been erected for him on his own ground makes no difference in his liability (p). A depositor of goods for safe custody, who, by himself or his servants, has an opportunity of observing certain defects in the storehouse, cannot be taken to have agreed that any risk of injury to his goods which may be occasioned by those defects shall be borne by him, and not by the bailee for hire (q).

(i) Bac.Abr. Bailment, D.; Clark v. Gilbert, 2 Bing. N.C. 343; 5 L.J. C.P. 61.

(k) Howard v. Harris, 1 C. & E. 253.

(l) Finucane v. Small, 1 Esp. 315, at pp. 316, 317; Butt v. G. W. Ry., 11 C.B. 140, at p. 151; 20 L.J. C.P. 241; Rex v. Wilkinson, Russ. & Ry. 470.

(m) The Winkfield, (1902) P. 42; 71 L.J. P. 21; overruling Claridge v. S. Staffs. Tram. Co., (1892) 1 Q.B. 422; 61 L.J. Q.B. 503.

(n) Sanderson v. Collins, (1904) 1 K.B. 628; 73 L.J. K.B. 358; Cheshire v. Bailey, (1905) 1 K.B. 237; 74 L.J. K.B. 176.

(o) Story on Bailments, s. 197.

(p) Searle v. Laverick, L.R. 9 Q.B. 122; 43 L.J. Q.B. 43.

(q) Brabant v. King, (1895) A.C. 632; 64 L.J. P.C. 161.

Negligent keeping of goods by warehousemen, and depositaries for hire.—All persons to whom goods are delivered to be kept for hire and reward, and who are paid expressly for their care in keeping them, and not merely for the finding of a place of deposit, are bound to exercise that amount of care which the most prudent and careful of men exercise for the protection of their own property. If the goods are injured by mice or rats, the warehouseman will be responsible for the damage (r), although he keeps cats to destroy vermin (s). In an action against a warehouseman for the non-delivery of a chattel intrusted to him to keep for hire, it is no answer for him to say that he has lost it (t); the mere fact of the loss is primâ facie proof of negligence, and he must rebut this presumption by showing that he had taken the greatest care of the thing entrusted to him, and had no means of preventing the loss. A booking-office keeper who receives money for booking parcels, is bound to put them into a safe place, and if he leaves them in a public room, or an open shop, and they are lost or stolen, he will be responsible to the owner (u).

Loss of chattels by wharfingers.—The duties and responsibilities of the wharfinger, in respect of the safe keeping of the goods entrusted to him, to be dealt with in the way of his trade, are analogous to those of the warehouseman. If he receives directions to ship them on board a particular vessel, he does not discharge his duty by delivering them to one of the crew; but he is bound to place them in the hands of the captain, or some person in authority on board the vessel (x). If he is clothed merely with the custody of the goods, and the duty of shipping them devolves, by usage and custom, upon the master of the vessel to which they are to be sent, the wharfinger is discharged from responsibility as soon as he has placed them at the disposal and under the care of the master and officers of such vessel, although they are not actually removed from the wharf (y).

Passenger's luggage deposited in cloak-rooms.—In the absence of any condition limiting their liability, railway companies are ordinary warehousemen of luggage deposited with them. But a railway company are not bound to receive luggage into their warehouse upon the ordinary liability of warehousemen, and (r) White v. Humphrey, 11 Q.B. 44.

(s) Laveroni v. Drury, 8 Exch. 166; 22 L.J. Ex. 2; see Kay v. Wheeler, L.R. 2 C.P. 302; 36 L.J. C.P. 180.

(t) Cairns v. Robins, 8 M. & W. 258; 10 L.J. Ex. 452; Reeve v. Palmer, 28 L.J. C.P. 168; 5 C.B. N.S. 91; Goodman v. Boycott, 2 B. & S. 1; 31 L.J. Q.B. 69.

(u) Dover v. Mills, 5 C. & P. 175.

(x) Leigh v. Smith, 1 C. & P. 638, 641; 2 Esp. 695.

(y) Cobban v. Downe, 5 Esp. 41; Story on Bailments, 293; Jones on Bailments, 97.

they usually further limit their liability by conditions printed on the ticket given to the depositor at the time. There is no rule or presumption of law that a person is bound by the conditions contained in a document thus delivered to him; but it is a question of fact in each case whether they have been brought to his notice (z). "If the person receiving the ticket did not see or know that there was any writing on the ticket, he is not bound by the conditions; if he knew there was writing, and knew or believed that the writing contained conditions, then he is bound by the conditions; if he knew there was writing on the ticket, but did not know or believe that the writing contained conditions, nevertheless he would be bound, if the delivering of the ticket to him in such a manner that he could see there was writing upon it, was, in the opinion of the jury, reasonable notice that the writing contained conditions" (a). A condition upon a cloak-room ticket that a railway company "will not be responsible for articles left by passengers at the station unless the same be duly registered . . . ." and "will not be responsible for any package exceeding the value of 10*l.*" absolves the company from liability for any damage to an article which exceeds the value of 10*l.*; the condition means that the company will undertake no responsibility for any article over the value of 10*l.* but that such article is taken in at the risk of the owner and not at that of the company (b). A cloak-room is a reasonable facility in the furtherance of railway traffic, and a railway company has a lien for its charges on goods deposited therein upon the same principle as it has for its charges of transit (c).

Loss of cattle—Liabilities of agisters of cattle.—A person who receives cattle or horses, or living animals to keep for the owner, and is paid expressly for his care in preserving them, as well as for their sustenance, is bound to take the utmost care of them, and he is responsible for damage and injury resulting from ordinary casualties, if such damage might have been prevented by the exercise of great care. Very slight evidence of

(z) Henderson v. Stevenson, L.R. 2 H.L. (Sc.) 470; Van Toll v. S. E. Ry. Co., 31 L.J. C.P. 241; 12 C.B. N.S. 75.

(a) Per Mellish, L.J., in Parker v. S. E. Ry., 2 C.P.D. p. 423; 46 L.J. C.P. 768; Harris v. G. W. Ry., 1 Q.B.D. 515; 45 L.J. Q.B. 729; Burke v. S. E. Ry., 5 C.P.D. 1; 49 L.J. C.P. 107; Richardson, Spence & Co. v. Rowntree, (1894) A.C. 217; 63 L.J. Q.B. 283. See also, Marriott v. Yeoward Brothers, (1909) 2 K.B. 987; 79 L.J. K.B. 114. Where the plaintiff delivered to the keeper of a repository for the sale on commission of carriages a carriage to be sold, and took a receipt for it which contained an explicit reference to the conditions exhibited on the premises, but which he did not read, it was held that he was bound by the conditions: Watkins v. Rymill, 10 Q.B.D. 178; 52 L.J. Q.B. 121.

(b) Pratt v. S. E. Ry., (1897) 1 Q. B. 718; 66 L.J. Q.B. 418.

(c) Singer Manufacturing Co. v. L. & S. W. Ry., (1894) 1 Q.B. 833; 63 L.J. Q.B. 411.

neglect has been sufficient to induce juries to return verdicts in favour of those who have sought compensation for the loss of cattle delivered to bailees to be kept for reward. Thus, where the defendant, a farmer, had received the plaintiff's horse to agist for a certain price, and the horse strayed and was lost, and never after heard of, and the plaintiff gave evidence of the gates having been occasionally left open, and of the fences being in parts out of order, but it did not appear directly that the horse had strayed through any defect in the fences, or through any of the gates being left open, the jury, nevertheless, returned a verdict against the defendant for the full value of the horse (d). If the bailee suffers his fences to be defective, or puts the horse into a dangerous pasture, and the animal, by reason thereof, is lost or injured, this is a degree of neglect for which he is undoubtedly responsible (e).

Distinction between contracts for work and services and contracts of sale.—There is a great analogy between contracts for working up materials and the contract of sale; for, if the materials for the work, as well as the work itself, have been furnished by the workman, then the contract is in general a contract of sale; while, on the other hand, if the employer has furnished the materials, and the undertaker of the work contributes his labour merely, the contract is a contract of letting and hiring of labour. In the case of works of art the work and skill of the workman constitute, in general, the essence of the contract, the materials being merely accessorial; and, whenever the skill and labour are of the highest description, and the materials of small comparative value, the contract is a contract for work, labour and materials, and not a contract of sale (f). A contract, for example, for the printing of a book is a contract for the letting and hiring of work and services, although the printer supplies both the paper and the ink, and not a contract of sale (g). The test is that "if the contract is intended to result in transferring for a price from A. to B. an article in which B. had no previous property," then it would be a contract for the sale of a chattel and not a contract for work and labour, e.g., a contract by a dentist to make a set of artificial teeth, to fit the mouth of the employer (h).

(d) Broadwater v. Blot, Holt, N.P. 547; Smith v. Cook, 1 Q.B.D. 79; 45 L.J. Q.B. 122.

(e) Mosley v. Fosset, 1 Roll.Abr. 4; Halestrap v. Gregory, (1895) 1 Q.B. 561; 64 L.J. Q.B. 415. See Addison on Torts, pp. 52, 747 (ed. 8).

(f) See, however, the remarks of Crompton, J., and Blackburn, J., in Lee v. Griffin, 1 B. & S. 278; 30 L.J. Q.B. 252.

(g) Clay v. Yates, 1 H. & N. 73; 25 L.J. Ex. 237.

(h) Lee v. Griffin, supra.

Executory and executed contracts for work.—Contracts for work and services, like all other contracts of letting and hiring, are perfected by the bare consent of the parties, so that, as soon as the mutual promises are exchanged, the right to the benefit of the work passes to the workman or hirer of the job, and the right to the labour to the employer or letter of the work (i). If a mutual misunderstanding has arisen without any fault or want of good faith on either side, as if the workman has mistaken the meaning of the employer, and made one thing when another was ordered, the contract is void, as no valid and effectual consent to bind the parties has ever been given. If there is no mutual engagement between the parties for the one to do the work, and the other to provide it and pay for its execution, there is, as we have before seen, no binding contract at all, unless the engagement is under seal (ante, p. 14). The workman in such a case is not bound to enter upon his task; nor is the other party bound to provide the work and pay the hire. But when the work has been actually done, the person at whose request and by whose orders it was executed must pay for it, although the workman was originally under no legal obligation to do the work, nor the employer to employ him. The law generally implies a promise from the employer to pay a reasonable compensation for services rendered, unless it appears that the services were to be gratuitous, or that the workmen relied for payment upon a particular fund, and not upon the personal responsibility of the employer (k). When a person has, by fraud, induced another to perform a service for him, intending not to pay for the performance of it, still there is a liability implied by the law, which may be enforced in the same way as an obligation arising out of an express contract (l).

Work and services in preserving lost chattel, and restoring it to owner.—Doubts have at different times been expressed as to whether a person who has voluntarily bestowed his own labour and services, and incurred expense, in the recovery and restoration of a lost chattel to the owner, is entitled to an action to recover compensation and remuneration therefor (m). In the case of the recovery and restoration of shipwrecked property he is clearly entitled to such a compensation; and there seems to

(i) Lara v. General Apothecaries' Co. 26 L.J. Ex. 225.

(k) Ante, p. 452; Poucher v. Norman, 3 B. & C. 744; 3 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 115; Parke, B., Higgins v. Hopkins, 3 Exch. 166; 18 L.J. Ex. 113; Hingeston v. Kelly, 18 L.J. Ex. 360; Alexander v. Worman, 6 H. & N. 130; 30 L.J. Ex. 198.

(l) Rumsey v. N. E. Ry., 14 C.B. N.S. 641; 32 L.J. C.P. 244.

(m) Lampleigh v. Brathwait, 1 Smith's L.C. 141 (ed. 11).

be no valid reason for confining this right of reward to cases of salvage from shipwreck.

Salvage services.—In order to encourage persons to lend their aid for the protection of property and life (n) from shipwreck, the law gives to the parties by whose assistance the property or lives have been saved, a claim to a reasonable compensation for their services, and a right to retain the property until they have received it (o). This compensation is called salvage, a term derived from the French word salver, or sauver, to save. The amount of salvage payable in the case of the recovery of property lost by shipwreck or abandoned at sea (p) depends upon the value of the thing saved, the degree of danger of loss, and the amount of labour and skill employed in saving it (q). Some maritime codes have proportioned the amount to the value of the thing saved; but this is obviously unjust; and our own law, therefore, merely directs as a general principle that a reasonable compensation shall be made (r). If the salvors are guilty of misconduct, and occasion injury to the ship and cargo by rescuing the vessel from one danger only to run her into another, the claim for salvage will be lost (s). But, if success is finally obtained, no mere error of judgment in the manner of procuring it, and no misconduct short of that which is wilful and may be considered criminal on the part of the salvors, will work an entire forfeiture of the salvage. Mistake or misconduct, not wilful, but diminishing the value of the property salved or occasioning expense to the owners, will, however, be considered in estimating the amount of compensation to be awarded (t). There can be no claim to salvage where the efforts to salve have not been attended with success (u). Services unavoidably interrupted before completion, which nevertheless (n) As to the principles on which life salvage remuneration is awarded, see The Suevic, (1908) P. 154; 77 L.J. P. 92.

(o) 57 & 58 Vict. c. 60, ss. 544—556; Hartfort v. Jones, 1 Raym. 393; Salk. 654, pl. 2; The Fusilier, 2 Moo. P.C. N.S. 51; 34 L.J. Adm. 25; The Phantom, L.R. 1 A. & E. 58. Life salvage paid under this Act is not recoverable upon an ordinary policy of marine insurance: Nourse v. Liverpool Owners' Assoc., (1896) 2 Q. B. 16; 65 L.J. Q.B. 507.

(p) The Genessee, 12 Jur. 401.

(q) As to apportionment of salvage award, see The Birnam, 76 L.J. P. 28; The Minneapolis, (1902) P. 30; 71 L.J. P. 28.

(r) The Otto Hermann, 33 L.J. Adm. 189; The Thomas Fielden, 32 L.J. Adm. 61; The Werra, 12 P.D. 52; 56 L.J. P. 53. As to appraisement of the value see The Harmonides, (1903) P. 1; 72 L.J. P. 9; and The Hohenzollern, (1906) P. 339; 76 L.J. P. 17, where it was held that where a divergency exists between the market value of the salved vessel and her value to her owners, the latter is the proper value to be taken.

(s) The Dosseitei, 10 Jur. 865; The Yan Yean, 8 P.D. 147; 52 L.J. P. 67.

(t) The Atlas, 15 Moo. P.C. 329; 31 L.J. Adm. 210.

(u) The Edward Hawkins, 31 L.J. Adm. 46; Lush. 515; The Atlas, supra; The Renpor, 8 P.D. 115; 52 L.J. P. 49; The Cheerful, 11 P.D. 3; 55 L.J. P. 5; The Benlarig, 14 P.D. 3; 58 L.J. P. 24; The August Korff, (1903) P. 166; 72 L.J. P. 53 (towage), but if men are engaged by a ship in distress it is otherwise. See The Undaunted, Lush. 90.

materially contribute to the ultimate safety of the salved property, entitle those performing them to salvage remuneration (x). A vessel which goes to the assistance of another in distress made by the latter, is not entitled to salvage remuneration if the vessel which made the signals no longer requires her services (y). The mere sending of a telegram to the effect that a ship is in distress to persons who are already aware of the fact and are sending assistance does not entitle the sender to salvage remuneration (z). A man cannot entitle himself to salvage in respect of services which have been rendered contrary to the express wishes and directions of the owner, and has no right to interfere with persons employed by the owner to save the property (a). And, if one set of persons have taken possession of a vessel abandoned at sea and are endeavouring to bring it into port and save it, another set have no right to interfere with them and become participators in the salvage, unless it appears that the first would not have been able to effect the purpose without the aid of the others (b). A passenger is not entitled to claim salvage in respect of that ordinary assistance to a vessel in distress which it is the interest of all persons on board to give, for the purpose of avoiding the common danger (c). But, for extraordinary services rendered and dangers incurred for the preservation of the vessel, the passenger is as much entitled to salvage as a mere stranger (d). And salvage service may be performed even by the seamen of the ship salved, when an abandonment of her has put an end to their original contract (e). So also salvage services may be rendered by a pilot where he has put off to sea to help a vessel, the test not being whether the vessel was at the time of succour in distress or damaged, but whether the pilot could be expected to incur the risk for only pilotage reward (f). The crew of a lifeboat who have salved property are entitled to reward as salvors (g); so also the launchers of a lifeboat are entitled to a share in the sum recovered for the salvage service, where property is in fact salved (h). Where both ships belong to the same owner, the master and crew of the ship which has performed the services

(x) The August Korff, (1903) P. 166; 72 L.J. P. 53; The Atlas, supra.

(y) The Elswick Park, (1904) P. 76; 72 L.J. P. 79. As to improper use of signals of distress, see 57 & 58 Vict. c. 60, s. 434 (2).

(z) The Marguerite Molinos, (1903) P. 160; 72 L.J. P. 56.

(a) Sutton v. Buck, 2 Taunt. 312.

(b) Abbott, 962 (ed. 14).

(c) The Branston, 2 Hag. 3; The Vrede, Lush. 322; 30 L.J. Adm. 209.

(d) Newman v. Walters, 3 Bos. & P. 612.

(e) The Vrede, supra; The Le Jouet, L.R. 3 A. & E. 556; 41 L.J. Adm. 95.

(f) Akerblom v. Price, 7 Q.B.D. 129; 50 L.J. Q.B. 629; see The Anders Knape, L.R. 4 P.D. 213; 48 L.J. P. 53; The Santiago, 70 L.J. P. 12.

(g) The Auguste Legembre, (1902) P. 123; 71 L.J. P. 53.

(h) The Cayo Bonito, (1904) P. 310; 73 L.J. P. 93.

are entitled to salvage, provided the services performed are not within the contract which they originally entered into with the owners (i). And the owners of a salving vessel are entitled to remuneration, although some of them are also owners of the vessel which did the mischief (k). A separate salvage award may be made against the cargo and freight where the danger to a perishable cargo and the freight is much more serious than that to the ship (l). An agreement for salvage must be made honestly and for benefit of ship and cargo; there must also be necessity, i.e., not absolute necessity, but the absence of any reasonable alternative (m). An agreement for salvage which is reasonable at the time it is made is valid, notwithstanding circumstances may render the services more expensive or hazardous than was anticipated (n). The owners of a vessel may bind the master and crew without their assent by an agreement with other parties as to future but not as to past salvage services (o). By sect. 156 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894 (p), every stipulation by which any seaman consents to abandon any right which he may have or obtain in the nature of salvage, is wholly inoperative (q); but this is not to apply to the case of any agreement made by the seamen belonging to any ship which by the terms of the agreement is to be employed on salvage service. Compulsion or fraud will avoid a contract as to salvage (r). Persons who merely furnish boats, tackle, or other articles of use for salvage purposes, are not entitled to be paid as salvors, but for the use of the articles they have supplied (s). There is no distinction between river salvage and sea salvage, the danger and meritorious nature of the services in either case being the ground on which the compensation is awarded (t). Persons rendering services in themselves of a salvage nature under a contract for work and labour, are excluded from subsequently claiming against the property as salvors in respect of those services, whether the contract under which the services are

(i) The Sappho, L.R. 3 P. C. 690; 40 L.J. P.C. 48; The Scout, L.R. 3 A. & E. 512; 41 L.J. Adm. 42; The Cargo ex Laertes, 12 P.D. 187; 56 L.J. P. 108.

(k) The Glengaber, L.R. 3 A. & E. 534; 41 L.J. Adm. 84.

(l) The Velox, (1906) P. 263; 75 L.J. P. 81.

(m) Per Kennedy, L.J., The Crusader, (1907) P. 196; 76 L.J. P. 102.

(n) The Waverley, 40 L.J. Adm. 42; L.R. 3 A. & E. 362. See The Mark Lane, 15 P.D. 135; The Rialto, (1891) P. 175; 60 L.J. P. 71.

(o) The Friesland, (1904) P. 345; 73 L.J. P. 121; The Inchmaree, (1899) P. 111; 68 L.J. P. 30.

(p) 57 & 58 Vict. c. 60, s. 156. See The Wilhelm Tell, (1892) P. 337; 61 L.J. P. 127.

(q) The Rosario, 2 P.D. 41; 46 L.J. P. 52; seamen may, however, arrange for an apportionment. See The Afrika, 5 P.D. 192; 49 L.J. P. 63.

(r) The Medina, 2 P.D. 5. As to invalidity of an extortionate agreement for salvage, see The Port Caledonia, (1903) P. 184; 72 L.J. P. 60.

(s) The Charlotte, 12 Jur. 568.

(t) The Carrier Dove, 2 Moo. P.C. N.S. 243; and see Nicholson v. Chapman, 2 H.Bl. 258.

performed be made with the owners of the property or with third persons (u). Where a passenger ship is wrecked, and by the terms of the contract with the passengers the owners are under no liability to forward them to their destination, the master, who makes arrangements with another vessel to carry on the passengers, does so as the agent of the passengers, and not of the owners (x).

Services by trustees.—The law raises no implied promise of remuneration in respect of services of a fiduciary character (y). If, therefore, a solicitor consents to act as a trustee, and renders professional services in matters relating to the trust estate, he is not entitled to charge for such services whether he acts for himself alone, being sole trustee, or for himself and others who are his co-trustees, unless there is a provision in the trust-deed to that effect: but he is entitled to charge the trust estate with costs out of pocket (z). A trustee, moreover, is not allowed to make the execution of the trust a source of profit to himself, and cannot sue upon an express contract between him and his co-trustees for payment for his services to the trust; for each trustee is to be a check and control upon each and all the co-trustees; and one of them cannot authorize another to make professional charges to be paid out of the trust fund. Where, therefore, a number of trustees appointed one of their own body, who was a lawyer, "factor to the trust," with an allowance for his necessary charges and expenses, and a "reasonable gratification," and the factor sued his co-trustees for his professional charges "by reason of their having employed him as their commissioner, factor, cashier, and attorney in the aforesaid trust," it was held that he was not entitled to recover these charges either from them or from the trust estate (a). Where one of several solicitors in partnership has taken upon himself the office of trustee, the firm of which he is a member cannot charge for professional services rendered by them in the execution of the trust (b). Where it was proved that the partner of a trustee had, as solicitor to the trust, transacted the whole trust business entirely on his own account and for his own exclusive benefit, under an arrangement which had been made between him and

(u) The Solway Prince, (1896) P. 120; 65 L.J. P. 45.

(x) The Mariposa, (1896) P. 273; 65 L.J. P. 104.

(y) Barrett v. Hartley, L.R. 2 Eq. 789. As to appointment by the Court of a judicial trustee with remuneration, see 59 & 60 Vict. c. 35, s. 1 (5).

(z) Moore v. Frowd, 3 Myl. & Cr. 45; 6 L.J. Ch. 372; Christophers v. White, 10 Beav. 523; Manson v. Baillie, 2 Macq. 80, questioning Cradock v. Piper, 1 Mac. & G. 664; 19 L.J. Ch. 107.

(a) Manson v. Baillie, 2 Macq. 80; Aberdeen Ry. v. Blaikie, 1 Macq. 461.

(b) Collins v. Carey, 2 Beav. 128 Broughton v. Broughton, 5 De G. M. & G 160; 25 L.J. Ch. 250.

his partner, that they should not be partners in any matters relating to the trust property, but that the partner who was not a trustee should, in all matters relating to the trust, act as sole solicitor to the trust, and be entitled to receive, for his own exclusive benefit, all costs and charges which might be incurred in the execution of the trust, the professional charges of the partner were allowed to be paid out of the trust estate (c).

Promises of presents in return for services.—If services have been rendered and benefits conferred on the express understanding that the person rendering the services is to trust entirely to the generosity of the party benefited, there is no contract (d). But, if a person promises to make a present in return for services rendered, there is evidence of a contract to pay a reasonable sum (e).

Honorary and gratuitous services.—If the employment is by custom of a purely gratuitous character, the primâ facie presumption of a letting and hiring of the services is rebutted as soon as the custom is proved. The office of an arbitrator is deemed to be an honorary office; and a person who acts as such cannot charge for his services, unless it was the intention of the parties that the arbitrator should be paid for his time and trouble, or unless there is an express promise to pay him for his services (f). Barristers likewise exercise a profession of an honorary character (g); they cannot, therefore, maintain an action for remuneration for advice or advocacy, or for services ancillary to the service of an advocate, although there be an express contract to pay them a stipulated sum for such service (h); but in cases unconnected with advocacy, and for services not of a professional character, a barrister may, it seems, contract for remuneration. A physician may sue for his services, if he is registered as a physician under the Medical Acts, and is not prohibited by the college to which he belongs from bringing an action for his charges (i). If the service appears to have been rendered as a gratuitous act of kindness, or in

(c) Clack v. Carlon, 30 L.J. Ch. 639.

(d) Roberts v. Smith, 4 H. & N. 321; 28 L. J. Ex. 164; Taylor v. Brewer, 1 M. & S. 190.

(e) Jewry v. Busk, 5 Taunt. 302; Bryant v. Flight, 5 M. & W. 114; 8 L.J. Ex. 189; Bird v. M'Gaheg, 2 C. & K. 708.

(f) Virany v. Warne, 4 Esp. 47; Hoggins v. Gordon, 3 Q.B. 466; 11 L.J. Q.B. 286. See, however, as to lay arbitrators, Crampton v. Ridley, 20 Q.B.D. 48, 57, where it seems that a promise may be implied.

(g) Lebrasseur & Oakley, In re, (1896) 2 Ch. 487; 65 L.J. Ch. 763.

(h) Kennedy v. Broun, 13 C.B. N.S. 677; 32 L.J. C.P. 137; Broun v. Kennedy, 33 L.J. Ch. 71, 342; 33 Beav. 133. Morris v. Hunt, 1 Chitt. 551; Veitch v. Russell, 3 Q.B. 928; 12 L.J. Q.B. 13; Egan v. Kensington Union, 3 Q.B. 935, n.; Att.-Gen. v. Royal College of Physicians, 1 Jo. & H. 561, 591; 30 L.J. Ch. 757; Mostyn v. Mostyn, L.R. 5 Ch. 457; 39 L.J. Ch. 780.

(i) 49 & 50 Vict. c. 48, s. 6; Gibbon v. Budd, 2 H. & C. 92; 32 L.J. Ex. 182, see ante, p. 115.

discharge of a public duty, the primâ facie presumption of a contract of letting and hiring is repelled. Thus, if a man undertakes a journey to become bail for his friend, he is not entitled to be paid for his trouble (k).

The law raises no implied promise of remuneration in respect of the services of public officers. If by statute or immemorial usage a public officer is entitled to fees for his services he may maintain an action to recover them; but, where a duty is imposed by statute upon a public officer, and no provision is made for the payment of any remuneration, no action can be maintained for the recovery of any remuneration (l).

Rights and liabilities of employer and workman.—A person who employs another by the piece or by the job, or who lets out task-work to be done for an express or implied remuneration, is, in general, bound to do everything that is necessary to be done on his part to enable the hirer of the work to execute his engagement, and earn the hire or reward. He impliedly undertakes to resort to no misrepresentation or concealment calculated to mislead the servant, to accept the work when completed, and to pay the customary hire, in case no specific rate of remuneration has been agreed upon. When there is an absolute refusal on the part of the employer to permit the workman to perform his task, or the employer does an act absolutely incapacitating himself from performing his part of the engagement, the undertaker of the work has a right to sue immediately, for remuneration on a quantum meruit if the contract is defeasible, or, if not, for compensation for the damage he has sustained in being prevented from earning the stipulated hire (m).

Defeasible contracts for work and services.—If a labourer is employed to dig potatoes at so much an acre, or to cut turf at so much a load, the employer may, if there is no determinate term of employment, dispense, at any time, with the future services of the workman, paying him for the work actually done (n). If a party employs an agent to transact his business for him, for a certain commission, the employment is determinable at the will of the employer, unless it is coupled with an interest, and the party employed is something more than an agent in the transaction. If an agent is employed to sell property on commission, it is competent to the employer, at any time before a sale has

(k) Reason v. Wirdnam, 1 C. & P. 434.

(l) Jones v. Carmarthen (Mayor), 8 M. & W. 605; 10 L.J. Ex. 401.

(m) Planché v. Colburn, 1 M. & Sc. 51; 1 L.J. C.P. 7; Emmens v. Elderton, 4 H.L.Cas. 624; 13 C.B. 495, post, p. 916; Prickett v. Badger, 1 C.B. N.S. 296; 26 L.J. C.P. 33; Inchbald v. Western Neilgherry Coffee Co., 17 C.B. N.S. 733; 34 L.J. C.P. 15; Mort's Dock & Engineering Co. v. Wadey, 22 T.L.R. 61.

(n) But see Needler v. Guest, Aleyn, 9.

been actually effected, to revoke the authority, and deprive the agent of the expected commission (o); but, if expenses have been incurred by the agent, he will be entitled to recover such expenses from the employer, and also a reasonable compensation for any labour he may have undertaken in endeavouring to execute his commission, unless it appears to have been the understanding of the parties that nothing was to be paid unless the act authorized to be done was fully accomplished (p). If a commission agent employed to sell property has found a purchaser and effected the authorized contract of sale, he will be entitled to his commission, although the employer may refuse to fulfil the contract; and if he has found a party willing to buy, and the employer is then unable or unwilling to sell, the agent will be entitled to remuneration for his services (q).

Time of performance.—By the Judicature Act, 1873, s. 25 (7), stipulations in contracts as to time or otherwise which would not before the passing of this Act have been deemed to be or to have become of the essence of such contracts in a court of equity, shall receive in all courts the same construction and effect as they would have heretofore received in equity (r). Time is frequently of the essence of the contract as regards the commencement of the work, but not so with regard to its completion. If it is made a positive term of the contract that the work shall be commenced on a day named, the employer may refuse the services of the workman, and decline to employ him, if he does not tender his services or commence the work at the appointed period; but, when the work has been commenced, the completion of it by a day named will not in general be a condition precedent to the workman's right to the stipulated hire. When the materials for the work, for example, have been furnished by the employer, and the produce of the labour becomes, consequently, his property as the work proceeds, the non-performance of the work by an appointed time does not release the employer from his obligation to pay the contract price. He must in such a case perform his part of the engagement, and bring a cross action against the undertaker of the work to recover compensation for any damage he may have sustained by reason of the non-completion of the work at the appointed period (s). If after the time fixed for completion the employer urges the continuance

(o) Simpson v. Lamb, 17 C.B. 603; 25 L.J. C.P. 113.

(p) Moffatt v. Laurie, 15 C.B. 583; 24 L.J. C.P. 56; De Bernardy v. Harding, 8 Exch. 822; 22 L.J. Ex. 340; Campanari v. Woodburn, 15 C.B. 400; 24 L.J. C.P. 13.

(q) Prickett v. Badger, ante, p. 874.

(r) Tilley v. Thomas, L.R. 3 Ch. 61.

(s) Lucas v. Godwin, 4 Sc. 509; 6 L.J. C.P. 205.

of the work, or encourages the workman to proceed, he waives the condition as to time (t).

Entire performance of contract condition precedent to payment.—Thus, if a coachman agrees to convey a passenger from London to York for a certain stipulated remuneration, and carries him only half the distance, he is not entitled to any payment, the precedent act to be performed being entire and indivisible. Where the plaintiff undertook to make "complete" certain dilapidated chandeliers for the sum of 10*l.*, and returned them in an incomplete state, it was held that he could not maintain an action for the work actually done (u). Where a solicitor covenanted to pay his clerk 2*s.* for every quire of paper he copied out, it was held that this was an entire covenant, of which no apportionment could be made pro ratâ, and that the clerk, consequently, could not maintain an action to recover remuneration for copying out any number of sheets less than a quire (x).

Divisible and apportionable work.—But, if the work is in its nature divisible and apportionable, and there is nothing in the terms of the contract which, either by express stipulation or necessary intendment, precludes the plaintiff from recovering in respect of a partial execution of it, the plaintiff may, on performing a part only of his engagement, require a corresponding part performance on the part of the defendant (y); and if, in a contract of this description, the defendant is deprived, by accident, of the benefit of the work before it is finished, the workman is not, by reason of such accident, deprived of his right to remuneration (z).

Building contracts.—If a contract has been entered into to build a house for a specific sum, to be paid on the completion of the building, the contract is entire and indivisible, and the employer is not bound to pay for a half or a quarter of a house; for the court and jury can have no right to apportion that which the parties themselves have treated as entire. But, where a builder engages to build a house, to be paid for his work and labour and the materials supplied by measure and value, or according to the customary rate of remuneration, he is entitled to demand payment from time to time as the work proceeds. Every builder who contracts for the building of a house impliedly undertakes to furnish everything reasonably necessary for its (t) Burn v. Miller, 4 Taunt. 748.

(u) Sinclair v. Bowles, 9 B. & C. 92; 7 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 178.

(x) Needler v. Guest, Aleyn, 9. See also Bates v. Hudson, 6 D. & R. 3.

(y) Taylor v. Laird, 1 H. & N. 266; 25 L.J. Ex. 329; Button v. Thompson, L.R. 4 C.P. 330; 38 L.J. C.P. 225; Roberts v. Havelock, 3 B. & Ad. 404.

(z) Menetone v. Athawes, 3 Burr. 1592.

completion (a). Where an action was brought by a builder against his employer upon a special contract for the building of a house for a certain sum, and the builder had omitted to put into the building certain joists according to his contract, it was contended that, as the employer had got the benefit of the house, he was bound to pay what it was fairly worth; but the court held that the defendant made no such agreement (b). If an architect, employed to prepare plans and specifications for a house, and to procure a builder to erect it, takes out the quantities, and represents to a builder that they are correct, and the builder thereupon makes a tender which is accepted, the builder cannot upon these facts alone recover more than the contract price from the employer, although it turns out that the quantities are wrong, and that the builder has expended upon the building a much larger amount of material than he contemplated (c).

Work to be approved of before payment.—If a tailor undertakes to make a coat, or a coachbuilder to build a carriage, upon the terms that it is not to be taken and paid for if, on inspection, style and workmanship are disapproved of, the coat or the carriage may be returned, and payment of the price refused. But if an artist is engaged to work up materials, or to paint a ceiling, and there is consequently no opportunity or power of returning him the produce of his labour, the approval of the work cannot be made a condition precedent to his right to demand some remuneration for what he has done (d). If a contract for the building or repairing of a house provides for the inspection and approval of the work by the employer before payment of the contract price, the employer must be afforded an opportunity of inspection before he can be called upon to pay; but he cannot, by withholding his approval unreasonably and malâ fide, after an opportunity of inspection has been afforded him, deprive the workman of his hire (e). The employer has, indeed, a right in all cases to inspect the work before he pays for it; but his approval of a builder's work is by no means essential to the maintenance of an action by the builder. It will always be a question for the jury to determine, whether the employer has acted bonâ fide, and ought reasonably to have been satisfied with the work done (f). But, where the workman works up his own materials in the manufacture of a chattel, the

(a) Williams v. Fitzmaurice, 3 H. & N. 844; Sumpter v. Hedges, (1898) 1 Q.B. 673; 67 L.J. Q.B. 545.

(b) Ellis v. Hamlen, 3 Taunt. 52.

(c) Scrivener v. Pask, L.R. 1 C.P. 715; 18 C.B. N.S. 785.

(d) Andrews v. Belfield, 2 C.B. N.S. 779.

(e) Dallman v. King, 5 Sc. 382; 7 L.J. C.P. 6.

(f) Parsons v. Sexton, 4 C.B. 899; 16 L.J. C.P. 181; Hughes v. Lenny, 5 M. & W. 183; 8 L.J. Ex. 177.

employer may reserve to himself a right to rescind the contract and reject the chattel, if he finds, on trial or inspection, that it does not suit him, either on the score of workmanship, or of convenience, or taste (g). If his acceptance of an engine, or machine, and payment of the contract price, are made dependent upon his approval of the strength and soundness of the workmanship, and he rejects the machine because it does not work well, or does not answer his purpose, and not because it is deficient either in strength or soundness, he will be held responsible for the price (h).

When the right to receive payment is made dependent upon the approval of an architect or surveyor, or the production of a certificate that the work has been done according to contract, no right can arise which can be enforced until the approval has been given or the certificate has been obtained (i). Work, therefore, which has been done, but not to the satisfaction of the surveyor or architect, cannot be charged for (k); but, if the certificate is fraudulently or corruptly withheld, the court will give relief; and an action may, in certain cases, be maintained for the malicious, corrupt, or fraudulent withholding of the certificate both against the architect and against the employer (l). If the certificate is not, by the express terms of the contract, required to be in writing, the architect's approbation testified by word of mouth is sufficient (m).

Relief against biassed or corrupt decisions of architects and surveyors.—If an architect's certificate is wrongfully or fraudulently withheld, the court will give relief, not only against the parties who are bound to pay, but also against the architect, surveyor, or engineer; and any stipulation in the contract, placing the latter in the position of an arbitrator between the employer and the workman, and making his decision final, and purporting to exclude the jurisdiction of any court with reference to his conduct, will be of no effect (n). If questions arising between the contractor for works and the employer are, by the contract, left to the determination of the architect, and the latter has a personal interest unknown to the contractor and

(g) Andrews v. Belfield, 2 C.B. N.S. 779.

(h) Ripley v. Lordan, 6 Jur. N.S. 1078.

(i) Scott v. Liverpool Corporation, 25 L.J. Ch. 230; 3 De G. & J. 334; Morgan v. Birnie, 3 M. & Sc. 76; 9 Bing. 672; Salford (Mayor) v. Ackers, 16 L.J. Ex. 6; 16 M. & W. 85; Moffatt v. Dickson, 22 L.J. C.P. 265; 13 C.B. 543.

(k) Dobson v. Hudson, 1 C.B. N.S. 659; 26 L.J. C.P. 153.

(l) Milner v. Field, 5 Exch. 829; 20 L.J. Ex. 68; Batterbury v. Vyse, 2 H. & C. 42; 32 L.J. Ex. 177; Stadhard v. Lee, 3 B. & S. 364; 32 L.J. Q.B. 75.

(m) Roberts v. Watkins, 32 L.J. C.P. 291; 14 C.B. N.S. 592.

(n) Scott v. Liverpool Corporation, 25 L.J. Ch. 227. See also Robins v. Goddard, (1905) 1 K.B. 294; 74 L.J. K.B. 167.

adverse to him (o), or does not act fairly between the parties, or manifests any undue partiality, or corruption, the court will interfere to give relief, however strenuously the parties may by their contract have endeavoured to exclude the jurisdiction of the court (p).

Actions for wrongfully withholding the certificate may be maintained both against the architect and the employer, if it can be proved that the builder has fulfilled his contract and done all things necessary to be done by him to entitle him to the certificate, and that the architect had full knowledge thereof, and nevertheless neglected to certify in collusion with the employer (q). But the employer is not responsible for any misconduct of his architect or surveyor, in refusing to certify, when such misconduct is not brought about by his interference (r).

Architect—Property in plans.—Where an architect was employed by a building owner to do all the things which were necessary to be done by an architect for the purpose of designing and carrying out certain building operations, at a remuneration of 5 per cent. upon the contract price of the work, and in pursuance of the employment the architect prepared plans and duly carried out the work, and the building owner paid him the agreed remuneration, it was held that the property in the plans was in the building owner, and that the architect was not entitled to retain them (s).

Effect of employer's taking possession and making use of unfinished work.—A landowner who by a building contract provides a site for the erection of a house, and delivers the ground to the builder, does not thereby part with the possession of his land; the builder has the mere temporary custody of it, and may be turned off at any time by the employer (t). Where by a building contract it was stipulated that certain houses should be built on the land of the employer for a certain sum by a specified day to the satisfaction of a surveyor, upon whose approval payment was to be made, and the builder became bankrupt and was unable to complete the houses, and the employer then took possession of them and finished them, it was

(o) Kimberley v. Dick, L.R. 13 Eq. 1; 41 L.J. Ch. 38.

(p) Kemp v. Rose, 1 Giff. 258; Scott v. Liverpool Corporation, 25 L.J. Ch. 227; Ormes v. Beadel, 2 Giff. 166; 30 L.J. Ch. 1; Pawley v. Turnbull, 3 Giff. 70; Bliss v. Smith, 34 Beav. 508.

(q) Batterbury v. Vyse, 2 H. & C. 42; 32 L.J. Ex. 177; Milner v. Field, 5 Exch. 829; 20 L.J. Ex. 68; Scott v. Liverpool Corporation, supra.

(r) Clarke v. Watson, 18 C.B. N.S. 278; 34 L.J. C.P. 148.

(s) Gibbon v. Pease, (1905) 1 K.B. 810; 74 L.J. K.B. 502.

(t) Camden (Marquis) v. Batterbury, 7 C.B. N.S. 864; 28 L.J. C.P. 335.

held that his taking possession of the unfinished houses did not amount to a waiver of the contract or of any of the terms or conditions thereof, and afforded no evidence that he accepted the benefit of the work actually done under an implied contract to pay for it according to measure and value (u). The usual clause in contracts for the construction of works or for building leases, providing that all materials brought on the ground are to become the property of the building owner, must be construed as vesting the materials in the building owner, subject to a condition of defeasance if the builder completes the works. It is a security to the building owner for the performance of the work. If the contractor fails to complete he cannot recover the materials, although the building owner does not complete the works himself or by another contractor (x).

Defective work accepted by employer.—Whenever the employer has accepted the benefit of work done for him under a special contract, which has been abandoned or rescinded, he is liable to pay a reasonable remuneration in respect thereof. If the workman undertakes to repair a chattel, the property of the employer, and the new work and materials are so intermixed with the old work, that the one cannot be separated from the other without injury to the chattel, so that the employer must of necessity accept the work, his liability to pay for it, in case it has been negligently executed, depends upon the utility of the work. If the chattel has been rendered more valuable by what has been done, the employer must pay the fair value of the workmanship; if it is in nowise improved, and the work done has been so negligently executed as to be worth nothing, the employer cannot be called upon for payment. The retention by the employer of his own unfinished chattel does not, in such a case, raise any inference of a waiver of any of the conditions of the special contract, or of the entering into a new contract to pay upon a quantum meruit (y). Where a contract provides for stipulated work at a lump sum and such work is not done, but its equivalent or better work is effected, no claim for such substituted work can be claimed (z).

Substantial performance of building contracts.—When a contract has been entered into for the building of a house for a certain sum of money to be paid on the completion of the build-

(u) Munro v. Butt, 8 E. & B. 738; Runger v. G. W. Ry., 5 H.L.Cas. 118; Sumpter v. Hedges, (1898) 1 Q.B. 673; 67 L.J. Q.B. 545.

(x) Hart v. Porthgain Harbour Co., (1903) 1 Ch. 690; 72 L.J. Ch. 426; Byford v. Russell, (1907) 2 K.B. 522; 76 L.J. K.B. 744.

(y) Munro v. Butt, supra; Ellis v. Hamlen, 3 Taunt. 52, ante, p. 877.

(z) Forman v. The Liddesdale, (1900) A.C. 190; 69 L.J. P.C. 44.

ing in accordance with certain plans and specifications, it is not essential to the maintenance of an action that there should be an exact performance in every minute particular; for, wherever divers acts of different degrees of importance are to be done on one side in return for a stipulated remuneration on the other, the performance of all the things in every minute particular is not, in general, a condition precedent to the liability to make some remuneration; but, if the contract has been substantially fulfilled, the plaintiff is entitled to maintain an action upon it(a), the defendant being entitled to such a deduction from the contract price as will enable him to complete the work in exact accordance with the contract. In every contract for work there is a condition implied by law that the work shall be done in a workmanlike manner; but this is not a condition going to the essence of the contract (b).

A building contract, with all its specifications and details, may in some respect be broken with trifling damage to the employer; and, if performance in every minute particular were made a condition precedent to the builder's right to sue upon the contract for work done, "a trifling injury to the one party might occasion the loss of all remuneration to the other for a long and laborious service" (c). But, where it appears from the whole tenor of the agreement that the parties thereto intended, the one to insist upon, and the other to submit to, conditions, however unreasonable, the court will in such case give effect to them (d).

Where a party engages to do certain work in a certain specified manner, but does not perform the work so as to correspond with the specification, he is not entitled to recover the price agreed upon, nor can he recover according to the actual value of the work done. What the plaintiff is entitled to recover is the price agreed upon in the specification, subject to a deduction; and the measure of that deduction is the sum which it would take to alter the work to make it correspond with the specification (e). And the defendant is not, by reason of his having given evidence of such breach of contract on the part of the plaintiff, and obtained a reduction of the agreed price, precluded from bringing his cross-action to recover compensation for any special damage he may have sustained by reason of the non-compliance by the plaintiff with the strict terms of the

(a) Ante, p. 50.

(b) Lucas v. Godwin, 4 Sc. 509; 6 L.J. C.P. 205.

(c) Tindal, C.J., Stavers v. Curling, 3 Sc. 755; 6 L.J. C.P. 41.

(d) Stadhard v. Lee, 3 B. & S. 364; 32 L.J. Q.B. 75.

(e) Thornton v. Place, 1 Moo. & R. 218.

engagement (f). Although the defendant may give evidence of such breach of contract in reduction of damages, he is not bound to do so, but may pay the whole of the contract price, and bring a cross-action for damages for the non-performance and defective performance of the work done (g). Care must be taken to mark the distinction between an action on the special contract itself for the agreed price of the work, and an action upon a bill of exchange or promissory note given by way of payment of the amount. In the former the value of the work only can be recovered; in the latter the party holding bills given for the price of the work done can recover on them, unless there has been a total failure of the consideration. If the consideration fails partially, as by the inferiority of the work, the buyer must seek his remedy by a cross-action. The contract may be divisible; but the security is entire (h). Where plans and specifications are prepared and persons invited to tender thereupon, there is no implied warranty that the work can be successfully done according to such plans and specifications (i). But a clause in a contract by which the employer disclaims responsibility for the accuracy of the statements and information with which he supplies the contractor, and as to which the contractor is to satisfy himself, does not confer exemption on the employer for statements fraudulently or recklessly made by the employer or his agent. Whatever be the form of the contract, the party who makes an allegation of fraud is entitled to have the question submitted to a jury (k).

Abatement of contract price.—Whenever a contract for work and services on the one side, and payment on the other, has been so far executed as to give rise to a cause of action, but has not been fully performed, it is competent to the employer to show, in reduction of the price agreed to be paid, that the subject-matter of the contract is diminished in value by reason of the inefficient execution of the work. Thus, where the defendant agreed to pay the sum of 70*l.* for a warm-air apparatus, it was held that, if the apparatus was altogether unfit for the purpose, the defendant was not bound to pay for it; but that, if the apparatus was in the main effective, but not quite so complete as it ought to have been, the action was maintainable for the price, and that the jury might deduct from the full price such a sum

(f) Ante, p. 630; Mondel v. Steel, 8 M. & W. 858; 10 L.J. Ex. 426; Rigge v. Burbidge, 15 M. & W. 599; 15 L.J. Ex. 309; and cp. Bow, McLachlan & Co. v. "Camosun" (Owners), (1909) A.C. 597; 79 L.J. P.C. 17.

(g) Davis v. Hedges, L.R. 6 Q.B. 687; 40 L.J. Q.B. 276.

(h) Tye v. Gwynne, 2 Camph. 347.

(i) Thorn v. London (Mayor), 1 App. Cas. 120; 45 L.J. Ex. 62.

(k) Pearson v. Dublin Corporation, (1907) A.C. 351; 77 L.J. P.C. 1.

as would enable the defendant to do that which was required to make it perfectly effective (l).

Effect of non-performance of building contracts by time specified.—In the case of a contract to build a house, where the employer furnishes the land, which is the principal material for the work, if the house is not built by the time specified, but is afterwards completed, the employer who has got the house, and has had the value of his land increased by its erection thereon, can never be permitted to free himself from his obligation to pay for it by alleging that the work was not done by the time appointed (m). Where a builder contracts with a building-owner to complete a building for one entire sum and to enter into sub-contracts for certain portions of the work and materials with sub-contractors and specialists appointed by the building owner, but to be paid by the builder out of the contract price, and as a basis of the whole contract the builder accepts the primary obligation of completing the building at a given date, there is no implied promise on the part of the building-owner that the sub-contractor's or specialist's work shall be performed and materials supplied by them without unreasonable delay, nor is any duty cast upon the building-owner to provide against such delay. So that where under such a contract, the completion of a building has been delayed by the default of the sub-contractors and specialists, the builder cannot maintain an action for damages against the building-owner upon the footing that there was an obligation upon the building-owner to see that the work was done and materials supplied by the sub-contractors and specialists within a reasonable time (n).

Penalties for non-performance of building contracts by time specified.—Where, by articles of agreement for the altering and repairing of a warehouse for a fixed sum, it was stipulated that, in the event of the work not being fully completed in three months, the builder should "forfeit and pay" to the employer 5*l.* every week he should be engaged in such work beyond the three months, such penalty or forfeiture to be deducted from the amount which might remain owing on the completion of the work, it was held, in an action brought for extra work, that the employer was entitled to set off the penalty against the price of such extra work, and that he had a double remedy, either to set

(l) Cutler v. Close, 5 C. & P. 338; Chapel v. Hickes, 2 Cr. & M. 214; 3 L.J. Ex. 38.

(m) Tindal, C.J., Lucas v. Godwin, 4 Sc. 509; 6 L.J. C.P. 205; Littler v. Holland, 3 T.R. 590; Maryon v. Carter, 4 C. & P. 295; Kingdom v. Cox, 2 C.B. 661; 15 L.J. C.P. 95.

(n) Mitchell v. Guildford Union, 68 J.P. 84; see also Leslie v. Managers of Metropolitan Asylum District, 68 J.P. 86.

it off as payment, or to deduct it from the contract price (o). If performance by the time specified has been prevented by the ordering of extra work, or by the interference of the employer or his agent, the claim to the penalties cannot be enforced (p), unless there is an express stipulation that it may be (q).

Security for due performance of contract.—If security is to be given by the workman for the due performance of his contract, it is a condition precedent, unless the condition has been waived by the workman's being required to proceed with the work, or the work having been executed, without security (r).

Destruction of work before payment—Loss of materials and of price of work.—If the contract is entire for the performance of a specific work for a specified sum, so that the performance of the whole of the work is a condition precedent to the right to payment for any part of it, the workman will be deprived of all legal rights to remuneration if the work is destroyed by accident before it has been completed (s); but, if the workman is entitled to payment from time to time as the work proceeds, the destruction of the work before its completion will not deprive the workman of his hire. Thus, if the contract is an entire and indivisible contract for the building of a house for a specific sum to be paid on its completion, and the edifice is destroyed by lightning, fire or tempest, during the progress of the work, the contractor must stand to the loss, and be himself at the expense of repairing the damage. But, if the contract price of the building is to be paid by instalments on the completion of certain specified portions of the work, each instalment becomes a debt due to the builder, as the particular portion specified is completed; and, if the house is destroyed by accident, the employer would be bound to pay the instalments then due, but would not be responsible for the intermediate work and labour and materials (t).

When the contract is entire and indivisible for the manufacture out of materials furnished by the employer of a particular chattel for a specific sum, to be paid on the completion and delivery of the chattel to the employer, and the chattel is destroyed by inevitable accident whilst it remains unfinished in

(o) Duckworth v. Alison, 1 M. & W. 412; 5 L.J. Ex. 171; Fletcher v. Dyche, 2 T.R. 32; Legge v. Harlocke, 12 Q.B. 1015; 18 L.J. Q.B. 45.

(p) Westwood v. Secretary for India, 11 W.R. 261; 7 L.T. 736; Russell v. Sa Da Bandiera, 13 C.B. N.S. 149; 32 L.J. C.P. 68; Dodd v. Churton, (1897) 1 Q.B. 562; 66 L.J. Q.B. 477.

(q) Jones v. St. John's College, Oxford, L.R. 6 Q.B. 115; 40 L.J. Q.B. 80.

(r) Roberts v. Brett, 6 C.B. N.S. 611; 28 L.J. C.P. 323; aff., 11 H.L.Cas. 337; 34 L.J. C.P. 241; Kingston v. Preston, cited 2 Doug. 689.

(s) Appleby v. Myers, L.R. 2 C.P. 651; 36 L.J. C.P. 331.

(t) Menetone v. Athawes, 3 Burr. 1592; Tripp v. Armitage, 4 M. & W. 699; 8 L.J. Ex. 107; ante, p. 586.

the hands of the workman, the employer must stand to the loss of his materials, and the workman to the loss of the value of his labour. Thus, if a printer is employed to print a book at so much per sheet, the value of the printing to be paid for on the completion of the work, and, before the whole impression has been worked off and made ready for delivery, an accidental fire consumes the work, the employer must stand to the loss of his paper, and the printer to the loss of the value of his labour (u). But, if the work has been completed, and the copies have been printed and made ready for delivery, and placed at the disposal of the employer, they remain at his risk; and, if an accidental fire then consumes them, he must stand to the loss, and pay the printer his hire (x).

If a shipwright is employed to repair a ship, the accessorial materials supplied by him for the work become the property of the employer, as soon as they are attached to the vessel under repair, upon the principle that omne accessorium sequitur suum principale; and, if the completion of the work is not made, either by agreement or by custom, a condition precedent to the payment, and the ship is accidentally burnt, the loss of such materials, as well as of the value of the work employed upon them, is the loss of the employer and not of the workman, and the employer, consequently, must pay the fair value of the labour and materials, although he can reap no benefit from what has been done (y). But, where a man contracts to expend materials and labour on buildings belonging to and in the occupation of the employer, to be paid for on completion of the whole, and before completion the buildings are destroyed by accidental fire, the contractor is excused from completing the work, but is not entitled to any compensation for the work already done, which has perished without any default of the employer (z).

Where a contract for the building of a ship vests the general property in the ship in the employer as the materials are put together (a), and the ship is destroyed by fire, the loss of the materials and workmanship will fall on the employer; but, if the property in the thing destroyed remains with the workman, the loss will fall upon the latter. And where tug-owners contracted (u) Gillett v. Mawman, 1 Taunt. 140.

(x) Adlard v. Booth, 7 C. & P. 108.

(y) Menetone v. Athawes, 3 Burr. 1592.

(z) Appleby v. Myers, L.R. 2 C.P. 651; 36 L.J. C.P. 331. As to the right of a British subject to claim wages for entire voyage on a foreign ship when he refuses to complete the voyage, see O'Neil v. Armstrong, (1895) 2 Q.B. 418; 65 L.J. Q.B. 7.

(a) Clarke v. Spence, 4 Ad. & E. 470; 5 L.J. Q.B. 161; ante, p. 586; Wood v. Bell, 25 L.J. Q.B. 153, 321; 6 E. & B. 355.

to tow a vessel for a fixed sum to a certain place, and when near their destination through inevitable accident the vessel stranded and could not be got off, it was held that the contract was indivisible, and that they could not recover for any portion of the towage (b).

Deviations from building contracts—Extras.—If work has been agreed to be done, and materials supplied, under a building contract for certain estimated prices, and there has subsequently been a deviation from the original plan by consent of the parties, the contract is not on that account excluded, but is to be the rule of payment, as far as the contract can be traced to have been followed, and the excess only is to be paid for according to the usual rates of charging; but if the original plan has been so entirely abandoned that it is impossible to trace the contract, and to say to what part of it the work shall be applied, the workman may charge for the whole work by measure and value, as if no contract at all had ever been made. But there must be a total deviation, so that the terms of the original contract are not applicable to the new work (c). For all work done beyond the contract, under subsequent or antecedent directions, the plaintiff may recover, just as if no special contract had ever been made (d). But the mere fact of the defendant having assented to certain alterations is not sufficient to make him liable to pay for them as extras not covered by the contract, unless the alterations are of such a nature that he cannot fail to be aware that they must increase the expense, and cannot be done for the contract price (e). If extras have been done by the plaintiff without any authority from the defendant, the latter is not bound to pay for them (f). If they are to be done only on the direction in writing of the architect, a direction in writing must be obtained (g). A. having contracted with B. to use cement mortar in building the walls of a house which he was erecting for B., it was held that B.'s architect had no authority without B.'s consent, to sanction the use of milled lime instead of cement mortar (h). And where it is provided that all extras shall be paid for at the price fixed by the employer's surveyor, his certificate is conclusive both as to the extras and the amount due for them (i). In cases of variation set up by the way of defence,

(b) The Madras, (1898) P. 90; 67 L.J. P. 53.

(c) Pepper v. Burland, Peake, 139; Robson v. Godfrey, Holt, N.P.C. 236; Ellis v. Hamlen, 3 Taunt. 52.

(d) Thornton v. Place, 1 Moo. & R. 218; Fletcher v. Gillespie, 3 Bing. 637; 4 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 202.

(e) Lovelock v. King, 1 Moo. & R. 60.

(f) Dobson v. Hudson, 1 C.B. N.S. 652; 26 L.J. C.P. 153.

(g) Myers v. Sarl, 30 L.J. Q.B. 9; 3 E. & E. 306; Russell v. Da Bandiera, 13 C.B. N.S. 149; 32 L.J. C.P. 68.

(h) Steel v. Young, (1907) S.C. 360.

(i) Richards v. May, 10 Q.B.D. 400; 52 L.J. Q.B. 272.

the courts look to the subsequent conduct of the parties, for this obvious reason, that, as the parties intend the contract to remain in force, so far as it is not varied, it is only by comparing the conduct of the parties subsequently to the making of the alleged variation with the terms originally agreed upon that the court can determine with certainty upon oral evidence that such variations were mutually intended to take effect.

Prevention of performance of building contracts.—Where it was agreed that the plaintiff should pull down the walls of three houses and erect for the defendant, on the site thereof, a malt-house and other buildings, and the plaintiff offered to do the work, but the defendant prevented him, it was held that the plaintiff had done all that was necessary to be done to enable him to sue the defendant for a breach of contract; the builder or workman is not in such a case entitled to recover the full stipulated remuneration as if the buildings had been actually erected (k). A party to a contract for the execution of works cannot justify the exercise of a power of re-entry and seizure of the works in progress when the alleged default or delay of the contractor has been brought about by the acts or default of the party himself or his agent (l); and in such a case the contractor can treat the contract as at an end, and sue on a quantum meruit for work and labour done and materials supplied (m).

Right of lien of workmen and artificers.—Wherever a workman has bestowed labour or skill in repairing or improving a chattel at the request, or by the employment of the owner, he has a lien upon it for a fair and reasonable remuneration, or for the contract price, if a price has been fixed by agreement (n). This right of lien is a mere right of retainer until the pecuniary claim has been satisfied, and carries with it no right of sale (o). A workman who has detained a chattel in the exercise of a right of lien is not entitled, in the absence of any usage of trade, to charge warehouse rent or the expense of keeping the chattel (p). Thus the artificer to whom goods are delivered to be worked up, the shipwright to whom a vessel has been delivered to be repaired (q), the printer to whom paper has been delivered to be

(k) Peters v. Opie, 1 Ventr. 177; 2 Saund. 350; Collins v. Price, 5 Bing. 132; 6 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 244; Ferry v. Williams, 8 Taunt. 70; 1 Moore, 498.

(l) Roberts v. Bury Improvement Commissioners, L.R. 5 C.P. 310; 39 L.J. C.P. 129.

(m) Lodder v. Slowey, (1904) A.C. 442; 73 L.J. P.C. 82.

(n) Chase v. Westmore, 5 M. & S. 180.

(o) Thames Iron Works Co. v. Patent Derrick Co. 29 L.J. Ch. 714; 1 Jo. & H. 93.

(p) Somes v. Brit. Emp. Shipping Co., 30 L.J. Q.B. 229; 8 H.L.Cas. 338.

(q) Franklin v. Hosier, 4 B. & Ald. 341; Williams v. Allsup, 10 C.B. N.S. 417; 30 L.J. C.P. 353. As to a maritime lien, see The Two Ellens, L.R. 4 P.C. 161; 41 L.J. Adm. 33; The Henrich Bjorn, 11 App.Cas. 270; 55 L.J. P. 80; Westrup v. Great Yarmouth Co., 43 Ch.D. 241; 59 L.J. Ch. 111.

printed (r), the miller who has ground corn or meal at his mill (s), the horse-breaker or trainer by whose skill a horse is trained (t), the stallion-keeper who has received a mare to be covered by his stallion, have each a lien for their hire, or the customary charges for their services, unless there be some express or tacit understanding between the parties to the particular contract inconsistent with the exercise of such a right. But where no work is to be done upon the chattel to improve its value, or to carry it from one place to another for hire, no lien attaches upon it (u).

The lien of the manufacturer and workman extends only to the principal chattels placed in his hands to be worked up, and not to the accessorial materials which may have been furnished by the employer, and left upon the premises of the manufacturer or workman unused (x). Where a stereotype printer received stereotype plates from his employer to print from, it was held that his lien for printing was confined to the paper, and did not extend to the plates from which he printed; but such a lien may be established by custom and the usage of trade, or by agreement of the parties (y).

Liabilities of taskworkmen.—Every person who has entered into a contract for the performance of a particular task or job is bound to enter upon his employment without delay; to be active, careful, and diligent in the performance of the work; to do it according to orders given and assented to (z); and to complete it within a reasonable period, if no precise time has been agreed upon for its fulfilment. If the work is to be performed under the direction of a surveyor to be appointed by the employer, the appointment is a condition precedent; and, if the surveyor is not appointed within a reasonable period, the workman is released from his engagement to do the work (a). In ordinary cases, the workman may accomplish the work through the medium of inferior agents and workmen; but, if the work is a work of art and genius, and the contract is founded upon the personal talent of the artist, he impliedly undertakes to perform the work himself, and may not intrust it to an inferior agent of less skill (b).

(r) Blake v. Nicholson, 3 M. & S. 167.
(s) Chase v. Westmore, ante, p. 887.
(t) Beavan v. Waters, 3 C. & P. 520; Jacobs v. Latour, 2 M. & P. 201; 6 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 243; Scarfe v. Morgan, 4 M. & W. 284; 7 L.J. Ex. 324.
(u) Sanderson v. Bell, 2 Cr. & M. 304; 3 L.J. Ex. 66.
(x) Cumpston v. Haigh, 2 Sc. 684; 5 L.J. C.P. 99.
(y) Bleaden v. Hancock, 4 M. & M. 465.
(z) Streeter v. Horlock, 7 Moore, 287.
(a) Coombe v. Greene, 11 M. & W. 483; 12 L.J. Ex. 291.
(b) Robson v. Drummond, 2 B. & Ad. 308; British Waggon Co. v. Lea, 5 Q.B.D. 149; 49 L.J. Q.B. 321; approved

Implied obligation to do work well—Skilled workmen.—Every person who professes to be a skilled workman impliedly undertakes to do his work in a workmanlike manner, and according to the rules of his art (c). The public profession of an art is a representation, to all who require the services of the professed artisan, that the latter is possessed of the ordinary amount of skill incident to his particular art (d). If, therefore, an accountant is employed to make out an account, and he miscalculates the amounts and carries wrong balances to the injury of the employer, he is responsible in damages to the latter (e). Clockmakers, jewellers, opticians, and all kinds of skilled workmen and all persons belonging to the learned professions (except barristers), are responsible in damages if they profess to accomplish more than they are able to perform, and undertake work of skill without being possessed of sufficient skill, or apply less than the occasion requires (f). So a chemist was held liable for negligence in compounding hair wash, by which the plaintiff's wife was injured (g); and a patent agent will be liable for negligence in not being aware of a legal decision which made an important change in the practice of obtaining patents (h).

Work rendered useless by negligence or incompetence of workman.—Whenever the work contracted to be done is a work of skill, and the undertaker, being charged with the bare work, executes it so negligently and unskilfully as to render it utterly useless to the employer, he cannot call upon the latter for payment of it. Thus, where a builder contracted with the defendant to re-build the front of his house, and built it out of the perpendicular, so that it was in danger of falling, and required to be taken down, it was held that the builder could not maintain an action in respect of such defective execution of the work (i). When a building is so negligently constructed as to be dangerous and unfit for use, the employer may require the builder to take down the structure and rebuild it; and, if the builder neglects by Ld. Lindley in Tolhurst v. Assoc. Portland Cement Manufacturers, 72 L.J. K.B. 834, at p. 838; (1903) A.C. 414.

(c) Duncan v. Blundell, 3 Stark. 7, cited 5 M. & P. 548.

(d) Harmer v. Cornelius, 5 C.B. N.S. 236; 28 L.J. C.P. 85.

(e) Story v. Richardson, 8 Sc. 291; 9 L.J. C.P. 43; Basten v. Butter, 7 East, 479; Moneypenny v. Hartland, 2 C. & P. 378; Broom v. Davis, 7 East, 480, n. (a); Francis v. Cockrell, L.R. 5 Q.B. 501; 39 L.J. Q.B. 291.

(f) Seare v. Prentice, 8 East, 352; Slater v. Baker, 2 Wils. 359; Lanphier v. Phipos, 8 C. & P. 479; Hancke v. Hooper, 7 C. & P. 81.

(g) George v. Skivington, L.R. 5 Ex. 1; 39 L.J. Ex. 8.

(h) Lee v. Walker, L.R. 7 C.P. 121; 41 L.J. C.P. 91.

(i) Farnsworth v. Garrard, 1 Campb. 38; Denew v. Daverell, 3 Campb. 451; Duncan v. Blundell, 3 Stark. 6; Hayselden v. Staff, 5 Ad. & E. 161; 6 L.J. K.B. 67; Basten v. Butter, 7 East, 484.

so to do, and refuses to fulfil his part of the contract, the employer may give him notice to remove his materials from off the land, and may resist payment of any portion of the price of the work. If he retains the materials, and makes use of them, he will be bound to pay their fair value; but, if the materials are altogether useless, or the employer has suffered from the breach of contract on the part of the workman more damage and injury than they are worth, he is not bound to pay anything (k).

Useless and unskilful professional services.—If a surgeon requires his patient to undergo an operation which turns out to have been altogether unnecessary, he cannot make it the subject of a pecuniary claim. If a medical man unskilfully administers improper medicines, and the patient, consequently, derives no benefit from his attendance, the medical man is not entitled to any remuneration; but, if he has employed the ordinary amount of skill in his profession, and has applied remedies fitted to the complaint, and calculated to do good in general, he is entitled to his hire and reward, although they may have failed in the particular instance, such failure being then attributable to some peculiarity in the constitution of the patient, for which the medical man is not responsible (l). If a surveyor, engineer, or architect, from negligence or want of skill, gives his employers a grossly incorrect estimate of the cost of certain works, and thereby leads them into unnecessary expenses, he is not entitled to be paid for his plans, estimates and specifications (m). But, if the incorrectness of the estimate arises from the inherent difficulties in the work itself, the employer will not be relieved from the obligation of payment.

Actions against solicitors for negligence.—Every solicitor is bound to bring a reasonable amount of skill, care and knowledge to the performance of his duty. Whether he has done so in a particular case is a question of fact (n). Every solicitor employed by a purchaser of property impliedly undertakes to exercise reasonable skill in the investigation of the title of the vendor. If his client has purchased leasehold property under conditions that he is to have no abstract of the vendor's title, and that the lessor's title is not to be objected to, or gone into, this will not exonerate the solicitor from the duty of investigating the vendor's title so far as to ascertain that there is a lease

(k) Tindal, C.J., Hill v. Featherstonehaugh, 5 M. & P. 544, 548; Farnsworth v. Garrard, ante, p. 889.

(l) Kannen v. McMullen, Peake, 83; Hupe v. Phelps, 2 Stark. 480.

(m) Moneypenny v. Hartland, 2 C. & P. 378.

(n) See Addison on Torts, p. 752 (ed. 8).

to him creating the interest he professes to sell, and that it has been duly registered where registration is necessary (o). But a solicitor is not liable to an action for negligence, at the suit of one between whom and himself the relation of solicitor and client does not exist, for giving, in answer to a casual enquiry, erroneous information as to the contents of a deed (p). A solicitor is liable for the negligence of his agent (q), partner (r), or clerk (s). The obligation of the solicitor is towards his client and not towards a stranger (t). Yet, if he undertakes without authority to act for any person he is liable for negligence (u).

The solicitor having accepted the retainer is in general bound to prosecute the matter intrusted to him to its termination, but not if he cannot obtain his fees or security for them, and he gives reasonable notice of throwing up the retainer (x). The retainer is at an end when judgment is recovered (y), but it may be renewed (z). A solicitor who has been retained to conduct an action, and who, after judgment in favour of his client, is authorised to do his best for the purpose of obtaining the fruits of the judgment, has control over the process of execution so far as such purpose is concerned, and may consent to the withdrawal of a fi. fa. (a). He may also accept payment of the debt by instalments if it is for the client's advantage to do so, but he has no implied authority to enter into an agreement on his behalf to postpone execution (b). A solicitor is not liable upon points of new occurrence, or of nice or doubtful construction (c), but he must show himself acquainted with the ordinary practice of his profession (d).

It is the duty of every solicitor to act with fidelity to his client, and to keep the secrets of the latter (e). If a solicitor, (o) Allen v. Clark, 11 W. R. 304; as to the receipt of money for investment by one of several solicitors in partnership, see ante, p. 851.

(p) Fish v. Kelly, 17 C.B. N.S. 194.

(q) Simmons v. Rose, 31 Beav. 11.

(r) Norton v. Cooper, 3 Sm. & Giff. 375; Dundonald v. Masterman, L.R. 7 Eq. 504; 38 L.J. Ch. 350; Bickford v. Darcy, L.R. 1 Ex. 354; 35 L.J. Ex. 202.

(s) Floyd v. Nangle, 3 Atk. 568; Prestwich v. Poley, 18 C.B. N.S. 806; 34 L.J. C.P. 189.

(t) Fish v. Kelly, supra.

(u) Westaway v. Frost, 17 L.J. Q.B. 286.

(x) Wadsworth v. Marshall, 2 Cr. & J. 665; 1 L.J. Ex. 250; Hoby v. Built, 3 B. & Ad. 350; Van Sandau v. Browne, 9 Bing. 402; 2 L.J. C.P. 34; Underwood v. Lewis, (1894) 2 Q.B. 306; 64 L.J. Q.B. 60; Court v. Berlin, (1897) 2 Q.B. 396; 66 L.J. Q.B. 714.

(y) Flower v. Bolingbroke, 1 Str. 639; Brackenbury v. Pell, 12 East, 588; Macbeath v. Ellis, 4 Bing. 578.

(z) Butler v. Knight, L.R. 2 Ex. 109; 36 L.J. Ex. 66.

(a) Levi v. Abbott, 4 Exch. 588; 19 L.J. Ex. 62.

(b) Lovegrove v. White, L.R. 6 C.P. 440; 40 L.J. C.P. 253.

(c) Godefroy v. Dalton, 6 Bing. 468; 8 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 79; Laidler v. Elliott, 3 B. & C. 738; 3 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 96.

(d) Hunter v. Caldwell, 10 Q.B. 69, 83; 16 L.J. Q.B. 274.

(e) Com. Dig. Action on the Case for Deceit, A. 5. As to their duty to keep accounts, see Neville, Ex parte, L.R. 4 Ch. 43. No agreement between a solicitor and his client as to the former's remuneration made in pursuance of the Solicitors Act, 1870 (33 & 34 Vict. c. 28), will absolve such solicitor from the consequences of his negligence: see sect. 7.

when his client's deeds are put into his hands, for the purpose of raising money, discloses defects of title to the person who was about to lend, and the client sustains damage therefrom, the attorney is responsible for neglect of duty, and cannot shelter himself from the consequences by showing that he was also employed on the part of the proposed lender, and was actuated by a sense of justice towards him; for whenever a solicitor finds that he has a conflicting duty to discharge towards his several clients, he must at once withdraw from the inconsistent employment, and decline to act in the matter. Whenever the solicitor has his client's title-deeds put into his hands for any purpose whatever, he is "to consider his lips sealed with a sacred silence as to the whole of their contents" (f).

It is also the duty of every solicitor, by reason of the emolument he receives for the exercise of his professional skill, to take care that his client does not enter into any covenant or stipulation that may expose him to a larger responsibility than the nature of the business he is instructed to transact may, in the ordinary course of practice, require. If the stipulations are more onerous in their consequences than usual, the matter should be fully explained to the client, and the unusual extent of liability be made known to him (g). If a solicitor conducting a suit is guilty of misconduct and negligence, by reason whereof all the previous steps taken in the cause become useless, he cannot recover his charges for any part of the business he has done; but, if the suit fails from causes over which the solicitor has no control, the case is otherwise (h). If a solicitor issues a writ and proceeds thereon in a court of special and peculiar jurisdiction, he is bound to acquaint himself with the machinery and practice of the court, and to see that it is adequate for the purposes of the suit; and, if the suit fails from the ignorance of the solicitor in this respect, he cannot recover his costs of the abortive proceedings (i).

If a solicitor conducting a suit neglects to comply with the practice or orders of the court, and neglects to take some necessary step in the cause, by means whereof all the previous proceedings become useless, he will be responsible in damages to his client (k). And the same consequences follow if he brings

(f) Tindal, C.J., Taylor v. Blacklow, 3 Bing. N.C. 235, 248; 6 L.J. C.P. 14.

(g) Stannard v. Willtharne, 4 M. & Sc. 376; 3 L.J. C.P. 317.

(h) Bracey v. Carter, 12 Ad. & E. 373; Long v. Orsi, 18 C.B. 610; 26 L.J. C.B. 127; Stokes v. Trumper, 2 K. & J. 232; Chapman v. Van Toll, 8 E. & B. 396; 27 L.J. Q.B. 1.

(i) Cox v. Leech, 1 C.B. N.S. 617; 26 L.J. C.P. 125.

(k) Bracey v. Carter, supra; Frankland v. Cole, 2 Cr. & J. 590; 1 L.J. Ex. 189; Pitt v. Yalden, 4 Burr. 2063.

an action for his client, within a limited jurisdiction, on a cause of action manifestly arising out of the jurisdiction (l), or negligently suffers judgment to go by default when he is retained to defend an action (m); or fails to instruct counsel properly, and to deliver briefs in sufficient time to enable his counsel effectively to perform the duty intrusted to him; or if he is not present in person, or by his agent at the trial, to see that the witnesses are forthcoming when called upon (n). When present at the trial, it is the duty of the solicitor not to suffer the case to be called on, unless he has previously ascertained that all the necessary witnesses are in attendance (o); but he is not bound to search after his counsel, nor is he answerable for the non-attendance or neglect of the latter (p). If he has received instructions from his client not to compromise an action he is retained to prosecute, he will be guilty of a breach of duty if he does compromise, and cannot shelter himself from an action by showing that it was done under the advice of counsel (q), although that circumstance might go in reduction of damages. But in the absence of a distinct prohibition to compromise, the general authority of a solicitor is sufficient for that purpose (r). A solicitor retained to bring an action has no implied authority to compromise the claim before action brought (s).

"It would be extremely difficult," observes Tindal, C.J., "to define the exact limit by which the skill and diligence which an attorney undertakes to furnish in the conduct of a cause is bounded. . . . The cases, however, appear to establish, in general, that he is liable for the consequences of ignorance or non-observance of the rules of practice of this court; for the want of care in the preparation of the cause for trial; or of attendance thereon with his witnesses; and for the mismanagement of so much of the conduct of a cause as is usually and ordinarily allotted to his department of the profession." But "he is not answerable for error in judgment upon points of new occurrence, or of nice or doubtful construction, or of such as are usually intrusted to men in the higher branch of the profession of the law," unless he has thought fit to act upon his own

(l) Williams v. Gibbs, 6 N. & M. 788.

(m) Godefroy v. Jay, 5 Moo. & P. 297; 8 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 230.

(n) Hawkins v. Harwood, 4 Exch. 503; 19 L.J. Ex. 33; De Roufigny v. Peale, 3 Taunt. 483; Swannell v. Ellis, 8 Moore, 340; 2 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 8.

(o) Reece v. Righy, 4 B. & Ald. 202.

(p) Lowry v. Guildford, 5 C. & P. 234.

(q) Fray v. Voules, 1 E. & B. 839; 28 L.J. Q.B. 232; Butler v. Knight, L.R. 2 Ex. 109; 36 L.J. Ex. 66.

(r) Prestwich v. Poley, 18 C.B. N.S. 806; 34 L.J. C.P. 189; Butler v. Knight, supra; Lee v. Walker, L.R. 7 C.P. 121; 41 L.J. C.P. 91; ante, p. 889.

(s) Macaulay v. Polley, (1897) 2 Q.B. 122; 66 L.J. Q.B. 665.

judgment and opinion respecting matters which ought to have been laid before counsel (t).

If a solicitor is employed to investigate the title to an estate, or to obtain good security for money advanced, and the title is obviously defective, or the security is manifestly bad or insufficient, the attorney will be responsible for his negligence (u). But he is not responsible for an advance on a mortgage which turns out a deficient security, if he has taken the opinion of a competent surveyor as to the value of the property (x). He is not justified in relying upon an extract from a will furnished to him by his client, unless the latter agrees to take the entire responsibility upon himself; but he ought to search for and examine the original will (y). If he relies upon his own judgment as to the legal operation of documents, he does so at his peril; he ought, therefore, to lay them before counsel, if he wishes to avoid the responsibility of acting upon his own judgment respecting them (z).

If when retained by a client who is about to advance his money on the security of a mortgage, he has reason to suspect that the intended mortgagor has been insolvent, or in embarrassed circumstances, he will be responsible for a breach of duty if he neglects to make searches in the proper quarter to ascertain whether his suspicions were correct (a), or to make inquiry whether there are any existing incumbrances on the property (b).

By the Solicitors Act, 1870 (c), agreements may be made between solicitors and their clients with respect to the remuneration of the former: but, by sect. 7, a provision in any agreement (d) that the solicitor shall not be liable for negligence, or that he shall be relieved from any responsibility to which he would otherwise be subject as such solicitor, is wholly void. By (t) Godefroy v. Dalton, 6 Bing. 467; 8 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 79; Purves v. Landell, 12 Cl. & Fin. 91, 98; Shilcock v. Passman, 7 C. & P. 292; Kemp v. Burt, 4 B. & Ad. 431; 2 L.J. K.B. 69; Long v. Orsi, 18 C.B. 610; 26 L.J. C.B. 127; Cox v. Leech, 1 C.B. N.S. 617; 26 L.J. C.P. 125; Ireson v. Pearman, 3 B. & C. 812, 813; 3 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 119; Townley v. Jones, 8 C.B. N.S. 289; 29 L.J. C.P. 299; Elkington v. Holland, 9 M. & W. 661; 11 L.J. Ex. 273; Laidler v. Elliott, 3 B. & C. 738; 3 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 96.

(u) Knights v. Quarles, 4 Moore, 532; 2 B. & B. 102; Whitehead v. Greetham, 10 Moore, 183; 2 Bing. 464; Howell v. Young, 5 B. & C. 259; 4 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 160; Chapman v. Chapman, L.R. 9 Eq. 276.

(x) Chapman v. Chapman, supra. As to his duty to get the best price for the property entrusted to him for sale, see Morgan v. Steble, L.R. 7 Q.B. 611; 41 L.J. Q.B. 260.

(y) Wilson v. Tucker, 3 Stark. 156.

(z) Ireson v. Pearman, 3 B. & C. 813; 3 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 119.

(a) Cooper v. Stephenson, 21 L.J. Q.B. 292.

(b) Hopgood v. Parkin, L.R. 11 Eq. 74; see Ratcliffe v. Barnard, L.R. 6 Ch. 652; 40 L.J. Ch. 777.

(c) 33 & 34 Vict. c. 28.

(d) As to what constitutes an agreement, see Pontifex v. Farnham, 62 L.J. Q.B. 344; as to effect of subsequent bankruptcy of client, see Pollitt, In re, (1893) 1 Q.B. 445; 62 L.J. Q.B. 236; Charlwood, In re, (1894) 1 Q.B. 643; 63 L.J. Q.B. 344.

sect. 8, no action can be brought upon any such agreement, but the agreement may be enforced in the manner indicated in the section (e). It has been held that this section only applies to prevent actions to recover sums in lieu of costs after the work is done, and not to an action for refusing to allow a solicitor to do the work (f). An agreement by a solicitor with his client to charge nothing (g) if the action is lost and to take nothing for costs out of any money recovered in such action (h), or to charge less than ordinary costs is not required by sect. 4, when set up by the client, to be in writing (i). But an agreement to be valid within sect. 4 must in order to bind the client be signed by him (k), for instance, an agreement by a client to pay a lump sum in discharge of costs must at all events be in writing (l). An agreement as to the payment of costs to his solicitor, though signed by the client only, is an "agreement in writing" within sect. 4 (m). Where there has been an adjustment of accounts between a solicitor and his client and a balance struck in favour of the solicitor, the latter is entitled to sue for such balance on an account stated, although no signed bill was delivered and although there was no written agreement as to the costs within the meaning of the Solicitors Acts (n). The above statute does not apply to conveyancing or non-contentious business, agreements as to which are regulated by the Solicitors' Remuneration Act, 1881 (o), and "shall be in writing, signed by the person to be bound thereby or by his agent in that behalf" (p).

Negligence of barristers.—There is no instance of any action having been successfully brought against a barrister for neglect of duty; but if a barrister intentionally does a wrong, and acts with malice, fraud, or treachery in the discharge of his professional duties, he will be responsible, like every other wrongdoer, for the mischief thereby occasioned (q).

(e) But the agreement must be fair and reasonable in regard to the work done: Cathcart, Ex parte, Stuart, In re, (1893) 2 Q.B. 201; 62 L.J. Q.B. 623.

(f) Rees v. Williams, L.R. 10 Ex. 200; 44 L.J. Ex. 116.

(g) A client who has verbally agreed with his solicitor not to pay any costs, has no right to recover costs from the other party: Gundry v. Sainsbury, (1910) 2 K.B. 645; 79 L.J. K.B. 713; 33 & 34 Vict. c. 28, ss. 4, 5.

(h) Jennings v. Johnson, L.R. 8 C.P. 425.

(i) Clare v. Joseph, (1907) 2 K.B. 369; 76 L.J. K.B. 724.

(k) See Thompson, In re, (1894) 1 Q.B. 462; 63 L.J. Q.B. 187; and per Thesiger, L.J., in Bewley v. Atkinson, 13 Ch.D. 283, 299; 49 L.J. Ch. 153, 162, as to dictum of Ld. Coleridge, C.J., in Lewis, In re, 1 Q.B.D. 724; 45 L.J. Q.B. 816, that such an agreement must be signed by both parties.

(l) Russell, Son and Scott, In re, 30 Ch.D. 114; 54 L.J. Ch. 948.

(m) Thompson, In re, supra; Jones, In re, (1895) 2 Ch. 719; 64 L.J. Ch. 832.

(n) Turner and Son v. Willis, (1905) 1 K.B. 468; 74 L.J. K.B. 365.

(o) 44 & 45 Vict. c. 44, ss. 8, 9.

(p) 44 & 45 Vict. c. 44, s. 8 (2). Frape, In re, (1893) 2 Ch. 284; 62 L.J. Ch. 473; Baylis, In re, (1896) 2 Ch. 107; 65 L.J. Ch. 612.

(q) Swinfen v. Chelmsford (Lord), 5 H. & N. 918; 29 L.J. Ex. 382.

Negligence of surveyors or valuers.—Where the plaintiff undertakes to perform work to the satisfaction of the defendants' surveyor, payment to be made only on the certificate of such surveyor, if the defendants and the surveyor collude to withhold the giving of the certificate, the defendants cannot shelter themselves by means of any such misconduct (r). But a declaration against the defendant, that his surveyor wrongfully neglected and refused to give his certificate, discloses no cause of action, for that would be to substitute the opinion of a jury for a certificate of the surveyor, which it was the very object of the contract to prevent (s). Where two persons were employed to value between the incoming rector and the representatives of the deceased incumbent, and the defendant, through ignorance of the true principle to be applied to the valuation of ecclesiastical dilapidations, valued so favourably to the opposite party and adversely to the plaintiff, that his valuation was accepted, it was held that he was liable for the results of his ignorance (t).

Negligence of bankers.—It has never been decided whether there is any legal obligation on a banker not to disclose the state of his customer's account except upon a reasonable occasion; but, assuming that such an obligation exists, the question what is a reasonable occasion is clearly one for the jury to decide, and if the customer sustain any special damage by the banker having disclosed the state of his account, the banker would, it seems, be responsible (u). A banker is not liable for the loss of a box left under his care by a customer for safe custody, of which the customer keeps the key, and for which no payment is made, if it be stolen by one of the clerks of the bank, unless the loss was occasioned by gross negligence on the part of the banker (x). But if a banker or banking company undertake the custody of securities for a customer and charge a commission for the receipt of the dividends from them, they would, it seems, be liable for negligence, if they left the securities in the uncontrolled power of their clerk or manager, who fraudulently disposed of them (y).

If the customer of a banker, who is desired to keep his cheque-book locked up, nevertheless negligently leaves it on his table, and thereby enables his servant to get possession of it, and tear out a cheque and forge his master's signature to it, and commit a fraud upon the bankers, this will not enable the bankers to (r) Erle, C.J., Clarke v. Watson, 34 L.J. C.P. 148; 18 C.B. N.S. 278.

(s) Clarke v. Watson, supra.

(t) Jenkins v. Betham, 15 C.B. 168; 24 L.J. C.P. 94.

(u) Hardy v. Veasey, L.R. 3 Ex. 107; 37 L.J. Ex. 76.

(x) Giblin v. McMullen, L.R. 2 P.C. 317; 38 L.J. P.C. 25; ante, p. 845.

(y) United Service Co., In re, L.R. 6 Ch. 212; 40 L.J. Ch. 286.

throw the loss upon their customer, as being the result of his negligent keeping of his cheque-book, for it could not reasonably have been anticipated that the power of obtaining a cheque would induce a servant to commit a forgery (z). Where a clerk of the plaintiff forged signatures of the drawer, and procured the acceptances of the plaintiff, and then forged indorsements of a firm, and presented the bills across the counter to the Bank of England, who paid them across the counter contrary to their usual custom in cases of such large amounts, it was held that the plaintiff and not the bank had under all the circumstances been guilty of negligence (a).

Negligence of public officers.—Public officers in respect of their judicial or discretionary duties are not liable for negligence, but they are liable for negligence in respect of their ministerial duties. Where they perform duties for reward at the request of individuals, they are liable for negligence and are not protected, merely because they act bonâ fide and to the best of their skill and judgment, but they are bound to conduct themselves in a skilful manner (b). Public officers who are servants of the Government are not responsible for the negligence of their subordinates; but public officers who act in a quasi public capacity at the request of individuals are liable for the acts of those whom they employ. Thus commissioners appointed by the Crown are liable for the negligent acts of persons employed by them (c).

Negligence of surgeons, &c.—After due allowance has been made for the difficult nature of the duty undertaken by a medical man, any negligence upon his part becomes a serious matter, both because he has by undertaking a difficult duty promised to use great skill, and because the consequences of his negligence may be most disastrous. To render a medical man liable for negligence, it is not enough that there has been a less degree of skill than some other medical man might have shown, or a less degree of care than even he himself might have bestowed; nor is it enough that he has himself acknowledged some degree of want of care; there must have been a want of competent and ordinary care and skill, and to such a degree as to have led to a bad result (d). Where an action for negligence was brought (z) Bank of Ireland v. Evan's Charity Trustees, 5 H.L.Cas. 389, 411; Swan v. North Brit. Austr. Co., 2 H. & C. 175; 32 L.J. Ex. 273; Taylor v. Gt. Ind. Penins. Ry., 28 L.J. Ch. 709; 4 De G. & J. 559; see Donaldson v. Gillott, L.R. 3 Eq. 274; Johnston v. Renton, L.R. 9 Eq. 181; United Service Co., In re, ante, p. 896.

(a) Vagliano Brothers v. Bank of England, (1891) A.C. 107; 60 L.J. Q.B. 145; see this case, post, p. 1244.

(b) Jones v. Bird, 5 B. & Ald. 837.

(c) Mersey Docks v. Gibbs, L.R. 1 H.L. 111; 35 L.J. Ex. 225. See also Reg. v. Treasury, L.R. 7 Q.B. 387; 41 L.J. Q.B. 178.

(d) Rich v. Pierpont, 3 F. & F. 35.

against a surgeon, and it was proved that the plaintiff's mother sent for the defendant, and that the plaintiff's father paid him, it was held that the plaintiff's submitting to the defendant's treatment was no sufficient proof that the defendant had been employed by the plaintiff (e). A surgeon, an apothecary, a farrier, a solicitor, or any other professional person, impliedly undertakes for the exercise of ordinary skill and knowledge in the practice of his profession, and is responsible for any injury sustained from his neglect to exercise such skill (f). In one case it was ruled by Cockburn, C.J., that surgeons who give their services gratuitously (as at hospitals) were not liable for the negligence of those employed under them (g); but it would seem that a surgeon who acts gratuitously ought at least to take ordinary care. The only duty undertaken by the governors of a public hospital towards a patient who is treated in the hospital is to use due care and skill in selecting their medical and surgical staff. The physicians and surgeons who give their services at the hospital are employed to exercise their profession to the best of their abilities, according to their own discretion, but in exercising it they are in no way under the orders, or bound to obey the directions, of the governors. Although the nurses employed at the hospital are servants of the governors for general purposes, they are not so for the purposes of operations conducted by the medical staff (h). Physicians could not at common law recover their fees, unless under a special contract (i), but surgeons could (k); and now by 49 & 50 Vict. c. 48, s. 6, physicians can recover their fees and need not show any special contract.

An unqualified person who acts as a doctor is equally bound to bring competent skill to the performance of the duty which he has undertaken (l).

Wilful selection of unqualified persons.—The employer himself is bound to exercise ordinary caution in the selection of the party he employs. If he selects a common quack or an unauthorized practitioner, the latter is responsible only for a reasonable and bonâ fide exertion of his capacity. He is bound to exercise such skill as he actually possesses; and, if he has done his best and failed, he cannot be made responsible for a (e) Gladwell v. Steggall, 8 Sc. 67; 8 L.J. C.P. 361.

(f) Seare v. Prentice, 8 East, 352; Slater v. Baker, 2 Wils. 359; Hancke v. Hooper, 7 C. & P. 84; Lanphier v. Phipos, 8 C. & P. 479.

(g) Perionowski v. Freeman, 4 F. & F. 982.

(h) Hillyer v. St. Bartholomew's Hospital (Governors), (1909) 2 K.B. 820; 78 L.J. K.B. 958.

(i) Chorley v. Bolcot, 4 T.R. 317.

(k) Battersby v. Lawrence, Car. & M. 277.

(l) Ruddock v. Lowe, 4 F. & F. 519.

want of skill; for it was the employer's own fault to trust an unlearned and unskilful person, known not to be regularly and properly qualified (m).

Arbitrators.—A person who is appointed, and is acting as an arbitrator to determine a matter in difference between two or more persons, does not enter into an implied promise to bring to the performance of the duty intrusted to him a due and reasonable amount of skill, or knowledge, or care, but only to act honestly and bonâ fide; and this doctrine applies, not only to an arbitrator, properly so called, but to every person who has taken upon himself to determine a disputed matter between two persons who have agreed to be concluded by his opinion (n). And although, where the matter to be determined by the referee is one of value only, that is not strictly an arbitration (o); yet, where in ascertaining the value of property or the amount of compensation to be paid, the matter assumes the character of a judicial inquiry, to be conducted upon the ordinary principles of judicial inquiries, by hearing the parties and the evidence of their witnesses, that is an arbitration, and not merely a valuation (p). Where two valuers are appointed to ascertain the price to be paid for the goodwill, stock, and fixtures of a business, with a reference to the decision of an umpire, if they differ, there is no arbitration until the umpirage takes effect (q). An umpire or a single arbitrator occupies a judicial position and is bound so far as practicable to follow legal rules (r).

Bailment of materials to workmen to be manufactured or repaired for hire.—When materials for work have been delivered to a workman to be dealt with by him in the way of his trade, he is bound to take all reasonable and ordinary precaution for their protection; and, if a loss has occurred from robbery, or from fire or inundation, or from waste or decay, he must show that he had taken all such precautions as are ordinarily taken by prudent men to guard against the mischief. Where a ship, bailed to a shipwright to be repaired, was put into a dry dock belonging to the shipwright, and whilst she lay there a high tide arose, and pressed against the dock gates: and it appeared that the gates might have been shored up so as to resist the pressure of the water, but nothing was done, and the water at

(m) But see Ruddock v. Lowe, ante, p. 898.

(n) Pappa v. Rose, L.R. 7 C.P. 32, 525; 41 L.J. C.P. 187; Tharsis Sulphur Co. v. Loftus, L.R. 8 C.P. 1; 42 L.J. C.P. 6; Stevenson v. Watson, 4 C.P.D. 148; 48 L.J. C.P. 318. See Addison on Torts, p. 735 (ed. 8).

(o) Collins v. Collins, 28 L.J. Ch. 184; 26 Beav. 306; Bos v. Helsham, L.R. 2 Ex. 72; 36 L.J. Ex. 20.

(p) Hopper, In re, L.R. 2 Q.B. 367; 36 L.J. Q.B. 97.

(q) Turner v. Goulden, L.R. 9 C.P. 57 43 L.J. C.P. 60.

(r) Per Farwell, L.J., Enoch and Zaretzky, Bock & Co., In re, (1910) 1 K.B. 327; 79 L.J. K.B. 363.

last burst open the gates and dashed the bailor's vessel against another vessel, it was held that the bailee was responsible for the injury, as he might, by proper precautions, have guarded against the accident (s). Wherever the loss of the thing bailed arises from the want of the degree of care which, from the nature of the bailment, ought to be exercised, it is immaterial whether the negligence be imputable personally to the bailee or to the servants employed by him (t).

Theft by servants.—If the subject-matter of the bailment is secretly purloined by the bailee's servant, the bailee will be responsible for the loss, unless he can show that he could not, by the exercise of the greatest vigilance, have guarded against the theft; but he will not be responsible for a robbery by irresistible violence (u). A watchmaker is bound to secure property placed in his hands in the way of his trade, as to protect it against depredations that may be committed by the persons in his employ (x).

Distinction between robbery and theft.—A very sensible distinction is taken in the civil law between a public palpable robbery by force and violence, when a house is broken into and robbed of its contents, and a theft or secret purloining of goods. In the one case, the bailee relieved himself from responsibility for the loss by proof of the mere fact of the robbery, it being considered that individual care or vigilance could avail but little against the open attack of the determined robber; in the other he was bound to make good the loss, unless he could show that he had taken the greatest care of the thing intrusted to him, and that it had been purloined, notwithstanding every precaution for its safety (y). Where an officer in the army, on leaving London, delivered a trunk containing divers articles of value to an upholsterer to be kept for a shilling a week, and the trunk was returned to the officer emptied of its contents, which were supposed to have been stolen by the upholsterer's servant, it was held by Lord Kenyon, that if the upholsterer had taken as much care of the articles as he had taken of his own property, he was not responsible for the theft committed by his servant (z); but every depositary of chattels to be kept for hire is primâ facie responsible for a theft committed by his own servants within the house (a), and can only discharge himself from

(s) Leck v. Maestaer, 1 Campb. 138.

(t) Ld. Campbell, C.J., Dansey v. Richardson, 3 E. & B. 169; 23 L.J. Q.B. 228.

(u) Walker v. British Guarantee Assoc., 18 Q.B. 277; 21 L.J. Q.B. 257, 260.

(x) Clarke v. Earnshaw, Gow, 30.

(y) Abbott, C.J., in Robinson v. Ward, Ry. & M. 276.

(z) Finucane v. Small, 1 Esp. 315.

(a) Hodgson v. Fullarton, 4 Taunt. 787; Dallas, C.J., in Clarke v. Earnshaw, liability by showing that the theft was committed under such circumstances, or was of such a nature, that the greatest care and vigilance on his part could not have guarded against it.

Liability of bailee for negligence of servant.—The defendant hired a carriage and horse from the plaintiffs; the defendant's coachman, in place of taking them, as was his duty, to the stable, drove for his own purposes in another direction; while he was thus engaged, the carriage and horse were injured, owing to his negligent driving, and it was held that there had been a breach of the defendant's contract as bailee for which he was liable (b). If the bailee's servants depart from the course of their employment, he ceases to be responsible for their acts, whether they be negligent (c) or felonious (d).

Losses occasioned by negligence of bailor.—If the owner himself in any way conduces to the loss; if he brings people to the warehouse or place of deposit to look at the goods, opens packages in which they are contained, &c., and the loss is as likely to have arisen from the misconduct of the persons so introduced, or from the carelessness of the owner, as from the neglect of the warehouseman or bailee, the latter is not responsible for the loss (e).

Negligence of bailors.—It is the duty of every bailor of dangerous substances, knowing the dangerous nature of them, to take care that the danger is communicated to the bailee; and if the bailor fails to make the necessary disclosure, he is responsible if an accident occurs, and damages are sustained by the bailee or his servant (f).

Fraudulent concealment of dangerous nature of articles delivered to bailee to be warehoused or carried.—Every person who conceals in boxes and packages articles known by him to be of a dangerous nature, and delivers them to another to be warehoused or carried with other goods, and fails to disclose the dangerous nature of the articles to the bailee, is guilty of a tortious act, and is responsible for all the consequences of his carelessness, unless the bailee knew of the dangerous nature of the articles, and the danger attendant upon the dealing with them; and it is no answer to aver that the articles were well known in commerce, and that the plaintiff knew what they were,

Gow, 30; Campbell, C.J., and Coleridge, J., in Dansey v. Richardson, 3 E. & B. 156—171; 23 L.J. Q.B. 223—229; De Rothschild v. Royal Mail, &c. Co., 7 Exch. 734; 21 L.J. Ex. 273.

(b) Coupé Co. v. Maddick, (1891) 2 Q.B. 413; 60 L.J. Q.B. 676.

(c) Saunderson v. Collins, (1904) 1 K.B. 628; 73 L.J. K.B. 358.

(d) Cheshire v. Bailey, (1905) 1 K.B. 237; 74 L.J. K.B. 176. See, further, Addison on Torts, 747 (ed. 8).

(e) Cailiff v. Danvers, 1 Peake, N.P.C. 155; Addison on Torts, 24 (ed. 7).

(f) Farrant v. Barnes, 32 L.J. C.P. 137; 11 C.B. N.S. 553.

without an express averment that he knew them to be dangerous (g).

Deposit of goods under special contract.—In a contract of bailment, the bailee may impose any reasonable terms he pleases upon the bailor, and may make his acceptance of the goods to be kept and his responsibility for the re-delivery of them dependent upon those terms being observed by the parties who deal with him; but if he accepts the goods and takes them into his possession, he will not be allowed to impose terms utterly inconsistent with any contract at all. Where public notice is given of the terms upon which goods are received, or the terms are printed on a paper or receipt delivered to the bailor, and it is sought to hold him to the terms on the ground that he has impliedly assented to them, it should be shown that the terms are reasonable, and not devised for the purpose of fraud or extortion, or for the purpose of exonerating the bailee from responsibility for his own negligence and misconduct (h).

Detention of chattels by bailee under claim of lien.—The detention of chattels by a bailee is frequently justified on the ground that the bailee has a right to hold them in his hands until some pecuniary demand in respect of them has been satisfied by the bailor. The right of lien, when once established, is not destroyed by reason of the remedy for the recovery of the debt secured by the lien being barred by the Statute of Limitations (i). And it will exist, although it arises out of an immoral consideration, if the plaintiff cannot recover without relying on the immorality, on the principle of in pari delicto potior est conditio possidentis (k).

Right of lien.—If a defendant, having a lien upon goods, refuses to deliver them up on demand, and claims to retain them on grounds quite distinct from a claim of lien, his refusal will be evidence of a conversion, and the existence of the lien will be no answer to an action for the conversion of the property (l). But a person does not waive his right of lien merely by omitting to mention it when the goods are demanded; and if he claims a right to detain them, in respect of two separate sums claimed to (g) Hutchinson v. Guion, 5 C.B. N.S. 149; 28 L.J. C.P. 63; Brass v. Maitland, 6 E. & B. 490; 26 L.J. Q.B. 49; Gibbon v. Paynton, 4 Burr. 2298; Batson v. Donovan, 4 B. & Ald. 33, 37; Williams v. East India Co., 3 East, 192.

(h) Byles, J., Van Toll v. S. E. Ry., 12 C.B. N.S. 75; 31 L.J. C.P. 241; Peek v. North Staffordshire Ry., 10 H.L.Cas. 473; 32 L.J. Q.B. 241; this subject is more freely illustrated, post, p. 1035.

(i) Spears v. Hartley, 3 Esp. 81; Broomhead, In re, 16 L.J. Q.B. 355.

(k) Taylor v. Chester, L.R. 4 Q.B. 309; 38 L.J. Q.B. 225.

(l) Cannee v. Spanton, 8 Sc. N.R. 714; 14 L.J. C.P. 23; Dirks v. Richards, 5 Sc. N.R. 534; 4 M. & Gr. 574; Weeks v. Goode, 6 C.B. N.S. 367.

be due to him, and he has a lien only in respect of one of those sums, his refusal is no evidence of a conversion, unless the sum in respect of which the lien exists is tendered (m). Where a person, observes Alderson, B., has no right of property in goods in his possession, but merely a right of lien, he has no right to sell them; and if he does sell the goods he thereby puts an end to his lien (n); but where goods have been deposited as security for a loan of money to be repaid on a day certain, there is an implied power of sale in case of default in payment on the day named (o). An unauthorised dealing with a pledge will not, it seems, revest the property in the pledgor, though it may give him a right of action for any damage actually caused by such unauthorised proceeding (p). And it has been held, that a lender of money on the security of railway stock has no right to realise the security during the currency of the loan, and that, if he does so, the owner may recover from him the price he got for the stock, if it is to his interest to do so (q).

Where the plaintiff had agreed to buy of the defendant a stack of hay for 86*l*., to be paid for when taken away, and to be removed by the 31st of May, and part only of the hay was paid for and removed by the time appointed, whereupon the defendant, in the month of August following, cut up and consumed the residue of the hay, and the plaintiff afterwards tendered the unpaid purchase-money, and demanded the hay, and sued the defendant for converting it to his own use, it was held that the defendant's lien on the hay was determined by the act of conversion; that from the moment the defendant used the hay in a manner inconsistent with his claim of lien, his lien ceased, and a right of possession accrued to the purchaser (r). Where, however, some apples which had been sold by the defendant to the plaintiff at an agreed price, to be paid on a given day, were deposited in a kiln in an outhouse on the defendant's premises, and the key of the kiln was given by the defendant to the plaintiff, but the defendant kept the key of the outer door of the outhouse, and, the day of payment being passed, the defendant gave the plaintiff notice to take and pay for the apples, and, no attention being paid to this notice, the defendant carried them away and resold them, and the plaintiff then brought an

(m) Scarfe v. Morgan, 4 M. & W. 281; 7 L.J. Ex. 324; Kerford v. Mondel, 28 L.J. Ex. 303.

(n) White v. Spettigue, 13 M. & W. 603; 14 L.J. Ex. 99.

(o) Pigot v. Cubley, 15 C.B. N.S. 701; 33 L.J. C.P. 134.

(p) Donald v. Suckling, L.R. 1 Q.B. 585; 35 L.J. Q.B. 232; Halliday v. Holgate, L.R. 3 Ex. 299; 37 L.J. Ex. 174.

(q) Langton v. Waite, L.R. 6 Eq. 165; 37 L.J. Ch. 345; on appeal, L.R. 4 Ch. 402.

(r) Gurr v. Cuthbert, 12 L.J. Ex. 309.

action for a conversion of them, it was held that the defendant was entitled to a verdict under a plea denying the plaintiff's right of possession of the apples (s).

A person cannot set up a right of lien which is at variance with the terms or conditions or implied understanding, upon which he received the property.—A livery-stable keeper has no lien on a horse delivered to him to keep. Thus, if a livery-stable keeper takes in a horse to be stabled and fed for hire, upon the understanding that the horse is to be re-delivered to the owner whenever he requires it, the livery-stable keeper has no right of lien upon the horse for his keep (t), or for money paid by him to a veterinary surgeon for blistering the horse according to the owner's directions (u), the right of the owner to the possession of the horse for the purpose of riding him being deemed inconsistent with the right of lien. The livery-stable keeper, indeed, who holds a horse at the constant disposal of the owner, is the mere servant of the latter, and has nothing more than the bare custody of the animal. This is the case also with the agister of milch cows, who receives them to be depastured, agisted, or fed, the owner having a right to the possession of the cows whenever he requires them for the purpose of milking (x). And if a trainer of race-horses holds them on the understanding that the owner may send them to be ridden by a jockey of his own choice at any race he chooses, and the trainer cannot lawfully refuse to deliver them to the owner for such a purpose, that state of things is inconsistent with the existence of a right of lien (y). If a policy of insurance is deposited for safe custody only, the depositary cannot set up a lien upon it for an antecedent debt (z). If a person receives a bill of exchange to get it discounted, and pay over the proceeds to the owner, or apply them in some specified manner, he has no lien upon the bill for money that may be due to him from the latter (a). If a ship-factor receives the certificate of registry of a ship in order to pay the tonnage dues, he has no lien upon it for a debt due to him from the shipowner (b). Whenever goods in the hands of a bailee or depositary are, by the terms of the contract, to be re-delivered to the owner at some stated period, or, if by the agree-

(s) Milgate v. Kebble, 3 M. & Gr. 100; 10 L.J. C.P. 277.

(t) Judson v. Etheridge, 1 Cr. & M. 743; 2 L.J. Ex. 300; Yorke v. Grenaugh, 2 Ld. Raym. 868.

(u) Orchard v. Rackstraw, 19 L.J. C.P. 303.

(x) Jackson v. Cummins, 5 M. & W. 342; 8 L.J. Ex. 265; Chapman v. Allen, Cro.Car. 273.

(y) Forth v. Simpson, 13 Q.B. 685; 18 L.J. Q.B. 263.

(z) Muir v. Fleming, D. & R. N.P.C. 30.

(a) Key v. Flint, 8 Taunt. 23; 1 Moore, 451; Buchanan v. Findlay, 9 B. & C. 749; 7 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 314.

(b) Burn v. Brown, 2 Stark. 273.

ment the plaintiff is entitled to have the goods immediately, and the payment in respect of them is to take place at a future day, the bailee cannot set up any lien (c). A lien is wholly inconsistent with a dealing on credit, and can only exist where payment is to be made in ready money, or security is to be given the moment the work is completed (d). "If a security" (such as bill, note, or bond) "is taken for the debt for which the party has a lien upon property of the debtor, such security being payable at a distant day, the lien is gone" (e).

If a person, when goods are demanded of him, rests his refusal to deliver them up on grounds quite distinct from any claim of lien, he cannot afterwards, on finding that those grounds fail him, put forward a claim of lien as a justification for his refusal (f). But a person does not, of course, lose his right of lien by merely omitting to mention it when the goods are demanded; and if he claims a right to retain them for two separate charges, and has a lien only in respect of one of them, this will not dispense with the necessity of a tender of the one in respect of which the lien exists (g).

Parties against whom lien may be claimed.—A mere trespasser or wrong-doer, who gets possession of property without the consent of the owner, cannot in general deal with it so as to create a right of lien thereon as against the true owner (h), unless the person in whose possession the property is placed is a public innkeeper, or common carrier, or common ferryman, or is bound to exercise his craft in favour of all who require his services (i). A person who hires a dog-cart under a hire-purchase agreement, and undertakes "to keep and preserve the said dog-cart from injury," has implied authority from the owner to employ a coach-builder to do necessary repairs to the dog-cart, and if he does so, will create a lien in favour of the coach-builder not only as against himself, but also as against the owner of the dog-cart (k). But where a chaise, which had been broken by the negligence of a servant, was taken by the latter to a coach-maker's, without the knowledge or sanction of the master, and was there repaired, it was held that the coach-

(c) Crawshay v. Homfray, 4 B. & Ald. 52.

(d) Raitt v. Mitchell, 4 Campb. 146.

(e) Hewison v. Guthrie, 3 Sc. 298; 5 I.J. C.P. 283; Cowell v. Simpson, 16 Ves. 280; Hornecastle v. Farran, 3 B. & Ald. 497. See, however, Angus v. McLachlan, 23 Ch.D. 330; 52 L.J. Ch. 587.

(f) Boardman v. Sill, 1 Campb. 410, n.; Weeks v. Goode, 6 C.B. N.S. 367; White v. Gainer, 9 Moore, 45.

(g) Scarfe v. Morgan, 4 M. & W. 281; 7 L.J. Ex. 324.

(h) Hartop v. Hoare, 3 Atk. 44; Lempriere v. Pasley, 2 T.R. 485; Castellain v. Thompson, 13 C.B. N.S. 105 32 L.J. C.P. 79.

(i) Buxton v. Baughan, 6 C. & P. 674.

(k) Keene v. Thomas, (1905) 1 K.B. 136; 74 L.J. K.B. 21.

maker had no lien upon the chaise as against the master for the price of the repairs (l). It has been held, that if a person obtains the property in goods by fraud, and pawns them, before the seller has avoided the contract, the pawnee is entitled to a lien upon them for the money advanced as against the seller (m). But the possession of the goods by the pawnor must have been obtained by virtue of a contract intended to pass the property to him. If a person pawns with another property to which he has no colour of title, the jus tertii may always be set up against the pawnor by the pawnee (n).

General lien is a right on the part of the manufacturer, or workman, factor, broker, or commission agent for the sale of goods, warehouseman or wharfinger, into whose hands goods have been placed to be worked up, repaired, improved, sold, or taken care of for hire, in the ordinary course of their trade or employment, to retain possession of them, not only until they have received payment of the hire due to them for their services in the particular employment, but for the general balance due to them from their employer in the ordinary course of dealing for work and services of the like nature bestowed at other times upon other goods of the employer. This right depends either upon the express agreement of the parties, or the custom and usage of the particular trade or business. The onus of making out and establishing the right, whether it exists by agreement or by custom, lies upon the person claiming it. When custom and usage of trade are relied upon as establishing the right, the usage must be shown to have governed the parties in their previous dealings together, or to prevail to such an extent that the contracting party must be supposed to be cognisant of it, and to have contracted subject to the usage: but, as the right is an encroachment upon the ordinary rules and principles of the common law, it is regarded with jealousy by the courts, and requires the strongest proof.

Where persons carry on a business in which a general lien is recognised, they cannot claim a general lien in respect of goods or securities which are, by agreement, held for a particular purpose, or under special conditions inconsistent with the claim of a general lien (o). A general lien cannot be set up in opposition to the terms and conditions upon which the goods were

(l) Hiscox v. Greenwood, 4 Esp. 174; Weldon v. Gould, 3 Esp. 268.

(m) Parker v. Patrick, 5 T.R. 175; doubted in Peer v. Humphrey, 2 Ad. & E. 499; 4 L.J. K.B. 100; but said to be good law by Parke, B., in Load v. Green, 15 M. & W. 219; 15 L.J. Ex. 113; and by Cresswell, J., in White v. Garden, 20 L.J. C.P. 168; 10 C.B. 919.

(n) Cheesman v. Exall, 6 Exch. 344; 20 L.J. Ex. 209.

(o) Bock v. Gorrissen, 2 De G. F. & J. 434; 30 L.J. Ch. 39, 42.

received. Thus, if a broker or factor receives goods to sell, and applies the proceeds in some particular manner, he cannot set up a lien for his general balance, because a lien of this nature would be utterly inconsistent with the terms upon which he acquired possession of the goods (p). And if a debtor deposits a bill of exchange with his creditor, in order that the latter may get the bill discounted and pay over the proceeds to the debtor, the creditor cannot set up a lien upon the bill for the general balance due to him (q). In some places, dyers, calico-printers, &c., have been held, in accordance with the proved usage of their several trades in the particular locality, to have a lien on goods sent to them, not only for the work done in respect of the particular goods in their possession, but also for their charges of dyeing, printing, warehousing, &c., other goods which had previously been delivered back to their owners (r); and in other places, where no such usage has been shown to exist, they have been held to have no such general lien (s). The usage, when it exists, must be shown to be long established, notorious, and reasonable, and not contrary to any established principle of law (t). It has been held that a publisher has a lien upon any one or more parts or numbers of a work, for his charges and disbursements for printing or publishing the various numbers, though not consecutive, of an entire work (u); also, that an agent who carries on business, in his own name, on behalf of an undisclosed principal, has a lien on the business, the stock employed in it, and the debts owing to it, to the extent of the liability which he has incurred in the management of the business (x).

Notice that goods will be held subject to general lien.—The right to retain for a general balance may, with certain exceptions presently noticed, be created by the express contract of the parties. Every workman and artificer not being a public innkeeper, common carrier, or common ferryman, and not being bound to exercise his calling in favour of all persons who may require his services, has a right to prescribe the terms upon which he will receive goods into his possession to be dealt with in the ordinary course of his trade, and may by express notice reserve to himself a general lien (y).

(p) Walker v. Birch, 6 T.R. 262.

(q) Key v. Flint, 1 Moore, 451; 8 Taunt. 21.

(r) Savill v. Barchard, 4 Esp. 52; Naylor v. Mangles, 1 ib. 109; Spears v. Hartley, 3 ib. 81; Rose v. Hart, 8 Taunt. 499; 2 Moore, 547; Webb v. Fox, 2 Peake, N.P.C. 167.

(s) Green v. Farmer, 4 Burr. 2214; 1 W.Bl. 651; Holderness v. Collinson, 7 B. & C. 216; 6 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 17.

(t) Rushforth v. Hadfield, 6 East, 528; Leuckhart v. Cooper, 3 Bing. N.C. 99; 6 L.J. C.P. 131.

(u) Blake v. Nicholson, 3 M. & S. 167.

(x) Foxcraft v. Wood, 4 Russ. 488.

(y) Kirkman v. Shawcross, 6 T.R. 14.

General lien by custom of trade—Warehousekeepers—Wharfingers (z).—Where certain public warehousekeepers of the city of London claimed a right to retain various bales of wool under an ancient custom of that city, for all public warehousekeepers to have a general lien upon all goods from time to time housed in their warehouses in the name of the merchants or other persons by whom such public warehousekeepers were employed, for all moneys or any balance thereof due from such merchants to such public warehousekeepers for their advances, expenses, and charges, &c., it was held that the custom was bad, as the general lien claimed was not confined to goods the property of the person who employed or retained the warehousekeeper. "The custom," it was observed, "if supportable, would make the goods of a foreign merchant, which have been consigned to a London factor for sale, and by him put into the warehouse of the warehousekeeper for safe custody, liable to a private debt of the factor, for expenses incurred in respect of other goods of third persons which had been in his hands at former times, for charges contracted upon such goods during any antecedent period of time, and that to an unlimited extent;" which would be unreasonable and unjust, and obviously prejudicial in a very high degree to foreign trade (a). Dock companies have no general lien for wharfage charges, and cannot detain the goods of one man to satisfy wharfage dues and charges incurred by another (b). If a wharfinger has a general authority to receive all goods directed for A. B., and goods come to his wharf directed by mistake for A. B., the real owner of the goods cannot take them away without paying the charges incident to those particular goods; but it is equally clear that the wharfinger cannot set up a lien on such goods for a general balance of accounts due from A. B. to him (c).

Extinguishment of lien by abandonment of possession.—If a bailee who has a right of lien upon property in his possession voluntarily parts with the possession of such property, the lien is gone; so that if he afterwards recovers possession of the property, his right of lien does not revive (d); but if it is stolen or taken away by a trespasser or by fraud, and he gets it back again, his right of lien is not extinguished (e). Possession of (z) As to lien for freight, see 57 & 58 Vict. c. 60, s. 494; as to lien of wharfingers or warehousemen, ss. 495–500.

(a) Tindal, C.J., Leuckhart v. Cooper, 3 Bing. N.C. 99; 6 L.J. C.P. 131; Bro. Abr. tit. Customs, 205, pl. 5, 36, Hen. 6, cited Rex v. Humphery, M'Clel. & Y. 181.

(b) Dresser v. Bosanquet, 32 L.J. Q.B. 374; 4 B. & S. 686.

(c) Richardson v. Goss, 3 Bos. & P. 123.

(d) Sweet v. Pym, 1 East, 4.

(e) Wallace v. Woodgate, R. & M. 193.

goods and chattels may be given up, and the right of lien extinguished, although the goods and chattels are never actually removed from the premises of the party having the lien (f). And, on the other hand, as the possession of the servant is the possession of the master, it follows that a depositary or bailee who has a right of lien upon goods in his possession does not lose his right by placing the goods in the hands of his servant or agent for custody, who is to hold them at his disposal. Warehousekeepers and wharfingers to whom goods have been delivered by masters of ships for safe custody have been held to be the servants of such masters, holding the goods at their disposal, so as to preserve the shipmaster's lien for the freight after the goods have been taken out of the ship (g).

The right of lien being a mere personal right, which cannot be parted with, it follows that a bailee who has got a lien cannot sell his right to another, nor can he transfer, as we have just seen, the property over which the lien extends, to another, without losing his right of lien (h), unless the property has been pledged to secure the repayment of money advanced, with an express or implied power of sale (i), for there is a clear distinction in this respect between a lien, which is a mere personal right of detention, and a pledge deposited to secure the re-payment of money (k). An inn-keeper, consequently, cannot sell the horse of his guest for the expense of his keep, except within the city of London (l). A sheriff cannot sell an interest of this description, and he cannot, consequently, seize property covered by the lien under an execution against the party claiming the lien (m); but if the execution is against the owner of the goods, he is entitled then to seize them, after tendering the amount of the debt for which they are a security. A person may, as we have before seen, reserve to himself, by express contract, a right to take and to hold goods as a security for the payment of a debt, so that he will be entitled to resume possession of the goods after he has parted with them, and to re-establish his lien, provided the rights of no third person have intervened.

Statutory power of sale in discharge of right of lien.—By the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, power is given to wharf or warehouse owners, in certain cases, to sell by public auction goods

(f) Jacobs v. Latour, 2 Moo. & P. 201; 6 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 243.

(g) Reeves v. Capper, 5 Bing. N.C. 136. See ante, p. 908, note (z).

(h) Clark v. Gilbert, 2 Bing. N.C. 357; 5 L.J. C.P. 61.

(i) See Johnson v. Stear, 33 L.J. C.P. 130; 15 C.B. N.S. 330.

(k) Donald v. Suckling, L.R. 1 Q.B. 585; 35 L.J. Q.B. 232.

(l) Jones v. Pearle, 1 Str. 556.

(m) Legg v. Evans, 6 M. & W. 42; 9 L.J. Ex. 102; see Young v. Lambert, L.R. 3 P.C. 142; 39 L.J. P.C. 21.

placed in their custody, and apply the proceeds of the sale in satisfaction and discharge of the charges upon them (n).

Tender of debt in extinguishment of right of lien.—Wherever a person has a lien upon goods for the payment of money due upon them, whether he be an unpaid vendor in possession of goods sold, or a manufacturer or workman in possession of goods that have been worked up or repaired by him, or a pledgee holding chattels as a security for a debt, the lien may be at once extinguished, and a right to the possession of the goods created, by a tender of the money due upon them (o).

Transfer of the bailment.—In all cases of bailment of chattels for hire or reward, it is essential that the bailee should preserve his control over the property, and his power of restoring it to the owner. If, therefore, he parts with the possession of the chattel, and places it under the control of a stranger, the bailment is determined, and the owner has a right of action for the recovery of the thing bailed (p). Where, after a bailment of chattels, the bailor has transferred all his interest in the chattels to another, the bailee is entitled to have an order or authority from the bailor to deliver them to his transferee, or a reasonable time to make inquiry and ascertain the validity of the new title of the claimant before he can be made responsible in damages for the non-delivery of the chattels to the latter (q). Where, for example, goods have been bailed by the owner to a warehousekeeper, to be kept, and the owner has subsequently sold the goods to a purchaser, the warehousekeeper is not responsible for refusing to deliver the goods to the purchaser without the production of a delivery-order from the bailor, or some documentary evidence of title to the goods on the part of the stranger who demands them: but he may, if he pleases, at once attorn to the purchaser, and rely upon the title of the latter (r).

If the bailee has received the chattels upon the terms that he is to deliver them to the bailor, or to any person authorised by him to receive them, a bonâ fide purchaser or mortgagee, who is in possession of a bill of sale, or assignment, or mortgage, executed by the bailor, transferring all the bailor's interest in the chattels to such purchaser or mortgagee, may, on presenting such bill of sale or mortgage to the bailee, lawfully demand

(n) 57 & 58 Vict. c. 60, ss. 497—499.

(o) Ratcliff v. Davies, Cro.Jac. 244; Chilton v. Carrington, 24 L.J. C.P. 10; 16 C.B. 206; but in cases of mortgage, see Bank of New South Wales v. O'Connor, 14 App.Cas. 273; 58 L.J. P.C. 82.

(p) Cooper v. Willomat, 1 C.B. 682; 14 L.J. C.P. 219.

(q) Addison on Torts, 590 (ed. 8); Lees v. Bayes, 18 C.B. 599; 25 L.J. C.P. 249; Solomons v. Dawes, 1 Esp. 82.

(r) Ogle v. Atkinson, 5 Taunt. 762; Cheesman v. Exall, 6 Exch. 344; 20 L.J. Ex. 209; Addison on Torts, 588 (ed. 8) et seq.

possession of the chattels, and in case of the refusal of the latter to deliver them to him within a reasonable time after the demand, may maintain an action for the conversion or detention of the property (s), the bill of sale or mortgage, signed by the bailor, being an authority or direction to the bailee to deliver up the chattels to the purchaser or mortgagee; but if there be a mere oral agreement of sale, and no warrant, or authority, or direction from the bailor for the delivery of the goods, the refusal of the bailee to deliver them to the stranger would be no proof of a conversion or of a wrongful detainer. It is to a case of this sort, where there has been a mere oral transfer of chattels by a bailor, without any warrant or authority from the latter to the bailee to deliver them to the transferee, that the dictum of Holt, C.J., must be taken to apply, that if A. bails goods to C., and afterwards give his whole right to them to B., B. cannot maintain detinue for them against C., because the special property that C. acquires by the bailment is not thereby transferred to B. (t). If the right of property in the subject-matter of the bailment has been transferred by devise, the devisee may sue for the detention or loss of the property; and it is no answer to the action to show that the subject-matter of the bailment was lost in the lifetime of the devisor, and has not been in the possession of the bailee since the accrual of the title of the devisee (u). So, if the right of property in title-deeds, or an heirloom, comes to the heir-at-law by descent, the heir is the proper person to sue for their detention (x).

If the bailor is not himself the owner of the goods, but has some special property therein, or is himself a bailee of them, and answerable over to the real owner, he is entitled to maintain an action for damage done to them, or for the loss of them (y).

A bailee is not estopped, as we have seen, from showing that the bailor had a defeasible title, and that his title has been defeated by matter subsequent to the bailment or to the recognition of the title by the defendant (z). He may refuse to redeliver the goods to the bailor on the ground that they are the property of another person who has demanded and received them, or who has forbidden the bailee to part with the possession of them (a); but the bailee cannot, if the possession of the bailor

(s) Franklin v. Neate, 13 M. & W. 484; 14 L.J. Ex. 59; 1 Roll.Abr. Detinue, c. 2, 3.

(t) Rich v. Aldred, 6 Mod. 216.

(u) Goodman v. Boycott, 2 B. & S. 1; 31 L.J. Q.B. 69: Bristol Bank v. Midland Ry., (1891) 2 Q.B. 653; 61 L.J. Q.B. 115.

(x) Bro.Abr. Detinue, pl. 30, 45.

(y) Freeman v. Birch, 3 Q.B. 483; 1 N. & M. 420; Nicolls v. Bastard, 2 C. M. & R. 660; 5 L.J. Ex. 7.

(z) Thorne v. Tilbury, 3 H. & N. 534; 27 L.J. Ex. 407.

(a) Shelbury v. Scotsford, Yelv. 22; Biddle v. Bond, 6 B. & S. 225; 34 L.J. Q.B. 137; ante, p. 849.

was a lawful possession, and the bailment was not founded in fraud, of his own accord set up the jus tertii (b). He can set up the title of another only "if he defends upon the right and title and by the authority of that person" (c). But if the bailor was a trespasser or a thief in possessing himself of the goods, or the bailment was made with intent to defraud, the bailee may justify his refusal to deliver them up to the bailor, whether the true owner has or has not interposed to prevent delivery.

Where the plaintiff in an action for the detention of plate proved that he had pawned the plate with the defendant, and afterwards sought to redeem it, and tendered the amount due upon it, but the defendant refused to deliver it up, it was held that the defendant might, under a plea alleging that the plate was not the property of the plaintiff, show that the plaintiff had, prior to the deposit of the plate with the defendant, transferred it by a bill of sale to a purchaser, who, nevertheless, allowed the plaintiff to continue in possession of it; that the plate had been deposited with the defendant in fraud of such purchaser, and that the defendant detained the plate by the order and under the authority of the latter (d).

If the owner of goods has delivered them to a bailee to keep for him, so that the bailee has received the goods under a valid title, and the bailor, subsequently to the bailment, has, by bill of sale, transferred all his interest to a stranger, who demands the goods of the bailee, and the latter refuses to deliver them up until he has had time to receive the directions of the bailor, there is no evidence of a conversion (e). In an action for a conversion of chattels, it was held by Lord Kenyon that where the demand of the things for which the action is brought is not made by the owner who deposited them with the defendant, but by another person on his account, and the defendant refuses to deliver them, on the ground that he does not know whether the things belong to him or not, and therefore keeps them till that is ascertained, or that the person who applies is not properly empowered to receive them, or until he is satisfied by what authority he applies, that is not such a refusal as is evidence of a conversion (f); and if the defendant has a bonâ fide doubt as to the title of the claimant, it must be shown that reasonable time was

(b) Armory v. Delamirie, 1 Str. 505.

(c) Pollock, C.B., Thorne v. Tilbury, supra; Blackburn, J., Biddle v. Bond, supra; Bourne v. Fosbrooke, 34 L.J. C.P. 164; 18 C.B. N.S. 515; Rogers v. Lambert, (1891) 1 Q.B. 318; 60 L.J. Q.B. 187.

(d) Cheesman v. Exall, 6 Exch. 344; 20 L.J. Ex. 209.

(e) Lees v. Bayes, 18 C.B. 607; 25 L.J. C.P. 249; European & Austral. R. M. Co. v. R. M. St. P. Co., 30 L.J. C.P. 246; Sheridan v. New Quay Co., 4 C.B. N.S. 618; 28 L.J. C.P. 58.

(f) Solomons v. Dawes, 1 Esp. 82.

given him for clearing up that doubt (g). But if he sets up the title of his bailor, and affirms him to be the owner, or gives an absolute unqualified refusal to deliver up the chattels, there is evidence of a conversion (h). Where a pony-chaise was delivered to a workman to be painted, and the latter deposited it in the hands of a person who refused to deliver it up to the owner, unless the latter either produced the person who placed the chaise in his hands, or an order from him for its delivery, it was held that the owner was entitled to the possession of his property without doing either one or the other (i).

Joint and separate rights of action.—If a chattel has been deposited by two or more joint-owners of it in the hands of a bailee, who has agreed to keep it for them, it is not in the power of one of them to take it out of his hands without the consent of the others. If that were not so, each might demand the chattel, and have an action for its non-delivery, and so the bailee might be harassed with as many actions as there were joint-owners (k). But if the bailee thinks fit to deliver up the goods to one of the joint-bailors, a joint-action by all of them cannot afterwards be maintained against him, for the one who has got the goods cannot join with the others in suing for the non-delivery of them (l). If several joint-owners allow one of them to deal with their property, and place it in the hands of a bailee, the latter is accountable to the owner with whom he deals (m). Where two persons were severally entitled to separate portions of the contents of a box delivered by their agent to a railway company, to be carried for both of them, and the box was lost, it was held that they might sue jointly for damages (n).

Re-delivery of materials furnished by employer.—If the bailor, before the work has been done, countermands the order for it, he has a right to the immediate return of the chattel, although by his having countermanded the order, he may render himself liable to an action for a breach of contract (o). If the bailee by mistake, or in obedience to a forged order, returns the chattel to the wrong person, and the article is lost, he is responsible for the loss (p).

Contracts for performance of work—Building contracts—Pre-

(g) Pillot v. Wilkinson, 32 L.J. Ex. 201; 2 H. & C. 72; affirmed, 34 L.J. Ex. 22; 3 H. & C. 345.

(h) Pillot v. Wilkinson, supra; Woodley v. Coventry, 2 H. & C. 164; 32 L.J. Ex. 185.

(i) Buxton v. Baughan, 6 C. & P. 674.

(k) Atwood v. Ernest, 13 C.B. 889; 22 L.J. C.P. 225.

(l) Brandon v. Scott, 7 E. & B. 237; 26 L.J. Q.B. 163.

(m) Martin, B., Walshe v. Provan, 8 Exch. 851; 22 L.J. Ex. 355; Broadbent v. Ledward, 11 Ad. & E. 209.

(n) Metcalfe v. L. B. & S. C. Ry., 4 C.B. N.S. 317; 27 L.J. C.P. 333.

(o) Lilley v. Barnsley, 1 C. & K. 344.

(p) Wilson v. Powis, 11 Moore, 543; 4 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 122; Lubbock v. Inglis, 1 Stark. 104.

vention of performance—Damages.—Where a contract has been entered into for the building of a house, and the owner refuses to permit the building to be completed, and prevents the workman from earning the stipulated remuneration, the measure of damages in respect of so much of the contract as remains unperformed would seem to be the difference between what the performance would have cost the plaintiff and the price which the defendant agreed to pay (q). And in all cases of prevention of performance, where the plaintiff has been deprived by the defendant of the benefit of the contract, the plaintiff is entitled to recover what he has lost by the act of the defendant (r).

When a contract for the performance of work and labour has not been fully carried out by the workman, but the employer retains the benefit of a part performance, and the contract is apportionable, or the plaintiff has been discharged from his liability to complete the portion unperformed, the measure of the damages is the residue of the full sum agreed to be paid, after deducting such an amount as will enable the defendant to get the contract completed according to the original intention of the contracting parties (s). If the plaintiff has contracted to do the work and supply materials for a fixed sum, and the defendant afterwards finds some of the material, the defendant is entitled to deduct the fair value of his materials from the contract price (t). Where a judgment had been recovered by the plaintiff against a relation of the defendant, and the latter promised the plaintiff that, if he would forbear to issue execution upon the judgment, the defendant would erect and finish a substantial house, and cause a lease thereof to be granted to the plaintiff, and the plaintiff promised that such lease, when granted, should be in full satisfaction of the judgment, it was held that the measure of damages arising from the breach of the defendant's promise was the value of the house, if it had been erected, and of the lease thereof, and not the difference between the value of the judgment and the value of the house and lease (u).

(q) Masterton v. Brooketyre (Mayor), 7 Hill, N.Y. Rep. 61.

(r) Planchè v. Colburn, 1 M. & Sc. 51 ; 1 L.J. C.P. 7 ; Inchbald v. Western Neilgherry Coffee Co., 17 C.B.N.S. 733 ; 34 L.J. C.P. 15 ; ante, p. 146.

(s) Ante, pp. 876—887 ; Cutler v. Close, 5 C. & P. 335.

(t) Newton v. Forster, 12 M. & W. 772.

(u) Strutt v. Farlar, 16 M. & W. 249 ; 16 L.J. Ex. 84.

SECTION II.

MASTER AND SERVANT.

Contracts of hiring and service.—The contract of letting and hiring relates also to human labour, workmen being daily hired in a great variety of affairs. To constitute a contract of hiring and service, there must be either an express or an implied mutual engagement binding one party to employ and remunerate, and the other to serve, for some determinate term or period (ante, p. 5). Sometimes rights and duties are created and imposed by statute; e.g., under the London Hackney Carriages Act, 1843 (x).

In each case, the terms of the contract must be looked at to discover the nature of the obligation undertaken. Thus, where there is no contract on the part of the master to find employment for the servant, but it is left optional either with the servant to serve or with the master to employ, the master will not be obliged to employ the servant at reasonable times for a reasonable number of working days during the term of service (y). But the fact that a workman is paid by piece work does not absolve the employer from his obligation to provide the workman with a reasonable amount of work during the term of service or in lieu thereof to pay by way of damages the average amount that would have been earned if work had been provided (z). So, wherever one party covenants to serve for a particular period, and the other covenants to pay him a salary or wages for the service during the term, there is an implied covenant on the part of the latter to retain the servant in his service during the term, provided the latter serves faithfully, and is guilty of no misconduct warranting a dismissal. Where it was agreed between the plaintiff and a joint-stock company that the former should be the permanent solicitor of the company at a salary of 100*l.* a year in lieu of an annual bill of costs, and should for such salary advise and act for the company on all occasions, it was held that there was an (x) 6 & 7 Vict. c. 86. See King v. London Improved Cab Co., 23 Q.B.D. 281; 58 L.J. Q.B. 456; Keen v. Henry, (1894) 1 Q.B. 292; 63 L.J. Q.B. 211; Gates v. Bill & Son, (1902) 2 K.B. 38; 71 L.J. K.B. 702. But under the Locomotives Act, 1865, 28 & 29 Vict. c. 83, it was held that the relationship of master and servant was not constituted, where a locomotive was let out for hire: Smith v. Bailey, (1891) 2 Q.B. 403; 60 L.J. Q. B. 779.

(y) Williamson v. Taylor, 5 Q.B. 175; 13 L.J. Q.B. 81; Aspdin v. Austin, 5 Q.B. 671; 13 L.J. Q.B. 155; cp. Pilkington v. Scott, 15 M. & W. 657; 15 L.J. Ex. 359; Reg. v. Welch, 2 E. & B. 357; 22 L.J. M.C. 145; Whittle v. Frankland, 2 B. & S. 49; 31 L.J. M.C. 81; with which Alverstone, C.J., in Devonald v. Rosser, (1906) 2 K.B. 728, 741; 75 L.J. K.B. 688, thought the first-mentioned cases inconsistent.

(z) Devonald v. Rosser, supra.

implied contract on the part of the company to retain the solicitor in their service for one year at least, and pay him the salary he had agreed to accept, but that the word "permanent" did not confer any durable appointment beyond the year, so as to prevent the employer from withdrawing the retainer (a). On the other hand, where five years was stated to be the term of service but there was no express covenant on the part of the master to employ or retain the servant for five years, it was held that the master was at liberty to dismiss the servant whenever he pleased and to discontinue the payment of wages (b). Where a firm agreed to employ a person as representative salesman for a fixed period and he agreed to devote the whole of his time to the business of the firm, it was nevertheless held to be within the province of the master to say that he would go on paying wages without at the same time providing work, there being no undertaking on the part of the master to keep the servant au fait at his work (c), and there are many cases of hiring and employment of parties to serve in some particular character or capacity where the servant is bound to serve if called upon, and is entitled to his salary by holding himself in readiness to serve, although his services are not called into requisition by the employer. In these cases there is a continuous hiring or retainer; and the readiness and willingness to serve on the part of the servant are equivalent to actual service.

As to who is a servant, one test is that he is put in his place to do an act which the master intended to do himself (d). So where an association merely engaged to provide duly qualified nurses but not to nurse patients through the agency of the nurses as their servants, the relationship of master and servant was held not to subsist even though the association paid salaries to the nurses and made charges for their services to the persons nursed (e). Again, the element of who controls the servant or to whose orders he is subservient, may be of importance (f). Where an action was brought against "General" Booth, as head of the Salvation Army, for acts done by members of the

(a) Emmens v. Elderton, 4 H.L.Cas. 624, 645; 13 C.B. 495; Reg. v. Welch, 2 E. & B. 362; 22 L.J. M.C. 145; Rust v. Nottidge, 1 E. & B. 99; 22 L.J. Q.B. 73; Hartley v. Cummings, 17 L.J. C.P. 84; 5 C.B. 247; Pilkington v. Scott, 15 M. & W. 660; 15 L.J. Ex. 359; M'Intyre v. Belcher, 32 L.J. C.P. 254; 14 C.B. N.S. 654.

(b) Dunn v. Sayles, 5 Q.B. 685; 13 L.J. Q.B. 159; distinguished in Emmens v. Elderton, supra.

(c) Turner v. Sawdon, (1901) 2 K.B. 653; 70 L.J. K.B. 897.

(d) Per Willes, J., in Murray v. Currie, L.R. 6 C.P. 24, 27; 40 L.J. C.P. 26.

(e) Hall v. Lees, (1904) 2 K.B. 602; 73 L.J. K.B. 819.

(f) Sadler v. Henlock, 4 E. & B. 570, 578; 24 L.J. K.B. 138; Waldock v. Winfield, (1901) 2 K.B. 596; 70 L.J. K.B. 925; cp. Rourke v. White Moss Colliery Co., 2 C.P.D. 205; 46 L.J. C.P. 283; Donovan v. Laing, Wharton and Down Construction Syndicate, Ltd., (1893) 1 Q.B. 629; 63 L.J. Q.B. 25.

army, it was held that there being no evidence to show what relationship subsisted between the General and the particular members, it could not be inferred that these members were his servants (g).

In the absence of any stipulation to the contrary, there is involved in every contract of service an implied obligation on the servant that he shall honestly and faithfully serve his master, and that he shall not abuse his confidence in matters appertaining to his service (h).

Authentication and proof of contract (i).—A contract of hiring and service need not be authenticated by writing, unless the term of the hiring exceeds a year (ante, p. 35); and, if reduced into writing, it need not be stamped, if it is an agreement or memorandum for the hire of any labourer, artificer, manufacturer, or menial servant, or between the master and mariners of any ship or vessel for wages on any voyage coastwise from port to port in the United Kingdom (k), and not a contract of apprenticeship (l). Where there is no express contract between the parties, the hiring may be presumed from the mere fact of the service, unless the service has been with near relations. If a man, for example, serves a stranger in the capacity of a menial servant for a continued period, the law presumes that the service has been rendered in fulfilment of a contract of hiring and service; and, if the party has served without anything being said as to wages, the law presumes that there was a contract for customary and reasonable wages (m). But, if the service has been with a near relation of the party serving, a hiring cannot be presumed from it, but an express hiring must be proved in order to support a claim for wages; for the law regards services rendered by near relations to one another as gratuitous acts, and does not presume that they are to be paid for, unless there is an express contract to that effect (n). And, if a poor person is taken out of charity and provided with food, lodging, clothes, and necessaries, and set to work, no contract of hiring and service is implied therefrom, however long the party may continue to serve (o).

(g) London General Omnibus Co. v. Booth, 63 L.J. Q.B. 244.

(h) Robb v. Green, (1895) 2 Q.B. 315; 64 L.J. Q.B. 593.

(i) As to agreements between the master of a ship and the crew, see 57 & 58 Vict. c. 60, ss. 113—125; and as to their rescission by the Court, see sect. 168.

(k) Stamp Act, 1891, 54 & 55 Vict. c. 39, Sched. I.

(l) An indenture of apprenticeship to the sea service is exempt from stamp duty: Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, 57 & 58 Vict. c. 60, s. 108 (1).

(m) Ld. Ellenborough, C.J., R. v. Pendleton, 15 East, 449, 454; Phillips v. Jones, 1 Ad. & E. 333.

(n) Davies v. Davies, 9 C. & P. 87; R. v. Stokesley, 6 T.R. 757; R. v. Sow, 1 B. & Ald. 178.

(o) R. v. Weyhill, 1 W.Bl. 206; 2 Bott. 207, case 271.

Yearly hirings.—When the employment of a servant is of a permanent nature, in the absence of any custom to rebut the presumption, the hiring is presumed to be a yearly hiring (p); and in such a case, the servant not being a household or domestic servant, the hiring cannot be put an end to by either party without the consent of the other, before the termination of the current year (q). Service by a husbandman for a year is strong presumptive evidence of a yearly hiring (r). A general hiring of a clerk, foreman, journeyman, or traveller, at annual wages, "with board in the house," is, in general, a yearly hiring, which can only be put an end to by consent, or at the expiration of the current year (s); so is a general hiring of a clerk at so much per annum, nothing being said about the periods of payment (t); so also is a general hiring of a governess at annual wages, with board in the house (u); and so also is a general hiring of editors, sub-editors, reporters, and other persons regularly employed upon old-standing and permanently-established newspapers and periodicals (x), but the duration of the term of hiring will be regulated and controlled by custom and usage and the surrounding circumstances of the case (y). Reservations of quarterly, monthly, or weekly wages are not inconsistent with a yearly hiring. "Whether the wages be to be paid by the week or the year cannot make any alteration in the duration of the service, if the contract were for a year" (z); but, if there has been no continued service for a lengthened period, and there is nothing in the nature of the employment, and no particular custom or usage leading necessarily to the conclusion that the hiring was for a year, the payment of weekly or monthly wages raises a presumption in favour of a weekly or monthly hiring (a). A "hiring for twelve months certain, and to continue from time to time until three months' notice in writing be given by either party to determine the same," is a hiring for a year certain only; and either party is at liberty to put an end to it at the expiration

(p) Beeston v. Collyer, 4 Bing. 309; 5 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 180; Fawcett v. Cash, 5 B. & Ad. 904; 3 L.J. K.B. 113; Lilley v. Elwin, 11 Q.B. 742; 17 L.J. Q.B. 132.

(q) Emmens v. Elderton, 4 H.L.Cas. 624; 13 C.B. 495.

(r) R. v. Lyth, 5 T.R. 337.

(s) Beeston v. Collyer, 12 Moore, 552; 5 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 180; R. v. Batheaston, Burr. Set.Cas. 823, No. 257; Turner v. Robinson, 5 B. & Ad. 789; 2 N. & M. 829; Davis v. Marshall, 9 W.R. 520.

(t) Ridgway v. Hungerford Market Co., 3 Ad. & E. 171; 4 L.J. K.B. 157.

(u) Todd v. Kerrich, 8 Exch. 151; 22 L.J. Ex. 1.

(x) Holcroft v. Barber, 1 Car. & K. 4; Baxter v. Nurse, 7 Sc. N.R. 801; 13 L.J. C.P. 82; Williams v. Byrne, 7 Ad. & E. 177; 6 L.J. K.B. 239.

(y) Fairman v. Oakford, 5 H. & N. 635; 29 L.J. Ex. 459; Green v. Wright, 1 C.P.D. 591.

(z) Kenyon, C.J., Rex v. Birdbrooke, 4 T.R. 246; R. v. Seaton, Cald. 440.

(a) R. v. Pucklechurch, 5 East, 384; Baxter v. Nurse, 7 Sc. N.R. 801; 13 L.J. C.P. 82.

of the first year, by giving three months' previous notice (b). And it has been held that an agreement "for twelve months certain, after which time either party should be at liberty to terminate the agreement by giving the other a three months' notice," was determinable at the end of the twelfth month without notice (c). A custom that either master or servant may determine domestic service at the end of the first month by notice given at or before the expiration of the first fortnight, is not in itself unreasonable; but inasmuch as such a custom has not yet been so fully established that judicial notice can be taken of it, it must be proved in each case as a question of fact (d).

Defeasible yearly hirings—Domestic service—Month's warning or a month's wages.—If by custom or usage of trade the hiring may be put an end to and the contract dissolved, by notice given by either of the parties, the hiring is a conditional or defeasible yearly hiring, determinable by giving the customary notice at any time during the term. By the custom of particular trades a general hiring of a commercial traveller is a hiring for a year, subject to an implied understanding that either party may determine the engagement by giving three months' notice (e). A general hiring of menial or household servants (f), such as cooks, scullions, housemaids, footmen, butlers, coachmen, grooms, where no time is mentioned for the duration of the service, is a hiring for a year, and so on from year to year, defeasible by custom and usage, at the option of either of the parties, on giving a month's warning, or on the part of the master by paying or tendering a month's wages (g). In the case of a contract in writing, the customary power of defeasance is impliedly annexed to the express terms of the written agreement, unless the custom is excluded by express words (h). A servant may be a menial servant, and as such clothed with this implied power of defeasance, although not resident within the walls of the master's house. This has been held to be the case with a head gardener hired for a year at 100*l*.

(b) Brown v. Symons, 8 C.B. N.S. 208; 29 L.J. C.P. 251.

(c) Langton v. Carleton, L.R. 9 Ex. 57; 43 L.J. Ex. 54.

(d) Moult v. Halliday, (1898) 1 Q.B. 125; 67 L.J. Q.B. 451.

(e) Metzner v. Bolton, 9 Exch. 518; 23 L.J. Ex. 130.

(f) As to the meaning of menial servant, see Erle, C.J., in Nicoll v. Greaves, 33 L.J. C.P. 259, 261; 17 C.B. N.S. 27; Johnson v. Blenkinsopp, 5 Jur. 870; Todd v. Kerrich, 8 Exch. 151; 22 L.J. Ex. 1; Lawler v. Linden, Ir.R. 10 C.L. 188; Forgan v. Burke, 12 Ir.R. C.L. 495.

(g) R. v. Worfield, 5 T.R. 506; Turner v. Robinson, 5 B. & Ad. 789; Lilley v. Elwin, 11 Q.B. 742. The fact that wages are paid at lesser terms does not rebut the presumption: Fawcett v. Cash, 5 B. & Ad. 904; Williams v. Byrne, 7 Ad. & E. 177; Forgan v. Burke, 12 Ir.R. C.L. 495.

(h) Johnson v. Blenkensop, 5 Jur. 870.

wages, with a house in the master's grounds, and the privilege of taking in apprentices for a year at 15*l.* premium (i); also with a huntsman engaged at a salary of 100*l.* a year, with a house to live in and perquisites (k).

When a power of defeasance is vested in the parties, either by custom or by special agreement, as upon the happening of a given event, the hiring is nevertheless a yearly hiring; so that, if the power of defeasance is not exercised, and the contract is permitted to run on, there is a year's hiring and service (l). "It is a yearly hiring, notwithstanding the power of determining it, if that is not exercised before the expiration of the year. The contingency not having happened, and the contract not having been defeated during the year, it enures after the year's service as a yearly hiring" (m). A servant may engage himself to serve for a certain determinate period, but may give the employer the option of determining the contract, and dismissing him at any period of the service. Where the engagement of a clerk or a superintendent was to be for three years, "at the option" of the employer, at a yearly salary, this was held to be a contract binding the servant to serve three years, and giving the employer the option of determining the contract at the end of any year by a proper notice, but not of dismissing the servant at any time; and that, if the servant was dismissed in the middle of a current year, he was entitled to compensation (n).

Monthly or weekly hiring.—When the wages are reserved weekly with a proviso for a month's warning, the presumption is in favour of a defeasible yearly hiring; but where a journeyman miller was hired "at monthly wages, with liberty to depart at a month's wages or a month's warning," the hiring was held to be a hiring by the month (o). So, if the payment of weekly wages be the only circumstance from which the duration of the contract is to be collected, it must be taken to be only a weekly hiring (p). "The mere arrangement," observes Bayley, J., "that the wages shall be at one rate in the summer and at

(i) Nowlan v. Ablett, 2 Cr. M. & R. 54 : 4 L.J. Ex. 155.

(k) Nicoll v. Greaves, 17 C.B. N.S. 27 : 33 L.J. C.P. 259.

(l) R. v. Atherton, Burr. Set.Cas. 203, No. 71 ; R. v. Birdbrooke, 4 T.R. 246 ; R. v. Farleigh Wallop, 1 B. & Ad. 340, 342 ; 9 L.J. (O.S.) M.C. 9 ; R. v. New Windsor, Burr. Set.Cas. 22, No. 7 ; R. v. Gt. Yarmouth, 5 M. & S. 114 ; R. v. Northwold, 2 D. & R. 790.

(m) R. v. Sandhurst, 7 B. & C. 562 ; 6 L.J. (O.S.) M.C. 15 ; R. v. Byker, 3 D. & R. 336 ; 2 B. & C. 119 ; R. v. Lidney, Burr. Set.Cas. 1.

(n) Down v. Pinto, 9 Exch. 327 ; 23 L.J. Ex. 103.

(o) R. v. Clare, 2 Bott. 299, pl. 295.

(p) Ellenborough, C.J., R. v. Dodderhill, 3 M. & S. 245 ; Burr. Set.Cas. 280, No. 98 ; R. v. Pucklechurch, 5 East, 384; R. v. Hanbury, 2 East, 425 ; R. v. Mitcham, 12 East, 352 ; Ashurst, J., R. v. Newton Toney, 2 T.R. 455 ; R. v. Odiham, ib., 622 ; Baxter v. Nurse, 7 Sc. N.R. 801 ; 13 L.J. C.P. 82 ; R. v. Elstack, 2 Bott. 227, pl. 292 ; R. v. Dedham, 2 Bott. 227, pl. 292 ; R. v. Warminster, 6 B. & C. 77 ; 5 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 12 ; Evans v. Roe, L.R. 7 C.P. 138.

another in the winter does not show that the parties contemplated a service to endure through the summer and winter, and therefore that they intended hiring for a year; but shows only that they intended that, if the servant, being hired at weekly wages, should remain till the summer, he should then have so much per week" (q). On the other hand, if the nature of the employment or the terms of the contract are inconsistent with a weekly hiring, as where there is a stipulation for a fortnight's or a month's notice to quit, the reservation of weekly wages will be regarded merely as a mode of payment, and not as an indication of the duration of the contract (r).

Service at will.—The contract of service may provide for service at will merely, as where a boy was to work "for meat, drink, and clothes, as long as he had a mind to stop" (s), or, where the workman was "to come and go when he liked," and the servant and his master were "to be at liberty to separate when they pleased" (t). But, while slight circumstances may be sufficient for the purpose, some contract of service must in every case be established (u), and no such contract will be presumed where the servant is merely taken from motives of charity (x).

Rights and liabilities of master and servant.—It is the first duty of the master to take the servant into his employ, and enable him to earn the wages agreed to be paid; and, if he neglects so to do, he renders himself liable forthwith to an action for breach of contract. The master is also bound to provide for the safety of his servant in the course of his employment to the best of his judgment; though there is no implied obligation on his part to take more care of the servant than he may reasonably be expected to take of himself (y). So, while there is no implied agreement by the master in an ordinary contract of hiring and service not to expose the servant to extraordinary risks in the course of his employment (z), if the servant sustains injury in the course of his employment from the negligence

(q) R. v. Rolvendon, 1 M. & R. 691; R. v. Dodderhill, 3 M. & S. 243; R. v. Lambeth, 4 ib. 315.

(r) R. v. Hampreston, 5 T.R. 208; R. v. Birdbrooke, 4 T.R. 245; R. v. St. Andrew, Pershore, 8 B. & C. 679; 7 L.J. (O.S.) M.C. 23; R. v. Gt. Yarmouth, 5 M. & S. 117; Davis v. Marshall, 9 W.R. 520; Forgan v. Burke, 12 Ir. C.L.R. 495.

(s) R. v. Christ's Parish, York, 3 B. & C. 459; 5 D. & R. 314.

(t) R. v. Gt. Bowden, 7 B. & C. 249; 6 L.J. (O.S.) M.C. 17.

(u) R. v. St. Matthew's, Ipswich, 3 T.R. 449.

(x) R. v. Weyhill, Bur. Set.Cas. 491; ante, p. 917.

(y) Riley v. Baxendale, 6 H. & N. 445; 30 L.J. Ex. 87; Priestley v. Fowler, 3 M. & W. 5; 7 L.J. Ex. 42; Paterson v. Wallace, 1 Macq. 748; Davies v. England, 33 L.J. Q.B. 321. As to injuries from unfenced machinery, see Clarke v. Holmes, 7 H. & N. 937; 31 L.J. Ex. 356.

(z) Riley v. Baxendale, 6 H. & N. 445; 30 L.J. Ex. 87.

of the master, the latter will be responsible in damages (a). The master, however, is not liable for surgical attendance and medicine rendered to a servant who has been injured in the execution of his master's service, not through the master's negligence, unless the surgeon has been called in by the master's orders (b); nor for injuries sustained from the unseaworthiness of a vessel in which the servant is employed (c); nor for injuries which one servant has sustained through the negligence of another servant of the same employer (as we shall presently see), provided the master provides proper machinery (d), and takes care that his servants are persons of competent skill and ordinary carefulness (e); for a servant, when he engages to serve a master, undertakes as between him and his master, to run all the ordinary risks of the service, including the risk of negligence upon the part of a fellow-servant, when he is acting in "the discharge of his duty as servant of him who is the common master of both" (f). But where a servant is compelled through illness to absent himself from his work, the master will be bound to pay him his wages until the proper termination of his employment, even though the illness was caused by an act of misconduct on the servant's part which occurred before the contract and which he did not know at the time of his contract would render him incapable of performing his work (g).

The servant is not bound to risk his safety in the service of his master, and may, if he thinks fit, decline any service in which he reasonably apprehends injury to himself. So, the master is not responsible for injuries sustained by his servant through the viciousness of the horse which the servant is employed to groom, or through the breaking down of a carriage in which the servant is directed by the master to drive, or from the employer's keeping an insufficient staff of servants for the performance of

(a) Ashworth v. Stanwix, 30 L.J. Q.B. 183; 3 E. & E. 701; Clarke v. Holmes, supra; Weems v. Matthieson, 4 Macq. 215; Mellors v. Shaw, 1 B. & S. 437; 30 L.J. Q.B. 333.

(b) Wennell v. Adney, 3 B. & P. 247; Cooper v. Phillips, 4 C. & P. 581. As to recovery of expenses incurred in curing injuries sustained by a servant through the acts of third parties, see Addison on Torts, 848 (ed. 8).

(c) Couch v. Steel, 3 E. & B. 402; 23 L.J. Q.B. 121.

(d) Searle v. Lindsay, 11 C.B. N.S. 429; 31 L.J. C.P. 106.

(e) Potter v. Faulkner, 1 B. & S. 800; 31 L.J. Q.B. 30; Senior v. Ward, 1 E. & E. 385; 28 L.J. Q.B. 139.

(f) Hutchinson v. York, Newc. & Berw. Ry., 5 Exch. 343; 19 L.J. Ex. 296; Wigmore v. Jay, 5 Ex. 354; 19 L.J. Ex. 300; Seymour v. Maddox, 16 Q.B. 326; 20 L.J. Q.B. 327; Lovegrove v. L. B. & S. C. Ry., 16 C.B. N.S. 669; 33 L.J. C.P. 329; Waller v. S. E. Ry., 3 H. & C. 102; 32 L.J. Ex. 205; Murphy v. Caralli, 3 H. & C. 462; 34 L.J. Ex. 14; Tunney v. Midland Ry., L.R. 1 C.P. 291; Cribb v. Kynoch, (1907) 2 K.B. 548; 76 L.J. K.B. 948. As to who are fellow-servants, see Hall v. Johnson, 3 H. & C. 589; 34 L.J. Ex. 222; Feltham v. England, L.R. 2 Q.B. 33; 36 L.J. Q.B. 14; Warburton v. G. W. Ry., L.R. 2 Ex. 30; 36 L.J. Ex. 9.

(g) K—— v. Raschen, 38 L.T. 38.

the work he has to do (h), or through dangerous machinery, which the servant has voluntarily undertaken to use (i), or for dangers attendant upon the mounting of scaffolds, or unfinished staircases and landings, which he has voluntarily undertaken to mount, with as much knowledge of the attendant risk as the person who employs him (k).

Where the master's coach broke down through the negligence of a coach-maker who had contracted with the master to furnish and keep in working order sound roadworthy coaches, and the coachman was maimed for life, it was held that the coachman had no remedy, the law not permitting him to recover damages from his own master and employer, nor yet from the coach-maker, whose negligence occasioned the injury. "It is no doubt a hardship upon the plaintiff," observes Rolfe, B., "to be without a remedy, but by that consideration we ought not to be influenced" (l).

If, however, a man employs ignorant, inexperienced workmen in dangerous employments, and exposes them improperly to risks, of which he is cognizant, and which are not known to the ignorant workman, he will be liable for the consequences of his misconduct (m). For personal negligence of the master, whereby injury is occasioned to the servant, the master will be liable (n). And where rules are framed by employers to regulate the exercise of a dangerous employment, and such rules are carelessly framed, so as to cause dangers which might be prevented by proper rules, the employers will be responsible for the consequences of their negligence (o). Where statutory regulations exist for the management of a colliery (p), but are culpably neglected with the knowledge of the owner of the mine, the latter will be responsible for the consequences of his neglect of duty, unless the person injured has brought the mischief upon himself by his own negligence (q). And where machinery

(h) Skipp v. East. Counties Ry., 9 Exch. 223 ; 23 L.J. Ex. 23.

(i) Dynen v. Leach, 26 L.J. Ex. 221.

(k) Assop v. Yates, 2 H. & N. 770 ; 27 L.J. Ex. 156 ; Griffiths v. Gidlow, 3 H. & N. 648 ; 27 L.J. Ex. 404 ; Potts v. Plunkett, 9 Ir. C.L.R. 290.

(l) Winterbottom v. Wright, 10 M. & W. 115 ; 11 L.J. Ex. 415 ; Priestley v. Fowler, 3 M. & W. 6 ; 7 L.J. Ex. 42 ; Riley v. Baxendale, 6 H. & N. 455 ; 30 L.J. Ex. 87 ; Potts v. Port Carlisle, &c. Ry., 2 L.T. N.S. 283 ; Heaven v. Pender, 11 Q.B.D. 503 ; 52 L.J. Q.B. 702. See Addison on Torts, 14 (ed. 8).

(m) Bartonshill Coal Co. v. Reid, 3 Macq. 295 ; Mellors v. Shaw, 1 B. & S. 437 ; 30 L.J. Q.B. 333 ; Weems v. Matthieson, 4 Macq. 215 ; Farrant v. Barnes, 31 L.J. C.P. 137 ; 11 C.B. N.S. 553 ; Williams v. Clough, 3 H. & N. 258 ; 27 L.J. Ex. 325.

(n) Ashworth v. Stanwix, 30 L.J. Q.B. 183 ; 3 E. & E. 701.

(o) Vose v. Lanc. and York. Ry., 2 H. & N. 728 ; 27 L.J. Ex. 249 ; 50 & 51 Vict. c. 58.

(p) As to ventilation of collieries, see Brough v. Homfray, L.R. 3 Q.B. 771 ; 37 L.J. M.C. 177.

(q) Caswell v. Worth, 5 E. & B. 855 ; 25 L.J. Q.B. 121 ; Senior v. Ward, 1 E. & E. 385 ; 28 L.J. Q.B. 139.

is required by Act of Parliament to be protected, the master will be responsible for the want of such protection, unless the accident has been caused by the negligence of the servant himself (r). Where the dangerous nature of the employment is obvious, the servant must necessarily be taken to have known it; yet the latter's knowledge does not make him a "volunteer" so as to exonerate his master from his liability for breach of a statutory duty to protect the servant from the dangerous thing (s).

Dangerous employments.—If a rule established for securing the safety of workmen in a dangerous employment is habitually violated, to the knowledge of the workman himself, the latter has no ground to recover damages from the employer for injuries sustained from the non-observance of the rule (t).

If hidden and secret dangers exist upon the master's premises, known to him and unknown to his workmen, it is his duty to disclose them to the latter, that they may take precautions against them (u). If a master was to order his servant to take a lighted candle amongst packages known by him, but not known by the servant, to contain gunpowder, the master would be responsible for any injury sustained by the latter from the unknown danger and unexpected risk to which he had been exposed. So if a servant be employed to cut up diseased cattle (x). It is otherwise if the servant accepts of the employment knowing of the risk he runs (see infra). If the danger is unknown to the master, and there is no negligence on his part, he cannot be made responsible in damages (y); as where a floor of a warehouse gave way and injured a workman who was thereon (z). So if a railway company employs workmen upon its tunnels, sidings, or stations, it is guilty of negligence if it conducts its traffic so as to expose the workmen to unexpected dangers, which they had no means of guarding against (a).

But the master is not responsible for the dangerous state of his premises, if those dangers are known to the servant, and the latter has accepted the employment knowing of the attendant risks, and having an opportunity of guarding against them

(r) See, as to factories, the provisions for health and safety in parts of the Factory and Workshop Act, 1901, 1 Edw. 7, c. 22; and see post, p. 925.

(s) Britton v. G. W. Cotton Co., L.R. 7 Ex. 130; 41 L.J. Ex. 99. See Employers' Liability Act, 43 & 44 Vict. c. 42; Addison on Torts, 783, 784 (ed. 8).

(t) Senior v. Ward, 1 E. & E. 385; 28 L.J. Q.B. 139.

(u) Williams v. Clough, 3 H. & N. 258; 27 L.J. Ex. 325; Mellors v. Shaw, 1 B. & S. 437; 30 L.J. Q.B. 333; Ashworth v. Stanwix, 3 E. & E. 701; 30 L.J. Q.B. 183.

(x) Davies v. England, 33 L.J. Q.B. 321.

(y) Potts v. Port Carlisle Ry., 2 L.T. N.S. 283; 8 W.R. 524.

(z) Brown v. Accrington Cotton Co., 3 H. & C. 511; 34 L.J. Ex. 208.

(a) Vose v. Lanc. and York. Ry., 2 H. & N. 728; 27 L.J. Ex. 249.

by his own vigilance and care. If the servant wishes the premises to be kept in any particular state with respect to lighting and fencing, he must provide for it by express contract (b). The maxim volenti non fit injuria has been much discussed in recent cases. It was at one time thought that by reason of sect. 1, sub-sect. (1) of the Employers' Liability Act, 1880 (c), which makes a master liable where personal injury is caused to a workman by reason of any defect in the condition of the ways, works, machinery, or plant connected with his business, the master could no longer rely on the defence that the servant knew of the danger; it was however held, that where a servant voluntarily did work with a full knowledge of the risk he ran, the master was not liable (d). There is therefore in every case a question as to the servant's knowledge of the extent of the danger (e), and a further question as to how far he voluntarily incurred it (f).

Where the workman is employed in the use of dangerous machinery with the use of which he professes to be acquainted, and sustains injury from his own want of care, he has no ground of action against the employer (g). But if an Act of Parliament requires machinery to be fenced, and it is left unfenced, and the servant complains, and the master induces him to continue his work by telling him that proper protection shall be afforded, the master takes upon himself the responsibility of any accident that may occur (h). It has been held, in a Scotch case in the House of Lords, that the owner of a mine is bound to exercise ordinary care and vigilance to keep the shaft of the mine in a safe state, and the machinery for lifting people from the mine, and lowering them into it, in secure condition (i). And it is in all cases the master's duty to be careful that his workman be not induced to work under the notion that the tackle, scaffolding, or rope with which he works is secure, when the master knows, or

(b) Seymour v. Maddox, 16 Q.B. 332; 20 L.J. Q.B. 327; Bolch v. Smith, 7 H. & N. 736; 31 L.J. Q.B. 201.

(c) 43 & 44 Vict. c. 42. See Addison on Torts, 784 (ed. 8).

(d) Thomas v. Quartermaine, 18 Q.B.D. 685; 56 L.J. Q.B. 340; Membery v. G. W. Ry., 14 App.Cas. 179; 58 L.J. Q.B. 563.

(e) Yarmouth v. France, 19 Q.B.D. 647; 57 L.J. Q.B. 7. See Osborne v. L. & N. W. Ry., 21 Q.B.D. 220; 57 L.J. Q.B. 618.

(f) Thrussell v. Handyside, 20 Q.B.D. 359; 57 L.J. Q.B. 347. In Membery v. G. W. Ry., supra, Ld. Bramwell was of opinion that where a man was not physically constrained, but had the option to do a thing or not, the maxim volenti non fit injuria applied if he did it and was thereby injured. See Smith v. Baker, (1891) A.C. 325; 60 L.J. Q.B. 618; Williams v. Birmingham Battery Co., (1899) 2 Q.B. 338; 68 L.J. Q.B. 918.

(g) Dynen v. Leach, 26 L.J. Ex. 221; Bartonshill Coal Co. v. Reid, 3 Macq. 294. See Watling v. Oastler, L.R. 6 Ex. 73; 40 L.J. Ex. 43.

(h) Clarke v. Holmes, 7 H. & N. 937; 31 L.J. Ex. 356; Weems v. Matthieson, 4 Macq. 215. See also Britton v. G. W. Cotton Co., L.R. 7 Ex. 130; 41 L.J. Ex. 99; Birtwistle v. Hindle, (1897) 1 Q.B. 192; 66 L.J. Q.B. 173; and 1 Edw. 7, c. 22.

(i) Brydon v. Stewart, 2 Macq. 34.

has reasonable ground for believing, that it is unsafe and dangerous. If he interferes in the conduct and management of the work himself, he is bound to select sound and safe materials; and if he knowingly allows rotten timber, rotten poles, or rotten ropes to be used in the construction of a scaffold, and injury is sustained therefrom by his servants or workmen, he will be responsible in damages (k).

Injuries to servant from negligence of fellow-servant.—Where several servants are employed by the same master in one common employment, the master is not at common law responsible for injury resulting to one of them from the negligence or breach of statutory duty (l) of another (m), provided that he has taken due care not to expose his servant to unreasonable risks (n), and has been guilty of no want of care in the selection of proper servants (o). The principle underlying the doctrine of common employment is that the injured servant, when he engaged to serve his master, accepted, as between him and his master, all the ordinary risks of the service, including the risks involved by putting himself in juxtaposition with other persons employed by the same master, whose presence is incidental to the occupation in which he is engaged, and that he cannot complain of that which is a necessary or reasonable incident of the situation in which he has voluntarily placed himself (p). With regard to such a matter, the rights of a master and his servant, inter se, are determined by the express or implied contract between them (q). And if the risk has been undertaken, it matters not that the servant is occupied in a different department from those who are negligent or that his actual work for the day has terminated prior to the occurrence of the accident (r). But the servants must have been fellow-servants, engaged in a common service (s); though mere temporary subjection to the same

(k) Roberts v. Smith, 2 H. & N. 213; 26 L.J. Ex. 319; Senior v. Ward, 1 E. & E. 385; 28 L.J. Q.B. 139; Mellors v. Shaw, 1 B. & S. 437; 30 L.J. Q.B. 333.

(l) Where the statutory duty is imposed directly and absolutely on the master, the latter cannot avail himself of the defence of common employment: Groves v. Wimborne (Ld.), (1898) 2 Q.B. 402; 67 L.J. Q.B. 862; David v. Britannic Merthyr Coal Co., (1909) 2 K.B. 146; 78 L.J. K.B. 659.

(m) M'Eniry v. Waterford, 8 Ir. C.L.R. 312; Tunney v. Midland Ry., L.R. 1 C.P. 291, in which case the plaintiff, a labourer, was being carried on the line, in pursuance of his contract of service with the company; Hando v. L. C. & D. Ry., L.R. 2 Q.B. 439, n.

(n) Hutchinson v. York Ry., 5 Exch. 343; 19 L.J. Ex. 296.

(o) Tarrant v. Webb, 18 C.B. 805; 25 L.J. C.P. 261. See Wilson v. Merry, L.R. 1 H.L. (Sc.) 326.

(p) See Morgan v. Vale of Neath Ry., L.R. 1 Q.B. 149; 35 L.J. Q.B. 123; Burr v. Theatre Royal, Drury Lane, (1907) 1 K.B. 544, 553; 76 L.J. K.B. 459.

(q) Per Shaw, C.J., in Farwell v. Boston and Worcester Railroad Corporation (1842), 4 Metcalf (45 Mass.), 49, cited in Bartonshill Coal Co. v. McGuire, 3 Macq. 294, 300; approved by Farwell, L.J., in Coldrick v. Partridge, Jones & Co., (1909) 1 K.B. 530, 544; 78 L.J. K.B. 452.

(r) Coldrick v. Partridge, Jones & Co., (1909) 1 K.B. 530; 78 L.J. K.B. 452.

(s) Abraham v. Reynolds, 5 H. & N. 143, 149; Waller v. S. E. Ry., 32 L.J.

superintendent will not be sufficient, if they were not in fact the servants of the same master (t). The circumstances must show conclusively that the person injured submitted himself either expressly or by implication to the control of the master whose workmen caused the injury (u). If a fellow-workman in a mine was also a co-proprietor in the mine, and therefore one of the plaintiff's masters, the common master was then responsible for injury caused by the negligence of such fellow-workman (x). But a certificated manager of a mine, and a foreman, were both held to be fellow-servants with the other servants, whose work was superintended (y). So a sub-contractor and his servants engaged in doing the common work of a particular contract, under a contractor, were held to be all fellow-servants, engaged in one common employment (z). The master of a ship is a fellow-servant to a seaman employed on the ship so as to be engaged in common employment with him (a); but the master and crew of a ship are not in the common employment with the master and crew of another ship belonging to the same owner (b). Where a shipping company employ a contractor to unload their ship, and appoint certain of the crew to assist in the unloading, it is a question of fact whether such members of the crew were under the orders and control of the contractor's foreman or not (c). The doctrine is none the less applicable where a master may have a duty to give instruction to an infant servant engaged in a dangerous trade (d). It does not however apply in the case of a pauper, compellable by law to obey an order to assist in certain work, who is injured by the negligence of a servant of the guardians (e). A mere volunteer may be a fellow-servant (f).

By the Employers' (g) Liability Act, 1880 (h), the master in Ex. 203; 2 H. & C. 102; Lovegrove v. L. B. & S. C. Ry., 16 C.B. N.S. 669; 33 L.J. C.P. 329; Morgan v. Vale of Neath Ry., L.R. 1 Q.B. 149; 35 L.J. Q.B. 123.

(t) Warburton v. G. W. Ry., L.R. 2 Ex. 30; 36 L.J. Ex. 9.

(u) Johnson v. Lindsay, (1891) A.C. 371; 61 L.J. Q.B. 90; Cameron v. Nystrom, (1893) A.C. 308; 62 L.J. P.C. 85.

(x) Ashworth v. Stanwix, 30 L.J. Q.B. 183; 3 E. & E. 701.

(y) Howells v. Landore Steel Co., L.R. 10 Q.B. 62; 44 L.J. Q.B. 25; Wilson v. Merry, L.R. 1 H.L. (Sc.) 326.

(z) Wiggett v. Fox, 11 Exch. 832; 25 L.J. Ex. 188, explained in Johnson v. Lindsay, supra.

(a) Hedley v. Pinkney & Sons' Steamship Co., (1894) A.C. 222; 63 L.J. Q.B. 419.

(b) The Petrel, (1893) P. 320; 62 L.J. P. 92.

(c) Union Steamship Co. v. Claridge, (1894) A.C. 185; 63 L.J. P.C. 56.

(d) Young v. Hoffman Manufacturing Co., (1907) 2 K.B. 646; 76 L.J. K.B. 993; approving Cribb v. Kynoch, Ltd., (1907) 2 K.B. 548; 76 L.J. K.B. 948.

(e) Tozeland v. West Ham Guardians, (1907) 1 K.B. 920; 76 L.J. K.B. 514.

(f) Degg v. Midland Ry., 1 H. & N. 773; 26 L.J. Ex. 171; Potter v. Faulkner, 1 B. & S. 800; 31 L.J. Q.B. 30; cp. Wright v. L. & N. W. Ry., 1 Q.B.D. 252; 45 L.J. Q.B. 570; Holmes v. N. E. Ry., L.R. 6 Ex. 123; 40 L.J. Ex. 121. As to master's liability for negligence of volunteer, see Gwilliam v. Twist, (1895) 2 Q.B. 84; 64 L.J. Q.B. 474.

(g) The Act only applies to workmen as defined by 38 & 39 Vict. c. 90, s. 10.

(h) 43 & 44 Vict. c. 42, s. 1. The whole subject is fully treated in Addison on Torts, 780—783 (ed. 8).

some cases is made liable for injuries caused to a workman by the negligence of a fellow-workman having superintendence entrusted to him (i), or to whose orders the workman was bound to conform, and did conform, or by any act or omission of any fellow-workman in obedience to the rules or bye-laws, or particular instructions of the master. The amount of compensation recoverable is limited (k), and the action is to be brought in the first instance in the County Court (l), and notice of the injury given in writing (m). A clause in a written contract of employment, providing that the master is not to be liable to the servant under the Employers' Liability Act, 1880, does not rebut the legal presumption that the servant has undertaken the risk of negligence on the part of his fellow-servants (n).

Workmen's Compensation.—By the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906 (o), every employer is liable to pay compensation to a workman (p) who sustains personal injury by accident (q) arising out of and in the course of his employment (r), disabling the workman for a period of at least one week from earning full wages at his work. When the injury was caused by the personal negligence or wilful act of the employer or of some person for whose act or default the employer is responsible, nothing in the Act is to affect the civil liability of the employer, and the workman may, at his option, either claim compensation

(i) ee S43 & 44 Vict. c. 42, s. 8.

(k) Sect. 3.

(l) Sect. 6.

(m) Sect. 4. As to workman contracting himself out of the Act, see Griffiths v. Dudley (Earl), 9 Q.B.D. 357 ; 51 L.J. Q.B. 543.

(n) Burr v. Theatre Royal, Drury Lane, (1907) 1 K.B. 544 ; 76 L.J. K.B. 459.

(o) 6 Edw. 7, c. 58. The subject of workmen's compensation will be found fully treated at pp. 788—815 of Addison on Torts (ed. 8).

(p) "Workman" does not include any person employed otherwise than by way of manual labour whose remuneration exceeds £250 a year, or a person whose employment is of a casual nature (see Hill v. Begg, (1908) 2 K.B. 802 ; 77 L.J. K.B. 1074), and who is employed otherwise than for the purposes of the employer's trade or business, or a member of a police force, or an outworker, or a member of the employer's family dwelling in his house, but, save as aforesaid, means any person working under a contract of service or apprenticeship, whether by way of manual labour, clerical work, or other wise, and whether the contract is expressed or implied, oral or in writing (s. 13). As to the rights of dependants of a workman whose death has been caused by an accident, see Sched. I. (1) ; and as to who are "dependants," see s. 13.

(q) See Hensey v. White, (1900) 1 Q.B. 481 ; 69 L.J. Q.B. 188 ; Thompson v. Ashington Coal Co., 84 L.T. 412 ; Boardman v. Scott, (1902) 1 K.B. 43 ; 71 L.J. K.B. 3 ; Fenton v. Thorley (1903) A.C. 443 ; 72 L.J. K.B. 787 ; Brintons v. Turvey, (1905) A.C. 230 ; 74 L.J. K.B. 474.

(r) Smith v. Lanc. and York. Ry., (1899) 1 Q.B. 141 ; 68 L.J. Q.B. 51 ; Lowe v. Pearson, (1899) 1 Q.B. 261 ; 68 L.J. Q.B. 122 ; Rees v. Thomas, (1899) 1 Q.B. 1015 ; 68 L.J. Q.B. 539 ; Holness v. Mackay and Davis, (1899) 2 Q.B. 319 ; 68 L.J. Q.B. 724 ; Holmes v. Gt. Northern Ry., (1900) 2 Q.B. 409 ; 69 L.J. Q.B. 854 ; Whitehead v. Reader, (1901) 2 K.B. 48 ; 70 L.J. K.B. 546 ; Armitage v. Lanc. and York. Ry., (1902) 2 K.B. 178 ; 71 L.J. K.B. 778 ; Smith v. Normanton Colliery Co., (1903) 1 K.B. 204 ; 72 L.J. K.B. 76 ; Benson v. Lanc. and York. Ry., (1904) 1 K.B. 242 ; 73 L.J. K.B. 122 ; Sharp v. Johnson & Co., (1905) 2 K.B. 139 ; 74 L.J. K.B. 566 ; Gane v. Norton Hill Colliery Co., (1909) 2 K.B. 539 ; 78 D.J. K.B. 921.

under the Act or take proceedings independently of the Act (s). Also, where the injury is shown to be attributable to serious and wilful misconduct of the workman, compensation will be disallowed except in cases where death or serious and permanent disablement have resulted (t).

The term "personal injury" includes certain industrial diseases (u). In case of sub-contracting, except in the case of agricultural work, the principal is liable just as if the workman had been immediately employed by him; with, however, a right of indemnification against any person who would have been liable to pay compensation to the workman independently of this provision (x). Notice of the accident must be given as soon as practicable after the happening of the accident and before the workman has voluntarily left the employment in which he was injured, and the claim for compensation must be made within six months from the occurrence of the accident or time of death (y). The notice must be in the prescribed form and be served in the prescribed manner (z).

Contracts excluding the operation of the Act are not permitted, except under a scheme of compensation, benefit, or insurance certified by the Registrar of Friendly Societies (a). All questions arising under the Act are, if not settled by agreement, to be settled by arbitration (b).

Duties of servant.—Every servant impliedly undertakes to obey the just and reasonable commands of his master, and to be careful and industrious in the performance of the work intrusted to him to execute. A servant who professes to be capable of undertaking an office of skill impliedly represents himself to be possessed of the skill requisite for the due discharge of the functions of the office; and, if he does not possess that skill, or if, possessing it, he fails to exercise it, he is responsible for a breach of contract. A servant, in the service of a tradesman, impliedly promises to do no act knowingly and wilfully which may injure his master's trade; but, while he must not attempt to draw away his master's customers, there is no law which prevents him from soliciting prospective custom from them at some future period when he hopes to be able to set up in business for himself (c). His possession of the master's property is,

(s) 6 Edw. 7, c. 58, s. 1 (2) (b).
(t) Sect. 1 (2) (c).
(u) Sect. 8 and Sched. III.
(x) Sect. 4. As to cases where a legal liability is incurred by some person other than the employer, see sect. 6.
(y) Sect. 2 (1); Powell v. Main Colliery Co., (1900) A.C. 366; 69 L.J. Q.B. 758.
(z) Sect. 2 (2), (3), (4).
(a) Sect. 3.
(b) Sect. 1 (3) and Sched. II. As to the amount of compensation payable, see Sched. I.
(c) Nichol v. Martyn, 2 Esp. 732. A servant may not, however, surreptitiously copy from his master's order book a list of his master's customers for as we have already seen, the master's possession. He has in contemplation of law the mere custody of it, so that, if he is provided with a house or a lodging by the master, he may be turned out of it at any moment without any notice to quit (d). It is the duty of a servant to account for moneys had and received by him on his master's account (e), even though his master could not have recovered them from the parties with whom the servant contracted (f).

If damages have been recovered from the master by reason of the servant's negligence in doing the master's work, or in executing his orders, these damages may be recovered by the master from the servant, and the proceedings in the action against the master are evidence as to the amount of these damages, but not of the circumstances under which they were recovered (g). If the captain of a ship engages in smuggling transactions, and thereby causes the ship to be forfeited and condemned, he is responsible in damages to the shipowner for causing the loss of his property (h).

Termination of the contract of hiring and service.—This may be by consent of the parties, by the death of either the master or the servant (i), by notice, express or implied, or by dismissal without notice on the ground of incompetency, misconduct or other sufficient reason. Where the contract is terminated by mutual consent, and nothing is said about wages earned since the end of the last year's service, the law implies no engagement to pay for the services performed in the meantime (k). If the contract is made with a firm in partnership to serve the firm for a certain term, the contract is dissolved by the death of one of the partners (l). The passing of a resolution to wind up a company, or the appointment by the court of a receiver or manager, will operate as notice of dismissal to the company's servants (m), even though the liquidator or the receiver and his own use after he has left the service: Merryweather v. Moore, (1892) 2 Ch. 518; 61 L.J. Ch. 505; Robb v. Green, (1895) 2 Q.B. 315; 64 L.J. Q.B 593. As to the use by servants after the termination of their service of materials or information acquired by them in the course of their service, see Louis v. Smellie, 73 L.T. 226; Lamb v. Evans, (1893) 1 Ch. 218; 62 L.J. Ch. 404; Kirchner & Co. v. Gruban, (1909) 1 Ch. 413, 422; 78 L.J. Ch. 117.

(d) Mayhew v. Suttle, 4 E. & B. 347; 24 L.J. Q.B. 54; White v. Bayley, 10 C.B. N.S. 227; 30 L.J. C.P. 253. A servant cannot be said to occupy a house as servant, if it is not his master's house: R. v. Lynn, 8 A. & E. 379; 3 N. & P. 411.

(e) Evans v. Birch, 3 Campb. 10.

(f) Boston Deep Sea Fishing Co. v. Ansell, 39 Ch.D. 339; 59 L.T. 345.

(g) Green v. New River Co., 4 T.R. 590.

(h) Blewitt v. Hill, 13 East, 12.

(i) Farrow v. Wilson, L.R. 4 C.P. 744; 38 L.J. C.P. 326; Phillips v. Hull Alhambra Palace Co., (1901) 1 K.B. 59; 70 L.J. K.B. 26.

(k) Lamburn v. Cruden, 2 M. & Gr. 253.

(l) Tasker v. Shepherd, 6 H. & N. 575; 30 L.J. Ex. 207; cp. Partnership Act, 1890, 53 & 54 Vict. c. 39, s. 33.

(m) Schumann, Ex parte, Forster & Co., In re, 19 L.R. Ir. 240; Reid v.

manager continues to employ the servants in analogous duties (n). Where a seaman, in consequence of an outbreak of war, would be exposed, in the event of his continuing the voyage, to greater risks than those he had contracted to run, it was held that he was justified in leaving the ship and was entitled to recover the stipulated fixed remuneration for his services notwithstanding that the voyage was not completed (o).

Warning—Notice to leave.—In the case of a yearly hiring, not made defeasible by custom or by the agreement of the parties, reasonable notice must be given on either side of the intention of determining the contract, which notice must expire with the current year of hiring, as in the case of a tenancy from year to year; but the same length of notice is not required in the case of a yearly hiring of a servant as is required in the case of a yearly hiring of land. A quarter's notice, given a quarter of a year before the expiration of the current year of hiring, would in all cases be amply sufficient; and a month's notice is often all that is required by custom and usage to determine the contract and entitle the servant to leave (p). So also an indefinite hiring is determinable by a reasonable notice in the absence of any agreement or custom to the contrary (q).

Dismissal for incompetency or misconduct.—If a labourer, servant, or artisan has been hired as a skilled servant, and is found to be utterly incompetent to do what he has expressly or impliedly undertaken to perform, the employer is not bound to go on employing him to the end of the term, but may at once dismiss him (r).

If a servant wilfully disobeys or habitually neglects the reasonable orders of the master; if he absents himself repeatedly from the service, or refuses to perform his work, or to submit to the domestic regulations of the house, or is guilty of gross moral misconduct, or of fraudulent misrepresentation in the discharge of his duties, to the injury of his employer (s), Explosives Co., 19 Q.B.D. 264; 56 L.J. Q.B. 388. But the bankruptcy of the master has been held not of itself to operate as a dissolution of the contract of service: Thomas v. Williams, 1 Ad. & E. 685; 3 L.J. K.B. 202; see, however, Bankruptcy Act, 1883, 46 & 47 Vict. c. 52, s. 41, as to the effect of bankruptcy on contracts of apprenticeship and articles of clerkship.

(n) Chapman's Case, L.R. 1 Eq. 346; Oriental Bank Corporation, In re, McDowall's Case, 32 Ch.D. 366; 55 L.J. Ch. 620.

(o) O'Neil v. Armstrong, Mitchell & Co., (1895) 2 Q.B. 418; 65 L.J. Q.B. 7.

(p) Williams v. Byrne, 7 Ad. & E. 177; 6 L.J. K.B. 239; Parker v. Ibbetson, 4 C.B. N.S. 346; 27 L.J. C.P. 236; Brown v. Symons, 8 C.B. N.S. 208; 29 L.J. C.P. 251; see ante, p. 918.

(q) Fairman v. Oakford, 5 H. & N. 635; 29 L.J. Ex. 459; Creen v. Wright, 1 C.P.D. 591.

(r) Horton v. McMurtry, 5 H. & N. 667; 29 L.J. Ex. 260.

(s) Harmer v. Cornelius, 5 C.B. N.S 236; 28 L.J. C.P. 85. As to pleading misconduct, see Burgess v. Beaumont, 7 M. & Gr. 962; 14 L.J. C.P. 13; Lush v. Russell, 5 Exch. 203; 19 L.J. Ex. 244.

the contract may be dissolved by the master, and the servant dismissed. There is no fixed rule of law defining the degree of misconduct which will justify such dismissal (t) and dissolution of the contract, but the following degrees of misconduct and disobedience have been held sufficient:—Being frequently absent and often sleeping out without leave (u); pregnancy (x); assaulting a fellow maid-servant with intent to ravish her (y); refusing to work during the customary hours of labour (z); habitually neglecting to perform the duties undertaken (a); refusing to conform to the hour of dinner (b); abusing and insulting the master and disturbing the peace of his family (c); trespassing in game preserves, after having been cautioned and ordered not to enter them (d); enticing away the master's servants (e); becoming the father of a bastard (f); seducing the master's maid-servant; repeatedly coming home intoxicated (g); making fraudulent or grossly inaccurate entries in account-books (h); accepting a secret commission (i); absence from the master's dwelling-house for a night to visit a sick mother against the will of the master, and after leave of absence had been asked for and refused (k); the setting up of a claim inconsistent with the relation of master and servant, such as a claim to be a partner (l); engaging to a large extent in gambling speculations on the Stock Exchange (m); and the assertion of rights and privileges not warranted by the contract or the nature of the service, and injurious to the interests of the master (n). The forgetfulness of a servant in the performance of an important part of his duty need not be habitual in order to amount to negligence justifying his dismissal without notice; a single act of forgetfulness may, under certain circumstances, be sufficient (o). If a justifying cause for the dismissal exists, the master may avail himself of it as a defence to an action, although it may not have formed the ground of dismissal, and although the master may not have known of

(t) Clouston & Co. v. Corry, (1906) A.C. 122; 75 L.J. P.C. 20.

(u) Robinson v. Hindman, 3 Esp. 235.

(x) R. v. Brampton, Cald. 14, 16, 17.

(y) Atkin v. Acton, 4 C. & P. 208.

(z) Lilley v. Elwin, 11 Q.B. 742; 17 L.J. Q.B. 132.

(a) Arding v. Lomax, 24 L.J. Ex. 80; 10 Exch. 734.

(b) Spain v. Arnott, 2 Stark. 256.

(c) Shaw v. Chairitie, 3 C. & K. 25.

(d) Read v. Dunsmore, 9 C. & P. 588.

(e) Lumley v. Gye, 2 E. & B. 216; 22 L.J. Q.B. 463. See Bowen v. Hall, 6 Q.B.D. 333; 50 L.J. Q.B. 305.

(f) R. v. Welford, Cald. 57.

(g) Wise v. Wilson, 1 C. & K. 662; Clouston & Co. v. Corry, (1906) A.C. 122, 129; 75 L.J. P.C. 20.

(h) Baillie v. Kell, 6 Sc. 379; 7 L.J. C.P. 249.

(i) Swale v. Ipswich Tannery, 11 Com.Cas. 88.

(k) Turner v. Mason, 14 M. & W. 112; 14 L.J. Ex. 311.

(l) Amor v. Fearon, 9 Ad. & E. 548; 8 L.J. Q.B. 95.

(m) Pearce v. Foster, 17 Q.B.D. 536; 55 L.J. Q.B. 306.

(n) Lacy v. Osbaldiston, 8 C. & P. 80.

(o) Baster v. London & County Printing Works, (1899) 1 Q.B. 901; 68 L.J. Q.B. 622.

its existence at the time he discharged the servant (p). Whether the requisite degree of misconduct was present is a question for the jury, but the judge may say that there was no evidence to support the allegation of justifiable dismissal, in which case he need not submit any issue (q).

The following instances of misconduct and disobedience of orders have been held not to constitute a sufficient ground of dismissal and dissolution of the contract of hiring and service without notice:—Temporary absence without leave, producing no serious inconvenience to the employer (r); occasional insolence of manners and sulkiness; occasional disobedience in matters of trifling moment, such as neglecting to come on one or two occasions when the bell rang; stopping at one hotel when ordered to stop at another (s); temporary absence on customary holidays (t), or for the purpose of having a severe hurt attended to (u), or for the purpose of procuring another situation, such absence being warranted by custom (x).

In the absence of misconduct on the part of a servant, employers cannot dismiss him except by giving reasonable notice, unless in the agreement of service there are words enabling them to dismiss him summarily (y).

Disability from sickness.—If a household servant, hired for a year or any aliquot portion of a year, has been struck down with disease and permanently disabled, so that he can never be expected to return to his work, the contract of hiring is dissolved, and the master may dismiss him (z); but, in case of temporary disablement or sickness, the master is not entitled to make any deduction from the agreed wages for the time that the servant was incapacitated for the performance of his work (a).

Wrongful dismissal.—If the master improperly dismisses his servant, or prevents him by a continued system of persecution from continuing in the service, he is bound to make compensation to the servant for all the damages sustained by the latter; for the law implies, on the part of a person who contracts to pay a salary for services for a certain term, an obligation to permit

(p) Spotswood v. Barrow, 5 Exch. 110; 19 L.J. Ex. 226.

(q) Clouston & Co. v. Corry, (1906) A.C. 122, 129; 75 L.J. P.C. 20.

(r) Fillieul v. Armstrong, 7 Ad. & E. 557; 7 L.J. Q.B. 7.

(s) Callo v. Brouncker, 4 C. & P. 518; Cussons v. Skinner, 11 M. & W. 161; 12 L.J. Ex. 347.

(t) Reg. v. Stoke-on-Trent, 5 Q.B. 303; 13 L.J. M.C. 41.

(u) Chandler v. Grieves, 2 H.Bl. 606, n.

(x) R. v. Islip, 1 Str. 422; R. v. Polesworth, 2 B. & Ald. 483.

(y) African Association, Ltd. & Allen, In re, (1910) 1 K.B. 396; 79 L.J. K.B. 259.

(z) Cuckson v. Stones, 1 E. & E. 248; 28 L.J. Q.B. 25. See, as to effect of Workmen's Compensation Act, Elliott v. Liggins, (1902) 2 K.B. 84; 71 L.J. K.B. 483.

(a) R. v. Sudbrooke, 1 Smith, 59; Chandler v. Grieves, 2 H.Bl. 606, n.

those services to be performed (b). If the servant is improperly dismissed, he ought not to keep himself in a state of readiness to serve during the residue of the term of hiring, but should endeavour to find another situation, and should sue on the special contract for the damage he has sustained by reason of the wrongful dismissal (c). Where a traveller hired a courier to travel with him, and renounced the contract before the time fixed for the commencement of the service arrived, it was held that the courier was not bound to wait for the arrival of such time and then tender his services, but that he might at once sue for the breach of contract (d). The Crown, in the absence of statutory provision to the contrary, may dismiss at pleasure a person employed in the civil service of the Crown (e).

Damages for wrongful dissolution of contract—Wages pro ratâ.—Whenever one party has absolutely refused to perform his part of the contract, it is in the power of the other party either to sue for a breach of it, or to treat the contract as rescinded or abandoned, and sue on a quantum meruit for the work actually done (f). If the party elects to treat the contract as subsisting, and to sue for a breach of it, he cannot afterwards go on a quantum meruit as for an abandoned contract. If, for example, a servant hired by the year at yearly wages, payable quarterly, brings an action upon the contract, and recovers damages for a wrongful dismissal, he cannot afterwards maintain an action for wages pro ratâ up to the time of his dismissal. The damages, therefore, in the action on the special contract should be assessed so as to include the wages up to the time of the dismissal (g). When the contract is for a year's service, at wages payable yearly, the contract is entire and indivisible, and the servant or workman cannot recover from the employer wages pro ratâ, unless the contract has been rescinded or abandoned, or has been put an end to by the exercise of a power of defeasance vested in the parties; so that, if the servant dies in the middle of the year, his personal representatives will

(b) Emmens v. Elderton, 4 H.L. Cas. 624; 13 C.B. 495, ante, p. 916.

(c) Parke, B., Emmens v. Elderton, supra; Fewings v. Tisdal, 1 Exch. 295; 17 L.J. Ex. 18; Erle, J., Goodman v. Pocock, 15 Q.B. 583; 19 L.J. Q.B. 410; Yelland, Ex parte, L.R. 4 Eq. 350; Clarke, Ex parte, L.R. 7 Eq. 550; 38 L.J. Ch. 562; Logan, Ex parte, 9 Eq. 149.

(d) Hochster v. De La Tour, 2 E. & B. 678; 22 L.J. Q.B. 455; and see Frost v. Knight, L.R. 7 Ex. 111; 41 L.J. Ex. 78, ante, p. 142.

(e) Dunn v. Reg., (1896) 1 Q.B. 116; 65 L.J. Q.B. 279; see Gould v. Stuart, (1896) A.C. 575; 65 L.J. P.C. 82; Young v. Waller, (1898) A.C. 661; 67 L.J. P.C. 80.

(f) De Bernardy v. Harding, 8 Exch. 822; 22 L.J. Ex. 340; Prickett v. Badger, 1 C.B. N.S. 296; 26 L.J. C.P. 33. As to when the remedy by injunction lies against a breach of the contract of service, see Kirchner v. Gruban, (1909) 1 Ch. 413; 78 L.J. Ch. 117.

(g) Goodman v. Pocock, 15 Q.B 576; 19 L.J. Q.B. 410.

not be entitled to recover a proportionate part of the salary, in respect of the time he actually served (h); and, if he is himself guilty of such misconduct as entitles the master to dissolve the contract and dismiss him from his service, he will lose all right to wages in respect of the portion of the year he has actually served (i). But, if the contract is put an end to by virtue of a power of defeasance vested in either of the parties by custom or by agreement, the wages are apportionable, and the servant must be paid pro ratâ up to the time of his departure. If, however, the contract is dissolved by mutual consent, and nothing is said of bygone services or wages not due at the time of the dissolution of the contract, no new contract arises by implication of law to pay wages pro ratâ (k). Where there is a repudiation of the whole contract, stipulations in it that the servant is not to commence or be employed in a similar business within a specified time or area cannot be enforced by the repudiating party (l).

Amount of wages recoverable—Deductions.—If the amount of salary or wages to be paid is left by the contract of hiring and service to be fixed by a third party, the clerk or servant must apply to such third party to fix the salary or wages as a condition precedent to the employer's liability (m). If the amount to be paid has not been settled by the terms of the contract, there is an implied promise on the part of the employer to pay wages according to the customary and reasonable rate of remuneration. When a defeasible yearly hiring has been dissolved by the dismissal of the servant without notice, the month's wages payable by custom (ante, p. 919) are not, in contemplation of law, wages for services, but compensation for the dismissal without notice (n). The master cannot deduct from wages money paid by him to effect the servant's cure from a dangerous illness (o). The wages in certain trades, moreover, cannot in general be lawfully paid otherwise than in the current coin of the realm (ante, p. 117).

(h) Plymouth (Countess) v. Throgmorton, Salk. 65; 3 Mod. 153; Cutter v. Powell, 6 T.R. 326.

(i) Bro.Abr. fol. 57 (Laborer), pl. 58; ib. fol. 170, pl. 31; Apportionment, 26, pl. 13; Vin. Abr. (Apportionment), 8 and 9; Spain v. Arnott, 2 Stark. N.P. 256; Huttman v. Boulnois, 2 C. & P. 512; Turner v. Robinson, 5 B. & Ad. 789; Ridgway v. Hungerford M. Co., 3 Ad. & E. 171; 4 L.J. K.B. 157; Lilley v. Elwin, 11 Q.B. 742; 17 L.J. Q.B. 132.

(k) Lamburn v. Cruden, 2 Sc. N.R. 534; 10 L.J. C.P. 121. Aliter, if there was no hiring for a year, or the master sends the servant away: Bayley v. Rimmell, 1 M. & W. 506; 5 L.J. Ex. 192; Phillips v. Jones, 1 Ad. & E. 333. See Maw v. Jones, 25 Q.B.D. 107; 59 L.J. Q.B. 542.

(l) General Bill Posting Co. v. Atkinson, (1909) A.C. 118; 78 L.J. Ch. 77; Measures Brothers v. Measures, (1910) 2 Ch. 218; 79 L.J. Ch. 707.

(m) Owen v. Bowen, 4 C. & P. 93.

(n) Fewings v. Tisdal, 1 Exch. 295; 17 L.J. Ex. 18.

(o) Sellen v. Norman, 4 C. & P. 80.

If a servant has left a considerable time without claiming wages, the presumption is that all wages have been paid (p). And, if it is usual, in the case of particular classes of servants and workmen, to pay the wages weekly or monthly, and many weeks or months have elapsed without any claim or demand on the part of the servant, there is a primâ facie presumption of payment (q).

Jurisdiction of the County Court and of justices.—The Acts empowering justices to deal with disputes between various sorts of servants and their masters having been repealed by the Conspiracy and Protection of Property Act, 1875 (r), an Act was passed in the same session (s), giving power to county courts and justices to deal with them (t).

Breach of contract involving injury to others.—A wilful breach of contract by persons employed in the supply of gas or water is subject to a penalty, and so is a wilful breach of any contract of service the probable consequence of which will be to do injury to others or their property (u).

Seamen's wages.—By the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894 (x), a summary remedy is provided for the recovery of seamen's wages, which are not to be dependent on the ship's earning freight (y), and, in case of the death of the seaman, are to be apportioned and paid in manner therein provided (z). Where a seaman's service terminates by wreck or illness before the date contemplated in the agreement, he is entitled to wages up to the time of such termination, but not for any longer period (a), unless such termination is brought about by the wilful act of the captain and owners (b). The master is liable, the ship is liable, and the owner is liable for the mariner's wages (c). When seamen enter into articles to serve for a voyage or for a certain term, a contract by the master to pay increased wages for the services they are by the articles bound to render, is nugatory and void (d). A seaman's contract of service may be

(p) Sellen v. Norman, 4 C. & P. 81; Evans v. Birch, 3 Campb. 10; Parke, B., Gough v. Findon, 7 Exch. 50; 21 L.J. Ex. 58.

(q) Abbott, C.J., Sellen v. Norman, 4 C. & P. 81, n.

(r) 38 & 39 Vict. c. 86, s. 17.

(s) The Employers and Workmen Act, 1875, 38 & 39 Vict. c. 90. On the interpretation of the statute, see Warburton v. Heyworth, 6 Q.B.D. 1; 50 L.J. Q.B. 137; Grainger v. Aynsley, 6 Q.B.D. 182; 50 L.J. M.C. 48; Jackson v. Hill, 13 Q.B.D. 618; Great Northern Fishing Co. v. Edgehill, 11 Q.B.D. 225.

(t) See also ante, pp. 927, 928.

(u) 38 & 39 Vict. c. 86, ss. 4, 5.

(x) 57 & 58 Vict. c. 60, s. 164.

(y) Sect. 157.

(z) Sects. 169—181.

(a) Sect. 158. As to the meaning of the word "loss" in the section, see Sivewright v. Allen, (1906) 2 K.B. 81; 75 L.J. K.B. 476.

(b) Austin Friars S.S. Co. v. Strack, (1905) 2 K.B. 315; 74 L.J. K.B. 683.

(c) The Stephen Wright, 12 Jur. 732.

(d) Ante, p. 4; Harris v. Carter, 23 L.J. Q.B. 295; 3 E. & B. 559.

terminated (e) either by final abandonment of the ship, or by discharge given by the master (f). Where seamen engaged on an ordinary commercial voyage were ordered to proceed to a belligerent port during a war, with a cargo which included contraband of war, refused to do so and were imprisoned, it was held that they were entitled to their wages under their contract of service (g). In every contract of service between the owner of a ship and the master or any seaman, and in every instrument of apprenticeship, there is to be implied an obligation on the owner and master, that the owner, master, and agents, and every agent, shall use all reasonable means to insure the seaworthiness of the ship (h).

Contracts of apprenticeship.—When the employer exercises some trade, and it is made a term of the contract that he shall teach as well as employ and remunerate the servant for some specific period in return for the service rendered, the contract amounts to an apprenticeship. Every such contract must be stamped accordingly (i). If there is an engagement on the part of the servant to serve and to learn, but no express or implied engagement on the part of the employer to teach, so that no action can be maintained upon the contract against the latter for neglecting to teach, the contract is a contract of hiring and service only, and not a contract of apprenticeship (k). But it is not necessary that the words "apprentice" and "to learn" and "to teach" should be used by the parties in their contract; for, wherever it appears to have been the intention of the parties that the one was to teach and the other to learn, the contract will be one of apprenticeship (l). As the contract is always made to last for more than one year, it must be authenticated by writing, signed by the party to be charged therewith (ante, p. 34. By 5 Eliz. c. 4, s. 25 (repealed), the binding of an apprentice for the purpose of exercising trades was required to be made by indenture; but now, by 54 Geo. 3, c. 96, s. 2, it is enacted that it shall be lawful for any person to take or retain or (e) As to when a voyage may terminate, see The Scarsdale, (1906) P. 103; 75 L.J. P. 31; Haylett v. Thompson, (1911) 1 K.B. 311; 80 L.J. K.B. 267.

(f) The Warrior, 1 Lush. 476.

(g) Palace Shipping Co. v. Caine, (1907) A.C. 386; 76 L.J. K.B. 1079.

(h) 57 & 58 Vict. c. 60, s. 458. See Thompson v. Farrer, 9 Q.B.D. 372; 51 L.J. Q.B. 534; Hedley v. Pinkney & Sons' S.S. Co., (1894) A.C. 222; 63 L.J. Q.B. 419.

(i) R. v. Nether Knutsford, 1 B. & Ad. 726; and see Stamp Act, 1891, 54 & 55 Vict. c. 39, s. 25; special provision is made for articles of clerkship to a solicitor; and instruments of apprenticeship of pauper children, and, in Ireland, where the premium or consideration does not exceed £10, are exempted from stamp duty. In other cases, the stamp duty is 2*s.* 6*d.* As to apprentices to the sea service, see Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, 57 & 58 Vict. c. 60, s. 108.

(k) R. v. Shinfield, 14 East, 541; R. v. Burbach, 1 M. & S. 370.

(l) R. v. Wishford, 5 N. & M. 540.

become an apprentice, though not according to sects. 25, 30, and 41 of the statute of Elizabeth, and that indentures, deeds, and agreements in writing entered into for that purpose, which would be otherwise invalid and ineffectual, shall be valid and effectual; but it is provided that the enactment shall not affect the immemorial customs of towns or bye-laws of corporations. An indenture of apprenticeship is sufficiently executed by the apprentice desiring a bystander to write his name for him opposite the seal, and by his then taking the deed and delivering it to his master (m). A contract of apprenticeship may be entered into with a corporation as master (n).

Rights and liabilities of parties to indentures of apprenticeship.—An infant above the age of fourteen, and unmarried, is by the custom of London responsible upon covenants contained in indentures of apprenticeship executed by him just the same as if he were of full age (o); but he is by the common law, where the apprenticeship is not within the city of London, exempt from all liability ex contractu, by reason of his minority (ante, p. 405) (p). Therefore it is that his friends ordinarily become bound for his faithful service and good conduct. The parties who so covenant for an infant apprentice are not responsible for trifling instances of misconduct, such as staying out on Sunday evenings half-an-hour beyond the time allowed (q), or for temporary absence and disobedience of orders, unattended by substantial injury to the master. But for all gross misconduct, and repeated or lengthened absence producing substantial injury to the master, they will be held responsible; and, if an infant apprentice avoids the contract on his coming of age, and refuses to continue in the service of his master, they are bound to make good whatever damage is sustained by the latter by reason of such repudiation of the contract (r). Incapacity of the apprentice to serve and to learn by reason of ill-health or an accident does not discharge the master from his covenant to provide for and to maintain him (s). Provisions which are unreasonable and not for the benefit of an infant apprentice cannot be enforced (t); but payment of wages may be agreed

(m) R. v. Longnor, 4 B. & Ad. 649; 2 L.J. M.C. 62.

(n) Burnley Equitable Society v Casson, (1891) 1 Q.B. 75; 60 L.J. M.C. 59.

(o) Burton v. Palmer, 2 Bulstr. 192.

(p) As to his liability on a covenant by him in the indenture to pay the premium, see Co. Litt. 172, A.; Walter v. Everard, (1891) 2 Q.B. 369; 60 L.J. Q.B. 738.

(q) Wright v. Gilson, 3 C. & P. 583.

(r) Cuming v. Hill, 3 B. & Ald. 59.

(s) R. v. Hales Owen, 1 Str. 99; Reg. v. Smith, 8 C. & P. 153; Patten v. Wood, 51 J.P. 549.

(t) See Meakin v. Morris, 12 Q.B.D. 352; 53 L.J. M.C. 72; Francesco v. Barnum, 60 L.J. Ch. 63; Corn v. Mathews, (1893) 1 Q.B. 310; 62 L.J. M.C. 61.

to be suspended during such time as the works are stopped through accident beyond the control of the master (u). If the master has covenanted to teach three trades, and ceases to carry on one of them, he is guilty of a breach of contract, and the apprentice may, if he pleases, refuse to continue to serve (x). Where the contract is silent as to the place where the trade is to be carried on, there is an implied stipulation that the contract is to be performed at the place where the business was carried on at the date of the indenture (y).

Profits acquired by a servant or apprentice in the course of or in connection with his service belong to the master (z).

Dissolution of the contract of apprenticeship.—The same amount of misconduct which, in the case of a contract of hiring and service, would authorise the master to dissolve the contract and discharge the servant, will not release him from liability upon his covenant in an indenture of apprenticeship (a), unless the contract in express terms gives the master power to dismiss the apprentice (b). But, if the apprentice is guilty of such an amount of misconduct as renders it impracticable for the master to maintain, employ, and teach him, according to the terms of the indenture, the master cannot be sued for neglecting to perform his covenants in that behalf (c). "By the custom of London it is a sufficient cause for a master to turn away his apprentice if he frequents gaming houses," although gaming may not be expressly prohibited by the indenture (d). If the apprentice deserts the master's service and enlists in the army or contracts another relation which disables him from lawfully returning to his master, the latter is not bound to receive him back (e). If the fulfilment of the contract has not been prevented by the wrongful act of the master, the latter is not bound to refund any portion of the premium received (f). The indenture of apprenticeship of an infant may be avoided by him, so far as regards his own personal liability on the contract, on his coming of age; and the master must trust for the continuance of the service thereunder to the covenants of those who

(u) Green v. Thompson, (1899) 2 Q.B. 1; 68 L.J. Q.B. 719.

(x) Ellen v. Topp, 6 Exch. 424; 20 L.J. Ex. 241.

(y) Eaton v. Western, 9 Q.B.D. 636; 52 L.J. Q.B. 41.

(z) Barber v. Dennis, 6 Mod. 69; Anon., 12 Mod. 415.

(a) Winstone v. Lynn, 1 B. & C. 460; 1 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 126; Wise v. Wilson, 1 C. & K. 669; Phillips v. Clift, 4 H. & N. 168; 28 L.J. Ex. 153.

(b) Westwick v. Theodor, L.R. 10 Q.B. 224; 44 L.J. Q.B. 110.

(c) Mercer v. Whall, 5 Q.B. 447; 14 L.J. Q.B. 267; Rayment or Raymond v. Minton, L.R. 1 Ex. 244; 35 L.J. Ex. 153; Brown v. Banks, 3 Giff. 190; Learoyd v. Brook, (1891) 1 Q.B. 431; 60 L.J. Q.B. 373; where the apprentice was an habitual thief.

(d) Woodroffe v. Farnham, 2 Vern. 290.

(e) Hughes v. Humphreys, 6 B. & C. 680; 5 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 270.

(f) Cuff v. Brown, 5 Pr. 297.

engage for the infant, unless the binding is under the authority of an Act of Parliament (g). The contract may also be dissolved by cancelling the indenture, or by giving it up with the consent of all parties animo cancellandi; likewise by the death of the master or of the apprentice (h), or by the bankruptcy of the master (i), or by the dissolution of the master's firm (k). If the master dies during the term, his representatives are not bound to return any part of the premium, as there is only a partial failure of consideration (l); and, if the apprentice becomes permanently ill, the covenant that he shall serve during the term is discharged (m). As to the effect of the master's bankruptcy, see Bankruptcy Act, 1883, 46 & 47 Vict. c. 52, s. 41.

Discharge by Court of Summary Jurisdiction.—The court has the same powers in case of a dispute between a master and apprentice as in case of a dispute between an employer and workman, and as if the contract were between an employer and workman, and may make an order directing the apprentice to perform his duties, and, if he neglects, imprison him or rescind the instrument of apprenticeship, and order the whole or part of any premium to be repaid (n).

Damages for refusing to employ, and for wrongful dismissal.—If a master renounces the contract he has made with a servant, and deprives the latter of the means of earning the stipulated remuneration, or refuses to take him into his employ, the jury, in assessing the damages, are justified in looking to all that has happened, or is likely to happen, to increase or mitigate the loss of the plaintiff down to the time of trial (o). The damages for a wrongful dismissal cannot, however, include compensation for the manner of the dismissal, for injured feelings, or for the loss sustained through greater difficulty of obtaining fresh employment (p). If an action is brought by a domestic servant for a dismissal without the customary month's notice, a month's wages are recoverable as the agreed damages (ante, pp. 918—921, 934). If the contract is not defeasible by giving a (g) Davis, Ex parte, 5 T.R. 715; Gill, Ex parte, 7 East, 376.

(h) Baxter v. Burfield, 2 Str. 1266; 32 Geo. 3, c. 57.

(i) Bankruptcy Act, 1883, 46 & 47 Vict. c. 52, s. 41 (1).

(k) Eaton v. Western, ante, p. 939.

(l) Whincup v. Hughes, L.R. 6 C.P. 78; 40 L.J. C.P. 104; Ferns v. Carr, 28 Ch.D. 409; 54 L.J. Ch. 478 (clerk articled to solicitor).

(m) Boast v. Firth, L.R. 4 C.P. 1; 38 L.J. C.P. 1.

(n) Employers and Workmen Act, 1875, 38 & 39 Vict. c. 90, s. 6, which statute, however, only applies to apprentices under the Poor Relief Acts or to the business of a workman; cp. Finley v. Jowle, 12 East, 248; Gray, In re, 2 D. & L. 539; 14 L.J. M.C. 26.

(o) Hochster v. De La Tour, 2 E. & B. 678; 22 L.J. Q.B. 455; Lake v. Campbell, L.T. 582.

(p) Addis v. Gramophone Co., (1909) A.C. 488; 78 L.J. K.B. 1122.

month's notice, but is for a year's service, and the defendant is improperly discharged before the end of the year, he may recover for the work actually done by him up to the time of his dismissal, and for the damage he has sustained by being prevented from continuing his services and earning the stipulated hire (q). The action may be brought as soon as the dismissal takes place; and the measure of damages is an indemnity to the plaintiff for the loss he sustains by the breach. If he has found other equally eligible employment, the damages will be small; but, if not, they may far exceed the salary agreed to be paid (r); and it is his duty to use diligence to find such employment (s). Where the plaintiff's service was terminated by the dissolution of partnership of his employers, but the remaining partners offered him employment on similar terms, which he refused, he was held entitled to recover nominal damages only (t). In an action upon a covenant in an apprenticeship deed to recover damages for the loss of the services of the apprentice, it was held that damages were recoverable only up to the time of action brought, as the contract continued in force, and the apprentice might still be compelled to serve (u).

Servant's character.—In the absence of agreement to the contrary effect, there is apparently no legal obligation on the master to give the servant a character; but by some old statutes, regulations were established respecting the characters of labourers (x).

Title to clothes by hiring and service.—Where the plaintiff had been hired as a servant by the defendant, at thirty guineas a year and a suit of clothes, and had, on entering the service, been provided with the clothes, it was held that they did not become his property, and that he could not sue his master for detaining them until he had served a year (y).

(q) Ante, p. 934; Cutter v. Powell, 2 Smith's L.C. 1 (ed. 11).

(r) Emmens v. Elderton, 4 H.L. Cas. 645; 13 C.B. 495.

(s) Beckham v. Drake, 2 H.L. Cas. 606; Emmens v. Elderton, supra.

(t) Brace v. Calder, (1895) 2 Q.B. 253; 64 L.J. Q.B. 582.

(u) Lewis v. Peachey, 1 H. & C. 518; 31 L.J. Ex. 496.

(x) Per Ld. Kenyon, C.J., in Carroll v. Bird, 3 Esp. 201; Handley v. Moffatt, Ir.R. 7 C.L. 104; 21 W.R. 231; Pullman v. Hill, (1891) 1 Q.B. 524, 528; 60 L.J. Q.B. 299. As to the offence of giving a false character, see the Servants' Characters Act, 1792, 32 Geo. 3, c. 56; and Rex v. Costello, (1910) 1 K.B. 28; 79 L.J. K.B. 90.

(y) Crocker v. Molyneux, 3 C. & P. 470.

SECTION III.

PRINCIPAL AND AGENT.

Agencies and commissions.—Whenever one man undertakes the management of the business of another without hire or reward, and enters upon his task, the contract between the parties is, as we have before seen, a contract of mandate, or a gratuitous commission (ante, p. 860). When the person employed is to be paid for his services, the contract is a contract for the letting and hiring of work and labour, care and attention, and belongs to the class locatio operis faciendi (ante, p. 864). If the services of the party are hired for a term, the contract is a contract of hiring and service (ante, p. 915). In either case the party employing is the principal, and the person employed the agent. If a commission-agent is engaged to sell goods for the principal, he paying him a certain sum per quarter, it does not necessarily follow that there is a contract of hiring and service between the parties (z).

In all cases where a person is either actually or constructively an agent for other persons, all profits and advantages made by him in the business, beyond his ordinary compensation, are to be for the benefit of his employer (a). Thus, interest made by an agent, by the use of his principal's money, belongs to the principal (b); and not only interest, but every other sort of profit or advantage, clandestinely derived by an agent from dealing or speculating with his principal's effects, is the property of the latter, and must be accounted for. So that, if an agent who has purchased goods according to order, sells them again to advantage with the view of appropriating the gain to himself, although he should have answered the loss, if any; yet his employer is entitled to the profits (c). Thus, where the captain of a ship, in letting it to Government for six months, had stipulated with the Government officer by whom the ship was taken up, that a sum of money should be paid to him for his own benefit, in addition to the freight, it was held that the money belonged to the shipowner (d). Where an army agent and contractor, who had been employed by the plaintiff to provide a reasonable outfit for her son, debited the plaintiff with the full amount of the invoice prices charged by the tradesman supply-

(z) Butterfield v. Marler, 3 C. & K. 163.

(a) Story on Agency, s. 211.

(b) Rogers v. Boehm, 2 Esp. 702.

(c) Paley on Principal and Agent, p. 51.

(d) Thompson v. Havelock, 1 Campb. 527; and see Diplock v. Blackburn, 3 Campb. 43.

ing the outfit, though discount had been allowed him in each instance, it was held that the plaintiff was entitled to the discount (e). Where the defendant represented to the plaintiff that he could procure him some shares in a company at 3*l*. a share, and transferred certain shares to the plaintiff, and was paid 3*l*. a share, and the plaintiff subsequently discovered that the defendant was himself the owner of the shares, and had lately purchased them for 2*l*. a share, the defendant was ordered to pay back the difference in the price (f). But where a shipowner employed merchants to insure for him, and they charged him full premiums, but were allowed discount by the underwriters beyond brokerage, it was held that, as the allowance was usual, and the shipowner appeared to have accepted the terms, he could not afterwards recover the discount (g).

Where an agent, effecting a sale for his principal, himself becomes the purchaser, he is not entitled to any commission (h); and where he has taken a secret commission from the purchaser, the principal, notwithstanding that he has recovered from the agent the amount of the secret commission, is further entitled to recover back the commission which he himself has paid to the agent (i). But where an agent in effecting a sale for his principal has, without fraud, received a secret commission or discount in an incidental matter not connected with his duty to sell, the agent, though liable to make good to the principal such secret commission or discount, is entitled to retain commission paid to him as remuneration for his services in effecting the sale (k); and where the various transactions of an agency are severable, the agent, though not entitled to his commission in cases in which he has acted dishonestly, is entitled to it in cases in which he has acted honestly (l). Where agents appointed to negotiate a debenture issue for a percentage on the amount subscribed as commission employed a sub-agent at a proportion of that commission, and the sub-agent through a guarantee society negotiated the issue, and was adopted by the principals as their agent, and then without the knowledge of the principals or the agents received a commission from the guarantee society, it was held that the fact that the sub-agent had received the secret profit did not prevent the agents from

(e) Turnbull v. Garden, 38 L.J. Ch. 331.

(f) Kimber v. Barber, L.R. 8 Ch. 56; and see Morison v. Thompson, L.R. 9 Q.B. 480; 43 L.J. Q.B. 215.

(g) Baring v. Stanton, 3 Ch.D. 502; G. W. Ins. Co. v. Cunliffe, L.R. 9 Ch. 525; 43 L.J. Ch. 741.

(h) Salomons v. Pender, 3 H. & C. 639; 34 L.J. Ex. 95.

(i) Andrew v. Ramsay, (1903) 2 K.B. 635; 72 L.J. K.B. 865.

(k) Hippesley v. Knee Brothers, (1905) 1 K.B. 1; 74 L.J. K.B. 68.

(l) Niteduls Tændstikfabrik v. Bruster, (1906) 2 Ch. 671; 75 L.J. Ch. 798.

recovering the agreed commission from the principals (m). A solicitor acting for both parties on the sale of a patent who receives commission with the full knowledge of the purchaser is not bound to account for it to the latter (n).

Punishment of corrupt transactions with agents.—By the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1906 (nn), sect. 1, "(1) If any agent corruptly accepts or obtains, or agrees to accept or attempts to obtain, from any person, for himself or for any other person, any gift or consideration as an inducement or reward for doing or forbearing to do . . . any act in relation to his principal's affairs or business, or for showing or forbearing to show favour or disfavour to any person in relation to his principal's affairs or business; or if any person corruptly gives or agrees to give or offers any gift or consideration to any agent as an inducement or reward for doing or forbearing to do, . . . any act in relation to his principal's affairs or business, or for showing or forbearing to show favour or disfavour to any person in relation to his principal's affairs or business; or if any person knowingly gives to any agent, or if any agent knowingly uses with intent to deceive his principal, any receipt, account, or other document in respect of which the principal is interested, and which contains any statement which is false or erroneous or defective in any material particular, and which to his knowledge is intended to mislead the principal; he shall be guilty of a misdemeanour, and shall be liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for a term not exceeding two years, or to a fine not exceeding five hundred pounds, or to both such imprisonment and such fine, or on summary conviction to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for a term not exceeding four months, or to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds, or to both such imprisonment and such fine.

"(2) For the purposes of this Act the expression 'consideration' includes valuable consideration of any kind; the expression 'agent' includes any person employed by or acting for another; and the expression 'principal' includes an employer.

"(3) A person serving under the Crown or under any corporation or any municipal, borough, county, or district council, or any board of guardians, is an agent within the meaning of this Act."

By sect. 2, "(1) A prosecution for an offence under this Act

(m) Powell v. Jones, (1905) 1 K.B. 11; 74 L.J. K.B. 115. (1902) 1 Ch. 765; 71 L.J. Ch. 374.

(n) Haslam and Hier Evans, In re,

(nn) 6 Edw. 7, c. 34.

shall not be instituted without the consent, in England, of the Attorney-General or Solicitor-General, and in Ireland of the Attorney-General or Solicitor-General for Ireland. . . . (3) Every information for any offence under this Act shall be upon oath. . . . (5) A court of quarter sessions shall not have jurisdiction to inquire of, hear, and determine prosecutions on indictments for offences under this Act. (6) Any person aggrieved by a summary conviction under this Act may appeal to a court of quarter sessions."

Revocation of authority.—If no term of service has been expressly or impliedly agreed upon, the employer may at any time dispense with the future services of the agent, and revoke the authority delegated to him, so far as it relates to things to be done and remaining unexecuted. If a party is engaged as a "permanent attorney," the word "permanent" does not confer any durable or special appointment as attorney, and the principal is not precluded from withdrawing the retainer; but if he is retained at a yearly salary, he is, in general, entitled to damages, if he is dismissed before the end of the year (o). Things actually done by the agent in the execution of his commission will, of course, be binding upon the principal; but the agent cannot, after his authority has been countermanded, enter, as between himself and the principal, into any fresh transaction. If the principal furnishes his agent with a sum of money, to be expended in the purchase of property, the principal may at any time, before the purchase is made and the money expended, revoke the authority, and require the money to be repaid to him (p). If goods are intrusted to a commission agent for sale, the principal may, at any time before a sale has been made, require the goods to be returned to him (q); and the agent has no right to sell contrary to the express directions or instructions of his employer, for the purpose of repaying himself his advances (r). But the right to stop money intrusted to an agent to be paid to a third party, or to stop a sale, or revoke the orders or authority given, is always subject to this limitation, that the agent is merely an agent, and is not himself interested in, or responsible for, the payment of the money according to the directions he received when it was placed in his hands (s), and has not done anything to render himself personally liable to the (o) Emmens v. Elderton, 13 C.B. 495; 4 H.L.Cas. 624.

(p) Fletcher v. Marshall, 15 M. & W. 755, 763.

(q) Raleigh v. Atkinson, 6 M. & W. 670; 9 L.J. Ex. 206.

(r) Smart v. Sandars, 3 C.B. 380; 16 L.J. C.P. 39; S.C. 5 C.B. 895; 17 L.J. C.P. 258; Chinnock v. Sainsbury, 30 L.J. Ch. 409.

(s) Yates v. Hoppe, 9 C.B. 541; 19 L.J. C.P. 180.

third party in consequence of the orders of the principal (t). But mere advances made by a factor do not give him any rights in derogation of the right of the principal to give directions as to the time and manner of sale, unless such rights are conferred upon the factor by some express agreement, or by a known usage of trade (u). If an agent agrees to act for a firm in partnership for a term of years, the contract is dissolved by the death of one of the partners during the term (x).

When agent's authority is irrevocable.—An authority coupled with an interest cannot be revoked, inasmuch as "where an agreement is entered into for sufficient consideration, and either forms part of a security, or is given for the purpose of securing some benefit to the donee of the authority, such authority is irrevocable" (y). If a principal employs an agent to do something which by law involves the agent in a legal liability, the principal cannot draw back and leave the agent to bear the liability at his own expense, and even though the contract cannot be enforced at law, yet if, as a matter of business, the agent would be liable to lose character or customers, or to suffer serious pecuniary inconvenience if he did not carry out the contract into which he has entered on behalf of his principal, the latter will be taken to have impliedly contracted to indemnify him from the consequences which would ensue in the ordinary course of business from the step which he has taken (z). Where a debtor handed to his creditor a power of attorney authorising him to sell certain lands of the debtor, and pay the debt out of the proceeds of the sale, it was held that this power of attorney could not be revoked (a). But where the owners of an estate appointed an agent by power of attorney to possess and manage the estate, and the agent gave a personal guarantee to a mortgagee of the estate to pay the mortgage debt, it was held that the power was revocable as it merely appointed the agent manager at a salary and contained no reference to and was not intended to be dependent upon his guarantee (b).

Accounts.—It is the duty of an agent to keep regular accounts and vouchers (c); and, if he refuses to account, after demand

(t) M'Ewen v. Woods, 11 Q.B. 13; 17 L.J. Q.B. 207.

(u) De Comas v. Prost, 2 Moo. P.C. N.S. 158.

(x) Tasker v. Shepherd, 6 H. & N. 575; 30 L.J. Ex. 207. See 53 & 54 Vict. c. 39, s. 33.

(y) Per Ld. Atkinson in Frith v. Frith, 75 L.J. P.C. 50; (1906) A.C. 254; Story on Agency, s. 476.

(z) Seymour v. Bridge, 14 Q.B.D. 460; 54 L.J. Q.B. 347.

(a) Gaussen v. Morton, 10 B. & C. 731; 8 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 313; Clerk v. Laurie, 2 H. & N. 200; 26 L.J. Ex. 317.

(b) (1906) A.C. 254; 75 L.J. P.C. 50.

(c) Romilly, M.R., Stainton v. Carron Co., 24 Beav. 353; 27 L.J. Ch. 89.

is made, he will be responsible in damages (d). If goods have been intrusted to an agent to sell, and he renders no account of them, it will be presumed primâ facie that they have been sold, and the money received (e). An agent is bound to produce to his principal the accounts kept for him, and if the principal is abroad, the agent must produce them to any properly appointed agent of the principal, but the principal cannot insist on their production to an improper person (f). If an agent mixes up his principal's property with his own, he must show clearly what part of the property belongs to him; and, if he fails in doing so, it will be treated as the property of the principal (g). An agent who stands in a fiduciary relation to his principal cannot set up the Statute of Limitation in bar of a suit for an account by his principal (h).

Liabilities of brokers, factors, and commission agents to their principals.—All persons are brokers who contrive, make, and conclude bargains and contracts between merchants and tradesmen, for which they have a "fee or reward" (i). Every broker and commission agent who is employed to make purchases, or to sell on behalf of his principal, impliedly promises to execute the commission intrusted to him in a careful manner, and to obey the directions he receives. If he is ordered to purchase an article of first-rate quality, and he buys an inferior commodity, he is guilty of a breach of contract, and is responsible to the principal in damages (k). He is bound to exercise his discretion to the best advantage for the benefit of his principal, to render just accounts, and to keep the property of his principal unmixed with his own property, or the property of other parties (l). He has, in general, an implied authority to sell at such time and for such prices as he may think best for his employer; he may sell on credit, if it is customary so to do, or if he acts under a del credere commission; and he must account for the produce of all sales effected by him when called upon so to do (m). He cannot himself become the purchaser of the property intrusted to him to sell, unless he deals for it with the principal,

(d) Topham v. Braddick, 1 Taunt. 575.

(e) Hunter v. Welsh, 1 Stark. 224.

(f) Dadswell v. Jacobs, 34 Ch.D. 278; 56 L.J. Ch. 233.

(g) Story's Eq. Jur. s. 468.

(h) Burdick v. Garrick, L.R. 5 Ch. 233; 39 L.J. Ch. 369; Bell, In re, 34 Ch.D. 462; 56 L.J. Ch. 307; Lyell v. Kennedy, 14 App.Cas. 437; 59 L.J. Q.B. 268; North American Land and Timber Co. v. Watkins, (1904) 2 Ch.233; 73 L.J. Ch. 626.

(i) Milford v. Hughes, 16 M. & W. 177; 16 L.J. Ex. 40.

(k) Mainwaring v. Brandon, 2 Moore, 125.

(l) Clarke v. Tipping, 9 Beav. 284; Thom v. Bigland, 8 Exch. 725; 22 L.J. Ex. 243; Gray v. Haig, 20 Beav. 238.

(m) Crosskey v. Mills, 1 C. M. & R. 298; 3 L.J. Ex. 297; Boorman v. Brown, 3 Q.B. 515, 527; 11 L.J. Ex. 437; 11 Cl. & F. 1; Boden v. French, 10 C.B. 886; 20 L.J. C.P. 143.

openly and fairly, "at arm's length," and after a full disclosure of everything he knows concerning it (n); nor can he purchase his own goods for his principal (o). If money has been paid by a principal to his brokers to enable them to carry out a contract which he had authorised, and which, at the time of such payment, he believed them to have entered into on his account, whereas, in truth, the authorised contract had never been made, the principal may recover the money from the agents (p). A mere forwarding agent is not bound to see whether the quality of goods, which he is employed to ship or to forward, corresponds with a contract which he has been instrumental in negotiating (q).

Liability of principals to brokers, factors and agents.—The principal is not bound by the unauthorised acts of his agent, but he is bound where the substance of the authority is pursued. Thus where the principal ordered five hundred tons of sugars, and the agent could only get, from several different persons, four hundred tons, it was held that the principal was bound to accept the four hundred tons (r).

Del credere commissions.—When the agent, in consideration of an additional commission, guarantees to his principal the payment of all debts that become due through his agency to the principal, he is said to act under a del credere commission, a phrase derived from the Italian word credere, to trust (s). Every person accepting and acting under a commission of this sort for the sale of goods makes himself responsible for the solvency of his vendees, and on their failure becomes liable to the principal for the payment of the price of the goods he sells (t). His contract, however, is not a contract or promise, as we have seen (ante, p. 32), to answer for the debt or default of another within the meaning of the Statute of Frauds, but an original independent contract, and only another form of selling goods (u). A del credere agent has no right without notice to his principal to employ another agent to execute the commis-

(n) Murphy v. O'Shea, 2 Jones & Lat. 422; Trevelyan v. Charter, 9 Beav. 140; Dunne v. English, 18 Eq. 524.

(o) Bentley v. Craven, 18 Beav. 75; Cape Breton Co., In re, 29 Ch.D. 795; 54 L.J. Ch. 822. See Ladywell Mining Co. v. Brookes, 35 Ch.D. 400; 56 L.J. Ch. 684; Cavendish-Bentinck v. Fenn, 12 App.Cas. 652; 57 L.J. Ch. 552.

(p) Bostock v. Jardine, 3 H. & C. 700; 34 L.J. Ex. 142.

(q) Zuilchenbart v. Alexander, 1 B. & S. 234; 30 L.J. Q.B. 254.

(r) Ireland v. Livingston, L.R. 5 H.L. 395; 41 L.J. Q.B. 201; Johnston v. Kershaw, L.R. 2 Ex. 82; 36 L.J. Ex. 44.

(s) Morris v. Cleasby, 4 M. & S. 566; Hornby v. Lacy, 6 M. & S. 166, qualifying Grove v. Dubois, 1 T.R. 112.

(t) Mackenzie v. Scott, 6 Bro.P.C. 280.

(u) Couturier v. Hastie, 8 Exch. 40; 22 L.J. Ex. 97; 5 H.L.Cas. 673; 25 L.J. Ex. 253; Wickham v. Wickham, 2 Kay & J. 478; Sutton v. Grey, (1894) 1 Q.B. 285; 63 L.J. Q.B. 633.

sion (x). Where a factor having a del credere commission has made advances to his principal, and has sold goods on account of the latter, he cannot, whether he has received the proceeds of the sale or not, recover from the principal so much of the advances as is covered by the price of the goods, unless there is an express agreement between them, making the advances payable immediately, and postponing the time of payment of the price of the goods (y). A person to whom goods are sent to be sold, and who is at liberty to sell them at any price he pleases, he paying a fixed price for them to the owner, is not an agent (z).

Liabilities of insurance-brokers to their principals.—If an insurance-broker neglects the orders of his principal, or is guilty of misconduct and negligence in effecting an assurance, he will be responsible for all the damage sustained by his employer, and may be clothed with all the responsibilities which would have devolved upon the underwriter had the insurance been regularly effected. He may be compelled to pay to his principal the full sum ordered to be insured, or a total or average loss, as the case may be; but he is, of course, entitled to every benefit and objection of which the underwriter himself could have taken advantage if the assurance had been duly effected, such as fraud, deviation, non-compliance with warranties, or the like (a). He is bound, moreover, to exercise a reasonable and proper amount of care, skill, and judgment in the execution of his duty (b). If a merchant abroad has effects in the hands of his correspondent here, he has a right to expect that the latter will obey an order to insure; and, although he has no effects, yet, if the course of dealing between them has been to send and comply with orders for insurance, the former has a right to expect that such orders will still be obeyed, unless he receives notice to the contrary; and if the merchant abroad sends bills of lading to his correspondent here, he may engraft on them an order to insure, as the implied condition on which the bills of lading shall be accepted, which the other must obey if he accept them, for it is one entire transaction (c). If the broker finds that he is unable to effect an insurance upon the terms offered by the principal, it is his duty to give the latter notice of the fact; and if he makes the insurance on terms different from (x) Cockran v. Irlam, 2 M. & S. 301.

(y) Graham v. Ackroyd, 10 Hare, 192, 202.

(z) Nevill, In re, White, Ex parte, L.R. 6 Ch. 397; 40 L.J. Bankr. 73.

(a) Park v. Hammond, 2 Marsh. 191; Mallough v. Barber, 4 Campb. 150; Turpin v. Bilton, 6 Sc. N.R. 447; 12 L.J. C.P. 167.

(b) Chapman v. Walton, 10 Bing. 57; 2 L.J. C.P. 213; Cahill v. Dawson, 26 L.J. C.P. 253; 3 C.B. N.S. 106.

(c) Smith v. Lascelles, 2 T.R. 187; Corlett v. Gordon, 3 Campb. 472.

those prescribed, he will be responsible to the principal (d). But, if insufficient orders are sent, and the agent or broker does all that is usual to get the insurance effected, that is sufficient (e). The insurance-broker is agent for both parties: for the assured, as to the policy, and for the underwriter as to the premium, but for nothing else; and the latter may maintain an action for the premium, unless circumstances have occurred entitling the insured to a return of it, in which case it is the duty of the broker, if he has notice thereof, to retain the money and return it to the insured (f). The broker and not the assured is liable to the underwriter for the premium on a policy of marine insurance (g). If he has acted as the agent of the underwriter in paying the loss upon the policy, he cannot recover back the money on the ground that before the loss the underwriter had become insolvent (h). It is the usage amongst merchants, insurance-brokers, and underwriters, in the city of London, to set off the general balance of accounts between the broker and the underwriter, at the time of the loss, against the loss, and for the broker then to debit himself to that amount in his account with the assured, and the underwriter is then considered to be discharged of his debt to the assured; and, when the assured is cognizant of this course of dealing, and assents to it, the passing of the accounts between the broker, the underwriter, and the assured, operates as a payment to the latter, and as an extinguishment of the underwriter's debt (i). The broker now keeps two accounts with underwriters, called the credit and the cash accounts, into which the premiums received from the principals of the broker go, and the balance on which is due from the broker to the underwriter, and in no way from the individual assured, whose particular premium has gone into that account (k). The authority given to a broker when he is to effect a policy of insurance does not extend to warrant him in cancelling it (l).

Share-brokers and stock-brokers.—If a share-broker, directed to buy shares, buys what is ordinarily bought and sold in the stock market as shares, he has fulfilled his commission, and cannot be made responsible for the fraud or misconduct of parties who may have issued the shares without authority. There

(d) Callender v. Oelrichs, 6 Sc. 761; 8 L.J. C.P. 24.

(e) Smith v. Cologan, 2 T.R. 188, n.

(f) Shee v. Clarkson, 12 East, 507.

(g) Universo Ins. Co. v. Marine Ins. Co., (1897) 2 Q.B. 93; 66 L.J. Q.B. 564.

(h) Edgar v. Bumstead, 1 Campb. 411; Jameson v. Swainstone, 2 ib. 546, n.

(i) Stewart v. Aberdein, 4 M. & W. 211; 7 L.J. Ex. 292.

(k) As to broker's accounts, see Beckwith v. Bullen, 8 E. & B. 683; 27 L.J. Q.B. 162.

(l) Xenos v. Wickham, L.R. 2 H.L. 296; 36 L.J. C.P. 313.

is no warranty or undertaking, on the part of a broker employed to buy shares or scrip, that the article, which merely passes through the broker's hands, is anything more than what it purports to be, and is generally understood to be in the market (m). Every principal who employs a stock-broker to transact business for him in the stock market is bound by the rules of the Stock Exchange and the established mode of transacting business, whether he knew of the usage or not (n), unless the rules are unreasonable (o). If a share-broker sells pursuant to his authority, and the principal neglects to deliver the shares, and the broker is consequently obliged to buy other shares in the market, he is entitled to recover from his employer all the damages, costs, and expenses, besides the customary remuneration for his trouble and loss of time (p). And, generally, whenever the share-broker has been compelled by the custom of the Stock Exchange to make good the default of the principal, he has a remedy over against the latter. Therefore, if he pays calls on shares which he has purchased for his principal, he may recover the amount from the latter (q). Where a person buys shares on the Stock Exchange through his broker from a jobber and has them carried over to a future settling day, and in the meantime his broker has been declared a defaulter on the Stock Exchange, a relationship of buyer and seller is established between him and the jobber; and where such a buyer, on his broker's default, refuses the shares at "hammer" price and repudiates the transaction, the jobbers are entitled to sell out the shares and recover from him the whole difference between the price realised and the price at which they were carried over, and are not restricted to the difference between that price and the "hammer" price (r). Where a stockbroker who is instructed by a client to carry over for him a specified number

(m) Lamert v. Heath, 15 M. & W. 486; 15 L.J. Ex. 297; Mitchell v. Newhall, 15 M. & W. 308; 15 L.J. Ex. 292; Westropp v. Solomon, 8 C.B. 373; 19 L.J. C.P. 1.

(n) Sutton v. Tatham, 10 Ad. & E. 27; 8 L.J. Q.B. 210; Pollock v. Stables, 12 Q.B. 765, 774; 17 L.J. Q.B. 352; Grissell v. Bristowe, L.R. 4 C. P. 36; 38 L.J. C.P. 10; Coles v. Bristowe, L.R. 4 Ch. 3; 38 L.J. Ch. 81; Nickalls v. Merry, L.R. 7 H.L. 530; 45 L.J. Ch. 575; Loring v. Davis, 32 Ch.D. 625; 55 L.J. Ch. 725; Forget v. Baxter, (1900) A.C. 467, 479; 69 L.J. P.C. 101; see, however, ante, p. 70. As to Stock Exchange Rules not being binding upon outside creditors, see Tomkins v. Saffery, 3 App.Cas. 213; 47 L.J. Bankr. 11; Plumbly, In re, Grant, Ex parte, 13 Ch.D. 667.

(o) Pearson v. Scott, 9 Ch.D. 198; 47 L.J. Ch. 705; Robinson v. Mollett, L.R. 7 H.L. 802; 44 L.J. C.P. 362; Davis v. Howard, 24 Q.B.D. 691; 59 L.J. Q.B. 133.

(p) Bayliffe v. Butterworth, 1 Exch. 425; 17 L.J. Ex. 78.

(q) Bayley v. Wilkins, 7 C.B. 886; 18 L.J. C.P. 273; Taylor v. Stray, 2 C.B. N.S. 175; 26 L.J. C.P. 287.

(r) Anderson v. Beard, (1900) 2 Q.B. 260; 69 L.J. Q.B. 610; Levitt v. Hamblet, (1901) 2 K.B. 53; 70 L.J. K.B. 520; as to liability of defaulting broker to jobber for balance of differences between contract and hammer prices, see Mendelssohn v. Ratcliff, (1904) A.C. 456; 73 L.J. K.B. 1027; affirming (1902) 2 K.B. 653; 71 L.J. K.B. 984.

of shares for a particular account, purchases in his own name from a jobber a larger number of shares, appropriating in his books the specified number to the client, and the remainder to another person, no such contractual relation is established between the seller of the shares and the broker's client as will entitle the former, upon the failure of the broker, to maintain an action against the client for damages for refusing to accept the shares so appropriated to him (s). A broker who, on the refusal of a client to take up shares purchased on his behalf, goes into the market and sells the shares at the proper market price to a jobber, and as part of the same transaction repurchases them from the jobber at a profit to himself, must account to the client for such profit by reason of the fiduciary relation of principal and agent existing between him and his client (t). Where a stock-broker wrongfully closes a customer's account which he has agreed to keep open to a certain date, the measure of damages for which he is liable is the highest price the stocks would have realized between the date when he closed the account and the date to which he had agreed to keep it open (u).

Solicitors are, as we have already seen, bound, in common with all professional men, to exercise a reasonable degree of care and skill in the conduct and management of the business intrusted to them to execute (ante, p. 890). In the case of a gift by a client to his solicitor, there is a presumption of undue influence on the part of the solicitor, the onus being on the solicitor of showing that the gift was not obtained by such influence (x); and in the case of a sale by a client to his solicitor the onus is on the solicitor of showing that the client knew what he was doing, that he was properly advised, and that the price given was fair (y); but the validity of the purchase cannot be impeached by a stranger (z). If a solicitor discontinues proceedings in an action which he has commenced by direction of his client, he is bound to show a reasonable ground for such discontinuance; and he must, in general, give due notice to his

(s) Beckhusen v. Hamblet, (1900) 2 Q.B. 18; 69 L.J. Q.B. 431; dismissed on the facts in the C.A., (1901) 2 K.B. 73; 70 L.J. K.B. 600. As to lumping several orders in one contract, see Scott v. Godfrey, (1901) 2 K.B. 726; 70 L.J. K.B. 954.

(t) Erskine, Oxenford & Co. v. Sachs, (1901) 2 K.B. 504; 70 L.J. K.B. 978; Macoun v. Erskine, Oxenford & Co., (1901) 2 K.B. 493; 70 L.J. K.B. 973.

(u) Per Wills, J., Michael v. Hart, (1901) 2 K.B. 867; 70 L.J. K.B. 1000; this point was left open in the C.A., (1902) 1 K.B. 482; 71 L.J. K.B. 265; affirmed on facts in H.L., 89 L.T. 422.

(x) Wright v. Carter, (1903) 1 Ch. 27; 72 L.J. Ch. 138.

(y) Wright v. Carter, supra; Holman v. Loynes, 4 De G. M. & G. 270; 23 L.J. Ch. 529; Gibbs v. Daniel, 4 Giff. 1; as to purchase by a solicitor of the subject-matter of an action, see Simpson v. Lamb, 7 E. & B. 84; 26 L.J. Q.B. 121; Davis v. Freethy, 24 Q.B.D. 519; 59 L.J. Q.B. 318. See also Addison on Torts, 509 (ed. 8).

(z) Knight v. Bowyer, 27 L.J. Ch. 520; 2 De G. & J. 421.

client of his intention to discontinue; and, if he improperly throws up a cause, he has no right to be paid pro ratâ for his work and labour (a). If a cause which he is retained to conduct fails through his negligence, he cannot recover from his client money expended by him subsequently to such negligence (b). Where, on a sale of real estate, the solicitor of the vendor receives the deposit as agent of the vendor, he has not, in the absence of any stipulation to that effect, any duty, like that of an auctioneer, to the vendee, but must pay it over to his principal, the vendor, on demand (c). He is responsible also, as we have already seen, for the safe investment of all moneys intrusted to, and accepted by, him for investment (ante, p. 862). But the town agent of a country solicitor is not responsible to the clients of the latter for money received whilst conducting their causes or legal proceedings. The privity of contract is solely between the town agent and his principal and employer, the country solicitor; he knows nothing of the clients of the latter, and is bound to account only to his principal (see post, p. 964). But the court will, as before mentioned, sometimes interfere summarily for the protection of the client. The solicitor must, in general, one month before action against his client, deliver his bill of costs, signed by him, to his client (d); and, when his bill has been paid, he is bound to deliver up, if called upon, all documents in his hands belonging to his client, in good order and properly arranged (e).

Sheriff's officers, expressly employed by a solicitor to execute process, may maintain an action against the latter for the recovery of such fees as are usually allowed on the taxation of costs by the practice of the courts, and are not bound to resort to the clients of the solicitor for remuneration (f), for in that case the solicitor does something more than merely deliver the writ for execution (g); but apart from a contract express or implied to pay such fees the law casts no such liability upon the solicitor (h).

Estate and house agents.—Where a house agent is employed to let a house it is a question for the jury upon the evidence

(a) Nicholls v. Wilson, 11 M. & W. 106; 12 L.J. Ex. 266; Underwood v. Lewis, (1894) 2 Q.B. 306; 64 L.J. Q.B. 60.

(b) Lewis v. Samuel, 8 Q.B. 685; 15 L.J. Q.B. 218.

(c) Edgell v. Day, L.R. 1 C.P. 80; 35 L.J. C.P. 7.

(d) 6 & 7 Vict. c. 73, s. 37; Phipps v. Daubney, 16 Q.B. 514; 20 L.J. Q.B. 273; Smith v. Pococke, 22 L.J. Ch. 545; 2 Drew. 197.

(e) L. & N. W. Ry. v. Sharp, 10 Exch. 451; 24 L.J. Ex. 44; 18 Jur. 964.

(f) Foster v. Blakelock, 5 B. & C. 328; 4 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 170.

(g) Walbank v. Quarterman, 3 C.B. 94.

(h) Royle v. Busby, 6 Q.B.D. 171; 50 L.J. Q.B. 196.

whether it is part of his retainer to make all necessary inquiries touching the respectability and solvency of the tenant (i).

Receipt of money and goods by agents on account of their principals.—It is a settled rule that an agent shall not, after accounting with his principal and receiving money in his capacity of agent, afterwards say that he did not do so, and did not receive it for the benefit of his principal, but for some other person (k), unless there has been a mistake and a void payment ab initio, so that the money never was in truth received for the principal. But, if the agent effects a contract of sale at a high price by fraud, and receives such price, but is afterwards compelled to refund it to the purchaser, the principal cannot maintain an action for money had and received against the agent, to recover the price, inasmuch as the sale is avoided by the fraud of the agent, and the money received under it becomes the property of the purchaser, and is not money had and received for the use of the principal (l). And although an agent has received goods from his principal, or from a third party, to hold them for his principal, he may, under certain circumstances, set up a jus tertii. Thus, if an auctioneer has received goods for public sale from a person who is not the owner of them, and has no right to sell them, and the real owner intervenes and forbids the sale, or claims the money realised by the sale, the auctioneer may by the authority of such real owner set up his title against the claims of the fictitious owner from whom he received the goods (m). But, although in many cases a bailee may set up the jus tertii against a claim by his bailor, yet, if the bailee has accepted the bailment with full knowledge of an adverse claim, he cannot afterwards set up the existence of such a claim as against the bailor (n). So, where a wharfinger received notice that goods deposited at his wharf were marked with a fraudulent imitation of a trade-mark, and that the owner of the trade-mark was about to apply to the Court of Chancery for an injunction to prevent the sale of the goods, and, after the injunction had been granted, but before the wharfinger had notice that it had been granted, he refused to deliver the goods to the owner, it was held that he was justified in such refusal (o).

(i) Heys v. Tindall, 1 B. & S. 296 ; 30 L.J. Q.B. 362. As to commission, see post, p. 959.

(k) Dixon v. Hamond, 2 B. & Ald. 310, 313 ; Edgell v. Day, 35 L.J. C.P. 7 ; L.R. 1 C.P. 80.

(l) Parke, B., Murray v. Mann, 17 L.J. Ex. 256 ; 2 Exch. 538.

(m) Biddle v. Bond, 6 B. & S. 225 ; 34 L.J. Q.B. 137 ; Hardman v. Willcock, 9 Bing 382 ; Rogers v. Lambert, (1891) 1 Q.B. 318 ; 60 L.J. Q.B. 187.

(n) Sadler, In re, Davies, Ex parte, 19 Ch.D. 86.

(o) Hunt v. Maniere, 34 Beav. 157 ; 34 L.J. Ch. 142.

Where a managing owner of a ship, or "ship's husband," employed certain agents for general purposes, and amongst others to receive and pay moneys on account of the ship, and besides his general account there was also a separate account kept by them in his name as managing owner of the ship's disbursements and earnings, and, in order to obtain the freight earned by the vessel from the East India Company, it was necessary that a receipt signed by the managing owner, and by one or more of the other owners also, should be given for the money due, and, upon a receipt of this description, the agents received 2,000*l.*, which was placed by them to the credit of the managing owner in his account with them, it was held that the money was received by the agents as agents of the managing owner, and that the transaction was in effect the same as if the other joint-owners and the managing owner had received the money, and it had been then handed over to the managing owner, who had then placed it in the hands of the agents, as his bankers, on his own account, and that the joint-owners could not treat the agents as their debtors (p). But, where the plaintiffs were owners of a ship, and one of them was ship's husband, and the latter instructed the defendant at Quebec to charter the vessel from thence to England, and the defendant effected a charter-party, making the freight payable to himself at Quebec, and received the freight, and claimed to retain it in liquidation of a debt due to him from such ship's husband, it was held that the contract between the ship's husband and the ship agent with respect to the management and chartering of the vessel was a contract which belonged to all the shipowners, and that the defendant was bound to pay over to them the money received under that contract (q).

Receipt of money by sub-agents.—Every agent is responsible for money received by a sub-agent employed by him for the purpose of receiving the money, whether the principal had, or had not, reason to suppose that there was any necessity for the employment of a sub-agent. Thus, if the customer of bankers hands them a bill, in order that they may receive the money due upon it, and they send the bill to their correspondents at a distant place, and the bill is presented by them, and the amount paid, the payment to the sub-agents is a payment to the bankers, and the latter are responsible to the customer for the money, although it never reaches their hands and is never passed by them to the credit of the customer (r). The sub-agent so employed to receive money is accountable only to the agent, his employer, and cannot be sued for the money by the principal(s). But, if he is not strictly a sub-agent, as, for example, if he has received direct instructions from the principal, or is in any respect the agent of the latter, he will be accountable accordingly. Thus, where a creditor employs a country solicitor to recover a debt, and the country solicitor employs a London solicitor to whom the debt is paid, the latter is accountable to the client for the money, and cannot retain it in satisfaction of a debt due to him from his immediate employer, the country solicitor (t).

(p) Sims v. Brittain, 4 B. & Ad. 375.

(q) Walshe v. Provan, 8 Exch. 843; 22 L.J. Ex. 355.

Payment by one agent to another.—Where an agent who receives money for his principal pays it over to another agent of that principal, he is bound to pay it in such a way as shall enable the agent to perform his duty to his principal, i.e., he must pay in cash, and not merely settle it in account between that agent and himself; or, if he does so settle it, he takes it on himself to show an authority from his principal, and that there was an account between the principal and that agent, on which the principal was indebted to the latter (u).

Purchases by agent with money of principal.—The property of a principal intrusted to his factor or agent belongs to the principal, notwithstanding any change which the property may have undergone in form, and even though the agent may have mixed the proceeds with his own money. Where, therefore, a draft for money was intrusted to a broker to buy Exchequer bills for his principal, and the broker received the money and purchased American securities with it, and absconded, and was taken on his way to America, and surrendered the securities to his principal, it was held that the principal was entitled to the securities so purchased as against the assignees of the broker, who had become bankrupt (x). But the rule does not apply where there is no fiduciary relation between the parties (y); nor where an agent authorized to receive money has credited his (r) Mackersay v. Ramsays, 9 Cl. & F. 818.

(s) Ireland v. Thompson, 4 C.B. 149; 17 L.J. C.P. 248; Stephens v. Badcock, 3 B. & Ad. 354; 1 L.J. K.B. 75; Cartwright v. Hately, 1 Ves. jun. 292; Story on Agency, s. 203.

(t) Hanley v. Cassan, 11 Jur. 1088; 10 L.T. 189; Johnson, In re, Edwards, Ex parte, 8 Q.B.D. 262; 51 L.J. Q.B. 108.

(u) Alderson, B., Hanley v. Cassan, supra.

(x) Taylor v. Plumer, 3 M. & S. 562. See Hallett's Estate, In re, Knatchbull v. Hallett, 13 Ch.D. 696; 49 L.J.Ch. 415; Harris v. Truman, 51 L.J. Q.B. 338; 9 Q.B.D. 264; Broad, In re, Neck, Ex parte, 13 Q.B.D. 740; 54 L.J. Q.B. 79.

(y) New Zealand and Australian Land Co. v. Watson, 7 Q.B.D. 374; 50 L.J. Q.B. 433. See, however, Kaltenbach v. Lewis, 10 App.Cas. 617; 55 L.J. Ch. 58.

principal with it before in fact receiving it (z). If an agent borrows money without the authority of his principal, and the money comes into the possession of the principal who uses it, the latter is liable to the borrower in an action for money had and received (a).

Frauds by agents on their principals.—Agents are in a sense trustees, and they owe to their principals a similar duty to that which trustees owe to their cestui que trust. Therefore, when two agents concur in a fraud, both are liable in equity, although one of them only has the benefit of the fraud. Where two confidential agents of a partnership conspired together to obtain for themselves the shares of the partners at an undervalue by keeping the accounts of the firm fraudulently so as to conceal from the partners the true value of their shares, it was held that their misconduct might be treated as a breach of trust (b). An agent cannot, without the knowledge of his principal, be allowed to make any profit out of his agency beyond his proper remuneration as agent; and this rule applies with peculiar stringency to the directors of joint-stock companies, who are the agents of the company for effecting the sales or purchases made by the company (c).

Payment of commission.—If the amount of commission is named by the principal in his letter of instruction to the agent, and the agent declares that it is quite inadequate, but nevertheless acts upon the instructions, he will be bound by the specified commission, and cannot sue for a reasonable remuneration for his services (d). A commission-agent, employed to negotiate a sale upon the terms that he is to be paid a commission on the amount of purchase-money, or on the happening of a certain event, will not be entitled to any commission until the purchase-money has been received, or the event has happened, unless there has been fraudulent delay or wilful neglect on the part of the employer (e). In the ordinary course of commercial dealings a compensation is impliedly understood to be due to every person who undertakes the duties and services of an agent, the amount being generally governed by the usage of trade; but (z) Hallett, In re, Blane, Ex parte, (1894) 2 Q.B. 237; 63 L.J. Q.B. 573.

(a) Reid v. Rigby, (1894) 2 Q.B. 40; 63 L.J. Q.B. 451.

(b) Walsham v. Stainton, 33 L.J. Ch. 68; 1 De G. J. & S. 678. As to the remedy of the principal where the agent has been bribed to induce him to enter into a disadvantageous contract, see Salford (Mayor) v. Lever, (1891) 1 Q.B. 168; 60 L.J. Q.B. 39; Grant v. Gold Exploration Syndicate of British Columbia, (1900) 1 Q.B. 233; 69 L.J. Q.B. 150.

(c) Canadian Oil Works Corporation, In re, Hay's Case, L.R. 10 Ch. 593; 44 L.J. Ch. 721; Eden v. Ridsdale's Co., 23 Q.B.D. 368; 58 L.J. Q.B. 579.

(d) Moore v. Maxwell, 2 C. & K. 554.

(e) Bull v. Price, 5 M. & P. 2; 9 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 78; Alder v. Boyle, 4 C.B. 635; 16 L.J. C.P. 232.

parties who sell as mortgagees or trustees are not entitled to commission, in the absence of any express contract or agreement to pay them for their services (f). The fact that a party has agreed to sell goods on commission may be proved by oral evidence, though the terms as to the payment of such commission have been reduced into writing (g). An authority to sell upon certain terms and for certain commission is revoked by the death of the principal before the authority has been acted upon and executed; and, if the agent sells after the death of the principal, he will not be entitled to the agreed commission, unless the personal representative has renewed the authority with knowledge of the contract (h). If the commission is to be paid on the "net proceeds," it is payable only on the actual sum which reaches the pocket of the principal after deducting all charges and expenses (i).

Extra work by agents.—For all work done by the agent in discharge of his business as agent he is paid by his commission, and can make no extra charge; but for work done by order of the principal, beyond his duty as an agent, he is entitled to make an extra charge, provided the work was done under circumstances fairly giving rise to an inference that he was to receive an extra remuneration (k).

Commission of ship-brokers.—Ship-brokers are usually entitled, by the custom and usage of trade, to 5*l*. per cent. commission upon the freight payable upon charter-parties obtained and entered into by their aid and exertions; and, if the amount of freight is uncertain, they may, if they think fit, sue for a reasonable remuneration upon a quantum meruit. The right to the commission does not depend upon the fact of the ship's earning freight; and the claim is not liable to be cut down by the loss of the vessel, or her failure to get a cargo (l). When a ship-broker has introduced the captain of a ship and a merchant to each other, and they by his means enter into some negotiation for a voyage, the broker is, in general, by usage of trade, entitled to his commission if a charter-party is effected between them for that voyage. And, if a broker authorised by both parties, and acting as the agent of each, communicates to the merchant what the shipowner charges, and to the shipowner what the (f) Ante, p. 872; Arnold v. Garner, 2 Ph. 231; 16 L.J. Ch. 329; but see now Judicial Trustees Act, 1896 (59 & 60 Vict. c. 35), s. 1 (5), as to remuneration of judicial trustees.

(g) Whitfield v. Brand, 16 M. & W. 282; 16 L.J. Ex. 103.

(h) Campanari v. Woodburn, 15 C.B. 400; 24 L.J. C.P. 13.

(i) Caine v. Horsfall, 1 Exch. 519; 17 L.J. Ex. 25.

(k) Marshall v. Parsons, 9 C. & P. 656.

(l) Hill v. Kitching, 3 C.B. 299; 15 L.J. C.P. 251.

merchant will give, and names the ship and the parties, so as to identify the transaction, and a charter-party is ultimately effected for that voyage, this broker is entitled to his commission; but, if he does not mention the names, so as to identify the transaction, he does not get his commission to the exclusion of another broker who afterwards introduces the parties personally to each other (m).

Where a shipowner employed a ship-broker to procure a charter for his ship, and the latter employed another broker, who procured the charter, it was held that in order to render the shipowner responsible upon an implied contract with the second broker, it must be shown that he was cognizant of the employment of the latter, and knew, at the time he accepted the charter, that it had been obtained through his instrumentality (n). But it would seem that evidence of a usage of trade is admissible to show that the second broker, who actually procures the charter, is entitled to his commission from the shipowner (o). A usage of trade cannot be given in evidence to impose on the party who has entered into the contract a wholly different obligation, and to show that, because he has agreed to consign the ship to the charterer's agents on the outward voyage, he is therefore liable to pay the agent's commission on the homeward cargo (p).

Commission of policy brokers.—By the Stamp Act, 1891 (54 & 55 Vict. c. 39), s. 97 (2), the principal is not to be liable to pay the broker's commission upon effecting a policy of sea insurance, or any money paid by the broker, unless the policy is duly stamped; and any sums so paid are to be deemed to have been paid without consideration, and are to remain the property of the principal.

Commission of travellers for orders.—When a commission agent, employed by a manufacturer to obtain orders, is to receive a commission "on all goods bought" by persons from whom he obtains orders, the commission is earned as soon as a valid sale has been concluded between the manufacturer and the purchaser introduced by such agent, whether or not the goods are at the time in existence, and whether or not the contract is ultimately carried into effect, and whether it turns out to be a bad bargain, productive of loss, or an advantageous transaction (q).

Commission of house agents, estate agents, and auctioneers.—If a man having a house or estate to sell or let, places it in the (m) Burnett v. Bouch, 9 C. & P. 620.

(n) Smith v. Boutcher, 1 Car. & K. 573, and see Schmaling v. Thomlinson, 6 Taunt. 147.
(o) Smith v. Boutcher, 1 Car. & K. 573.
(p) Phillipps v. Briard, 1 H. & N. 21, 27; 25 L.J. Ex. 233.
(q) Lockwood v. Levick, 8 C.B. N.S. 603; 29 L.J. C.P. 340.

hands of several house agents, with instructions to secure a purchaser or tenant, the successful agent is alone entitled to commission, unless instructions have been given to the other house agents to advertise the house, or render some particular or special services in the matter, entitling them by the custom of the trade to some remuneration (r). But if the relation of buyer and seller is really brought about by the act of the agent, he is entitled to his commission, although the actual sale was not effected by him (s). Where A. promised to pay B. a sum of money if he would procure him a tenant at a certain rent, it was held that B. was entitled to the money as soon as the party introduced by him had been accepted by A., and a binding agreement for the tenancy had been entered into (t). In a great number of instances house agents go to a great deal of trouble on the terms that, if they get no purchaser they shall have no claim; and, if upon the contingencies which have happened nothing was to be paid, nothing can of course be recovered (u). Where an auctioneer was employed to sell ground-rents by auction, on the terms of receiving one per cent. commission on the sale, and, after he had advertised the sale, but before the day of sale, the employer sold the rents by private contract, it was held that a notorious custom in the trade, for the auctioneer to receive his full commission in such a case, might be engrafted upon the contract (x). But such a usage must be so universal that every one in the trade must be taken to know it (y).

The right of the agent to be reimbursed upon the revocation of his authority depends upon the terms of the contract by which his services were retained, and the custom of the trade in which he is engaged. When an agent is employed to sell or to let, on the terms that he is to be paid a certain percentage on the price or the rent, the general understanding is that he takes his chance of a large remuneration in case he finds a purchaser or a tenant, but gets nothing if he fails in so doing; but, if trouble and expense have been properly incurred by the agent in endeavouring to carry into effect the instructions of the principal, and the latter revokes the authority, and prevents the agent from reaping the expected reward, the principal is bound to remunerate him for his trouble and expenses in the matter (z).

Where an estate agent, employed to sell at a given price, (r) Prickett v. Badger, 1 C.B. N.S. 296; 26 L.J. C.P. 33; Barnett v. Brown, 6 T.L.R. 463.

(s) Green v. Bartlett, 14 C.B. N.S. 681; 32 L.J. C.P. 261; see Tribe v. Taylor, 1 C.P.D. 505; Burchell v. Gowrie, &c. Collieries Co., (1910) A.C. 614; 80 L.J. P.C. 41.

(t) Horford v. Wilson, 1 Taunt. 12.

(u) Green v. Mules, 30 L.J. C.P. 343.

(x) Rainy v. Vernon, 9 C. & P. 559.

(y) Wood v. Wood, 1 ib. 59.

(z) Simpson v. Lamb, 17 C.B. 616; 25 L.J. C.P. 113.

succeeds in finding a purchaser, but the principal then declines to sell, the agent is entitled to sue for a reasonable remuneration for his services; and the amount of his commission on the price would seem to be the sum to which he is fairly entitled; but, if the authority is revoked before it is executed and a purchaser has been found, it does not follow that he is entitled to sue upon an implied contract for remuneration for his work and labour in endeavouring to find a purchaser or a tenant (a). If it is the practice of house agents to charge a fee for entering property to be let or sold in their register book, and the employer has notice of this, or it is proved to be a known custom of the trade, the employer will be bound to pay this fee, although the authority may be revoked, or the agent may have failed to render any beneficial service. This registration fee is all that the house agent is entitled to charge for ordinary services, in the absence of any special instructions for advertisements (b).

When a public company employed a broker to dispose of their shares on the terms that he should be paid 100*l.* down, and 400*l.* in addition upon the allotment of the whole of the shares of the company, and the broker disposed of a considerable number of shares when the company was wound up, it was held that the broker was prevented from earning the 400*l.* by the act of the company, and was therefore entitled to sue them for damages (c).

Lien of factors and brokers.—Factors and brokers to whom goods are consigned to be sold have a lien for the general balance due to them from their employers or principals in the ordinary course of their business as factors, and for their acceptances on behalf of such employers, upon the goods whilst they are in their possession, and on the moneys realised by the sale of them (d). This right exists universally by the custom of the trade. It is part of the law merchant, and as such is judicially taken notice of by the courts, no proof being ever required as a matter of fact that such general lien exists. The lien does not extend to a collateral debt, such as a debt due for the price of other goods sold by the factor for another person to the principal (e), nor to goods which have not actually reached the hands of the factor (f), nor to goods which have not come into his possession

(a) Prickett v. Badger, 1 C.B. N.S. 296; 26 L.J. C.P. 33; Campanari v. Woodburn, 15 C.B. 400, 407; 24 L.J. C.P. 13.

(b) Simpson v. Lamb, supra.

(c) Inchbald v. Western Neilgherry Co., 17 C.B. N.S. 733; 34 L.J. C.P. 15; Ogdens, Ltd. v. Nelson, (1903) 2 K.B. 287; 72 L.J. K.B. 767.

(d) Kruger v. Wilcox, Ambl. 252; Hudson v. Granger, 5 B. & Ald. 27; Hammonds v. Barclay, 2 East, 227; Pavy's Patent Felted Co., In re, 1 Ch.D. 631; 45 L.J. Ch. 318.

(e) Houghton v. Matthews, 3 Bos. & P. 485.

(f) Kinloch v. Craig, 3 T.R. 119.

with the consent and direction of the owner, such as goods left at the factor's place of business by mistake or inadvertence (g), or taken possession of by him without the authority of the owner (h). And, if the party from whom he receives the goods is only an agent, he cannot retain them as against the true owner for a debt that was due to him from the agent at the time the goods were put into his hands, and which was not contracted on the credit of the deposit of the goods; but it is otherwise if he has made advances on the credit of the deposit, not knowing the depositor to be an agent (i). The factor can only claim a lien for his general balance upon goods which come to his hands as factor. A factor, therefore, who effects a policy of insurance, not as factor, but as an insurance broker, is not entitled to a general lien on a policy in his hands for a balance due to him in his character of factor (k). A factor does not lose his lien by acting under special instructions from his principal to sell the goods at a particular price, and in the principal's name (l).

Lien of packers.—A packer is entitled to a general lien on the goods of his customer which are in his hands (m), although they do not now so frequently make advances to their customers as they used to do (n).

Lien of insurance brokers.—Insurance brokers have also, by the general usage and custom of trade, a lien for the general balance due to them from their employers, where the latter are themselves principals, and in some cases where they are agents, upon all policies effected by them for such employers, and left in their hands, and upon all moneys received by them upon such policies from the underwriters. The lien does not extend to a collateral debt not incurred in respect of brokerage business. If a policy broker is employed by an agent, and there is no disclosure of the agency, and nothing to lead the broker to think that any third party is interested in the policy, and the assurance is accordingly effected in the name of the agent as owner, and a loss occurs, and the policy is allowed, after the loss, to remain in the broker's hands, and the latter then permits the agent to get into his debt, not knowing him to be an agent, the broker will have a lien as against the principal upon the policy, and upon the money he receives thereon from the underwriters, to the extent of the debt due to him from the agent as well as for (g) Lucas v. Dorrien, 7 Taunt. 278.

(h) Taylor v. Robinson, 8 Taunt. 648; 2 Moore, 730.

(i) Pultney v. Keymer, 3 Esp. 182.

(k) Dixon v. Stansfeld, 10 C.B. 398; Mildred v. Maspons, 8 App.Cas. 874; 53 L.J. Q.B. 33.

(l) Stevens v. Biller, 25 Ch.D. 31; 53 L.J. Ch. 245.

(m) Deeze, Ex parte, 1 Atk. 228; Green v. Farmer, 4 Burr. 2214, 2222.

(n) Witt, In re, Shubrook, Ex parte, 2 Ch.D. 489; 45 L.J. Bankr. 118.

his commission and charges for effecting the policy (o). But, if there is the slightest indication of the agency to the broker, such as a declaration by a British subject in time of war that the property is neutral (p), or a statement that the assurance is to be effected "for a correspondent in the country" (q), or that the property to be insured belongs to a merchant abroad, who has consigned it to the agent with full power of disposition over it, and with authority to indorse the bill of lading (r), the broker will have a lien only for his commission and charges for the insurance, and not for the balance due to him from the agent.

Lien of solicitors.—Solicitors also have a lien upon all money recovered by them in the actions and suits in which they are employed, and upon all the deeds and papers and other articles of their clients which come to their hands in their professional capacity, for the purposes of business, not only for the costs of the particular cause or matter with which such deeds or papers are connected, but for the costs due to them generally from their clients (s). But the lien does not attach while the suit is still pending; and the parties may compromise the dispute and thus deprive the solicitor of his lien, if the compromise is bonâ fide (t). If, however, the money paid by way of compromise is in substance the fruit of the action, the lien of the plaintiff's solicitor attaches, and the defendant or his solicitor is not at liberty, after express notice by the plaintiff's solicitor of his claim to a lien for his costs, to pay the sum over to the plaintiff (u). The compromise of an action, sanctioned by the court on behalf of an infant, does not in itself prejudice his solicitor's lien for the costs of an action (x). By the Solicitors Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 127), s. 28, where a solicitor is employed (y) to prosecute or defend any suit in any court, the court may charge the client's property (z) recovered or preserved (a) through the (o) Mann v. Forrester, 4 Campb. 61; Westwood v. Bell, ib. 349.

(p) Maanss v. Henderson, 1 East, 335.

(q) Swoh v. Davidson, 2 Campb. 218.

(r) Lanyon v. Blanchard, ib. 597.

(s) Stevenson v. Blakelock, 1 M. & S. 535; Lambert v. Buckmaster, 2 B. & C. 616; 2 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 93; Blunden v. Desert, 2 Dr. & W. 405; Friswell v. King, 15 Sim. 191; Robins v. Goldingham, L.R. 13 Eq. 440; 41 L.J. Ch. 813; Taylor, In re, Payne-Collier, Ex parte, (1891) 1 Ch. 590; 60 L.J. Ch. 525.

(t) Sullivan, In re, Morrison, Ex parte, L.R. 4 Q.B. 153; S.C., Sullivan v. Pearson, 38 L.J. Q.B. 65; The Hope, 8 P.D. 144; 52 L.J. P. 63; Price v. Crouch, 60 L.J. Q.B. 767; Margetson, In re, (1897) 2 Ch. 314; 66 L.J. Ch. 619.

(u) Ross v. Buxton, 42 Ch.D. 190; 58 L.J. Ch. 442.

(x) Wright's Trusts, In re, (1901) 1 Ch. 317; 70 L.J. Ch. 119.

(y) Baile v. Baile, L.R. 13 Eq. 497; 41 L.J. Ch. 300.

(z) Berrie v. Howitt, L.R. 9 Eq. 1; 39 L.J. Ch. 119; Keane, In re, Lumley v. Desborough, L.R. 12 Eq. 115; 40 L.J. Ch. 617.

(a) Baile v. Baile, L.R. 13 Eq. 497; 41 L.J. Ch. 300; The Heinrich, L.R. 3 A. & E. 505; 41 L.J. Adm. 68; Pierson v. Knutsford Estates Co., 13 Q.B.D. 666; 53 L.J. Q.B. 181; Jones v. Frost, L.R. 7 Ch. 773; 42 L.J. Ch. 47; see Humphreys, In re, (1898) 1 Q.B. 520; 67 L.J. Q.B. 412.

instrumentality (b) of the solicitor with the payment of his costs (c). If the solicitor discharges himself during the suit he loses his lien, so far, at any rate, as relates to papers necessary for the successful prosecution of the suit; but it is otherwise if he is discharged by his client (d). Costs paid under the order of the court, and directed to be refunded by the Court of Appeal, are property recovered within the meaning of this section, and may be charged accordingly (e). A solicitor has no lien upon the will of a client for the costs incurred in the preparation of it, and cannot therefore refuse to produce it after his client's death until his costs have been paid. And, where deeds are delivered for a specific purpose, the right of lien is extinguished as soon as the particular purpose has been accomplished; and it may be superseded altogether by the attorney's taking from the client security for his costs (f). A solicitor held the title-deeds of a mortgagor; he was also acting for the mortgagee, and continued to hold the deeds; the mortgagor filed a petition for liquidation, and the solicitor acting for the trustee sold the equity of redemption, and received the purchase-money; it was held that he had a lien upon it for costs due to him from the mortgagor (g). A solicitor to a former trustee in a bankruptcy has a lien upon documents, the fruits of his own labour or expense, as against a new trustee (h). A solicitor cannot set up the lien of his London agent on the papers of his client against the claims of that client, the client having paid his solicitor's bill (i). The London solicitor has a general lien against the country solicitor upon any money recovered in an action, for all costs for agency business, and disbursements due from the country solicitor, whether in the particular action or in any other proceedings (k); but as between the London agent and the client the lien extends only to the costs of the particular action (l). And his lien is

(b) See Lwynam v. Porter, L.R. 11 Eq. 181; 40 L.J. Ch. 30.

(c) National Assurance and Investment Assoc., In re, Cross, In re, L.R. 7 Ch. 221; 41 L.J. Ch. 341. The lien of a solicitor on a fund recovered is confined to the costs of the action in which it is recovered, Bozon v. Bolland, 4 Myl. & Cr. 354; 9 L.J. Ch. 123. As to a solicitor's lien where there are cross-judgments in a county court, see Ward v. Haddrill, (1904) 1 K.B. 399; 73 L.J. K.B. 277. As to omission of solicitor to mention his lien on documents on proving in a bankruptcy, see Safety Explosives, Ltd., In re, (1904) 1 Ch. 226; 73 L.J. Ch. 184. As to priority of the lien for costs over judgments recovered, see Ridd v. Thorne, (1902) 2 Ch. 344; 71 L.J. Ch. 624.

(d) Faithfull, In re, L. B. & S. C. Ry., In re, L.R. 6 Eq. 325.

(e) Guy v. Churchill, 35 Ch.D. 489; 56 L.J. Ch. 670.

(f) Georges v. Georges, 18 Ves. 294; Balch v. Symes, Turn. & R. 87. See Taylor, In re, Payne-Collier, Ex parte, (1891) 1 Ch. 590; 60 L.J. Ch. 525.

(g) Messenger, In re, Calvert, Ex parte, 3 Ch.D. 317; 45 L.J. Bankr. 134.

(h) Austin, In re, Yalden, Ex parte, 4 Ch.D. 129; 46 L.J. Bankr. 59.

(i) Andrew, In re, 7 H. & N. 87; 30 L.J. Ex. 403.

(k) See Hawkes, In re, (1898) 2 Ch. 1; 67 L.J. Ch. 284; Jones and Roberts, In re, (1905) 2 Ch. 219; 74 L.J. Ch. 458.

(l) Lawrence v. Fletcher, 12 Ch.D. 858; White v. Roy. Exch. Assur. Co., 1

limited to the debt actually due from the client to the country solicitor, so that if the country client pays the country solicitor the lien is discharged, for the country solicitor can give the town agent no lien which he does not himself possess (m).

A solicitor cannot set up a general lien for the balance due to him in respect of services not rendered by him as a solicitor; nor can he detain deeds and papers which do not come to him in his professional character. He has no lien, for example, where he acts or holds papers as steward of a manor (n), or town clerk (o), or for ordinary advances made by him to his client; he cannot set up any lien which is inconsistent with the nature of his employment, or the terms or conditions, or express or implied trust upon which he received the papers (p). His right, moreover, is dependent upon the rights of his clients; and he cannot acquire more extensive powers over the papers in his hands than the client himself possessed at the time he deposited them with him (q). If a solicitor transacts business for a firm in partnership collectively, and also manages the private business of the members of the firm individually, he has no lien upon the private securities, deeds, and writings of one partner in respect of the business done for the firm (r).

A solicitor acting for mortgagee as well as mortgagor thereby loses his lien on the deeds for costs due to him from the mortgagor, unless such lien is expressly reserved, even although the mortgagee may have known that the solicitor had such a lien (s). Where the plaintiffs in a suit mortgaged their interest in the estate to the defendants with the sanction of the solicitor, and nothing was said about costs, it was held that the solicitor's charge, under 23 & 24 Vict. c. 127, s. 28 (ante, p. 963), ought not to be postponed to the mortgage, as the defendants must have known of the rights of the solicitor (t). A solicitor preparing a marriage settlement on the instructions of the husband has no

Bing. 20; 7 Moore, 249; Moody v. Spencer, 2 D. & R. 6; 1 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 1; Anon., 2 Dick. 802.

(m) Waller v. Holmes, 1 J. & H. 139; 30 L.J. Ch. 24; Andrew, In re, supra; Beatfield v. Barlow, 38 L.J. Ch. 311; Edwards, Ex parte, 8 Q.B.D. 262; 51 L.J. Q.B. 108. See ante, p. 856.

(n) Champernown v. Scott, 6 Mad. 93.

(o) R. v. Sankey, 5 Ad. & E. 428; 5 L.J. K.B. 255; Newington Local Board v. Eldridge, 12 Ch.D. 349; Taylor, In re, Payne-Collier, Ex parte, (1891) 1 Ch. 590; 60 L.J. Ch. 525.

(p) Lawson v. Dickenson, 8 Mod. 307. See Faithfull, In re, L.R. 6 Eq. 325; Simmonds v. G. E. Ry., L.R. 3 Ch. 797; 38 L.J. Ch. 87.

(q) Hollis v. Clarige, 4 Taunt. 807; Esdaile v. Oxenham, 3 B. & C. 229; Lightfoot v. Keene, 1 M. & W. 745; 5 L.J. Ex. 257; Molesworth v. Robbins, 2 Jones & Lat. 358.

(r) Steadman v. Hockley, 15 M. & W. 553; 15 L.J. Ex. 332; Turner v. Deane, 3 Exch. 836; 18 L.J. Ex. 343. See Moss, In re, L.R. 2 Eq. 345; 35 L.J. Ch. 554.

(s) Snell, In re, 6 Ch.D. 105; 46 L.J. Ch. 627.

(t) Faithfull v. Ewen, 7 Ch.D. 495; 47 L.J. Ch. 457; Dallow v. Garrold, Adams, Ex parte, 14 Q.B.D. 543; 54 L.J. Q.B. 76; Cole v. Eley, (1894) 2 Q.B. 350; 63 L.J. Q.B. 682; The Paris, (1896) P. 77; 65 L.J. P. 42.

lien upon it against the trustees for their unpaid costs (u). A solicitor cannot embarrass proceedings in a court by keeping papers which belong to an estate which is being administered by the court (x), or which are necessary in a suit pending (y). Where a solicitor takes from his client a security for costs without explaining that he intends to reserve his lien, the lien is primâ facie to be deemed to be abandoned (z).

Lien of shipmasters.—An agent cannot in general acquire a lien upon the property of his principal for work done by others whom he has employed and paid. But a shipmaster has, so far as the case permits, the same lien for disbursements and liabilities properly made and incurred by him on account of the ship as he has for the recovery of his wages (a); and where he makes a special contract, in itself ultra vires, in order to fulfil which he incurs special expenses, if the owner adopts the benefit of that contract, he must also bear its burthen (b). The shipmaster, however, has no lien on ship or freight for disbursements on account of the ship, but for which he had no authority to pledge the shipowner's credit (c). At common law the master has a possessory lien on the cargo, not only for freight, but also for general average (d). The captain of a ship or his agent has a lien upon the cargo which he has saved for the expenses of doing so, although such expenditure was not with the cargo owner's consent nor for the purpose of enabling the shipowner to earn freight, but for the purpose of saving the cargo (e).

Lien of ship's husband.—The right of a ship's husband to be repaid out of the freight for advances made on account of the ship is a right of lien or retainer, and not in the nature of a charge on the freight; and therefore, if he is removed from his office before he is in a position to receive the freight, an assignee of his interest in the freight cannot maintain a claim to it as against the owners (f).

(u) Lawrance, In re, Bowker v. Austin, (1894) 1 Ch. 556; 63 L.J. Ch. 205.

(x) Belaney v. Ffrench, L.R. 8 Ch. 918; 43 L.J. Ch. 312; Capital Fire Insurance Association, In re, 24 Ch.D. 408; 53 L.J. Ch. 71. The principle of these cases is discussed and affirmed in Hawkes, In re, Ackerman v. Lockhart, (1898) 2 Ch. 1; 67 L.J. Ch. 284; see also Rapid Road Transit Co., In re (1909) 1 Ch. 96; 78 L.J. Ch. 132.

(y) Galland, In re, 31 Ch.D. 296; 55 L.J. Ch. 478.

(z) Taylor, In re, Payne-Collier, Ex parte, (1891) 1 Ch. 590; 60 L.J. Ch. 525; Douglas-Norman, In re, (1898) 1 Ch. 199; 67 L.J. Ch. 85.

(a) 57 & 58 Vict. c. 60, s. 167.

(b) Bristowe v. Whitmore, 9 H.L.Cas. 391.

(c) The Castlegate, (1893) A.C. 38; 62 L.J. P.C. 17; The Orienta, (1895) P. 49; 64 L.J. P. 32. But see The Ripon City, (1897) P. 226; 66 L.J. P. 110; The Elmville, (1904) P. 319; Ceylon Coaling Co. v. Goodrich, (1904) P. 319; 73 L.J. P. 104.

(d) Cleary v. M'Andrew, 2 Moo. P.C. N.S. 216; 33 L.J. Ad. 97.

(e) Hingston v. Wendt, 1 Q.B.D. 367; 45 L.J. Q.B. 440.

(f) Beynon v. Godden, 3 Ex.D. 263; 48 L.J. Ex. 80.

Lien of shipwrights.—A shipwright has a lien on a ship in his dock where he is to be paid in ready money as soon as the repairs are finished and no credit is given (g), and so has a contractor who agrees to furnish engines, &c., to a ship, and even if part of the price is paid he retains his lien for the remainder (h).

Indemnification of agents.—The principal is bound to indemnify his agent in respect of all payments which may be made by the latter in the due course of his employment (i). If the agent has necessarily incurred liabilities and expenses in following out his instructions bonâ fide, he may sue the principal upon an implied promise of indemnity (k); but he cannot resort to the principal for an indemnity against loss which has arisen not in pursuance of his employment or from any wrongful act of the principal (l); nor against the consequences of his own default, wrongful act, or want of skill in the execution of his commission (m); although a general indemnity against all expenses to which he may be put in executing his commission may have been given to him by his employer (n). Nor is he entitled to be indemnified in respect of loss caused not by reason of his having entered into contracts which he was authorised to enter into by his principal, but by reason of his own insolvency (o). If the agent, in the execution of his commission, has been compelled to pay money on behalf of the principal, he is entitled to recover the amount from the latter, whether the principal has or has not been relieved from liability by the payment (p). Where A. employed B. as a broker to buy shares in a company, according to the rules of the Stock Exchange, for a certain account day, and B., in accordance with such rules, paid for and took a transfer of the shares on that day, it was held that A. was bound to repay B. the amount so paid, although before such account day the company was being wound up under 25 & 26 Vict. c. 89, s. 153, which enacted that every transfer of shares should then be void, unless the court otherwise

(g) Raitt v. Mitchell, 4 Campb. 146; Franklin v. Hosier, 4 B. & Ald. 341.

(h) Westlake, In re, Willoughby, Ex parte, 16 Ch.D. 604.

(i) Risbourg v. Bruckner, 3 C.B. N.S. 812; 27 L.J. C.P. 90; Taylor v. Stray, 2 C.B. N.S. 175; 26 L.J. C.P. 287; Westropp v. Solomon, 8 C.B. 345, 369; 19 L.J. C.P. 1.

(k) Adamson v. Jarvis, 4 Bing. 66; 5 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 68; Betts v. Gibbins, 2 Ad. & E. 57; 4 L.J. K.B. 1; Rawlings v. Bell, 1 C.B. 951; 14 L.J. C.P. 265.

(l) Halbronn v. International Horse Agency and Exchange, (1903) 1 K.B. 270; 72 L.J. K.B. 90.

(m) Toplis v. Grane, 5 Bing. N.C. 636, 648; 9 L.J. C.P. 180; Farebrother v. Ansley, 1 Camp. 343, 347.

(n) Ibbett v. De la Salle, 30 L.J. Ex. 44; 6 H. & N. 233.

(o) Duncan v. Hill, L.R. 8 Ex. 242; 42 L.J. Ex. 179. See, however, Hartas v. Ribbons, 22 Q.B.D. 254; 58 L.J. Q.B. 187; Ellis v. Pond, (1898) 1 Q.B. 426; 67 L.J. Q.B. 345.

(p) Brittain v. Lloyd, 14 M. & W. 762; 15 L.J. Ex. 43; Pettman v. Keble, 9 C.B. 701; 19 L.J. C.P. 325.

ordered (q). Where a country stockbroker, instructed to purchase stocks and shares through brokers on the London Stock Exchange, purchased shares of such brokers for a lump sum comprising both the price paid by the brokers to the jobber and the remuneration of the brokers, it was held that he had dealt with the brokers not as agents, but as principals, and therefore not in accordance with his authority, and that he was not entitled to indemnity from his clients (r).

Breach of warranty of authority by agents.—Where an agent pretended to be authorised by a specified firm to purchase a ship on their behalf, and it turned out that he had no authority, and the shipowner was obliged to look out for another purchaser of the vessel, and lost 250*l.* on the re-sale, it was held that the 250*l.* was the measure of damage in an action against the agent for a breach of an implied undertaking that the authority which he professed to have did in point of fact exist (s). Where an agent pretended to be authorised to grant a lease, and it turned out that he had no such authority, it was held that the intended lessee was entitled to recover the value of the lease and all costs paid and incurred by him in endeavouring to enforce specific performance down to the time when the agent disclosed the fact of his want of authority, but not the damages and costs arising out of an agreement for the re-sale by the intended lessee of the lease (t). Where a principal entrusts an agent with securities, and instructs him to raise a certain sum upon them, and the agent borrows a larger sum, and fraudulently appropriates the difference, the principal cannot redeem the securities without paying all that has been lent, although the agent has obtained the loan by fraud, and the lender, though acting bonâ fide, did not know or enquire if the agent had authority to borrow (u).

Damages for breach of warranty of authority—Costs of previous legal proceedings.—A defendant is responsible in damages for the ordinary consequences of the wrong done. So where a land agent professed to have authority from a landowner to let

(q) Chapman v. Shepherd, L.R. 2 C.P. 228; 36 L.J. C.P. 113; Biederman v. Stone, L.R. 2 C.P. 504; 36 L.J. C.P. 198.

(r) Johnson v. Kearley, (1908) 2 K.B. 514; 77 L.J. K.B. 904.

(s) Simons v. Patchett, 7 E. & B. 568; 26 L.J. Q.B. 195; National Coffee Palace Co., In re, Panmure, Ex parte, 24 Ch.D. 367; 53 L.J. Ch. 57; Meek v. Wendt, 21 Q.B.D. 126; affirmed by C.A., W.N. 1889, p. 14; and see, further, as to damages recoverable for false representation of authority by agents, Hughes v. Græme, 33 L.J. Q.B. 335; Pow v. Davis, 1 B. & S. 220; 30 L.J. Q.B. 257; ante, p. 351.

(t) Spedding v. Nevell, L.R. 4 C.P. 212; 38 L.J. C.P. 133; Godwin v. Francis, L.R. 5 C.P. 295; 39 L.J. C.P. 121.

(u) Brocklesby v. Temperance Building Society, (1895) A.C. 173; 64 L.J. Ch. 433; and see Lloyds Bank, Ltd. v. Cooke, (1907) 1 K.B. 794; 76 L.J. K.B. 666.

land, and signed an agreement for a lease, and the landowner repudiated the lease and denied the authority, and the intended tenant, relying on the representation of the agent, filed a bill in Chancery against the landowner for a specific performance of the agreement, and notice of the suit was given to the agent, and the latter failed to withdraw his assertion of authority, he was held liable to pay the costs of the Chancery suit (x). Where shipbrokers employed by shipowners to find freight reported that they had done so, but had not in fact done so, and the shipowners, on learning that they had not done so, continued to employ the ship under a current contract at a lower rate, it was held that the shipowners were not entitled to damages for loss of freight but only for the trouble taken, actual outlay, and the expenses of an abortive action against the intended charterers (y). No person relying on a pretended authority of this sort ought in prudence to take legal proceedings against the supposed principal without giving notice to the pretended agent, and giving him an opportunity of withdrawing or verifying his assertion of authority (z).

Negligence of bank managers.—It is no breach of duty on the part of the manager of a bank to discount bills for companies in which he is interested, provided the advances are made within the scope of his authority and in the ordinary course of business, and no allegation of mala fides can be sustained, nor is he, it seems, under any obligation to disclose to the directors the fact that he is a shareholder in companies keeping accounts with the bank (a). So it is the duty of the shareholder who has sold shares to execute a transfer of them, although the company is winding up, and he will be liable to his broker, who has been obliged by the rules of the Stock Exchange to buy other shares for the purpose of delivery to the purchaser accordingly (b).

SECTION IV.

CONTRACTS FOR CARRIAGE.

Contracts for carriage of merchandise.—Every person who accepts goods for conveyance to a particular destination for (x) Collen v. Wright, 7 E. & B. 311; 8 ib. 647; 26 L.J. Q.B. 147; 27 ib. 215; Spedding v. Nevell, L.R. 4 C.P. 212; 38 L.J. C.P. 133; Randell v. Trimen, 18 C.B. 786; 25 L.J. C.P. 307.

(y) Salvesen v. Rederi Aktiebolaget Nordstjernan, (1905) A.C. 302; 74 L.J. P.C. 96.

(z) Wightman, J., in Collen v. Wright, 26 L.J. Q.B 151.

(a) Bank of Upper Canada v. Bradshaw, L.R. 1 P.C. 479.

(b) Biederman v. Stone, L.R. 2 C.P 504; 36 L.J. C.P. 198.

hire agreed to be paid him for the carriage of them, impliedly lets out his labour and care in return for the hire. Such being the nature of the contract between the parties, the carrier may make a breach by negligently or wilfully omitting to take care, and an action may be brought for the breach of contract; or such negligent or wilful act may be treated as a "tort," regarding it as a breach of duty imposed by law upon the carrier. The cases upon the subject are somewhat conflicting (c). Of course the parties may, and in most cases practically do, enter into a specific contract of carriage, and their rights are then governed by the express terms of such contract, and the implied terms which the law will infer; but apart from any special contract, there is in every case of carriage for reward a contract between the parties.

Contracts of affreightment Charter-parties.—The execution of a formal contract is not requisite for the contract of affreightment (d). But goods to be carried at sea from one place to another are usually shipped under a charter-party or a bill of lading. A charter-party is a contract whereby the shipowner or the shipmaster covenants or agrees for the use of the ship by the charterer for some specified period of time, or for a particular voyage or adventure. The contract derives its name from the Latin charta partita, there being anciently as many divided parts of the contract as there were parties to it, each party having his part as a security against fraud or mistake. The customary stipulations on the part of the shipowner or master are, that the ship shall be tight and staunch, well equipped and manned, and furnished with all the necessaries for the voyage; that she shall be ready by a day appointed to receive the cargo, shall wait a certain number of days to take it on board, and, after lading, shall sail without unnecessary delay for the destined port, and there (e) deliver the goods in proper order and condition to the order of the charterer. The charterer, on the other hand, usually covenants to load the ship after she shall be ready to receive her cargo, unload her within a certain number of days, and pay freight at so much per ton according to the tonnage of the vessel, or according to the quantity of goods shipped on board, or according to the time of the ship's employment. Primâ facie, the law of the place where a contract is made is that which the parties are presumed to have adopted as the footing upon which they dealt. But a contract of affreightment made between a charterer and shipowner of different nationalities in a place where they are both foreigners may, under some circumstances, be construed by the law of the nation of the ship (f).

(c) See Alton v. Midland Ry., 19 C.B. N.S. 213; 34 L.J. C.P. 292; Marshall v. Y. & N. Ry., 11 C.B. 655; 21 L.J. C.P. 34; Austin v. G. W. Ry., L.R. 2 Q.B. 442; 36 L.J. Q.B. 201; Berringer v. G. E. Ry., 4 C.P.D. 163; 48 L.J. C.P. 400; Fleming v. M. S. & L. Ry., 4 Q.B.D. 81; Foulkes v. Met. Ry., 5 C.P.D. 157; 49 L.J. C.P. 361.

(d) Rederi Aktiebolaget Nordstjernan v. Salvesen & Co., (1903) 6 F. 64; Lidgett v. Williams, 4 Hare, 456.

(e) Or it may be as near thereto as the ship may safely get: Capper v. Wallace, 5 Q.B.D. 163; 49 L.J. Q.B. 50; Dahl v. Nelson, 6 App.Cas. 38; 50 L.J. Ch. 411; Horsley v. Price, 11 Q.B.D. 244; 52 L.J. Q.B. 603.

Possession of ship.—Although the shipowner, by the charter-party, expressly grants or demises the vessel to be used by the charterer, the contract will, nevertheless, not amount in general to a demise or bailment of the ship to the charterer, so as to clothe him with the possession of the vessel, but simply to a contract for the use of the ship, together with the services of the master and crew (g). The important matter to be considered in each case is the language of the charter-party. So, if the intention of the parties appears to have been that the vessel should be absolutely under the control, and subject to the orders and directions, of the charterer; if she was to be employed in warfare, or in the fishing or coasting trade, or as a general ship for the conveyance of merchandise by the charterer for third parties, and to be at his general disposal for any service, the courts may give effect to the contract as a demise of the ship (h).

Parties to charter-parties.—If the parties have contracted by deed, the contract is with those who have executed the instrument, and covenanted therein in their own names, or by some known title or description. If the charter-party has been entered into and executed by the owners alone, they alone are liable upon it; whilst, if the master enters into and executes the contract in his own name the contract is with him alone. If the charter-party contains covenants both on the part of the owners and the master for the conveyance of the cargo, and has been executed by both, either the owners or the master are responsible at the election of the covenantee (i). Where the master is also part owner of the vessel, negligence on his part exclusively as master will fall within an exception of "neglect and default of master in navigating the ship" (k). Shipbrokers

(f) Lloyd v. Guibert, L.R. 1 Q.B. 115; 35 L.J. Q.B. 74; The Gaetano, 7 P.D. 137; 51 L.J. P. 67.

(g) Christie v. Lewis, 5 Moore, 253; 2 B. & B. 410; Saville v. Campion, 2 B. & Ald. 510; Dean v. Hogg, 4 M. & Sc. 195; 3 L.J. C.P. 113; Omoa and Cleland Coal and Iron Co. v. Huntley, 2 C.P.D. 464; Weir v. Union S.S. Co., (1900) A.C. 525; 69 L.J. Q.B. 809.

(h) Trinity House v. Clark, 4 M. & S. 295, 299; Hutton v. Bragg, 7 Taunt. 14.

(i) Repetto v. Millar's Karri and Jarrah Forests, Ltd., (1901) 2 K.B. 306, 310; 70 L.J. K.B. 561.

(k) Westport Coal Co. v. McPhail, (1898) 2 Q.B. 130; 67 L.J. Q.B. 674.

contracting as agents, though in fact they had no principals and were themselves the principals, have been held entitled to sue upon the contract entered into by them (l).

When a charter-party of affreightment operates as a demise or bailment of the ship to the charterer, and the vessel is employed by the latter as a general ship for the conveyance of merchandise, the charterer becomes the carrier of the goods shipped, and the master is his servant and agent whilst procuring freight and contracting with third parties for the carriage of merchandise, and not the agent of the shipowners; the latter, consequently, cannot be made responsible for the loss of, or injury to, the goods shipped under such contract (m). So the master may be agent of the charterer for some purposes and agent of the shipowners for other purposes, and in respect of his acts in the latter capacity the shipowners will be bound (n). So the contract may provide that the shipowner is not to be liable for the master's negligence (o). If the charter-party operates merely as a contract between the charterer and the shipowners for the conveyance by the latter of goods and merchandise to be shipped by the charterer, the shipowners are the carriers of the goods, and will be responsible to the charterer for the non-conveyance of them. If the ship is put up as a general ship, without any intimation that she is under charter, and third parties ship goods and take bills of lading from the master, the owners will be responsible for the proper stowage and safe carriage of the goods so shipped. In such a case if the master refuses to sign bills of lading, except "as per charter-party," the shipper cannot be compelled to accept such bills, but may insist on having his goods returned (p). Although the shipowners are not parties to a charter-party, entered into by the master in his own name on their behalf, yet they are responsible for a breach of those duties and obligations which attach to them in their character of carriers, independently of the charter-party. Thus, where the owners of a vessel employed an unskilful master, through whose negligence the cargo was lost, they were held responsible for the loss, although the shipment was under a charter-party executed by the master, who cove-

(l) Harper & Co. v. Vigers Bros., (1909) 2 K.B. 549; 78 L.J. K.B. 876.

(m) James v. Jones, 3 Esp. 27; Major v. White, 7 C. & P. 41; ante, p. 341; Colvin v. Newberry, 1 Cl. & F. 283, 297.

(n) Turner v. Haji Goolam Mahomed Azam, (1904) A.C. 826; 74 L.J. P.C. 17.

(o) Krüger & Co. v. Moel Tryvan Ship Co., (1907) A.C. 272; 76 L.J. K.B. 985.

(p) Peek v. Larsen, L.R. 12 Eq. 378; 40 L.J. Ch. 763; see Jones v. Hough, 5 Ex.D. 115; 49 L.J. Ex. 211; Rayner v. Rederiaktiebolaget Condor, (1895) 2 Q.B. 289; 64 L.J. Q.B. 540.

nanted to convey the cargo to its destination (q). Where there is a breach of the contract of affreightment, an action for the breach of such contract, and of the implied promises and engagements resulting from the acceptance of goods to be carried for hire, lies either against the owners who appoint the master to the command of the vessel, and constitute him their agent for the employment of the ship, or against the master who has accepted the goods to be carried, whether the contract is expressed to be made, or whether the goods have been accepted by the master, in his own name only, or for and on behalf of his principals and employers; but, when the plaintiff has elected to proceed against and has sued one, the other is discharged (r). An agent is not ordinarily liable upon simple contracts entered into by him in a representative character on behalf of his principal; but the master of a ship is considered to be something more than a mere agent, and is made responsible accordingly (s).

Performance of terms and conditions of contract.—If, by a charter-party, a shipowner agrees that his ship shall sail to a "safe port" to take in a cargo, the naming of a "safe port" is a condition precedent to the shipowner's liability to send out the vessel (t). The voyage begins from the time the vessel breaks ground to proceed to her place of loading; so that, if the charter-party contains the usual exception of dangers and accidents of seas, rivers, and navigation during the voyage, and the vessel is delayed or hindered by foul weather in getting there, the delay is within the exception (u). Where by the terms of a charter-party the cargo was to be loaded from the shore "at ship's risk," and, through one of the perils excepted, a part of the cargo was lost between the shore and the ship, it was held that the words "ship's risk" did not mean absolute risk, but that the risk was subject to the same exceptions as if the goods were loaded on board (x). If the shipowner agrees that the vessel shall leave England on or before a particular day to bring back a cargo from a foreign port, or that she shall arrive at a foreign port by a particular day and shall be ready to receive cargo, the departure or arrival of the vessel at the time

(q) Leslie v. Wilson, 6 Moore, 429; 3 Br. & B. 171; Fletcher v. Braddick, 2 Bos. & P. N.R. 186; Fenton v. Dublin St. P. Co., 8 Ad. & E. 843; 8 L.J. Q.B. 28.

(r) Priestley v. Fernie, 3 H. & C. 977; 34 L.J. Ex. 172.

(s) Boson v. Sandford, 1 Show. 101, 104; Morse v. Slue, 1 Ventr. 190, 238; Liver Alkali Co. v. Johnson, L.R. 9 Ex. 38; 43 L.J. Ex. 216.

(t) Rae v. Hackett, 12 M. & W. 724; 13 L.J. Ex. 216.

(u) Barker v. M'Andrew, 18 C.B. N.S. 759; 34 L.J. C.P. 191; The Carron Park, 15 P.D. 203; 59 L.J. P. 74; Traae and Lennard, In re (S.S. Rikard Nordraak), (1904) 2 K.B. 377; 73 L.J. K.B. 553.

(x) Nottebohn v. Richter, 18 Q.B.D. 63; 56 L.J. Q.B. 35.

specified may constitute a condition precedent to the freighter's liability to provide the cargo, and use the ship, and pay freight (y). Whether it will do so or not depends on the intention of the parties, to be gathered from the language they have used, and that intention may be inferred from the consequences of the breach; so that, if the delay entirely defeats the object of the freighter in taking up the vessel, the agreement for departure or arrival by a certain day will be a condition precedent (z). The phrase "load in regular turn" usually refers to the regulations of the port of loading, but may have a different meaning, e.g., load in regular turn of a particular colliery (a). Where, by charter-party, the freighter covenanted to pay freight at a specified rate, so much of the freight as might be earned at the time of the arrival of the ship at her first destined port abroad to be paid within ten days after arrival there, and the remainder at stated periods, it was held that the arrival of the ship at her first destined port abroad was a condition precedent to the owner's right to recover any freight (b). The contract may provide for alternative modes of performance; but where a bill of lading provided that goods were to be taken from the ship by the consignees (at their expense) immediately after arrival and as fast as steamer can deliver, or the same will be transhipped into lighters, or landed, or warehoused at the expense and risk of the proprietors of such goods, that was held not to deprive the shipowner of his ordinary remedy for breach of the bill of lading (c). A shipowner by entering into a charter-party impliedly undertakes that the ship shall be reasonably fit for the carriage of a reasonable cargo of any of the kinds of goods specified in the charter-party (d); and if the ship is not so fit, and cannot be made so in such a time as not to frustrate the object of the voyage, the charterer may decline to put a cargo on board, and may maintain an action against the shipowner (e). No cargo-carrying steamship can be considered to be seaworthy

(y) Glaholm v. Hays, 2 Sc. N.R. 471; 10 L.J. C.P. 98; Shadforth v. Higgin, 3 Campb. 385; Lovatt v. Hamilton, 5 M. & W. 644; Oliver v. Fielden, 4 Exch. 135; 18 L.J. Ex. 353; Crockewit v. Fletcher, 1 H. & N. 912; 26 L.J. Ex. 153; Behn v. Burness, 3 B. & S. 759; 32 L.J. Q.B. 204.

(z) McAndrew v. Chapple, L.R. 1 C.P. 843; 35 L.J. C.P. 281.

(a) Barque Quilpué, Ltd. v. Brown, (1904) 2 K.B. 264; 73 L.J. K.B. 596.

(b) Graves v. Legg, 9 Exch. 717; 23 L.J. Ex. 231.

(c) The Arne, (1904) P. 154; 73 L.J. P. 34.

(d) Cohn v. Davidson, 2 Q.B.D. 455; 46 L.J. Q.B. 305; Queensland National Bank v. P. & O. S. Navigation Co., (1898) 1 Q.B. 567; 67 L.J. Q.B. 402; Rathbone Bros. v. McIver, Sons & Co., 72 L.J. K.B. 703; McFadden v. Blue Star Line, (1905) 1 K.B. 697; 74 L.J. K.B. 423; Nelson Line (Liverpool) v. Jas. Nelson & Sons, (1908) A.C. 16; 77 L.J. K.B. 82.

(e) Stanton v. Richardson, L.R. 9 C.P. 390; 43 L.J. C.P. 230; Tully v. Howling, 2 Q.B.D. 182; 46 L.J. Q.B. 388.

if she cannot have on board such an equipment of coal as will be sufficient to take her to the port of destination (f). Where plaintiffs chartered defendants' ship to load a full and complete cargo and owing to defendants taking on board at the first port of discharge bunker coal intended for use on a prospective voyage and in consequence the ship had to be lightened at the next port of discharge in order to get over the bar, the defendants were held liable to recoup the plaintiffs the expense incurred by them in lightening the ship (g). The unseaworthiness of the ship must be the proximate cause of the damage, however, and damage sustained by a cargo owner from a peril of the sea excepted in the contract of affreightment cannot be claimed for on the ground of the unseaworthiness (h). Where certain dangers during the voyage were excepted, and by a separate clause the charterers were to have the option of cancelling the charter-party if the ship did not arrive ready to load on a certain date, and the ship arrived at the date, but in consequence of the excepted dangers was not ready to load, it was held that the exception clause applied only to the voyage, and not to the readiness to load, and that the charterers might cancel the charter-party (i). Provisions in a charter-party made "for owners' and charterers' equal benefit" must be construed with reference to what each has contributed towards securing the benefit (k).

Representations in charter-parties.—If a vessel is described in a charter-party as A 1, it is a warranty that she is A 1 at the time the description is given, but not that she shall continue so, or retain the same letter on her arrival at the port of loading (l). A representation in a charter-party that the ship is "now at sea, having sailed three weeks ago," is a warranty (m); and describing her as "the steamship H." is a warranty that the principal motive power is steam (n); but a representation that she is 180 tons when she is 200 is mere description and not a warranty (o). A statement in a charter-

(f) The Vortigern, (1899) P. 140, 153; 68 L.J. P. 49. It makes no difference that the charterer is to provide and pay for the coal: McIver & Co. v. Tate Steamers, (1903) 1 K.B. 362; 72 L.J. K.B. 253.

(g) Darling v. Raeburn, (1907) 1 K.B. 846; 76 L.J. K.B. 570.

(h) The Europa, (1908) P. 84; 77 L.J. P. 26.

(i) Smith v. Dart & Son, 14 Q.B.D. 105; 54 L.J. Q.B. 121. As to the duration of a voyage, see The Accomac, 15 P.D. 208; 59 L.J. P. 91.

(k) Booker & Co. v. Pocklington S.S. Co., (1899) 2 Q.B. 690; 69 L.J. Q.B. 10.

(l) Hurst v. Usborne, 18 C.B. 144; 25 L.J. C.P. 209; Routh v. Macmillan, 33 L.J. Ex. 38; 2 H. & C. 750; French v. Newgass, 3 C.P.D. 163; 47 L.J. C.P. 361.

(m) Ollive v. Booker, 1 Exch. 416; 17 L.J. Ex. 21.

(n) Fraser v. Telegraph Construction Co., L.R. 7 Q.B. 566; 41 L.J. Q.B. 249.

(o) Barker v. Windle, 6 E. & B. 675; 25 L.J. Q.B. 349.

party that the ship is expected to be at Alexandria about the 15th December is a warranty that she is then in such a place and under such engagement as that she may reasonably be expected to be at Alexandria about the day named (p). Whenever a descriptive statement in a charter-party is intended to be a substantive part of the contract, it will be construed as a warranty. In some cases, non-performance by the party making it will entitle the other party to repudiate the contract in toto; in other cases, it will only give a claim to compensation in damages for a breach of contract (q).

Where the charter-party stipulated that the ship should load "a cargo of ore, say about 2,800 tons," and the ship could carry 2,880 tons, it was held that charterer fulfilled his contract by loading 2,840 tons (r). Where it was provided that the ship should load "a cargo of sleepers and timbers," the charterer to "have the option of shipping 100 to 200 tons of general cargo," and the owners guaranteed "the ship to carry at least about 90,000 cubic feet, or 1,500 tons dead weight of cargo," it was held that the latter clause did not amount to a warranty to carry 90,000 cubic feet of sleepers and timbers, but only to a warranty of the carrying capacity of the ship (s).

Substantial performance of conditions precedent.—Where the plaintiff let his ship to the defendants to take a cargo on board and make delivery thereof at Naples to the agents of the defendants, and then to receive on board a return cargo, and the defendants, in consideration of the premises, agreed to provide a complete homeward cargo and pay freight, but the cargo received was seized on arrival by the Neapolitan Government, it was held that the material part of the agreement was the letting of the ship and the making of the voyage, which had been performed, and that the defendants were bound to provide the return cargo and pay the freight (t). And so, whenever a covenant is not a condition precedent to the liability of the defendants but a distinct and independent covenant, the plaintiffs will be liable in damages for the breach of it (u).

Time of performance.—If the vessel is to proceed to a par-

(p) Corkling v. Massey, L.R. 8 C.P. 395; 42 L.J. C.P. 153.

(q) Behn v. Burness, 3 B. & S. 753; 32 L.J. Q.B. 204; Neill v. Whitworth, 34 L.J. C.P. 155; 18 C.B. N.S. 435; Mackill v. Wright Brothers, 14 App.Cas. 106; Bentsen v. Taylor, (1893) 2 Q.B. 274; 63 L.J. Q.B. 15.

(r) Miller v. Borner, (1900) 1 Q.B. 691; 69 L.J. Q.B. 429; cp. Morris v. Levison, 1 C.P.D. 155; 45 L.J. C.P. 409.

(s) Carnegie v. Connor, 24 Q.B.D. 45; 59 L.J. Q.B. 122.

(t) Storer v. Gordon, 3 M. & S. 308.

(u) Fothergill v. Walton, 8 Taunt. 576; 2 Moore, 630; Stavers v. Curling, 3 Sc. 740; 6 L.J. C.P. 41; Pust v. Dowie, 34 L.J. Q.B. 127; 5 B. & S. 33; Behn v. Burness, 3 B. & S. 753; 32 L.J. Q.B. 204; and supra, note (q).

ticular port and there load a full cargo, the loading must be completed or be capable of being completed within a reasonable time (x); and, if extraordinary circumstances arise preventing the merchant from doing what he has undertaken to do, he must make compensation in damages, as he ought to have provided against the unforeseen contingency by his contract (y). A delay will not be considered unreasonable, however, which has arisen from a contingency the possibility of which was known to and in the contemplation of both parties to the contract (z). Where neither party is ready to perform his undertaking because both are prevented by some superior power, neither party can maintain an action against the other (a). An engagement to load with "the usual dispatch of the port" is absolute, and admits of no qualification to dispense with performance even where the performance is hindered by a casualty which the charterer could not prevent (b). Such an engagement covers the whole period from the time when the vessel is placed at the disposal of the charterer at the port in a condition to receive her cargo (c). If parties by advertisement hold out that they are ready to guarantee that a vessel shall sail on a particular day, and an intending passenger takes a berth on the strength of the assurance, the time named will be of the essence of the contract (d). But this is not the case, if merchandise is taken on board, and the vessel carries it to the place of destination. Where, by charter-party, the plaintiff covenanted that the vessel should sail with the next wind on a voyage to Cadiz, and the defendant covenanted that if the ship went the intended voyage, and returned to the Downs, the plaintiff should have so much by way of freight for the voyage, the substance of the covenant was considered to be that the ship should perform the intended voyage, and not merely that she should sail with the next wind, which might change every hour (e). As to abandon-

(x) The Savona, (1900) P. 252; 69 L.J. P. 95. As to what is a reasonable time, see Carlton S.S. Co. v. Castle Mail Packets Co., (1898) A.C. 486, 491; 67 L.J. Q.B. 795.

(y) Adams v. Royal Mail St. P. Co., 5 C.B. N.S. 497; 28 L.J. C.P. 33; Ford v. Cotesworth, L.R. 5 Q.B. 544; 39 L.J. Q.B. 188; Dahl v. Nelson, 6 App.Cas. 38; 50 L.J. Ch. 511. See post, p. 1002.

(z) Carlton S.S. Co. v. Castle Mail Packets Co., (1898) A.C. 486; 67 L.J. Q.B. 795; Barque Quilpué, Ltd. v. Brown, (1904) 2 K.B. 264; 73 L.J. K.B. 596; Jones, Ltd. v. Green & Co., (1904) 2 K.B. 275; 73 L.J. K.B. 601.

(a) Cunningham v. Dunn, 3 C.P.D. 443; 48 L.J. C.P. 62; Ford v. Cotesworth, L.R. 5 Q.B. 544; 39 L.J. Q.B. 188.

(b) Kearon v. Pearson, 7 H. & N. 386; 31 L.J. Ex. 1.

(c) Ashcroft v. Crow Orchard Colliery Co., L.R. 9 Q.B. 540; 43 L.J. Q.B. 194. See, however, the cases post, p. 1004.

(d) Cranston v. Marshall, 5 Exch. 395; 19 L.J. Ex. 340.

(e) Constable v. Cloberie, Palm. 397; Bornmann v. Tooke, 1 Campb. 377; Davidson v. Gwynne, 12 East, 380; Hall v. Cazenove, 4 East, 477; Havelock v. Geddes, 10 East, 564.

ment of the charter-party on the ship not being got fit within a reasonable time, see ante, p. 974.

If a shipowner covenants generally that a ship shall sail to a particular port, and there take on board a cargo to be provided by the charterer, the sailing of the vessel direct and without any deviation or delay to the appointed port is not a condition precedent to the charterer's liability to provide and ship the cargo; but, if the delay has been unreasonable, and the charterer has thereby lost all the benefit of the voyage, and been prevented from procuring the cargo, he will then be released from his liability upon the contract (f). As to limitation of time for discharge of cargo, see post, p. 1002.

Mode of performance—Complete cargo.—The performance of a contract that a vessel shall sail to a foreign port, and there load a particular cargo, is to be regulated, as regards the loading of the cargo, by the custom and usage of the port where the cargo is to be taken on board (g). But neglect to load is one thing and failure to provide a cargo to load is another and different thing, and if the latter kind of breach of contract has occurred where there was an absolute obligation to furnish a stipulated cargo the charterers will not be excused by reason of obstacles imposed by regulations of the port (h). At the same time, when the source from which a cargo is to come is expressly defined, no time being fixed for loading, the charterer may not always be absolutely bound to have the cargo ready for loading whenever it may be reasonably expected that there will be a berth for the ship (i). If the charterer has agreed to load the ship with a full and complete cargo (k), he is bound, in certain cases, to fill up the interstices with broken stowage (l). The obligation to supply any ballast that may be necessary for the safe navigation of the ship rests, however, on the shipowner (m).

(f) Clipsham v. Vertue, 5 Q.B. 265; 13 L.J. Q.B. 2; Tarrabochia v. Hickie, 1 H. & N. 183; 26 L.J. Ex. 26; Hurst v. Usborne, 18 C.B. 144; 25 L.J. C.P. 209; Jackson v. Union Mar. Ins., L.R. 10 C.P. 125; 44 L.J. C.P. 27; Dahl v. Nelson, 6 App.Cas. 38, 53; 50 L.J. Ch. 511.

(g) Cuthbert v. Cumming, 11 Exch. 408; 24 L.J. Ex. 310; Hudson v. Clementson, 18 C.B. 213; 25 L.J. C.P. 234.

(h) Ardan S.S. Co. v. Andrew Weir & Co., (1905) A.C. 501; 74 L.J. P.C. 143.

(i) Per Vaughan Williams, L.J., in Jones, Ltd. v. Green & Co., (1904) 2 K.B. 275, 280; 73 L.J. K.B. 601; distinguishing Grant v. Coverdale, 9 App.Cas. 470; 53 L.J. Q.B. 462.

(k) This must be interpreted with reference to the nature of the cargo shipped: see S.S. Isis Co. v. Bahr, (1900) A.C. 340; 69 L.J. Q.B. 660. As to what is reasonable performance of the obligation to provide a cargo, see Morris v. Levison, 1 C.P.D. 155; 45 L.J. C.P. 409; Dobell v. Green & Co., (1900) 1 Q.B. 526; 69 L.J. Q.B. 454; Miller v. Borner & Co., (1900) 1 Q.B. 691; 69 L.J. Q.B. 429; Jardine, Mathieson & Co. v. Clyde Ship. Co., (1910) 1 K.B. 627; 79 L.J. K.B. 634.

(l) Cole v. Meek, 15 C.B. N.S. 795; 33 L.J. C.P. 183. The stowage of coals with machinery is not proper stowage: Mackill v. Wright Bros., 14 App.Cas. 106.

(m) Moorsom v. Page, 4 Campb. 103; Irving v. Clegg, 1 Bing. N.C. 53; 3 L.J. C.P. 265; Weir v. Union S.S. Co., (1900) A.C. 525; 69 L.J. Q.B. 809.

It is the duty of the owner of a vessel to stow the cargo with as much skill as a competent stevedore can do; but he is not responsible to the charterer, when the stevedore is appointed by the latter, although it is provided that he is to act under the master's orders; for such a provision only means that the master is to have a general control over the stevedore, so as to secure the proper trim and safety of the ship (n).

Impossibility of performance.—It is a rule of law that, whenever a party enters into an absolute and unqualified contract to do some particular act, impossibility of performance occasioned by inevitable accident, or by some unforeseen occurrence over which he has no control, will not release him from his contract (o). So, if a shipowner has covenanted to procure and ship a cargo of guano, corn, or timber at a specified port, the circumstance that no guano, corn, or timber was procurable at that port (p), or that its exportation had been prohibited (q), or that there were insufficient facilities for the loading of it (r), or that the loading of it was prevented by an embargo (s), or by the existence of a strike (t), or by want of water (u), or by the plague (x), will not constitute an answer to an action for the non-performance of the contract. But where both parties were aware that circumstances might render performance impossible, they may be taken to have intended that non-performance through the occurrence of such circumstances should be excused (y). Where a charter-party excepts certain matters and also "other causes beyond charterer's control," the latter words will be construed to refer to matters ejusdem generis with the antecedent exceptions (z), but it will not be so where the words are "of what kind soever" (a). The doctrine of constructive loss does not apply to contracts between shipowner and charterer but only as between the underwriter and the assured; therefore, where a shipowner who had agreed that his ship "shall proceed" to a certain port put into another port for repairs, and then abandoned the voyage without the consent of the charterer, he was held liable for damages unless it could be shown either to (n) Blaikie v. Stembridge, 6 C.B. N.S. 909; 28 L.J. C.P. 329.

(o) See ante, p. 147.

(p) Hills v. Sughrue, 15 M. & W. 261; Kirk v. Gibbs, 1 H. & N. 815; 26 L.J. Ex. 209.

(q) Blight v. Page, 3 Bos. & P. 295, n.

(r) Ardan S.S. Co. v. Andrew Weir & Co., (1905) A.C. 501; 74 L.J. P.C. 143.

(s) Sjoerds v. Luscombe, 16 East, 201.

(t) Dobell v. Green & Co., (1900) 1 Q.B. 526; 69 L.J. Q.B. 454.

(u) Schilizzi v. Derry, 4 E. & B. 886; 24 L.J. Q.B. 193.

(x) Barker v. Hodgson, 3 M. & S. 267; Bute (Marquis) v. Thompson, 13 M. & W. 487; 14 L.J. Ex. 95.

(y) Carlton S.S. Co. v. Castle Mail Packets Co., (1898) A.C. 486; 67 L.J. Q.B. 795.

(z) Richardsons and Samuel & Co., In re, (1898) 1 Q.B. 261; 66 L.J. Q.B. 868; Thorman v. Dowgate S.S. Co., (1910) 1 K.B. 410; 79 L.J. K.B. 287.

(a) Larsen v. Sylvester & Co., (1908) A.C. 295; 77 L.J. K.B. 993.

be physically impossible to complete the voyage or so unreasonable as to be impossible from a business point of view (b). Where a vessel after sailing under charter with coals put into a port of refuge and after necessary repairs were completed the shipowner refused to reload the coal because in fact it could not safely be reshipped the charterer was held not entitled to recover for breach of contract, the shipowner not being obliged to wait an indefinite period until there should be no further risk (c).

Authority of agents of ship-charterers.—The agent of the charterer of a ship, to whom the ship is addressed for loading under a charter-party, has no implied authority to substitute a different voyage from that which is stipulated for by the charter-party, and cannot by agreement with the shipmaster substitute a different port of loading, or a different quality or description of cargo, from that prescribed by the charter-party (d).

Carriage of merchandise under bills of lading.—When the use of an entire vessel, or a certain amount of stowage therein, is not contracted for, but the merchant or owner of goods merely sends certain parcels or packages of goods on board, to be conveyed to the port of destination, the master or commander of the vessel, or some person acting for him, usually gives a receipt for them, and the master afterwards signs and delivers to the merchant sometimes two and sometimes three parts of a bill of lading (ante, p. 589), of which the merchant commonly sends one or two to his agent, factor, or other person to whom the goods are to be delivered at the place of destination: that is, one on board the ship with the goods, another by the post or other conveyance, and one he retains for his own security (e). The bill of lading is a written or printed memorandum, signed by the master, acknowledging the shipment of the goods, and promising to deliver them at the port of destination to the consignee named, or his assigns, on payment of freight, primage, and average, "the act of God, the king's enemies, fire, and all and every other dangers and accidents of the seas, rivers, and navigation of whatever nature and kind soever excepted." The master, who thus acknowledges the receipt of the goods, and promises to carry and deliver them, is personally responsible for the fulfilment of his engagement; and the shipowner or charterer, who receives the fruit and earnings of the ship, is also liable upon

(b) Assicurazioni Generali v. Bessie Morris S.S. Co., (1892) 2 Q.B. 652; 61 L.J. Q.B. 754.

(c) The Sarona, (1900) P. 252; 69 L.J. P. 95.

(d) Sickens v. Irving, 7 C.B.N.S. 165; 29 L.J. C.P. 25.

(e) Abbott on Shipping, 469 (ed. 14); but see remarks of Ld. Blackburn in Glyn, Mills & Co. v. East and West India Dock Co., 7 App.Cas. 591, 605.

the bill of lading, although he is not named therein (f). It is the master's duty before signing the bills to see that the dates of shipment are correctly stated in them, and the employment by the ship's owners of brokers to arrange the terms upon which the cargo is to be carried does not relieve him from this duty (g). Delivery to the shipowner's servants alongside the vessel is equivalent to a delivery on board (h). The duty to deliver the goods under a bill of lading arises on presentment of the bill; and, if it is not presented to the master on the arrival of the ship at her place of destination, the master is not bound to keep the goods for an indefinite time on board his ship, but may deliver them to any trustworthy person to be kept until the bill of lading is presented (i). A bill of lading signed by the master in his own name is not conclusive upon the shipowner as to the shipment of the goods mentioned therein (k), provided the latter can prove affirmatively that the whole or some part of the goods were not in fact shipped (l). But shipowners have been held to be estopped from denying the truth of the master's statement in the bill of lading "shipped in good order and condition," where the purchasers had altered their position and acted to their own prejudice on the faith of that representation (m). The charter-party may provide that the bill of lading shall be conclusive evidence of the quantity shipped (n). And it is so in the hands of a consignee or indorsee for valuable consideration, as against the master or other person signing the same, notwithstanding such goods, or some part thereof, may not have been shipped, unless the holder of the bill of lading had actual notice at the time of receiving it, that the goods were not in fact on board. The master or other person signing may, however, exonerate himself in respect of such misrepresentation by showing that it was caused without default on his part, and wholly by the fraud of the shipper, or of the holder, or of some person under whom the holder claims (o).

(f) Cannan v. Meaburn, 8 Moore, 127; 2 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 60.

(g) Stumore, Weston & Co. v. Breen, 12 App.Cas. 698; 56 L.J. Q.B. 401.

(h) British Columbia and Vancouver Island Spar, Lumber and Saw Mill Co., Ltd. v. Nettleship, L.R. 3 C.P. 499; 37 L.J. C.P. 237.

(i) Howard v. Shepherd, 19 L.J. C.P. 255; 9 C.B. 321; and see the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, 57 & 58 Vict. c. 60, s. 493, post, p. 992.

(k) Grant v. Norway, 10 C.B. 687; 20 L.J. C.P. 93; Hubbersty v. Ward, 8 Exch. 334; 22 L.J. Ex. 113; Jessel v. Bath, L.R. 2 Ex. 267; 36 L.J. Ex. 149; Brown v. Powell Duffryn Coal Co., L.R. 10 C.P. 562; 44 L.J. C.P. 289; Cox v. Bruce, 18 Q.B.D. 147; 56 L.J. Q.B. 121.

(l) Smith & Co. v. Bedouin St. Nav. Co., (1896) A.C. 70; 65 L.J. P.C. 8.

(m) Compania Naviera Vasconzada v. Churchill and Sim, (1906) 1 K.B. 237; 75 L.J. K.B. 94.

(n) Lishman v. Christie, 19 Q.B.D. 333; 56 L.J. Q.B. 538.

(o) 18 & 19 Vict. c. 111, s. 3. See Parsons v. New Zealand Shipping Co., (1901) 1 Q.B. 548; 70 L.J. K.B. 404.

The person actually putting the goods on board is the shipper, and the expression "wholly," &c., only means that the master or other persons signing must not in any way be mixed up with the fraud (p). The consignee has no right to deduct from the freight payable on delivery of goods the value of articles which, though mentioned in the bill of lading, turn out not to have been put on board (q).

Countermand of the shipment—Re-delivery to the consignor. When goods have been shipped by a charterer or consignor to be carried and delivered to the consignee, pursuant to a contract of sale, or under bills of lading, or under any contract by which the ownership and right of property in the goods have been transferred to the consignee or some third party, the consignor's power over the goods is gone, and he cannot lawfully countermand the consignment and require the goods to be delivered back to him. He cannot, after he has ceased to be owner of them, stop them in transitu, and prevent their delivery to the consignee, unless the latter has become bankrupt (ante, p. 608). But, if the goods are merely addressed to the consignor's agent for sale, or under circumstances which do not divest the consignor of his ownership and right of property in the goods, he may countermand the consignment and require the goods to be returned to him, subject to the following qualifications and restrictions. The goods must be demanded back a convenient time before the period appointed for the ship's sailing, and the demand must be accompanied by a tender of the freight, and of the reasonable costs and charges of the re-shipment and re-delivery of the goods, and the demand must appear to have been made at a time when it was reasonably in the power of the master to comply with it, without injury to the cargo or the property of other parties on board, and without creating delay in sailing (r). An owner of goods shipped to proceed to a foreign port has a right to have them re-delivered to him when the vessel, having commenced her voyage, meets with a disaster, whereby the goods are damaged so much that they cannot be profitably carried to their destination (s).

Loss or damage by the way.—Whenever a party has absolutely contracted to carry cargoes or merchandise from one place to another, subject to certain express exceptions, he has impliedly contracted to carry them safely (t); and the circum-

(p) Valieri v. Boyland, L.R. 1 C.P. 382; 35 L.J. C.P. 215.

(q) Meyer v. Dresser, 16 C.B. N.S. 646; 33 L.J. C.P. 289; ante, pp. 63, 591.

(r) Thompson v. Small, 1 C.B. 328; 14 L.J. C.P. 157.

(s) Blasco v. Fletcher, 14 C.B. N.S. 147; 32 L.J. C.P. 284.

(t) Rogers v. Head, Cro.Jac. 262; Matthews v. Hopping, 1 Keb. 852.

stance that he has been prevented from fulfilling his contract by some casualty or inevitable accident, e.g., by seizure by revenue authorities, will constitute no answer to an action brought against him for the recovery of damages for the breach of contract, if the casualty has not been expressly provided against by the contract (u). If the vessel becomes disabled, and gets to port in a sinking state, the master is bound to tranship and forward the cargo, if he has the means of transhipment at hand (x), and is allowed a reasonable time to do so (y); but, if the vessel is wrecked, and the master has no means of transhipment (z), and no prospect of obtaining any, or if the cargo is of a perishable nature, and cannot be transhipped and forwarded to the place of destination without risk of serious injury or total destruction, he is then clothed with an implied authority from the owners of such cargo to do the best he can with it for their benefit; and if, being unable to communicate with the owner, he acts bonâ fide with ordinary diligence, forethought, and prudence, he exempts his employers, the shipowners, from all liability for the loss (a). But where there is no urgent necessity for selling the goods, and the master can communicate with the owners, he must not sell without leave of the owners (b), or such sale will be void (c). There is a duty on the master of a ship as representing the shipowner to take reasonable care of the goods entrusted to him, both so as to preserve them on board the ship during the ordinary incidents of the voyage, and also so as when reasonably practicable under all the circumstances to check the loss resulting from accidents, for the necessary and immediate consequences of which the shipowner is not liable by reason of exceptions in the bill of lading; and for neglect of this duty by the master, the shipowner is responsible to the shipper (d). He must exercise his discretion whether he can carry on the cargo without risk to the ship (e), but he is not entitled to carry on goods in an unfit state against the express

(u) Spence v. Chodwick, 10 Q.B. 517; 16 L.J. Q.B. 313; Evans v. Hutton, 5 Sc. N.R. 670; 12 L.J. C.P. 17; Gosling v. Higgins, 1 Campb. 451. As to the form of bringing an action in rem for damage to cargo, see The Assunta, (1902) P. 150; 71 L.J. P. 75.

(x) Cannan v. Meaburn, 8 Moore, 127; 2 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 60.

(y) The Soblomsten, L.R. 1 A. & E. 293; 36 L.J. Adm. 5.

(z) As to the duty of the master to tranship and forward the goods, see Shipton v. Thornton, 9 Ad. & E. 337; 8 L.J. Q.B. 73; Gibbs v. Grey, 2 H. & N. 30; 26 L.J. Ex. 286; Mathews v. Gibbs, 2 E. & E. 282; 30 L.J. Q.B. 55; but see The Hamburg, 32 L.J. Adm. 161.

(a) The Gratitudine, 3 Rob. 261; Ireland v. Thompson, 4 C.B. 168; 17 L.J. C.P. 241; Australasian Steam Co. v. Morse, L.R. 4 P.C. 222.

(b) Acatos v. Burns, 3 Ex.D. 282; 47 L.J. Q.B. 566.

(c) Atlantic Mutual Ins. Co. v. Huth, 16 Ch.D. 474.

(d) Notara v. Henderson, L.R. 7 Q.B. 225; 41 L.J. Q.B. 158; S.S. City of Lincoln v. Smith, (1904) A.C. 250; 73 L.J. P.C. 45.

(e) The Savona, (1900) P. 252; 69 L.J. P. 95.

wish of the shippers in order to earn the freight (f). If a ship is greatly infested by rats which do serious damage to the cargo, the undertaker of the work of carrying is responsible for the injury, although he may have kept cats on board for the express purpose of destroying the rats (g). So, if a ship is rendered unseaworthy by being so laden as to become top-heavy, the shipowner is liable where deck cargo has been lost in consequence (h). Where after a disaster at sea the shipowner in the interests of the whole adventure, and before he has elected to abandon the ship, incurs reasonable and necessary expenses in landing a perishable cargo and carrying it to a place of safety, the expenses so reasonably and necessarily incurred are either a general average charge or a charge against cargo or against cargo and freight as the case may be (i).

Implied promise to carry safely.—Whenever goods have been bailed by one man to another upon the faith of an express or implied undertaking by the latter to carry them to a distant part, and an action is brought to recover damages for the breach of this engagement, it is no answer to say that the goods were lost by the way, the loss itself affording primâ facie evidence of neglect and want of care (k). If the goods have been stolen, or consumed by fire, or destroyed by accident, without fault or want of care on the part of the undertaker of the work, the latter stands excused, and may avail himself of the robbery or the unavoidable accident as an answer to an action brought against him for the non-delivery of the goods to the consignee. "He is only," observes Holt, C.J., "to do the best he can; and if he be robbed, &c., it is a good account; for it would be unreasonable to charge him with a trust further than the nature of the thing puts it into his power to perform it" (l). A loss by theft or secret purloining of goods is primâ facie evidence of negligent keeping; and the carrier must rebut this presumption by showing that he had taken all such precautions as appeared to be necessary to guard against it (m). In the contract of a shipowner to carry goods shipped on board his vessel there is an implied warranty that the vessel shall be seaworthy and this warranty attaches when she sets sail with the cargo on

(f) Notara v. Henderson, L.R. 7 Q.B. 225; 41 L.J. Q.B. 158.

(g) Laveroni v. Drury, 8 Exch. 170; 22 L.J. Ex. 2; Kay v. Wheeler, L.R. 2 C.P. 302; 36 L.J. C.P. 180.

(h) S.S. City of Lincoln v. Smith, (1904) A.C. 250; 73 L.J. P.C. 45.

(i) Rose v. Bank of Australasia, (1894) A.C. 687; 63 L.J. Q.B. 504.

(k) Parry v. Roberts, 3 Ad. & E. 120; 4 L.J. K.B. 189; The Pearlmoor, (1904) P. 286, 292; 73 L.J. P. 50.

(l) Holt, C.J., Coggs v. Bernard, 1 Smith's L.C. 173 (ed. 11).

(m) Hodgson v. Fullarton, 4 Taunt 787; Hatchwell v. Cooke, 6 Taunt. 577; Queensland National Bank v. P. & O. S. Navigation Co., (1898) 1 Q.B. 567; 67 L.J. Q.B. 402.

board (n). A clause by which the shipowner is not to be liable for loss or damage arising from "defects latent on beginning voyage or otherwise" will not cover a defect which was obvious at the commencement of the voyage (o).

Limitation of liability by special contract.—Generally speaking, it is not competent to a party to enter into a contract for the performance of a particular duty, and by the same contract to stipulate that he shall be exempt from all legal responsibility if he neglects to do what he has undertaken to perform (p). We cannot, observes Lord Ellenborough, construe a contract for the carriage of goods between the owners of vessels carrying goods for hire and the persons putting the goods on board, so as to make the owners say "We will not be answerable at all for any loss occasioned by our own misconduct, be it ever so gross and injurious; for this would in effect be saying, 'We will be at liberty to receive your goods on board a vessel, however leaky; we will not be bound even to provide a crew equal to the navigation of her; and, if through these defaults on our part the goods are lost, we will pay nothing'" (q). But an exemption in general terms will not be sufficient to relieve from liability for loss or damage caused by negligence; the intention so to relieve from liability must be manifested by express terms (r). And the shipowner will not be relieved from his implied duty to take care where the agreement alleged to absolve him is so ill expressed that it is impossible to gather from it the real intention of the parties (s).

A stipulation in a bill of lading that the shipowner is not to be accountable for leakage or breakage absolves him from responsibility for leakage and breakage the result of mere accident, where no blame is imputable, or for leakage the result of bad stowage, where the shippers have themselves superintended the stowage (t), but not from the obligation which the (n) Kopitoff v. Wilson, 1 Q.B.D. 377; 45 L.J. Q.B. 436; Cohn v. Davidson, 2 Q.B.D. 455; 46 L.J. Q.B. 305; Rathbone Bros. v. M'Iver, Sons & Co., 72 L.J. K.B. 703; M'Fadden & Co. v. Blue Star Line, (1905) 1 K.B. 697; 74 L.J. K.B. 423; but in Schloss v. Heriot, 14 C.B. N.S. 59; 32 L.J. C.P. 211, the contrary was held (although it was admitted that an action would lie for negligence).

(o) S.S. Waikato (Cargo Owners of) v. New Zealand Shipping Co., (1899) 1 Q.B. 56; 68 L.J. Q.B. 1.

(p) Sutton v. Ciceri, 15 App.Cas. 144; Nelson Line (Liverpool) v. Jas. Nelson & Sons, (1908) A.C. 16; 77 L.J. K.B. 82.

(q) Lyon v. Mells, 5 East, 438; Ellis v. Turner, 8 T.R. 531; see, however, The Duero, L.R. 2 A. & E. 293; 38 L.J. Adm. 69.

(r) Price v. Union Lighterage Co., (1904) 1 K.B. 412; 73 L.J. K.B. 222; The Pearlmoor, (1904) P. 286; 73 L.J. P. 50; Elderslie S.S. Co. v. Borthwick, (1905) A.C. 93; 74 L.J. K.B. 338. For an instance of a shipowner's liability being limited even in case of loss through negligence, see Baxter's Leather Co. v. Royal Mail Steam Packet Co., (1908) 1 K.B. 796; 77 L.J. K.B. 417.

(s) Nelson Line (Liverpool) v. Jas. Nelson & Sons, supra.

(t) Ohrloff v. Briscall, L.R. 1 P.C. 231; 35 L.J. P.C. 63.

law imposes upon him of taking reasonable care of goods entrusted to him to be carried (u). So an exception in a bill of lading of "accidents or damage of the seas, rivers, and steam navigation of whatever nature or kind soever," absolves from liability where cargo is damaged through the closing of ventilators necessitated by stress of weather (x), though not from liability for damage arising from a collision caused by gross negligence of the ship's master and crew (y). And where shipowners were by the bill of lading exempted from liability for loss arising from the default of their stevedores in the loading, stowing or discharging of the ship, they lost the benefit of that exemption through deviation of the ship even although the damage sustained occurred entirely at the port of discharge (z). Where a bill of lading exempted the shipowner from liability for negligence of pilot or other person in service of the ship, &c., "whether in navigating the ship or otherwise; loss or damage arising from rain, storage, or contact with other goods being excepted," and the goods were exposed to rain and contact with other wet goods, and were thereby injured, it was held that the words "or otherwise" referred to negligence in bringing about the excepted loss other than loss caused in navigating the ship, and, therefore, that the shipowner was not liable (a). A clause providing that a shipowner shall not be responsible for any loss to a passenger's luggage from any default of his servants will protect him against loss occasioned by the felonious acts of his servants (b). An exception of loss by thieves means primâ facie persons outside the ship, and not belonging to it (c). Where a charter-party contained an exemption from liability for negligence of master or crew in the navigation of the ship, and in the ordinary course of the voyage, it was held that this did not protect the shipowner from liability for injury to the cargo caused by the negligence of one of the officers of the ship after she had arrived at the wharf but before her cargo was discharged (d).

Loss by the act of God, dangers and accidents of the seas,

(u) Phillips v. Clark, 2 C.B. N.S. 164; 26 L.J. C.P. 168; Czech v. General Steam Navigation Co., L.R. 3 C.P. 14; 37 L.J. C.P. 3.

(x) The Thrunscoe, (1897) P. 301; 66 L.J. P. 173.

(y) Lloyd v. Gen. Iron Screw Col. Co., 3 H. & C. 284; 33 L.J. Ex. 269.

(z) Thorley v. Orchis S.S. Co., (1907) 1 K.B. 660; 76 L.J. K.B. 595.

(a) Norman v. Binnington, 25 Q.B.D. 475; 59 L.J. Q.B. 490; Baerselman v. Bailey, (1895) 2 Q.B. 301; 64 L.J. Q.B. 707.

(b) Marriott v. Yeoward Bros., (1909) 2 K.B. 987; 79 L.J. K.B. 114.

(c) Taylor v. Liverpool & G. W. Steam Co., L.R. 9 Q.B. 546; 43 L.J. Q.B. 205; Steinman v. Angier Line, (1891) 1 Q.B. 619; 60 L.J. Q.B. 425.

(d) The Accomac, 15 P.D. 208; 50 L.J. P. 91. As to negligence of a stevedore, see The Ferro, (1893) P. 38; 62 L.J. P. 48.

rivers, and navigation.—From losses occasioned by the act of God, the King's enemies, and the dangers and perils of the sea and of navigation, the carrier by water is, and always has been, exempt by the common law; but he is not exempt, nor does the exception in the bill of lading or other contract of affreightment exempt him, from accidents occasioned by his own negligence and misconduct or want of skill, or the negligence, misconduct, or want of skill of the persons whom he has entrusted with the navigation of the vessel (e). The expression "act of God" denotes natural accidents, such as lightning, earthquake, and tempest; if the loss could not be prevented by any reasonable precaution the carrier will be exempt (f). And the term "dangers and accidents of the sea and of navigation" denotes the dangers and accidents peculiar to the ocean and to navigation from port to port which no human care or skill can guard against or surmount, such as accidents resulting from the irresistible violence of the winds and waves, and from tides and currents (g); the destruction of a perishable cargo or of living animals from the rolling of a ship in a storm (h); jettison of goods from irresistible necessity to lighten the ship and save her from foundering (i); the grounding of a vessel on the hard and uneven bottom of a dry harbour, in which she had been obliged to take refuge (k); or on a sunken rock or sandbank not generally known, and not marked on the ordinary charts or maps; irresistible attacks by pirates (l); the accidental breaking of tackle by which the vessel is moored in port (m); or accidental collisions in fogs or storms, where no blame is imputable to either of the vessels striking together (n); or where the collision is caused by the negligence of the other vessel (o). If a primâ facie case of perils of the seas is made out and the plaintiffs allege unseaworthiness, it is upon the plaintiffs that the burden of proving unseaworthiness rests (p).

Loss occasioned by negligence or misconduct.—The general rule in insurance that the immediate and not the remote cause of loss is to be considered does not apply as between the owner and carrier of goods. If a vessel deviates from its proper course, and sails unnecessarily through dangerous straits and channels,

(e) Mansfield, C.J., in Hotham v. East India Co., 1 Doug. 272, 278; Siordet v. Hall, 1 Moo. & P. 561; 6 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 137.

(f) Nugent v. Smith, 1 C.P.D. 423, 434; 45 L.J. C.P. 697. See post, p. 1027.

(g) Hodgson v. Malcolm, 2 B. & P. N.R. 336.

(h) Lawrence v. Aberdein, 5 B. & Ald. 110.

(i) Bird v. Astock, 2 Bulst. 280.

(k) Fletcher v. Inglis, 2 B. & Ald. 315.

(l) Pickering v. Barclay, Styles, 132.

(m) Laurie v. Douglas, 15 M. & W. 746.

(n) Buller v. Fisher, 3 Esp. 67.

(o) Sailing Ship Garston Co. v. Hickie, Borman & Co., 18 Q.B.D. 17; 56 L.J. Q.B. 38.

(p) The Northumbria, (1906) P. 292; 75 L.J. P. 101.

or into seas infested with pirates, and is wrecked or plundered in consequence of such deviation, the loss, though proximately caused by what is usually termed "a peril of the sea," is deemed to have been occasioned by the misconduct of the master or commander (pp). So the carriage by a shipowner of goods destined for an alien enemy without the knowledge and consent of the other shippers is a breach of duty to them and will render liable in damages for delay of delivery caused by seizure of the ship (q). A collision arising from the negligence of the crew of the ship is not a peril of the sea within the meaning of an exception of loss arising from perils of the sea in a bill of lading (r). If the cargo is seriously damaged or destroyed by rats, the loss is not the result of a danger or an accident of the seas, but of neglect and want of care on the part of the master and crew (s). But if rats gnaw a hole in any part of the ship whereby sea water is let in and damages the cargo, that is a peril of the sea within the exception (t). So, if sea water is allowed to enter the tank in which the goods are being carried through negligent opening of a valve by the engineer, this is a damage arising from "improper navigation" of the ship (u). And if hooks are used recklessly by stevedores employed by the ship and there is short delivery of the cargo in consequence, that is a loss by accident caused by negligence of the servants of the owner otherwise than in the management or navigation of the vessel (x). If a vessel becomes unseaworthy, and the owner neglects to avail himself of an opportunity to repair her, and thereby causes the loss of the cargo, the loss is the result of negligence (y). If the vessel at the time of the commencement of the voyage is unseaworthy—if the hull is worm-eaten or gnawed by rats, or the timbers are rotten, if she has been so laden as to become unseaworthy through being made top-heavy, or if, in the case of a steamship, she starts with an insufficient equipment of coal, the loss though proximately caused by violence of the winds and waves, has not, in contemplation of law, been occasioned by perils of the seas, but by the negligence (pp) Internat. Guano, &c. v. Macandrew, (1909) 2 K.B. 360; 78 L.J. K.B. 691.

(q) Dunn v. Bucknall Bros., (1902) 2 K.B. 614; 71 L.J. K.B. 963.

(r) Grill v. General Iron Screw Col. Co., L.R. 3 C.P. 476; 37 L.J. C.P. 205. See Chartered Mercantile Bank of India v. Netherlands India Steam Navigation Co., 10 Q.B.D. 521; 52 L.J. Q.B. 220.

(s) Laveroni v. Drury, 8 Exch. 170; 22 L.J. Ex. 2.

(t) Hamilton, Fraser & Co. v. Pandorf & Co., 12 App.Cas. 518; 57 L.J. Q.B. 24.

(u) Carmichael v. Liverpool Association, 19 Q.B.D. 243; 56 L.J. Q.B. 428; The Cressington, (1891) P. 152; 60 L.J. P. 25; Blackburn v. Liverpool and River Plate S. N. Co., (1902) 1 K.B. 290; 71 L.J. K.B. 177.

(x) The Torbryan, (1903) P. 194; 72 L.J. P. 76; cp. Canada Shipping Co. v. British Shipowners' Mutual Protection Assoc., 23 Q.B.D. 342; 58 L.J. Q.B. 462.

(y) Worms v. Storey, 11 Exch. 450; 25 L.J. Ex. 1; The Vortigern, (1899) P. 140; 68 L.J. P. 49; The Schwan, (1899) A.C. 450; 78 L.J. P. 112.

and misconduct of the owner of the ship, who is responsible to the owner of the cargo for the loss of the goods shipped on board (z). When, on the other hand, from the rolling and labouring of a ship in a storm a number of horses, though properly stowed and secured on board at the commencement of the tempest, broke loose and kicked each other to death in the hold of the vessel, the loss, though proximately caused by their own hoofs, was deemed to have been occasioned by peril of the sea (a). In the case of cargoes shipped in the United States, the Act of Congress known as the Harter Act is sometimes incorporated in the bills of lading, and will exempt shipowners from liability for faults or errors in navigation or in the management of the vessels (b).

If a ship perish in consequence of striking a rock or shallow, the circumstances under which that event has taken place must be ascertained in order to decide whether it happened by a peril of the sea, or by the fault of the owner, carrier, or master (c). In order to determine whether the loss has or has not been occasioned by the negligence or want of skill of the servants of the shipowner, the established rules of nautical practice, the usages and regulations of particular ports and rivers, the state of the wind, the tide, and the light, the degree of vigilance of the master and crew, and all other circumstances bearing upon the conduct and management of the vessel must be considered (d). If a carrier by water overloads his vessel, and so causes it to founder in a gale of wind, the loss is occasioned by the negligence of man; but it is otherwise, if the boat has not been overloaded, but sinks solely through the violence of the winds and waves (e). If a hoyman shoots a bridge in tempestuous weather, or at a dangerous period of the tide, and the hoy is sunk, the loss is occasioned by the negligence of the hoyman; but, if he has shot the bridge at a proper time and in proper weather, but the hoy has been taken aback by a sudden gust of wind, and has been driven against the abutments of the bridge and sunk, and the goods on board lost, the loss is deemed to have been occasioned by the act of God, and (z) Hunter v. Potts, 4 Campb. 202; Rathbone Bros. v. M'Iver, Sons & Co., 72 L.J. K.B. 703; S.S. City of Lincoln v. Smith, (1904) A.C. 250; 73 L.J. P.C. 45; The Vortigern, ante, p. 988. But the loss must be traceable to the unseaworthiness and not be due purely to peril of the sea: The Europa, (1908) P. 84; 77 L.J. P. 26.

(a) Gabay v. Lloyd, 3 B. & C. 793 3 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 116.

(b) See The Glenochil, (1896) P. 10; 65 L.J. Adm. 1; The Rodney, (1900) P. 112; 69 L.J. P. 29; Rowson v. Atlantic Transport Co., (1903) 2 K.B. 666; 72 L.J. K.B. 811.

(c) Abbott, 613 (ed. 14).

(d) Abbott, 603 et seq. (ed. 14); Tuff v. Warman, 5 C.B. N.S. 573; 27 L.J. C.P. 322.

(e) 22 Assiz. 41; Williams v. Lloyd, Jones's Rep. 180.

the carrier, consequently, is exempt from responsibility in respect thereof (f).

Loss by fire—Limitation of responsibility of shipowners by statute.—The exception of fire in a charter-party enures for the protection of the charterer as well as the shipowner (g). By the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894 (h), s. 502, no owner of any sea-going ship or share therein shall be liable to make good any loss or damage which may happen, without his fault or privity, to any goods or merchandise taken on board such ship by reason of any fire (i) happening on board, or to any gold, silver, diamonds, watches, jewels or precious stones taken on board, by reason of any robbery, embezzlement, making away with, or secreting thereof, unless the owner or shipper thereof has at the time of shipping the same inserted in his bills of lading, or otherwise declared in writing to the master or owner of such ship, the true nature and value of such articles (k). And by s. 503, the owners of a ship, whether British or foreign (l), shall not in cases where all or any of the following events occur without their actual fault or privity, that is to say:—(1) where any loss of life or personal injury is caused to any person being carried in the ship; (2) where any damage or loss is caused to any goods, merchandise, or other things whatsoever (m) on board the ship; (3) where any loss of life or personal injury is caused to any person carried in any vessel by reason of the improper navigation of the ship; (4) where any loss or damage is caused to any other vessel, or to any goods, merchandise, or other things whatsoever on board any other vessel by reason of the improper navigation of the ship, be liable to damages beyond the following amounts, viz., in respect of loss of life or personal injury, either alone or together with loss of or damage to vessels, goods, merchandise, or other things, an aggregate amount not exceeding 15*l.* for each ton of their ship's tonnage; and in respect of loss or damage to vessels, goods, merchandise, or other things, whether there be in addition loss of life or personal injury or not, an aggregate amount not exceeding 8*l.* for (f) Amies v. Stevens, 1 Str. 128.

(g) Barrie v. Peruvian Corporation, 2 Com.Cas. 50; Newman and Dale S.S. Co. and British and South American S.S. Co., In re, (1903) 1 K.B. 262; 72 L.J. K.B. 110.

(h) 57 & 58 Vict. c. 60.

(i) Damage by smoke and water in putting out a fire is damage by reason of fire within the meaning of the statute: The Diamond, (1906) P. 282; 75 L.J. P. 90. This provision however, does not apply to claims on general average: Greenshields & Co. v. Stephens & Sons, (1908) A.C. 431; 77 L.J. K.B. 985.

(k) The nature of the articles must be described, and their money value stated: Williams v. African S.S. Co., 1 H. & N. 300; 26 L.J. Ex. 69.

(l) The Amalia, 32 L.J. Adm. 191; The Andalusian, 3 P.D. 182; 46 L.J. P. 77.

(m) This includes passengers' luggage: The Stella, (1900) P. 161; 69 L.J. P. 70.

each ton of the ship's tonnage (n). By sect. 508, nothing contained in the Act is to take away any liability to which any master or seaman, being also owner or part owner of the ship to which he belongs, is subject in his capacity of master or seaman.

The limitation of liability under the Act does not, it seems, extend to the owner of any lighter, barge, boat, or vessel, used solely in rivers or inland navigation, or to any ship or vessel not duly registered (o). The Act embraces two descriptions of losses, the one a loss or damage to the cargo laden on board the ship occasioned by the negligence of the master or mariners, and rendering the shipowner liable ex contractu, at common law, to the extent of the value of such cargo; and the other a loss or damage to the ship or cargo of some third party, occasioned by the negligence or misconduct of the master, in respect of which the owner is liable ex delicto, but not upon any contract. To an action ex delicto in respect of an injury to the property of a third party, both the shipowner and the master are liable—the owner, as the employer, for the wrongful act done by the servant in the course of his employment, and the master as the party actually committing the injury; and it is this liability ex delicto to which sect. 508 of the Act refers. If the master be a part owner, his responsibility, if he is sued (ex delicto) in his character of master, and not as one of several part owners, will not be limited by the Act; but, if he is sued as one of the part owners with the other part owners, the circumstance of the loss being occasioned by his fault, and with his privity, will not take away from the other part owners the protection which the statute intended to give them (p). If the ship is sunk by a collision with another vessel, the shipowner is not released from liability by the loss of his vessel (q).

Losses occasioned by negligence of licensed pilots.—The Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, by sect. 633, further exempts the owner and master of a ship from liability in respect of losses or damage occasioned by the neglect or incapacity of a licensed pilot in charge of the vessel. Shipowners are not responsible when they take a pilot by compulsion; but in all other cases they are responsible for the acts of the pilot (r). "It is the duty of the master to look after the pilot in the case of his

(n) As to the meaning of "tonnage" in this section, see The Petrel, (1893) P. 320; 62 L.J. P. 92; The Zanzibar, (1892) P. 233; 61 L.J. P. 81; and sect. 503 (2).

(o) Morewood v. Pollok, 22 L.J. Q.B. 250; 1 E. & B. 743.

(p) Bayley, J., Wilson v. Dickson, 2 B. & Ald. 13.

(q) Brown v. Wilkinson, 15 M. & W. 391; 16 L.J. Ex. 34; The Mellona, 12 Jur. 271; 3 Rob. 7.

(r) The Energy, L.R. 3 A. & E. 48; 39 L.J. Adm. 25; The Ocean Wave, L.R. 3 P.C. 205; The Calabar, L.R. 2 P.C. 238; The Lion, L.R. 2 P.C. 525; 38 L.J. Adm. 51.

palpable incompetency, or intoxication, or of the loss of his faculties. The taking of a pilot under the Act does not relieve the shipowner from the ordinary legal consequences resulting from the negligence of the master and crew" (s).

Delivery of goods by shipowners.—There is an implied engagement on the part of every undertaker of the work of carrying, to proceed by the ordinary course to the place of delivery without delay, and without unnecessary deviation (t). If it is customary for the carrier by water to carry merely from port to port, or from wharf to wharf, and for the owner or consignee to fetch the goods from the vessel itself, or from the wharf, as soon as the arrival of the ship has been reported, the carrier must give such owner or consignee notice of the arrival of the goods on board, or at the customary place of destination, in order to discharge himself from further liability as a carrier. He cannot at once discharge himself from all responsibility by immediately landing the goods without any notice to the consignee, but is bound to keep the goods on board or on the wharf, at his own risk, for a reasonable time, to enable the consignee or his assigns to come and fetch them (u). The Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, by sect. 493, empowers the shipowner to enter and land goods in default of entry and landing by the owner; and, notwithstanding the landing, the shipowner may, by giving notice for that purpose, preserve his lien for freight. But the Act creates no personal liability for freight in a consignee who takes delivery of goods so deposited with a warehouseman by the shipowner merely as agent for the owner of the goods (x). After part of the goods have been landed by the shipowner, the consignee may interfere and claim the remainder, if the shipowner can deliver the remainder to him without any further loss or injury than would have been the case if the consignee had been ready before any of the goods were discharged (y). The Act also provides for the sale by warehousemen of goods not claimed by the owners (z).

Losses on board lighters conveying goods from ship to shore.

(s) Per Dr. Lushington, The Eden, 10 Jur. 298; 2 Rob. 442; The Duke of Manchester, 10 Jur. 865; The Iron Duke, 9 Jur. 476; 2 Rob. 377; The Iona, L.R. 1 P.C. 426; The Velasquez, L.R. 1 P.C. 494; 36 L.J. Adm. 19; The Queen, L.R. 2 A. & E. 354; 38 L.J. Adm. 39.

(t) Davis v. Garrett, 4 Moo. & P. 540; 8 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 253; Thorley v. Orchis S.S. Co., (1907) 1 K.B. 660; 76 L.J. K.B. 595.

(u) Bourne v. Gatliff, 3 Sc. N.R. 44; 8 ib. 604; 11 Cl. & Fin. 45. As to delivery "free of ship's tackle" see Chartered Bk. of India &c. v. Brit. Ind. St. Nav. Co., (1909) A.C. 369; 78 L.J. P.C. 111.

(x) White & Co. v. Furness, Withy & Co., (1895) A.C. 40; 64 L.J. Q.B. 161.

(y) Wilson v. London, Italian and Adriatic St. Nav. Co., L.R. 1 C.P. 61; 35 L.J. C.P. 9.

(z) 57 & 58 Vict. c. 60, s. 497; Beresford v. Montgomerie, 17 C.B. N.S. 379; 34 L.J. C.P. 41; Wilson v. London, Italian and Adriatic St. Nav. Co., supra.

—When the vessel is not able to discharge at a wharf, but the goods are placed in lighters to be conveyed from the ship to the shore, and are lost on their passage through the neglect or want of skill of the lighterman, the loss will fall on the owner of the goods, if the lighterman is paid and employed by him (a); but, if he is employed and paid by the shipowner or carrier, he is then the servant of the latter, expediting the goods in the further prosecution of the voyage to their place of destination, and the carrier, consequently, must make good the loss. Generally speaking, the task of discharging the cargo in the port of London is accomplished through the medium of public lightermen licensed and regulated by the port authority (b). The lightermen are responsible, in their character of common carriers, to the merchant or owner of the goods who employs them; and the shipowner is discharged as soon as the goods have been safely loaded on board their lighters. But he is not, by the custom of the river Thames, exonerated from liability until the loading is complete; and he is bound to take care of the lighter and its contents until it is fully laden, and is ready to leave the side of the ship (c). The protection afforded by sect. 502 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894 (ante, p. 990), to owners of sea-going vessels in respect of loss or damage by fire to goods or merchandise shipped on board, does not extend to the case of a fire happening on board lighters employed by the shipowner in carrying goods from the shore to be laden on board the vessel (d). Therefore, if goods are set on fire by reason of the negligence of such lightermen, the shipowners are responsible for the damage. Where cargo is to be taken from alongside the ship at charterers' risk and expense, any custom of the port notwithstanding, the shipowner will only be bound to deliver over the ship's rail and the extra expenses due to a custom to do work outside the ship will fall on the charterer (e).

Payment of freight or hire.—If a charter-party amounts to a demise of the ship to the charterer for a certain term at a certain hire, and the vessel is bailed to him pursuant to the contract, he is responsible for the payment of the hire at the expiration of the term of hiring, although the vessel may have been lost; but, if the shipowner merely grants the use of the vessel, retain-

(a) Sparrow v. Carruthers, 2 Str. 1236; Strong v. Natally, 1 Bos. & P. N.R. 16.

(b) See Port of London Act, 1908, 8 Edw. 7, c. 68, s. 11.

(c) Catley v. Wintringham, 1 Peake, 202; Robinson v. Turpin, ib., 203, n. (a).

(d) Morewood v. Pollok, 22 L.J. Q.B. 250; 1 E. & B. 743.

(e) Brenda S.S. Co. v. Green, (1900) 1 Q.B. 518; 69 L.J. Q.B. 445; Northmoor S.S. Co. v. Harland & Woolf, Ltd., (1903) 2 Ir. R. 657.

ing the possession of it through the medium of his own seamen and servants, the shipowner loses his right to the hire, at the same time that the charterer is deprived of the use and enjoyment of the vessel. When the charter-party amounts merely to a contract by the shipowner or shipmaster for the conveyance of merchandise to a specified destination, the fulfilment of the covenant or undertaking to carry the goods, on the shipowner's readiness and willingness to fulfil it, is a condition precedent to the payment of the hire, so that the plaintiff must of necessity show the work done, or that he was ready and willing to do it, and was hindered from doing it by the defendant, before he can demand the money (f). Ordinarily, the right to the freight does not arise until the goods are not only conveyed to their destination, but also delivered (g); or, in the case of a charter-party, until the charterers have had the full use of the ship for the purposes for which they chartered her (h). The freight may, however, by the special contract of the parties, be made payable on the delivery of the goods on board (i), on the sailing (k), or on the final sailing of the vessel from the port of loading (l) prior to the performance of the voyage, or at any other period of time which they may choose to appoint; but, in all cases of doubtful construction, the courts will adhere to the maxim that the freight is not due until it has been earned by the performance of the work for which it is to be paid (m). So freight was held not to be payable where the agreement was that it should be paid "within three days after the arrival of the ship and before delivery of any portion of the goods," and the ship arrived in port, but was sunk and the goods destroyed within the three days (n); and again where part of the cargo was justifiably sold for repairs before arrival at the port of destination, for more than it would fetch at that port, and the proceeds paid to the charterer, it was yet held that freight could not be claimed in respect of such part of the cargo (o). But

(f) Tate v. Meek, 2 Moore, 291; Campion v. Colvin, 3 Bing. N.C. 17; 5 L.J. C.P. 317; Cleary v. M'Andrew, 2 Moo. P.C. N.S. 216; The Soblomsten, L.R. 1 Adm. 293; 36 L.J. Adm. 5.

(g) Cato v. Irving, 5 De G. & S. 210, 224; 21 L.J. Ch. 675.

(h) Brown v. Tanner, L.R. 3 Ch. 597; 37 L.J. Ch. 923.

(i) Andrew v. Moorhouse, 5 Taunt. 438; 1 Marsh. 122; De Silvale v. Kendall, 4 M. & S. 42; Allison v. Bristol Marine Ins. Co., 1 App.Cas. 209.

(k) Thompson v. Gillespy, 5 E. & B. 209; 24 L.J. Q.B. 340; Hudson v. Bilton, 6 E. & B. 565; 26 L.J. Q.B. 27.

(l) Roelandts v. Harrison, 9 Exch. 444; 23 L.J. Ex. 169. As to the meaning of "port," see Sailing Ship Garston Co. v. Hickie, Borman & Co., 15 Q.B.D. 580; 56 L.J. Q.B. 38; Hunter v. Northern Marine Ins. Co., 13 App.Cas. 717; Price v. Livingstone, 9 Q.B.D. 679; 53 L.J. Q.B. 118; Leonis S.S. Co. v. Rank, (1908) 1 K.B. 499; 77 L.J. K.B. 224.

(m) Mashiter v. Buller, 1 Campb. 84; Manfield v. Maitland, 4 B. & Ald. 582, 585; Vlierboom v. Chapman, 13 M. & W. 230; 13 L.J. Ex. 384.

(n) Duthie v. Hilton, L.R. 4 C.P. 138; 38 L.J. C.P. 93; Asfar v. Blundell, (1896) 1 Q.B. 123; 65 L.J. Q.B. 138.

(o) Hopper v. Burness, 1 C.P.D. 137; 45 L.J. C.P. 377; as to freight where where goods were carried under a through bill of lading covering both land and sea transit and some of the goods were lost during the sea transit, the lien given to the shipowner on payment by him of the inland charges for the carriage of such goods was held enforceable by him against the goods actually delivered (p). If freight is paid in advance and the cargo is lost, the freight so paid cannot be recovered back (q), unless the loss has been occasioned by negligence, or misconduct, or want of skill in the navigation of the vessel (r). Where, by a charter-party, hire was to cease during detention by average accidents and the ship had to put back for repairs, it was held that the charterer was liable as from the time when the ship was again in working order though it would take some time to get back to the place where the accident happened (s). Detention in quarantine has been held not to be "a detention of princes and rulers" (t). If by the occurrence of an accident on the voyage delay is occasioned, the master may claim a reasonable time to carry on the cargo, either in the same ship when repaired, or by transhipping it into another vessel (u).

When the use of the entire vessel is bargained for (x), and the charterer covenants or agrees to provide and ship a full cargo, and pay freight therefor at so much a ton, and the shipowner sends out the vessel, the circumstance that the lading has been prevented by some unforeseen cause or inevitable accident does not release the charterer from his contract. And, when the goods have been put on board, the charterer cannot abandon them and refuse to pay the freight on the ground that they have been damaged or destroyed by perils of the sea (y), or by the fault of the master and crew (z); nor can he deduct from the freight the value of missing articles (a). When the charterer merely covenants to pay freight at the rate of so much a ton, &c., for the goods actually shipped on board, and does not part of cargo has been burnt, see Aitken, Lilburn & Co. v. Ernsthausen, (1894) 1 Q.B. 773; 63 L.J. Q.B. 559; and as to advance freight in such circumstances, see Weir v. Girvin, (1900) 1 Q.B. 45; 69 L.J. Q.B. 168.

(p) The Hibernian, (1907) P. 277; 76 L.J. P. 122.

(q) Saunders v. Drew, 3 B. & Ad. 450; Byrne v. Schiller, L.R. 6 Ex. 319; 40 L.J. Ex. 177; Allison v. Bristol Marine Ins. Co., 1 App.Cas. 209. See Smith v. Pyman, (1891) 1 Q.B. 742; 60 L.J. Q.B. 621; Oriental S.S. Co. v. Tylor, (1893) 2 Q.B. 518; 63 L.J. Q.B. 128.

(r) See Rodocanachi v. Milburn, 18 Q.B.D. 67; 56 L.J. Q.B. 202; Dufourcet v. Bishop, 18 Q.B.D. 373; 56 L.J. Q.B. 497.

(s) Vogemann v. Zanzibar S.S. Co., 7 Com.Cas. 254.

(t) Aktieselskabat Lina v. Turnbull & Co., (1907) S.C. 507.

(u) Cleary v. M'Andrew, 2 Moo. P.C. N.S. 216.

(x) As to putting cargo on deck, see Neill v. Ridley, 9 Exch. 680; and in the cabin, see Mitcheson v. Nicol, 7 Exch. 929; 21 L.J. Ex. 323.

(y) Abbott on Shipping, 608 et seq. (ed. 14).

(z) Dakin v. Oxley, 15 C.B. N.S. 646; 33 L.J. C.P. 115.

(a) Meyer v. Dresser, 16 C.B. N.S. 646; 33 L.J. C.P. 289.

covenant to furnish any particular quantity of goods, he is only liable for the quantity of goods actually shipped; but, if he contracts for the use of the entire ship, or part of a ship, or for a certain specified tonnage, the payment of freight must be proportioned to the amount of tonnage space, or accommodation he has contracted for (b). If he covenants to ship on board a full and complete cargo, and to pay so much a ton for every ton loaded on board, he is bound to put on board and to pay freight for as much as the ship will hold and safely carry, whatever may be the amount of the burthen and tonnage of the vessel mentioned in the charter-party (c). A misdescription of the ship's burthen does not in such a case exonerate the charterer from the liability to ship and pay freight for a full and complete cargo, provided the charterer has had an opportunity of examining the ship, and forming his own judgment of her capacity, and there has been no fraudulent misrepresentation or concealment of the truth (d). Although the charterer has taken the whole ship, and covenanted to provide and put on board, and pay freight for, a "full and complete cargo," yet the shipowner may take on board merchandise as ballast, provided it occupies no larger space than the ballast would have done, and does not interfere with the proper shipment and carriage of the cargo (e).

Calculation of freight.—When freight is covenanted to be paid at the rate of so much per ton the freight is to be calculated and paid on that quantity alone which is put on board, carried throughout the whole voyage, and delivered, at the end of it, to the merchant. If, therefore, a cargo of corn increases in bulk and weight during the voyage, or after the cargo is taken out of the vessel, the freight is payable only on the quantity actually put on board, and not on the increased quantity delivered; for such a cargo may be increased in bulk and deteriorated in quality by the negligence of the master and crew during the voyage (f). And so, though freight has been made payable on the intake measure of quantity delivered, where part of the cargo has been lost on the voyage, freight will be payable on the measurement figures as ascertained at

(b) As to this, see London Transport Co. v. Trechmann Bros., (1904) 1 K.B. 635; 73 L.J. K.B. 253.

(c) Miller v. Borner, (1900) 1 Q.B. 691; 69 L.J. Q.B. 429; cp. Morris v. Lerison, 1 C.P.D. 155; 45 L.J. C.P. 409

(d) Hunter v. Fry, 2 B. & Ald. 424; Thomas v. Clarke, 2 Stark. 450; Barker v. Windle, 6 E. & B. 675; 25 L.J. Q.B. 349.

(e) Towse v. Henderson, 4 Exch. 890; 19 L.J. Ex. 163. As to ballast necessary for the proper navigation of the ship, see Weir v. Union S.S. Co., (1900) A.C. 525; 69 L.J. Q.B. 809. As to dead freight, see Kish v. Taylor, (1910) 2 K.B. 309; 79 L.J. K.B. 1113.

(f) Gibson v. Sturge, 10 Exch. 622; 24 L.J. Ex. 121; Buckle v. Knoop, L.R. 2 Ex. 125, 333; 36 L.J. Ex. 49, 223.

the port of shipment and not by reference to the quantity delivered measured at the port of discharge (g). Where part of a uniform cargo has been lost, the reduction in the amount of freight payable may be arrived at by taking the proportion that the cargo undelivered bore to the quantity specified in the bill of lading (h).

Payment pro ratâ.—If the covenant or agreement of the shipowner or master be entire for the conveyance of a full cargo of merchandise for a specific sum, the charterer is not bound to accept and pay for half a cargo; but, if the charterer loads less than a full cargo, or if part of the cargo is lost without any default on the part of the shipowner, the whole of the sum is payable (i). And, if he agrees to pay by the bale or cask, or at the rate of so much a ton, he is bound to accept and pay for what has been actually brought and tendered to him (k). He must pay, also, in all cases, for such goods as he actually accepts; and, if he voluntarily accepts goods short of the port of destination, so as to raise an inference that further carriage of the goods was dispensed with (l), he is liable upon an implied contract to pay pro ratâ itineris peracti. This apportionment usually happens when the ship, by reason of some disaster, goes into a port short of the place of destination, and is unable to prosecute and complete the voyage (m). The shipowner is not entitled to freight pro ratâ where goods have been sold on the voyage at an intermediate port without leave from the owners, where such leave was obtainable (n).

Time freight.—Where the charterer engages to pay so much per month, week, or day of the voyage, or of the ship's employment, and no time is fixed for the commencement of the computation, his liability to freight will begin on the day that the ship breaks ground and commences the voyage, and will continue during all unavoidable delays for provisions, repairs, &c., not occasioned by the negligence or misconduct of the master or owners (o). The month is always understood to be a calendar, and not a lunar, month (p); and the freight becomes due in

(g) Spaight v. Farnworth, 5 Q.B.D. 115; 49 L.J. Q.B. 346.

(h) Spaight v. Farnworth, supra; Mediterranean and New York S.S. Co. v. Mackay, (1903) 1 K.B. 297; 72 L.J. K.B. 147.

(i) Robinson v. Knights, L.R. 8 C.P. 465; 42 L.J. C.P. 211; The Norway, 3 Moo. P.C. N.S. 245; Br. & L. 404; Merchant Shipping Co. v. Armitage, L.R. 9 Q.B. 99; 43 L.J. Q.B. 24; Blanchet v. Powell's Llantivit Coll. Co., L.R. 9 Ex. 74; 43 L.J. Ex. 50.

(k) Christy v. Row, 1 Taunt. 314; Ritchie v. Atkinson, 10 East, 295, 310.

(l) The Soblemsten, L.R. 1 Adm. 293; 36 L.J. Adm. 5. As to when this inference arises, see Metcalfe v. Britannia Iron Works Co., 2 Q.B.D. 423; 46 L.J. Q.B. 443.

(m) Vlierboom v. Chapman, 13 M. & W. 230; 13 L.J. Ex. 384.

(n) Acatos v. Burns, 3 Ex.D. 282; 47 L.J. Ex. 566.

(o) Havelock v. Geddes, 10 East, 566; Ripley v. Scaife, 5 B. & C. 169.

(p) Jolly v. Young, 1 Esp. 186.

general at the expiration of each month, or other interval of time limited by the parties for its payment, whether the ship does or does not ultimately arrive at her place of destination. But, where the freighter covenanted to pay freight for a vessel at so much a ton per month until her final discharge, so much of such freight as might be earned at the time of the arrival of the ship at her first destined port abroad to be paid within ten days next after her arrival there, and the remainder of the freight at specific periods, it was held that the arrival of the ship at her first destined port abroad was a condition precedent to the owner's right to recover any freight (q).

Shipowner's lien for freight—Payment of freight by consignee (r).—If the shipowners have by the charter-party divested themselves of the possession of the vessel in favour of the charterer, they have, of course, no lien upon the goods put on board, and cannot take possession of them and detain them as a security for the rent or hire agreed to be paid for the use of the vessel (s). But, if the charter-party does not amount to a bailment of the ship, but the shipowners keep possession of the vessel, and merely contract to carry merchandise for the charterer for a certain freight, the delivery of the goods and the payment of the freight constitute mutual conditions to be performed at the same time, so that the shipowner may retain the cargo until he is tendered payment of the freight (t). The right of lien may, however, only be exercised for sums due and not for sums accruing due (u); and where, by the terms of the contract, credit is given for the payment of the freight, as, for instance, if it is to be paid a month or three months after the arrival of the ship, the carrier must forthwith deliver the goods, and rely on the charterer's contract to pay (x): and, if the charterer becomes bankrupt prior to the arrival of the vessel at the port of destination, the indorsee of the bill of lading is entitled to demand the goods, and the shipowners cannot claim any lien upon them for freight (y). So, a lien on subfreight can only be exercised before payment thereof to the charterer or his agent and confers no right on the shipowner to follow it after it has been paid (z). But a lien may be (q) Gibbon v. Mendez, 2 B. & Ald. 17; Smith v. Wilson, 8 East, 437.

(r) 57 & 58 Vict. c. 60, s. 494.

(s) Hutton v. Bragg, 7 Taunt. 14.

(t) Saville v. Campion, 2 B. & Ald. 503; Campion v. Colvin, 3 Bing. N.C. 17; 5 L.J. C.P. 317; Tate v. Meek, 2 Moore, 291; Paynter v. James, L.R. 2 C.P. 348.

(u) Wehner v. Dene S.S. Co., (1905) 2 K.B. 92; 74 L.J. K.B. 550.

(x) Alsager v. St. Kath. Dock Co., 14 M. & W. 794; 15 L.J. Ex. 34.

(y) Tamvaco v. Simpson, L.R. 1 C.P. 363; 35 L.J. C.P. 196.

(z) Tagart, Beaton & Co. v. James Fisher & Sons, (1903) 1 K.B. 391; 72 L.J. K.B. 202.

given to a shipowner in respect of goods carried under a through bill of lading covering both land and sea transit which will be enforceable against goods actually delivered in respect of the inland charges for the carriage of goods lost in sea transit and not delivered (a). The consignee is primâ facie the owner of the goods, and as such is liable for the freight; but where the master delivers the goods to the consignee, and the latter afterwards refuses to pay the freight, or pays the master by a bill of exchange which turns out to be worthless, the master may resort to the consignor or shipper for payment (b), unless he has for his own convenience and accommodation preferred a bill when he might have had cash (c). Payment to the shipowners on their demand is a discharge against any claim by the master, and, on the other hand, payment to the master, in the absence of any notice from the owners to withhold it, is a valid payment as against them (d).

If the consignee be not the owner, he is not liable for freight simply as consignee, but if the goods have always been delivered on payment of freight by the defendant, that is reasonable evidence that in the particular case he agreed to pay the freight (e).

Liability for freight resulting from acceptance of goods under bills of lading.—If a person receives goods under a bill of lading in which it is expressed that the goods are to be delivered to him, he paying freight, that is evidence of an agreement on the part of such person to pay the freight (f). The law does not, however, imply any contract for the payment of the freight from the delivery and acceptance of less than the whole cargo (g), or from the acceptance of goods by a sub-contractee with whom there is no privity of contract (h). The words "he paying freight" are not essential; "freight for the said goods" are sufficient (i). Though freight may not be payable in respect of a man's own goods conveyed in his own ship, yet it becomes so if he makes third persons consignees of the goods under the bill of lading (k). If the consignee receives the goods without any disclaimer of his liability, and there is no reference on the

(a) The Hibernian, (1907) P. 277; 76 L.J. P. 122.

(b) Tapley v. Martens, 8 T.R. 453; Shepard v. De Bernales, 13 East, 572; Domett v. Beckford, 5 B. & Ad. 521; 3 L.J. K.B. 10.

(c) Strong v. Hart, 6 B. & C. 160.

(d) Smith v. Plummer, 1 B. & Ald. 575; Atkinson v. Cottesworth, 3 B. & C. 648.

(e) Coleman v. Lambert, 5 M. & W. 502; 9 L.J. Ex. 43.

(f) Cock v. Taylor, 13 East, 399; Wilson v. Kymer, 1 M. & S. 157; Bell v. Kymer, 5 Taunt. 477; Gumm v. Tyrie, 34 L.J. Q.B. 124; 6 B. & S. 298.

(g) Young v. Moeller, 5 E. & B. 762; S.C. nom. Möller v. Young, 25 L.J. Q.B. 94.

(h) Zwilchenbart v. Henderson, 9 Exch. 722; 23 L.J. Ex. 234.

(i) Weguelin v. Cellier, L.R. 6 H.L. 286; 42 L.J. Ch. 758.

(k) Weguelin v. Cellier supra.

face of the bill of lading to any charter-party whereby the consignor has contracted to pay the freight, the presumption is that the consignee has agreed to pay it; but, when the bill of lading provides for the payment of the freight as per charter-party, and the consignor has contracted by such charter-party for the payment of the freight, it does not necessarily follow that the consignee, by accepting the goods under the bill of lading, has himself contracted to pay it, although he is generally considered so to do. The contract for the payment of the freight inserted in the charter-party is not transferred with the property in the goods so as to throw the burden of performance upon the parties into whose hands the goods come by indorsement of the bill of lading; but it has been so much the practice for the indorsee of the bill of lading to pay the freight which the consignor or charterer has, by the charter-party, contracted with the shipowner to pay, that the acceptance of the goods by such indorsee without any disclaimer of his liability is evidence of a new contract and a new agreement for the payment of the freight mentioned therein (l); and, then, the remedy for the freight on the bill of lading against the consignee or his assignee co-exists with the remedy against the original consignor or charterer upon the charter-party (m). Where a charter-party, stipulating for freight in a lump sum of 2,800*l.* in full of all charges, contained the following clause, "The captain to sign bills of lading at any rate of freight without prejudice to this charter," it was held that, so long as the goods shipped remained the property of the charterers or of their agents, they were liable to the lump freight, and the shipowners had a lien for it, but that the shipowners might be bound to deliver the goods to a bonâ fide holder for value of the bill of lading upon payment of the freight mentioned in the bill of lading (n). The master has no authority to draw bills of lading making the freight payable otherwise than to the owner (o). If the amount of the freight is specified on the face of the bill of lading, it is in general conclusive between the parties (p). Where therefore a mere nominal rate of freight was provided to be paid by the bill of lading, the shipowner being also owner of the cargo, it was held that a subsequent mortgagee of the ship and freight could not charge the assignee of the bill of lading the current rate of freight, (l) Sanders v. Vanzeller, 4 Q.B. 295; 12 L.J. Q.B. 497; Kemp v. Clark, 12 Q.B. 647; 17 L.J. Q.B. 305.

(m) Christy v. Row, 1 Taunt. 300; Shepard v. De Bernales, 13 East, 565.

(n) Gledstanes v. Allen, 12 C.B. 202; cp. Calcutta S.S. Co. v. Weir, (1910) 1 K.B. 759; 79 L.J. K.B. 401.

(o) Reynolds v. Jex, 34 L.J. Q.B. 251; 7 B. & S. 83.

(p) Foster v. Colby, 3 H. & N. 715; 28 L.J. Ex. 81; Shand v. Sanderson, 4 H. & N. 389; 28 L.J. Ex. 278.

but was confined to the nominal freight specified on the face of the bill of lading (q). If the receiver of the goods appears on the face of the bill of lading to be an agent acting on behalf of a known principal who is the consignee, the principal, and not the agent, is then liable for the freight (r). But, if the agency is undisclosed, and the principal has given the agent no authority to pledge his credit for the payment of the freight, and the goods never reach the hands of the principal, the latter cannot be made responsible for the amount of the freight (s); and the agent who actually received the goods under the bill of lading is then the party to be proceeded against (t). Where the consignee of goods indorsed the bill of lading to A., "looking to him for all freight, dead freight, and demurrage, without recourse to us," and the shipowner accepted the indorsement, and in pursuance of it delivered the goods to A., the consignee was exonerated from liability for freight (u); but the consignee, at all events where A. is his agent, is bound to prove an assent on the part of the shipowner discharging him from liability; and he does not prove such an assent by showing that the indorsement was on the bill when presented to the captain without also showing that the captain in fact assented to it (x). Where a bill of lading represented the freight of goods to have been paid, when in fact it had not been paid, it was held by the court that, though such representation was not conclusive as between the shipper of the goods and the shipowner, yet, as against an indorsee for value of the bill of lading without notice, the freight must be held to have been paid (y).

If the charter-party is in the ordinary form and does not amount to a demise of the ship, and subsequently the ship is sub-chartered and bills of lading are signed by the captain, the contracts are with the owner of the ship, who, or the captain as his agent, is entitled to collect the freight and to deduct any charter-party hire owing (z). But where, by the charter-party, the ship is demised to the charterers, who are to pay a lump freight for the whole voyage, and the master is to make bills of lading at any rate and payable in any manner the charterers may choose, this gives to the charterers the direct management as (q) Brown v. North, 8 Exch. 1; 22 L.J. Ex. 49.

(r) Amos v. Temperley, 8 M. & W. 805; 11 L.J. Ex. 183.

(s) Tobin v. Crawford, 9 M. & W. 718; 12 L.J. Ex. 490.

(t) Dougal v. Kemble, 3 Bing. 383; L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 103.

(u) Lewis v. McKee, L.R. 2 Ex. 37; 36 L.J. Ex. 6.

(x) Lewis v. McKee, L.R. 4 Ex. 58; 39 L.J. Ex. 62.

(y) Howard v. Tucker, 1 B. & Ad. 712; Kirchner v. Venus, 12 Moo. P.C. 399.

(z) Wehner v. Dene S.S. Co., (1905) 2 K.B. 92; 74 L.J. K.B. 550.

to the terms on which the bills of lading are to be signed, and they are entitled to recover the freight under the general authority which the shipowners have conferred upon them (a).

Payments in lieu of freight extinguishing right of lien.—When it is stipulated that a certain specified sum of money shall be paid in respect of goods shipped within a certain specified period after the sailing of the vessel, whether the goods shall then have been conveyed to their place of destination or not, or whether they shall ever be so conveyed or not, and to secure this arrangement the amount is made payable by the shipper, the sum stipulated to be paid is not freight, but a payment in lieu of freight. In this case there is no lien upon the goods to secure the payment, neither the consignee nor his goods being liable for the payment of the sum stipulated to be paid(b). But parties who have by special contract superseded the rights and obligations which the law attaches to freight in its legal sense may, if they think fit, create a lien on the goods for the performance of the contract into which they have entered, and that, either by express conditions in the contract itself, or by agreement that, in case of failure of performance of that contract, the right of lien for what is due shall subsist as if there had been an agreement for freight; and the usage of the place where the contract was made may be annexed to the contract so as to create a lien, provided both parties were cognizant of the usage at the time they made their contract (c).

Time for discharge of cargo.—A charter-party may specify the number of days to be occupied in the discharge or it may state that the cargo is to be discharged with customary dispatch or at the rate of so many tons per working day, &c. If a fixed limit of time is intended, the language used must be precise in its terms, for customary dispatch will not be translated to mean so many days and hours (d). Where the charter-party is silent as to the time to be occupied in the discharge, the contract implied by law is that each party will use reasonable diligence in performing that part of the delivery which, by the custom of the port, falls upon him; and there is no implied contract by the shipowner to allow his vessel to be kept there

(a) Marquand v. Banner, 6 E. & B. 245; 25 L.J. Q.B. 313; Kern v. Deslandes, 10 C.B. N.S. 205; 30 L.J. C.P. 297.

(b) How v. Kirchner, 11 Moo. P.C. 25.

(c) Kirchner v. Venus, 12 Moo. P.C. 398; Fisher v. Smith, 4 App.Cas. 1; 48 L.J. Ex. 411.

(d) Lyle Shipping Co. v. Cardiff Corporation, (1900) 2 Q.B. 638; 69 L.J. Q.B. 889; Hulthen v. Stewart, (1903) A.C. 389; 72 L.J. K.B. 917. Fractions of a day are not as a general rule to be taken into consideration: Houlder v. Weir, (1905) 2 K.B. 267; 74 L.J. K.B. 729. The charter-party may, however, permit of fractions of a day being taken into account: Yeoman v. The King, (1904) 2 K.B. 429; 72 L.J. K.B. 904.

the usual time, if, by reasonable diligence on the part of the merchant, the cargo might be sooner taken away; and no implied contract by the merchant to take the cargo out within such usual time, if he could not by reasonable diligence do so. The contract implied is that each should use reasonable dispatch in performing his part (e). Where, therefore, delay happens without fault on either side, the loss must remain where it falls (f); e.g., where delay is caused by a necessity to take in ballast during the process of discharge to safeguard the ship and the cargo remaining on board (g). Reasonable diligence means reasonable under the actual circumstances (h). A strike of dock labourers, for which neither the shipowner nor the charterer was responsible, may therefore be taken into consideration where no express limit of time is imposed (i). And delay due to a contingency the probability of the occurrence of which must have been known to and in the contemplation of both parties cannot be considered unreasonable (k). But reasonable despatch is a requirement which must be satisfied de die in diem, and a consignee cannot by working extra hard on one day entitle himself to idle on another day (l).

Payment of demurrage on charter-parties and bills of lading.—The charterer usually covenants or promises to load or unload the vessel within a certain time, or, if he fails to do so, to pay so much per diem during the delay. This payment, as well as the delay itself, is called in mercantile and legal phraseology, demurrage. The charterer cannot escape from liability upon his express covenant or promise to pay demurrage by showing that the delay was occasioned by some unforeseen event not provided for by the contract, such as the delays of other consignees in unloading (m), the crowded state of the docks, the delays of Custom-house officers, or the inclemency of the weather (n), or bad weather (o), or a strike of dock labourers (p), (e) There must be reasonable dispatch even where the charter-party provides for discharge "as customary at port of discharge": Aberdeen Glen Line v. Macken (S.S. Gairloch), (1899) 2 Ir.R. 1.

(f) Ford v. Cotesworth, L.R. 5 Q.B. 544; 39 L.J. Q.B. 188; Cunningham v. Dunn, 3 C.P.D. 443; 48 L.J. C.P. 62.

(g) Houlder v. Weir, (1905) 2 K.B. 267; 74 L.J. K.B. 729.

(h) Carlton S.S. Co. v. Castle Mail Packets Co., (1898) A.C. 486, 491; 67 L.J. Q.B. 795; Lyle Shipping Co. v. Cardiff Corporation, (1900) 2 Q.B. 638; 69 L.J. Q.B. 889; Hulthen v. Stewart, (1903) A.C. 389, 391; 72 L.J. K.B. 917.

(i) Hick v. Raymond, (1893) A.C. 22; 62 L.J. Q.B. 98.

(k) Barque Quilpué, Ltd. v. Brown, (1904) 2 K.B. 264; 73 L.J. K.B. 596.

(l) Aberdeen Glen Line v. Macken (S.S. Gairloch), (1899) 2 Ir.R. 1, 13.

(m) Straker v. Kidd, 3 Q.B.D. 223; 47 L.J. Q.B. 365; Porteus v. Watney, 3 Q.B.D. 534; 47 L.J. Q.B. 643.

(n) Blight v. Page, 3 B. & P. 295, n.; Barrett v. Dutton, 4 Campb. 333.

(o) Thiis v. Byers, 1 Q.B.D. 244; 45 L.J. Q.B. 11.

(p) Budgett v. Binnington, (1891) 1 Q.B. 35; 60 L.J. Q.B. 1; Elswick S.S. Co. v. Montaldi, (1907) 1 K.B. 626; 76 L.J. K.B. 672; even where there may have been an exception of strikes in a or even a permanent obstacle (q), or the neglect of the holders of the bill of lading to present it and claim the goods (r). And even where the cause of the delay has been excepted but would not have operated except for the dilatoriness of the defendant, the latter will not be excused (s). Nor can the defendant shelter himself under a clause such as this: "goods to be taken from the ship by the consignees (at their expense) immediately after arrival and as fast as steamer can deliver, or the same will be transhipped into lighters or landed or warehoused at the expense and risk of the proprietors of such goods," the shipowners not being deprived by the latter alternative of their ordinary remedy for breach of the bill of lading (t). If the delay is caused by the wrongful and unauthorised interference of the shipowner himself, the detention is not then the detention of the charterer, and the shipowner cannot claim demurrage in respect thereof (u). The terms of the charter-party must be consulted in order to determine whether the time occupied in getting to the actual loading berth is to be treated as part of the lay days, or as part of the time before the ship is an arrived ship (x). If the loading berth is particularly specified, there is no difficulty (y); but if the named place describes a port or wide district in several parts of which a ship can unload the ship will be considered to be an arrived ship when it has reached the spot which by custom is indicated by the place named though she may not be in the particular part of the port or district in which the particular cargo is to be discharged (z). If when she arrives there the place is so crowded that she cannot load, the loss must fall on the charterer; the shipowner has done all he was required to do when he has taken his vessel to the usual place of loading in the port (a), and he is not bound to wait an unreasonable time till the port is cleared (b). But where by a charter-party a vessel is to deliver her cargo at any safe berth special colliery guarantee: Saxon S.S. Co. v. Union S.S. Co., 69 L.J. Q.B. 907.

(q) Dahl v. Nelson, 12 Ch.D. 568; 6 App.Cas. 38; 50 L.J. Ch. 414.

(r) Erichsen v. Barkworth, 3 H. & N. 894; 28 L.J. Ex. 95.

(s) Tyne and Blyth Shipping Co. v. Leech, Harrison and Forwood, (1900) 2 Q.B. 12; 69 L.J. Q.B. 353; Elswick S.S. Co. v. Montaldi, (1907) 1 K.B. 626; 76 L.J. K.B. 672.

(t) The Arne, (1904) P. 154; 73 L.J. P. 34.

(u) Benson v. Blunt, 1 Q.B. 870; 10 L.J. Q.B. 333.

(x) Leonis S.S. Co. v. Rank, (1908) 1 K.B. 499; 77 L.J. K.B. 224.

(y) Murphy v. Coffin, 12 Q.B. D. 87.

(z) Davies v. McVeagh, 4 Ex.D. 265; 48 L.J. Ex. 686; Dahl v. Nelson, 6 App. Cas. 38; 50 L.J. Ch. 414; Leonis S.S. Co. v. Rank, (1908) 1 K.B. 499; 77 L.J. K.B. 224.

(a) Tapscott v. Balfour, L.R. 8 C.P. 46; 42 L.J. C.P. 16; Ashcroft v. Crow Colliery Co., L.R. 9 Q.B. 540; 43 L.J. Q.B. 194; Murphy v. Coffin, 12 Q.B. D. 87; Sanders v. Jenkins (1897) 1 Q.B. 93; 66 L.J. Q.B. 40; Leonis S.S. Co. v. Rank, (1908) 1 K.B. 499; 77 L.J. K.B. 224.

(b) Dahl v. Nelson, 6 App.Cas. 38; 50 L.J. Ch. 414. See Pyman v. Dreyfus, 24 Q.B.D. 152; 59 L.J. Q.B. 13.

as ordered, and owing to the crowded state of the dock the vessel is prevented from being berthed in the ordered berth, the shipowner cannot claim demurrage till she is berthed (c). Where the charter-party provided that the vessel was to unload at a certain port, or so near thereto as she might safely get at all times of tide and always afloat, and she was prevented, by the state of the tide, for some days from reaching that port, it was held that the charterers were liable for demurrage (d). A stipulation that the vessel shall proceed to A., and there load a cargo "in the usual and customary manner," applies to the mode of loading, whether by a lighter or at the wharf, and not to the place to which the shipowner undertakes that the ship shall proceed (e). Where a charter-party provided that the cargo should be "discharged with all dispatch according to the custom of the port," and the custom was to unload by lighters in turn, and delay arose while waiting for the turn, it was held the jury were rightly directed, that if the defendants had used the existing means at the port with reasonable dispatch, according to the custom, the jury were to find for the defendants (f); such a custom is not inconsistent with a charter-party providing that the timber shall be taken from alongside at merchant's expense (g). When neither the shipowner nor the charterer is to blame for delay, the number of days runs from the time when the ship is in a dischargeable state; and, if no period is mentioned, the cargo is to be discharged in a reasonable time, to commence from the time when the ship is in a state to begin delivering (h). Where demurrage was stipulated to be paid, "to reckon from the time of the vessel being ready to unload, and in turn to deliver," it was held that the words "in turn to deliver" applied to the public rules and regulations of the port of discharge, and that the charterers were not liable

(c) Tharsis Sulphur Co. v. Morel Bros., (1891) 2 Q.B. 647; 61 L.J. Q.B. 11; disapproving The Carisbrook, 15 P.D. 98; 59 L.J. P. 37; and commenting on Davies v. McVeagh, 4 Ex.D. 265; 48 L.J. Ex. 686. See also Hulthen v. Stewart, (1903) A.C. 389; 72 L.J. K.B. 917.

(d) Horsley v. Price, 11 Q.B.D. 244; 52 L.J. Q.B. 603; and see Allen v. Coltart, 11 Q.B.D. 782; 52 L.J. Q.B. 686.

(e) Tapscott v. Balfour, L.R. 8 C.P. 46; 42 L.J. C.P. 16; Coverdale v. Grant, 9 App.Cas. 470; 53 L.J. Q.B. 462; Kay v. Field, 10 Q.B.D. 241; 52 L.J. Q.B. 17.

(f) Postlethwaite v. Freeland, 5 App. Cas. 599; 49 L.J. Ex. 630; Lyle Shipping Co. v. Cardiff Corporation, (1900) 2 Q.B. 638; 69 L.J. Q.B. 889; The Alnholme, (1893) P. 173; 62 L.J. P. 51; Castlegate S.S. Co. v. Dempsey, (1892) 1 Q.B. 854; 61 L.J. Q.B. 620; The Jaederen, (1892) P. 351; 61 L.J. P. 89; Good v. Isaacs, (1892) 2 Q.B. 555; 61 L.J. Q.B. 649; Hulthen v. Stewart, (1903) A.C. 389; 72 L.J. K.B. 917. There must always be, however, reasonable dispatch: Aberdeen Glen Line v. Macken (S.S. Gairloch), (1899) 2 Ir.R. 1.

(g) Aktieselskab Helios v. Ekmann, (1897) 2 Q.B. 83; 66 L.J. Q.B. 538; Brenda S.S. Co. v. Green, (1900) 1 Q.B. 518; 69 L.J. Q.B. 445.

(h) Brown v. Johnson, 10 M. & W. 331; 11 L.J. Ex. 373.

for the payment of demurrage until their "turn to deliver" had come, in conformity with the regulations of the port (i). If, after the loading has been completed, the vessel is detained by a sudden frost (k), or by foul weather and contrary winds, no right to demurrage arises by reason of such detention (l). Demurrage is, however, an elastic term, and delays which occur after the voyage may sometimes give rise to a claim in the nature of demurrage, and give a lien for demurrage within the terms of the charter-party (m).

The days mentioned in the clause of demurrage are understood, it is said, by the custom of the port of London, to be working days, and consequently do not include Sundays and Custom-house holidays (n). There is not, however, apparently any general custom to this effect (o). The expression "weather working day" ordinarily means a day on which the work of loading or discharging is not prevented by bad weather, and unless the charter-party expressly refers to the custom of the port of discharge to attach to the expression a different meaning evidence of such different meaning will not be admissible (p). The lay days allowed will be reckoned from the time of the ship's arrival at the usual place of discharge, and not from her arrival at the entrance of the port, although for the purposes of navigation she may have discharged a portion of her cargo at the entrance of the port (q). The consignee may, however, show that there is a custom at the port of unloading that the lay days commence at some particular period (r). If the parties, by mutual consent, substitute a new port for the port mentioned in the contract of affreightment, the freighter will be entitled to the lay days, and the shipowner to the demurrage, stipulated for by the original contract (s). And if a charter-party excepts Sundays and holidays, but work is done on a Sunday, the inference may be that the parties had agreed to

(i) Robertson v. Jackson, 2 C.B. 412; 15 L.J. C.P. 28; Taylor v. Clay, 9 Q.B. 713; 16 L.J. Q.B. 44; Leidemann v. Schultz, 14 C.B. 51; 23 L.J. C.P. 17; The Cordelia, (1909) P. 27; 78 L.J. P. 48; but see Lawson v. Burness, 1 H. & C. 396.

(k) Pringle v. Mollett, 6 M. & W. 83; 9 L.J. Ex. 148.

(l) Jamieson v. Laurie, 6 Bro. P.C. 474.

(m) Harris v. Jacobs, 15 Q.B.D. 247; 54 L.J. Q.B. 492.

(n) Cochran v. Retberg, 3 Esp. 121; where "dispatch-money" was to be paid on time saved in loading, and nine days were saved, it was held that these days were of 24 and not 12 hours each: Laing v. Hollway, 3 Q.B.D. 437; 47 L.J. Q.B. 512.

(o) Brown v. Johnson, 10 M. & W. 334; 11 L.J. Ex. 373. See Neilsen v. Wait, 16 Q.B.D. 67; 55 L.J. Q.B. 87.

(p) Bennetts v. Brown, (1908) 1 K.B. 490; 77 L.J. K.B. 515; Bristol, &c., Shipping Co. v. Lockett Brothers, (1911) 1 K.B. 264.

(q) Brereton v. Chapman, 7 Bing. 559; Kell v. Anderson, 10 M. & W. 498; 12 L.J. Ex. 101; Bastifell v. Lloyd, 1 H. & C. 388; 31 L.J. Ex. 413.

(r) Norden S.S. Co. v. Dempsey, 1 C.P.D. 654; 45 L.J. C.P. 764.

(s) Jackson v. Galloway, 6 Sc. 792; 8 L.J. C.P. 29.

include that day among the lay days (t). In the case of demurrage, a fraction of a day counts as a day (u). If a consignee accepts goods under a bill of lading, upon which is a memorandum that the ship is to be cleared within a certain time, and that demurrage is to be paid after such time, he will be liable for such demurrage, and may be sued therefor by the master (x); but he is not responsible to the master for demurrage if no such clause is contained in the bill of lading (y), or if the delay is caused by the master's improperly refusing to deliver the whole cargo (z). Where, by the bill of lading, the vessel is to be unloaded in her regular turn, the consignor is liable for her detention beyond her regular turn, although there is no express contract for demurrage in the bill of lading (a).

Where the phrase in the charter-party is general, viz., "the charterer's liability to cease when the cargo is shipped," this includes all liability as well past as future (b); but where the clause is that the liability shall cease "as soon as the cargo is shipped, loading excepted," the charterer will be liable for delay in loading (c). Where the stipulation is that the ship is to be brought to a particular place, "or as near thereto as she may safely get," this refers to any permanent obstacle as well as to anything endangering her safety (d).

It is not unusual for the charter-party to give the shipowner a lien on the cargo for demurrage, and to provide that the charterer's responsibility is to cease on shipment of the cargo. Such an agreement will relieve the charterer from responsibility for demurrage at the port of loading as well as at that of discharge (e). But the intention of the parties must be quite clear (f); and unless the cesser clause is expressed in terms which prohibit such a conclusion, the lien given will be con-

(t) Whittall & Co. v. Rahtken's Shipping Co., (1907) 1 K.B. 783; 76 L.J. K.B. 538; Nelson & Sons v. Nelson Line, Liverpool, Ltd., (1907) 2 K.B. 705; 76 L.J. K.B. 531; reversed on facts, (1908) A.C. 108; Roy. Mail St. Packet Co., &c., In re, (1910) 1 K.B. 600; 79 L.J. K.B. 673.

(u) Commercial S.S. Co. v. Boulton, L.R. 10 Q.B. 346; 44 L.J. Q.B. 219.

(x) Jessen v. Solly, 4 Taunt. 54; Stindt v. Roberts, 17 L.J. Q.B. 166; 12 Jur. 518; Wegener v. Smith, 15 C.B. 285; 24 L.J. C.P. 25.

(y) Brouncker v. Scott, 4 Taunt. 1; Smith v. Sieveking, 5 E. & B. 589; 24 L.J. Q.B. 257; Chappel v. Comfort, 10 C.B. N.S. 802; 31 L.J. C.P. 58.

(z) Young v. Moeller, 5 E. & B. 762; S.C. nom. Möller v. Young, 25 L.J. Q.B. 94.

(a) Cawthron v. Trickett, 15 C.B. N.S. 754; 33 L.J. C.P. 182; and see Shadforth v. Cory, 32 L.J. Q.B. 379.

(b) Bannister v. Breslauer, L.R. 2 C.P. 497; 36 L.J. C.P. 195; Kish v. Cory, L.R. 10 Q.B. 553; 44 L.J. C.P. 205; French v. Gerber, 1 C.P.D. 737; 2 C.P.D. 247.

(c) Lister v. Van Haansbergen, 1 Q.B.D. 269; 45 L.J. Q.B. 495.

(d) Dahl v. Nelson, 12 Ch.D. 568; 6 App.Cas. 38; 50 L.J. Ch. 414. See Capper v. Wallace, 5 Q.B.D. 163; 49 L.J. Q.B. 350.

(e) Bannister v. Breslauer, L.R. 2 C.P. 497; 36 L.J. C.P. 195; Kish v. Cory, L.R. 10 Q.B. 553; 44 L.J. Q.B. 205; Sanguinetti v. Pacific Steam Nav. Co., 2 Q.B.D. 238; 46 L.J. Q.B. 105.

(f) Gullischen v. Stewart, 13 Q.B.D. 317; 53 L.J. Q.B. 173.

sidered as commensurate with the release of liability, and will not be construed so as to release the charterer, if in that way the shipowner will be left without any remedy for a breach of contract which has occurred (g). Even where the charterer is discharged, it does not necessarily follow that the responsibility is transferred to the holder of the bill of lading (h). A bill of lading which incorporates the terms of a charter-party must receive a reasonable construction. It is a document regulating the rights and liabilities of the consignees, and only those clauses of the charter-party which are consistent with the bill of lading are incorporated in it (i). The inclusion in a bill of lading of the words "all other conditions as per charter-party" is insufficient to fix a person taking it in the ordinary course of business with notice of all the contents of the charter-party, the equitable doctrine of constructive notice not being applicable to commercial transactions (k).

Primage and average.—There are certain customary charges called primage and average which a freighter whose merchandise has been conveyed to the port of destination is also liable to pay. The first is a small customary payment to the master for his trouble, and the second consists of several petty charges, such as towage, beaconage, pilotage, &c. (l).

General average.—A general average sacrifice is an extraordinary sacrifice voluntarily made in the hour of peril for the common preservation of ship and cargo (m), and the obligation to contribute, which by the common law is impliedly entered into by the shipowners and owners of the cargo, is called general or gross average; and the parties subject thereto are bound to contribute rateably according to the value of their several proportions of the property saved. There can be no contribution where the same person is owner of both ship and cargo. The (g) Clink v. Radford, (1891) 1 Q.B. 625; 60 L.J. Q.B. 388; Dunlop v. Balfour, (1892) 1 Q.B. 507; 61 L.J. Q.B. 354; Hanson v. Harrold, (1894) 1 Q.B. 612; 63 L.J. Q.B. 744.

(h) The words "paying freight as per charter-party" were held in Chappel v. Comfort, 10 C.B. N.S. 802; 31 L.J. C.P. 58, not to make the holder of the bill of lading liable for demurrage (cp. Smith v. Sieveking, 4 E. & B. 945; 24 L.J. Q.B. 257); and in Fry v. Chartered Bk. of India, L.R. 1 C.P. 689; 35 L.J. C.P. 306, not to make the holder of the bill of lading of a part of the cargo liable for the entire freight. In Wegener v. Smith, 15 C.B. 285; 24 L.J. C.P. 25, words making the goods "deliverable to order against payment of the agreed freight and other conditions as per charter-party," were held to make the consignee liable for demurrage at the port of delivery. But see S.S. County of Lancaster v. Sharp, 24 Q.B.D. 158; 59 L.J. Q.B. 22.

(i) Gullischen v. Stewart, 13 Q.B.D. 317; 53 L.J. Q.B. 173; Gray v. Carr, L.R. 6 Q.B. 522; 40 L.J. Q.B. 257; Gardner v. Trechmann, 15 Q.B.D. 154; 54 L.J. Q.B. 515; Serraino v. Campbell, (1891) 1 Q.B. 283; 60 L.J. Q.B. 303; Diederichsen v. Farquharson, (1898) 1 Q.B. 150; 67 L.J. Q.B. 103; Repetto v. Millar's Karri Jarrah Forests, (1901) 2 K.B. 306; 70 L.J. K.B. 561.

(k) Manchester Trust v. Furness, (1895) 2 Q.B. 539; 64 L.J. Q.B. 766; The Draupner, (1910) A.C. 450; 79 L. J. P. 88.

(l) Abbott, 655 (ed. 14).

(m) Per Bowen, L.J., in Svensden v. Wallace, 13 Q.B.D. 69, at p. 84.

claim for average contribution is part of the law of the sea, and arises in consequence of an act done by the captain as agent, not for the shipowner only, but also for the cargo owner, by which act he jettisons part of the cargo on the implied basis that contribution will be made by the ship and by the other owners of cargo (n). To constitute a general average loss so as to be the subject of a general average contribution, two things at least must co-exist: (a.) there must be an intentional sacrifice of part of the ship or cargo, or a voluntary expenditure for the benefit of the ship and cargo; (b.) such sacrifice or expenditure must be made at the time when a common danger to ship and cargo existed, for when the common danger has ceased there can be no sacrifice or expenditure that can be the subject of a general average contribution (o). The right of contribution, however, does not belong to wrongdoers who have brought about the loss (p), but where the loss is caused by the negligence or wrongdoing of persons for whom the shipowner is not responsible his right to contribution remains unaffected (q). Where damage is caused to a cargo in extinguishing fire, the shipper is not prevented, in the absence of default on his part, from claiming a general average contribution by reason of the fire having arisen from the inherent vice of the cargo (r).

Everything saved pays contribution according to its value; the shipowner contributes in proportion to the value of the ship and furniture, except the provisions of the passengers and crew (s), and the passengers and owners of goods shipped in proportion to the value of the property they save, excepting the clothes on their backs, but not excepting their wearing apparel and jewels deposited on board. The freight and earnings of the ship, after deducting the wages of the master and crew and other expenses of the voyage, likewise form the subject of contribution and general average; and, if a ship be chartered out and home for one entire and indivisible sum, the entire freight for the outward and homeward voyage must, when ultimately earned, contribute to the loss, whether this has occurred upon the outward or upon the homeward voyage (t). Goods stowed

(n) Burton v. English, 12 Q.B.D. 223; 53 L.J. Q.B. 133, per Bowen, L.J., where the words "at merchant's risk" were held not sufficiently to indicate an intention to exempt from general average.

(o) Per Smith, L.J., in Iredale v. China Traders Insurance Co., (1900) 2 Q.B. 515, 519; 69 L.J. Q.B. 783.

(p) Strang, Steel & Co. v. Scott, 14 App.Cas. 601; 59 L.J. P.C. 1; Kish v. Taylor, (1911) 1 K.B. 625.

(q) The Carron Park, 15 P.D. 203; 59 L.J. P. 74; Milburn v. Jamaica Fruit Co., (1900) 2 Q.B. 540; 69 L.J. Q.B. 860.

(r) Greenshields & Co. v. Stephens & Sons, (1908) A.C. 431; 77 L.J. K.B. 985.

(s) Brown v. Stapyleton, 4 Bing. 119.

(t) Williams v. London Assurance, 1 M. & S. 325; S.S. Carisbrook Co. v. Lond. & Prov. Mar. Ins. Co., (1902) 2 K.B 681; 71 L.J. K.B. 978.

upon the deck of the vessel, and thrown overboard during a storm, are excluded from the benefit of general average and contribution. Where goods were loaded on deck with the consent of their owner on a general ship, and there was no alleged custom bearing upon the case (u), the other cargo-owners were held not liable as for general average in respect of jettison of the deck cargo (x). If the goods are so loaded without the consent of their owner, the shipowner is himself liable (y); and if it is agreed between the cargo-owner and the shipowner that a deck cargo shall be carried, and the shipowner and cargo-owner get the whole of the benefit from the jettison, the shipowner will be liable (z).

Shipowners allowed the stowing of goods on deck in violation of their contract with the shipper. Some of the bills of lading of some cotton contained the words "under deck" and all of them exceptions in favour of "jettison." On the voyage the cotton was properly jettisoned. In an action by the indorsees of the bills of lading against the shipowners, it was held that the cotton was carried on deck in breach of contract, and was not within the exception, which had exclusive reference to goods safely stowed under hatches; that the cause of damage was not too remote; and that the shipowners were liable (a). A sale of the cargo at a port of refuge for the safety of the common adventure after the danger has ceased does not give rise to a claim for general average (b).

If the goods have been washed out of the ship by the violence of the waves, or have been damaged or destroyed by lightning or tempest, or have been unnecessarily cast overboard by the master, or crew, or passengers, the loss will not support a claim for general average (c). If masts and cables have been cut away for the purpose of preventing shipwreck, the owners of the cargo must contribute towards the loss of the shipowner; but, if they have been blown away, or injured in consequence of the necessity of carrying a great and unusual press of canvas to escape a threatening danger, or if the ship was not seaworthy at the commencement of the voyage, and the loss was occasioned by reason of such unseaworthiness, the loss is not the subject of (u) See Miller v. Titherington, 30 L.J. Ex. 217; 31 L.J. Ex. 363.

(x) Wright v. Marwood, 7 Q.B.D. 62; 50 L.J. Q.B. 643.

(y) Ib.; this case practically overrules Milward v. Hibbert, 3 Q.B. 120; 11 L.J. Q.B. 137.

(z) Wright v. Marwood, 7 Q.B.D. 62; 50 L.J. Q.B. 643; Johnson v. Chapman, 19 C.B. N.S. 563; 35 L.J. C.P. 23.

(a) Royal Exchange Shipping Co. v. Dixon, 12 App.Cas. 11; 56 L.J. Q.B. 266.

(b) Iredale v. China Traders Ins. Co., (1900) 2 Q.B. 515; 69 L.J. Q.B. 783.

(c) Mouse's Case, 12 Co. 63; Dobson v. Wilson, 3 Campb. 486.

contribution and general average (d). If, in endeavouring to refloat a steamship stranded in a perilous position, the engines are worked for the common safety at too high pressure, the damage so caused to them as well as the value of the coal consumed in working them form the subject of a general average contribution (e). If at the time when a mast is cut away with a view to saving the whole adventure, it is certain to be lost in any event, then there is no "sacrifice" of the mast, and therefore no claim for general average (f). If a ship accidentally runs foul of another ship in a fog or storm, and the master is compelled to cut away his rigging in order to preserve the ship and cargo, and is obliged to put into port to repair and renew that which has been sacrificed, the expense of re-landing and warehousing the cargo, of pilotage, and of the repairs, so far as they are absolutely necessary to enable the cargo to be forwarded, form the subject of general average (g). So where a ship loaded with cattle sprang a leak, and the master for the safety of all concerned put into an infected port for repairs, and the cattle could not be landed in England, but had to be sold elsewhere at a lower price, it was held that the depreciation in value of the cattle being the direct and immediate consequence of the average act of putting into port for repairs was a loss recoverable in general average (h). But where a ship has been stranded through the negligence of her master, and it has become necessary to jettison part of the cargo, although the innocent owners of the jettisoned cargo will be entitled to general average, the shipowners will not unless their ordinary relations to the shippers have been varied by contract (i). An extraordinary expenditure incurred is as much a sacrifice, as if, instead of money being expended, money's worth were thrown away (k). If part of the cargo has been taken out and put into lighters, to enable a stranded vessel to be got afloat and sent (d) Birkley v. Presgrave, 1 East, 220; Covington v. Roberts, 2 B. & P. N.R. 378; Power v. Whitmore, 4 M. & S. 149; Schloss v. Heriot, 14 C.B. N.S. 59; 32 L.J. C.P. 211; Montgomery v. Indemnity Mut. Mar. Ins. Co., (1902) 1 K.B. 734; 71 L.J. K.B. 467.

(e) The Bona, (1895) P. 125; 64 L.J. P. 62.

(f) Shepherd v. Kottgen, 2 C.P.D. 585; 47 L.J. C.P. 67.

(g) Plummer v. Wildman, 3 M. & S. 482, qualified by Hallett v. Wigram, 9 C.B. 601; 19 L.J. C.P. 288; Hall v. Janson, 4 E. & B. 500; 24 L.J. Q.B. 97; Harrison v. Bank of Australasia, L.R. 7 Ex. 39; 41 L.J. Ex. 36; Atwood v. Sellar, 5 Q.B.D. 286; 49 L.J. C.P. 515. See, however, as to this case and the expenses of reshipping the cargo, Svendsen v. Wallace, 10 App.Cas. 404; 54 L.J. Q.B. 497; Rose v. Bank of Australasia, (1894) A.C. 687; 63 L.J. Q.B. 504.

(h) Anglo-Argentine Live Stock Agency v. Temperley, (1899) 2 Q.B. 403; 68 L.J. Q.B. 900; cp. Iredale v. China Traders Insurance Co., (1900) 2 Q.B. 515; 69 L.J. Q.B. 783.

(i) Strang, Steel & Co. v. Scott, 14 App. Cas. 601; 59 L.J. P.C. 1.

(k) Per Blackburn, J., Kemp v. Halliday, 6 B. & S. 723; 34 L.J. Q.B. 233.

into port for repairs, the whole expense of the operation, which is for the common benefit of ship, goods, and freight, forms the subject of general average (l); but not, as a general rule, expenses incurred, after the cargo has been safely discharged and warehoused, for the purpose of saving the ship alone (m). So long as the expenditure by the shipowner is merely such as he should incur in the fulfilment of his ordinary duty as shipowner, it cannot be general average; so loss of time freight resulting from detention under repair of general average damage is not allowed in general average (n); but the expenditure in raising a submerged vessel with cargo is extraordinary expenditure, chargeable against all the subjects in jeopardy saved by this expenditure (o). So also the expense of hiring extra hands to pump (p), and the burning of spars and cargo as fuel for the engine to work the pump (q), and throwing water on the cargo in case of fire (r), has been held to be general average. But the fact that the shipowners have become bound to pay a sum of money for the preservation of the ship and cargo through the reasonable conduct of the master does not make the whole sum necessarily chargeable to general average (s).

Salvage paid to recaptors, money or goods given as a composition to pirates to save the rest, and expenses incurred in reclaiming the ship, or defending a suit in a foreign court of Admiralty, and obtaining her discharge from an unjust capture or detention, are all the proper subjects of general contribution (t). It has been held that the expenditure of ammunition in resisting capture by a privateer, the damage done to the ship in the combat, and the expense of curing the wounded, are not the subject of contribution; but the correctness of this decision may be doubted, opposed as it is to the opinions of some of the most eminent writers on maritime law (u). A practice formerly prevailed in this country to value the goods at their invoice price or prime cost, if the loss happened before half the voyage was performed; but, if it happened afterwards, then to value the goods at the clear price which they would have fetched at the place of destination. The last valuation is now adopted in

(l) Moran v. Jones, 7 E. & B. 533; 26 L.J. Q.B. 187.

(m) Job v. Langton, 6 E. & B. 792; 26 L.J. Q.B. 97; Walthew v. Marrojani, L.R. 5 Ex. 116; 39 L.J. Ex. 81; Royal Mail Co. v. English Bank of Rio, 19 Q.B.D. 362; 57 L.J. Q.B. 31.

(n) The Leitrim, (1902) P. 256; 71 L.J. P. 108.

(o) Per Blackburn, J., Kemp v. Halliday, 6 B. & S. 723; 34 L.J. Q.B. 233.

(p) Wilson v. Bank of Victoria, L.R. 2 Q.B. 203; 36 L.J. Q.B. 89.

(q) Robinson v. Price, 2 Q.B.D. 295; 46 L.J. Q.B. 551.

(r) Whitecross Wire Co. v. Savill, 8 Q.B.D. 653; 51 L.J. Q.B. 426.

(s) Tritton v. Ocean Steamship Co., 10 App.Cas. 107; 54 L.J. Q.B. 192.

(t) Marshall on Insurance (ed. 4), by Shee, J., p. 425.

(u) Taylor v. Curtis, 6 Taunt. 608; ib. 638—643; Phillips on Insurance, 1337; Benecke, 280.

all cases where the average is adjusted after the ship's arrival at the place of destination. But, if the ship is compelled to return to its lading port, and the average is immediately adjusted, the goods only contribute according to the invoice price (x), or even less, if in all probability they would have arrived in a damaged state; the general rule being that the value of goods jettisoned is to be taken to be the sum which it may fairly be assumed they would have been worth to the owner at the port of adjustment (y).

The adjustment of average should be at the port of destination, if reached; but where the voyage is interrupted by some supervening cause, which necessitates or justifies its termination at some intermediate place, that place is the proper place of adjustment (z). As soon as the average has been calculated and the exact amount of contribution ascertained, an action may be brought for its recovery (a). Each owner of jettisoned goods becomes a creditor of the ship and cargo saved, and has a direct claim against the owners of both for a pro ratâ contribution, recoverable either by direct action, or, through the shipmaster as his agent for the purpose, by exercising a lien on each parcel of goods salved for its proportionate liability (b). The obligation to make general average contribution arises from the relation between ship and cargo, and not from an antecedent collision, so that the shipowner cannot recover from the wrongdoing ship the amount of general average contribution which he has had to pay (c).

Where there has been a general average loss, the shipowner must take such steps as are necessary upon his part to procure an adjustment of the general average and secure its payment (d). He is not bound to employ an average-stater but may make out his own average statement (e). He cannot, however, insist as a condition for the delivery of the cargo that the consignee shall pay a deposit upon which the shipowner may draw to discharge claims forming part of the general average expenses (f).

Transfer of bills of lading.—The contract evidenced by a bill of lading is transferred by the indorsement and delivery of the (x) Abbott, 798 (ed. 14).

(y) Fletcher v. Alexander, L.R. 3 C.P. 375; 37 L.J. C.P. 193.

(z) Per Cockburn, C.J.: Mavro v. Ocean Marine Ins. Co., L.R. 10 C.P. 414; 44 L.J. C.P. 229.

(a) Birkley v. Presgrave, 1 East, 220; see the old form of declaration, Schloss v. Heriot, 14 C.B. N.S. 59; 32 L.J. C.P. 214.

(b) Strang, Steel & Co. v. Scott, 14 App.Cas. 601; 59 L.J. P.C. 1.

(c) The Marpessa, (1891) P. 403; 61 L.J. P. 9.

(d) Crooks v. Allan, 5 Q.B.D. 38; 49 L.J. Q.B. 201.

(e) Wavertree Sailing Ship Co. v. Love, (1897) A.C. 373; 66 L.J. P.C. 77.

(f) Huth v. Lamport, 16 Q.B.D. 735; 55 L.J. Q.B. 239.

instrument to the indorsee, so as to enable the latter to maintain an action, or be sued, upon it (g). But where bills of lading were indorsed by the shipper in blank and deposited with the indorsees as security for a loan, and the indorsees did not take possession or deal with the goods, it was held that the property in the goods did not pass to the indorsees so as to make them liable in an action by the shipowner for freight (h). If the consignor under a bill of lading, making the goods deliverable to order or assigns, indorses the bill in blank, and deposits it as a security for an advance of money, and on repayment of the advance the bill is re-indorsed and re-delivered to him, he is remitted to all his rights under the original contract as against the shipowners, and may sue them for a breach, whether occurring before or after the re-indorsement (i).

Damages for breach of charter-parties.—The measure of damages for the breach of the ordinary contract or covenant in a charter-party to procure and ship a cargo and pay freight (ante, p. 970) is to be ascertained by calculating the freight to be earned, and deducting the expense which the shipowner would have been put to, but did not incur, in earning it, and also what the ship earned (if anything) during the period which would have been occupied in performing the voyage if the charter-party had been fulfilled (k). If, subsequently to the breach of contract, the shipmaster has been offered a cargo and has refused it, or has neglected an opportunity of receiving cargo and earning freight, the measure of damages will be the amount of freight agreed to be paid, minus what the shipmaster might have earned if he had thought fit (l). When goods shipped on board have been sold at an intermediate port to defray expenses necessarily incurred in repairing the vessel, the shipper is not entitled to claim the price they might have realised at the port of delivery unless the ship and cargo arrive there in safety (m).

Carriage of dangerous goods.—By the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894 (n), s. 448 (1), the master or owner of any vessel may refuse to take on board any package or parcel which he suspects to contain goods of a dangerous nature, and may require it to be opened to ascertain the fact. By sect. 448 (2), where any

(g) 18 & 19 Vict. c. 111 ; 24 Vict. c. 10, s. 6 ; see Smurthwaite v. Wilkins, 13 C.B. N.S. 842 ; 31 L.J. C.P. 214 ; Dracachi v. Anglo-Egyptian Navigation Co., L.R. 3 C.P. 190 ; 37 L.J. C.P. 71 ; The Figlia Maggiore, L.R. 2 A. & E. 106 ; 37 L.J. Adm. 52 ; The Freedom, L.R. 3 P.C. 594.

(h) Sewell v. Burdick, 10 App.Cas. 74 ; 54 L.J. Q.B. 156.

(i) Short v. Simpson, L.R. 1 C.P. 248 ; 35 L.J. C.P. 147.

(k) Smith v. M'Guire, 3 H. & N. 567 ; 27 L.J. Ex. 465 ; Wilson v. Hicks, 26 L.J. Ex. 242 ; Aitken v. Ernsthausen, (1894) 1 Q.B. 773 ; 63 L.J. Q.B. 559.

(l) Harries v. Edmonds, 1 C. & K. 686.

(m) Atkinson v. Stephens, 21 L.J. Ex. 329 ; 7 Exch. 567.

(n) 57 & 58 Vict. c. 60.

dangerous goods (o), or any goods which, in the judgment of the master or owner of the vessel are of a dangerous nature, have been sent or brought aboard any vessel without being marked or without notice being given as required by the Act (p), the master or owner of the vessel may cause such goods to be thrown overboard, together with any package or receptacle in which they are contained; and neither the master nor the owner of the vessel will be subject to any liability in respect of such throwing overboard.

Carriage of passengers and merchandise by land—Injuries to passengers and goods.—All persons who undertake the work of carrying passengers by land for hire impliedly warrant their vehicles, horses, and equipments to be roadworthy, and reasonably sufficient in strength for the accomplishment of the journey, so far as that condition of things can be secured by the exercise of skill; but the carrier does not warrant that they shall be perfect for their purpose; and, therefore, while he ought reasonably to examine the vehicle (q), and will be liable for a breakdown which the exercise of reasonable care would have prevented (r), he is not responsible for a defect in it, the existence of which no skill could have detected (s). As the work of driving is a work of skill, the carrier impliedly undertakes, if he drives himself, that he will exercise competent skill in driving, or, if he accomplishes the work through agents, that he will provide fit persons to execute the office. If the driver overloads the carriage, or drives with immoderate speed, or with defective reins, or with reins so loose that he cannot readily command his horses, or if he passes unnecessarily along unsafe parts of the road, or through narrow gateways or dangerous passages, or takes the wrong side of the road, and a collision occurs, the proprietor of the carriage will be answerable for injuries sustained by the passengers (t). And if, from the negligence of the driver, or defects in the carriage or equip

(o) That is, aquafortis, vitriol, naphtha, benzine, gunpowder, lucifer matches, nitro-glycerine, petroleum, any explosives within the meaning of the Explosives Act, 1875, 38 & 39 Vict. c. 17, or any other goods of a dangerous nature (sect. 446 (3)). See also post, p. 1023.

(p) By sect. 446 (1), the nature of the goods must be marked on the outside of the package, and written notice of their nature and of the name and address of the sender or carrier must be given at or before the time of shipment.

(q) Richardson v. G. E. Ry., L.R. 10 C.P. 486, reversed on the findings on appeal, 1 C.P.D. 342.

(r) Hyman v. Nye, 6 Q.B.D. 685; an accident resulting from the tendency of motor omnibuses, however well constructed and designed, to skid does not imply negligence: Wing v. London Gen. Omnibus Co., Ltd., (1909) 2 K.B. 652; 78 L.J. K.B. 1063.

(s) Christie v. Griggs, 2 Campb. 81; Sharp v. Grey, 9 Bing. 457; 2 L.J. C.P. 45; Readhead v. Midland Ry., L.R. 4 Q.B. 379; 38 L.J. Q.B. 169; Francis v. Cockerell, L.R. 5 Q.B. 501; 39 L.J. Q.B. 291; East Indian Ry. v. Kalidas Mukerjee, (1901) A.C. 396; 70 L.J. P.C. 63.

(t) Aston v. Heaven, 2 Esp. 535; Bremner v. Williams, 1 C. & P. 414.

ments, the passenger is placed in so perilous a situation as to render it advisable for him to leap to the ground to avoid a greater peril reasonably to be apprehended, and he sustains an injury in so doing, the coach proprietor is responsible (u). Railway carriers of passengers contract that all persons connected with the carrying and with the means of the carrying, such as the carriages, the road, or signalling, shall use care; but they do not contract that other railway companies who may be entitled to use the railway shall not be guilty of negligence in the management of their trains (v). In determining the question of negligence in cases of collision, the law or custom of the road as to passing vehicles is to be taken into consideration; but "circumstances may frequently arise, where a deviation from what is called the law of the road would not only be justifiable, but absolutely necessary" (x).

Every carrier of passengers for hire, whether he be or be not a common carrier, is bound to exercise the greatest care for securing the safety of his passengers, and is answerable for the smallest negligence on his own part, or on the part of his servants and agents (y), but not for unforeseen accidents and misfortunes, which care could not have prevented (z). He "does not warrant the absolute safety of his passengers. His undertaking as to them goes no further than this, that as far as human care and foresight can go, he will provide for their safety" (a). But the breaking down or overturning of a coach is primâ facie proof of negligence on the part of the driver, and he must rebut this presumption, if it be unfounded, by showing that "the damage arose from what the law considers a mere accident" (b). When the carriage is by railway, the railway company is bound to keep the railway itself in good travelling order, and fit for use, and to provide roadworthy engines and carriages, skilful drivers and engineers, and all things necessary for the safe conveyance of such passengers (c); and by the 31 & 32 Vict. c. 119, s. 22, to provide in certain cases for means of communication between the passengers and the guard. But the company is not bound, at its peril, to provide a roadworthy carriage, and will

(u) Jones v. Boyce, 1 Stark. 493.

(v) Wright v. Midland Ry., L.R. 8 Ex. 137; 42 L.J. Ex. 89. And see post, p. 1070.

(x) Wayde v. Carr (Lady), 2 D. & R. 256; 1 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 63.

(y) Jackson v. Tollett, 2 Stark. 38; Dudley v. Smith, 1 Campb. 169.

(z) E.g., where a woman was injured by being pushed off the platform by the pressure of an orderly crowd: M'Callum v. N. B. Ry., (1908) S.C. 415.

(a) East Indian Ry. v. Kalidas Mukerjee, (1901) A.C. 396; 70 L.J. P.C. 63.

(b) Crofts v. Waterhouse, 3 Bing. 321; 4 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 75; Sharp v. Grey, 9 Bing. 457; 2 L.J. C.P. 45; Harris v. Costar, 1 C. & P. 637.

(c) As to overcrowding on platform causing injury, see Fraser v. Caledonian Ry., (1903) 5 F. 41.

not be responsible to a passenger, if the defect in the carriage is such that it could be neither guarded against in the process of construction, nor discovered by subsequent examination (d). Every person who receives goods to be carried from one place to another is bound to provide proper covering to protect the goods from injury by rain (e).

If the driver of a railway-engine drives at a dangerous speed, or from negligence causes the train to be thrown off the rails, or to come into collision with another train, the railway company is responsible for all damages that may have been sustained by the passengers (f). But if a railway-train runs off the line in consequence of the wilful and malicious act of a stranger, who has placed a stone on the railway, then, as there is no negligence on the part of the railway company, they are not responsible for the consequences (g).

A railway company will be responsible, at all events in the absence of fraud on the part of the mother, for an injury sustained by a child between the ages of three and twelve, travelling with her, although no separate fare was paid for the child, and the company cannot shield itself under the contract with the mother (h). The contract seems to be made by the invitation to take the seat in the train and the acceptance of it, and it is immaterial whether the traveller himself took a ticket or paid the fare (i). But where a servant has taken a ticket for himself, the master cannot sue, because the tort arises out of a contract to which the master is not a party, and there is no duty towards the master (k). Where part of the ordinary luggage of a servant which he is taking with him as a passenger by a railway is the property of his master, and it is injured whilst in the custody of the railway company by their misfeasance—as, by being negligently overturned in front of a train—the master can maintain an action of tort against the company for the amount of the damage, notwithstanding that the contract of carriage is with the servant alone. Where a servant is a passenger by a railway that is bound to carry the ordinary luggage of a passenger free of charge, his livery is such luggage, although

(d) Readhead v. Midland Ry., L.R. 4 Q.B. 379 ; 38 L.J.Q.B. 169 ; East Indian Ry. v. Kalidas Mukerjee, (1901) A.C. 396 ; 70 L.J. P.C. 63. And see ante, p. 1016.

(e) Webb v. Page, 6 M. & Gr. 196 ; 12 L.J. C.P. 327.

(f) Collett v. L. & N. W. Ry., 16 Q.B. 984 ; 20 L.J. Q.B. 411 ; Skinner v. L. B. & S. C. Ry., 5 Exch. 787.

(g) Latch v. Rumner Ry., 27 L.J. Ex. 155.

(h) Austin v. G. W. Ry., L.R. 2 Q.B. 442 ; 36 L.J. Q.B. 201.

(i) Marshall v. Y. & N. Ry., 11 C.B. 655 ; 21 L.J. C.P. 34 ; Austin v. G. W. Ry., supra.

(k) Alton v. Midland Ry., 19 C.B. N.S. 213 ; 34 L.J. C.P. 292.

the property of his master (l). It seems, however, that where the servant has taken a ticket from one company and has been injured by the negligence of another, the master may sue that company with whom neither has contracted (m). The ratio decidendi seems to be that, though generally speaking an action against a railway company for a tort in form is substantially for a breach of contract, where there is a contract express or implied between the parties, yet there is, beyond the contract, a duty which the law imposes upon all, namely, to do no act to injure another (n).

Primâ facie evidence of negligence.—When both the railway itself, and the carriages in which the passengers are conveyed, are under the exclusive control of the company carrying the passengers, the very fact of a train's running off the line has been held to be primâ facie proof of negligence on the part of such company, or its officers, and throws upon them the burden of showing that it occurred without any fault or neglect of duty on their part (o). And where other companies have running powers over the line, it must be shown affirmatively that it was through the negligence of such other companies that the accident occurred (p). But if the accident is primâ facie caused by the negligence of some third person, for whom the defendants are not responsible, e.g., a contractor engaged for some third person, or a passenger in the train, it must be shown that the accident resulted from, or might not have occurred but for, the defendants' omitting to take some precaution usually adopted (q). If it appears that the train went off the rails when travelling at a moderate speed, and that the wheels of the carriages and engine were properly constructed, and the railway itself was properly made and in good order, and that the departure of the engine and carriages from the rails might have been occasioned by the malicious trespass of a stranger (ante, p. 1017), there will be nothing to establish even a primâ facie case of negligence against the company (r). But if the railway bridges or viaducts have not been properly constructed, or have not been carefully repaired, so as to enable them to resist the violence of storms and

(l) Meux v. G. E. Ry., (1895) 2 Q.B. 387; 64 L.J. Q.B. 657.

(m) Berringer v. G. E. Ry., 4 C.P.D. 163; 48 L.J. C.P. 400.

(n) Fleming v. M. S. & L. Ry., 4 Q.B.D. 81; Foulkes v. Met. Dist. Ry., 5 C.P.D. 157; 49 L.J. C.P. 361.

(o) Carpue v. L. & B. Ry., 5 Q.B. 747; 13 L.J. Q.B. 133; Latch v. Rumner Ry., ante, p. 1017; see Scott v. London Dock Co., 3 H. & C. 596; 34 L.J. Ex. 220; as to interrogatories in cases of collision, see Bechervaise v. G. W. Ry., L.R. 6 C.P. 36; 40 L.J. C.P. 8.

(p) Ayles v. S. E. Ry., L.R. 3 Ex. 146; 37 L.J. Ex. 104.

(q) Daniel v. Metropolitan Ry., L.R. 3 C.P. 591; 37 L.J. C.P. 280; L.R. 5 H.L. 45; 40 L.J. C.P. 121; East Indian Ry. v. Kalidas Mukerjee, (1901) A.C. 396; 70 L.J. P.C. 63.

(r) Bird v. G. N. Ry., 28 L.J. Ex. 3.

floods which may be expected occasionally to occur, and injuries are thereby caused to passengers (s), the railway company will be responsible in damages, the mere fact that they may have employed competent engineers and workmen, and have used the best materials in the work, not relieving them of responsibility (t).

Loss of goods or money by the way.—A person who receives things to be carried by him for hire to a certain destination cannot set up a mere loss of them by the way as an answer to an action for the non-delivery of them according to his contract (ante, p. 982). The law will even imply a promise from the defendant "safely to convey," although he is not a common carrier, and although no sum certain has been agreed to be paid him as the price of the carriage (u). Where a traveller hired a cab for the conveyance of himself and his luggage to a railway station, and the luggage was placed on the outside of the cab, it was held that the acceptance of the luggage by the cabman to be carried, together with the passenger, for hire, implied a promise "safely and securely" to carry, and that the cabman was responsible for the loss of a portion of the luggage by the way (x). This promise to carry safely, which the law implies from all persons who undertake the carriage of goods for hire, is not understood to mean that the goods shall be delivered safe at all events, but that they shall be kept safe from all such contingencies as can be guarded against by the exercise of vigilance or skill. The contract is "a contract to carry safely and securely as far as regards the neglect of the carrier himself and his servants, but not to insure the safety of the goods;" and the carrier therefore is not liable for losses by robbers, or any taking by force; but he is primâ facie responsible for a secret theft of them, unless he can prove his own care and watchfulness and blamelessness in the matter (y). If the owner accompanies the goods to take care of them, and loses them himself, the carrier is not responsible for the loss (z).

Who is to be deemed a common carrier.—Every person who plies with a carriage by land, or with a boat or vessel by water, between different places, and professes openly to carry passengers and goods, is a CARRIER, and every person who undertakes for hire or reward to transport the goods of such as choose

(s) Gt. West., &c. of Canada v. Fawcett, 1 Moo. P.C. N.S. 101.

(t) Grote v. Chester & Holyhead Ry., 2 Exch. 255

(u) Rogers v. Head, Cro.Jac. 262; Matthews v. Hopping, 1 Keb. 852.

(x) Ross v. Hill, 2 C.B. 877; 15 L.J. C.P. 182.

(y) De Rothschild v. R. M. St. P. Co., 7 Exch. 734; 21 L.J. Ex. 273; and see ante, p. 1026.

(z) Brind v. Dale, 8 C. & P. 209, 211; 2 Moo. & R. 80; see also cases as to passenger's luggage, post, p. 1035.

to employ him from place to place is a common carrier (a). Common carriers are railway companies who profess to carry goods or merchandise, stagecoach and waggon proprietors, lightermen, hoymen, barge owners, canal boatmen and the owners and masters of ships or steamboats employed as general ships trading regularly from port to port for the transportation of goods (b). The owner of a carriage who does not ply regularly for hire to a particular destination, but merely lets out a private carriage, with horses and driver, by the hour, day, or job, to proceed to any destination ordered by the hirer, is not a common carrier. A London cabdriver or hackney coachman, for example, is not a common carrier (c), nor is a furniture remover (d); but a barge-owner is, although he does not ply between any fixed termini, and only lets his barges for a single voyage to one person at a time, if he lets out his vessels for the conveyance of the goods of any person who applies to him (e). When goods are in the custody of persons as wharfingers and not as carriers, and such persons do not undertake to carry the goods of any who ask them, they are not common carriers, and are not liable, in the absence of negligence, for damage arising to the goods (f). Railway companies are, apart from statute law or special contract, common carriers (though not of passengers (g)), and the Railways Clauses Act, 1845 (h), provides that they shall not be liable to any greater extent than common carriers; but their rights and liabilities are further regulated and limited, as we shall see, both by statute and by special contracts. By many of the railway Acts it is expressly enacted that railway companies shall act as common carriers, that they shall convey passengers and goods by locomotive engines, and that they shall provide for all persons conveying and sending goods by their railway every reasonable convenience and facility for the loading and unloading of goods (i). So one

(a) Story on Bailments, s. 495; adopted by Wilde, C.J., in Benett v. P. & O. S.S. Co., 6 C.B. 775, 787; and see Brett, J., in Nugent v. Smith, 1 C.P.D. 19, 27; 45 L.J. C.P. 697.

(b) Lovett v. Hobbs, 2 Show. 127; Dale v. Hall, 1 Wils. 281; Trent Navigation Proprietors v. Wood, 3 Esp. 127; Crouch v. L. & N. W. Ry., 14 C.B. 255; 23 L.J. C.P. 73. A railway company is not liable as a common carrier of passengers independently of negligence: Readhead v. Midland Ry., L.R. 4 Q.B. 379; 38 L.J. Q.B. 169; Dickson v. G. N. Ry., 18 Q.B.D. 176, 185; 56 L.J. Q.B. 111; East Indian Ry. v. Kalidas Mukerjee, (1901) A.C. 396; 70 L.J. P.C. 63.

(c) Brind v. Dale, 8 C. & P. 207; 2 Moo. & R. 80; Ross v. Hill, 2 C.B. 887; 15 L.J. C.P. 182.

(d) Scaife v. Farrant, L.R. 10 Ex. 358; 44 L.J. Ex. 234, post, p. 1033.

(e) Liver Alkali Co. v. Johnson, L.R. 9 Ex. 338; 43 L.J. Ex. 216; Hill v. Scott, (1895) 2 Q.B. 713; 65 L.J. Q.B. 87.

(f) Chattock v. Bellamy, 64 L.J. Q.B. 250; Consol. Tea, &c. Co. v. Oliver's Wharf, (1910) 2 K.B. 395; 79 L.J. K.B. 810.

(g) Dickson v. G. N. Ry., 18 Q.B.D. 176, 185; 56 L.J. Q.B. 111; East Indian Ry. v. Kalidas Mukerjee, (1901) A.C. 396; 70 L.J. P.C. 63.

(h) 8 & 9 Vict. c. 20, s. 89.

(i) Pegler v. Monmouth Ry., 6 H. & N. 644; 30 L.J. Ex. 249. As to the obligation of railway companies to who is not a common carrier by trade may by some particular warranty or undertaking to carry goods safely place himself in the situation of a common carrier (k). It is the duty of all who hold themselves out to the world as common carriers to carry, for every person who tenders them the proper charge, all goods which they have convenience for carrying, and in respect of which they hold themselves out as carriers, without subjecting the person tendering the goods to any unreasonable or unusual conditions (l).

Duties of common carrier.—Whenever a man undertakes the public office of a common carrier of goods he undertakes a public trust for the benefit of the rest of his fellow-subjects, and is bound to serve the subject in all the things that are within the reach of such an office, under pain of an action against him (m). He is bound to accept and carry all things which he publicly professes to carry for all persons who are ready and willing to pay him his customary hire, provided he has room in his cart or carriage for their conveyance, and has declared his intention to set out on his accustomed journey (n); and he is bound to carry them to and from the places to which he professes to carry, although one of those places may be without the realm (o). A carrier is not bound to carry goods by the shortest route, but only by the route by which he usually carries them, and which he professes to go (p). If he journeys by a particular roundabout road between one place and another, he is not bound to carry by a shorter route; but he is bound to use reasonable dispatch and to deliver within a reasonable time (q). If he limits his business to the carriage of particular classes of chattels, he can only be compelled to carry the things he publicly professes to carry, and is in the habit of carrying. If the carriage of certain commodities is attended with inconvenience or some peculiar risk, he may refuse to receive and carry mails and post office servants in charge of them, see Railways (Conveyance of Mails) Act, 1838, 1 & 2 Vict. c. 98, ss. 1—6, 16; Regulations of Railways Act, 1868, 31 & 32 Vict. c. 119, s. 36; Regulation of Railways Act, 1873, 36 & 37 Vict. c. 48, ss. 18, 19; and see Postmaster-General v. Highland Ry., 2 Ry. & Can.Tr.Cas. 34; Waterford, Limerick and Western Ry. v. Postmaster-General, 11 Ry. & Can.Tr.Cas. 77; G. W. Ry. v. Postmaster-General, 12 Ry. & Can.Tr.Cas. 11. As to conveyance of mails in charge of a servant going as an ordinary passenger, see Railway Regulation Act, 1844, 7 & 8 Vict. c. 85, s. 11.

(k) Robinson v. Dunmore, 2 Bos. & P. 416.

(l) Garton v. Brist. & Ex. Ry., 1 B. & S. 162; 30 L.J. Q.B. 294; cp. Stone v. Midland Ry., (1904) 1 K.B. 669; 73 L.J. K.B. 392.

(m) Keilwey, 50, pl. 4.

(n) Bac.Abr. Carriers, B.; Pickford v. Grand Junction Ry., 8 M. & W. 372; 10 L.J. Ex. 342.

(o) Crouch v. L. & N. W. Ry., 14 C.B. 290; 23 L.J. C.P. 73.

(p) Per Willes, J., Myers v. L. & S. W. Ry., L.R. 5 C.P. 3; 39 L.J. C.P. 57.

(q) Hales v. L. & N. W. Ry., 4 B. & S. 66; 32 L.J. Q.B. 292; Oxlade v. N. E. Ry., 15 C.B. N.S. 680.

carry such articles as a common carrier (r), but may, nevertheless, accept and carry them under a special contract throwing the risk of damage to them from ordinary accidents during the transit upon the owner or the consignor (s). Since his first duty is to carry safely, a common carrier is justified in incurring delay, if delay is necessary to secure the safe carriage, and is not responsible for the consequences of delay arising from causes beyond his control (t).

As regards dogs and live animals, if the carrier does not, by his public profession and practice undertake to carry them, he may insist upon carriage under special conditions, or under a special contract (u). But in the case of a railway or canal company such conditions or contract must be just and reasonable, must not exempt the company from liability for their own neglect or default, and must be in writing signed by the consignor or his agent (x). Where carriers by sea give public notice that they receive goods for shipment on the condition and agreement only of the ship sailing under a bill of lading in the form ordinarily adopted, they are not bound to receive and carry otherwise than in accordance with their published terms (y). The mere posting up at a particular railway station of a list of tolls for the carriage of coals, amongst other things, will not constitute the company common carriers of coals from that particular station, if in point of fact they have no accommodation there for receiving coals, and do not carry coals from that spot, although they carry them over other parts of their line (z). The Board of Agriculture and Fisheries make orders with respect to the transit or movement by land or by water of animals affected with pleuro-pneumonia or foot and mouth disease and also with respect to the movement of animals (a) and persons into, within, or out of infected places or areas and the cleansing and disinfection of vessels, vehicles, &c., used for the carrying (r) Johnson v. Mid. Ry., 4 Exch. 371; 18 L.J. Ex. 366; McManus v. Lanc. & York. Ry., 4 H. & N. 327; 28 L.J. Ex. 353.

(s) Peek v. North Staff. Ry., 10 H.L. Cas. 473; 32 L.J. Q.B. 241; Phillips v. Edwards, 28 L.J. Ex. 52; 3 H. & N. 813; Austin v. Manchester Ry., 16 Q.B. 600; 20 L.J. Q.B. 440; 10 C.B. 454; 21 L.J. C.P. 179; Carr v. Lanc. & York. Ry., 7 Exch. 707; 21 L.J. Ex. 261; Martin v. Gt. India Pen. Ry. L.R. 3 Ex. 9; 37 L.J. Ex. 27. As to the effect of omitting to have a special contract, see the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1854, 17 & 18 Vict. c. 31, s. 7, and Wilkinson v. Lanc. & York. Ry., (1907) 2 K.B. 222; 76 L.J. K.B. 801.

(t) Taylor v. G. N. Ry., L.R. 1 C.P. 385; 35 L.J. C.P. 210.

(u) Harrison v. L. B. & S. C. Ry., 2 B. & S. 122; 31 L.J. Q.B. 113. See Dickson v. G. N. Ry., 18 Q.B.D. 176; 56 L.J. Q.B. 111, post, p. 1047.

(x) 17 & 18 Vict. c. 31, s. 7; post, p. 1045.

(y) Phillips v. Edwards, 3 H. & N. 812; 28 L.J. Ex. 52; Wilton v. Royal Atlantic Mail St. Packet Co., 10 C.B. N.S. 453; 30 L.J. C.P. 369.

(z) Oxlade v. N. E. Ry., 15 C.B. N.S. 680; 33 L.J. C.P. 171; Johnson v. Midland Ry., 4 Exch. 372; 18 L.J. Ex. 366.

(a) As to dogs, see 6 Edw. 7, c. 32, s. 2.

of animals for hire (b). Every railway company is also bound to make provision, to the satisfaction of the Board of Agriculture and Fisheries, of water and food at such stations as may be directed, and such water and food or either of them shall be supplied to animals carried on the request of the consignor or of any person in charge thereof. The company supplying water or food may take therefor such reasonable charges as the Board may by order approve, recoverable against either the consignor or the consignee and also secured by a lien on the animals carried. It is an offence to keep an animal without water for twenty-four consecutive hours (c).

By the Explosives Act, 1875 (d), the carriage of dangerous goods is regulated (e). If a carrier is employed to carry an article of such a dangerous nature as to require extraordinary care in its conveyance, the fact must be communicated to him, or the consignor will be responsible for any injury that may result to the carrier or his servants from the want of such communication (f).

Every common carrier of passengers with luggage is bound to take the customary quantity of luggage with each passenger, consisting of such things as a traveller, according to the wants of the class to which he belongs, usually carries with him for his own personal convenience, either with reference to the immediate necessities, or to the ultimate purpose, of the journey, but he is not bound to carry merchandise, or articles wholly unconnected with luggage, unless he professes to carry merchandise, or knows the luggage to be merchandise, or unless the traveller tenders or is ready to pay the customary hire for merchandise (g). To make a company liable for the loss of articles enumerated in sect. 1 of the Carriers Act, 1830, the provisions of that Act must be complied with (h).

Representations by railway companies' time-tables.—A railway company by the publication of a time-table, represents that a train will run at or about the time specified, and the company will be responsible in damages to all who tender themselves

(b) Diseases of Animals Act, 1894, 57 & 58 Vict. c. 57, ss. 21, 22; see Cox v. G. E. Ry., L.R. 4 C.P. 181; 38 L.J. C.P. 151; post, p. 1057.

(c) 57 & 58 Vict. c. 57, s. 23.

(d) 38 & 39 Vict. c. 17.

(e) Harbour authorities and railway and canal companies may make by-laws as to carriage (ss. 34, 35), and the Secretary of State as to other carriers (s. 37); as to specially dangerous explosives, see s. 43; and as to exemption of carrier where consignor or consignee is in fault, s. 88.

(f) Farrant v. Barnes, 11 C.B. N.S. 553; 31 L.J. C.P. 137; Bamfield v. Goole Transport Co., (1910) 2 K.B. 94; 79 L.J. K.B. 1070.

(g) G. N. Ry. v. Shepherd, 8 Exch. 30; 21 L.J. Ex. 114; Cahill v. L. & N. W. Ry., 13 C.B. N. S. 818; 31 L.J. C.P. 271; as to passengers' luggage generally, see post, p. 1036.

(h) Casswell v. Cheshire Lines Committee, (1907) 2 K.B. 499; 76 L.J. K.B. 734.

for conveyance at the appointed time and find that no train at all has been provided (i); but railway companies do not by their time-tables guarantee the arrival of their trains at intermediate stations, or their departure from them, at the exact time fixed. All they undertake to do is to carry the passengers without any unreasonable delay (k). The fixing up of a table of tolls at the different stations does not imply that the company carries all the things mentioned therein from each station (l). The mere taking of a ticket is not sufficient evidence of a contract to convey a passenger to a certain place within a given time; the time-bills must be produced to prove the contract (m).

Implied undertaking of railway companies to forward passengers or goods without unnecessary delay.—Every railway company, which has sold tickets to an intended passenger, impliedly undertakes to provide means of conveyance and forward him to his place of destination with reasonable speed (n), and is responsible in damages if the passenger suffers serious personal inconvenience from a breach of this undertaking (o). But pecuniary loss sustained by the passenger by reason of his not being able to get to a place, which he could otherwise have arrived at in time to meet persons with whom he had appointments, is too remote (p). If one party does not perform his contract, the other may do so for him as near as may be, and charge him for the reasonable expense incurred in so doing; and a proper test of what is reasonable is to consider whether, according to the ordinary habits of society, a person delayed on his journey would have incurred the expenditure in question on his own account (q).

If railways are blocked up and impeded by snow, the company is nevertheless bound to use all reasonable exertions to forward the passengers, though extra expense must be incurred, which they have no means of recovering from their passengers; but as to cattle and goods, "if a snowstorm occurs which makes it impossible to forward cattle except by extraordinary means, involving additional expense, the company are not bound to use such means and to incur such expense" (r). So if there be

(i) Denton v. G. N. Ry., 5 E. & B. 868; 25 L.J. Q.B. 129; two of the judges thought there was a contract, and all three that there was a tort.

(k) Hurst v. G. W. Ry., 19 C.B. N.S. 310; 34 L. J. C.P. 264.

(l) Oxlade v. N. E. Ry., 15 C.B. N.S. 680; 33 L.J. C.P. 171; Lockyer v. International Sleeping Car Co., 61 L.J. Q.B. 501.

(m) Hurst v. G. W. Ry., supra; and see Robinson v. G. W. Ry., 35 L.J. C.P. 123.

(n) G. N. Ry. v. Hawcroft, 21 L.J. Q.B. 178.

(o) Hobbs v. L. & S. W. Ry., L. R. 10 Q.B. 111; 44 L.J. Q.B. 49; Burton v. Pinkerton, L.R. 2 Ex. 340; 36 L.J. Ex. 137.

(p) Hamlin v. G. N. Ry., 1 H. & N. 408; 26 L.J. Ex. 20.

(q) Le Blanche v. L. & N. W. Ry., 1 C.P.D. 286; 45 L.J. C.P. 521.

(r) Briddon v. G. N. Ry., 28 L.J. Ex. 51.

delay in delivering goods by reason of an accident occurring on the defendants' line, such accident being caused wholly by the negligence of another railway company, having running powers over the defendants' line, the defendants, in the absence of a special contract to deliver within a certain time, are not responsible (s).

Negligence of common carriers.—Common carriers are bound, independently of any contract, by the mere fact of their having received passengers, to take the utmost care for their safe conveyance (t); and, if an accident causing injury occurs, a common carrier can discharge himself only by proving that the accident was inevitable (u), that is, that it did not occur from the want of due care, either on the part of himself and his servants, or on the part of any independent contractor who may have been employed by him to construct the means of conveyance (x). As to defective means of conveyance, see ante, p. 1015. Where a passenger stood up and looked out of the window, and, by reason of the door being unfastened, fell out and was injured, it was held that there was evidence of negligence by the railway company for which they were liable (y). But a passenger may, by special agreement, contract to be carried at his own risk, so as to exempt the company from responsibility for even the gross and wilful negligence of their servants (z); and in such a case the company will be exempt from liability not only during the transit, but while the passenger is leaving the company's premises (a). Such a special agreement will protect not only the company with which it is made, but also any other company on whose line the passenger may be carried in the course of the journey (b).

An invitation to passengers to alight on the stopping of a train, without any warning of danger to a passenger, who is so circumstanced as not to be able to alight without danger, such danger not being visible and apparent, amounts to negligence (c). The opening of the carriage door is an invitation to alight (d);

(s) Taylor v. G. N. Ry., L.R. 1 C.P. 385; 35 L.J. C.P. 210.

(t) Austin v. G. W. Ry., L.R. 2 Q.B. 442; 36 L.J. Q.B. 201.

(u) Burns v. Cork & Bandon Ry., 13 Ir. C.L.R. 543.

(x) Grote v. Chester & Holyhead Ry., 2 Exch. 251; Burns v. Cork & Bandon Ry., supra; Francis v. Cockerell, L.R. 5 Q.B. 184, 501; 39 L.J. Q.B. 291; John v. Bacon, L.R. 5 C.P. 437; 39 L.J. C.P. 365.

(y) Gee v. Metropolitan Ry., L.R. 8 Q.B. 161; 42 L.J. Q.B. 105; commenting on Adams v. L. & Y. Ry., L.R. 4 C.P. 739; 38 L.J. C.P. 277.

(z) McCawley v. Furness Ry., L.R. 8 Q.B. 57; 42 L.J. Q.B. 4.

(a) Gallin v. L. & N. W. Ry., L.R. 10 Q.B. 212; 44 L.J. Q.B. 89.

(b) Hall v. N. E. Ry., L.R. 10 Q.B. 437; 44 L.J. Q.B. 164; as to how far this applies to carriage of goods, see post, pp. 1045, 1047.

(c) Cockle v. S. E. Ry., L.R. 7 C.P. 321; 41 L.J. C.P. 140.

(d) Praeger v. Bristol & Exeter Ry., 24 L.T. N.S. 105; L. & N. W. Ry. v.

and so is the bringing up of a train to a final standstill, for the purpose of passengers alighting (e). Calling out the name of the station before the train has come to a standstill is not an invitation to alight; nor is merely overshooting the platform negligence (f). But if the porter has called out the name of the station, and the engine-driver has overshot the platform, and the train has come to a standstill, and no warning is given not to alight, the jury may very properly say that a passenger is not guilty of negligence in getting out (g). If the plaintiff, exercising his own discretion, chooses to get out of a train which has overshot the platform, the company are not responsible (h), especially when the station is well known to the plaintiff (i). Similar considerations arise in cases where the door of a railway carriage is slammed by a porter upon the hand of the plaintiff, and where either the company or the plaintiff may have been negligent, according to circumstances (k). And so the company may be liable if it has knowingly permitted overcrowding of a platform and a passenger on the platform has thereby been injured (l); or if it has negligently permitted the door of a compartment of a train to be open and a passenger standing on the platform has been struck and injured thereby (m). It is no part of the duty of a railway company to detain a train in order to allow a passenger, who alleges that he has been robbed in one of their carriages, to give another passenger or any other person into custody (n).

Loss of goods by common carriers (o).—The law, observes Holt, C.J., charges every person exercising the public employment of a common carrier, common hoyman, or master of a ship "intrusted to carry goods, against all events but acts of God and of the enemies of the king. For though the force be Hellawell, 26 L.T. N.S. 557; Gill v. G. E. Ry., 26 L.T. N.S. 945.

(e) Cockle v. S. E. Ry., infra; Bridges v. L. & N. W. Ry., L.R. 7 H.L. 213; 43 L.J. Q.B. 151; Rose v. N. E. Ry., 2 Ex.D. 248; 46 L.J. Ex. 374.

(f) Lewis v. L. C. & D. Ry., infra; Cockle v. S. E. Ry., L.R. 7 C.P. 321; 41 L.J. C.P. 140.

(g) Weller v. L. B. & S. C. Ry., L.R. 9 C.P. 126; 43 L.J. C.P. 137.

(h) Siner v. G. W. Ry., L.R. 4 Ex. 117; 38 L.J. Ex. 67; but see per Brett, L.J., Robson v. N. E. Ry., 2 Q.B.D. 86; 46 L.J. Q.B. 50; and see Weller v. L. B. & S. C. Ry., supra, and Rose v. N. E. Ry., 2 Ex.D. 248; 46 L.J. Ex. 374.

(i) Lewis v. L. C. & D. Ry., L.R. 9 Q.B. 66; 43 L.J. Q.B. 8.

(k) Fordham v. L. B. & S. C. Ry., L.R. 4 C.P. 619; 38 L.J. C.P. 324; Richardson v. Met. Ry., 37 L.J. C.P. 300; Maddox v. L. C. & D. Ry., 38 L.T. N.S. 458; Coleman v. S. E. Ry., 4 H. & C. 699; Met. Ry. v. Jackson, 3 App.Cas. 193; 47 L.J. C.P. 303.

(l) Fraser v. Caledonian Ry., (1903) 5 F. 41. As to overcrowding of compartments, see Pounder v. N. E. Ry., (1892) 1 Q.B. 385; 61 L.J. Q.B. 136; Cobb v. G. W. Ry., (1894) A.C. 419; 63 L.J. Q.B. 629.

(m) Toal v. North British Ry., (1908) A.C. 352; 77 L.J. P.C. 119.

(n) Cobb v. G. W. Ry., (1894) A.C. 419; 63 L.J. Q.B. 629.

(o) See further, pp. 982—993, ante.

never so great, as if an irresistible multitude of people should rob him, nevertheless he is chargeable" (p).

By the term "act of God" is meant something in opposition to the act of man, such as storms, lightning, tempests, and inevitable accidents not resulting from human agency. If the danger or the accident, though unavoidable, has been occasioned by the act of man, the carrier cannot avail himself of it as an excuse for the non-delivery of the goods (q). Thus, where a fire broke out in an adjoining building, and extended to the carrier's premises, without any neglect on the part of the carrier himself, it was held that, inasmuch as the fire had not been occasioned by lightning, but by the act of man, the occurrence of the disaster was no answer to an action (r). If the goods have been destroyed or swept away by rains and floods, the circumstances attendant upon the loss must be regarded, in order to determine whether it has been occasioned by the act of God or the act of man. If the common carrier has neglected to provide proper covering for the goods; if he has gone out of his way to meet the danger; if he has travelled by unusual roads, or crossed a plain subject to inundations when he might have kept the high ground and been safe, the loss occasioned thereby is a loss from the act or negligence of man, and the common carrier is consequently responsible (s).

If a barge-owner who carries goods for hire on a canal accepts certain goods to be carried for hire, and rats gnaw a hole in the barge, and cause a leak, and the goods are injured, the barge-owner is responsible for the damage (t). He is not, of course, responsible for any deterioration in the value of the goods resulting from the negligence of the owner or the consignor, such as defective packing, nor for losses occasioned by an inherent defect in the article causing its destruction. If, however, the defective packing of goods is patent and visible, and easily remedied, and he accepts the goods for conveyance, he is bound to take all reasonable means to provide against the defect. Where a dog, with a string about his neck, was delivered to a common carrier to be carried, and was tied by the string in a watch-box, and shortly afterwards slipped his head through the noose and escaped, it was contended that the owner ought to have taken care that the cord was properly secured round the dog's neck,

(p) Coggs v. Bernard, 2 Ld. Raym. 909; 1 Smith's L.C. 173 (ed. 11).

(q) Oakley v. Portsmouth Steam Packet Co., 11 Exch. 622; 25 L.J. Ex. 99.

(r) Forward v. Pittard, 1 T.R. 33; Hyde v. Trent Nav. Co., 5 T.R. 399.

(s) Nugent v. Smith, 1 C.P.D. 423, 436; 45 L.J. C.P. 697; Doct. & Stud. Dial. 2, ch. 38; Noy, ch. 43.

(t) Dale v. Hall, 1 Wils. 281.

but it was held that as the common carrier had the means of seeing that the dog was insufficiently secured, he ought to have locked him up or taken proper means to secure him, and that he was responsible for the loss (u). Where, however, a greyhound, secured in the way ordinarily adopted and obviously intended by the owner to be used, viz., by a collar and strap, was delivered to a railway company to be carried, and during the journey slipped his head through the collar and was lost, it was held that the company was not responsible (x). So, where sheepskins were damaged by being carried in trucks containing woodchips, it was held that as the persons who actually loaded the skins were not shown to have had notice that the mode of packing employed was likely to be injurious, though some other official of the carrying company had such notice, there was no evidence of wilful misconduct on the part of the company's servants (y).

Common carriers are not responsible for the "inherent vice" of the goods which they carry, so that where animals are injured by their own acts and without any negligence on the part of the carrier, the carrier is not liable (z). Nor are they liable for an inherent tendency of goods to decay or ignite (a), although delay in forwarding perishable goods is evidence of misconduct on their part (b).

If a cargo or load of goods of a certain weight be delivered to a common carrier to be carried for hire, and the cargo on its arrival at its destination is deficient in weight, there is a primâ facie presumption of negligence on the part of the carrier, which the latter must rebut by showing that the deficiency of weight arose from causes over which he had no control (c).

If the accident or casualty causing the loss of the goods is occasioned by the misconduct of a third person, and not by any fault or neglect on the part of the common carrier himself, the latter is, nevertheless, responsible to the owner for the loss, as he has himself a remedy over against the offending party (d). But where the misconduct of the third person is caused by the orders of the owner of the goods, the carrier will not be responsible (e).

(u) Stuart v. Crawley, 2 Stark. 324.

(x) Richardson v. N. E. Ry., L.R. 7 C.P. 75; 41 L.J. C.P. 60.

(y) Forder v. G. W. Ry., (1905) 2 K.B. 532; 74 L.J. K.B. 871.

(z) Blower v. G. W. Ry., L.R. 7 C.P. 655; 41 L.J. C.P. 268; Kendal v. L. & S. W. Ry., L.R. 7 Ex. 373; 41 L.J. Ex. 184; Gill v. Manchester, Sheffield & Lincolnshire Ry., L.R. 8 Q.B. 186; 42 L.J. Q.B. 89.

(a) Alston v. Herring, 11 Exch. 822; 25 L.J. Ex. 177; Rohl v. Parr, 1 Esp. 444; Boyd v. Dubois, 3 Campb. 133; Lister v. Lancs. & Yorks. Ry., (1903) 1 K.B. 878; 72 L.J. K.B. 385.

(b) Graham v. Belfast & Northern Counties Ry., (1901) 2 Ir.R. 13.

(c) Hawkes v. Smith, Car. & M. 72.

(d) Trent Nav. Co. v. Wood, 3 Esp. 130.

(e) Butterworth v. Brownlow, 19 C.B. N.S. 409; 34 L.J. C.P. 266.

An omnibus proprietor or other common carrier of passengers only, who receives occasionally, and at his own option, some trifling articles of luggage with such passengers, to be carried gratuitously for the accommodation of the latter, cannot be charged for the loss of them as a common carrier of goods. He is, in such a case, merely a gratuitous bailee of the goods, chargeable only with the liabilities and responsibilities of a person who gratuitously undertakes to carry goods for another. And if luggage is carried free, upon the express terms that the passenger shall himself take charge of it, and that it shall be taken at his risk, he cannot make the carrier responsible for the loss of it (f). If, however, the carrier or coach-proprietor professes to carry both passengers and luggage, he is clothed, as regards the conveyance of the luggage, with the obligations and responsibilities of a common carrier of goods for hire (g), whether the hire is paid by the passenger or by some other person on his behalf or for his benefit (h).

Contributory negligence.—If goods delivered to be carried are lost or stolen by the way, and the conduct of the bailor or consignor himself has substantially conduced to the loss, he has no ground at common law for seeking compensation at the hands of the common carrier (i). So, where the consignor concealed a quantity of guineas in an ordinary brown paper parcel tied with a string (k), and a number of sovereigns in a packet of tea (l), and several hundred pounds' worth of bank-notes and gold in an ordinary schoolboy's box, and the money so sent was lost by the way, it was held that the common carrier was not responsible (m). And if glass, china, or fragile articles are delivered to a carrier to be carried, and no notice is given of the peculiar nature of the articles, and the things are damaged in the course of the transit, the carrier is not bound to make good the damage, as the consignor has himself directly contributed to the injury by concealing the peculiar nature of the articles, and the amount of care requisite for their safe conveyance. Contributory negligence, it must be borne in mind, is that sort of negligence which being a cause of the injury, is of such a character that its effect could not have been counter-

(f) Stewart v. L. & N. W. Ry., 3 H. & C. 135 ; 33 L.J. Ex. 199 ; as to passengers' luggage generally, see post, p. 1036.

(g) Brooke v. Pickwick, 4 Bing. 218 ; 5 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 158.

(h) Marshall v. York and Newcastle Ry., 11 C.B. 655 ; 21 L.J. C.P. 24.

(i) Butterworth v. Brownlow, 19 C.B. N.S. 409 ; 34 L.J. C.P. 266.

(k) Clay v. Willan, 1 H.Bl. 298.

(l) Bradley v. Waterhouse, 3 C. & P. 318 ; cp. Gibbon v. Paynton, 4 Burr. 2298.

(m) Batson v. Donovan, 4 B. & Ald. 37 ; Mayhew v. Eames, 3 B. & C. 601 ; 3 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 108.

acted or avoided by the ordinary care of the defendant (n). Contributory negligence is frequently set up where the plaintiff alleges that he has been injured in alighting from a train, or in getting his hand trapped upon entering the carriage, or while travelling from the flying open of the carriage door (o).

Limitation of liability by public notice—Carriage of valuables, &c.—The Carriers Act, 1830 (p), by sect. 1, exempts common carriers by land from liability for the loss of (q), or injury to, gold or silver, precious stones, jewellery, watches, clocks, trinkets, bills, orders, notes, or securities for payment of money, stamps, maps, writings (r), title-deeds, paintings (s), engravings, pictures (t), plated articles, glass (u), china, silks (x), in a manufactured or unmanufactured state, furs (y), lace (z), wrought up or not wrought up with other materials (a), contained in any parcel or package which shall have been delivered either to be carried for hire or to accompany the person of any passenger in any public conveyance, when the value of such articles or property contained in such parcel or package shall exceed the sum of TEN POUNDS (b), unless, at the time of the delivery thereof for the purpose of being carried or of accompanying any passenger (c), the value and nature of such articles or property shall have been DECLARED by the person sending or delivering the same, and the increased charge thereinafter mentioned (sect. 2), or an engagement to pay the same, accepted by the person receiving such parcel or package. Pictures placed in a waggon with wooden sides, but without a top, so that they could be seen to be pictures, were held to be contained in a parcel or package (d). Mere mention of the value to a station-master

(n) Radley v L. & N. W. Ry., 1 App. Cas. 754; 46 L.J. Ex. 573; as to the negligence of a third party, see Ayles v. S. E. Ry., L.R. 3 Ex. 146; 37 L.J. Ex. 104; Daniel v. Met. Ry., L.R. 5 H.L. 45; 40 L.J. C.P. 121.

(o) Adams v. L. & Y. Ry., L.R. 4 C.P. 739; 38 L.J. C.P. 277; Gee v. Met. Ry., L.R. 8 Q.B. 161; 42 L.J. Q.B. 105; and see the cases, ante, pp. 1025, 1026.

(p) 11 Geo. 4 & 1 Will. 4, c. 68.

(q) Hearn v. L. & S. W. Ry., 10 Exch. 801; 24 L.J. Ex. 180; Millen v. Brasch, 10 Q.B.D. 142; 51 L.J. Q.B. 127.

(r) I.e., if of value at the time of carriage: Stoessigger v. S. E. Ry., 3 E. & B. 549; 23 L.J. Q.B. 293.

(s) I.e., if works of art: see Woodward v. L. & N. W. Ry., 3 Ex.D. 121; 47 L.J. Ex. 263.

(t) The frames of framed pictures as well as the pictures are within the Act: Henderson v. L. & N. W. Ry., L.R. 5 Ex. 90; 39 L.J. Ex. 55.

(u) As to a glass frame, see Treadwin v. G. E. Ry., L.R. 3 C.P. 308; 37 L.J. C.P. 83.

(x) Silk guards and silk dresses are included: Bernstein v. Baxendale, 6 C.B. N.S. 259; 28 L.J. C.P. 265; overruling Davey v. Mason, Car. & M. 50; so, also, is elastic silk webbing, made as in Brunt v. Midland Ry., 2 H. & C. 889; 33 L.J. Ex. 187.

(y) Felt hats are not furs: Mayhew v. Nelson, 6 C. & P. 58.

(z) By 28 & 29 Vict. c. 94, s. 1, the term "lace" is not to include machine-made lace.

(a) See Brunt v. Midland Ry., supra.

(b) See further on this section, p. 1040.

(c) As to the applicability of this section to passengers' luggage, see Casswell v. Cheshire Lines Committee, (1907) 2 K.B. 499; 76 L.J. K.B. 734.

(d) Whaite v. L. & Y. Ry., L.R. 9 Ex. 67; 43 L.J. Ex. 47.

is no declaration of value within the meaning of the Act, unless intended to operate as a declaration of value (e). When the declaration is formally made, the carrier is entitled, if the value exceeds 10*l.*, and he has a notice of the increased rate of charge for parcels exceeding the value of 10*l.* put up in his office, to demand the increased rate of charge; but, if he does not think fit to notify the increased rate of charge, he cannot demand it; and, if he has notified it, but fails to demand it, he must be taken to have received the goods subject to his common law liability as an insurer of their safe conveyance, and will not be entitled to the protection of the statute (f). The consignor is bound by his declaration, and cannot afterwards show that the value of the goods exceeded that declared (g). If the journey is to be performed partly by land and partly by sea, the contract is divisible, and the carrier is entitled to the protection of the Merchant Shipping Act, as far as the journey is to be performed by sea (h), and to the protection of the Carriers Act so far as it is to be performed by land (i); and he will not lose such protection by having received the goods under a special contract, unless its terms are inconsistent with the goods having been received by him in his capacity of a common carrier (k).

Statutory notice of increased rate of charge.—By sect. 2, when any parcel or package containing any of the specified articles shall be delivered, and its value and contents declared, and such value shall exceed ten pounds, it shall be lawful for the common carrier to demand and receive an increased rate of charge, to be notified by some notice affixed in legible characters in some public and conspicuous part of the office, warehouse, or receiving-house where such parcels are received for the purpose of conveyance, and all persons sending or delivering parcels containing such articles at such office shall be bound by such notice, without further proof of the same having come to their knowledge. By sect. 3, in the last-mentioned case, the person receiving such increased rate of charge, or accepting an engagement to pay the same, shall, if required, sign a receipt for the parcel, acknowledging the same to have been insured, which receipt shall not be liable to any stamp duty; and if such receipt shall not be given when required, or such notice shall not have been affixed, the common carrier shall not be entitled to any

(e) Robinson v. S. W. Ry., 19 C.B. N.S. 51; 34 L.J. C.P. 234.
(f) Behrens v. G. N. Ry., 31 L.J. Ex. 299; 7 H. & N. 950.
(g) M'Cance v. L. & N. W. Ry., 3 H. & C. 343; 34 L.J. Ex. 39.
(h) L. & S. W. Ry. v. James, L.R. 8 Ch. 241; 42 L.J. Ch. 337.
(i) Le Conteur v. L. & S. W. Ry., L.R. 1 Q.B. 54; 35 L.J. Q.B. 40.
(k) Baxendale v. G. E. Ry., L.R. 4 Q.B. 244; 38 L.J. Q.B. 137.

benefit or advantage under the Act, but shall be responsible as at common law, and be liable to refund the increased rate of charge.

Every office, warehouse, or receiving-house, which shall be used or appointed by any common carrier for the receiving of parcels to be conveyed, is (sect. 5) to be deemed and taken to be the receiving-house, warehouse, or office of such common carrier. And where any parcel shall have been delivered at any such office, and the value and contents declared, and the increased rate of charge paid, and such parcel shall have been lost or damaged, the party entitled to recover damages in respect of such loss or damage shall also be entitled (sect. 7) to recover back such increased charges, in addition to the value of such parcel.

Nothing in the Act is (sect. 6) to annul or affect any special contract between such common carriers and any other parties for the conveyance of goods and merchandise;—that is to say, special contract, the provisions of which are inconsistent with the exemption claimed by the carrier under the first section (l); nor (sect. 8) to protect any common carrier for hire from liability to answer for loss or injury to any goods or articles arising from the felonious acts of any coachman, guard, book-keeper, porter, or other servant in his employ, nor to protect any such coachman, &c., from liability for any loss or injury occasioned by his own personal neglect or misconduct.

By sect. 4, no public notice or declaration shall be deemed or construed to limit, or in anywise affect, the common law liability of any common carriers in respect of any articles or goods to be carried or conveyed by them, but they shall be liable for the loss of, or injury to, any articles and goods in respect whereof they may not be entitled to the benefit of that Act, any public notice or declaration by them made and given contrary thereto, or in anywise limiting such liability, notwithstanding. This statute is confined to public notices, such as were very common before the Act —notices addressed to the public at large,—and is not applicable to a notice specifically delivered to form the basis of a special contract (m). Where the common carrier is not a common carrier of the particular description of goods tendered him for conveyance, and has the option of receiving them or rejecting them at his own good will and pleasure, he may prescribe his own terms of conveyance; and, if the party delivering goods to be carried is personally served with a notice of the terms on which the common carrier carries goods, and after seeing the notice sends the goods, he must be taken to agree that they shall be carried on those terms, and there is then a special contract between him and the common carrier for their conveyance (n), unless the carriage is by railway or canal so as to necessitate a signed special contract under the Railway and Canal Traffic Act (post, p. 1045). But with regard to such articles as the common carrier is bound by his public profession and employment to carry, the owner has a right to insist that the common carrier shall receive the goods subject to all the responsibilities incident to his employment (o). If the delivery of goods under such circumstances authorises an implication of any kind, the presumption is as strong, to say the least, that the owner intended to insist on his legal rights, as it is that he was willing to yield to the wishes of the carrier (p). A remover of furniture for hire is not generally a common carrier, and, where a special contract is entered into between the owner of the furniture and the carrier, it will exclude any question of liability as a common carrier (q).

(l) Baxendale v. G. E. Ry., L.R. 4 Q.B. 244; 38 L.J. Q.B. 137.

(m) Walker v. York & North Mid. Ry., 2 E. & B. 750; 23 L.J. Q.B. 73; Van Toll v. S. E. Ry., 12 C.B. N.S. 75; 31 L.J. C.P. 241.

Common carriers may protect themselves by special contract against fire and sea risks, and may carry goods on the terms that they are not to be held responsible for such losses (r).

Special contracts exempting from responsibility for damage to certain classes and descriptions of goods.—Whenever a man enters into a contract for the carriage of goods, he impliedly grants some labour and care in return for the hire. It is impossible so to construe a special contract for the carriage of goods, as to make the carrier say, "We will receive your goods; but we will not be bound to take any care of them, and will not be answerable at all for any loss occasioned by our own misconduct, be it ever so gross and injurious" (s). In the case of articles of a perishable nature, such as fish, or of a very delicate and fragile nature, such as statuary, sculptured alabaster, or marble, which the common carrier does not commonly profess to carry, and which may be readily injured, a common carrier may refuse to receive and carry, except under a special contract exonerating

(n) Wightman, J., Walker v. York & North Mid. Ry., 2 E. & B. 750, 760; 23 L.J. Q.B. 73.

(o) Ld. Kenyon, Kirkman v. Shawcross, 6 T.R. 14, 17; Garton v. Bristol & Exeter Ry., 1 B. & S. 162; 30 L.J. Q.B. 276.

(p) Crouch v. L. & N. West. Ry., 9 Exch. 556; 23 L.J. C.P. 148.

(q) Scaife v. Farrant, L.R. 10 Ex. 358; 44 L.J. Ex. 234.

(r) Maving v. Todd, 1 Stark. 74; Collins v. Bristol & Exeter Ry., 11 Exch. 790; 7 H.L.Cas. 205. But see Price v. Union Lighterage Co., (1904) 1 K.B. 412; 73 L.J. K.B. 222.

(s) Lyon v. Mells, 5 East, 438; Doct. & Stud. Dial. 2, ch. 39; Noy's Maxims, ch. 43, 92.

from all responsibility for damage done in transitu not occasioned by the neglect or default of himself or his servants (t). So, with regard to horses, it is said to be very reasonable that common carriers by railway should be allowed to make agreements protecting them against the peculiar risks attending the carriage of horses, and it was, therefore, held, before the passing of the Railway and Canal Traffic Act (post, p. 1043), that railway companies might, by special contract, throw the risk of the conveyance of a horse by railway upon the owner, so that, if the horse was injured in the transit from any ordinary railway casualty, the owner would have no remedy against the company for the loss (u). Again, if goods are offered for carriage by passenger train which the company is only bound to carry by goods train, the company may impose upon the public such terms as they think fit (x). Where a steamship company issued passengers' tickets on which was printed a notice or condition "that the ship will not be accountable for luggage, goods, or other descriptions of property, unless bills of lading have been signed therefor, each passenger allowed twenty cubic feet of luggage free," it was held that the company had a right to impose this condition on their passengers, provided it was imposed upon all alike; that the passenger, therefore, was bound to get a bill of lading for all the luggage for which he intended to make the ship accountable, but that he had the option of taking luggage under his own personal control without any bill of lading, carrying it, in that case, at his own risk (y). If the company does not impose the same terms upon all passengers alike, or the passenger offers to sign a bill of lading and is unable to obtain it, the company cannot avail themselves of the condition as protecting them from liability (z).

The notices commonly given by common carriers before the passing of the Carriers Act, that they would not be responsible for the loss of or damage to parcels above a certain value, unless the value was declared and a premium of insurance paid, were held to apply only to the responsibilities and liabilities of the carrier as an INSURER of the safety of the goods, and not to (t) Beal v. South Devon Ry., 5 H. & N. 875; 29 L.J. Ex. 441; Peek v. N. Staff. Ry., 10 H.L.Cas. 473; 32 L.J. Q.B. 241; Leeson v. Holt, 1 Stark. 186; but see Sutton v. Ciceri, 15 App.Cas. 145.

(u) Carr v. Lanc. & York. Ry., 7 Exch. 707; 21 L.J. Ex. 261; Harrison v. L. B. & S. C. Ry., 2 B. & S. 122; 31 L.J. Q.B. 113; overruled by Peek v. North Staff. Ry., 10 H.L.Cas. 473; 32 L.J. Q.B. 241.

(x) Stone v. Midland Ry. Co., (1904) 1 K.B. 669; 73 L.J. K.B. 392. As to the applicability of s. 7 of the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1854, where no special contract of carriage is signed, see Wilkinson v. Lanc. & York. Ry., (1907) 2 K.B. 222; 76 L.J. K.B. 801.

(y) Wilton v. Royal Atl. Mail St. Packet Co., 10 C.B. N.S. 453; 30 L.J. C.P. 369.

(z) G. W. Ry. v. Goodman, 12 C.B. 313; 21 L.J. C.P. 197.

exempt him, in the absence of fraudulent concealment of value or risk on the part of the consignor, from the consequences of misconduct or negligence of himself or persons in his employ (a).

Void limitations of liability.—A person who undertakes the public employment of a common carrier of merchandise or of passengers and luggage has no more right, it is apprehended, to engraft upon his contract or employment the terms that "all merchandise received by him to be carried is carried at the risk of the owners," or that "all luggage delivered to him by his passengers is carried at the risk of the passengers," and that "he will not be responsible if it is lost or damaged by the way," that a common innkeeper has to refuse to receive guests, except on the terms that he shall not be responsible for the safe keeping of their goods and luggage deposited in his inn. The consignor of merchandise or the passenger has a right to reject these terms, and to insist that merchandise, such as is ordinarily carried by the common carrier, or the customary allowance of luggage for a passenger, shall be taken at the common carrier's risk, provided the consignor makes the declaration of value, and is ready to pay the premium of insurance, in those cases where the declaration and payment are required by law. Where the carriage of particular articles is attended with any peculiar or extraordinary risk, the common carrier is entitled, as we have seen, to refuse to receive and carry such articles, unless the nature and value of the articles are declared, and an increased charge paid for insurance; but he may, at the same time, receive and carry them under a special contract, providing that they shall be carried at the risk of the owner at a lower rate of charge (ante, p. 1032). And, a common carrier of passengers merely, who does not receive for carriage luggage with his passengers, but allows his passengers to carry with them, under their own care, a small quantity of personal luggage, is not responsible for the loss of such luggage (b). Where the carrier seeks to set up a special contract limiting his liability, he must show that the terms of it have been brought to the consignor's notice. The most frequent illustrations are to be found in the conditions printed upon luggage tickets, where the luggage is left in the cloak-room, the railway company being no longer carriers but warehousemen. Where a passenger with a ticket in the form of a book of coupons, inside of which was a condition limiting the responsibility of the company to their own trains, was injured in France, and the jury found that the condition was not brought to his notice, it was held that the whole book was the contract, and that the passenger was bound by the condition (c).

(a) Wyld v. Pickford, 8 M. & W. 443; 10 L.J. Ex. 382. See per Ld. Blackburn, M. S. & L. Ry. v. Brown, 8 App.Cas. 703, 709; 53 L.J. Q.B. 124; Peek v. N. Staff. Ry., supra, p. 1022.

(b) See infra.

Loss of passengers' luggage by railway companies.—The impossibility of travelling without the accompaniment of a certain quantity of luggage for the personal comfort and convenience of the traveller, has led from the earliest times to the practice, on the part of the carriers of passengers for hire, of carrying, as a matter of course, a reasonable amount of luggage for the accommodation of the passenger, and of considering the remuneration for the carriage of such luggage as covered by the fare paid for the conveyance of the passenger.

Under the older system of travelling by stage-coaches, canal-boats, or other vessels, the amount of luggage to be thus carried free of charge was commonly made part of the contract by express stipulation or notice from the carrier. Under the modern system of railway conveyance, it is fixed and regulated by the various Acts of Parliament under which railways have been established. By these Acts the right of the passenger is expressly limited to ordinary luggage, which must be taken to mean the personal luggage of the traveller; and the amount which he is entitled to take free of charge is ascertained. Whatever the passenger takes with him for his personal use or convenience, according to the habits or wants of the particular class to which he belongs, either with reference to the immediate necessities or the ultimate purpose of the journey, must be considered as personal luggage; this would include not only all articles of apparel whether for use or ornament, but also the gun-case or the fishing apparatus of the sportsman, the easel of the artist on a sketching tour, or the books of the student, and other articles of an analogous character, the use of which is personal to the traveller, and the taking of which has arisen from the fact of his journeying (d); but not, it would seem, a bicycle (e). On the other hand, what is carried for the purposes of business, such as merchandise or the like (f), or for larger or ulterior purposes than those of the journey, such as articles of furniture or household goods (g), will not come within the description of (c) Burke v. S. E. Ry., 5 C.P.D. 1; 19 L.J. C.P. 107. Some doubt seems thrown on this decision by the House of Lords in Richardson, Spence & Co. v. Rowntree, (1894) A.C. 217; 63 L.J. Q.B. 283.

(d) Macrow v. G. W. Ry., L.R. 6 Q.B. 612; 40 L.J. Q.B. 300.

(e) Britten v. G. N. Ry., (1899) 1 Q.B. 243; 68 L.J. Q.B. 75.

(f) Cahill v. L. & N. W. Ry., 13 C.B. N.S. 818; 31 L.J. C.P. 271; G. N. Ry. v. Shepherd, 8 Exch. 30; 21 L.J. Ex. 286; Belfast & Ballymena Ry. v. Keys, 9 H.L.Cas. 556.

(g) Hudston v. Midland Ry., L.R. 4 Q.B. 366; 38 L.J. Q.B. 213.

ordinary luggage. So deeds and money carried by an attorney among his luggage for use in the causes in which he may be engaged are not ordinary luggage (h), nor is a child's rocking-horse (i), nor sheets and blankets for the use of the passenger's household (k), though a chronometer may be ordinary luggage for a master mariner (l). But the company (with knowledge) may choose to take without extra payment that which is not ordinary luggage, in which case they will be responsible for the loss (m); so also upon any limit in point of weight, if the company choose to allow a passenger to carry more, they will be liable (n). As to articles enumerated in sect. 1 of the Carriers Act, 1830, the company will be protected unless the provisions of that Act have been complied with (o). The liability of common carriers, in respect of articles carried as passengers' luggage, is that of carriers of goods as distinguished from that of carriers of passengers. Most of the Railway Acts provide that, without extra charge, it shall be lawful for every passenger by railway to take with him ordinary luggage or articles of clothing of a certain weight and dimensions, and that the company shall not be responsible for the safe carriage or custody of, or for any loss of or injury to, articles carried upon the railway with, or accompanying the person of, or belonging to, any passenger, or delivered for the purpose of being carried, other than such passenger's articles of clothing. But these enactments do not prevent railway companies from running excursion trains for passengers only, without luggage (p), and if, in such a case a passenger is allowed to carry with him a small quantity of luggage free at his own risk, and avails himself of the privilege, and the luggage is lost, the company is not responsible for the loss of it (q). Where a passenger by an excursion train, knowing that the railway company did not allow passengers to carry luggage by such trains, nevertheless secretly put luggage into the train, it was held that the law would imply a promise from the wrongdoer to pay the company for the carriage of it (r). Railway companies are responsible for the acts and omissions of their porters in the management and

(h) Phelps v. L. & N. W. Ry., 19 C.B. N.S. 321; 34 L.J. C.P. 259.

(i) Hudston v. Midland Ry., L.R. 4 Q.B. 366; 38 L.J. Q.B. 213.

(k) Macrow v. G. W. Ry., L.R. 6 Q.B. 612; 40 L.J. Q.B. 300.

(l) Le Conteur v. L. & S. W. Ry., L.R. 1 Q.B. 54; 35 L.J. Q.B. 40.

(m) G. N. Ry. v. Shepherd, 8 Exch. 30; 21 L.J. Ex. 271.

(n) Rumsey v. N. E. Ry., 14 C.B. N.S. 461; 32 L.J. C.P. 244.

(o) Casswell v. Cheshire Lines Committee, (1907) 2 K.B. 499; 76 L.J. K.B. 734.

(p) Stewart v. L. & N. W. Ry., 3 H. & C. 135; 33 L.J. Ex. 199.

(q) Williams v. G. W. Ry., 10 Exch. 15; Munster v. S. E. Ry., 4 C.B. N.S. 698; 27 L.J. C.P. 308.

(r) Rumsey v. N. E. Ry., 14 C.B. N.S. 641; 32 L.J. C.P. 245.

delivery of passengers' luggage (s). But if a passenger packs merchandise in carpet-bags and portmanteaux, and passes it off as luggage, he cannot recover for the loss of it, as he is guilty of an unfair concealment towards the company, in preventing them from making the charge they would be entitled to make for the carriage of merchandise (s). A railway company is, in general, liable for the loss of a passenger's luggage, though carried in the carriage in which he himself is travelling (t). But the passenger must take ordinary care of it; and therefore, where the passenger left the carriage in which his luggage was for another in the course of the journey, and his portmanteau was stolen, it was held that the company was not responsible (u). Where the passenger retains his own personal control over the luggage, the company are no longer insurers of its safety, but are liable for negligence only (x). But where a passenger on arriving at a station gave a bag to a porter, who agreed to take care of it, and to put it into the carriage with the passenger, and while the passenger was taking a ticket the bag was lost, it was held that the company were responsible (y). Where luggage is received as luggage of a servant, but it turns out to be the master's, who is following by another train, the company are not liable for the loss (z). Where a railway company made a bye-law to the effect that they "would not be responsible for the care of luggage, unless booked and paid for," it was held that the bye-law was null and void (a).

Application of Carriers Act.—The Carriers Act, it will be observed, applies solely to common carriers by land. Where, however, the contract for carriage is divisible, and applies to carriage partly by water and partly by land, and the loss occurs during the carriage by land, the carrier is entitled to the benefit of the statute (b); and where the contract is to carry by land and sea also, it is divisible, so as to afford a defence to the carrier if the loss in fact occurs during the carriage by land (c). The (s) Cahill v. L. & N. W. Ry., 13 C.B. N.S. 818; 31 L.J. C.P. 271; Belfast & Ballymena Ry. v. Keys, 9 H.L. Cas. 556; G. N. Ry. v. Shepherd, 8 Exch. 30; 21 L.J. Ex. 286.

(t) Le Conteur v. L. & S. W. Ry., L.R. 1 Q.B. 54; 35 L.J. Q.B. 40.

(u) Talley v. G. W. Ry., L.R. 6 C.P. 44; 40 L.J. C.P. 9. With respect to luggage deposited in a cloak-room, see ante, p. 865.

(x) Talley v. G. W. Ry., supra; Bergheim v. G. E. Ry., 3 C.P.D. 221; 47 L.J. C.P. 318. See, however, G. W. Ry. v. Bunch, 13 App.Cas. 31; 57 L.J. Q.B. 361; as to where luggage is in his control, see Richards v. L. B. & S. C. Ry., 7 C.B. 839; 18 L.J. C.P. 251; Kent v. Mid. Ry., L.R. 10 Q.B. 1; 44 L.J. Q.B. 18; Mid. Ry. v. Bromley, 17 C.B. 372; 25 L.J. C.P. 24.

(y) G. W. Ry. v. Bunch, 13 App.Cas. 31; 57 L.J. Q.B. 361.

(z) Becher v. G. E. Ry., L.R. 5 Q.B. 241; 39 L.J. Q.B. 122.

(a) Midland Ry. v. Bromley, 17 C.B. 375; 25 L.J. C.P. 94.

(b) Baxendale v. G. E. Ry., L.R. 4 Q.B. 244; 38 L.J. Q.B. 137.

(c) Le Conteur v. L. & S. W. Ry., L.R. 1 Q.B. 54; 35 L.J. Q.B. 40; ante, p. 1031.

effect of the Act is to prevent the owner or consignor from recovering from the common carrier the value of any of the enumerated articles when the value of the contents of the parcel or package in which they are inclosed exceeds 10*l.*, and the value has not been declared, and the increased rate of charge paid by the consignor pursuant to the statute. The declaration of value must be made by the consignor, whether the common carrier has or has not put up in his office a notice or tariff of charges for the increased risk of conveyance of such articles, and whether the articles are delivered at the office of the common carrier, at the sender's house, on the road, or anywhere else. The person who sends the goods must take the first step, by giving that information which he alone can give, and if he does not take that first step, then he cannot maintain an action for the value of the lost article by reason of the first section of the statute (d). As soon, however, as the declaration has been made, the common carrier is entitled to demand an increased rate of remuneration, which is in the nature of a premium for insurance, provided he has a tariff or notice affixed in his office of the sums he charges above the usual rate of charge. If there is no tariff, he has no right to charge the increased rate, and he loses (provided the declaration of value has been duly made by the consignor) the protection of the Act (e). Apart from the declaration of value, the common carrier has no right to know the exact nature of the contents of the parcel, unless he has reasonable grounds for believing that it contains articles of a dangerous character (f). And if, after the declaration has been made, he receives the goods without demanding an increased rate of charge, he is not protected by the statute (g). Mere mention of the value incidentally is no declaration of value within the statute (h).

Person to make declaration of value and pay increased rate of carriage.—In a case before the passing of the Carriers Act, it was held that where a tradesman at Gosport received an order in writing for goods to be forwarded to Plymouth, he had an implied authority to do all that was necessary to be done to insure them a safe conveyance; and, therefore, that when it was necessary to declare their value, and pay an increased charge for insurance, it was his duty to make the declaration and the payment, so as to enable the consignee, in case of loss, to secure his indemnity from the common carrier (i); but the limitation

(d) Pianciani v. L. & S. W. Ry., 18 C.B. 226.

(e) Baxendale v. Hart, 6 Exch. 789; 21 L.J. Ex. 123.

(f) Crouch v. L. & N. W. Ry., 14 C.B. 295; 23 L.J. C.P. 73.

(g) Behrens v. G. N. Ry., 7 H. & N. 950; 31 L.J. Ex. 299; see ante, pp. 1021, 1030.

(h) Robinson v. S. W. Ry., 19 C.B. N.S. 51; 34 L.J. C.P. 234.

(i) Clarke v. Hutchins, 14 East, 476.

of the liability of common carriers in respect of the carriage of glass, china, and the articles mentioned in the Carriers Act, being now established by Act of Parliament, must be taken to be known to consignees and consignors alike throughout the kingdom; and it is not the practice, nor, it is apprehended, is it in general the duty, of the consignor, to pay the carriage and insure articles directed to be forwarded by his customers, unless he receives express directions so to do (k). If, indeed, the articles are of an extremely fragile character, or if they are of unusual value, it would be the duty of the consignor to declare their nature and value to the common carrier, that proper care might be taken of them (ante, p. 1029); and it would be prudent for the consignor, before forwarding goods of this description, to require instructions from the consignee as to the insurance of them.

Articles to which Act extends.—The statute extends to any of the articles enumerated in the first section (l), although not within the words of the preamble, "an article of great value in a small compass." It is not sufficient for the owner to describe in writing on the outside of a parcel or box the nature of the contents. The carrier must have distinct information thereof, and an opportunity of demanding the increased rate of carriage (m). If the contents of a parcel or package exceeding 10*l.* in value are of a miscellaneous character, consisting partly of enumerated articles and partly of things not mentioned or comprised in the Act, the common carrier is released from all liability in respect of the former, but, as regards the latter, his common law liability remains the same as before the passing of the statute (n). If, however, the contents of the parcel or package consist entirely of the enumerated articles, the common carrier is by the terms of the Act freed from all responsibility and liability in respect of the loss thereof, if the consignee has not declared the nature and value of the article, and paid, or agreed to pay, the increased charge specified in the notice, although the loss may have been occasioned by gross negligence (o). If an uninsured parcel or package consists entirely of enumerated articles, the plaintiff will not be entitled to recover even the value of the box or case in which they are contained (p), (k) Cothay v. Tute, 3 Campb. 129; Bailey v. Sweeting, 30 L.J. C.P. 150; 9 C.B. N.S. 843.

(l) See ante, p. 1030.

(m) Owen v. Burnett, 2 Cr. & M. 353; 3 L.J. Ex. 76; Boys v. Pink, 8 C. & P. 361.

(n) Bernstein v. Baxendale, 6 C.B. N.S. 251; 28 L.J. C.P. 265.

(o) Hinton v. Dibbin, 2 Q.B. 646; 11 L.J. Q.B. 113.

(p) Wyld v. Pickford, 8 M. & W. 443; 10 L.J. Ex. 382.

but he will, if there are articles in it to which the statute does not apply (q).

If the consignor, after he has made the declaration of value, objects to pay the ad valorem rate of carriage or premium of insurance, and wishes to have the parcel carried as a parcel of ordinary value, at the ordinary rate of carriage for parcels of similar bulk and weight, the carrier may, if he pleases, waive his right to the increased remuneration or premium of insurance, and agree to carry for a smaller sum, upon the terms that he is not then to be responsible upon the customary liability of a common carrier, as an insurer against robbery and the dangers and accidents of the road. This "limitation," observed Parke, B., "it is competent for a carrier to make, because being entitled by common law to insist on the full price of carriage being paid beforehand, he may, if such price be not paid, refuse to carry upon the terms imposed by the common law, and insist upon his own" (r). And if, after the declaration has been made, the carrier receives the parcel without demanding the increased rate or charge, he receives it as an insurer of its safe conveyance; and the same result follows if he has failed to notify his increased rate of charge in accordance with the terms of the statute (s).

Losses covered by the statute.—The term "loss" in the statute means loss of things by the carrier, or his servants, in the course of the carriage of them, either by losing them from their vehicles, or mislaying them, so that it was not known where to find them when they ought to have been delivered; and not the loss that may be sustained by an owner or consignee by reason of the non-delivery of the chattel in due time, or by reason of great delay in its delivery (t).

Losses through theft by common carrier's servants.—Nothing contained in the Carriers Act is (see sect. 8) to protect any common carrier for hire from liability to answer for loss of, or injury to, any goods or articles arising from the felonious act of any servant in the carrier's employ. Although, therefore, the common carrier relies upon the statute as a defence, contending that there was no declaration of value of the article alleged to

(q) Treadwin v. G. E. Ry., L.R. 3 C.P. 308; 37 L.J. C.P. 83. A framed picture is one entire thing, and cannot be divided so as to charge the carrier for the loss of the frame: Henderson v. L. & N. W. Ry., L.R. 5 Ex. 90; 39 L.J. Ex. 55.

(r) Wyld v. Pickford, 8 M. & W. 443; 10 L.J. Ex. 382.

(s) Behrens v. G. N. Ry., 7 H. & N. 950; 31 L.J. Ex. 299.

(t) Hearn v. L. & S. W. Ry., 10 Exch. 801; 24 L.J. Ex. 180; Millen v. Brasch, 10 Q.B.D. 142; 51 L.J. Q.B. 127.

have been lost, the defence may be rebutted by showing that the loss arose from the felonious act of the carrier's servant (u).

When, however, the goods have been accepted by a carrier under a special contract of carriage, the statute does not apply; and, in such a case, where express notice has been given to a consignor by a common carrier that he will not be responsible for parcels or packages above the value of 10*l*., unless the value is declared, and an increased remuneration paid the carrier is not necessarily responsible for a purloining by his servant (x). Having received the goods under a special contract, and not upon his customary liability as an insurer of safe conveyance, he is chargeable only for negligence and want of ordinary care. The loss by theft although primâ facie proof of negligent keeping, is not absolutely conclusive, and the carrier may exonerate himself from liability by showing that there was no want of any proper precaution on his part to guard against theft by his servants. If the consignor, observes Lord Tenterden, has concealed the value of the parcel from the carrier, and has adopted a disguise for it "likely to prevent the carrier from taking any particular care of the parcel, and yet not so completely concealing its nature as to prevent it from being likely to be selected for depredation by a dishonest servant," and the loss is the consequence of the means he has adopted, then he cannot maintain an action in respect of the loss (y).

In order to establish the fact of theft by the common carrier's servants, it is not necessary to show that some particular servant has committed a felony; it is sufficient if there is evidence raising a primâ facie case that the goods were stolen by the carrier's servants (z); it is not enough, however, that there is a greater degree of probability that the carrier's servants took the goods than that a stranger took them by reason of their greater facility of access and opportunities of stealing them (a). All persons who are actually, though casually and incidentally, employed by the common carrier in doing the work of carrying, are the servants of the latter, although they may be the regular servants of some other persons, receiving wages from them and not from the carrier (b).

Liabilities of common carrier's servants.—The Carriers Act

(u) Metcalfe v. L. & B. Ry., 4 C.B. N.S. 307; 27 L.J. C.P. 205.

(x) Butt v. G. W. Ry., 11 C.B. 140; 20 L.J. C.P. 241; G. W. Ry. v. Rimell, 27 L.J. C.P. 201.

(y) Bradley v. Waterhouse, M. & M. 154.

(z) Vaughton v. L. & N. W. Ry., L.R. 9 Ex. 93; 43 L.J. Ex. 75.

(a) McQueen v. G. W. Ry., L.R. 10 Q.B. 569; 44 L.J. Q.B. 130.

(b) Machu v. L. & S. W. Ry., 2 Exch. 415; 17 L.J. Ex. 271; Stephens v. L. & S. W. Ry., 18 Q.B.D. 121; 56 L.J. Q.B. 171.

(see sect. 8) does not protect the coachman, guard, bookkeeper, or other servant of the common carrier, from liability for losses or injuries occasioned by their own personal neglect and misconduct. This applies to liabilities ex delicto; for the coachman, guard, or other servant is not, by the common law, liable in any way ex contractu to the owner of the goods for loss or damage arising from his own personal negligence. The contract for the carriage of the goods is made with the common carrier or coach-proprietor who carries on the business, and not with his servant or agent who has no interest in the concern, and does not share in the profits of the trade (c).

Losses occasioned by consignor's defective packing.—If the loss has been occasioned by the negligence of the consignor or his servants, in not properly packing or securing the goods, the carrier is not responsible for the loss. Thus, the carrier will not be answerable if wine or spirits escape by reason of a defective bung in a cask (d), unless he had notice of the leakage, and had the means of stopping it and neglected to do so (e). If the defective packing of goods is patent and visible, and easily remedied, and the common carrier accepts the goods for conveyance, he is bound to take all reasonable means to provide for their safety (f). But if the mode of packing is that in ordinary use, and the carrier is led by the sender's conduct to conclude that it is safe, the carrier, at any rate if he is not a common carrier, will not be responsible for injury to the goods arising from such packing (g).

Railway and Canal Traffic Act—Liability of railway, canal, and steamboat companies for neglect, default, and breach of duty.—By sect. 7 (h) of the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1854 (i),—which by 26 & 27 Vict. c. 92, s. 31, extends, so far as its provisions are applicable, "to steam vessels and to the traffic carried on thereby,"—every railway company and canal company is made liable for the loss of, or for any injury done to, any horses, cattle, or other animals, or to any articles, goods, or things in the receiving (k), forwarding, and delivering thereof, occasioned by the neglect or default of such company, or its servants, notwithstanding any notice, condition, or declaration made and given by such company contrary thereto, or in any-

(c) Cavenagh v. Such, 1 Pr. 331; Williams v. Cranston, 2 Stark. 82.

(d) Hudson v. Baxendale, 2 H. & N. 575; 27 L.J. Ex. 93.

(e) Beck v. Evans, 16 East, 244.

(f) Stuart v. Crawley, 2 Stark. 32.

(g) Richardson v. N. E. Ry., L.R. 7 C.P. 75; 41 L.J. C.P. 60.

(h) See Baxendale v. G. E. Ry., L.R. 4 Q.B. 254; 38 L.J. Q.B. 137; 51 & 52 Vict. c. 25.

(i) 17 & 18 Vict. c. 31.

(k) As to when a horse is "received," see Hodgman v. West Mid. Ry., 6 B. & S. 560; 35 L.J. Q.B. 85.

wise limiting such liability; every such notice, condition, or declaration, being thereby declared to be null and void. But nothing therein contained is to be construed to prevent the said companies from making such conditions with respect to the receiving, forwarding, and delivering of any of the said animals, articles, goods, or things, as shall be adjudged by the court or judge before whom any question relating thereto shall be tried to be just and reasonable (l), and no greater liability will be incurred than certain sums named in the section for injuries to horses, cattle, &c., unless the sender has declared them to be of greater value at the time of delivery, and paid an increased charge accordingly (m). The neglect or default of a railway company or its servants does not extend to acts of a servant beyond the scope of his employment, e.g., felonious acts. A railway company carrying goods can therefore, like other carriers, protect itself by special contract against theft of the goods even by its own servants, and the statutory requirement that the contract shall be reasonable does not apply (n).

Where an Act of Parliament authorized a railway company to make regulations respecting passengers' luggage, and the company's regulations required passengers to see their luggage marked with the company's labels, and stated that the company would not be responsible for the loss or detention of any article of luggage not so marked and properly addressed, and the plaintiff, who was a passenger, required the company's porter to label and take into the luggage van some wearing apparel wrapped in a shawl and properly addressed, and the porter refused, as the company had made it a rule not to label shawls, it was held that the company was responsible for the porter's refusal to receive the shawl; and that the company could not make regulations having the effect of divesting them of their common law liability to receive and carry the article as personal luggage (o).

In cases where railway companies under the Carriers Act, or the Railway Traffic Act, are entitled to receive an increased rate of charge for insuring the safe conveyance of particular articles, and the consignor objects to the increased rate of charge, and it is agreed that the company shall receive and forward certain articles uninsured, this may be taken as doing away with their

(l) As to the construction of this section, see Peek v. North Staff. Ry., 10 H.L.Cas. 473; 32 L.J. Q.B. 241, post, p. 1045.

(m) The section does not apply to a railway company whose special Acts were passed before 26 & 27 Vict. c. 92: The Stella, (1900) P. 162; 69 L.J. P. 70.

(n) Shaw v. G. W. Ry., (1894) 1 Q.B. 373.

(o) Munster v. S. E. Ry., 4 C.B. N.S. 676; 27 L.J. C.P. 312.

common law liability as insurers of the safe conveyance of the articles, but does not exempt them from responsibility for losses by negligence through their own default (p), e.g., for delay in forwarding the articles (q).

If goods are accepted for conveyance under a special contract, whereby the carrier exempts himself from liability for loss or damage of a particular character, such as leakage or breakage, this will not exempt him from responsibility if the leakage or breakage has been caused by his own negligence, or the negligence of his servants in storing the goods (r). And the rule is the same, where the suit is brought in the Admiralty Division against the vessel (s). It makes no difference that a contract of carriage was made with another person, if the plaintiff alleges that his goods were lawfully in the possession of the defendants, and were lost or injured through their negligence (t).

Special contracts with railway and canal companies for carriage of goods and chattels.—By the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1854 (u), it is further enacted that no special contract between any railway or canal company and any other parties respecting the receiving, forwarding, or delivering of any animals, articles, goods, or things, shall be binding upon or affect any such party unless the same be signed by him, or by the person delivering such animals, articles, goods, or things respectively, for carriage; but nothing therein contained is to alter or affect the rights, privileges, or liabilities of any such company, under the Carriers Act, with respect to articles of the description mentioned in that Act. Special contracts with railway and canal companies, therefore, for the carriage of merchandise and chattels, are placed under the control of the court, so that the conditions imposed by the contract must be just and reasonable; and no condition can protect the company, unless it be contained in a contract signed in accordance with the statute (x). But no special contract signed according to the statute is necessary to define the nature and extent of the public profession of the common carrier and of the duties he under-

(p) Peek v. North Staff. Ry., 10 H.L.Cas. 473; 32 L.J. Q.B. 241.

(q) Robinson v. G. W. Ry., 35 L.J. C.P. 123.

(r) Phillips v. Clark, 2 C.B. N.S. 163; 26 L.J. C.P. 168; M'Manus v. Lanc. & York. Ry., 4 H. & N. 327; 28 L.J. Ex. 353.

(s) Ohrloff v. Briscall, 35 L.J. P.C. 63; sub nom. The Helène, L.R. 1 P.C. 231.

(t) Martin v. Great Indian Peninsular Ry., L.R. 3 Ex. 9; 37 L.J. Ex. 27; Czech v. Gen. Steam Nav. Co., L.R. 3 C.P. 14; 37 L.J. C.P. 3.

(u) 17 & 18 Vict. c. 31, s. 7.

(x) Peek v. North Staff. Ry., 10 H.L. Cas. 473; 32 L.J. Q.B. 241; Aldridge v. G. W. Ry., 15 C.B. N.S. 582; 33 L.J. C.P. 161; Allday v. G. W. Ry., 5 B. & S. 903; 34 L.J. Q.B. 5; L. & N. W. Ry. v. Dunham, 18 C.B. 826; 26 L.J. C.P. 25; M'Manus v. Lanc. & York. Ry., 4 H. & N. 327; 28 L.J. Ex. 353.

takes in favour of the public at large (y); and a contract not signed is valid as against the company (z).

Before the statute, every case in which a special limited liability was substituted for the general common law obligation of the carrier, whether by notice acquiesced in, or document signed by the customer, was one of special contract, and the statute is to be construed with reference to that state of the law; wherefore, every notice, condition, and declaration, under the statute, however reasonable, must, in order to be binding upon the person sought to be affected by it, be in writing and signed in the mode provided by the statute (a). If a man has an opportunity of reading the conditions, and chooses to sign them without reading them, he is nevertheless bound by them, if they are reasonable (b). But the Act does not apply to traffic beyond the company's own lines or canals, so that a condition printed on a passenger's through ticket from London to Paris, that the company would not be responsible for loss, &c., except on the company's own lines, is valid, although not signed by the passenger (c).

Unjust and unreasonable conditions in special contracts.— The reasonableness of the condition will materially depend upon the nature of the articles to be conveyed, the degree of risk attendant upon their conveyance, the rate of charge made, and whether the railway company was bound by the common law, or by statute, to carry the articles on being paid the customary hire, or whether it was in their power to refuse to carry them upon any terms (d). Whenever, in order to bring a railway or canal company within the protection of a condition or special contract, it is necessary to construe it as excluding responsibility for losses occasioned by the company's negligence and misconduct, the condition or special contract is unreasonable and unjust, and therefore void, unless an option is given to the customer to have the goods carried on the ordinary terms, at the ordinary rate (e). A condition, therefore, will be void which

(y) Ante, p. 1019.

(z) Baxendale v. G. E. Ry., L.R. 4 Q.B. 244, 251; 38 L.J. Q.B. 137.

(a) M'Manus v. Lanc. & York. Ry., ante, p. 1045; Peek v. North Staff. Ry., ante, p. 1045; Simons v. G. W. Ry., 18 C. B. 805; 26 L.J. C.P. 25; Beal v. South Devon Ry., 5 H. & N. 875; 29 L.J. Ex. 441.

(b) Lewis v. G. W. Ry., 5 H. & N. 867; 29 L.J. Ex. 425.

(c) Zunz v. S. E. Ry., L.R. 4 Q.B. 539; 38 L.J. Q.B. 209.

(d) Pardington v. South Wales Ry., 1 H. & N. 392; 26 L.J. Ex. 105; Simons v. G. W. Ry., 18 C.B. 805; 26 L.J. C.P. 25; Garton v. Bristol & Exeter Ry., E. B. & E. 112; 30 L.J. Q.B. 273. As to what is a reasonable percentage charged on declared value, see Harrison v. L. B. & S. C. Ry., 2 B. & S. 122; 31 L.J. Q.B. 113.

(e) Peek v. North Staff. Ry., 10 H.L.Cas. 473; 32 L.J. Q.B. 241; Lloyd v. Waterford & Lim. Ry., 15 Ir. C.L.R. 37; Allday v. G. W. Ry., 5 B. & S. 903; 34 L.J. Q.B. 5; Rooth v. N. E. Ry., L.R. 2 Ex. 173; 36 L.J. Ex. 83.

would have the effect of protecting the company even in the case of the wilful misconduct of their own servants (f), and for the same reason will a regulation be unreasonable and void which would exempt a company from responsibility for any passenger's luggage not fully and properly addressed with the name and destination of the owner without excepting even the misconduct or felony of the company's own servants (g). But conditions may be in part reasonable and in part not; and the plaintiff will be bound by those which are reasonable (h). Where the plaintiff sent a dog by the defendants' line, and signed a ticket, which stated that the company would not be common carriers of dogs, and would not receive dogs for conveyance except on special terms, it was held that although the company were not bound to be common carriers of dogs, yet they were bound by the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1854, to afford reasonable facilities for their carriage, and that the charges made must not be unreasonable (i); and, where a railway company received goods to be carried under a condition absolving them from all liability for the loss of, or damage to, goods insufficiently or improperly packed, marked, directed, or described, the condition was held to be unreasonable and unjust, as insufficient packing, marking, or directing, &c., of goods constituted no sufficient ground for relieving the company from liability respecting the performance of their duty (k). Where horses were to be forwarded by a cattle-truck, and the owner signed a ticket undertaking all risk of conveyance, loading and unloading, but the truck provided, though, in external appearance, and, so far as the defendants' servants knew, sound and sufficient, was, in fact, unsound, and one of the horses was injured in consequence, it was held that the railway company was responsible for the damage done, notwithstanding the terms of the special contract (l).

It is the duty of every railway or canal company setting up a condition in qualification and restriction of their common law

(f) Ashendon v. L. B. & S. C. Ry., 5 Ex.D. 190, where Harrison v. L. B. & S. C. Ry., 2 B. & S. 122; 31 L.J. Q.B. 113, is said to be overruled by Peek v. N. S. Ry., ante, p. 1046. See Brown v. M. S. & L. Ry., 8 App.Cas. 703; 53 L.J. Q.B. 124.

(g) Cutler v. N. L. Ry., 19 Q.B.D. 64; 56 L.J. Q.B. 648.

(h) Gregory v. West Mid. Ry., 2 H. & C. 944; 33 L.J. Ex. 155; M'Cance v. L. & N. W. Ry., 3 H. & C. 343; 34 L.J. Ex. 39; Simons v. G. W. Ry., 18 C.B. 805; 26 L.J. C.P. 25.

(i) Dickson v. G. N. Ry., 18 Q.B.D. 176; 56 L.J. Q.B. 111; cp. Williams v. Midland Ry., (1908) 1 K.B. 252; 77 L.J. K.B. 157.

(k) Simons v. G. W. Ry., 18 C.B. 805; 26 L.J. C.P. 25; L. & N. W. Ry. v. Dunham, 18 C.B. 826; 26 L.J. C.P. 25; Garton v. Bristol & Exeter Ry., 1 B. & S. 112; 30 L.J. Q.B. 273; cp. Sutcliffe v. G. W. Ry., (1910) 1 K.B. 478; 79 L.J. K.B. 437.

(l) M'Manus v. Lanc. & York. Ry., 4 H. & N. 327; 28 L.J. Ex. 353; M'Cance v. L. & N. W. Ry., 34 L.J. Ex. 39; 3 H. & C. 343.

liability to show that the condition is just and reasonable; and, if they make an extra charge for insuring the safe conveyance of live animals, the extra charge must be reasonable and just (m). A stipulation that goods shall be carried "at owner's risk" only exempts the company from the ordinary risks incurred by goods in going along the railway, and does not cover injury from delay caused by the negligence (n), even though a lower charge than usual was made (o). Where the company were not to be liable in respect of any loss or "detention," except by wilful misconduct, it was held that a purposed detention through a negligent mistake in supposing the carriage had not been paid, although not amounting to wilful misconduct, was a "detention" for which the company was liable (p).

Just and reasonable conditions.—The following conditions have been held just and reasonable:—that all claims for loss or damage should be made within seven days after the time when the goods have been delivered (q), that a railway company will not undertake to forward goods by any particular train, or be answerable for their non-arrival in time for any particular market (r), that they will not be responsible, under any circumstances, for loss of market or other loss or injury arising from detention of trains, exposure to weather, stowage, or from any cause whatever other than gross neglect or fraud (s), that they will not be responsible for the risks attendant upon the carriage by railway of perishable articles, live animals and chattels, such as accidents occasioned by the fright or restiveness of horses, or from the wheel of a carriage taking fire (t), or for loss arising from delay in forwarding fish, where it is impossible to know the exact condition of the fish at the time of its delivery to be carried, and where the slightest delay in its transmission may occasion a vast loss (u), or for loss or damage to fragile materials, such as statuary or sculptured marbles, not occasioned by the negligence of the company or its servants (x).

(m) Harrison v. L. B. & S. C. Ry., 2 B. & S. 122; 31 L.J. Q.B. 113; Garton v. Bristol & Exeter Ry., 1 B. & S. 162; 30 L.J. Q.B. 294; Peek v. North Staff. Ry., 10 H.L.Cas. 473; 32 L.J. Q.B. 241; Dickson v. G. N. Ry., 18 Q.B.D. 176; 56 L.J. Q.B. 111.

(n) Robinson v. G. W. Ry., 35 L.J. C.P. 123; D'Arc v. L. & N. W. Ry., L.R. 9 C.P. 325.

(o) D'Arc v. L. & N. W. Ry., L.R. 9 C.P. 325.

(p) Gordon v. G. W. Ry., 8 Q.B.D. 44; 51 L.J. Q.B. 58. If the defendants intended that they were not to be liable for such "detention" the condition was unreasonable.

(q) Lewis v. G. W. Ry., 5 H. & N. 867; 29 L.J. Ex. 425.

(r) Beal v. South Devon Ry., 5 H. & N. 875; 29 L.J. Ex. 441; White v. G. W. Ry., 2 C.B. N.S. 7; 26 L.J. C.P. 158; Lord v. Midland Ry., L.R. 2 C.P. 339; 36 L.J. C.P. 170.

(s) Beal v. South Devon Ry., 3 H. & C. 337; Lord v. Midland Ry., L.R. 2 C.P. 339; 36 L.J. C.P. 170.

(t) Austin v. Manchester Ry., 10 C.B. 454; 21 L.J. C.P. 179.

(u) Beal v. South Devon Ry., supra; Wren v. Eastern Counties Ry., 35 L.T. 5.

(x) Peek v. North Staff. Ry., 10 H.L. Cas. 473; 32 L.J. Q.B. 241.

If the company offer the consignor a bonâ fide practical choice, either to have his goods carried in the usual way, at a reasonable rate, or at his own risk at a lower rate, and he elects the latter, the condition is not unreasonable (y). Where there was a contract to carry at owner's risk, but the company were to be liable for the wilful misconduct of their servants, it was held that in the absence of such misconduct the company were not responsible, and that the contract was reasonable (z). The question as to what is reasonable is a question for the judge(a).

Sect. 7 of 17 & 18 Vict. c. 31, is extended by sect. 31 of 26 & 27 Vict. c. 92, to steam-vessels employed by railway companies, as auxiliary to their line of railway, and to the traffic carried on by means of such steam-vessels, but it does not apply to a railway company whose special Acts were passed before the extending Act (b). It applies to passengers' luggage (c), and to goods received without special contract for carriage in a way in which the railway company were under no obligation to carry them, e.g., travellers' samples carried by passenger train (d), but not to goods received by the company for safe custody, and not for carriage (e). Nor does it apply to a contract exempting a company from liability for loss on a railway not belonging to or worked by the company (f). Sect. 12 of 34 & 35 Vict. c. 78, applies where a carriage is by a vessel not belonging to nor worked by the company (g).

Liability of railway company during sea transit.—When a railway or canal company contracts by through-booking to carry any animals, luggage, or goods from place to place, partly by railway and partly by sea, or partly by canal and partly by sea, they may by their contract assume the risk even beyond their own premises (h). But, in such a case, a condition exempting the company from liability for any loss or damage which may arise during the carriage by sea of such animals, &c., from the act of God, the king's enemies, fire, accidents from machinery, boilers, and steam, and all and every other dangers and accidents

(y) Blackburn, J., ib.; Lewis v. G. W. Ry., 3 Q.B.D. 195; 47 L.J. Q.B. 131; Brown v. M. S. & L. Ry., 8 App. Cas. 703; 53 L.J. Q.B. 124; G. W. Ry. v. M'Carthy, 12 App.Cas. 218; 56 L.J. Ch. 3.

(z) Lewis v. G. W. Ry., 3 Q.B.D. 195; 47 L.J. Q.B. 131; see Gordon v. G. W. Ry., 8 Q.B.D. 44; 51 L.J. Q.B. 58.

(a) Per Ld. Herschell in G. W. Ry. v. M'Carthy, 12 App.Cas, 218; 56 L.J. Ch. 3.

(b) The Stella, (1900) P. 162; 69 L.J. P. 70.

(c) Cohen v. S. E. Ry., 2 Ex.D. 253; 46 L.J. Ex. 417.

(d) Wilkinson v. Lanc. & York. Ry. (1907) 2 K.B. 222; 76 L.J. K.B. 801.

(e) Van Toll v. S. E. Ry., 12 C.B. N.S. 75; 31 L.J. C.P. 241.

(f) Zunz v. S. E. Ry., L.R. 4 Q.B. 539; 38 L.J. Q.B. 209.

(g) Doolan v. Midland Ry., 2 App. Cas. 792.

(h) Logan v. Highland Ry., (1900) 2 F. 292.

of the seas, rivers, and navigation, of whatever kind soever, will, if published in a conspicuous manner in the office when such through-booking is effected, and if printed in a legible manner on the receipt or freight note which the company gives for such animals, &c., be valid as part of the contract between the consignor of such animals, &c., and the company, just as if the company had signed and delivered to the consignor a bill of lading containing such condition (i).

Where a railway company, under a contract for carrying persons, animals, or goods by sea, procure the same to be carried in a vessel not belonging to the company, they will be answerable in damages in respect of loss of life or personal injury, or in respect of loss or damage to such animals or goods during the carriage in such vessel, in like manner, and to the same amount, as they would be answerable if the vessel had belonged to them (k).

Implied authority of railway servants to bind company by special contract.—"It is the duty of railway companies to have some person capable of giving directions and of dealing with everything that the exigency of the traffic may require, and of granting any reasonable demand. The persons who are said to be general superintendent and managing director have power to bind the company as to all things within the scope of the business of the company by any contract within the limits of their employment" (l). If they act beyond the scope of their ordinary business, it must be shown, in order to bind the company, that they are acting under a special authority from the board of directors (m). But, if there is a particular course of dealing with which the consignor is acquainted, he must be taken to know that the servants have no power to bind the company on any but the usual terms (n).

Commencement and duration of liability—Loss or damage in warehouses.—When a common carrier carries on the business both of a warehouseman and a common carrier, the extent of his liability will depend upon the character in which he holds the goods at the time of the loss. If they are received into his warehouse to await the future orders of the owner or consignor as to their destination, he is clothed only with the ordinary duties and responsibilities of a warehouseman or bailee for

(i) 31 & 32 Vict. c. 119, s. 14, post, p. 1055.

(k) 34 & 35 Vict. c. 78, s. 12, post, p. 1055.

(l) Brown v. Bristol and Exeter Ry., 4 L.T. 830; Robinson v. G. W. Ry., 35 L.J. C.P. 123.

(m) Taff Vale Ry. v. Giles, 2 E. & B. 822; 23 L.J. Q.B. 43.

(n) Slim v. G. N. Ry., 14 C.B. 647; 23 L.J. C.P. 166.

hire (o). Goods received at the cloak-room of a railway company, therefore, are not received by the company in their capacity of common carriers, but simply as bailees for hire (p). But if the destination is marked out, and the carrier has nothing to do but to forward the goods on the earliest opportunity to the place indicated, he is responsible as a common carrier for any loss or damage that may occur to the goods in the warehouse, as they are then in transitu in contemplation of law (q). Whenever the common carrier receives goods to be kept until called for, or until he has orders from the consignee to forward them, he holds them as a bailee for hire, and not as a gratuitous bailee, although he does not charge warehouse rent (r).

Delivery of goods at place of destination.—The common carrier of goods is bound, in common with all carriers for hire, to carry the goods intrusted to him for conveyance to their place of destination with reasonable expedition (s), and deliver them into the hands of the consignee, or of some person expressly or impliedly authorized by him to receive them, taking especial care that they are delivered into the hands of the right person (t). If imposed upon by a fictitious order, carriers will not be responsible, if they act according to the usual custom of business, and in accordance with their instructions (u). When the carriage is by land, the goods must be sent to the residence of the consignee, for the common carrier is not released from responsibility by leaving them at the coach-office, or at an inn by the roadside at which the coach usually stops, unless he has received directions from the consignee so to do (x). If he tenders them at the residence of the consignee, and is ready to deliver them on receiving payment of his hire, he has fulfilled his contract as a carrier; and if the hire is not paid he is not bound to part with the possession of the goods: but he may lawfully take them back to his own warehouse, or place of business; and he holds them thenceforward not as a common carrier, but as a bailee for hire, or (if he is not entitled to charge, or does not charge, warehouse rent) as a gratuitous bailee (y), and will only be

(o) Cairns v. Robins, 8 M. & W. 258; 10 L.J. Ex. 452; Garside v. Trent Navigation Co., 4 T.R. 582.

(p) Van Toll v. S. E. Ry., 16 C.B. N.S. 75; 31 L.J. C.P. 241.

(q) Forward v. Pittard, 1 T.R. 27; Buller, J., in Hyde v. Trent and Mersey Nav. Co., 5 T.R. 398. See Barrow, Ex parte, 6 Ch.D. 783; 46 L.J. Bankr. 71. As to accidental fires in warehouses, see Addison on Torts, p. 706 (ed. 8).

(r) White v. Humphery, 11 Q.B. 43.

(s) Raphael v. Pickford, 6 Sc. N.R. 478; 12 L.J. C.P. 176; Black v. Baxendale, 1 Exch. 410; 17 L.J. Ex. 50.

(t) Golden v. Manning, 3 Wils. 433; 2 W.Bl. 916; Birkett v. Willan, 2 B. & Ald. 356; Duff v. Budd, 6 Moore, 469; Stephenson v. Hart, 4 Bing. 476; 6 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 97.

(u) McKean v. McIvor, L.R. 6 Ex. 36; 40 L.J. Ex. 30.

(x) L. & N. W. Ry. v. Bartlett, 7 H. & N. 400; 31 L.J. Ex. 92.

(y) Storr v. Crowley, M'Clel. & Y. 136.

bound to exercise reasonable care with respect to the goods (z). And if the consignee, having no warehouse of his own, asks him to keep the goods till he can conveniently send for them, the common carrier thenceforth holds the goods only as a warehouseman for hire, or a gratuitous bailee, according as he may or may not be paid for his custody of them (a). Upon the arrival of the goods at their destination, and tender of them to the consignee, the carrier is no longer a common carrier in the sense of being an insurer, but is bound nevertheless to take care of the goods (b); and if he is put to expense in so doing by reason of the default of the consignee in not receiving the goods, the carrier may recover such expenses (c). Where goods are delivered to be carried to a certain place for a named consignee, such consignee is entitled to delivery at any other place, and the carrier is not responsible for loss after such delivery (d). The carrier is protected by the Carriers Act after the goods have been negligently carried beyond the destination (e). When the carriage is by water, the delivery at a wharf is not a delivery to the consignee, unless it is made so by the usage and practice of the port where the delivery takes place; but the master is bound to give the consignee notice of the arrival of the goods, and is not released from his responsibility for their safety until a reasonable time has elapsed after the giving of the notice for the consignee to come and fetch them. He cannot escape from his liability as a common carrier by immediately landing the goods at a public wharf, without giving notice to the consignee, and giving him an opportunity of receiving them from the ship's side; and if he does so land them, and they are destroyed upon the wharf by an accidental fire before the consignee has had an opportunity of taking them away, the shipowners will be responsible for the loss (f).

Delivery of luggage at railway stations.—In the case of the carriage of passengers with luggage by railway, if it is the usual course for the luggage to be taken from the train by the company's servants and delivered to the passengers on the platform, the company is bound to deliver it there. And if the company choose to provide a more convenient mode of delivering luggage

(z) Heugh v. L. & N. W. Ry., L.R. 5 Ex. 51; 39 L.J. Ex. 48.

(a) Webb, In re, 8 Taunt. 449. See Shepherd v. Bristol & Exeter Ry., L.R. 3 Ex. 189; 37 L.J. Ex. 113.

(b) G. N. Ry. v. Swaffield, L. R. 9 Ex. 132; 43 L.J. Ex. 89; Chapman v. G. W. Ry., 5 Q.B.D. 278; 49 L.J. Q.B. 420; Cooper, Ex parte, 11 Ch.D. 68; 48 L.J. Bankr. 49.

(c) G. N. Ry. v. Swaffield, supra.

(d) Cork Distillers' Co. v. Great Southern Ry., Ireland, L.R. 7 H.L. 269.

(e) Morritt v. N. E. Ry., 1 Q.B.D. 302; 45 L.J. Q.B. 289.

(f) Bourne v. Gatliffe, 3 Sc. N.R. 1; 8 ib. 604; 7 M. & Gr. 850; Syeds v. Hay, 4 T.R. 260; Wardell v. Mourillyan, 2 Esp. 693.

to passengers by employing porters to carry it across the platform to the vehicles by which it is to be taken away, their liability as common carriers continues until the porters have discharged their duty (g). The passenger must be allowed a reasonable time to claim his luggage at the destination (h); but if after claiming it he leaves it with a porter for a time the company will not be responsible if it be lost (i). Passengers' luggage is within sect. 7 of the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1854 (j), and a notice or condition that the company will not be responsible is void (k).

Acceptance of goods and passengers to be carried beyond limits of ordinary destination.—When a common carrier takes into his care a parcel directed to a particular place, and does not by positive agreement limit his responsibility to a part only of the distance (l), there is primâ facie evidence of an undertaking on his part to carry the parcel to the place to which it is directed, although the place may be beyond the limits within which he ordinarily professes to carry on his trade. His responsibility, therefore, continues to the door of the address to which the goods are destined, and he cannot release himself from such responsibility by transferring the goods to another carrier, or sending them by another conveyance (m). If a railway company, for example, accepts goods for conveyance to a particular destination, beyond the limits of its own line of railroad, and the goods are lost whilst in the hands of another railway company, to whom they have been delivered to be forwarded on their journey, the first railway company is the party to be sued by the owner of the goods for the loss of them (n), but the company may by express contract limit its liability to loss and damage occurring on its own line of railway (o). A railway company which accepts goods for carriage by a named route is liable to the consignor in damages for loss occasioned to him owing to the goods being

(g) Richards v. L. B. & S. C. Ry., 7 C.B. 839; 18 L.J. P.C. 251; Butcher v. L. & S. W. Ry., 16 C.B. 13. See ante, p. 1038.

(h) Patscheider v. G. W. Ry., 3 Ex.D. 153.

(i) Hodkinson v. L. & N. W. Ry., 14 Q.B.D. 228.

(j) 17 & 18 Vict. c. 31.

(k) Cohen v. S. E. Ry., 2 Ex.D. 253; 46 L.J. Ex. 417.

(l) Such a limitation is a reasonable one: see Aldridge v. G. W. Ry., 15 C.B. N.S. 582; 33 L.J. C.P. 161.

(m) Garnett v. Willan, 5 B. & Ald. 53; Logan v. Highland Ry., (1900) 2 F. 292.

(n) Muschamp v. Lanc. & Preston Ry., 8 M. & W. 421; 10 L.J. Ex. 460; Watson v. Ambergate Ry., 15 Jur. 448; Collins v. Bristol & Exeter Ry., 11 Exch. 790; 25 L.J. Ex. 185; Bristol & Exeter Ry. v. Collins, 7 H.L.Cas. 234; 29 L.J. Ex. 41; Wilby v. West Corn. Ry., 2 H. & N. 703; 27 L.J. Ex. 181; Mytton v. Midland Ry., 4 H. & N. 615; 28 L.J. Ex. 385; Coxon v. G. W. Ry., 5 H. & N. 274; 29 L.J. Ex. 165; Hayes v. S. W. Ry., 9 Ir. C.L.R. 474; Webber v. G. W. Ry., 3 H. & C. 771; 34 L.J. Ex. 170.

(o) Fowles v. G. W. Ry., 7 Exch. 699; 22 L.J. Ex. 76; Aldridge v. G. W. Ry., 15 C.B. N.S. 582; 33 L.J. C.P. 161. See Zunz v. S. E. Ry., L.R. 4 Q.B. 539; 38 L.J. Q.B. 209; and Caledonian Ry. v. Mulholland, (1898) A.C. 216; 67 L.J. P.C. 1.

wilfully carried (as distinguished from carriage by mistake) by a different route; and a clause in the consignment note exempting the company from liability for delay, &c., except upon proof that it arose from wilful misconduct on the part of its servants, has no application to such a case (p).

In the absence of special circumstances, the responsibility of a railway company in and about the conveyance of goods accepted by them for delivery at a particular destination is the same, whether their own line extends the whole distance or stops at an intermediate point, and the railway companies carrying the goods beyond the limits of the first line of railway are, in respect of the conveyance and delivery of such goods, to be regarded as the agents of the railway company which originally received the goods (q). The same principle applies to the conveyance of passengers (r), who are injured during the journey, although the negligence be that of the company over whose line the defendant company have running powers, and not of the defendants themselves (s). And it applies to the entire journey from commencement to termination. Where, therefore, the contract was to carry the plaintiff from the shore to a hulk, and there wait till a vessel came to carry him to his destination, and he was injured while on board the hulk, it was held that the defendants were responsible, though the hulk did not belong to them, and was merely used by agreement for the purpose of embarking passengers on board their vessels (t).

Railway companies may also enter into arrangements whereby they become agents for one another, and responsible for each other's acts, so that a contract to carry and deliver made with one company may render the other liable for a breach occurring on the line of the latter (u). If one railway company receives goods to carry part of the way, and then transfers them to another company to carry them to the place of destination, the agents of the latter company are agents of the first company for receiving notice of countermand; and, if they receive such notice and pay no attention to it, the first company is responsible for the neglect (x). The consignee may receive the goods

(p) Mallet v. G. E. Ry., (1899) 1 Q.B. 309; 68 L.J. Q.B. 256. But see remarks on this case in Foster v. G. W. Ry., (1904) 2 K.B. 306; 73 L.J. K.B. 811.

(q) Crouch v. G. W. Ry., 3 H. & N. 183; 27 L.J. Ex. 345; Scothorn v. South Staff. Ry., 8 Ex. 345; 22 L.J. Ex. 121.

(r) Blake v. G. W. Ry., 7 H. & N. 987; 31 L.J. Ex. 346; Buxton v. N. E. Ry., L.R. 3 Q.B. 549; 37 L.J. Q.B. 258.

(s) Thomas v. Rhymney Ry., L.R. 6 Q.B. 266; 40 L.J. Q.B. 89. See Foulkes v. Met. Ry., 5 C.P.D. 157; 49 L.J. C.P. 361.

(t) John v. Bacon, L.R. 5 C.P. 437; 39 L.J. C.P. 365.

(u) Gill v. Manchester, &c. Ry., L.R. 8 Q.B. 186; 42 L.J. Q.B. 89.

(x) Scothorn v. South Staff. Ry., 8 Exch. 345; 22 L.J. Ex. 121; Crouch v. G. W. Ry., 3 H. & N. 183; 27 L.J. Ex. 345.

at any stage of the journey, and may alter their destination at his pleasure (y).

By sect. 14 of 31 & 32 Vict. c. 119, where a railway or canal company, or the lessees, owners, or managers of such company, by through-booking, contract to carry any animals, luggage, or goods partly by railway and partly by sea or canal, a condition exempting the company from liability for any loss or damage arising during the carriage by sea from the act of God, the king's enemies, fire, accidents from machinery, boilers, or steam, and all other accidents of seas, rivers, and navigation of whatever kind, shall, if published in a conspicuous manner in the office where the through-booking is effected, and legibly printed on the receipt or freight note, be valid as part of the contract between the consignor and the company (z). The section does not operate to prevent a railway company from making with a passenger travelling with a free pass conditions exempting the company from liability for the loss of his luggage, although no notice has been posted in the company's office (a).

By sect. 12 of 34 & 35 Vict. c. 78, where a railway company under a contract for carrying persons, animals, or goods by sea, procure the same to be carried in a vessel not belonging to the railway company, the railway company shall be answerable in damages, in respect of loss of life, or personal injury, or loss of or damage to animals or goods during carriage in such vessel.

Refusal of consignee to receive goods—Carrier as bailee.—If the consignee refuses to receive the goods, or cannot be found, the carrier is not thereby exonerated from the duty of taking reasonable care of them, and doing what is reasonable in the matter for the benefit of the consignor, or the owner of them. An entirely new contract arises by implication of law between the carrier and the consignor—the carrier holds the goods as the bailee of the consignor, and is bound to take due and ordinary care of the goods and to deliver them to the consignor, on being paid his fair and reasonable charges (b), but he is not liable for a subsequent mis-delivery of them if he acts with reasonable care (c). If the person to whom the goods are addressed is not ready to receive them at the place of delivery, the carrier must keep them a reasonable time, if he has a convenient place of deposit there, and if he has no place

(y) L. & N. W. Ry. v. Bartlett, 7 H. & N. 400; 31 L.J. Ex. 92; Butterworth v. Brownlow, 19 C.B. N.S. 409; 34 L.J. C.P. 266.

(z) See 51 & 52 Vict. c. 25, s. 28.

(a) The Stella, (1900) P. 16; 69 L.J. P. 70.

(b) Metcalfe v. L. & B. Ry., 4 C.B. N.S. 318; 38 L.J. C.P. 335; Heugh v. L. & N. W. Ry., L.R. 5 Ex. 51; 39 L.J. Ex. 48; McKean v. M'Ivor, L.R. 6 Ex. 36; 40 L.J. Ex. 30.

(c) Heugh v. L. & N. W. Ry., supra.

of deposit he must deal with them as any reasonably prudent person might be expected to deal with his own property. If the consignor or owner of the goods is known to him, it would be reasonable for him to give notice of the refusal of the consignee to receive them, and seek instructions for the disposal of the property. If the consignor or owner is unknown to him, no such notice can, of course, be given, or be reasonably expected (d); but he should deposit the goods in some place of safety, and ought not at once to send back the goods to the place from whence they came (e). A consignee's right to reject goods on account of damage sustained by them in course of carriage depends in each case upon the extent of the damage sustained (f).

Payment of fare or hire—Carrier's lien.—When credit has not, by express contract of the parties, been given for the payment of the price of the carriage of goods, the delivery of the goods to the consignee and the payment of the price of the carriage are concurrent acts to be performed at the same time, so that the carrier is entitled to retain possession of the things he has carried until he is tendered his hire for their conveyance. If the consignee refuses to pay the sum demanded for their carriage, the carrier is not justified in at once sending the goods back to the place whence they came, but must hold them a reasonable time, to see if the consignee will accept and pay for them (g). If the consignee still refuses, the carrier will hold at the disposal of the consignor, and is entitled to look to the latter for the payment of his hire. The carrier holds the goods first that he may get payment of the freight, and then to deal with them as the consignee may direct (h). The transit is not at an end so long as the carrier holds the goods as carrier, nor until by agreement between him and the purchaser he holds them not as carrier, but as the purchaser's agent (i). Where a carrier delivers part of the goods, he may be assumed not to have abandoned his lien upon the rest for his unpaid freight. He is bound to deliver up to the extent of the freight which has been paid; but the moment he has delivered enough to satisfy that, he has a lien upon the whole of the remainder of the cargo for the unpaid freight (k). If a railway company posts at the

(d) Hudson v. Baxendale, 2 H. & N. 575; 27 L.J. Ex. 93.

(e) G. W. Ry. v. Crouch, 3 H. & N. 183; 27 L.J. Ex. 345; Heugh v. L. & N. W. Ry., L.R. 5 Ex. 51; 39 L.J. Ex. 48.

(f) Dick v. East Coast Ry., (1902) 4 F. 178.

(g) G. W. Ry. v. Crouch, 3 H. & N. 201; 27 L.J. Ex. 345.

(h) Barrow, Ex parte, 6 Ch.D. 783; 46 L.J. Bankr. 71.

(i) Cooper, Ex parte, 11 Ch.D. 68; 48 L.J. Bankr. 49.

(k) Cooper, Ex parte, supra.

offices and stations a bye-law to the effect that every passenger losing his ticket shall be liable to pay the full fare from the most distant station on the line, the company has no power to enforce it by detaining the person of a passenger who refuses to pay the specified amount (l), or by forcibly removing him from the carriage in which he is travelling (m).

The common law accords to common carriers a right to retain goods and chattels carried until they have received the customary remuneration for the services they have been compelled to render, whether the goods are the property of the persons who have tendered them for conveyance, or the property of third parties from whom they have been fraudulently taken or stolen. Thus, where goods have been stolen and delivered to a carrier to be carried the carrier may refuse to deliver them to the owner without being paid the price of their carriage, "for when the robber brought them to him he was obliged to receive them and carry them, and therefore since the law compelled him to carry them it will give him remedy by retainer for the price of the carriage" (n).

But the carrier has no lien by the common law for anything beyond the price of the carriage of the goods conveyed. He cannot detain them until he has received payment of a general balance due to him from the owners. Common carriers have oftentimes attempted to obtain a lien of this description, and to secure the payment of debts due to them for the previous conveyance of goods, by notice or agreement that all goods delivered for conveyance will be held as a security for the payment of such debts, as well as for the payment of the price of their own carriage (o). But a common carrier has no right to make any such bargain or stipulation. He is bound, as we have already seen, so long as he has room in his vehicle, to convey the goods of all persons tendering his hire for the carriage; and if he does obtain a promise from the consignor to the effect that he shall, if he carries the goods, have a right to retain them in his hands as a security for the payment of an antecedent debt, such promise is a mere nudum pactum, without legal effect (p). Where an Order in Council directed that every cattle-truck should be disinfected once in every twenty-four

(l) Chilton v. London & Croydon Ry., 16 M. & W. 212; 16 L.J. Ex. 89; Poulton v. L. & S. W. Ry., L.R. 2 Q.B. 534; 36 L.J. C.P. 294. See Addison on Torts, p. 180 (ed. 8).

(m) Butler v. M. S. & L. Ry., 21 Q.B.D. 207; 57 L.J. Q.B. 564.

(n) Exeter Carriers' case, cited 2 Ld. Raym. 867.

(o) Wright v. Snell, 5 B. & Ald. 353; G. E. Ry. v. Lord's Trustee, (1909) A.C. 109; 78 L.J. K.B. 160.

(p) Butler v. Woolcott, 2 Bos. & P. N.R. 64; Oppenheim v. Russell, 3 Bos. & P. 47; Rushforth v. Hadfield, 6 East. 527; 7 ib. 227.

hours during its use, it was held that the railway company had no lien for the expense of such cleansing upon the person sending cattle by the truck, as it was not a service done for such person individually as distinguished from the rest of the public (q).

Section 97 of 8 Vict. c. 20, gives no lien upon goods for tolls or charges due to a railway company for other goods previously conveyed by them as carriers, but only for tolls previously due for the use of the line by persons conveying goods in their own carriages (r).

If a person goes to a coach-office and has a place booked for him by a particular coach, and he then leaves his portmanteau at the coach-office, the coach-proprietor will, it seems, have a lien upon the portmanteau for his reasonable and customary remuneration and charge for booking; but if the person merely leaves his portmanteau, and no place is booked, the coach-proprietor has no lien upon the portmanteau at all (s). When goods delivered to be carried are received from the waggon of the common carrier by the consignee, and are merely carried into the warehouse to be weighed, the carrier has no right to charge for warehouse-room; and if the goods are taken up on the road, and have never been booked, he has no right to charge for the booking of them; and if, after tender of the price of the carriage, he detains them for these small charges, the detention is unlawful, and an action may be brought against him in respect thereof (t). A common carrier of passengers and luggage has a lien upon the luggage for the fare of the passenger as well as for the carriage of his effects, but he has no right to detain the person of the passenger or the clothes he is actually wearing (u). If the carrier once parts with the possession of the goods he loses his lien, as in other cases. But if he loses the possession by fraud, the lien revives if possession is recovered (x).

Common carrier's charges—Railway charges.—The statutes requiring justices of the peace to assess and fix the charges for land carriage of goods have long since been repealed (y); but the hire or charge for carriage must be fair and reasonable,

(q) Cox v. G. E. Ry., L.R. 4 C.P. 181; 38 L.J. C.P. 151.

(r) Wallis v. L. & S. W. Ry., L.R. 5 Ex. 62; 39 L.J. Ex. 57. See Brown v. G. W. Ry., 9 Q.B.D. 744; 51 L.J. Q.B. 529; but see M. S. & L. Ry. v. North Central Wagon Co., 13 App.Cas. 554; 58 L.J. Ch. 219.

(s) Higgins v. Bretherton, 5 C. & P. 2. Whether, if the place be booked, the coach proprietor would have a lien for the full fare, quære, S. C.

(t) Lambert v. Robinson, 1 Esp. 119.

(u) Wolf v. Summers, 2 Campb. 631.

(x) Wallace v. Woodgate, Ry. & M. 194.

(y) 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 39 (repealed, S. L. R. 1873).

and must not exceed the ordinary and customary rate of remuneration. By sect. 1, sub-sect. 2 of the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1894 (z), under regulations of the Board of Trade, every railway company shall keep the books, schedules, or other papers, specifying all the rates, charges and conditions of transport in use upon their railway on 31st December, 1892, open for inspection at their head office, and shall upon demand supply copies or extracts thereof (a). If a person sends to a carrier's office to know his rate of charge, the carrier is bound by the representation there made by his clerks; and, for goods sent upon the faith of such representation, the carrier cannot charge more than the sum named, although the clerk may have inadvertently fallen into a mistake (b). When, by a railway Act, the word "toll" is to include the charge for goods conveyed by the railway, whether for the use of the railway or for the moving power, or for the use of the carriage, primâ facie it includes everything that a carrier does, and for which he is entitled to charge (c). By the Acts of Parliament under which railway companies are incorporated, it is generally provided that the charges for the carriage of goods shall be reasonable and equal to all persons. This will not, however, prevent the company from charging special rates for carriage in a special manner, e.g., for carriage in passenger trains of goods which they are only bound to carry by goods train (d).

Duty of railway and canal companies to afford reasonable facilities for carriage of passengers, merchandise, and chattels. —By sect. 2 of the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1854 (e), every railway company and canal company shall afford all reasonable facilities (ee) for the receiving, forwarding, and delivering of traffic upon and from the several railways and canals belonging to or worked by such companies, and for the return of carriages, trucks, boats, and other vehicles; and no such company shall make or give any undue or unreasonable preference or advantage to or in favour of any particular person or company, or any particular description of traffic, in any respect whatsoever; nor shall any such company subject any

(z) 57 & 58 Vict. c. 54.

(a) As to the hearing and determination by the Railway and Canal Commissioners of complaints with respect to increase of rates and charges since December 31, 1892, see 57 & 58 Vict. c. 54, ss. 1, 2; and North Staff. Coll. Owners' Assoc. v. North Staff. Ry. and Others, (1908) 2 K.B. 765; 77 L.J. K.B. 1021; and as to the meaning of "rate authorised," see Spillers & Bakers, Ltd. v. G. W. Ry., (1909) 1 K.B. 604; 78 L.J. K.B. 444.

(b) Winkfield v. Packington, 2 C. & P. 600.

(c) Pegler v. Monmouth Ry. & Canal Co., 6 H. & N. 644; 30 L.J. Ex. 249.

(d) Stone v. Midland Ry., (1904) 1 K.B. 669; 73 L.J. K.B. 392.

(e) 17 & 18 Vict. c. 31.

(ee) Spillers & Bakers, Ltd. v. G. W. Ry., (1911) 1 K.B. 386.

particular person or company, or any particular description of traffic, to any undue or unreasonable prejudice or disadvantage in any respect whatsoever (f); and where the railways or canals form part of a continuous line of railway and canal communication, all due and reasonable facilities shall similarly be afforded for receiving and forwarding traffic without preference or advantage, or prejudice, or disadvantage, as aforesaid. By the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1888 (g), s. 25, the said facilities include the due and reasonable receiving, forwarding, and delivering of through traffic at through rates, tolls, or fares under conditions set out in the section (h). It has been held, however, that the above provisions apply only to the "receiving," "forwarding," and "delivering," of traffic, and not to facilities for storing goods after they have been delivered to the consignees. Where, therefore, a railway company let the surplus land adjoining their station to one coal merchant to the exclusion of others, it was held that another coal merchant had no ground of complaint, although the first-named merchant did not require or use the whole of the surplus land for the purpose of storing his coals (i). A cloakroom has been held to be a reasonable facility (k).

No distinction must be made by the company between one class of persons and another (l). The company cannot, therefore, charge a person, who is himself a common carrier, for a parcel or package, whatever may be its contents, more than it would charge one of the public. Where a railway company acted as a common carrier of goods, and issued certain scales of charge for the carriage, including the collection, loading, unloading, and delivery, and also carried goods for other carriers, to whom they made certain allowances for collection, &c., but in their dealings with a particular carrier they refused to make these allowances, it was held that the charges to the latter were

(f) G. W. Ry. v. Sutton, L.R. 4 H.L. 226; 38 L.J. Ex. 177; Midland Ry. v. Myers, Rose & Co., (1908) 2 K.B. 356; 77 L.J. K.B. 554.

(g) 51 & 52 Vict. c. 25.

(h) The Railways (Private Sidings) Act, 1904, 4 Edw. 7, c. 19, further extends the said facilities to traffic upon private sidings and private branch railways. Sect. 28 of 51 & 52 Vict. c. 25, makes the provisions applicable to sea traffic.

(i) West v. L. & N. W. Ry., L.R. 5 C.P. 622; 39 L.J. C.P. 282, per Montague Smith and Brett, JJ., diss. Bovill, C.J., and Keating, J. See E. & W. India Dock Co. v. Shaw, Savill & Albion Co., 39 Ch.D. 524; 57 L.J. Ch. 1038.

(k) Singer Manufacturing Co. v. L. & S. W. Ry., (1894) 1 Q.B. 83; 64 L.J. Q.B. 411; as to providing waterclosets, see West Ham Corporation v. G. E. Ry., 64 L.J. Q.B. 340; as to through booking, see Didcot, Newbury, &c. Ry. v. G. W. Ry., (1897) 1 Q.B. 33; 66 L.J. Q.B. 33.

(l) See Ransome v. East. Co. Ry., 1 C.B. N.S. 437; 26 L.J. C.P. 91; see post, p. 1063 et seq.; the convenience of the public is an element in the consideration of what may constitute an "undue" preference: Palmer v. L. B. & S. C. Ry., L.R. 6 C.P. 194; 40 L.J. C.P. 133.

not equal or reasonable, and that he might recover from the company divers extra charges paid by him over and above what had been charged to other carriers and to the public (m). Charges for collection and delivery of parcels cannot be included in the general charge for the carriage, so as to impose upon parties who do not require these services and do not avail themselves of them the burden of paying for them (n). No unreasonable preference or advantage can lawfully be given to any particular person or company, or to any particular description of traffic (o). But the fair interests of the railway company must be taken into consideration; and they are entitled to make a difference in their charges, where it is shown that there is a difference in the cost of carriage to the company, and in the labour and expense incurred by them in the delivery of the goods (p).

If overcharges are made they may be recovered back (q). Therefore, where a railway company charged a certain rate upon the aggregate weight of several packages, if addressed to the same consignee at the same place, it was held that they could not charge a common carrier separately upon the weight of the packages consigned to him, although, in addition to the carrier's address on the packages, there was also labelled the address of the person to whom the carrier (through his agent) intended to deliver them (r). However, this will not prevent a railway company from charging through-rates to places beyond their termini, at a rate lower in proportion than that charged for part of the distance, although such part is the whole of their line, and a common carrier is not, therefore, entitled to have his packages carried over the line for such lower rate (s).

Section 16 of 31 & 32 Vict. c. 119, provides for equal charges to passengers, where a railway company is authorized

(m) Parker v. G. W. Ry., 7 M. & Gr. 253; 13 L.J. C.P. 105; 11 C.B. 545; 21 L.J. C.P. 57; Parker v. Bristol & Exeter Ry., 6 Exch. 702; L. & N. W. Ry. v. Evershed, 3 App.Cas. 1029; 48 L.J. Q.B. 22; Denaby Main Colliery Co. v. M. S. & L. Ry., 11 App.Cas. 97; 55 L.J. Q.B. 181.

(n) Baxendale v. G. W. Ry., 16 C.B. N.S. 137; 33 L.J. C.P. 197; Garton v. Bristol & Exeter Ry., 1 B. & S. 112; 30 L.J. Q.B. 273.

(o) 17 & 18 Vict. c. 31, s. 2; 51 & 52 Vict. c. 25, s. 27; see L. & N. W. Ry. v. Evershed, supra.

(p) Ransome v. East. Co. Ry., supra; Oxlade v. N. E. Ry., 1 C.B. N.S. 454; 26 L.J. C.P. 129; Baxendale v. East. Co. Ry., 4 C.B. N.S. 81; 27 L.J. C.P. 137; Denaby Main Colliery Co. v. M. S. & L. Ry., supra; Midland Ry. v. Myers, Rose & Co., (1908) 2 K.B. 356; 77 L.J. K.B. 554; 51 & 52 Vict. c. 25, s. 27 (2). As to tonnage rates and parcel rates, see Parker v. G. W. Ry., 6 E. & B. 77; 25 L.J. Q.B. 209; as to foreign goods, see Mansion House Assoc. v. L. & S. W. Ry., (1895) 1 Q.B. 927; 64 L.J. Q.B. 529. As to increase of rates, see North Staff. Coll. Owners' Assoc. v. North Staff. Ry. and Others, (1908) 2 K.B. 765; 77 L.J. K.B. 1021.

(q) Pegler v. Monmouth, Ry. &c., 6 H. & N. 644; 30 L.J. Ex. 249; Garton v. Bristol & Exeter Ry., supra; L. & N. W. Ry. v. Evershed, supra.

(r) Baxendale v. L. & S. W. Ry., L.R. 1 Ex. 137; 35 L.J. Ex. 108.

(s) Baxendale v. L. & S. W. Ry., supra.

to maintain and work steam vessels, and prohibits any reduction or advance in the fare in consequence of the persons using the steamboat having travelled, or being about to travel, by the railway or not (t). Where an aggregate sum for the fare by boat and rail is charged, the ticket must distinguish the amount charged for each (Ib.). Where two railways are worked by one company the calculation of charges by distance must be reckoned as if it was one railway (sect. 18). As to agreements between railway and canal companies, see 36 & 37 Vict. c. 48, s. 16; 51 & 52 Vict. c. 25, s. 36.

Carriage of packed parcels.—A railway company has no right to make an increased charge for packed parcels, in order to prevent carriers from entering into competition with them in the conveyance of goods; and there is no difference between a packed parcel sent to an individual containing parcels belonging to a variety of people, and parcels sent to an individual all the contents being his own (u). But in certain cases an extra charge may be made for increased risk (x); and, if the company has to make separate deliveries to several persons, they are entitled to make an additional charge in respect of the increased trouble (y). When the duty of making equal charges to all persons is not imposed upon the company, they may impose a different rate of carriage for packed parcels from what they charge for ordinary packages (z).

In some cases which decided that an extra charge might be made for packed parcels, the company claimed to charge extra to carriers for packed parcels, and not to charge extra to customers who were not carriers, for what they called inclosures, which were in reality packed parcels, and the courts held that an extra charge for a packed parcel to a carrier was against the statutes, imposing upon railway companies the duty of charging equally to all persons in respect of goods of a like description (a). The company may, however, divide goods into classes by descriptions appropriate to the different classes it chooses to make, and make different charges for the different classes (b). By 31 & 32 Vict. c. 119, s. 17, it is provided

(t) See 51 & 52 Vict. c. 25, s. 28.

(u) Pickford v. Grand Junc. Ry., 10 M. & W. 399; Crouch v. G. N. Ry., 11 Exch. 742; 25 L.J. Ex. 137; Piddington v. S. E. Ry., 5 C.B. N.S. 111; 27 L.J. C.P. 295; Baxendale v. L. & S. W. Ry., supra; Garton v. Bristol & Exeter Ry., 4 H. & N. 49; 28 L.J. Ex. 169; G. W. Ry. v. Sutton, L.R. 4 H.L. 226; 38 L.J. Ex. 177.

(x) Garton v. Bristol & Exeter Ry., supra.

(y) Baxendale v. East. Co. Ry., 4 C.B. N.S. 81; 27 L.J. C.P. 137.

(z) Branley v. S. E. Ry., 12 C.B. N.S. 63; 30 L.J. C.P. 286.

(a) Parker v. G. W. Ry., 11 C.B. 545; 21 L.J. C.P. 57; Crouch v. G. N. Ry., 11 Exch. 742; 25 L.J. Exch. 137; G. W. Ry. v. Sutton, L.R. 4 H.L. 226; 38 L.J. Ex. 177.

(b) Erle, J., Branley v. S. E. Ry., 12 C.B. N.S. 63; 31 L.J. C.P. 290.

that, on application in writing to the secretary of the company, by any person who has paid for the conveyance of goods, the company shall render an account to the applicant distinguishing how much of the charge is for conveyance—including tolls for the use of the railway, the use of carriages, and for locomotive power—and how much for loading and unloading, covering collection, delivery, and other expenses, but without particularising the items of such last-mentioned charge.

Injunction to enforce compliance with Railway and Canal Traffic Act.—By 17 & 18 Vict. c. 31, s. 3, it is enacted that it shall be lawful for any company, or person complaining against any railway company or canal company of anything done, or any omission made in contravention of the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, to apply in a summary way to the Court (see note (d), infra) for a writ of injunction or interdict, restraining such company from continuing such contravention and enjoining obedience to the Act(c); and in case of disobedience of any such writ of injunction or interdict, the Court may order that a writ of attachment or other process applicable shall issue against any one or more of the directors, or against any owner, lessee, contractor, or other person failing to obey the writ of injunction or interdict, and may make an order directing the payment of a sum of money not exceeding for any one company the sum of 200*l.* per day, during such company's failure to obey the injunction or interdict, such money to be payable as the court or judge may direct, either to the party complaining, or into court to abide the ultimate decision of the Court, or to his Majesty, and to be recoverable by attachment or writ of execution; and, in any such proceeding, the Court may order and determine that all or any costs thereof shall be paid by or to the one party or the other, as the Court shall think fit (d).

It is then clear that railway companies cannot promote their own interests as carriers at the expense of the right of the public to equality of treatment (e), or give to one individual greater advantages at their stations (f), or upon their line, than they allow to another (g). Where a railway company, in order

(c) See Ransome v. East. Co. Ry., 26 L.J. C.P. 91; 1 C.B. N.S. 437. As to whether a cause of action can arise from a breach of sect. 2 of the Act, see Denaby Main Colliery Co. v. M. S. & L. Ry., 11 App.Cas. 97; 55 L.J. Q.B. 181. As to defence and counter-claim, see Lanc. & Yorkshire Ry. v. Greenwood, 21 Q.B.D. 215; 58 L.J. Q.B. 16; Rhymney Ry. v. Rhymney Iron Co., 25 Q.B.D. 146; 59 L.J. Q.B. 414.

(d) These powers are now exercised by the Railway and Canal Commission established by 51 & 52 Vict. c. 25.

(e) Baxendale v. G. W. Ry., 5 C.B. N.S. 350; 28 L.J. C.P. 69.

(f) Marriott v. L. & S. W. Ry., 1 C.B. N.S. 499; 26 L.J. C.P. 154; Beadell v. East. Co. Ry., 2 C.B. N.S. 509; 26 L.J. C.P. 250; Baxendale v. Bristol & Exeter Ry., 11 C.B. N.S. 787.

(g) Baxendale v. North Devon Ry., 3 C.B. N.S. 324; see 31 & 32 Vict. c. 119, s. 16, ante, p. 1061.

to compete with a particular carrier in the collection and delivery of parcels, makes a man who has his own waggons and horses, and therefore does not require the company to collect and deliver parcels for him, pay more than he ought to pay for the transit on the railway, it is a case of undue prejudice against the person not wanting the accommodation; the company have no right to make a charge nominally for carriage upon the railway, which is in reality for that and something else, and so impose upon a portion of the public services of which they do not desire to avail themselves (h). So if a number of tradesmen in a country town request a railway company to deliver all goods addressed to them to a local carrier for distribution by him, the company cannot, in order to compete with that carrier, under the pretence of requiring a special order as to each packet, in effect cause the delivery by such carrier to be so delayed as to become impracticable (i). Nor can a railway company exclude carriers' vans from the delivery of goods at a station after a certain hour, if they admit vans, with goods collected from their own receiving houses, after that hour (k).

Where a railway company is proved to have given an undue preference to one person or set of persons over another in respect of the conveyance of particular classes or descriptions of commodities, the Court will issue a writ of injunction ordering to desist from giving such undue preference (l). But the operation of the statute is confined to undue preferences given to one person or class of persons over another in the traffic along the same railway or canal (m), and travelling between the same places, and not to superior advantages which may be given to one town over another town on the same line of railway (n). And it has been held that the statute is not contravened by a railway company carrying at a lower rate, in consideration of a guarantee of large quantities, and full train-loads at regular periods, provided the real object of the company is to obtain thereby a greater remunerative profit, although the effect may be to exclude from the lower rate those persons who cannot give such a guarantee (o).

(h) Cockburn, C.J., Garton v. G. W. Ry., 5 C.B. N.S. 678; 28 L.J. C.P. 303; Baxendale v. G. W. Ry., 16 C.B. N.S. 137; 33 L.J. C.P. 197; see 31 & 32 Vict. c. 119, s. 17, ante, p. 1062.

(i) Parkinson v. G. W. Ry., L.R. 6 C.P. 554.

(k) Palmer v. L. B. & S. C. Ry., L.R. 6 C.P. 195.

(l) Harris v. Cockermouth Ry., 3 C.B. N.S. 693; 27 L.J. C.P. 162; Ransome v. East. Co. Ry., 8 C.B. N.S. 709; 27 L.J. C.P. 166; Cooper v. L. & S. W. Ry., 4 C.B. N.S. 738; 27 L.J. C.P. 324.

(m) Bennett v. Manch., Sheff. & Linc. Ry., 6 C.B. N.S. 707.

(n) Jones v. East. Co. Ry., 3 C.B. N.S. 718.

(o) Nicholson v. G. W. Ry., 5 C.B. N.S. 366; 28 L.J. C.P. 89; Strick v. Swansea Canal Co., 16 C.B. N.S. 245; 31 L.J. C.P. 240.

Before the Court will put the powers of the Railway and Canal Traffic Act in motion, as regards the granting of an injunction, it must in general be satisfied that some substantial injury or inconvenience is sustained by the public, and that the complaint is bonâ fide made on behalf of the public (p). It was formerly held that, the exercise of this special jurisdiction being subject to no review (q), and depending in each case upon the special facts, decisions under it were not binding on the Court in the same way that precedents in law are binding (r).

Passenger fares—Right of passenger to alight at intermediate station.—There is, apart from special contract, no right in a passenger to break a journey contracted for at any intermediate station (s). Where a railway company, under the influence of competition, charged a low rate of fare to a distant locality, and sought to prevent passengers from getting down at intermediate stations, to which a higher fare was charged, on the ground that they had not paid the fare to such intermediate station, and were answerable to a bye-law, subjecting to a penalty any person who should enter a carriage without having previously paid his fare, it was held that the bye-law was wholly inapplicable; the passenger having paid his fare the company had no right to prevent him from getting down at any intermediate station (t). Where, on the other hand, a railway company had issued a ticket on which a notice was printed that it was only to be used to the station named thereon, it was held that the passenger holding such ticket, provided the notice was brought home to him, was not entitled to travel beyond such station and merely pay the ordinary single fare for the extra journey travelled; such a ticket constituted a special contract between the railway company and the passenger (u). Where a passenger lost his ticket, and on being required to pay the fare from the station whence the train started, declined to do so, it was held that the company were not justified in removing him from the carriage in which he was travelling (x).

Season ticket—Conditions—Forfeiture of deposit.—The plaintiff purchased a season ticket, and agreed to be bound by (p) Painter, Ex parte, 2 C.B. N.S. 702; Caterham Ry., In re, 1 C.B. N.S. 410; 26 L.J. C.P. 161.

(q) But see now 51 & 52 Vict. c. 25, s. 17.

(r) Palmer v L. & S. W. Ry., L.R. 1 C.P. 588; 35 L.J. C.P. 289; diss. Willes and Keating, JJ.

(s) Ashton v. Lancs. & Yorks. Ry., (1904) 2 K.B. 313; 73 L.J. K.B. 701.

(t) Reg. v. Frere, 4 E. & B. 598; 24 L.J. M.C. 68. As to the construction of this bye-law, see Jennings v. G. N. Ry., L.R. 1 Q.B. 7; 35 L.J. Q.B. 15; Dearden v. Townsend, L.R. 1 Q.B. 10; 35 L.J. M.C. 50.

(u) G. N. Ry. v. Palmer, (1895) 1 Q.B. 862; 64 L.J. Q.B. 316; L. & N. W. Ry. v. Hinchcliffe, (1903) 2 K.B. 32; 72 L.J. K.B. 530.

(x) Butler v. Manchester, Sheffield & Lincolnshire Ry., 21 Q.B.D. 207; 57 L.J. Q.B. 564. See Addison on Torts, p. 180 (ed. 8).

certain conditions, one of which was that the ticket was to be considered the property of the company, to be delivered to them on the day after expiry; another was that the ticket and the deposit should be forfeited on breach of any of the conditions; a few days after expiry of the ticket the plaintiff delivered it to the company and claimed a return of the deposit; and it was held that he could not recover the deposit (y).

Dangerous railway bridges, viaducts, and embankments.—Every railway company in actual occupation of its line is responsible for the preservation of all bridges, viaducts, and embankments, and if injuries are sustained by persons travelling along a highway under a bridge or viaduct (z), or by passengers travelling along the line, from the insecure state of a bridge or viaduct, the railway company will be responsible, whether the injury arose from their own neglect in not providing needful reparations, or from original faulty construction of the fabric (a). If a railway embankment has been injured by some extraordinary flood, and the rails give way, and passengers are injured without any neglect or default on the part of the company, the company is not responsible for the injuries sustained (b); but it would seem that every railway company is bound to construct and maintain its embankments and earthworks in such a manner as to be capable of resisting all violence of the weather that may be expected at some time or another, though rarely, to occur, and if it fails in this duty it will be responsible in damages for negligence (c).

Duties and responsibilities of common ferrymen.—A common ferryman is a common carrier, and is bound to provide safe ferry-boats and landing-stages, and all proper means for the safe transit of persons who may have occasion to use the ferry for themselves, or for the transit of their horses and carriages, luggage, and merchandise (d). Common ferrymen and common hoymen, being common carriers, are responsible for the safe delivery of goods intrusted to them for conveyance, unless they have been prevented by storm, lightning, or inevitable accident (e).

(y) Cooper v. L. B. & S. C. Ry., 4 Ex.D. 88; 48 L.J. Ex. 434.

(z) Kearney v. L. B. & S. C. Ry., L.R. 6 Q.B. 759; 40 L.J. Q.B. 285.

(a) Grote v. Chester & Holyhead Ry., 2 Exch. 251; as to bridges for passengers at stations, see Longmore v. G. W. Ry., 35 L.J. C.P. 135.

(b) Withers v. North Kent Ry., 27 L.J. Ex. 417.

(c) Great West. Ry. Co. of Canada v. Fawcett, 1 Moore's P.C.C. N.S. 120. See also 8 & 9 Vict. c. 20, s. 46.

(d) Willoughby v. Horridge, 12 C.B. 751; 22 L.J. C.P. 90.

(e) Amies v. Stevens, 1 Str. 128; Bac. Abr. CARRIERS, B.; Oakley v. Portsmouth, &c. Steam Packet Co., 11 Exch. 622; 25 L.J. Ex. 22, ante, p. 1027. As to loss of goods by overloading ferry boat, see Mouse's case, 12 Co. 63.

Notice of action to railway companies.—When an Act of Parliament incorporating a railway company provides that no action shall be brought against the company for anything done or omitted to be done pursuant to the Act, or in execution of the powers and authorities given by the Act, unless previous notice in writing shall have been given by the party intending to prosecute such action, or unless such action shall have been brought within a limited period, the enactment does not in general extend to actions ex contractu, and does not affect the liability of the company upon contracts entered into by it in its character of a common carrier. The omission by a plaintiff, consequently, to give such notice does not preclude him from recovering damages against the company for negligence or misconduct, or for a breach of those duties and obligations which result from the employment as a common carrier (f). But, where the parties were trying, in an action ex contractu, the right of the company to make certain charges under the particular provisions of their Act of Parliament, the action was considered to be brought for something done under the Act, and notice of action was held to be necessary (g).

Parties to be made plaintiffs in actions against carriers.—The action against a carrier for the loss of goods entrusted to him for conveyance should, in the absence of an express contract of carriage, be brought by the owner of the goods; for with him, as the party damnified, is the implied contract for safe conveyance deemed to be made (h). When, in execution of a contract of sale, goods are delivered to a carrier for transmission to the purchaser, and no express contract for a pecuniary consideration has been entered into between the carrier and the consignor for their carriage, the delivery to the carrier is delivery to the purchaser and there is implied in law a promise for safe conveyance in favour of the party in whom the right of property in the goods is at the time vested. Where, therefore, the right of property and the risk of loss have passed to the consignee, the latter is the only party entitled to sue the carrier for an injury to the goods, whether such carrier be chosen by the purchaser or by the vendor (i). A consignor, acting merely (f) Palmer v. Grand Junc. Ry., 4 M. & W. 749; 8 L.J. Ex. 129; Carpue v. L. & B. Ry., 5 Q.B. 747; 13 L.J. Q.B. 133. See, however, the cases, ante, p. 1015.

(g) Kent v. G. W. Ry., 3 C.B. 714; 16 L.J. C.P. 72.

(h) Dawes v. Peck, 8 T.R. 330; Fragano v. Long, 4 B. & C. 219; 3 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 177. As to a single individual suing under a firm name in an Admiralty action in rem, see The Assunta, (1902) P. 150; 71 L.J. P. 75.

(i) Dutton v. Solomonson, 3 Bos. & P. 584; Dunlop v. Lambert, 6 Cl. & Fin. 600; Brown v. Hodgson, 2 Campb. 36; King v. Meredith, ib. 639; Coxe v. Harden, 4 East, 217; Evans v. Nichol, 4 Sc. N.R. 43; 11 L.J. C.P. 6.

as agent, has no right of action even though he may have paid the price of the carriage (k). If, however, from fraud or non-compliance with the requisites of the Statute of Frauds, no actual transfer of the right of property and the risk of loss from the consignor to the consignee has taken place, the consignor is the proper party to maintain the action (l). So, if a tradesman merely sends goods for approval to a particular customer, or on terms of "sale or return," or sends goods of the value of 10*l*. and upwards pursuant to an oral order or an oral contract of sale, to a person who has not given "earnest" or made a part payment, or accepted any part of the goods, and the contract is void by reason of the provisions of the Statute of Frauds, then, as there has been no actual transfer of the right of property and the risk of loss to the consignee, the consignor is the party to sue the carrier (m). And, when a special contract has been entered into between the carrier and the consignor, whereby the carrier, in consideration of a sum of money paid or agreed to be paid by the consignor for the carriage of the goods, agrees to convey them to the consignee, it is no answer to an action by the consignor against the carrier to say that he is not the owner of the goods, and the action may be brought either by the consignor with whom the special contract was made, or by the consignee as the owner of the goods in whose behalf it was made (n).

So also, the bailee of goods, who has a special property in them, may enforce an express contract entered into with the carrier, unless his principal interferes to prevent him. "The rule is, that either the bailor or the bailee may sue; and whichever first obtains damages, it is a full satisfaction" (o). But a settlement for loss or damage, made with one who brings goods to a carrier, but who has no property or interest in them, will not be an answer to an action by the owner (p).

Every person who has been injured by the negligent performance of the work of carrying may maintain an action for damages against the carrier, although the carriage was under a special contract to which he is no party (see ante, p. 1015).

(k) Dawes v. Peck, 8 T.R. 330; Brown v. Hodgson, 2 Campb. 36; King v. Meredith, ib., 639; Murphy v. Midland Gt. Western (Ireland) Ry., (1903) 2 I.R. 5.

(l) Coombs v. Brist. & Ex. Ry., 3 H. & N. 510; 27 L.J. Ex. 401; Duff v. Budd, 6 Moore, 469; Stephenson v. Hart, 4 Bing. 476; 6 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 97.

(m) Coats v. Chaplin, 3 Q.B. 489; 11 L.J. Q.B. 315.

(n) Davis v. James, 5 Burr. 2680; Bell v. Chaplain, Hard. 321; Moore v. Wilson, 1 T.R. 659; Dunlop v. Lambert, 6 Cl. & Fin. 600. See also G. W. Ry. v. Bagge, 15 Q.B.D. 625; 54 L.J. Q.B. 599.

(o) Nicolls v. Bastard, 2 Cr. M. & R. 660; 5 L.J. Ex. 7; Joseph v. Knox, 3 Campb. 320; Sargent v. Morris, 3 B. & Ald. 277; Freeman v. Birch, 1 N. & M. 420.

(p) Coombs v. Brist. & Ex. Ry., 3 H. & N. 1; 27 L.J. Ex. 269.

A servant, for example, may maintain an action against a railway company, or other carrier, for injuries caused by negligent management of a train by which he was a passenger, or by negligent execution of the work of carrying, although the contract for his conveyance was made, and the hire or fare paid, by his master, the duty of carrying carefully being one independent of the contract (q). So, where a railway company were bound by statute to carry the mails and the officers of the post-office accompanying them, it was held that the company must exercise a reasonable care in performing the duty to carry safely cast upon them by the statute; so that if any officer of the post-office was injured by the negligent management of their trains, he was entitled to maintain an action for damages, although the contract for his conveyance was between the company and the Postmaster-General (r).

Joint bailment to common carrier.—Where a box delivered to a carrier to be carried contained things belonging to the plaintiffs separately, and none in which they had a joint ownership, it was held that there was a joint bailment in respect of which they might sue jointly (s).

Parties to be made defendants.—When goods have been delivered to be carried, and have been lost by the way, an action ex contractu for negligence should be brought against the carrier, and not his mere servant or agent (t). But as all who participate in a wrongful act are responsible ex delicto for the injurious consequences of it, the servant may be sued for the breach of duty as well as the master or the employer. Section 8 of the Carriers Act (ante, p. 1041) provides that the Act shall not protect the coachman, guard, book-keeper, or other servants of the common carrier from liability for losses or injuries occasioned by their own personal neglect or misconduct.

Every railway company is responsible for the detention or conversion by its servants of the property which has come into the hands of such servants in the course of their employment. There must be some one authorized on the part of the company at every station to receive and deliver out goods, and to do things promptly that require immediate attention, and whoever is permitted by the company to have dominion over their stations, and to exercise authority over their property, and over their

(q) Marshall v. York, Newcastle & Berwick Ry., 11 C.B. 655; 21 L.J. C.P. 34; and see the cases, ante, p. 1018.

(r) Collett v. L. & N. W. Ry., 16 Q.B. 989; 20 L.J. Q.B. 411. Explained in East India Ry. v. Kalidas Mukerjee, (1901) A.C. 396; 70 L.J. P.C. 63.

(s) Metcalfe v. L. & B. Ry., 4 C.B. N.S. 318; 27 L.J. C.P. 335.

(t) Williams v. Cranston, 2 Stark. 82.

porters and servants, will be presumed to be clothed with the necessary authority, and his acts, done within the scope of his ordinary employment, will be binding on the company. Thus, where the general superintendent of a railway company refused to deliver up to the plaintiff goods forwarded to him, it was held that the company was responsible for the unlawful detention by their servant (u).

The common carrier cannot limit his liability in respect of the negligence of his servants by any private arrangement as to remuneration out of the profits of the business or otherwise, between himself and such servants. "If a common carrier should allow his driver of the carriages some small things as perquisites, the master would, without all doubt, be still liable; and that is only a private agreement between master and servant, and only a different way of paying his servant's wages" (x).

Carriage of goods and passengers over distinct lines of railway.—We have already seen (ante, p. 1053), that, where goods are received by a railway company to be carried to a particular destination, the company receiving the goods and to whom the hire is paid is the party to be sued for loss or damage, although such loss or damage has been sustained on the line of a second or third railway company, to whom they have been delivered by the first railway company to be carried to their place of destination (y). But, under circumstances, both companies may become joint contractors for the conveyance of the goods (z). So with regard to a passenger and his luggage, if one fare is paid and one ticket given for the entire journey, the contract is with the company issuing the ticket and receiving the money, and not with a second or third railway company over whose line the passenger is travelling in order to reach his destination (a); and the company with which the contract is made will be liable for the negligence of such other railway company, the contract being that due care shall be used in carrying the passenger from one end of the journey to the other, so far as is within the compass of railway management (b).

(u) Taff Vale Ry. v. Giles, 2 E. & B. 822; 23 L.J. Q.B. 43.

(x) Page, J., Cas. temp. Hard. 90; and see Hyde v. Trent & Mersey Nav. Co., 5 T.R. 397.

(y) Brist. & Exeter Ry. v. Collins, 7 H.L.C. 231; 29 L.J. Ex. 41; Coxon v. G. W. Ry., 5 H. & N. 274; 29 L.J. Ex. 165; Logan v. Highland Ry., (1900) 2 F. 292.

(z) Hayes v. South Wales Ry., 9 Ir. C.L.R. 474.

(a) Mytton v. Mid. Ry., 4 H. & N. 621; 28 L.J. Ex. 385; G. W. Ry. v. Blake, 7 H. & N. 687; 31 L.J. Ex. 346; Buxton v. N. E. Ry., L.R. 3 Q.B. 549; 37 L.J. Q.B. 258.

(b) Thomas v. Rhymney Ry., L.R. 6 Q.B. 266; 40 L.J. Q.B. 89. See, however, Taylor v. G. N. Ry., L.R. 1 C.P.

But, in the case of a through booking, the contracting company may limit its liability for misconduct of servants to its own line (c). Every railway company which allows its line to remain open for public traffic is responsible to passengers who sustain injury from the line being unsafe, although such persons are conveyed along it in the carriages of some other company (d).

Measure of damages.—In all actions against common carriers for unlawfully refusing to carry a passenger or goods, substantial damages are recoverable, as there is an injury to a right; and if the plaintiff, in consequence of the wrongful refusal (e) of such carrier to carry him, has been obliged to take a special conveyance, and incur extraordinary expenses to reach the place to which he ought to have been carried, all such expenses (if reasonable) are recoverable, if claimed by the plaintiff, and specified in his claim as part of the damage he has sustained. In the same way, if an innkeeper unlawfully refuses to receive and provide accommodation for a traveller, substantial damages are recoverable for the injury done to the plaintiff's right as a traveller to have shelter and accommodation; and if the traveller has been put to expense in seeking accommodation elsewhere, he is entitled to recover as special damage the expenses incurred if such as he would probably have incurred on his own account (f). So, also, if a shipowner fails to fulfil his contract to carry goods, he will be liable in damages for the cost of replacing the goods at their place of destination at the time when they ought to have arrived, less the value of the goods at the place of dispatch and the amount of the freight and insurance (g).

All persons are responsible for the natural consequences resulting from acts done by them in violation of the rights of others. The jury are entitled to look at all the surrounding circumstances, and at the conduct of the parties, to see where the blame is, and to assess the damages according to the way in which the parties have conducted themselves (h).

The amount of damages recoverable from common carriers for loss of, or injury to, goods, is regulated by the several Acts of Parliament, requiring consignors in certain cases to declare

385; 35 L.J. C.P. 210; ante, p. 1025; Wright v. Midland Ry., L.R. 8 Ex. 137; 41 L.J. Ex. 89, ante, p. 1016.

(c) Mahony v. Waterford, Limerick and Western Ry., (1900) 2 Ir.R. 273.

(d) Birkett v. Whitehaven, &c. Ry., 4 H. & N. 738; 28 L.J. Ex. 348.

(e) Le Blanche v. L. & N. W. Ry., 1 C.P.D. 286; 45 L.J. C.P. 521.

(f) Le Blanche v. L. & N. W. Ry., supra.

(g) Ströms Bruks Aktie Bolag v. J. & P. Hutchison, (1905) A.C. 515; 74 L.J. P.C. 130.

(h) Davis v. N. W. Ry., 4 Jur. N.S. 1305.

the value of the article at the time it is delivered to be carried (ante, p. 1043). No greater damages than 50*l*. are to be recovered for loss of, or injury to, a horse through the neglect or default of a railway company or its officers; 15*l*. per head for neat cattle: and 2*l*. per head for sheep and pigs; unless the person sending or delivering the animals to the company shall, at the time of delivery, have declared them to be of higher value (i). Proof of the value and of the amount of injury lies in all cases upon the person claiming compensation. If the value of horses has been declared at the time of the delivery of the animals to a railway company to be carried, and the contract between the parties has been made upon that basis, the plaintiff is bound by his declaration of value, and cannot recover beyond the declared value (k).

Generally speaking, when a carrier fails to deliver articles of merchandise in the ordinary course, and the goods come to a fallen market, the difference between the marketable value of the goods at the time they would have been sold if they had been carried according to contract, and their marketable value at the earliest period at which they could have been brought to market after their delivery to the consignee, will be the measure of damages recoverable (l). If the goods have been lost altogether, the consignee is not restricted to the value of the goods at the place where they were delivered to the carrier to be carried; but, if their marketable value was greater at the place of destination than at the place of consignment, the consignee is entitled to recover that difference, as being a loss likely to arise in the ordinary course of trade (m). If there is no market at the place of delivery, the damages must be ascertained by taking into consideration, in addition to the cost price and expense of transit, the reasonable profit of the importer. Where goods were delivered to a carrier by sea to be carried from Glasgow to Vancouver's Island, and on the arrival of the ship at the latter place they could not be found, it was held that the true measure of damages was the cost of re-placing the lost articles in Vancouver's Island, with interest at 5 per cent. on the amount until judgment by way of compensation for the delay (n).

In assessing the damages the accruing freight must be

(i) 17 & 18 Vict. c. 31, s. 7.

(k) M'Cance v. L. & N. W. Ry., 7 H. & N. 477; 34 L.J. Ex. 39; 3 H. & C. 343.

(l) Rice v. Baxendale, 7 H. & N. 96; 30 L.J. Ex. 371; O'Hanlan v. G. W. Ry., 6 B. & S. 484; 34 L.J. Q.B. 154.

(m) O'Hanlan v. G. W. Ry., supra, Ströms Bruks Aktie Bolag v. J. & P. Hutchison, (1905) A.C. 515; 74 L.J. P.C. 130.

(n) Collard v. S. E. Ry., 7 H. & N. 79; 30 L.J. Ex. 393; British Columbia Saw Mill Co. v. Nettleship, L.R. 3 C.P. 499; 37 L.J. C.P. 235.

deducted (o). Where the charter-party provides for advanced freight, in estimating the damages for non-delivery only, the unpaid freight must be deducted from the value of the goods, not the advanced freight as well (o). And where goods were shipped under a charter-party which provided that the whole freight should be advanced, and it was advanced, and the amount thereof insured, and the plaintiff bought the goods at a price covering the freight and insurance, it was held that they were entitled to recover the advanced freight and the insurance for the benefit of the underwriters and insurers (p).

In an action against a common carrier for loss sustained by long delay in the delivery of articles of merchandise intrusted to him to be carried, whereby the consignee had lost the season for selling them to advantage, and the marketable value of the articles was seriously diminished, it was held that the carrier was answerable for this loss, it being such as might naturally be expected to result from great delay in delivering articles of merchandise (q). So, where a railway company contracted with the plaintiff, who showed goods at agricultural shows, to carry the goods to another show-ground on a particular day, although nothing was said by the parties as to the purpose for which the goods were to be carried, the Court inferred that the defendants must have known it, and that the plaintiff was entitled to damages for loss of profit which was a natural result, and that no evidence was necessary to show that he had a prospect of making profit at the particular show (r). But where shoe manufacturers agreed to supply a London firm with shoes for the French army, to be delivered on the 3rd of February, and gave notice that they were under contract to deliver on the 3rd, and that, if not, the shoes would be thrown on their hands, but not that there was anything exceptional otherwise in the contract, it was held that the carriers were not liable for the difference between the price the consignors had to sell the shoes at, and the agreed price, as the difference was extraordinary, and it was not such a loss as naturally arose or could be reasonably contemplated (s).

When the consignor has been guilty of no intentional deception as to the risk, and his own conduct or omission to declare the nature and value of the article has not in any way conduced to the loss, which has been caused solely by the negligence of the (o) Rodocanachi v. Milburn, 18 Q.B.D. 67 ; 56 L.J. Q.B. 202.

(p) Dufourcet v. Bishop, 18 Q.B.D. 373 ; 56 L.J. Q.B. 497.

(q) Wilson v. Lanc. & York. Ry., 9 C.B. N.S. 632 ; 30 L.J. C.P. 232 ; Schulze v. G. E. Ry., 19 Q.B.D. 30 ; 56 L.J. Q.B. 442 ; Dunn v. Bucknall Bros., (1902) 2 K.B. 614 ; 71 L.J. K.B. 963.

(r) Simpson v. L. & N. W. Ry., 1 Q.B.D. 274 ; 45 L.J. Q.B. 182.

(s) Horne v. Midland Ry., L.R. 8 C.P. 131 ; 42 L.J. C.P. 59 ; The Parana, L.R. 2 P.D. 118 ; 45 L.J. P. 108.

common carrier, the latter is bound by the common law to make compensation for the loss occasioned, to the extent, at all events, of the apparent or presumable value of the article at the time it was bailed to him to be carried. But he is not, it seems, responsible for any extraordinary value which may have been accidentally imparted to it, and which could not, from the nature and appearance of the thing, be fairly presumed to exist. Thus, where the plaintiff had put a 50*l.* bank-note into his carpet-bag amongst his wearing apparel, and got on a coach and delivered the carpet-bag to the coachman, and on arrival of the coach at its place of destination the bag was lost, the jury gave a verdict for the value of the wearing apparel, but not for the value of the note, and the Court afterwards refused to increase the verdict by the amount of the note (t). In other cases, however, the plaintiff has recovered the full value of the article lost (u).

But the plaintiff is not entitled to recover damages for loss of wages of workmen kept unemployed by reason of the non-arrival of the goods, or for loss of profit which might have been made if the goods had been delivered in due course, if the carrier had no notice of the purpose for which the goods were wanted (x); and, if the carrier held the goods at the time of the loss in the character of a warehouseman, he cannot, in general, be made responsible for more than the actual value of the goods (y).

Where a warehouseman warehoused part of the goods at a place other than that agreed upon, and they were destroyed without negligence, it was held that the damages were not too remote (z). And so where an innkeeper contracted to stable horses, and then let the stables to another who turned out the plaintiff's horses which caught cold and were damaged, such damage was held not too remote (a). But where the proximate cause of injury was the plaintiff's own neglect, even though the defendant had also done a wrongful act, the defendant was relieved from responsibility for the loss (b).

Damages in respect of delay in delivery.—If by reason of goods not having been delivered in due time, the season for (t) Miles v. Cattle, 6 Bing. 743; 8 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 271.

(u) Sleat v. Fagg, 5 B. & Ald. 342; Walker v. Jackson, 10 M. & W. 161; 12 L.J. Ex. 165; see Angell on Carriers, s. 262.

(x) Le Peintur v. S. E. Ry., 2 L.T. 170; Hadley v. Baxendale, 9 Exch. 341; 23 L.J. Ex. 179; Watson v. Ambergate, &c. Ry., 15 Jur. 448; and see Horne v. Midland Ry., L.R. 8 C.P. 131; 42 L.J. C.P. 59.

(y) Henderson v. N. E. Ry., 9 W. R. 519.

(z) Lilley v. Doubleday, 7 Q.B.D. 510; 51 L.J. Q.B. 310.

(a) McMahon v. Field, 7 Q.B.D. 591; 50 L.J. Q.B. 552; disapproving Hobbs v. L. & S. W. Ry., L.R. 10 Q.B. 111; 44 L.J. Q.B. 49; where plaintiff's wife catching cold was held too remote.

(b) Virtue v. Bird, 2 Lev. 196.

finding customers for them has passed away, and they are consequently of less value to the plaintiff, the deterioration in value may be considered in estimating the amount of damage, but not the profit which would have been made upon the sale of them if they had been delivered at the proper time (c); or, where the goods consist of machinery, the presumed profit which would have been made by the use of them, during the time it took to replace them (d). The right measure is the market value of the goods at the place and time at which they ought to have been delivered, or, if there is no market, then the price at the place of manufacture, with the cost of carriage, and a reasonable sum for importer's profit (e). Hotel expenses incurred by the consignee while waiting for the delivery of the goods by the carrier are not recoverable (f).

Damages in case of personal injuries.—The measure of damages is the loss of time, expense incurred, pain and suffering, and permanent injury causing pecuniary loss (g). A new trial will be granted in an action for personal injuries arising from a railway accident, where the damages found by the jury are so small as to show that they omitted to take into consideration some of the elements of damage (h), as well as where they are unreasonably large. The jury are to consider "what the plaintiff's income would probably have been, how long that income would probably have lasted, and all other contingencies to which a practice is liable" (i).

Claims against a common carrier for refusing to carry should show that the defendant is a common carrier of goods plying for hire between the place where the goods were tendered to him for conveyance and the place to which they were addressed; that the plaintiffs tendered to the defendant certain goods to be carried from one place to the other; that the defendant had room and the means of receiving and carrying them, and the plaintiffs were ready and willing to pay him his customary hire, yet the defendant would not receive and carry the goods, whereby the plaintiffs were put to great loss and inconvenience,

(c) Wilson v. Lanc. & York. Ry., 9 C.B. N.S. 632; 30 L.J. C.P. 232; Simmons v. S. E. Ry., 7 Jur. N.S. 849; G. W. Ry. v. Redmayne, L.R. 1 C.P. 329; Schulze v. G. E. Ry., 19 Q.B.D. 30; 56 L.J. Q.B. 442.

(d) British Columbia Saw Mill Co. v. Nettleship, L.R. 3 C.P. 499; 37 L.J. C.P. 235.

(e) O'Hanlan v. G. W. Ry., 6 B. & S. 484; 34 L.J. Q.B. 154.

(f) Woodger v. G. W. Ry., L.R. 2 C.P. 318; 36 L.J. C.P. 177.

(g) Blake v. Mid. Ry., 18 Q.B. 93; 21 L.J. Q.B. 233; Armsworth v. S. E. Ry., 11 Jur. 758. As to damages under the Fatal Accidents Act, 9 & 10 Vict. c. 93, see Addison on Torts, p. 879 et seq. (ed. 8).

(h) Phillips v. L. & S. W. Ry., 5 Q.B.D. 78, 280; 49 L.J. Q.B. 233.

(i) Per Jessel, M.R., ib.

setting forth any special damage that may have been sustained, and concluding with a claim for damages (k).

Defences to actions.—Where the defendant denies the receipt of the goods to be conveyed by him as a common carrier, or denies his receipt of them altogether, he must, by special defence, state that he did not receive the goods to be carried as alleged in the claim; if the plaintiff has claimed against him upon his liability as a common carrier, insuring the safe conveyance of the things he carries, and it appears that the things were delivered to him under a special contract, the cause of action will be disproved under this defence (l). If he denies the plaintiff's title or right to the possession of the property, he must allege that the property was not, at the time he received it to be carried, the property of the plaintiff (m); or, admitting that the plaintiff was the owner of the property at the time it was delivered to him, he may show that the plaintiff's right to the possession of it ceased, or had been determined, and that some third party had, since the bailment, become entitled to the property, and had demanded it of the defendant (n).

If the defendant relies upon the Carriers Act, he must by his defence show that the articles delivered to him for conveyance were of the description mentioned in the statute, and that at the time of the delivery of them to him to be carried, the value and nature of the goods were not declared by the plaintiff (o).

Evidence at trial—Proof of bailment.—To charge the common carrier for the loss of goods, however occasioned, it must of course be shown that the goods were either actually or constructively bailed to him or his servants to be carried. They must either have been delivered into his hands or into the hands of his servant or agent, or some person authorized by him to receive them. If they were merely deposited in the yard of an inn, or upon a wharf to which the carrier resorts, or were placed in his cart, vessel, or carriage, without his knowledge and acceptance, or that of his servants or agents, there has of course been no bailment of the goods to him (p), and he cannot consequently be made responsible for the loss of them. If the common carrier's servant has been induced by the consignor to depart from the usual course of dealing, and to receive goods which (k) Pickford v. Grand Junction Ry., 8 M. & W. 372; 10 L.J. Ex. 382.

(l) White v. G. W. Ry., 2 C.B. N.S. 7; 26 L.J. C.P. 158.

(m) Cheesman v. Exall, 6 Exch. 341; 20 L.J. Ex. 209.

(n) Sheridan v. New Quay Co., 4 C.B. N.S. 618; 28 L.J. C.P. 58; Europ. & Austral. R. M. Co. v. R. M. St. P. Co. 30 L.J. C.P. 246.

(o) Pianciani v. L. & S. W. Ry., 18 C.B. 226; Hart v. Baxendale, 6 Exch. 789; 21 L.J. Ex. 123.

(p) Selway v. Holloway, 1 Ld. Raym. 46; Buckman v. Levi, 3 Campb. 414; Lovett v. Hobbs, 2 Show. 128.

he was not bound to receive and carry, under circumstances of hazard known to the consignor, but not disclosed to the carrier's servant, or on terms different from those on which alone he was authorized to receive them, the carrier will either not be responsible for the loss of the goods, as never having been delivered to him, or, at all events, not on his common-law liability of an insurer (q). If the consignor has made a private bargain with the driver of the cart of the common carrier for the conveyance of a parcel for a gratuity which was not intended by the parties to find its way into the pocket of the carrier, there has been then no bailment to the latter, and he is not consequently liable in case the parcel is lost; the bailment in such a case is a bailment to the driver alone, who alone is responsible for the loss (r). If the plaintiff has merely hired the cart of the common carrier, and has sent his own servants with the goods to take charge of them, and there has been no actual bailment of the goods to the carrier, the latter is not responsible for their safety (s). If a passenger travelling on the outside of a stage-coach has kept a parcel under his own care, or taken it with him into the interior of the vehicle, without the knowledge of the carrier or his servants, and the thing is lost, the carrier is not responsible for the loss, as the article was never in any way intrusted to his keeping. But if the thing has been tendered to the carrier for conveyance, and the latter has directed the passenger to place it in any portion of the vehicle, e.g., if luggage is placed with the knowledge of the carrier or his servants under the seat on which the passenger sits, there has been a constructive bailment of the goods, so as to charge the carrier for the loss of them (t). A delivery of goods to a person sent or appointed by the carrier to receive them is, of course, a delivery to the carrier himself (u).

Proof of special contract.—We have seen that every special contract, notice, or condition, respecting the acceptance and carriage of goods by railway and canal companies, must be signed by the party sought to be affected thereby (ante, p. 1045); and the signature must be fairly obtained, for where a person who was unable to read was told by a clerk of the company that the paper was a mere matter of form and of no consequence, (q) Edwards v. Sherratt, 1 East, 604; Slim v. G. N. Ry., 14 C.B. 647; 23 L.J. C.P. 166.

(r) Butler v. Basing, 2 C. & P. 613; Bignold v. Waterhouse, 1 M. & S. 259; Middleton v. Fowler, 1 Salk. 282.

(s) East India Co. v. Pullen, 2 Str. 690.

(t) Richards v. L. B. & S. C. Ry., 7 C.B. 848; 18 L.J. C.P. 251; and other cases, ante, pp. 1036 et seq.

(u) Syms v. Chaplin, 5 Ad. & E. 634; 6 L.J. K.B. 25.

and he signed the paper relying upon this assurance, it was held that the paper so foisted upon him was not binding (x).

Proof of jus tertii by common carrier.—A carrier who has received goods from a consignor is not estopped from denying the title of the latter to the goods. A common carrier is bound to receive goods properly tendered to him, and can make no inquiries into their ownership. The law protects him against the real owner if he has delivered the goods in pursuance of his employment without notice of any claim. The compulsory character of his employment ought equally to protect him against the pseudo-owner, from whom he could not refuse to receive goods in the event of the real owner claiming the goods, and their being given up to him (y).

(x) Simons v. G. W. Ry., 2 C.B. N.S. 620.

(y) Sheridan v. New Quay Co., 4 C.B. N.S. 618, 630; 28 L.J. C.P. 58; Cheesman v. Exall, 6 Exch. 341; 20 L.J. Ex. 209, overruling Laclouch v. Towle, 3 Esp. 114.

CHAPTER V.

OF CONTRACTS OF INDEMNITY.

SECTION I.

PRINCIPAL AND SURETY.

Contract of suretyship.—A surety undertakes or contracts to be answerable for the payment of a debt, or the performance of an act, in the event of the failure of some other person, who is primarily responsible for the payment of such debt, or the performance of the act. It is essential to the contract of suretyship that there be a principal or third party primarily liable. If, therefore, no contract has been entered into with the third party on whose account the covenantor professes to act as surety, no liability attaches to the latter, as he cannot be made primarily liable upon a contract by which he has expressly imposed upon himself only a secondary liability as surety. By the terms of some contracts, it is frequently left in doubt whether the contract is the contract of a surety coming in aid only of a principal debtor, and undertaking a secondary liability upon the default of the principal, or whether it is the contract of a principal contracting party stipulating for some benefit for a third party, who is not bound by the contract, and to whom no liability whatever attaches (a). When a man wishing to procure credit for a friend writes a letter to a shopkeeper, requesting him to supply his friend with goods, saying, "If he does not pay you, I will," the undertaking is the undertaking of a surety. If he says, "I will be answerable," or, "I will see you paid," the expressions are equivocal; and then we ought to look at the surrounding circumstances to see what the contract really is (b). If, upon examination of those circumstances, it appears that the party to whom the goods have been furnished has been treated as the principal contracting party: as, for example, if the credit has been given to him in the tradesman's books, and he has been applied to for payment: then the promisor can only be liable as a surety after default on the part of such principal contracting party. If the promisor is himself interested in the subject-matter of the promise or the transaction to which it relates, he will stand in the position of a principal contracting party (c). But, where B. verbally promised that, if M. would supply C. with iron, and take C.'s acceptances, he would discount such acceptances, this was held to be a promise to answer for the default of another, and M. was not allowed to recover against B. on B.'s refusal to discount the acceptances (d). So, whether a contract is one of suretyship or some other form of contract, as, e.g., a contract of insurance, will similarly be a question of fact to be settled by a consideration of all the circumstances, and for this purpose not only the words of the contract will be considered but also extrinsic evidence (e). A contract of suretyship by one of two joint tortfeasors in favour of the other will not support an action (f).

(a) Ante, p. 29; Spark v. Heslop, 28 L.J. Q.B. 197; 1 E. & E. 563; Nicholas v. Ridley, (1904) 1 Ch. 192; 73 L.J. Ch. 145.

(b) Bayley, B., Simpson v. Penton, 2 Cr. & M. 433; 3 L.J. Ex. 126.

Authentication of guarantees.—The guarantee or undertaking of a surety must be authenticated by writing; for, by sect. 4 of the Statute of Frauds, no action shall be brought whereby to charge the defendant upon any special promise to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriage of another person, unless the AGREEMENT upon which such action shall be brought, or some memorandum or note thereof, shall be in writing, and signed by the party to be charged therewith, or some other person by him lawfully authorised (g). The statute, however, applies only to promises made to the person to whom another is already or is to become answerable, and not to an original contract to keep a person who has entered, or is about to enter, into a contract of liability indemnified against that liability, independently of the question whether a third person makes default or not (h). Where only three have signed what was intended to be a joint and several guarantee by four and the fourth has, though willing to sign, died without signing, then the three who have signed will not be liable (i). At one time, if the guarantee or undertaking was made by simple contract or by writing not under seal, the consideration for the promise, as well as the promise

(c) Fitzgerald v. Dressler, 7 C.B. N.S. 374; 29 L.J. C.P. 113.

(d) Mallet v. Bateman, L.R. 1 C.P. 163; 35 L.J. C.P. 40.

(e) Craythorne v. Swinburne, 14 Ves. 160, 166; Dane v. Mortgage Insurance Corporation, (1894) 1 Q.B. 54; 63 L.J. Q.B. 144; Denton's Estate, In re, (1904) 2 Ch. 178; 73 L.J. Ch. 465.

(f) Smith (W. H.) & Son v. Clinton, 25 T.L.R. 34.

(g) See ante, pp. 28—33.

(h) Forth v. Stanton, 1 Saund. 211, 234; Thomas v. Cook, 8 B. & C. 728; Guild & Co. v. Conrad, (1894) 2 Q.B. 885; 63 L.J. Q.B. 721; Harburg India Rubber Comb Co. v. Martin, (1902) 1 K.B. 778; 71 L.J. K.B. 529.

(i) National Provincial Bank of England v. Brackenbury, 22 T.L.R. 797. And see p. 1091, post.

itself, had to be disclosed upon the face of the writing; but, by 19 & 20 Vict. c. 97, s. 3, no special promise made by any person to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriage of another person, being in writing, and signed by the person to be charged therewith, or some other person by him thereunto lawfully authorised, shall be deemed invalid to support an action, suit, or other proceeding to charge the person by whom such promise shall have been made, by reason only that the consideration for such promise does not appear in writing, or by necessary inference from a written document. But parol evidence is not admissible to explain the promise; wherefore, the whole promise must be in writing, or the memorandum will be insufficient(k). So if the writing is so vague that the nature of the undertaking cannot be made out from the terms of the instrument, it will not constitute a sufficient memorandum of the promise (l). And if the name of the principal intended to be guaranteed is omitted or left in blank, there is no sufficient memorandum of the contract (m). Parol evidence is, however, admissible to show whether the surety signed the guarantee, and in what capacity he signed it, if such evidence does not contradict the document itself (n). A statement in a will that the testator had guaranteed and confirmed the guarantee was held to be a sufficient memorandum to satisfy the statute (o). The Statute of Frauds does not apply where the party giving the guarantee is himself liable to the demand which he is purporting to guarantee; to bring it within the statute the debt must be exclusively the debt, default, or miscarriage of another (p).

Primary and secondary liabilities.—When money is advanced, or goods are supplied, to a principal debtor, on the security of a joint and several covenant, or a joint and several promissory note, executed by the principal debtor and his sureties for the repayment of the money or of the price, all the co-covenantors are primarily liable on the instrument, and are bound to see that the money is paid on the day appointed for payment, and therefore, if default is made, they may be at once sued upon the instrument. Formerly, when two or more persons signed a joint and several promissory note as principals, it was not allowed, at common law, to modify the effect of the contract by showing that one of them signed only as surety for the other; but now that fact may be pleaded and given in evidence for the (k) Holmes v. Mitchell, 7 C.B. N.S. 361; 28 L.J. C.P. 301.

(l) Ib.
(m) Williams v. Lake, 2 E. & E. 349; 29 L.J. Q.B. 1.
(n) Young v. Schuler, 11 Q.B.D. 651.
(o) Hoyle, In re, (1893) 1 Ch. 85; 62 L.J. Ch. 182.
(p) Orrell v. Coppock, 26 L.J. Ch. 269, ante, pp. 29—33.

purpose of giving the party so signing the equitable rights of a surety, though not for the purpose of establishing a different contract from that evidenced by the writing, for example, that a party who has on the face of the contract entered into a primary obligation was not intended to be primarily liable, but had agreed only to be secondarily liable on the default of a joint contractor (q). Two persons may nevertheless appear to the creditor, at the time a contract is entered into, to be both principal debtors, yet if the creditor is afterwards notified that as between such persons one has become surety for the other, then the consequences usually incident to a contract of suretyship will attach (r).

Consideration stated on the face of a guarantee.—It has been already seen that a bygone transaction cannot be a good consideration for a promise (ante, p. 7); but, when there is a valid consideration in point of fact, the mere statement of it in the past tense on the face of a guarantee will not invalidate the contract. The contract must be interpreted with reference to the circumstances, to ascertain whether it was intended to apply to past or to future transactions; and, in case of doubt and ambiguity, it would seem that parol evidence is admissible for that purpose (s). The Courts will lean in favour of such a construction as will uphold the contract (t). If the consideration was a future valid consideration, and not a past transaction, the guarantee will be upheld as valid (u). But, if there are no future advances, and the instrument, construed with reference to the circumstances, does not show a future consideration, but refers altogether to a past transaction, it is invalid (x). The consideration disclosed need not be expressed in words of form, or with technical accuracy (y). Where the defendant, for the purpose of inducing the plaintiff to give his father time for the payment of a debt, signed a promissory note making himself

(q) Pooley v. Harradine, 7 E. & B. 431; 26 L.J. Q.B. 156; Greenough v. McClelland, 2 E. & E. 424; 30 L.J. Q.B. 15; Manley v. Boycot, 2 E. & B. 46; 22 L.J. Q.B. 265; Mut. Loan Fund, &c. v. Sudlow, 5 C.B. N.S. 453; 28 L.J. C.P. 108; Lawrence v. Walmsley, 12 C.B. N.S. 809; 31 L.J. C.P. 143.

(r) Oakeley v. Pasheller, 4 Cl. & F. 207; Overend, Gurney & Co. v. Oriental Financial Corporation, L.R. 7 Ch. 142; 41 L.J. Ch. 332, 336; Rouse v. Bradford Bank. Co., (1894) A.C. 586; 63 L.J. Ch. 890.

(s) Hoad v. Grace, 7 H. & N. 494; 31 L.J. Ex. 98.

(t) Broom v. Batchelor, 1 H. & N. 255, 263; 25 L.J. Ex. 299.

(u) Hoad v. Grace, supra; Bainbridge v. Wade, 16 Q.B. 89; 20 L.J. Q.B. 7; Steele v. Hoe, 19 L.J. Q.B. 89; Edwards v. Jevons, 19 L.J. C.P. 50; 8 C.B. 436; Colbourn v. Dawson, 20 L.J. C.P. 154; 10 C.B. 773; Brooks v. Haigh, 10 Ad. & E. 309, 334.

(x) Bell v. Welch, 9 C.B. 154, 168; 19 L.J. C.P. 184; Allnutt v. Ashenden, 5 M. & Gr. 392; 12 L.J. C.P. 124; Westhead v. Sproson, 30 L.J. Ex. 265; 6 H. & N. 728.

(y) Pace v. Marsh, 8 Moore, 59; 1 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 69; Boehm v. Campbell, 3 Moore, 15; Oldershaw v. King, 2 H. & N. 399, 519; 27 L.J. Ex. 120.

and his father jointly liable to the plaintiff for the amount, and the plaintiff forbore to sue the father for several years, it was held that there was good consideration for the defendant's liability on the note, although there was no contract by the plaintiff to forbear from suing (z). So long as there is consideration for a guarantee, the Court will not take notice of its inadequacy (a). An indorsement on a contract of a guarantee for the faithful performance of the contract by one of the contracting parties may be read in connection with the contract, in order to establish the consideration (b).

Incomplete contract of guarantee.—Care must be taken in all cases to mark the distinction between a concluded contract of guarantee, and a mere proposal, or offer, or tender of a guarantee, it being necessary ere the latter can become a perfect contract that it be accepted and that the acceptance be notified to the maker, and that the maker's final assent to the engagement be obtained. Where the defendant wrote a letter to the plaintiffs to the following effect:—"Gentlemen,—As I understand Messrs. Anderson and Co. have given you an order for rigging, &c., which will amount to about 4,000*l.*, I can assure you, that from what I know of their honour and probity, you will be perfectly safe in crediting them to that amount; indeed, I have no objection to guarantee you against any loss from giving them this credit;" which letter was given by the defendant to Anderson and Co., and by them handed to the plaintiffs, who thereupon furnished the articles, and, being unable to procure payment from Anderson and Co., brought an action against the defendant, it was held that the letter was a mere overture or offer, and did not import a perfect guarantee, and that, if the plaintiffs had intended to treat it as a guarantee, they ought to have given notice to the defendant (c).

If references are required from, and given by, an intended surety, and the creditor means to dispense with the references, and act upon the guarantee without them, he is bound to give notice to the surety of the intended renunciation before he acts upon the guarantee (d).

Conditions precedent.—When the liability of the surety is to attach only on the happening of some precedent act or event, it must be fully established that the event has happened (e).

(z) Crears v. Hunter, 19 Q.B.D. 341; 56 L.J. Q.B. 518.

(a) Dutchman v. Tooth, 7 Sc. 710.

(b) Coldham v. Showler, 3 C.B. 312; 15 L.J. C.P. 261.

(c) M'Iver v. Richardson, 1 M. & S. 557; Mozley v. Tinkler, 1 Cr. M. & R. 692; 4 L.J. Ex. 84.

(d) Morten v. Marshall, 2 H. & C. 305; 33 L.J. Ex. 54.

(e) Moor v. Roberts, 3 C.B. N.S. 830; 27 L.J. C.P. 161.

Fidelity bonds.—If a surety has by a penal obligation under seal guaranteed the performance of some contract or duty by his principal, and the period for which he is to be bound is defined in the recitals or condition, it cannot afterwards be extended by any general words. If the recital sets forth the appointment of the principal to some office or employment, and the condition of the bond is for the good conduct and faithful service of such principal, the liability of the surety will be co-extensive with the duration of the office; if the office is an annual office, the liability will not extend beyond the current year of office (f); if it is a fixed and permanent employment for the life of the party, the liability of the surety will continue during the whole of the latter's life; if the duration is uncertain, as, for instance, where it is dependent on the will of the employer, the liability will be as uncertain as the time of the employment (g). So, if a bond is given to secure the faithful services of the principal in one office at a specified salary, it will not extend to a different office at the same salary, or to the same office at a different and reduced salary (h); and a surety who becomes responsible for the good conduct of his principal as a storekeeper, will not be bound for him if he is afterwards employed as a clerk (i). But there must be a substantial change in the appointed duties, or the surety will not get rid of his liability (k). The surety should, on an important change in the employment being made, be given the opportunity of considering whether he will adhere to his guarantee in its altered form (l). Where by the recitals of a bond to secure the faithful service of a deputy-postmaster it appeared that the Postmaster-General had deputed J. "for the term of six months following," and the condition was, that J. should, during all the time he continued deputy-postmaster, faithfully and diligently perform and execute the duties of the office, it was held that the liability of the surety was restricted to the six months specified in the recitals (m). And, although the recital of the bond does (f) Cambridge (Mayor) v. Dennis, 27 L.J. Q.B. 474; E. B. & E. 660.

(g) Dartmouth (Mayor) v. Silly, 7 E. & B. 97; 26 L.J. Q.B. 90.

(h) N. W. Ry. v. Whinray, 10 Exch. 77; 23 L.J. Ex. 261; Holland v. Lea, 9 Exch. 430; 23 L.J. Ex. 122. But payments made in excess of the salary agreed upon have been held to be recoverable: Bramley Union v. The Guarantee Society, 64 J.P. 308; 16 T.L.R. 263.

(i) R. v. Herron & Montgomery, (1903) 2 Ir.R. 474. Cp. Anderson v. Thornton, 3 Q.B. 271; 11 L.J. Q.B. 265; Whitcher v. Hall, 5 B. & C. 269; 4 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 167.

(k) Portsea Island Union v. Whillier, 29 L.J. Q.B. 150; 2 E. & E. 755. See further, post, p. 1086.

(l) R. v. Herron & Montgomery, supra; applying Holme v. Brunskill, 3 Q.B.D. 495; 47 L.J. Q.B. 610.

(m) Arlington (Lord) v. Merricke, 2 Wms. Saund. 411, a; Stoughton v. Day, Al. 10; Sty. 18; Bamford v. Iles, 3 Exch. 380; 18 L.J. M.C. 49; Liverpool Water Co. v. Atkinson, 6 East, 507.

not state the nature or duration of the office, or limit the period of service for the performance of which the surety binds himself, yet, if the office is in point of fact an annual office, and there is a fresh appointment each year, the surety is only answerable for the execution of the duty for the current year (n).

Duration and extent of surety's liability.—If the surety by express words manifests an intention to be bound for the faithful service of the party, not only for the current year of office, but for all succeeding years under any fresh appointment, the obligation will continue in force as long as the obligee may think fit to continue the employment (o). Thus, where the bond was conditioned for the due fulfilment of the duties of an office "during such time as" the principal "shall continue in the said office, whether by virtue of his said appointment, or of any re-appointment thereto," it was held that the obligation was not confined to the current year of office, but extended to all subsequent years during which the party was continually re-appointed (p). Where A. guaranteed B. the regular payment of interest payable under the debenture of a limited company until the principal sum secured by the debenture was repaid, and the principal sum was gone by operation of law upon the winding up of the company, yet the obligation of the surety was held to remain in respect of the interest and B. was allowed to prove in A.'s bankruptcy for the estimated value of future interest payable under the guarantee (q). And, if the duration of the employment is uncertain—if, for example, it is held or continues durante bene placito—and there is nothing in the language of the recital or of the condition directly or indirectly limiting the period of liability, the duration of the obligation of the surety is then as uncertain as the period of employment, and will continue as long as the employment lasts, though it should be for the whole life of the principal or party employed (r). The death of the surety will not, therefore, in such circumstances put an end to his liability (s).

Release of surety.—The surety cannot, when no time is marked out by the contract for the termination of his liability, discharge himself from the liability he has voluntarily under-

(n) Hassell v. Long, 2 M. & S. 363; Peppin v. Cooper, 2 B. & Ald. 431; Wardens of St. Saviour's v. Bostock, 2 Bos. & P. N.R. 175; Leadley v. Evans, 9 Moore, 102; 2 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 108; Lond. Assur. Co. v. Bold, 6 Q.B. 514; 14 L.J. Q.B. 50; Cambridge (Mayor) v. Dennis, 27 L.J. Q.B. 474; E. B. & E. 660.

(o) Oswald v. Berwick (Mayor), 5 H.L.C. 856; 25 L.J. Q.B. 383.

(p) Augero v. Keen, 1 M. & W. 390; 5 L.J. Ex. 233.

(q) Fitzgeorge, In re, Robson, Ex parte, (1905) 1 K.B. 462; 74 L.J. K.B. 322.

(r) Curling v. Chalklen, 3 M. & S. 502; M'Gahey v. Alston, 1 M. & W. 386.

(s) Crace, In re, Balfour v. Crace, (1902) 1 Ch. 733; 71 L.J. Ch. 358.

taken (t); and the Courts, therefore, construe doubtful contracts of suretyship (when they are under seal and the surety has no power of revoking them) in favour of the surety, so as to narrow rather than enlarge his liability.

Discharge of surety by change in employment of principal.—In the case of a guarantee of the good conduct of the principal in any particular course of dealing with the plaintiffs, that course of dealing is part of the essence of the contract with the surety, so that, if it be altered, the surety is discharged (u); but, if the course of dealing is left to the option of the plaintiffs entirely, or within certain limits, the surety cannot then complain of a variation to which he has agreed (x). Where there is a bond of suretyship for the faithful execution of the duties of a public office, and, by the act of the parties or by Act of Parliament, the nature of the office is so changed that the duties are materially altered, so as to affect the peril of the sureties, the bond is avoided (y). So where the principal's contract is one entire contract for the performance by him of two or more things at different times, circumstances discharging the surety as to one of them will also release him from liability as to the other (z). But, where sureties guarantee by one bond the principal's good conduct in two distinct contracts of employment, the bond may be divisible so that the sureties are not discharged from liability as to one of the employments by the fact of the duties being altered and enlarged in the other (a). Where the condition of a bond was that a clerk should account for and pay over to the obligee, his executors or administrators, all moneys, bills, &c., which he should receive in the course of his employment as clerk to the obligee, it was held that the liability of the surety ceased with the death of the obligee, and could not be extended to a new employment by the executors (b). And, where the condition of the bond was that a clerk should, during the time he continued in the service of the plaintiff, faithfully pay over all moneys which he should receive on the plaintiff's account, and the breach assigned was the non-payment by the clerk of money which he had received on account of the plaintiff and his

(t) But see as to this, Burgess v. Eve, L.R. 13 Eq. 450; 41 L.J. Ch. 515; Phillips v. Foxhall, L.R. 7 Q.B. 666; 41 L.J. Q.B. 293.

(u) Arlington (Lord) v. Merricke, 2 Wms. Saund. 403. See also, ante, p. 1084.

(x) Stewart v. M'Kean, 10 Exch. 689; 24 L.J. Ex. 145.

(y) Pybus v. Gibb, 6 E. & B. 902; 26 L.J. Q.B. 41; R. v. Herron & Montgomery, (1903) 2 Ir. R. 474.

(z) Croydon Commercial Gas Co. v. Dickinson, L.R. 1 C.P.D. 707; 45 L.J. Q.B. 869.

(a) Skillett v. Fletcher, L.R. 2 C.P. 469; 36 L.J. C.P. 206; Harrison v. Seymour, L.R. 1 C.P. 518; 35 L.J. C.P. 264.

(b) Barker v. Parker, 1 T.R. 287, 295.

partner, this was held to be beyond the scope of the defendant's engagement (c). Again, if the surety is deprived of his remedy against the principal through not being informed within a reasonable time of his principal's default, as, for example, where the principal has been allowed to abscond through notice of his default not having been duly given, the surety will be discharged (d); but this result will not follow where, from the relationship and transactions between the principal and the surety it cannot be supposed that the latter was ignorant of what was taking place (e).

Bonds and guarantees under seal to partnerships and associations.—If a bond be given to secure the faithful services of a clerk to a firm of partners, or the repayment of advances made by such firm, and any change takes place in the constitution of the firm by the death or retirement of existing partners, or the accession of new partners, the contract of suretyship is at an end, unless it appears that the intention of the contracting parties was that the security should be a continuing one, and should remain in force notwithstanding changes in the co-partnership (f). So it will be even where the bond is to several partners nominatim to secure the repayment to them, "or either of them," of advances to be made "by them" (g). This principle of construction, narrowing the surety's liability, applies with still greater force in the case of bonds conditioned for the repayment of advances to be made to a firm, or to either of the partners; in such a case, if one partner dies, the liability of the surety will not extend to advances made to the survivor (h). If, therefore, the surety's liability is to continue after the retirement as well as after the death of one of several co-partners, such intention must be manifested with a precision not to be mistaken (i). By sect. 18 of the Partnership Act, 1890 (k), "a continuing guaranty or cautionary obligation given either to a firm or to a third person in respect of the transactions of a firm is, in the absence of agreement to the contrary,

(c) Wright v. Russel, 3 Wils. 530; 2 W.Bl. 934; Napier v. Bruce, 8 Cl. & Fin. 470; Montefiore v. Lloyd, 15 C.B. N.S. 203; 33 L.J. C.P. 49.

(d) Snaddon v. London, Edinburgh & Glasgow Assur. Co., (1903) 5 F. 182 (Ct. of Sess.).

(e) Caxton and Arrington Union v. Dew, (1899) 68 L.J. Q.B. 380; following Durham Corporation v. Fowler, 22 Q.B.D. 394; 58 L.J. Q.B. 246.

(f) Bellairs v. Ebsworth, 3 Campb. 53; Barclay v. Lucas, 3 Doug. 321; Myers v. Edge, 7 T.R. 254; Chapman v. Beckington, 3 Q.B. 703; 12 L.J. Q.B. 61; Lond. Assur. Co. v. Bold, 6 Q.B. 524; 14 L.J. Q.B. 50; Mills v. Alderbury Guardians, 18 L.J. Ex. 252; 3 Exch. 590; Montefiore v. Lloyd, 15 C.B. N.S. 203; 33 L.J. C.P. 49.

(g) Strange v. Lee, 3 East, 484; Weston v. Barton, 4 Taunt. 673; Dance v. Girdler, 4 Bos. & P. 34.

(h) Simson v. Cooke, 8 Moore, 605; 2 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 74.

(i) Camb. University v. Baldwin, 5 M. & W. 580; Backhouse v. Hall, 6 B. & S. 507; 34 L.J. Q.B. 141; Dry v. Davy, 10 Ad. & E. 30; 8 L.J. Q.B. 209.

(k) 53 & 54 Vict. c. 39, s. 18.

revoked as to future transactions by any change in the constitution of the firm to which, or of the firm in respect of the transactions of which, the guaranty or obligation was given."

Limitation of surety's liability.—If a bond or guarantee is given by a surety to secure the repayment of advances of money to the principal, provided such advances do not exceed in the whole, at any one time, a certain limited amount, the proviso protects the surety from being answerable beyond the amount named, but will not avoid the obligation if the advances go beyond it (l), unless that result clearly appears to have been contemplated by the parties (m). A guarantee to secure moneys to be advanced to a third party on discount, "for the space of twelve calendar months," is countermandable within that time although some bills may have been discounted and repaid before notice (n). Where a surety gives a continuing guarantee limited in amount to secure the floating balance from time to time due from the principal to the creditor, and the floating balance exceeds the limited amount, the guarantee is, as between the surety and the creditor, to be construed as applicable to such part only of the debt as may be co-extensive with the amount of the guarantee; but a guarantee limited in amount for a debt already ascertained which exceeds the limit is not primâ facie to be construed as a security for a part of the debt only; it is a question of construction for the Court (o). Where the wife contracted as follows: "In consideration of your having at my request agreed to supply goods to my husband, I do hereby guarantee to you the sum of 500*l.*," it was held that the payment for goods supplied after the date of the guarantee only was secured (p).

Continuing liabilities.—Where a bond recited that the plaintiffs had agreed to advance to the principal "any sum of money not exceeding, at any one or more time or times, the sum of 200*l.* in the whole," and stipulated for the payment by the defendant, as surety, of "all and every such sum or sums of money, not exceeding the sum of 200*l.* as aforesaid," as the plaintiffs should advance, it was held to be a continuing security, not confined to the first 200*l.* advanced, but extending to all future advances and payments that might at any time be made (q). The Courts, however, in the case of con-

(l) Seller v. Jones, 16 M. & W. 112; 16 L.J. Ex. 20; Gee v. Pack, 33 L.J. Q.B. 49; Backhouse v. Hall, 6 B. & S. 507. 34 L.J. Q.B. 141.

(m) Parker v. Wise, 6 M. & S. 246; Gordon v. Rae, 8 E. & B. 1605; 27 L.J. Q.B. 185.

(n) Offord v. Davies, 12 C.B. N.S. 748; 31 L.J. C.P. 319.

(o) Ellis v Emmanuel, 1 Ex. D. 157; 46 L.J. Ex. 25.

(p) Morrell v. Cowan, 7 Ch. D. 151; 47 L.J. Ch. 73.

(q) Batson v. Spearman, 9 Ad. & E. 298.

tracts of suretyship under seal, favour a construction limiting the liability of the surety to some particular advance, so as to confine it within an ascertained definite limit, rather than one extending it to a continuous supply, creating an indefinite liability, from which the surety might have no means of relieving himself during the whole life of the principal (r). In the case of simple contracts, on the other hand, no such favour is shown. Thus, where a guarantee was given for the payment of goods supplied to the amount of 100*l.*, it was held to be a continuing one, extending to supplies of goods at any time furnished, so long as the parties continued to deal together (s). From a continuing liability under seal the surety has no means of escape at common law; he cannot recall the bond, covenant, or obligation, that he has entered into, and say that he will be no longer responsible for advances to the principal, unless in the contract of suretyship he has expressly reserved to himself such a power (t); and his liability may be prolonged indefinitely, and for the whole life of the principal. But, in the case of simple contracts, the surety (though liable for all advances that have been made on the faith of his promise) may at any time revoke such promise, and discharge himself from the continuing liability, by giving notice to that effect (u). And a surety is not precluded by reason of his guarantee being a continuing one extending to sums advanced subsequently to the first sum advanced from obtaining the benefit of the Statute of Limitations (x).

The following guarantees have been held to import a continuing liability: "I consider myself bound for any debt A. B. may contract with you in his business not to exceed 100*l.*" (y); "I undertake to be answerable to the extent of 100*l.* for any tallow supplied by you to A. B." (z); "I hereby agree to guaranty the payment of goods to be delivered . . . to S. & Co., according to the custom of their trading with you in the sum of 200*l.*" (a); "As an inducement to you to sell W. C. goods and continue your dealings with him, I hereby undertake to guarantee you in a sum of 100*l.* payable to you in default on the (r) Kirby v. Marlborough (Duke), 2 M. & S. 18.

(s) Mason v. Pritchard, 12 East, 227; Mayer v. Isaac, 6 M. & W. 605; 9 L.J. Ex. 225; Hitchcock v. Humfrey, 5 M. & Gr. 559; 12 L.J. C.P. 235; Horlor v. Carpenter, 27 L.J. C.P. 1; 3 C.B. N.S. 172.

(t) Hassell v. Long, 2 M. & S. 370; Calvert v. Gordon, 3 M. & R. 124; 7 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 77.

(u) Per Erle, C.J., in Offord v. Davies, 12 C.B. N.S. 748; 31 L.J. C.P. 319; Crace, In re, Balfour v. Crace, (1902) 1 Ch. 733, 737; 71 L.J. Ch. 358.

(x) Parr's Banking Co. v. Yates, (1898) 2 Q.B. 460; 67 L.J. Q.B. 851.

(y) Merle v. Wells, 2 Campb. 413.

(z) Bastow v. Bennett, 3 Campb. 220.

(a) Hargreave v. Smee, 6 Bing. 244; 8 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 46.

part of the said W. C. for two months" (b); "In consideration of your agreeing to supply goods to K., I agree to guarantee his present or any future debt with you to the amount of 60*l.*" (c); "In consideration of the credit given by the H. G. C. Co. to my son, for coal supplied by them to him, I hereby hold myself responsible as a guarantee to them for the sum of 100*l.*; and, in default of his payment of any accounts due, I bind myself by this note to pay to the H. G. C. Co. whatever may be owing, to an amount not exceeding the sum of 100*l.*" (d).

Guarantees not importing continuing liability.—The following guarantees have, on the other hand, been held to limit the liability of the surety to one solitary transaction, or to a particular course of dealing to a certain amount, and to be discharged or extinguished as soon as advances to the amount named have been made, and satisfied by the principal: "I engage to guarantee the payment of A. M. to the extent of 60*l.* at quarterly account, bill two months, for goods to be purchased by him of you" (e); "I agree to be answerable to K. for the amount of five sacks of flour, to be delivered to W. P., payable in one month" (f); "I agree to be answerable for the payment of 50*l.* for T. L., in case he does not pay for the gin he receives from you" (g). And where the guarantee was, "In consideration of your supplying Mr. S. with goods to the extent of 100*l.*, I undertake to pay you if he does not," it was held that the surety's liability was dependent upon credit to the amount of 100*l.* being given if required, but that, if the debtor did not demand 100*l.* worth of goods, the surety would be liable for whatever was supplied (h). But, where the surety guarantees only the payment of one sum in solido provided goods to the amount guaranteed are furnished, there is no cause of action against the surety until the full amount has been supplied (i).

Conditions precedent to surety's liability.—If the continued liability of the surety is made dependent upon certain conditions being observed by the creditor, the latter must strictly observe these conditions, or the surety will be discharged (k). Accord-

(b) Allan v. Kenning, 2 M. & Sc. 768.

(c) Martin v. Wright, 6 Q.B. 917; 14 L.J. Q.B. 142.

(d) Wood v. Priestner, L.R. 2 Ex. 66, 282; 36 L.J. Ex. 42, 127. See for other cases of continuing guarantees, Heffield v. Meadows, L.R. 4 C.P. 595; Laurie v. Scholefield, L.R. 4 C.P. 622; 38 L.J. C.P. 290; Coles v. Pack, L.R. 5 C.P. 65; 39 L.J. C.P. 63; Nottingham Hide, Skin, & Fat Market Co. v. Bottrill, L.R. 8 C.P. 694; 42 L.J. C.P. 256.

(e) Melville v. Hayden, 3 B. & Ald. 593.

(f) Kay v. Groves, 6 Bing. 276; 7 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 9.

(g) Nicholson v. Paget, 1 Cr. & M. 48; 2 L.J. Ex. 18.

(h) Dimmock v. Sturla, 14 M. & W. 758; 15 L.J. Ex. 65.

(i) Johnson v. Gandy, 26 L.T. 72.

(k) Watts v. Shuttleworth, 5 H. & N.

ingly, where the creditor took a warrant of attorney from the principal debtor with a stipulation for the benefit of the surety that, on notice from the latter, the creditor should enter up judgment and levy execution upon the warrant of attorney, and apply the proceeds in reduction of the debt, and the creditor neglected to keep up the warrant of attorney as an efficient security, it was held that the surety was discharged (l). Again, where a party has consented to be co-surety with another, he cannot be made responsible if the other party refuses or neglects to be bound. Where, therefore, one of two intended co-sureties executes a deed of covenant for the repayment of advances to be made to the principal debtor, on the understanding that the money will not be advanced until the deed is executed by the other surety, and the deed never is executed by the other surety, the executing surety will be entitled to be discharged from every part of the debt (m). But a surety, who has executed a bond on the faith of its being executed by the principal debtor also, cannot be released from his obligation on the ground that the principal has never executed it, if the principal has executed an instrument on which the surety may sue him and become a specialty creditor of his (n).

Duty of person guaranteed.—Where the person guaranteed does an act injurious to the surety, or inconsistent with his rights, or omits to do an act which his duty requires him to do, and the omission proves injurious to the surety, the latter will be discharged (o). Thus, in the case of a guarantee given to an employer to secure the faithful services of a servant in his employment, the surety has a right to expect from the employer that he will call upon such servant to account in the ordinary course of business, and that he will not trust him beyond the bounds of ordinary prudence (p). But mere passive inactivity on the part of the principal, or his neglect to call the principal debtor to account, does not discharge the surety; there must be some positive act done to the prejudice of the surety, or such a degree of negligence as to amount to fraud (q). The surety guarantees the honesty of the person employed, and is not entitled to be relieved from his obligation because the employer

235; 29 L.J. Ex. 229; Lawrence v. Walmsley, 12 C.B. N.S. 808; 31 L.J. C.P. 143.

(l) Watson v. Alcock, 4 De G. M. & G. 242; 22 L.J. Ch. 858.

(m) Evans v. Bremridge, 8 De G. M. & G. 100; 25 L.J. Ch. 334; Bonser v. Cox, 4 Beav. 379; 10 L.J. Ch. 395; National Provincial Bank of England v. Brackenbury, 22 T.L.R. 797.

(n) Cooper v. Evans, L.R. 4 Eq. 45; 36 L.J. Ch. 431.

(o) Watts v. Shuttleworth, 29 L.J. Ex. 234; 5 H. & N. 235.

(p) Smith v. Bank of Scotland, 1 Dow, 292; Railton v. Matthews, 10 Cl. & F. 934.

(q) Durham (Mayor) v. Fowler, 22 Q.B.D. 394; 58 L.J. Q.B. 246.

fails to use all the means in his power to guard against the consequences of dishonesty (r). If, however, the master discovers that the person employed has been guilty of dishonesty, he must inform the surety, who has thereupon a right to withdraw from his guarantee (s); and, if the master omits so to inform the surety, the latter will be discharged so far as subsequent acts of dishonesty are concerned (t), unless the surety must in the circumstances have known of the dishonest acts (u).

Alteration of principal obligation discharging surety.—If a new contract is substituted for the original contract, or if the original contract is altered in any material point without the surety's consent, so as to constitute a new agreement varying substantially from the former, the surety is no longer bound (x). Where the defendant had as surety signed a joint and several promissory note with the principal debtor, having no reason to suppose that any one else was to sign it, and afterwards the payee, without the knowledge of the defendant, induced another person to sign it in order to strengthen the security, it was held that the defendant was discharged from liability (y). If the guarantee is of the honesty of the principal in any particular course of dealing with the plaintiff, that course of dealing is part of the agreement of the plaintiff with the surety, and the plaintiff cannot alter it and keep the surety liable. But a surety for a contractor was held not to be discharged from liability, although his position had been altered by the conduct of the employer, where that conduct was caused by a fraudulent act or omission of the contractor against which the surety had by the contract of suretyship guaranteed the employer (z). So, where the principal by deliberate suppression of part of a resolution of the Guardians obtained the consent of the Local Government Board to payments made to him in excess of salary there was held to be a cause of action under the guarantee (a). And, where the course of dealing is left to the option of the plaintiff altogether, or within certain limits, and is allowed by

(r) Black v. Ottoman Bank, 15 Moo. P.C. 472; Mansfield Union v. Wright, 9 Q.B.D. 683.

(s) Burgess v. Eve, L.R. 13 Eq. 450; 41 L.J. Ch. 515.

(t) Phillips v. Foxall, L.R. 7 Q.B. 666; 41 L.J. Q.B. 293; Sanderson v. Aston, L.R. 8 Ex. 73; 42 L.J. Ex. 64.

(u) Caxton Union v. Dew, 68 L.J. Q.B. 380.

(x) Whitcher v. Hall, 5 B. & C. 276; 4 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 167; Bonar v. Macdonald, 3 H.L.C. 239; Gen. St. Nav. Co. v. Rolt, 6 C.B. N.S. 550; Polak v. Everett, 1 Q.B.D. 669; 45 L.J. Q.B. 369; Greenwood v. Francis, (1899) 1 Q.B. 312; 68 L.J. Q.B. 228.

(y) Gardner v. Walsh, 5 E. & B. 83; 24 L.J. Q.B. 284, overruling Catton v. Simpson, 8 Ad. & E. 136. See also Holme v. Brunskill, 3 Q.B.D. 495; 47 L.J. Q.B. 610; Bolton v. Salmon, (1891) 2 Ch. 48; 60 L.J. Ch. 239.

(z) Kingston-upon-Hull (Mayor) v. Harding, (1892) 2 Q.B. 494; 62 L.J. Q.B. 55.

(a) Bramley Union v. The Guarantee Society, 64 J.P. 308; 16 T.L.R. 263.

the contract, the surety cannot complain of an alteration which he has himself permitted (ante, p. 1086). Where one enters into a bond as surety for the performance by another of two separate and distinct things, a subsequent alteration of the principal's contract as to one of these things without the surety's consent does not release the surety from his contract of suretyship as to the other (b).

Extension of time of payment.—Any enlargement of the time of payment by a binding contract with the principal debtor, made without the surety's authority, which ties up the hands of the creditor, and prevents him from suing the principal debtor upon the original obligation, amounts to substituting a new engagement in the place of the original contract and discharges the surety, inasmuch as the situation of the latter is varied and his liability prolonged beyond what was originally contemplated (c). As soon as the principal debtor has made default, the surety has a right to step in and pay the debt, and require the creditor to sue, or allow him to sue, the principal in his, the creditor's, name; and, if the creditor has voluntarily placed himself in such a position as to be compelled to say he cannot sue the principal debtor, he thereby discharges the surety (d). But a contract with a stranger, or even with a co-surety (e), to give time to the principal debtor, which contract does not prevent the surety from discharging the debt and pursuing his remedy over against the principal debtor, will not discharge such surety from liability (f); and there must have been either a new security given to extend the time of payment, or a binding agreement upon sufficient consideration to suspend the remedy (g). If after a right of action accrues to a creditor against two or more persons, he is informed that one of them is a surety only, and after that he gives time to the principal without the consent or knowledge of the surety, the surety is discharged (h). The mere giving of additional security by the

(b) Harrison v. Seymour, L.R. 1 C.P. 518; 35 L.J. C.P. 264.

(c) Rees v. Berrington, 2 Ves. 542; Combe v. Woolf, 8 Bing. 162; 1 L.J. C.P. 51; Eyre v. Bartrop, 3 Mad. 221; Nisbet v. Smith, 2 Br. C.C. 578. See also ante, p. 1086. As to guarantees authorizing the giving time to the principal debtor, see Cowper v. Smith, 4 M. & W. 519; Un. Bank of Manchester v. Beech, 3 H. & C. 672; 34 L.J. Ex. 133; Perry v. Prov. Bk. of England, (1910) 1 Ch. 464; 79 L.J. Ch. 509.

(d) Williams, J., Strong v. Foster, 17 C.B. 219; 25 L.J. C.P. 106; Bailey v. Edwards, 34 L.J. Q.B. 45; 4 B. & S. 761; Oriental Financial Corporation v. Overend, Gurney & Co., L.R. 7 Ch. 142; 41 L.J. Ch. 332.

(e) Clarke v. Birley, 41 Ch.D. 422; 58 L.J. Ch. 616.

(f) Frazer v. Jordan, 8 E. & B. 303; 26 L.J. Q.B. 288.

(g) Parke, B., Moss v. Hall, 5 Exch. 50; 19 L.J. Ex. 205; Bingham v. Corbitt, 34 L.J. Q.B. 37.

(h) Overend, Gurney & Co. v. Oriental Financial Corporation, L.R. 7 H.L. 348; Rouse v. Bradford Banking Co., (1894) A.C. 586; 63 L.J. Ch. 890.

principal to the creditor is not of itself a giving of time by the creditor to the principal (i).

There is no obligation on the part of the creditor to use active diligence against the principal debtor. It is the business of the surety and not that of the creditor to see that the principal pays (k). A mere promise, therefore, without consideration, not to sue the principal for a certain time will not discharge the surety (l), nor will mere laches, or forbearance, on the part of the creditor, to press the party liable, and sue for the money, unaccompanied by any suspension of the legal remedies (m). Nor will a parol agreement to extend the time of payment discharge the surety, when the principal obligation is under seal, inasmuch as such an agreement cannot affect the legal operation of the deed, or suspend the right of action thereon; though it will be otherwise where payment is extended by a binding contract (n). Nor will the acceptance by the creditor of a collateral security from the principal debtor operate as a discharge of the surety if the position of the latter has in nowise been varied thereby (o). Nor will the surety be discharged, if he has himself assented to the alteration of the principal obligation (p). In the case of an accommodation bill, known to all the parties to be such, the acceptor can only be considered a surety for the drawer, so that, if time be given to the drawer by a binding agreement, without the knowledge and concurrence of the acceptor, the acceptor is discharged (q). But, even in the case of a continuing guarantee, the Statute of Limitations may be successfully pleaded by way of defence where six years have elapsed since the right accrued under the guarantee, though, if the guarantee in terms included not only sums advanced but also interest and other incidental charges and such interest and charges had accrued against the guaranteed party within the period of six years before action being brought, the Statute of Limitations will not affect those items (r).

(i) Overend, Gurney & Co. v. Oriental Financial Corporation, ante, p. 1093.

(k) Wright v. Simpson, 16 Ves. 734; Jervis, C.J., Strong v. Foster, 17 C.B. 216; 25 L.J. C.P. 106.

(l) Tucker v. Laing, 2 K. & J. 745, 749.

(m) Orme v. Young, Holt, N.P. 84; Lond. Assur. Co. v. Buckle, 4 Moore, 153; Goring v. Edmonds, 6 Bing. 91; 7 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 235; Dawson v. Lawes, 23 L.J. Ch. 434; Kay, 280; Durham (Mayor) v. Fowler, 22 Q.B.D. 394; 58 L.J. Q.B. 246; Kingston Corporation v. Harding, (1892) 2 Q.B. 494; 62 L.J. Q.B. 55; Rouse v. Bradford Banking Co., (1894) A.C. 586; 63 L.J. Ch. 890.

(n) Bolton v. Buckenham, (1891) 1 Q.B. 278; 60 L.J. Q.B. 261; Bolton v. Salmon, (1891) 2 Ch. 48; 60 L.J. Ch. 239.

(o) Twopenny v. Young, 3 B. & C. 208; Bell v. Banks, 3 Sc. N.R. 497.

(p) Rouse v. Bradford Banking Co., (1894) 2 Ch. 32; 63 L.J. Ch. 337.

(q) Laxton v. Peat, 2 Campb. 185; Bailey v. Edwards, 4 B. & S. 761; 34 L.J. Q.B. 41.

(r) Parr's Banking Co. v. Yates, (1898) 2 Q.B. 460; 67 L.J. Q.B. 851.

Suretyship where relation does not appear upon face of contract.—The doctrine of discharge by giving time is not confined to cases where the relation of suretyship appears on the face of the original contract between the creditor, the principal, and the alleged surety (s). The equity arises from the relation of the co-obligors, or co-promisors inter se, and on the knowledge by the creditor of the existence of that relation (t). It is held to be inequitable in the creditor knowingly to prejudice the rights of the surety, although he may know of the existence of the relation of suretyship only at the time when he dealt with the principal debtor so as to prejudice such rights (u). But extraneous evidence is not admissible for the purpose of showing that a party who, on the face of the contract, has incurred a primary liability, was only intended to be secondarily liable as a surety after the default of another principal contracting party (x).

Effect of giving time to principal debtor reserving remedies against surety.—If after the principal debtor has made default, and the surety has become liable to pay the debt, the creditor, by a binding contract, agrees to give the principal debtor time for payment, in the same contract expressly stipulating for the reservation of all his remedies against the surety, the latter will still remain liable, notwithstanding such agreement (y). "The reserve of remedies," observes Parke, B., "has that effect upon this principle; first, that it rebuts the implication that the surety was meant to be discharged, which is one of the reasons why the surety is ordinarily exonerated by such a transaction; and, secondly, that it prevents the rights of the surety against the principal debtor being impaired, the injury to such rights being the other reason; for the debtor cannot complain if, the instant afterwards, the surety enforces those rights against him, and his consent that the creditor shall have recourse against the surety is, impliedly, a consent that the surety shall have recourse against him" (z). And, if a security is taken which by extending the time of payment would operate to release the surety, the creditor may prove by parol evidence that an agreement was come to between the creditor and the principal debtor that

(s) Rayner v. Fussey, 28 L.J. Ex. 132.

(t) Davies v. Stainbank, 6 De G. M. & G. 679, 696; Oriental Financial Corporation v. Overend, Gurney & Co., L.R. 7 Ch. 142; 41 L.J. Ch. 332.

(u) Pooley v. Harradine, 7 E. & B. at p. 441; 26 L.J. Q.B. 156; Greenhough v. McClelland, 2 E. & E. 424; 30 L.J. Q.B. 15; Bailey v. Edwards, 4 B. & S. 761; 34 L.J. Q.B. 41.

(x) Hollier v. Eyre, 9 Cl. & Fin. 45.

(y) Ld. Eldon, Glendenning, Ex parte, Buck's B.C. 519.

(z) Kearsley v. Cole, 16 M. & W. 135; 16 L.J. Ex. 115; Price v. Barker, 4 E. & B. 779; 24 L.J. Q.B. 134.

the transaction should not have that effect, and may thus keep alive the liability of the surety (a).

Effect of release of principal debt.—If a debt secured by the collateral undertaking of a surety be unconditionally released or satisfied, the engagement of the surety is at an end, the extinguishment of the principal obligation necessarily involving the discharge of the surety (b). If, therefore a creditor, by deed of composition, releases his debtor, and precludes himself from suing upon the obligation for the original debt, the surety is discharged, unless the rights of the creditor against the surety have been expressly reserved on the face of the deed (c), or unless by the terms of the guarantee the surety is not discharged by the release of the principal debtor (d). So where a trustee in bankruptcy of a lessee for a term of years disclaims, a guarantor of the payment of such "rent as may be from time to time in arrear" under the lease is not liable for rent accruing due after the date of the disclaimer (e). On the other hand, extinguishment of the principal obligation by operation of law will not necessarily discharge the surety from his liability (f).

Release of principal obligation, reserving remedies against surety.—If the principal debtor has made default, so that the liability of the surety has accrued, and the creditor has an immediate right of action against him, the creditor may compound with the principal debtor, receiving a portion only of the debt, and releasing from the payment of the residue, and at the same time reserve his rights and remedies against the surety. A deed of release of this sort, with reserve of remedies against the surety, is construed as a covenant not to sue, in order that effect may be given to the intention of the parties, and the right of recourse against the surety be preserved (g). Where, therefore, upon the grant of an annuity, two co-sureties entered into a joint and several covenant for the payment by them of the annuity, in case of default by the grantor, and default was made by the grantor, whereupon a deed was executed between the grantor and grantee and one of the co-sureties, by which, in

(a) Wyke v. Rogers, 21 L.J. Ch. 613; 1 De G. M. & G. 408; Boaler v. Mayor, 19 C.B. N.S. 76; 34 L.J. C.P. 230.

(b) Webb v. Hewitt, 3 Kay & J. 438, 444; Vorley v. Barrett, 26 L.J. C.P. 1; 1 C.B. N.S. 225; Commercial Bank of Tasmania v. Jones, (1893) A.C. 313; 62 L.J. P.C. 104.

(c) Lewis v. Jones, 4 B. & C. 513, 515; 3 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 270; Green v. Wynn, L.R. 4 Ch. 204; 38 L.J. Ch. 76, 220.

(d) Union Bank of Manchester v. Beech, 3 H. & C. 672; 34 L.J. Ex. 133.

(e) Stacey v. Hill, (1901) 1 K.B. 660; 70 L.J. K.B. 435.

(f) Jacobs, Ex parte, L.R. 10 Ch. 211; 44 L.J. Bank. 34; Ellis v. Wilmot, L.R. 10 Ex. 10; 44 L.J. Ex. 10; London Chartered Bank of Australia, In re, (1893) 3 Ch. 540, 546; 62 L.J. Ch. 841; Fitzgeorge, In re, Robson, Ex parte, (1905) 1 K.B. 462; 74 L.J. K.B. 322.

(g) Nevill's case, L.R. 6 Ch. 43; 40 L.J. Ch. 1; Bateson v. Gosling, L.R. 7 C.P. 9; 41 L.J. C.P. 53; Duck v. Mayeu, (1892) 2 Q.B. 511; 62 L.J. Q.B. 69.

consideration of all arrears being paid by such co-surety, the latter was released from the future payment of the annuity, and from all further liability upon his covenant, but it was provided that nothing therein contained should prejudice the rights of the grantee as against the grantor and the other co-surety, it was held that this proviso prevented the release from operating as a discharge of the co-surety, as it did not prejudice the latter or increase his liability (h). But a release of a debt "in like manner as if the debtor had obtained a discharge in bankruptcy" is an absolute release, and, if given without the surety's consent, discharges him (i). It seems to be the result of the authorities that a covenant not to sue qualified by a reserve of the remedies against sureties allows the surety to retain his remedies over against the principal debtor, and operates only so far as the rights of the surety may not be affected (k); but it remains to be considered in every case, whether the arrangement between the principal debtor and the creditor does prejudicially affect the rights or remedies of the surety (l); for, if it does, the surety is entitled to say that he is discharged (m).

Release of one of several co-sureties.—A release by the creditor of one of two or more co-sureties releases all (n). This is not so, however, where the sureties contract severally (o).

Payment by principal debtor.—If a party becomes surety for the due payment of all money that comes to the hand of the principal, the surety is discharged upon payment by the principal in such currency as the parties to whom the payment is made are willing to accept. If, therefore, these parties have the option of receiving cash, but choose to take bills or notes, which are ultimately dishonoured, the surety is none the less discharged (p). A payment accepted by the creditor in good faith and without notice, but afterwards avoided as a fraudulent preference, does not operate as a satisfaction of the debt or discharge the surety (q). If the primary security proves worth-

(h) Thompson v. Lack, 3 C.B. 552; 16 L.J. C.P. 75; Kearsley v. Cole, 16 M. & W. 135; 16 L.J. Ex. 115.

(i) Cragoe v. Jones, L.R. 8 Ex. 81; 42 L.J. Ex. 68.

(k) Price v. Barker, 4 E. & B. 760, 779; 24 L.J. Q.B. 134.

(l) Owen v. Homan, 20 L.J. Ch. 323; aff. 4 H.L.Cas. 1037.

(m) Wright v. Sandars, 3 Jur. N.S. 507.

(n) Cheetham v. Ward, 1 B. & P. 633; E. W. A., In re, (1901) 2 K.B. 642; 70 L.J. K.B. 810; Nicholson v. Revill, 4 Ad. & E. 683; 5 L.J. K.B. 129; Evans v. Bremridge, 25 L.J. Ch. 104; 2 K. & J. 174; Mercantile Bank of Sydney v. Taylor, (1893) A.C. 317; E. W. A., In re, (1901) 2 K.B. 642; 70 L.J. K.B. 810.

(o) Ward v. National Bank of New Zealand, 8 App.Cas. 755; 52 L.J. P.C. 65; Good, Ex parte, Armitage, In re, 5 Ch.D. 46; 46 L.J. Bank. 65.

(p) Lichfield Union v. Greene, 1 H. & N. 880; 26 L.J. Ex. 140.

(q) Petty v. Cooke, L.R. 6 Q.B. 790; 40 L.J. Q.B. 285.

less, whether it was so originally, or whether it becomes so afterwards, the surety is not discharged, unless the loss or deficiency of the original and primary security was occasioned by the act of the creditor (r). If the principal debtor has a set-off against the creditor arising out of the same transaction, the surety may take advantage of it in an action against him by the creditor for the amount guaranteed (s).

Fraud on sureties.—If, when a person agrees to become surety, any material part of the contract between the debtor and creditor is misrepresented or concealed from the surety with the knowledge of the creditor, the misrepresentation or concealment amounts to a fraud upon the surety, and discharges him from his engagement (t); though the principal is not bound to disclose to the surety every material circumstance known to him that may be calculated to affect or increase the responsibility of the surety (u). So a private agreement between the creditor and the principal debtor, which is a fraud upon the surety, will discharge him from liability upon his contract (x). And where a surety was induced to execute a bond on a representation by the obligee that the principal was not indebted to him, which statement was untrue, it was held that he was entitled to have the bond cancelled (y). Where the plaintiffs were aware that the execution of the guarantee was to be procured through the guarantor's husband, who was living with his wife at the time and would presumably influence her, and the guarantor had no independent advice and did not understand the nature of the document, their action on the guarantee was held to be not maintainable (z). But the mere relation of husband and wife does not raise a presumption of undue influence nor is a contract of suretyship by a wife void merely because she has had no independent advice (a).

If a man finds that his agent has betrayed his trust, that he owes him a sum of money, or that it is likely he is in his debt, and, under such circumstances, requires sureties for his fidelity, holding him out as a trustworthy person, knowing, or having

(r) Hardwick v. Wright, 35 Beav. 133.

(s) Becherraise v. Lewis, L.R. 7 C.P. 372; 41 L.J. C.P. 161.

(t) Stone v. Compton, 6 Sc. 846; 5 Bing. N.C. 142; Railton v. Mathews, 10 Cl. & Fin. 942; Spaight v. Cowne, 1 H. & M. 359; Lee v. Jones, 17 C.B. N.S. 482; 34 L.J. C.P. 131; Chaplin & Co. v. Brammall, (1908) 1 K.B. 233; 77 L.J. K.B. 366.

(u) North Brit. Assur. Co. v. Lloyd, 10 Exch. 523; 24 L.J. Ex. 14; Jackson v. Duchaire, 3 T.R. 552; Seaton v. Burnand, (1900) A.C. 135; 69 L.J. Q.B. 409.

(x) Pidcock v. Bishop, 3 B. & C. 605; 3 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 109.

(y) Blest v. Brown, 3 Giff. 450; Cooper v. Joel, 1 De G. F. & J. 240.

(z) Chaplin & Co. v. Brammall, (1908) 1 K.B. 233; 77 L.J. K.B. 366.

(a) Bank of Africa v. Cohen, (1909) W.N. 50; 25 T.L.R. 285.

ground to believe, that he is not so, he cannot afterwards avail himself of a guarantee obtained from a party who was ignorant of what was known to, and ought to have been disclosed by, the employer (b). So, if a person whose honesty is guaranteed makes defalcations, which the employer condones without notice to the guarantor, the latter is not liable for subsequent defalcations (c). But, if a person having doubts as to the circumstances of his agent, and therefore requiring fresh sureties, states his doubts at the time to these sureties, they have no right to complain (c).

A creditor is not bound to inquire under what circumstances his debtor has obtained the concurrence of a surety, unless the dealings are such as to lead a reasonable man to believe that fraud must have been used (d). If a person abstains from inquiry because he sees that the result of inquiry will disclose fraud, his want of knowledge of the fraud affords no excuse, and in some cases wilful ignorance is not to be distinguished in its consequences from knowledge (e).

Discharge of surety by death of principal.—Where the liability of the surety does not arise until after default has been made by the principal, and the latter dies before making default, the surety is discharged (f). Upon the like principle, where a company was dissolved during the term of a lease, the rent of which was secured, it was held that the term came to an end on the dissolution and that therefore the sureties were not liable after that event (g).

Death of surety.—A. having guaranteed thus: "To C. I request you will credit B.; and, in consideration thereof, I guarantee the running balance;" it was held that the promise was not revoked by A.'s death without notice to C. from the executor (h). So, where a bond is given for the integrity of a person in consideration of the latter's being appointed to an office by the obligee of the bond, the liability of the surety will not, unless expressly so stipulated in the bond, be determined by the death of the surety (i). But, where the consideration is (b) Smith v. Bank of Scotland, 1 Dow, 292.

(c) Phillips v. Foxall, L.R. 7 Q.B. 666; 41 L.J. Q.B. 293; Caxton Union v. Dew, 68 L.J. Q.B. 380.

(d) Hamilton v. Watson, 12 Cl. & Fin. 119; Wythes v. Labouchere, 3 De G. & J. 595; 5 Jur. N.S. 499.

(e) Owen v. Homan, 4 H.L.Cas. 997, 1035.

(f) Sparrow v. Sowgate, W. Jones, 29; Solvency Mutual Guarantee Co. v. Freeman, 7 H. & N. 17; 31 L.J. Ex. 197.

(g) Hastings Corporation v. Letton and Another, 97 L.T. 582; 23 T.L.R. 456.

(h) Bradbury v. Morgan, 1 H. & C. 249; 31 L.J. Ex. 462; and see Harriss v. Fawcett, L.R. 8 Ch. 866, 869; 42 L.J. Ch. 502.

(i) Gordon v. Calvert, 2 Sim. 253; Lloyd's v. Harper, 16 Ch. D. 290; 50 L.J. Ch. 140; Beckett v. Addyman, 9 Q.B.D. 783; 51 L.J. Q.B. 597; Crace, In re, Balfour v. Crace, (1902) 1 Ch. 733; 71 L.J. Ch. 358.

not indivisible, as in the case just mentioned, it seems that after notice of the death a continuing guarantee is revoked as to subsequent advances (k).

Indemnification of sureties.—When the engagement of the surety is made with the consent of the principal, there is in point of law an implied request from the latter to the surety to intervene on his, the principal's, behalf, if the latter makes default; and money paid by the surety for the purpose of discharging the claim against the principal is money paid for the use of the principal at his request, which may be recovered from the latter (l). The surety need not wait for the commencement of an action against the principal (m); but he cannot accelerate the liability of the latter (n); and, if he pays money voluntarily which he was not under any legal obligation to pay, he has no ground of action against the principal until the time of payment is past. A surety who has paid the debt of his principal is entitled to rank as a simple contract creditor for the amount, and, if made executor, to retain it out of the assets of the principal against all other creditors of equal degree (o). If A. has expressly agreed to indemnify B. against a particular claim or demand, and an action is brought on that demand against B., B. may then give notice to A. to come in and defend the action, and if A. refuses to come in, B. may compromise at once on the best terms he can get, and then bring an action on the contract of indemnity. At the same time, if B. does not choose to trust A. with the defence to the action, he may if he pleases himself defend it, and judgment against him will be conclusive as between the parties (p).

If the principal covenants with the surety that he will pay the creditor by a day named, and makes default, the surety may sue him for the amount, although he has not himself, at the time of bringing the action, paid any portion of the debt (q).

Contribution between co-sureties.—It has already been stated that, if several persons together become surety for one principal in respect of the same debt, either jointly or severally, or by the same or different contracts (r), and one of such co-sureties, after (k) Coulthart v. Clementson, 5 Q.B.D. 42; 49 L.J. Q.B. 204; Silvester, In re, (1895) 1 Ch. 573; 64 L.J. Ch. 390.

(l) Kearsley v. Cole, 16 M. & W. 128; 16 L.J. Ex. 115; Boyd v. Brooks, 34 L.J. Ch. 605; 34 Beav. 7. In equity a surety may compel the debtor to pay whether the latter be sued or not, Ascherson v. Tredegar Dry Dock Co., (1909) 2 Ch. 401; 78 L.J. Ch. 697.

(m) Small v. Currie, 5 De G. M. & G. 159; 23 L.J. Ch. 746.

(n) A surety cannot prove in the bankruptcy of the principal debtor for estimated future liabilities under his original obligation: Moss, In re, Hallet, Ex parte, (1905) 2 K.B. 307; 74 L.J. K.B. 764.

(o) Boyd v. Brooks, supra.

(p) Per Mellish, L.J., Parker v. Lewis, L.R. 8 Ch. 1035, 1059; 43 L.J. Ch. 281.

(q) Loosemore v. Radford, 9 M. & W. 657; 11 L.J. Ex. 284.

(r) Mayhew v. Crickets, 2 Swanst. 185; and although they do not know the liability of the principal has arisen, pays the debt, or satisfies the whole, or more than his own proportion of it, he may have recourse to his co-sureties for contribution, and recover from them their several proportions (s), unless the plaintiff seeking contribution has promised to save the defendant harmless (t), or the defendant has become surety at the request of the plaintiff and for his accommodation (u). Where the plaintiff and defendant, together with the principal debtor, signed a joint and several promissory note, payable two months after date, as sureties for the principal debtor, and the latter paid only a portion of the amount of the note on its becoming due, the plaintiff then paying the residue, although no demand had been made upon him by the creditor for payment, it was held that the plaintiff was entitled to recover from the defendant, his co-surety, a moiety of the amount he had paid (x). All persons who by common consent put their names to an accommodation bill, whether as drawers, acceptors, or indorsers, in order that one of them may get the bill discounted for his own benefit, are co-sureties for the due payment of the bill; and, if the bill is dishonoured at maturity, and one of them is compelled to pay the amount and thus releases the other parties from their common liability upon the instrument, the one so paying is entitled to contribution from the others (y). Where one of three sureties had paid a sum of money, he was held entitled to recover one moiety from another of the co-sureties, the third having become insolvent (z). A surety against whom judgment has been obtained by the principal creditor for the full amount of the debt, but who has paid nothing in respect thereof, can maintain an action against a co-surety to compel him to contribute towards the common liability; and for this purpose the allowance of a claim by the principal creditor against the estate of a deceased surety is equivalent to a judgment (a). The Statute of Limitations does not begin to run against a surety suing a co-surety for contribution until the claim of the principal creditor has been established against the surety (b).

If one of two co-sureties pays part of the debt only, and less than his moiety, he is not entitled to resort to his co-surety for of each other's liability: Dering v. Winchelsea (Earl), 1 Cox, 318; Whiting v. Burke, L.R. 6 Ch. 342.

(s) Craythorne v. Swinburne, 14 Ves. 160; Kemp v. Finden, 12 M. & W. 421; 13 L.J. Ex. 137; Denton's Estate, In re, (1904) 2 Ch. 178; 73 L.J. Ch. 465.

(t) Thomas v. Cooke, 8 B. & C. 728; 7 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 49.

(u) Turner v. Davies, 2 Esp. 478.

(x) Pitt v. Purssord, 8 M. & W. 539; 10 L.J. Ex. 174.

(y) Reynolds v. Wheeler, 10 C.B. N.S. 561; 50 L.J. C.P. 350.

(z) Peter v. Rich, 1 Ch.C. 34; Hitchman v. Stewart, 3 Drew. 271; 24 L.J. Ch. 690.

(a) Wolmershausen v. Gullick, (1893) 2 Ch. 514; 62 L.J. Ch. 773.

(b) Ib.

contribution: for the latter might subsequently have to pay an equal or greater portion of the debt; in the former of which cases such co-surety would have no contribution to pay, and in the latter he would have one to receive; and it would tend to multiplicity of suits if each co-surety might sue all the others for a rateable proportion of what he had paid, the instant he had paid any part of the debt. But, whenever it appears that one has paid more than his proportion of what the co-sureties can ever be called upon to pay, then such part ought to be repaid by the others, and an action will lie for it (c).

The principal creditor is not entitled to the benefit of collateral securities given by the principal debtor to the surety (d). A surety is bound to bring into hotchpot for the benefit of his co-securities a security given to him by the principal debtor, even though he only consented to be surety upon having such security given to him, and though the other sureties were unaware of his having taken such security (e). Where the same default of the principal renders all the co-sureties responsible, all are bound to contribute; and the amounts of their respective contributions should be equal where they are bound in equal amounts and proportional to their several undertakings where they are bound in unequal amounts (f).

Death of co-sureties.—The death of one of the co-sureties does not determine the liability of the surviving co-surety (g).

Assignment of judgments and securities for surety's indemnification.—Every person who, being surety for the debt or duty of another, or being liable with another for any debt or duty, shall pay such debt or perform such duty, is entitled (19 & 20 Vict. c. 97, s. 5) to have assigned to him, or to a trustee for him, every judgment, specialty, or other security, held by the creditor in respect of the debt or duty, whether such judgment, specialty, or other security shall or shall not be deemed at law to have been satisfied by the payment of the debt or the performance of the duty; and such person is entitled to stand in the place of the creditor, and use all the remedies, and, if need be, and upon a proper indemnity, to use the name of the creditor in any action or other proceeding, in order to obtain from the principal debtor, or any co-surety, co-contractor, or co-debtor, indemnification

(c) Parke, B., Davies v. Humphreys, 6 M. & W. 153, 169; 9 L.J. Ex. 263; Snowdon, Ex parte, 17 Ch.D. 44; 50 L.J. Ch. 540.

(d) Walker, In re, (1892) 1 Ch. 621; 61 L.J. Ch. 234.

(e) Steel v. Dixon, 17 Ch.D. 825; 50 L.J. Ch. 591; Arcedeckne, In re, 24 Ch.D. 709; 53 L.J. Ch. 102; Berridge v. Berridge, 44 Ch.D. 168; 59 L.J. Ch. 533.

(f) Ellesmere Brewery Co. v. Cooper, (1896) 1 Q.B. 75; 65 L.J. Q.B. 173.

(g) Beckett v. Addyman, 9 Q.B.D. 783; 51 L.J. Q.B. 597; Gordon v. Calvert, 4 Russ. 581; 7 B. & C. 809.

for the advances made, and loss sustained, by the person who has paid the debt or performed the duty; and the payment or performance by the surety is not pleadable in bar of any such action or other proceeding by him; but no co-surety, co-contractor, or co-debtor is entitled to recover from any other co-surety, co-contractor, or co-debtor more than the just proportion to which, as between these parties themselves, the latter is justly liable (h). This section includes Crown debts, and therefore a surety to the Crown who has paid the debt of his deceased principal is entitled to the Crown's priority in the administration of the principal's estate (i). Where one of two co-sureties has paid the whole of the debt to the creditor, he is entitled to sue his co-surety under this section for the full amount of the debt; although he can only actually recover the proportion which as between the sureties the co-surety is liable to pay (k).

The creditor is bound to give to the surety the benefit of all securities held by him at the time of the contract, and is not in equity allowed in any way to vary the position of the surety with reference to those securities (l); and all securities of which the creditor has the benefit at the time the contract of suretyship is made are supposed to be discovered to the surety at the time he is entering into the obligation; his rights are not in abeyance until he is called upon to pay; and if, through any neglect on the part of the creditor, he is deprived of the benefit of them, or is put into a different position from that which he was in at the time the contract was entered into, he is discharged (m). The indorser of a bill is a surety to the holder for the payment, and having paid the bill, he is entitled to the benefit of any securities deposited with the holder by the acceptor, even although he was ignorant of such deposit (n). The surety is not entitled to have an assignment of the principal security, unless he pays the debt in full (o). The terms of the surety's covenant also must always be carefully considered to ascertain what his rights exactly are (p).

Judgment against principal does not bind sureties.—A judg-

(h) Batchellor v. Lawrence, 9 C.B. N.S. 543; 30 L.J. C.P. 39; Drew v. Lockett, 32 Beav. 499; Strange v. Fooks, 4 Giff. 408.

(i) Churchill, In re, 39 Ch. D. 174; 58 L.J. Ch. 136.

(k) Parker, In re, (1894) 3 Ch. 400; 64 L.J. Ch. 6.

(l) Pearl v. Deacon, 24 Beav. 186; 26 L.J. Ch. 761.

(m) Newton v. Chorlton, 10 Hare, 650; Strange v. Fooks, 4 Giff. 408; Forbes v. Jackson, 19 Ch.D. 615; 51 L.J. Ch. 690; Wulff v. Jay, L.R. 7 Q.B. 756; 41 L.J. Q.B. 322. See also Rainbow v. Juggins, 5 Q.B.D. 422; 49 L.J. Q.B. 718; Taylor v. Bank of N. S. W., 11 App.Cas. 596; 55 L.J. P.C. 47; Dixon v. Steel, (1901) 2 Ch. 602; 70 L.J. Ch. 794.

(n) Duncan & Co. v. N. & S. Wales Bank, 6 App.Cas. 1; 50 L.J. Ch. 355.

(o) Ewart v. Latta, 4 Macq. 983.

(p) Nicholas v. Ridley, (1904) 1 Ch. 192; 73 L.J. Ch. 145.

ment recovered against a principal does not bind a surety, who is entitled to have the case proved de novo (q).

Breach of contracts of indemnity—Bankruptcy of principal debtor.—If the principal debtor becomes bankrupt, or is discharged by a resolution under sect. 28 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, the surety remains liable (r), but if he has paid the debt, he has a right to stand in the place of the original creditor against the estate of the principal debtor; and, if the creditor has received a dividend out of that estate, the surety has a right to be paid that dividend, or to have it deducted from the amount for which he is liable (s), and to have all future dividends secured to him (t), unless he has agreed to waive his right thereto for the benefit of the creditor (u). Where a surety guaranteed the payment of debts to be contracted from time to time by the principal debtor with the plaintiffs, not exceeding 400*l.*, and the balance due by the debtor was allowed to amount to 625*l.*, upon which sum, by a composition with his creditors, the debtor paid 8*s.* 7*d.* in the pound, it was held, in an action brought against the surety on the guarantee, that the dividend was to be deducted from the balance of 356*l.* claimed from the surety under the guarantee (x). So, where two persons separately guaranteed the payment of all goods supplied to A. B., their liability not to exceed 250*l.* each, and goods to the amount of 657*l.* were supplied to A. B., who then became bankrupt, and the creditor proved for the whole amount, and, having obtained 250*l.* from each of the guarantors, afterwards received 2*s.* 1*d.* in the pound on the 657*l.*, it was held that each of the guarantors was entitled to a part of this dividend bearing to the whole the same proportion as 250*l.* to 657*l.* (y).

Recovery of interest on money paid by sureties.—Where a surety has been compelled to pay money which the principal debtor ought to have paid, and has, consequently, lost the use of his money, he is entitled, in an action on the implied contract of indemnity against the principal, to recover interest on what

(q) Young, Ex parte, Kitchin, In re, 17 Ch.D. 668; 50 L.J. Ch. 824; Parker v. Lewis, L.R. 8 Ch. 1035; 43 L.J. Ch. 281.

(r) Ellis v. Wilmot, L.R. 10 Ex. 10; 44 L.J. Ex. 10; Jacobs, Ex parte, L.R. 10 Ch. 211; 44 L.J. Bank. 34; London Chartered Bank of Australia, In re, (1893) 3 Ch. 540; 62 L.J. Ch. 841; Fitzgeorge, In re, Robson Ex parte, (1905) 1 K.B. 462; 74 L.J. K.B. 322; 46 & 47 Vict. c. 52, s. 30 (4). As to the right of a surety under an agreement by the principal debtor to indemnify him, to prove for estimated future liabilities to the obligee, see Moss, In re, Hallet, Ex parte, (1905) 2 K.B. 307; 74 L.J. K.B. 764.

(s) Gee v. Pack, 33 L.J. Q.B. 49; Hobson v. Bass, L.R. 6 Ch. 792.

(t) Thornton v. M'Kewan, 1 Hem. & M. 525; 32 L.J. Ch. 69.

(u) Midland Banking Co. v. Chambers, L.R. 4 Ch. 398; 38 L.J. Ch. 478.

(x) Bardwell v. Lydall, 5 Moo. & P. 335; 9 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 148; Gee v. Pack, 33 L.J. Q.B. 49.

(y) Hobson v. Bass, L.R. 6 Ch. 792; Midland Bank Co. v. Chambers, L.R. 4 Ch. 398; 38 L.J. Ch. 478.

he has been compelled to pay (z); for in every contract of indemnity the party damnified is entitled to recover all such damages, costs, and charges as reasonably result from the fulfilment by him of the obligation entered into on behalf of the principal debtor (a).

Guarantees in firm's name by one of several partners.—By sect. 7 of the Partnership Act, 1890 (b), where one partner pledges the credit of the firm for a purpose apparently not connected with the firm's ordinary course of business, the firm is not bound, unless the partner in question is in fact specially authorised by the other partners; but the section does not affect any personal liability incurred by an individual partner (c). Where the debt secured was that of a third party, Lord Ellenborough held that there was no implied authority from the mere existence of a co-partnership to any one or more of the partners to pledge the partnership name for such a purpose (d). But, if the guarantee, when given, is notified to the firm, and they do not dissent from it, or if it refers to a partnership transaction, and is given to secure the payment of goods supplied, or money advanced to the firm, and added to the joint stock, or if it has been given to secure the performance of something within the ordinary scope and business of the firm, and which one partner generally has power to undertake for or on behalf of the firm, it binds all the partners, and all are liable to be sued thereon (e). As to the effect of a change in the firm upon a continuing guarantee, see sect. 18 of the Partnership Act, 1890 (ante, p. 1087).

SECTION II.

OF MARINE INSURANCE.

Contracts of insurance.—The contract of insurance is a contract whereby one of the contracting parties agrees to take upon himself, and protect the other from, the risks and accidents to which any particular property or any particular individual may (z) Petre v. Duncombe, 20 L.J. Q.B. 242; Bishop, Ex parte, 15 Ch.D. 400; 50 L.J. Ch. 18.

(a) Smith v. Howell, 6 Exch. 737; 20 L.J. Ex. 377.

(b) 53 & 54 Vict. c. 39, s. 7.

(c) As to the liability of one who holds himself out to the creditor to be the partner of a firm, see Good, Ex parte, Armitage, In re, 5 Ch.D. 46; 46 L.J. Bank. 65.

(d) Duncan v. Lowndes, 3 Campb. 478; Hasleham v. Young, 5 Q.B. 833; 13 L.J. Q.B. 205; Brettel v. Williams, 4 Exch. 623; 19 L.J. Ex. 121.

(e) Nolte, Ex parte, 2 Glyn & J. 295; Sandilands v. Marsh, 2 B. & Ald. 679; Gardom, Ex parte, 15 Ves. 286; West of England Bank, In re, 14 Ch.D. 317; 49 L.J. Ch. 400.

be exposed, and covenants or promises, in consideration of a sum of money which the other contracting party pays or binds himself to pay to him as the price of the risk run, to indemnify the latter against these risks and accidents. The party who takes the risks upon himself, or undertakes to indemnify, is called the assurer or insurer, and commonly in our law the underwriter, from his subscribing his name at the bottom of the contract; the party protected by the contract, the assured or insured; and the money paid as the price of the indemnity, the premium for the risk; whilst the contract itself, or rather the written instrument evidencing or constituting it, is called a policy of insurance.

Mutual insurance consists in the association of different proprietors of property exposed to the same risk, with a view of indemnifying at the common expense those members who suffer loss. These are called mutual insurance associations or clubs. The members of such an association are at the same time insurers and insured; and the engagement which each of them contracts with the association at large as an insurer is the consideration or price of the indemnity which the society guarantees to him in return (f). The Marine Insurance Act, 1906 (g), s. 85, provides "(1) where two or more persons mutually agree to insure each other against marine losses there is said to be a mutual insurance (h). (2) The provisions of this Act relating to the premium (i) do not apply to mutual insurance, but a guarantee, or such other arrangement as may be agreed upon, may be substituted for the premium. (3) The provisions of this Act, in so far as they may be modified by the agreement of the parties, may in the case of mutual insurance be modified by the terms of the policies issued by the association, or by the rules and regulations of the association. (4) Subject to the exceptions mentioned in this section, the provisions of this Act apply to a mutual insurance." In general, it is now the association itself which is the insurer, not as formerly the individual (f) See Montgomerie v. U. K. Mutual Steamship Assoc., (1891) 1 Q.B. 370; 60 L.J. Q.B. 429; U. K. Mutual Steamship Assoc. v. Nevill, 19 Q.B.D. 110; 56 L.J. Q.B. 522; Gt. Britain Steamship Assoc. v. Wyllie, 22 Q.B.D. 710; 58 L.J. Q.B. 614; British Marine Mutual Ins. Assoc. v. Jenkins, (1900) 1 Q.B. 299; 69 L.J. Q.B. 177.

(g) 6 Edw. 7, c 41, s. 85.

(h) A mutual insurance association which consists of more than twenty members is, unless registered under the Companies Consolidation Act, 1908, illegal. Padstow Total Loss Assoc., 20 Ch.D. 137; 51 L.J. Ch. 344. The consequence is that associations are now always registered under that Act, usually as unlimited companies, or companies limited by guarantee. See Lion Mut. Mar. Ins. Co. v. Tucker, 12 Q.B.D. 176; 53 L.J. Q.B. 185; In re Bangor and North Wales Mut. Mar. Protection Assoc., Bird's Case, 68 L.J. Ch. 521; (1899) 2 Ch. 593; British Mar. Mut. Ins. Assoc. v. Jenkins, 69 L.J. Q.B. 177; (1900) 1 Q.B. 299.

(i) The provisions as to the premiums are set out in ss. 20 (2), 31, 52—54, 82, 84, 88.

members, and the cause of action of the member as assured, is against the association itself, not against the other members. The consideration which the member gives for his insurance is his liability to contribute in the manner provided by the rules of the association to the losses of other members, and to the expenses of management, and often also the payment in addition of an initial premium or entrance fee (k).

Policies of insurance.—The owner of the property insured generally pays to the insurer a premium at a certain rate per cent.; and the latter then subscribes the ordinary written or printed instrument, called a policy of insurance, whereby he expresses that he "doth make assurance" and cause the party "to be insured" in a certain sum, on certain specified property, for a certain voyage or for a certain time in the case of a marine policy, against certain risks and perils which are set forth in the policy. The policy is frequently preceded by a "SLIP," which is a short memorandum of the terms of the insurance, to which the underwriters subscribe their initials, with the sums for which they are willing to engage. But the slip is often nothing more than an offer or proposal of terms preliminary to the contract (l). Where there is a duly stamped policy reference may be made to the slip or covering note in any legal proceeding (m).

Marine insurance—Definition.—A contract of marine insurance is defined by the Marine Insurance Act, 1906 (n), which came into operation on January 1, 1907, and is an Act to codify the law relating to this subject, as a contract whereby the insurer undertakes to indemnify the assured, in manner and to the extent agreed against marine losses, that is to say, the losses incident to marine adventure (o). The contract may, by its express terms, or by usage of trade, be extended so as to protect the assured against losses on inland waters (p) or on any land (q) risk which may be incidental to any sea voyage (r); and where a ship in course of building, or the launch of a ship, or any adventure analogous to a marine adventure, is covered by a (k) For a series of modern rules fixing the liabilities of members, see North-Eastern 100 A. SS. Ins. Co., 12 Com. Cas. 26.

(l) Rogers v. Macarthey, Park Ins. 39; Parry v. Great Ship Co., 4 B. & S. 556; 33 L.J. Q.B. 41; Mildred v. Massons, 8 App.Cas. 874; 53 L.J. Q.B. 33. As to when the contract is deemed to be concluded, see 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 21, post, p. 1124.

(m) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 89.

(n) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41.

(o) Ib. s. 1.

(p) See Apollinaris Co. v. Nord Deutsche Ins. Co., (1904) 1 K.B. 252; 73 L.J. K.B. 62.

(q) See Hyderabad (Deccan) Co. v. Willoughby, (1899) 2 Q.B. 530; 68 L.J. Q.B. 862; Robinson Gold Mining Co. v. Alliance Ins. Co., (1904) A.C. 359; 73 L.J. K.B. 898; Schloss v. Stevens, (1906) 2 K.B. 665; 75 L.J. K.B. 927.

(r) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 2 (1).

policy in the form of a marine policy, the provisions of the Act, in so far as applicable, apply thereto (s); but, except as provided by sect. 2, nothing in the Act alters or affects any rule of law applicable to any contract of insurance other than a contract of marine insurance as defined by the Act (t).

Subject to the provisions of the Act, every lawful marine adventure may be the subject of a contract of marine insurance. In particular there is a marine adventure where—(a) Any ship goods or other moveables (u) are exposed to maritime perils (x). Such property is in the Act referred to as "insurable property"; (b) The earning or acquisition of any freight, passage money, commission, profit, or other pecuniary benefit, or the security for any advances, loan, or disbursements, is endangered by the exposure of insurable property to maritime perils; (c) Any liability to a third party may be incurred by the owner of, or other person interested in or responsible for, insurable property, by reason of maritime perils (y).

Insurable interest—Definition.—Subject to the provisions of the Marine Insurance Act, 1906 (z), every person has an insurable interest who is interested in a marine adventure (a); and in particular a person is interested in a marine adventure where he stands in any legal or equitable relation to the adventure or to any insurable property at risk therein, in consequence of which he may benefit by the safety or due arrival of insurable property, or may be prejudiced by its loss, or by damage thereto, or by the detention thereof, or may incur liability in respect thereof (b).

The fact of a person being named both shipper and consignee in a bill of lading is primâ facie but not conclusive evidence that he has an insurable interest in the goods; but if he is a mere agent without a lien on the goods, or possession of them as a bailee, or liability to account for their loss by the perils insured

(s) The stamping of a policy on ship under construction or repair, or on trial, is regulated by the Revenue Act, 1903 (3 Edw. 7, c. 46), s. 8.

(t) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 2 (2).

(u) In the Act unless the context or subject-matter otherwise requires,—"moveables" means any moveable tangible property, other than the ship, and includes money, valuable securities, and other documents; and "policy" means a marine policy (6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 90).

(x) "Maritime perils" means the perils consequent on, or incidental to, the navigation of the sea, that is to say, perils of the seas, fire, war perils, pirates, rovers, thieves, captures, seisures, restraints, and detainments of princes and peoples, jettisons, barratry, and any other perils, either of the like kind or which may be designated by the policy (6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 3). As to the construction of the words "perils of the seas," etc. in a Lloyd's policy, see Sched. I., rr. 7—12.

(y) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 3.

(z) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41.

(a) Ib., s. 5 (1). Walton, J., held in Moran, Galloway & Co. v. Uzielli, (1905) 2 K.B. 555; 74 L.J. K.B. 494, that agents of a foreign ship who advance money for necessaries under sect. 6 of the Admiralty Act, 1840, have an interest in the ship for balance of advances unsatisfied by exercising their lien on freight.

(b) Ib. s. 5 (2).

against, he has no insurable interest (c). Freight, which as interpreted by the Act of 1906 (d) includes the profit (e) derivable by a shipowner from the employment of his ship to carry his own goods (f) or moveables, as well as freight payable by a third party, but does not include passage money, is insurable. In the case of advance freight, the person advancing the freight has an insurable interest, in so far as such freight is not repayable in case of loss (g). It has been decided, but after the greatest possible difference of opinion, that the purchaser of a "cargo" at so much per cwt. cost and freight, which is to be loaded when a ship which is expected arrives, has no insurable interest (h). A defeasible interest is insurable, as also is a contingent interest (i); and in particular where the buyer of goods has insured them, he has an insurable interest, notwithstanding that he might, at his election, have rejected the goods, or have treated them as at seller's risk, by reason of the latter's delay in making delivery or otherwise (k). The interest which captors have in time of war in the prizes taken by them, or which the Crown has in prizes before condemnation, is defeasible interest(l). Therefore, in order to have an insurable interest, it is not necessary to have an absolute vested ownership or property in that which is insured; it is sufficient to have a right in the thing insured, or to have a right or be under a liability arising out of some contract relating to the thing insured of such a nature that the party insuring may have benefit from its preservation, or prejudice from its destruction (m).

Insurable interest—Wagering or gaming policies.—Every contract of marine insurance by way of gaming or wagering is void (n). A contract of marine insurance is deemed to be a gaming or wagering contract where the assured has not an insurable interest as defined by the Act, and the contract is entered into with no expectation of acquiring such an interest;

(c) Seagrave v. Union Mar. Ins. Co., L.R. 1 Ch. 305; 35 L.J. C.P. 172.

(d) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 90.

(e) As to assurance on profits of goods laden on board a vessel being an assurance on goods, see Smith v. Reynolds, 1 H. & N. 223; 25 L.J. Ex. 337; De Mattos v. North, L.R. 3 Ex. 185; 37 L.J. Ex. 116; Allkins v. Jupe, 3 C.P.D. 375; 46 L.J. C.P. 824; Berridge v. Man On Ins. Co., 18 Q.B.D. 346; 56 L.J. Q.B. 223.

(f) See McSwinney v. Royal Exch. Assur. Co., 14 Q.B. 634; 18 L.J. Q.B. 193; Chope v. Reynolds, 5 C.B. N.S. 642; 28 L.J. C.P. 194.

(g) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 12.

(h) Anderson v. Morice, 1 App.Cas. 713; 46 L.J. C.P. 11; see Inglis v. Stock, 10 App.Cas. 263; 54 L.J. Q.B. 582; Colonial Ins. Co. v. Adelaide Mar. Ins. Co., 12 App.Cas. 128; 56 L.J. N.C. 19; Ajum Gorlam Hossen & Co. v. Union Mar. Ins. Co., (1901) A.C. 362; 70 L.J. P.C. 34.

(i) Ib., s. 7 (1).

(k) Ib., s. 7 (2).

(l) Lucena v. Crauford, 2 B. & P. N.R. 295; Le Cras v. Hughes, 2 Park. Ins. 568; 3 Dougl. 81 (as to this case see Arnold on Insurance, ss. 301—305); Irving v. Richardson, 2 B. & Ad. 193; 9 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 225.

(m) See the dictum of Lawrence, J., in Lucena v. Crauford, 2 B. & P.N.R. 302.

(n) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 4 (1).

or where the policy is made "interest or no interest," or "without further proof of interest than the policy itself" (o), or "without benefit of salvage to the insurer," or subject to any other like term (p). Provided that, where there is no possibility of salvage, a policy may be effected without benefit of salvage to the insurer (q).

If any person effects a contract of marine insurance without having any bonâ fide interest, direct or indirect, either in the safe arrival of the ship in relation to which the contract is made or in the safety or preservation of the subject-matter insured, or a bonâ fide expectation of acquiring such an interest; or if any person in the employment of the owner of a ship, not being a part owner of the ship, effects a contract of marine insurance in relation to the ship, and the contract is made "interest or no interest," or "without further proof of interest than the policy itself," or "without benefit of salvage to the insurer," or subject to any other like term, the contract is to be deemed to be a contract by way of gambling on loss by maritime perils, and the person effecting it is liable, on summary conviction, to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for a term not exceeding six months, or to a fine not exceeding 100*l*., and in either case to forfeit to the Crown any money he may receive under the contract (r). Any broker or other person through whom, and any insurer with whom, any such contract is effected is liable on summary conviction to the like penalties if he acted knowing that the contract was by way of gambling on loss by maritime perils within the meaning of the Marine Insurance (Gambling Policies) Act, 1909 (s). Proceedings are not to be instituted without the consent of the Attorney-General (t).

Interest of any nature is insurable (u). The following persons have insurable interests: the insurer under a contract of marine insurance in his risk, who may re-insure in respect of it (x), but, unless the policy otherwise provides, the original assured has no right or interest in respect of such re-insurance (y); the lender of money on bottomry or respondentia in

(o) See Murphy v. Bell, 4 Bing. 567; 6 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 118.

(p) See Gedge v. Royal Exchange Assurance, (1900) 2 Q.B. 214; 69 L.J. Q.B. 506; Reddich v. Indemnity Mut. Mar. Ins. Co., (1895) 2 Q.B. 380; 64 L.J. Q.B. 733.

(q) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 4 (2). The proviso contained in this section gives effect to the opinion of nine of the judges in Lucena v. Crauford, 2 B. & P.N.R. 302.

(r) 9 Edw. 7, c. 12, s. 1 (1).

(s) Ib., s. 1 (2).

(t) Ib., s. 1 (3).

(u) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 8. For instances see Wilson v. Jones, L.R. 2 Ex. 139; 36 L.J. Ex. 78; Inglis v. Stock, 10 App. Cas. 263; 54 L.J. Q.B. 582.

(x) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 9 (1).

(y) Ib., s. 9 (2). As to the meaning of the words "in excess of 500*l*." in a re-insurance policy for 1,000*l*., see South British Fire and Mar. Ins. Co. of New Zealand v. Da Costa, (1906), 1 K.B. 456; 75 L.J. K.B. 276.

respect of the loan (z); the master or any member of the crew of a ship in respect of his wages (a); in the case of advance freight, the person advancing the freight, in so far as such freight is not repayable in case of loss (b); the assured, in the charges of any insurance which he may effect (c); a carrier in the goods entrusted to him to carry (d); a consignee with a lien on a cargo for advances (e). The interest which a purchaser has in specific, as ascertained, chattels bought by him, but which remain in the hands of the vendor, covered by the lien of the latter for the unpaid purchase money is an insurable interest (f); so also is the interest which the charterer of a vessel has in the property entrusted to him to be used for hire (g); or the interest which an agent may have in the commission to be earned on goods consigned to him for sale, in the event of their safe arrival (h).

Insurable interest—When it must attach.—The assured must be interested in the subject-matter insured at the time of the loss though he need not be interested when the insurance is effected: provided that where the subject-matter is insured "lost or not lost," the assured may recover although he may not have acquired his interest until after the loss, unless at the time of effecting the contract of insurance he was aware of the loss, and the insurer was not (i); but where the assured has no interest at the time of the loss, he cannot acquire interest by any act or election after he is aware of the loss (k).

If the assured, before the contract of insurance has been completed, has failed to disclose such a material fact as the loss of the subject-matter to the insurer, the latter may avoid the contract (l). The fact that at the time when a policy "lost or not lost" is concluded, the subject-matter has arrived in safety, does not prevent the policy attaching, and the premium is not returnable unless, at such time, the insurer knew of the safe arrival (m). A person who assigns away his interest in a ship

(z) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 10. These loans are, by usage, specially described in policies; see also s. 26 (4), post.

(a) Ib., s. 11. Formerly, the crew of a ship could not insure their wages, upon the ground that it would be contrary to public policy (Webster v. Du Tastet, 7 T.R. 157).

(b) Ib., s. 12.

(c) Ib., s. 13.

(d) Ebsworth v. Alliance Mar. Ins. Co., L.R. 8 C.P. 596; 42 L.J. C.P. 300. See further, s. 14 (2), infra.

(e) Crowley v. Cohen, 6 B. & Ad. 478; 1 L.J. K.B. 158.

(f) Sparkes v. Marshall, 3 Sc. 172; 5 L.J. C.P. 286; but see the observations on this case in the H. L. in Anderson v. Morice, 1 App.Cas. 717; 46 L.J. C.P. 11; Colonial Ins. Co. of New Zealand v. Adelaide Mar. Ins. Co., 12 App.Cas. 128; 56 L.J. P.C. 19.

(g) Flint v. Le Mesurier, 2 Park on Ins. 563 (8th ed.).

(h) Hobbs v. Hannam, 3 Campb. 93.

(i) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 6 (1); Sutherland v. Pratt, 11 M. & W. 296; 12 M. & W. 237; 12 L.J. Ex. 235.

(k) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 6 (2).

(l) Ib., s. 18.

(m) Ib., s. 84 (3) (b); Bradford v. Symondson, 7 Q.B.D. 456; 50 L.J. Q.B.

or goods, after effecting a policy of insurance upon them, and before the loss, cannot sue upon the policy except as a trustee for the assignee, in a case where the policy is handed over to him upon the assignment, or there is an agreement that it shall be kept alive for his benefit (n). If the party in whom interest is averred has parted with his interest after the loss, the underwriter cannot on that ground resist his claim on the policy (o).

Insurable interest—Quantum of interest.—Where the subject-matter insured is mortgaged, the mortgagor has an insurable interest in the full value thereof, and the mortgagee has an insurable interest in respect of any sum due or to become due under the mortgage (p). Although the ownership of the mortgagee is distinguished in the register from the absolute ownership (q), the mortgagee of a ship may protect his interest therein by a general policy on the ship in the common form; and he may insure to the full value of the ship, but can only recover to the extent of his mortgage debt, unless in effecting the policy he intended to cover not his own interest only, but that of the mortgagor also (r).

A mortgagee, consignee, or other person having an interest in the subject-matter insured may insure on behalf and for the benefit of other persons interested as well as for his own benefit (s).

The amount recoverable under an open policy effected by a mortgagee depends upon his intention in effecting the policy. If he intended it to cover the whole interest, both legal and equitable, he may recover the whole amount of the insurance, under trust as to the surplus, to hold it for the mortgagor; if he intended it only to cover his own interest as mortgagee, and the insurance is for more than the mortgage debt, he can recover to the extent only of his charge (t). If, under such circumstances, he has recovered the whole sum in an action on the policy, and retains the surplus, it may be recovered back from him by the underwriters (u).

The owner of insurable property has an insurable interest in respect of the full value thereof, notwithstanding that some third 582; see also Sched. II., Rules for construction of Lloyd's Policy, r. 1.

(n) Powles v. Innes, 11 M. & W. 10; 12 L.J. Ex. 163; see also Rhind v. Wilkinson, 2 Taunt. 237.

(o) Sparkes v. Marshall, 2 Bing. N.C., 774; 5 L.J. C.P. 286.

(p) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 14 (1); see Swan, &c. Co. v. Maritime Ins. Co., (1907) 1 K.B. 116; 76 L.J. K.B. 160.

(q) M. S. A., 1894 (57 & 58 Vict. c. 60), s. 34.

(r) Irving v. Richardson, 2 B. & Ad. 193; 9 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 225.

(s) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 14 (2). See Smith v. Lascelles, 2 T.R. 187.

(t) Carruthers v. Sheddon, 6 Taunt. 17.

(u) Irving v. Richardson, 2 B. & Ad. 193; 9 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 225.

person may have agreed, or be liable, to indemnify him in case of loss (x).

Insurable interest—Assignment of interest.—Where the assured assigns or otherwise parts with his interest in the subject-matter insured, he does not thereby transfer to the assignee his rights under the contract of insurance, unless there be an express or implied agreement with the assignee to that effect; but these provisions do not affect a transmission of interest by operation of law (y).

A sea-policy, in its ordinary form, is not an incident of the property insured, so as to follow its transmission from hand to hand during the continuance of the risks; in other words, the purchaser of the property insured does not, by the simple fact of such purchase without more, entitle himself also to the protection of the policy. The contract of insurance is a personal contract on the part of the underwriter to indemnify the party originally insured against the consequences of the perils insured against; it is not a contract to indemnify anyone whatever who may become interested in the subject insured during the continuance of the risks. In order to enable a purchaser of the insured property to derive the substantial benefit of the insurance, there must have been an assignment to him of the policy by the party originally insured, or, at all events, an agreement or understanding to assign it, or to hold it for the benefit of the purchaser. A person who assigns away his interest in a ship or goods after effecting a policy of insurance upon them, and before the loss, cannot sue upon the policy except as a trustee for the assignee, in a case where the policy is handed over to him upon the assignment, or there is an agreement that it shall be kept alive for his benefit (z). But, wherever he sustains a bonâ fide loss by the destruction of the subject-matter of the insurances, he is entitled to be indemnified, and may sue upon the contract, and the Court will not allow underwriters to get rid of their liability merely because the name of the party they have agreed to indemnify is not on the register (a). A contract for the sale of goods at a price to cover cost, freight and insurance contained the clause—"Insurance for 5 per cent. over net invoice amount to be effected by sellers for account of buyers." Subsequently to the sale the sellers effected a policy

(x) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 14 (3).

(y) Ib., s. 15.

(z) Powles v. Innis, (1843), 11 M. & W. 10; 12 L.J. Ex. 163; North of England Oil Cake Co. v. Archangel Mar. Ins. Co., L.R. 10 Q.B. 249; 44 L.J. Q.B. 121. As to when and how a policy of marine insurance is assignable, see sects. 50, 51, post, pp. 1114, 1115.

(a) Hutchinson v. Wright, 27 L.J. Ch. 834; 25 Beav. 444.

for a larger amount than 5 per cent. over net invoice, and handed that policy together with shipping documents to the buyers in exchange for the prices. A loss having occurred under the policy, the underwriters paid the buyers upon the whole amount insured. It was held, that the buyers were not, to the extent to which the money received by them from the underwriters exceeded the amount of their loss, trustees for the sellers, but were entitled to retain it to their own use (b).

Insurable interest—Assignment of marine policy.—A marine policy is assignable unless it contains terms expressly prohibiting assignment (c). It may be assigned either before or after loss (d). After a total loss, the only property covered by the policy is the assignor's interest in the damages to which he is entitled under the policy. Although, technically, a claim for a loss under a policy is for liquidated damages (e), the proposition that unliquidated damages cannot be assigned has no application to policies of marine insurance, and the effect of an assignment after loss is to transfer this chose in action to the assignee (f). Where a marine policy has been assigned so as to pass the beneficial interest in such policy, the assignee of the policy is entitled to sue thereon in his own name (g), and the defendant is entitled to make any defence arising out of the contract which he would have been entitled to make if the action had been brought in the name of the person by or on behalf of whom the policy was effected (h). It may be assigned by indorsement thereon or in other customary manner (i).

When the assignment is made by indorsement this may be put upon the back of the instrument, either at the time of the transfer of the property insured, or at any other time between the making of the policy and the bringing of the action (j).

(b) Landauer v. Asser, (1905) 2 K. B. 184 ; 74 L.J. K.B. 689.

(c) For a clause providing that a policy should "become cancelled" if the vessel insured were sold or transferred to new management, see Pyman v. Martin, 22 T.L.R. 834.

(d) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 50 (1).

(e) See Pellas v. Neptune Mar. Ins. Co., 5 C.P.D. 34 ; 49 L.J. C.P. 153.

(f) Lloyd v. Fleming, L.R. 7 Q.B. 299, 303 ; Swan v. Mar. Ins. Co., (1907) 1 K.B. 116, 123 ; 76 L.J. K.B. 160.

(g) North of England Oil Cake Co. v. Archangel Mar. Ins. Co., L. R. 10 Q.B. 249 ; 44 L.J. Q.B. 121.

(h) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 50 (2).

(i) Ib., s. 50 (3). The present practice is to endorse the assignment on the policy, but no form of indorsement is given by the Act of 1906. It is possible, however, that the policy may be handed over without indorsement with the other shipping documents, as security for an advance ; see De Mattos v. Saunders, 7 C.P. 570, and the dictum of Channell, J. in Swan, &c. Co. v. Maritime Ins. Co., 76 L.J. K.B. 160 ; (1907) 1 K.B. 116.

(j) In Sparkes v. Marshall, 2 Bing. N.C. 761 ; 5 L.J. C.P. 286, the assignment was not made till five months after the loss was known. Tindal, C.J., said : "We are not aware of any principle on which a change in the interest after the policy is effected, much less after the loss has happened, can be set up as an answer by the underwriters against a claim for such loss," i.e., where there has been an assignment of the policy.

Unless the policy (as is usually the case in insurances by mutual associations) (k) imposes such a condition, the consent of the underwriter is never necessary to the validity of an assignment.

Where the assured has parted with or lost his interest in the subject-matter insured, and has not, before or at the time of so doing, expressly or impliedly agreed to assign the policy, any subsequent assignment of the policy is inoperative: provided that nothing in this section affects the assignment of a policy after loss (l).

Insurable value—Measure of value.—By sect. 16 of the Marine Insurance Act, 1906 (m), "subject to any express provision or valuation in the policy, the insurable value of the subject-matter insured must be ascertained as follows:—(1) In insurance on ship (n), the insurable value is the value, at the commencement of the risk, of the ship, including her outfit, provisions and stores for the officers and crew, money advanced for seamen's wages, and other disbursements (if any) incurred to make the ship fit for the voyage or adventure contemplated by the policy, plus the charges of insurance upon the whole: the insurable value, in the case of a steamship, includes also the machinery, boilers, and coals and engine stores if owned by the assured, and, in the case of a ship engaged in a special trade, the ordinary fittings requisite for that trade; (2) In insurance on freight (o), whether paid in advance or otherwise, the insurable value is the gross amount of the freight at the risk of the assured (p), plus the charges of insurance; (3) In insurance on goods (q) or merchandise, the insurable value is the prime cost of the property insured, plus the expenses of and incidental to shipping and the charges of insurance upon the whole; (4) In insurance on any other subject matter, the insurable value is the amount at the risk of the assured when the policy attaches, plus the charges of insurance."

The value of goods will be the values on board at the place of (k) See Laurie v. West Hartlepool Thirds Indemnity Association, 4 Com. Cas. 322.

(l) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 51.

(m) Ib., s. 16.

(n) As to what "ship" and "steamship" Lloyd's policy include, see Sched. I. r. 15.

(o) "Freight" in a Lloyd's S. G. policy "or other like form of policy where the context does not require otherwise," does not include passage money. See Sched. I., r. 16.

(p) See United States Shipping Co. v. Empress Assur. Corp., (1907) 1 K.B. 259; 76 L.J. K.B. 225. Affirmed in C.A. on a question of fact, (1908) 1 K.B. 115; 77 L.J. K.B. 120, as to the right of a charterer subletting the ship to recover the whole freight without any deduction for the hire of the ship.

(q) "Goods" in a Lloyd's S. G. policy means goods in the nature of merchandise, and does not include personal effects or provisions and stores for use on board; see Sched. I., r. 17. In the absence of any usage to the contrary, deck cargo and living animals must be insured specifically, and not under the general denomination of goods, ib.

loading plus the premium of insurance and the commission. This may include advanced freight, if notified to the underwriter, and the merchant may also include in the valuation the fair estimated profit, though if the policy is undervalued he could not claim it. "The invoice price at the loading port, including premiums of insurance and commission, is for all purposes of either total or average loss the usual standard of calculation resorted to for the purpose of ascertaining the value in the case of an open policy" (r).

Disclosure and concealment by the assured—Insurance is uberrimæ fidei.—A contract of marine insurance is a contract based upon the utmost good faith, and, if the utmost good faith be not observed by either party, the contract may be avoided by the other party (s).

"Subject to the provisions of" sect. 18 of the Marine Insurance Act, 1906, "the assured must disclose to the insurer, before the contract is concluded, every material circumstance (t) which is known to the assured, and the assured is deemed to know every circumstance which, in the ordinary course of business, ought to be known by him. If the assured fails to make such disclosure, the insurer may avoid the contract (u). Every circumstance is material which would influence the judgment of a prudent insurer in fixing the premium, or determining whether he will take the risk" (x).

"In the absence of inquiry the following circumstances (t) need not be disclosed, namely:—(a) Any circumstance which diminishes the risk; (b) Any circumstance which is known or presumed to be known to the insurer. The insurer is presumed to know matters of common notoriety or knowledge, and matters which an insurer in the ordinary course of his business, as such, ought to know; (c) Any circumstance as to which information is waived by the insurer; (d) Any circumstance which it is superfluous to disclose by reason of any express or implied warranty (y). Whether any particular circumstance (t), which is not disclosed, be material or not is, in each case, a question of fact" (z).

There are certain persons employed by shipowners and (r) Per Lord Ellenborough in Usher v. Noble, 12 East, 646.

(s) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 17.

(t) The term "circumstances" includes any communication made to, or information received by, the assured. Ib., s. 18 (5).

(u) 6 Edw. 7 c. 41, s. 18 (1).

(x) Ib., s. 18 (2).

(y) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 18 (3). See Schoolbred v. Nutt, Park, 493; Beckwith v. Sidebotham, 1 Camp. 116; Gandy v. Adelaide Mar. Ins. Co., 40 L.J. Q.B. 239; L.R. 6 Q.B. 746; but see Gladstone v. King, 1 M. & S. 35; Foley v. Tabor, 2 F. & F. 663; Weir v. Aberdeen, 2 B. & A. 320; Haywood v. Rodgers, 4 East, 590.

(z) 6 Edw 7, c. 41, s. 18 (4).

owners of cargo, such as masters and trading agents, whose duty it is to keep their employers informed of all matters affecting the property which it is sought to insure. If one of these agents has withheld information of a material fact from his principal, which he might in the ordinary course of things have communicated to the latter at the time when the insurance is effected, the contract can be avoided by the underwriter on account of the non-disclosure of this fact, which if the agent had done his duty the principal would have been able to disclose. In such a case it may be said that the knowledge of the agent is the knowledge of the principal (a).

The law requires that a full disclosure shall be made of all matters affecting the risk, as otherwise the assured would be entering into the contract with one set of facts before him, and the insurer would be contemplating a different state of facts, the result being that the minds of the parties would not be ad idem, and there would be no true agreement. Thus the existence of the highest good faith between the underwriter and the assured has always been regarded as of vital importance to the contract of marine insurance (b). The same principle applies to re-insurances (c). If before the contract is made any circumstances are known to exist which would affect the nature of the risk, and the amount of the premium to be paid, they ought to be disclosed (d). Facts of this nature are called material facts, and any party to the contract who omits to disclose material facts to the other party is guilty of concealment. Whether such suppression of the truth arises from fraud (that is, from a wilful intention to deceive for the party's own benefit), or merely from mistake, negligence or accident, the consequences will be the same (e). The ground, in short, on which the policy is avoided is that the party has been, in fact, deceived, not that the other party has intended to deceive him. If fraud is present in either form, whether of misrepresentation or concealment, it avoids the policy, although the subject misrepresented or concealed is not a material fact. Generally speaking, as the facts lie most within the peculiar knowledge of the assured, it is the underwriter who avails himself of the defence

(a) Blackburn, Low & Co. v. Vigors, 12 App.Cas. 540, 542 ; 57 L.J. Q.B. 114.

(b) Ionides v. Pacific Fire Mar. Ins. Co., 41 L.J. Q.B. 190 ; L.R. 7 Q.B. 517.

(c) China Traders Ins. Co. v. Royal Exchange Assurance Corporation (1898), 2 Q.B. 193 ; 67 L.J. Q.B. 736.

(d) See Lynch v. Hamilton, 3 Taunt. 37 ; Lynch v. Dunsford, 14 East, 494 ; Seaman v. Fonereau, 2 Str. 1183.

(e) Carter v. Boehm, 3 Burr. 1909 ; Ratcliffe v. Shoolbred, 1 Park Ins. 413 ; Ionides v. Pender, 43 L.J. Q.B. 227 ; L.R. 9 Q.B. 537 ; Shirley v. Wilkinson, 1 Dougl. 306 ; Rivaz v. Gerussi, 6 Q.B.D. 222 ; 50 L.J. Q.B. 176.

of concealment; yet he, as well as the assured, is bound to disclose all circumstances peculiarly within his own knowledge in any degree affecting the risk. Thus, if the underwriter, at the time of subscribing the policy, knew that the ship had arrived safely, the contract will be void as to him, and an action will lie against him to recover back the premium (f). All information with regard to material facts which has been received must be disclosed, even if there are good grounds for doubting the correctness of the information. It is no defence to say, that the source of the information was unreliable, nor will the assured be protected if the information turns out to be untrue. His duty is to disclose the facts and their sources and to leave the underwriter to form his own opinion as to the correctness of the report and its effect on the proposed contract. Sir James Mansfield, C.J., observed (g):—"I cannot distinguish this from the case of Seaman v. Fonereau, where a letter received, stated that the vessel insured had been seen in the night leaky, and had disappeared the next day, and though that rumour was false, inasmuch as the ship kept her course, and was afterwards captured, it was held that, for want of that disclosure, the underwriters were not liable."

A person proposing a marine insurance is bound to communicate every fact within his knowledge that is material, though if a particular fact be actually known to the underwriter at the time, he cannot afterwards set up as a defence to an action on the policy that that fact was not communicated; but, if a material fact be not communicated, which, though known to the underwriter once, was not present to his mind at the time of effecting the insurance, the non-communication affords a good defence to the underwriter; and it is not enough for the insured to show that the particulars supplied by him, coupled with the underwriter's previous knowledge, would, if the underwriter had given sufficient consideration to the subject, have brought to his mind the material fact not communicated (h). In the case of a time policy, if the insured wilfully permits the ship to sail, or knows that it has sailed, on the voyage of which the time policy covers part, in an unseaworthy state, the insurance will be void on the ground of the concealment of a material circumstance(i).

(f) Per Lord Mansfield in Carter v. Boehm, 1 W. Bl. 594; 3 Burr. 1909; see also 3 Benecke System des Assecuranz c. x., pp. 90, 91.

(g) Lynch v. Hamilton, 3 Taunt. 45, and see Seaman v. Fonereau, 2 Str. 1183; Morrison v. Universal Marine Ins. Co., 42 L.J. Ex. 115; L.R. 8 Ex. 197; Willes v. Glover, 1 B. & P. N.R. 14; De Costa v. Scandret, 2 P. Wms. 169.

(h) Bates v. Hewitt, L.R. 2 Q.B. 595; 36 L.J. Q.B. 282.

(i) Parke, B., Gibson v. Small, 4 H. L.C. 408.

If the insured has received a doubtful account of the loss of his ship such as "that a ship similar to his has been captured," and neglects to disclose the intelligence to the underwriter, the policy will be void (k); and so it will, if the assured keeps back any fact which, if disclosed, would in all probability have caused the underwriter to charge a higher premium (l); such as that the captain's judgment in the navigation of the vessel has been restricted by some unusual private instructions (m), or that the ship is a missing ship out of her time (n), or that she had encountered tempestuous weather, and that another ship, that sailed long before her, had arrived (o), or that she had taken the ground or struck on a rock, at an antecedent period, and had not since been surveyed or repaired (p), or that she had been met at sea in a leaky state (q), or had missed joining convoy and been driven out to sea (r), or that hostile privateers had been seen in pursuit of her (s), or that she was intended to be employed in a foreign smuggling transaction, or to carry simulated papers. But the insured, or the party effecting the policy, is not bound to disclose "loose rumours gathered together no one knows how" (t), nor matters which lie as much within the knowledge of the underwriter as of the party effecting the insurance, nor such things as it is the business of the underwriter to know or find out for himself; such as the ordinary risks attendant upon particular adventures, the usages of trade, the dangers of particular seas and rivers, the probability of hostilities between different foreign states; nor the build, age, history, or capabilities of the ship, although, if questions are put to him upon any of these points, he is bound to answer to the best of his information and belief, and, if he knowingly states that which is false, he is guilty of a fraudulent misrepresentation which avoids the policy (u). The insured is not bound to disclose to the underwriter the time of the ship's sailing, or to say whether she has sailed or not, unless the ship is a missing ship. "If the underwriter wants to know he ought to inquire" (x). If (k) Da Costa v. Scandret, 2 P. Wms. 169.

(l) Willes v. Glover, 1 Bos. & P.N.R. 16.

(m) Middlewood v. Blakes, 7 T.R. 162.

(n) M'Andrew v. Bell, 1 Esp. 373.

(o) Kirby v. Smith, 1 B. & Ald. 672; Elton v. Larkins, 8 Bing. 198; Bridges v. Hunter, 1 M. & S. 20.

(p) Gladstone v. King, 1 M. & S. 35; Russell v. Thornton, 6 H. & N. 140; 30 L.J. Ex. 69; Holland v. Russell, 4 B. & S. 14; 32 L.J. Q.B. 297.

(q) Lynch v. Hamilton, 3 Taunt. 37; Lynch v. Dunsford, 14 East, 494.

(r) Sawtell v. Loudon, 5 Taunt. 359.

(s) Beckwaite v. Nalgrove, cited 3 Taunt. 41.

(t) Durrell v. Bederley, Holt, N.P. 285.

(u) Carter v. Boehm, 3 Burr. 1915; Haywood v. Rodgers, 4 East, 597; Freeland v. Glover, 7 East, 464; Harrower v. Hutchinson, L.R. 5 Q.B. 584; 39 L.J. Q.B. 229.

(x) Fort v. Lee, 3 Taunt. 381.

the assured satisfies the requirements of the contract by acting honestly in his disclosures and showing an endeavour to treat the underwriter fairly, he will not be held responsible for not explicitly disclosing a fact which afterwards turns out to be material, if the information which he has given discloses sufficient to warn the underwriter that such a fact existed. If the disclosure is one that should have put a careful man of business upon inquiry, the requirements of the contract will have been fulfilled. The fact that no such inquiry was made by the other party makes no difference, for he is presumed to have waived the need for specific information on the point in question. Lord Mansfield said (y): "The insured need not mention what the underwriter ought to know; what he takes upon himself the knowledge of; or what he waves being informed of." Mathew, J., briefly stated the rule thus (z):—"It is a well-settled principle of insurance law that underwriters are not entitled to be told what they waive all inquiry about. In this particular case they were told that there was a charter, and if they had wanted to learn the contents of that charter they had only to inquire." In the important judgment on this subject delivered by Lord Mansfield, his lordship said (a):—"There are many matters as to which the insured may be innocently silent; he need not mention what the underwriter knows—Scientia utrinque par pares contrahentes facit. An underwriter cannot insist that the policy is void, because the insured did not tell him what he actually knew; what way soever he came to the knowledge. The insured need not mention what the underwriter ought to know; what he takes upon himself the knowledge of; or what he waves being informed of. The underwriter needs not be told what lessens the risque agreed and understood to be run by the express terms of the policy. He needs not to be told general topics of speculation: as for instance—the underwriter is bound to know every cause which may occasion natural perils; as, the difficulty of the voyage—the kind of seasons—the probability of lightning, hurricanes, earthquakes, &c. He is bound to know every cause which may occasion political perils; from the ruptures of states from war, and the various operations of it. He is bound to know the probability of safety, from the continuance or return of peace; from the imbecility of the enemy, through the weakness of their counsels, or their want of strength, &c. If an underwriter insures private ships of war, by sea and on shore, from ports to ports, and places to places, anywhere—he needs not be told the secret enterprises they are destined upon; because he knows some expedition must be in view; and, from the nature of his contract, without being told, he waves the information. If he insures for three years, he needs not be told any circumstance to show it may be over in two; or if he insures a voyage, with liberty of deviation, he needs not be told what tends to show there will be no deviation. Men argue differently, from natural phenomena, and political appearances; they have different capacities, different degrees of knowledge, and different intelligence. But the means of information and judging are open to both: each professes to act from his own skill and sagacity; and therefore neither needs to communicate to the other. The reason of the rule which obliges parties to disclose, is to prevent fraud, and to encourage good faith. It is adapted to such facts as vary the nature of the contract; which one privately knows, and the other is ignorant of, and has no reason to suspect."

(y) Carter v. Boehm, 3 Burr. 1910.

(z) Asfar & Co. v. Blundell, (1895) 2 Q.B. 202; 64 L.J. Q.B. 573; and see S.C. (1896), 1 Q.B. 123; 65 L.J. K.B. 138. But cp. Bates v. Hewitt, L.R. 2 Q.B. 595; 36 L.J. Q.B. 282.

(a) Carter v. Boehm, 3 Burr. 1910.

Disclosure and concealment by agent effecting insurance.—Subject to the provisions of sect. 18 as to circumstances which need not be disclosed, where an insurance is effected for the assured by an agent, the agent must disclose to the insurer—(a) Every material circumstance (b) which is known to himself, and an agent to insure is deemed to know every circumstance which in the ordinary course of business ought to be known by, or to have been communicated to, him; and (b) Every material circumstance which the assured is bound to disclose, unless it come to his knowledge too late to communicate it to the agent (c).

If an agent, whose duty it is, in the ordinary course of business, to communicate information to his principal as to the state of a ship or cargo, purposely omits to discharge this duty, and the principal, being thus left in ignorance of a fact material to be communicated to the underwriter, effects an insurance by means of that agent, the insurance is void on the ground of concealment (d). But where the insurance is effected through another agent, and both he and the principal are ignorant of the material fact in question, the policy is not void, although a former agent who had endeavoured to effect the policy knew of the fact and concealed it from his principal (e); but the two transactions must be separate (f). The agent ought to communicate with the principal by electric telegraph, where that means of communication is in general use (g). Where the agent innocently omits to communicate with his principal, the policy is not void (h). But, when the slip has been initialed, the insured need not communicate to the underwriters facts which come to his knowledge afterwards, but before the policy is completed (i). Although it is fraud in an insured to insure a vessel which he knows to be lost, yet if an insurance has been effected before the loss but without his authority, he may ratify such insurance although he knows of the loss (k).

(b) As to the meaning of "circumstance" see 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 18 (5), supra.

(c) 6 Edw. 7 c. 41, s. 19. See also Empress Assur. Corp. v. Bowring, 11 Com. Cas. 107.

(d) Fitzherbert v. Mather, 1 T.R. 12, 16; Gladstone v. King, 1 M. & S. 35. These decisions have been dissented from by Mr. Justice Story, Ruggles v. General Interest Insurance Co. (4 Mason's Rep. 74), but have been upheld in Proudfoot v. Montefiore, L.R. 2 Q.B. 511; 36 L.J. Q.B. 225. See, however, Blackburn, Low & Co. v. Vigors, 12 App. Cas. 531; 57 L.J. Q.B. 114.

Representations pending negotiation of contract. — Every material representation made by the assured or his agent to the insurer during the negotiations for the contract, and before the contract is concluded, must be true. If it be untrue the insurer may avoid the contract (l). A representation is material which would influence the judgment of a prudent insurer in fixing the premium, or determining whether he will take the risk (m). A representation may be either a representation as to a matter of fact, or as to a matter of expectation or belief (n). A representation as to a matter of fact is true, if it be substantially correct, that is to say, if the difference between what is represented and what is actually correct would not be considered material by a prudent insurer (o). A representation as to a matter of expectation or belief is true if it be made in good faith (p). A representation may be withdrawn or corrected before the contract is concluded (q). Whether a particular representation be material or not is, in each case, a question of fact (r).

The concealment or misrepresentation by the assured, whether wilful or not, of any facts which were calculated to influence, and did in fact influence the underwriter in taking the risk or (e) Blackburn, Low & Co. v. Vigors, ante, p. 1121.

(f) Blackburn, Low & Co. v. Haslam, 21 Q.B.D. 144 ; 57 L.J. Q.B. 479.

(g) Proudfoot v. Montefiore, supra.

(h) Stribley v. Imperial Marine Insurance Co., 1 Q.B.D. 507 ; 45 L.J.Q.B. 396. See, however, remarks of Lord Watson in Blackburn, Low & Co. v. Vigors, 12 App.Cas. 531, at p. 540.

(i) Cory v. Patton, L.R. 7 Q.B. 304 ; 41 L.J. Q.B. 195, n. ; Lishman v. Northern Maritime Insurance Co., L.R. 8 C.P. 216 ; 42 L.J. C.P. 108.

(k) Williams v. North China Ins. Co., 1 C.P.D. 757 ; Keighley Maxsted & Co. v. Durant, (1901) A.C. 240 ; 70 L.J. K.B. 662 ; Boston Fruit Co. v. British & For. Mar. Ins. Co. (1906), A.C. 336 ; 75 L.J. K.B. 637.

(l) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 20 (1).

(m) Ib., s. 20 (2).

(n) Ib., s. 20 (3).

(o) Ib., s. 20 (4).

(p) Ib., s. 20 (5).

(q) Ib., s. 20 (6).

(r) Ib., s. 20 (7).

fixing the rate of premium will give the latter the right to avoid the policy. Between misrepresentation and concealment there is this difference: that whereas on concealment the undisclosed fact would tend to show the risk to be greater than it would otherwise seem to be in cases of misrepresentation the fact so stated would make the risk appear smaller than it was in reality. As in concealment, in order to affect the policy the representation must relate to a material fact. When the underwriter discovers that the representation is untrue, he is entitled to avoid the contract. "Where rescission is claimed it is only necessary to prove that there was misrepresentation; then, however honestly it may have been made, however free from blame the person who made it, the contract, having been obtained by misrepresentation, cannot stand" (s). Misrepresentations charged against the assured must, to avail the underwriter, relate to a fact or facts material to the risk. There is one class of representations which is always material, that is, the class which consists of answers to questions put by the underwriter.

Fraudulent misrepresentation.—Oral evidence of representations made at the time the policy was effected is inadmissible to control the liability upon the policy, unless such representations are fraudulent representations (t). All material representations which are false to the knowledge of the party making them are fraudulent, and may be proved by oral testimony in order to deprive the plaintiff of his right of action upon the contract (u). A misrepresentation will be of a material fact, and will avoid the policy, if it be an assertion in time of war that the ship will sail with convoy or in company with other vessels, and carry a certain force (x). If the representation is true in substance, the policy will not be avoided, although it may be incorrect in minor details; nor will the policy be avoided if it is merely a representation of the parties' own opinion and belief; or if it is immaterial and does not affect the risk; or if the insurer has not been deceived; or if it is made concerning facts which lie as much within the knowledge of the insurer as the insured, and the party making the representation believes it to be true at the time it is made (y). But if the underwriter has been thrown off his guard and prevented from making those

(s) Derry v. Peke, 14 App.Cas. 359; 58 L.J. Ch. 864; per Lord Herschell.

(t) Weston v. Emes, 1 Taunt. 115.

(u) Ante, pp. 125, 126; Assicurazioni Generali de Trieste v. Empress Assur. Corp., Ltd., 76 L.J. K.B. 980; (1907) 2 K.B. 814; Macdowall v. Fraser, 1 Doug. 260.

(x) Edwards v. Footner, 1 Campb. 530.

(y) Driscol v. Passmore, 1 Bos. & P. 200; Hubbard v. Glover, 3 Campb. 313; Bowden v. Vaughan, 10 East, 415; Flinn v. Headlam, 9 B. & C. 693; 7 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 307.

inquiries which he would otherwise have made, the insured will be precluded from suing upon the policy, although the means of information may be within reach of the underwriter (z). A fraudulent misrepresentation, made to the first underwriter on a material point affecting the risk, is considered as a misrepresentation to every underwriter who underwrites the policy after him; because the obtaining of the signature of the first underwriter weighs with the others, and induces a misplaced confidence; but a misrepresentation to an intermediate underwriter has been held not to extend to the others (a).

When contract is deemed to be concluded.—A contract of marine insurance is deemed to be concluded when the proposal of the assured is accepted by the insurer, whether the policy be then issued or not; and for the purpose of showing when the proposal was accepted, reference may be made to the slip or covering note or other customary memorandum of the contract, although it be unstamped (b).

If a material fact comes to the knowledge of the owner soon after he has given instructions to effect an insurance, he must at once communicate with the broker, so that the new fact may be laid before the underwriter (c); but if notwithstanding all his exertions the contract has been already made, it will stand good; and in such cases the contract is deemed to be made when the slip has been initialed or signed, and the non-disclosure of facts which come to light after the slip is initialled will not vitiate the policy (d).

The policy—Contract must be embodied in policy.—By sect. 22 of the Act of 1906 (1) "Subject to the provisions of any statute, a contract of marine insurance is inadmissible in evidence unless it is embodied in a marine policy in accordance with this Act. The policy may be executed and issued either at the time when the contract is concluded, or afterwards" (e). By sect. 91 (1) nothing in the Act, or in any repeal effected thereby, is to affect the provisions of the Stamp Act, 1891 (f), or any enactment for the time being in force relating to the revenue (g). By sect. 93 (1) of the Act of 1891 (h), a contract (z) Mackintosh v. Marshall, 11 M. & W. 116; 12 L.J. Ex. 337.

(a) Barber v. Fletcher, 1 Doug. 306; Sibbald v. Hill, 2 Dow., 266; Forrester v. Pigou, 1 M. & S. 9; Bell v. Carstairs, 2 Campb. 543.

(b) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 21.

(c) Fitzherbert v. Mather, 1 T.R. 12; Proudfoot v. Montefiore, 36 L.J. Q.B. 225; L.R. 2 Q.B. 511.

(d) Cory v. Patton, 41 L.J. Q.B. 195, n.; L.R. 7 Q.B. 304; 43 L.J. Q.B. 181; L.R. 9 Q.B. 577; Lishmann v. Northern Maritime Ins. Co., 44 L.J. C.P. 185; L.R. 10 C.P. 179; Ionides v. Pacific Fire & Mar. Ins. Co., 41 L.J. Q.B. 190; L.R. 7 Q.B. 517; Hagedorn v. Oliverson, 2 M. & S. 485; but cp. Morrison v. The Universal Mar. Ins. Co., 42 L.J. Ex. 115; L.R. 8 Ex. 197.

(e) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 22.

(f) 54 & 55 Vict. c. 39.

(g) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 91.

(h) 54 & 55 Vict. c. 39, s. 93 (1).

for sea insurance (other than such insurance as is referred to in sect. 55 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1862 (i)), is not valid unless expressed in a policy of sea insurance (k). No policy of sea insurance made for time is to be made for any time exceeding twelve months (l); and a policy of sea insurance is not valid unless it specifies the particular risk or adventure, the names of the subscribers or underwriters, and the sum or sums insured, and is made for a period not exceeding twelve months (m). A policy of insurance on a ship under construction or repair or on trial is sufficiently stamped for the purposes of the Stamp Acts, if stamped as a policy of sea insurance made for a voyage; and though made for a time exceeding twelve months, is not to be deemed to be a policy of sea insurance made for time (n); a policy of insurance which includes every writing whereby any contract of insurance is made or agreed to be made, or is evidenced (o), must be stamped in accordance with Schedule I. of the Act of 1891 (p), before it is signed or underwritten (q), but for the purpose of production in evidence a policy of sea insurance may be stamped after execution upon payment of a penalty of 10*l.* (r); where there is a duly stamped policy, reference may be made to the slip or covering note in any legal proceeding (s); and also for the purpose of showing when a proposal for a contract of marine insurance was accepted, although it be unstamped (t).

The policy—What it must specify.—Sect. 23 of the Act of 1906 (u), provides that "A marine policy must specify:—(1) The name of the assured, or of some person who effects the insurance on his behalf; (2) The subject-matter insured and the risk insured against (x); (3) The voyage, or period of time,

(i) 25 & 26 Vict. c. 63, s. 55 (repealed); see now sect. 506 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894 (57 & 58 Vict. c. 60).

(k) See 54 & 55 Vict. c. 39, s. 92, as to meaning of "policy of sea insurance."

(l) 54 & 55 Vict. c. 39, s. 93 (2). See also 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 25 (2).

(m) Ib., s. 93 (3).

(n) 3 Edw. 7, c. 46, s. 8 (Revenue Act, 1903).

(o) 54 & 55 Vict. c. 39, s. 91. As to alterations which may be made in a policy after it has been underwritten, see sect. 96; and as to stamp duty chargeable on policies containing continuation clauses, see 1 Edw. 7, c. 7, s. 11 (Finance Act, 1901), post, p. 1381.

(p) Ib., s. 1. See Genforsikrings Aktisselskabet v. Da Costa, (1911) 1 K.B. 137; 80 L.J. K.B. 236. The stamp duty on a voyage policy for every 100*l.* or fractional part of 100*l.* is 1*d.*; see Finance Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 16), s. 5.

(q) Ib., s. 95 (1).

(r) Ib., s. 95 (2). Penalties are also imposed for assuring without having policy duly stamped, see sect. 97.

(s) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 89.

(t) Ib., s. 21; Ionides v. Pacific Ins. Co., L.R. 7 Q.B. 517; 41 L.J. Q.B. 190; Thompson v. Adams, 23 Q.B.D. 361; Bhugwandass v. Netherlands India Co., 14 App.Cas. 83.

(u) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 23. As to what must be specified in an agreement to reinsure, see Home Mar. Ins. Co. v. Smith, (1898) 2 Q.B. 351; 67 L.J. Q.B. 777; and in a continuation clause for the purposes of the Stamp Act, 1891, s. 93 (3). See Royal Exch. Assur. Corp. v. Sjoforsakrings Aktie-Bolaget Vega, (1902) 2 K.B. 384; 71 L.J. K.B. 739.

(x) As to the mode in which the subject-matter is to be designated, see s. 26, post.

or both, as the case may be, covered by the insurance; (4) The sum or sums insured; (5) The name or names of the insurers."

The policy—Signature of insurer.—A marine policy must be signed by or on behalf of the insurer, provided that in the case of a corporation the corporate seal may be sufficient, but nothing in this section shall be construed as requiring the subscription of a corporation to be under seal (y). The only persons who sign their names at the foot of the policies, that is, underwrite them, are the insurers, who are hence called the underwriters or subscribers. The signatures of the underwriters follow after the memorandum. In policies of insurance effected with private underwriters, the first underwriter to whom the policy is tendered subscribes the policy with his name, and the sum he intends to insure, which is generally written in words at length. The next underwriter to whom the policy is tendered then, in like manner, writes under the first subscription his name and the sum he intends to insure; and the rest follow in order until the aggregate of the separate sums written opposite to the name of each underwriter amounts to the sum which the party effecting the policy desires to protect by the insurance (z).

Where a policy is subscribed by or on behalf of two or more insurers, each subscription, unless the contrary be expressed, constitutes a distinct contract with the assured (a). Therefore, each underwriter is, generally speaking, only liable, in case of total loss, to pay the assured to the extent of the sum he has thus written against his own name; or, in case of partial loss, some proportion or aliquot part of that sum (b).

The policy—Designation of subject-matter.—Sect. 26 of the Marine Insurance Act of 1906 (c) provides that:—"(1) The subject-matter insured must be designated in a marine policy with reasonable certainty; (2) The nature and extent of the interest of the assured in the subject-matter insured need not be specified in the policy; (3) Where the policy designates the subject-matter insured in general terms, it shall be construed to apply to the interest intended by the assured to be covered (d); (4) In the application of this section regard shall be had to any usage regulating the designation of the subject-matter insured."

The subject-matter of the insurance must be so described that the things insured may be ascertained and identified and that it may be known to what articles the risk attaches, whether

(y) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 24 (1).
(z) See also Stamp Act, 1891, s. 93 (3), referred to ante, p. 1124.
(a) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 24 (2).
(b) See Tyser v. Shipowner's Syndicate, (1896) 1 Q.B. 135; 65 L.J. Q.B. 238.
(c) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 26.
(d) See Allison v. Bristol Mar. Ins. Co., 1 App.Cas. 209.

it be to the ship, the freight, or the whole or part of the cargo(e). The policy need not be expressed to be a re-insurance, where such is the fact, but if such a fact were intentionally concealed and were material, the policy might be affected by the non-disclosure (f). Wherever the peculiar nature of the interest alters the risk such interest is the subject-matter of the insurance and should be stated in the policy (g).

If a person insures a cargo to be laden on board on the Brazilian coast, the policy will not cover and protect a cargo taken on board on the coast of Africa (h). If the ship only is insured, the policy will not, of course, cover and protect the merchandise laden on board (i); and if the insurance is merely on "the ship's tackle and furniture," it will not cover stores, harpoons, lines, and fishing-tackle, put on board to be used in the whale fishery (k), unless the vessel is described in the policy as a whaling vessel, and the insurance is declared to be made on a whaling adventure. The provisions of the crew are covered by a policy on "the furniture of the ship" (l). But, if a ship is disabled and puts into port to refit, or is detained by an embargo, the extraordinary wages and provisions for the crew during the detention cannot be charged against the underwriter of a policy on the ship, cargo, and furniture (m). A mere mistake in the name of the ship will not avoid the policy and discharge the underwriters, if the identity of the vessel with the vessel named in the policy is clearly established, and the underwriters have in nowise been prejudiced by the mistake(n). Whatever is considered, by the custom and usage of trade, to be comprehended under the term "goods, specie, and effects," will be covered by a policy upon such property. Money expended by the captain in the course of the voyage for the use of the ship, and for which respondentia interest was charged, is in some trades included by custom under these words (o). A general policy of insurance on goods laden on board a particular vessel extends to all goods which form part of the cargo, and will cover

(e) Crowley v. Cohen, 3 B. & Ad. 478; 1 L.J. K.B. 158.

(f) See 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, ss. 18, 19, as to disclosure by an insurer or agent; Mackenzie v. Whitworth, 1 Ex. D. 36; 45 L.J. Ex. 233.

(g) Mackenzie v. Whitworth, supra.

(h) Robertson v. French, 4 East, 130.

(i) Molloy, b. 2, c. 7, s. 8.

(k) Hoskins v. Pickersgill, Park, Ins. 126.

(l) Brough v. Whitmore, 4 T.R. 206. As to meaning of "hull and machinery" in policy, see Roddick v. Indemnity Mut. Mar. Ins. Soc., 1895 2 Q.B. 380; 64 L.J. Q.B. 733; as to "dunnage mats" in grain ships, see Hoggarth v. Walker, (1900) 2 Q.B. 283; 69 L.J. Q.B. 634.

(m) Robertson v. Ewer, 1 T.R. 132; De Vaux v. Salvador, 4 Ad. & E. 420; 5 L.J. K.B. 134; Field S.S. Co. v. Burr, (1899) 1 Q. B. 579; 68 L.J. Q.B. 426.

(n) Le Mesurier v. Vaughan, 6 East, 385; Ionides v. Pacific Ins. Co., L. R. 7 Q.B. 517; 41 L.J. Q.B. 190.

(o) Glover v. Black, 1 Park, Ins. 10; see Mackenzie v. Whitworth, 45 L.J. Ex. 233; 1 Ex. D. 36.

and protect goods laden on deck, provided it is customary for goods to be so laden, and the risk of the insurer is not thereby increased beyond what must be presumed to have been contemplated at the time the insurance was effected (p). If the insurance is upon all goods that may be laden on board a particular vessel on an outward and homeward voyage, the policy will attach on any goods that may be carried out or brought back on board such vessel (q). If the insurance is on goods from "any port or ports in the East Indies" to "any port or ports" in this country, the insurance will cover any goods that may be shipped from the East Indies for England, whatever vessel may be selected for their conveyance (r). And, if an insurance is effected on goods on board "any ship or ships" that may sail during a particular period from one port to another, or from one part of the world to another, and goods of the assured are laden on board different vessels, some of which arrive safe and others are lost, the insured will have a right to apply the policy to the ships that are lost, and the underwriters cannot discharge themselves from liability by showing that ships answering the description in the policy have arrived safe (s). The words "warranted no iron" have been held to include "steel," because steel is wrought iron, and the object with which the words are inserted must be regarded (t). In construing an open policy in order to ascertain what risks are covered by the policy, the voyage insured must first be ascertained, and if the goods lost were never upon that voyage, the policy never attached (u).

Oral evidence is admissible to explain the customary meaning of terms used in a particular trade, but not to add a new term to the contract, or to show that more things were intended to be insured than are ordinarily or customarily included under the express terms of the contract (ante, p. 69).

General insurance on goods and merchandise—Deck cargoes.—"The term 'goods' (x) means goods in the nature of merchandise, and does not include personal effects or provisions and stores for use on board" (y).

In the absence of any usage to the contrary, deck cargo and living animals must be insured specifically, and not under the (p) Da Costa v. Edmunds, 4 Campb. 142.

(q) Grant v. Paxton, 1 Taunt. 463.

(r) Hunter v. Leathley, 10 B. & C. 858; 8 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 274.

(s) Kewley v. Ryan, 2 H.Bl. 343.

(t) Hart v. Standard Mar. Ins. Co., 22 Q.B.D. 499; 58 L.J. Q.B. 284.

(u) Simon v. Sedgwick, (1893) 1 Q.B. 303; 62 L.J. Q.B. 163.

(x) See Crowley v. Cohen, 1 L.J. K.B. 158; 3 B. & Ad. 478; Wilkinson v. Hyde, 27 L.J. C.P. 116; Brown v. Stapleton, 4 Bing. 122; Stock v. Inglis, 53 L.J. Q.B. 356; 12 Q.B.D. 564; Glover v. Black, 3 Burr. 1394.

(y) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41; sched. 1, r. 17.

general denomination of goods (yy). In practice goods carried on deck are often expressly covered by what is known as an "in and over clause." Thus it is unnecessary, in most cases, for the merchant who wishes to insure his merchandise against sea risks to do more than give a general description of it as "goods" or "merchandise." Under such a policy, in case of loss, the merchant would, in general, recover for any goods of his which proved to be on board at the time of the loss. The term "goods" without any marginal addition, will cover substituted cargoes where the policy is "out and home," or when it insures voyages to successive ports, or is a time policy (z).

Deck cargoes.—Goods carried on deck are not protected against loss by jettison unless it is the custom so to carry them. If, however, the cargo is usually loaded in that way, then the underwriter assumes the liability for the loss of it, when occasioned by any of the perils insured against (a), and it seems that the rule against deck cargoes does not extend to inland river voyages at all (b).

If it is the known custom of the captains and masters in any particular trade to carry deck cargoes, and such a cargo is insured and washed overboard, the underwriters will be bound to make good the loss; but, as goods thus carried are exposed to greater hazard than goods carried in the ordinary way, they will be discharged from liability, unless the custom is clearly established, or the underwriters have express notice of the increased risk (c). But as a rule deck cargoes jettisoned are not entitled to general average contribution (d). By the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894 (e), deck cargoes are prohibited at certain periods of the year. A policy of insurance, therefore, entered into for the express purpose of protecting what the law has prohibited will be invalid (f); but the statute does not make the voyage absolutely illegal so as to affect innocent persons. It must be shown that the policy was effected with full knowledge by the insured that the goods were to be placed on deck, and that the vessel was to sail during the prohibited period; and the knowledge of the ship-master is not the knowledge of the ship-owner (g). A custom that underwriters are not liable under (yy) 6 Edw. 7, c 41, sched. I. r. 17.

(z) Hill v. Patten, 8 East, 373; Tobin v. Harford, 34 L.J. C.P. 37.

(a) Da Costa v. Edmunds, 4 Campb. 142; Gould v. Oliver, 4 Bing. N.C. 134; Milward v. Hibbert, 3 Q.B. 120; 11 L.J. Q.B. 137.

(b) Apollinaris Co. v. Nord Deutsche Ins. Co., (1904) 1 K.B. 252.

(c) Milward v. Hibbert, 3 Q.B. 120; 11 L.J. Q.B. 137.

(d) Wright v. Marwood, 7 Q.B.D. 62; 50 L.J. Q.B. 643; see ante, p. 1010.

(e) 57 & 58 Vict. c. 60, s. 451.

(f) Cunard v. Hyde, 29 L.J. Q.B. 6; 2 E. & E. 1.

(g) Cunard v. Hyde, E. B. & E. 670; 27 L.J. Q.B. 408; Wilson v. Rankin, 35 L.J. Q.B. 87; L.R. 1 Q.B. 162;

the ordinary form of policy for general average in respect of the jettison of goods stowed on deck is a valid custom and does not contradict the terms of the policy (h).

Risks covered by policy—Custom and usage.—Everything done in the usual course of navigation and trade is presumed to have been in contemplation by the parties to every contract of insurance at the time they entered into the engagement (i). If the policy is effected on the ship (k), tackle, boats, and furniture (l), and it is the custom to sling boats over the quarter outside the ship, the underwriter will be responsible for a boat lost by being so slung; for every underwriter is presumed to be acquainted with the practice of the trade he insures, and, "if he does not know, he ought to inform himself" (m). If the liberty of "unloading and re-shipping" is expressly given by the policy, that must be taken to mean an unloading and re-shipping according to the usage of the trade; and therefore, if it is the custom to put goods on board a store-ship to await the arrival of a vessel into which they can be re-shipped, and the goods are lost in such store-ship, the underwriters will be responsible (n). If it is the custom, for vessels insured "to depart with convoy," to sail from the loading port without convoy to the general place of rendezvous for ships wanting convoy, and a vessel is captured whilst proceeding thither unaccompanied to obtain convoy in the customary mode, the underwriters will be responsible for the loss (o). "The term 'ship' includes the hull, materials and outfit, stores and provisions for the officers and crew, and in the case of vessels engaged in a special trade, the ordinary fittings requisite for the trade, and also, in the case of a steamship, the machinery, boilers and coals and engine stores, if owned by the assured" (p).

Intermediate voyages—Custom and usage.—On fishing voyages to the American seas, it is customary for vessels, after the termination of the outward voyage, to be employed in banking or fishing off the coasts of Newfoundland before they return;

Dudgeon v. Pembroke, L.R. 9 Q.B. 581; 43 L.J. Q.B. 220.

(h) Miller v. Titherington, 7 H. & N. 954; 31 L.J. Ex. 363.

(i) Pelly v. Roy. Ex. Assur. Co., 1 Burr. 341.

(k) See 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, sched. 1, r. 15; and M. S. A., 1894, s. 742.

(l) Furniture includes separation cloths and dunnage mats required to make a ship in the grain trade seaworthy, though they were not in use at the time of the loss: Hogarth v. Walker, (1900) 2 Q.B. 283.

(m) Blackett v. Roy. Ex. Assur. Co., 2 Cro. & J. 249: 1 L.J. Ex. 101; Noble v. Kennoway, 2 Doug. 513.

(n) Tierney v. Etherington, cited 1 Burr. 346.

(o) Gordon v. Morley, 2 Str. 1265; Warwick v. Scott, 4 Campb. 62.

(p) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, sched. 1, r. 15. See also M. S. A., 1894, s. 742. "Hull" in a policy on "hull and machinery" does not cover coal, engine-room, and deck stores, provisions and cabin stores, port expenses and advances or premiums: Roddick v. Indemnity Mutual Marine Ins. Co., (1895), 2 Q.B. 380; 64 L.J. Q.B. 733.

and, if a vessel is insured for the outward and homeward voyage, the insurance will cover the vessel during the intervening period occupied by fishing, if she is not detained longer than is customary and usual (q). If it is the custom, when several empty vessels arrive together at the port of lading and cannot all find cargoes, to employ some of them on a short intermediate voyage, and a vessel insured for the outward and homeward voyage is so employed, and then takes on board her return cargo and is lost on the homeward voyage, the liability of the underwriters in respect of the loss will not be discharged; but a usage for the employment of the vessel for an unreasonable space of time will not be sanctioned (r). The usages established amongst the underwriters at Lloyd's cannot affect their liability upon the policy, unless it be shown that the insured was cognizant of them, or was in the habit of transacting business at Lloyd's (s).

The policy—Voyage and time policies.—"Where the contract is to insure the subject-matter at and from, or from one place to another or others, the policy is called a 'voyage policy,' and where the contract is to insure the subject-matter for a definite period of time the policy is called a 'time policy.' A contract for both voyage and time may be included in the same policy" (t). Subject to the provisions of the Finance Act, 1901 (u) (as to continuation clauses) a time policy which is made for any time exceeding twelve months is invalid (x). By sect. 11 of the Act of 1901, for the purposes of the section the expression "continuation clause" means an agreement to the following or like effect, namely, that in the event of the ship being at sea, or the voyage otherwise not completed on the expiration of the policy, the subject-matter of the insurance is to be held covered until the arrival of the ship, or for a reasonable time thereafter not exceeding thirty days (y). Notwithstanding anything contained in the Stamp Act, 1891 (z) a policy containing a continuation clause as so defined, is not invalid on the ground only that by reason of such a clause it may become available for a period exceeding twelve months (a). If the risk

(q) Vallance v. Dewar, 1 Campb. 503.

(r) Ougier v. Jennings, 1 Campb. 505, n. (a); Phillips v. Irving, 7 M. & G. 325; 13 L.J. C.P. 145; Salvador v. Hopkins, 3 Burr. 1707.

(s) Scott v. Irving, 1 B. & Ad. 605; 9 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 89; Gabay v. Lloyd, 3 B. & C. 793; 3 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 116.

(t) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 25 (1); Gambles v. Ocean Marine Insur. Co., 1 Ex. D. 141; 45 L.J. Ex. 366. A policy for voyage and time is chargeable with two duties: 54 & 55 Vict. c. 39, s. 94.

(u) 1 Edw. 7, c. 7, s. 11. As to duty chargeable on policies containing continuation clauses see s. 11 (2), and post, p. 1381.

(x) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41 (2); see also 54 & 55 Vict. c. 39, s. 9 (2) (3). As to the law formerly, see Royal Exch. Assur. Corp. v. Sjoforsakrings Aktiebolaget Vega, (1902) 2 K.B. 384; 71 L.J. K.B. 739.

(y) 1 Edw. 7, c. 7, s. 11 (4).

(z) 54 & 55 Vict. c. 39.

(a) 1 Edw. 7, c. 7, s. 11 (1).

covered by such a clause attaches, and a new policy is not issued covering the risk, the clause is to be deemed to be a new and separate contract of sea insurance expressed in the policy in which it is contained, but not covered by the stamp thereon (b).

The policy—Valued policy.—A policy may be either valued or unvalued (c). A valued policy is a policy which specifies the agreed value of the subject-matter insured (d). Subject to the provisions of the Act of 1906, and in the absence of fraud, the value fixed by the policy is, as between the insurer and assured, conclusive (e) of the insurable value of the subject intended to be insured, whether the loss be total or partial (f). Unless the policy otherwise provides, the value fixed by the policy is not conclusive for the purpose of determining whether there has been a constructive total loss (g).

The policy—Unvalued policy.—An unvalued policy is a policy which does not specify the value of the subject-matter insured, but, subject to the limit of the sum insured, leaves the insurable value to be subsequently ascertained, in the manner hereinbefore specified (h). Where the value declared is the value of a full cargo, and at the time of the loss, there was not a full cargo on board, the insurers are not liable for the full amount of the declared value, but only for the real loss, the policy in such case being treated as an unvalued or open policy (i).

The policy—Floating policy by ship or ships.—Floating policies are very largely used by merchants at the present day, not only to protect particular consignments of goods actually ordered, but in order to cover all such property as the merchant expects to have at risk, to a certain specified amount, within stated limits of space and of time.

"A floating policy is a policy which describes the insurance in general terms, and leaves the name of the ship or ships and other particulars to be defined by subsequent declaration" (k).

(b) 1 Edw. 7, c. 7, s. 11 (3).

(c) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 27 (1).

(d) Ib. s. 27 (2); Wilson v. Nelson, 5 B. & S. 354; 33 L.J. Q.B. 220; Balmoral S.S. Co. v. Marten, (1902) A.C. 511; 71 L.J. K.B. 819.

(e) As to liability of insurer where thing insured has been overvalued see Lewis v. Rucker, 2 Burr. 1171; Irving v. Manning, 1 H.L.C. 287; Barker v. Janson, L.R. 3 C.P. 307; 37 L.J. C.P. 105; or where ship has been undervalued, see S.S. Balmoral v. Marten, (1902) A.C. 511; 71 L.J. K.B. 857; or where there is some mistake as to thing insured, see Williams v. North China Ins. Co., 1 C.P.D. 757; or where some question outside of the contract has arisen, see Burnand v. Rhodocanachi, 7 App.Cas. 333; 51 L.J. Q.B. 548.

(f) 6 Edw. 7, s. 27 (3).

(g) Ib. s. 27 (4). For definition of constructive total loss, see s. 60, post, p. 1185.

(h) Ib. s. 28. As to the mode of ascertaining the insurable value, see s. 16, ante, p. 1115, and as to the measure of indemnity see s. 67, et seq., post, p. 1203.

(i) Tobin v. Harford, 17 C.B. N.S. 528; 34 L.J. C.P. 37; the same rule prevails in the case of a valued policy in freight; Denoon v. Home & Colonial Assur. Co., L.R. 7 C.P. 341; 41 L.J. C.P. 162.

(k) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 29 (1).

With regard to the subsequent declaration by the assured of the name of the ship or ships when known to him, the practice generally is for the broker, on ascertaining the fact, to indorse the declaration of the name or names as a memorandum on the policy. As the merchant may be ignorant of the name of the exact port at which the goods may be loaded on board, an insurance on goods "on board ship or ships" will attach on goods loaded at any port within the limits of the voyage insured (l); though of course it would not cover a consignment sent from a different part of the world from that mentioned in the policy, or from any place, in short, not comprised within the limits of the risks, upon a fair construction of the terms of the policy (m). "The subsequent declaration or declarations may be made by indorsement on the policy, or in other customary manner" (n). The declaration, when made, does not require the assent of the underwriters (o); it is generally put upon the policy for convenience, but this is not necessary, nor need it be in writing (p). The making of the declaration is not a condition precedent which must be fulfilled by the insured before the liability of the underwriters attaches; yet, in order to be available it must be made and communicated to the underwriters, or some one on their behalf before notice of loss of the subject-matter.

"Unless the policy otherwise provides, the declarations must be made in the order of dispatch or shipment (q). They must, in the case of goods, comprise all consignments within the terms of the policy, and the value of the goods or other property must be honestly stated, but an omission or erroneous declaration may be rectified even after loss or arrival, provided the omission or declaration was made in good faith" (r). "Unless the policy otherwise provides, where a declaration of value is not made until after notice of loss or arrival, the policy must be treated as an unvalued policy (s) as regards the subject-matter of that declaration" (t).

The policy—Form and construction of policy.—A policy may be in the form in the First Schedule to the Marine Insurance Act, 1906 (u). Subject to the provisions of that Act, and unless the context of the policy otherwise requires, the terms and ex-

(l) Hunter v. Leathley, 10 B. & C. 858; 8 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 274.

(m) Arnould on Mar. Ins. (8th ed.), vol. i. s. 188.

(n) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 29 (2).

(o) Ionides v. Pacific Ins. Co., L.R. 7 Q.B. 517; 41 L.J. Q.B. 190.

(p) Robinson v. Touray, 3 Campb. 158.

(q) See Inglis v. Stock, 10 App.Cas. 263, at p. 269; 54 L.J. Q.B. 582; as to a series of floating policies.

(r) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 29 (3).

(s) See Harman v. Kingston, 3 Campb. 150; Robinson v. Touray, ib., 158.

(t) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 29 (4).

(u) Ib., s. 30 (1).

pressions mentioned in the First Schedule to that Act shall be construed as having the scope and meaning in that schedule assigned to them (x).

Although the contract must be expressed in a policy, no particular form need to be adhered to so long as that which is used contains the essential requisites prescribed by the statute. The ordinary voyage policy is known as the Lloyd's Policy (y), and as such is sanctioned by statute; there are statutory rules for the meaning of the terms and expressions used therein, except where the context otherwise requires (z). Any clause may be added which is needed for the requirements of the particular case, such as the running down clause; rules as to General Average, such as the York Antwerp Rules; or warranties (zz). A policy of re-insurance on ship executed abroad by a foreign corporation according to the foreign laws, which was in English and the ordinary Lloyd's form, and being substantially identical with the original policy of insurance and an earlier policy of re-insurance providing that all claims thereunder were to be payable in London and any disputes thereunder should be decided by the English Courts was held to be construable according to English law, as this was the intention of the parties (a). As the policy is the only legal evidence of the terms of the contract, it cannot be materially altered without the consent of all parties to it; but until it is underwritten, it can be altered by one or the other party (b); and after subscription a mistake may be corrected if it is clear that the policy, as it stands, does not express the meaning of both parties to it, but this requires very strong evidence (c). A mistake by the assured in declaring interest under a policy may be rectified without the consent of the underwriter (d). By consent of both parties, subject to the stamp law provisions, any alterations may be made in the policy, if written and initialed by the underwriters; but they will only bind the underwriters who have thus acknowledged them (e).

The following have been held to be material alterations:— Alteration of time of sailing (f), adding an alternative terminus

(x) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 30 (2).

(y) For the difference between the rules of construction of the Lloyd's marine policy and other policies or guarantees, see Anglo-Californian Bank v. London and Provincial M. and G. I. C. (1904), 20 T.L.R. 665.

(z) See 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, sched. 1.

(zz) See Arnould, vol. i. p. 18 (8th ed.).

(a) Royal Exchange Assur. Co. v. Sjoforsakrings Aktiebolaget Vega (1902), 2 K.B. 384; 71 L.J. K.B. 739.

(b) Robinson v. Tobin, 1 Stark. 336.

(c) Henkle v. Royal Exchange Assur. Corp., 1 Ves. Sen. 317; Spalding v. Crocker, 2 Com.Cas. 189, 193.

(d) Robinson v. Touray, 3 Campb. 158.

(e) Forshaw v. Chabert, 3 B. & B. 158.

(f) Fairlie v. Christie, 7 Taunt. 416.

ad quem (g), change of destination (h), and the insertion of a subject of insurance in a blank policy (i). On the other hand, immaterial alterations will not vitiate the policy (k). By sect. 96 of the Stamp Act, 1891 (l), it is enacted that—"Nothing in this Act shall prohibit the making of any alteration which may lawfully be made in the terms and conditions of any policy of sea insurance after the policy has been underwritten; provided that the alteration be made before notice of the determination of the risk originally insured, and that it do not prolong the time covered by the insurance thereby made beyond the period of six months in the case of a policy made for a less period than six months, or beyond the period of twelve months in the case of a policy made for a greater period than six months, and that the articles insured remain the property of the same person or persons, and that no additional or further sum be insured by reason or means of the alteration" (m).

Policy—Rules for construction of—Usage.—The principles which govern the construction of sea policies do not vary from those applicable to all other mercantile instruments. The language of sea policies is frequently indeterminate, ambiguous, or technical. When this is so, parol evidence, as in the case of other contracts, is admissible to explain it (n). The language of sea policies is also frequently incomplete as an expression of the meaning of the parties, because it is employed with reference to the usages of trade (o), and the meaning must therefore be explained by parol evidence of those usages, a knowledge of which in such cases forms the only available key to the real intention of the parties (p).

The Marine Insurance Act, 1906 (q), expressly recognises the effect of usage upon the construction of the contract. Sect. 87 enacts that:—"(1) Where any right, duty, or liability would arise under a contract of marine insurance by implication of law, it may be negatived or varied by express agreement, or by usage, if the usage be such as to bind both parties to the contract; (2) The provisions of this section extend to any right, (g) Campbell v. Christie, 2 Stark. 64.

(h) Laird v. Robinson, 4 Bro. P.C. 488.

(i) Langhorn v. Cologan, 4 Taunt. 330.

(k) See Saunderson v. M'Callum, 4 Moore, 5; Clapham v. Cologan, 3 Camp. 382; Saunderson v. Symonds, 1 B. & B. 426.

(l) 54 & 55 Vict. c. 39.

(m) See Kensington v. Inglis, 8 East, 273; Ridsdale v. Shedden, 4 Campb. 107; Hubbard v. Jackson, 4 Taunt. 169; Hill v. Patten, 8 East, 373; Ramstrom v. Bell, 5 M. & S. 267; Sawtell v. London, 5 Taunt. 359; French v. Patten, 9 East, 351; Bhugwandass v. Netherlands India Sea Ins. Co., 14 App.Cas. 83.

(n) Preston v. Greenwood, 4 Doug. 28.

(o) "Not of trade in the largest sense of the word, but of that export and import trade which is conducted by navigation," 1 Duer. 180.

(p) Mason v. Skurray, Marsh. Ins. 185; Schloss Bros. v. Stevens, (1906) 2 K.B. 665; 75 L.J. K.B. 927, 931.

(q) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41.

duty, or liability declared by this Act which may be lawfully modified by agreement."

Every usage of a particular branch of maritime trade which is so well settled, or so generally known, that all persons engaged in that trade may fairly be taken as contracting with reference to it, is considered to form part of every sea-policy, designed to protect risks in such trade, unless the express terms of the policy decisively repel the inference. Nor need any evidence be given in such cases that the usage has been communicated to the underwriter; for, as Lord Mansfield says, "every underwriter is presumed to be acquainted with the usage of the particular trade he insures, and if he does not know it, he ought to inform himself" (r). "Usage," says Lord Campbell, "may be relied upon to show the sense in which an expression found in a written contract is used in a particular trade; and a usage, consistent with a written contract, may be introduced into it; as both parties being aware of it, may be supposed to have intended that it shall form part of their bargain. But to let in verbal evidence of a usage for the purpose of contradicting and nullifying an express written contract, would be contrary to all principle, and has been forbidden as often as the attempt has been made" (s).

The policy being a printed form with the blanks filled up in writing, it is a rule that if there is any doubt about the sense or meaning of the whole, the words superadded in writing are entitled to have a greater effect attributed to them than the printed words; inasmuch as the written words are the immediate language and terms selected by the parties themselves for the expression of their meaning (t). But unless it can be shown that some special meaning is attached to the words, either by judicial decisions, by usage, or by the special circumstances or terms of the contract, the words are to be construed in their ordinary and popular sense. "If there be any one case, in which effect can be given to" the "words, understanding them in their ordinary and popular sense, they ought not to be extended beyond that sense" (u). If, however, any doubt arises as to the meaning and effect of the words, they are to be construed in the sense most favourable to the assured. "In the construction of policies, the strictum jus or apex juris is not to be laid (r) Lord Mansfield in Noble v. Kennoway, 2 Doug. 513; and Lord Ellenborough in Da Costa v. Edmunds, 4 Camp. 143.

(s) Hall v. Janson, 4 E. & B. 504; 24 L.J. Q.B. 101.

(t) Per Lord Ellenborough in Robertson v. French, 4 East, 130; per curiam Gumm v. Tyrie, 33 L.J. Q.B. 97; per Blackburn, J., in Joyce v. Realm Ins. Co., L.R. 7 Q.B. 583; 41 L.J. Q.B. 356; Dudgeon v. Pembroke, 2 App.Cas. 293; 46 L.J. Q.B. 409.

(u) Per Abbott, C.J., in Lawrence v. Aberdein, 5 B. & A. 111.

hold on; but they are to be construed largely; for the benefit of trade, and for the insured" (x).

"The rule of construction as to exceptions is, that they are to be taken most strongly against the party for whose benefit they are introduced. The words in which they are expressed are considered as his words, and, if he do not use words clearly to express his meaning, he is the person who ought to be the sufferer" (y).

Commencement of risk—"Lost or not lost" claim.—The insurers can, if such be the intention and agreement, make themselves responsible for a loss which has already happened when the policy is made, and even if that loss be total, so that the subject-matter of the insurance is then non-existent. This is usually done by the words, "lost or not lost," which are introduced into most policies; but any language indicating the same purpose would have the same effect. Nor is there any sufficient reason why this already existing loss should be wholly unknown to both parties. If known to the assured, he must, of course, communicate it; but then, if neither the amount, nor any circumstances which would determine the amount are known, the insurers may, if they please, take this risk upon themselves (z). So, too, if insurance is effected on goods "lost or not lost," the underwriters are liable for a partial loss which took place before the insured acquired any interest in the goods (a). The effect of the words is thus stated in Rule I. of the Rules for the construction of the policy (b):—"Where the subject-matter is insured 'lost or not lost,' and the loss has occurred before the contract is concluded, the risk attaches unless, at such time, the assured was aware of the loss, and the insurer was not."

Policy—Construction of—"At and from."—Where the subject-matter is insured 'from' a particular place, the risk does not attach until the ship starts on the voyage insured" (c). "Where a ship is insured 'at and from' a particular place, and she is at that place in good safety when the contract is concluded, the risk attaches immediately (d). If she be not at that place when the contract is concluded the risk attaches as soon as she arrives there in good safety, and, unless the policy otherwise provides, it is immaterial that she is covered by another (x) Per Lee, C.J., in Pelly v. Royal Exchange Assur. Co., 1 Burr. 349; and see Carr v. Royal Exchange Ins. Co., 33 L.J. Q.B. 63; 5 B. & S. 433.

(y) Per Lord Lyndhurst. Blackett v. Royal Exchange Assur. Co., 2 Cr. & J. 251; 1 L.J. Ex. 101.

(z) Mead v. Davison, 3 A. & E. 303; S.C. 4 Nev. & Man. 701.

(a) Sutherland v. Pratt, 11 M. & W. 296; 12 L.J. Ex. 235. See also Hastie v. Couturier, 9 Ex. 110, and 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 6 (1), and ib., s. 84 (3) (b).

(b) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, sched. 1.

(c) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41; sched. 1, r. 2.

(d) Ib., r. 3 (a); see also ib., s. 42.

policy for a specified time after arrival" (e). When the risk is to commence "at and from" a particular place it will attach immediately on the ship's first arrival at the port in such a seaworthy condition as to be enabled to lie there in safety, although she is not safely moored, and will continue whilst she is lying at anchor preparing for the voyage for which she is insured (f).

The word "at" covers the risk in the port of departure, while the word "from" only covers the risk as soon as the ship has left the port, and so the combined effect of both terms is to cover the ship in the port of departure and on her voyage (g). "At and from" will protect the ship in calling at a number of places if they are named or implied (h). And these words will protect the ship in the named port if she is ever there in good safety (i), but she must have been at the port in good safety, otherwise she is not protected (k). A ship was insured "whilst at port or ports, place or places in New Caledonia," and on her way to a port in that island, she struck upon a reef and incurred losses. It was held that the words "place or places" occurring in connection with the words "port or ports," meant place or places at which the vessel might arrive with some object other than that of merely passing on her way to some other point; that the vessel was not, therefore, "at a port or ports, place or places in New Caledonia," within the meaning of the policy, and that the insurers were not liable (l).

If the words are "at and from" a certain port, although the insurance begins only at that port, the word may comprehend an open roadstead, or any places included naturally or usually within the port named as places at which vessels receiving cargoes are considered as "at" the port. It is sometimes a difficult question of mixed law and fact, whether a certain place is really within the scope of the word "port" or is a part of the place named, and this question can only be answered by usage and the nature of the case (m). The words "at and from" are often, if not always, especially in a home port, intended to cover

(e) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, r. 3 (b).

(f) Houghton v. Empire Mar. Ins. Co., L.R. 1 Ex. 206; 35 L.J. Ex. 117; but see Chitty v. Selwyn, 2 Atk. 359.

(g) Motteux v. London Assur. Co., 1 Atk. 545; Palmer v. Marshall, 8 Bing. 79; 1 L.J. C.P. 19.

(h) Cruickshank v. Janson, 2 Taunt. 301; Warre v. Miller, 4 B. & C. 538; 4 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 8.

(i) Foley v. United K. & M. Ins. Co., L.R. 5 C.P. 155; 39 L.J. C.P. 206.

(k) Parmeter v. Cousins, 2 Campb. 235.

(l) Maritime Ins. Co. v. Alliance Ins. Co., (1907) 2 K.B. 660; 77 L.J. K.B. 69.

(m) Higgins v. Aguilar, cited 2 Taunt, 406; Moxon v. Atkins, 3 Campb. 200. See generally as to the meaning of the word "port" Hull Dock Co. v. Browne, 2 B. & Ad. 43; Stockton Ry. Co. v. Barrett, 7 Man. & G. 870; Cockey v. Atkinson, 2 B. & Ald. 460; Sailing Ship Garston Co. v. Hickie, 15 Q.B.D. 580; Hunter v. Northern Marine Ins. Co., 13 App.Cas. 717.

a ship while in the port preparing for her voyage, as well as after she begins it. And there may not only be a "deviation" in the port, springing from unreasonable slowness or entire suspension of the preparations, but the policy may never attach from the want of the preparations, or its attachment be delayed by a delay in the preparations; so that where a vessel has been a long time in a port, the risk seems not to commence until preparations are begun for the voyage insured (n). With regard to a ship lying at the terminus a quo when the policy is effected, it appears that the mere presence of the ship in port will not under all circumstances cause the policy to attach. She must be there "in good safety" and therefore the policy will not attach unless the ship is in a reasonable state of fitness for the harbour risk (o). Thus, where a ship, though leaky, was able to lie for a month loading in a river, it was held that the policy had attached (p). Of course the vessel must subsequently be made seaworthy for the marine risk.

The word "port" in a marine policy is to be understood in its popular, or business or commercial sense, it does not in such a document, necessarily, mean "port" as defined for revenue or pilotage purposes (q). "Port" or "ports" may be construed "place or places" and so comprise an open roadstead (r). "'Port of discharge,' includes the whole port within which any portion of the cargo is usually, according to the custom of such port, taken out of the vessel" (s). In the warranty of "freedom from seizure" in port of discharge, "the word 'port' is not to be taken in its narrow or strict legal sense, but rather as meaning the place of discharge agreed upon by the assured and underwriters" (t). "Port of discharge" in marine policies, is in common use where it is intended to limit the risk to such port; and where the policy says to "any port or place," without more, it covers ports of loading as well as ports of discharge (u). If the policy be "at and from a port or ports" or "place or places" in the alternative it must be supposed that (n) Chitty v. Selwyn, 2 Atk. 358; Lambert v. Liddard, 5 Taunt. 480.

(o) Forbes v. Wilson, 1 Park, 472; see also Annen v. Woodman, 3 Taunt. 299; Parmeter v. Caisins, 2 Campb. 238.

(p) Annen v. Woodman, 3 Taunt. 299.

(q) Sailing Ship Garston Co. v. Hickie, 15 Q.B.D. 580, in which tests for determining the business meaning of "port" were considered.

(r) Cockey v. Atkinson, 2 B. & Ald. 460; cp. Price v. Livingstone, 53 L.J. Q.B. 118; 9 Q.B.D. 679; Caffin v. Aldridge, 64 L.J. Q.B. 736; (1895) 2 Q.B. 648; 65 L.J. Q.B. 85; Brown v. Tayleur, 5 L.J. K.B. 57; Nicholson v. Williams, 40 L.J. M.C. 159; Maritime Ins. Co., v. Alianza Ins. Co. of Santander, 77 L.J. K.B. 69; (1907) 2 K.B. 660.

(s) Whitwell v. Harrison, 2 Exch. 127; 18 L.J. Ex. 465, and cases there cited.

(t) 1 Maude & P. 507 (ed. 4); and cases there cited.

(u) The Aiksham, 9 T.L.R. 605; Crocker v. Sturge, 66 L.J. Q.B. 142; (1897) 1 Q.B. 330.

the insurer meant to incur the greater risk of letting the ship sail to several places in order to take in her cargo (x). But where a ship was insured "at and from her port of loading," the Court held that the expression "port of loading" pointed to one single place, and did not allow of the ship loading at two distinct places (though both lying within seven miles of one another in the same bay), in either of which there might have been a loading (y).

The words "at and from" do not imply a warranty or representation that the ship is, at the time of effecting the policy, in the port in question; but it has been decided that the ship must be there within such a time afterwards that the risk shall not be materially varied; and that any delay between the making of the policy and the commencement of the risk, whether such delay be voluntary or involuntary, which has the effect of materially varying the risk, will prevent the policy from attaching (z). On this subject sect. 42 of the Marine Insurance Act, 1906 (a) lays down the following rules:—"(1) Where the subject-matter is insured by a voyage policy 'at and from' or 'from' a particular place, it is not necessary that the ship should be at that place when the contract is concluded, but there is an implied condition that the adventure shall be commenced within a reasonable time, and that if the adventure be not so commenced the insurer may avoid the contract; (2) The implied condition may be negatived by showing that the delay was caused by circumstances known to the insurer before the contract was concluded, or by showing that he waived the condition."

Where the policy has once attached, length of time occupied in necessary repairs, though considerable, does not take the ship out of the protection of the policy, supposing those repairs to be made with an ultimate view of sending the ship on the voyage insured (b); nor does any other reasonable delay, if justified by necessity, or bonâ fide incurred for the purposes of the voyage (c). The principle, in short, established by the cases is, that where the risk "at and from" has once attached, a "detention, for a reasonable time for the purposes of the adventure insured, must be allowed; and that, whether the time is (x) Brown v. Tayleur, 4 Ad. & E. 241; 5 L.J. K.B. 57.

(y) Brown v. Tayleur, supra. There may, however, be a usage to the contrary: Kingston v. Knibbs, 1 Camp. 508, n.

(z) Hull v. Cooper, 14 East, 479; De Wolf v. Archangel Mar. Bank & Ins. Co., L.R. 9 Q.B. 451; 43 L.J. Q.B. 147; Maritime Ins. Co. v. Stearns, (1901) 2 K.B. 912; 71 L.J. K.B. 86.

(a) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41.

(b) See 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 49 (c); Motteux v. London Assur. Co., 1 Atk. 545, 548.

(c) Smith v. Surridge, 4 Esp. 25; Grant v. King, 4 Esp. 175; Langhorn v. Allnutt, 4 Taunt, 511; Raine v. Bell, 9 East, 195.

reasonable or not, must be determined, not by any positive and arbitrary rule, but by the state of things existing at the time at the port where the ship happens to be" (d). A reasonable time is a question of fact (e). The general rule as to the attachment of the policies is subject to be modified by the usages of particular trades (f).

Insurance on freight.—"Where chartered freight is insured 'at and from' a particular place, and the ship is at that place in good safety when the contract is concluded, the risk attaches immediately. If she be not there when the contract is concluded, the risk attaches as soon as she arrives there in good safety" (g). "Where freight, other than chartered freight, is payable without special conditions, and is insured 'at and from' a particular place, the risk attaches pro rata as the goods or merchandise are shipped; provided that if there be cargo in readiness which belongs to the shipowner, or which some other person has contracted with him to ship, the risk attaches as soon as the ship is ready to receive such cargo" (h). The word freight in insurance law has a more extensive signification than in the general law of shipping, and is used comprehensively to denote "the benefit derived by the shipowner from the employment of his ship" (i). Freight, strictly speaking, as between the shipowner and the freighter, is the price to be paid by the latter to the former for the carriage of goods in the ship, and is only payable on the arrival of the goods at their port of destination; but in policies of insurance it also denotes that which is less properly called freight, viz., the price agreed to be paid by the charterer to the shipowner for the hire of his ship, or a part of it, under a charter party or other contract of affreightment (k), and also the benefit which the shipowner expects to derive from the carriage of his own goods in his own ship, in the shape of their increased value to him at the port of delivery (l). "'Freight' includes the profit derivable by a shipowner from the employment of his ship to carry his own goods or moveables, as well as freight payable by a third party, but does not include passage money" (m). The party who insures freight must have an inchoate right to it, in order to (d) Per Tindal, C.J., in Phillips v. Irving, 7 M. & G. 328; 13 L.J. C.P. 145.

(e) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 88.

(f) Vallance v. Dewar, 1 Campb. 503, and other cases there collected.

(g) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, sched. 1., r. 3 (c).

(h) Ib., r. 3 (d).

(i) Per Lord Tenterden in Flint v. Flemyng, 1 B. & Ad. 48; 8 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 350.

(k) Per Lord Tenterden in Winter v. Haldimand, 2 B. & Ad. 649; per Lord Ellenborough in Forbes v. Aspinall, 13 East, 323, 325.

(l) Flint v. Flemyng, 1 B. & Ad. 45; De Vaux v. J'Anson, 8 L.J. C.P. 284; 5 Bing, N.C. 519.

(m) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 90; see Denoon v. Home and Colonial Assur. Co., L.R. 7 C.P. 341; 41 L.J. C.P. 162.

entitle him so to insure, i.e., he must be in such a position with regard to the expected freight that in the ordinary course nothing would prevent him from ultimately having a perfect right to it but the intervention of the perils insured against, or other maritime perils incident to the voyage. The charterer may insure advanced freight (n), i.e., money advanced by him to the shipowner under their agreement as part payment of the freight specifically, e.g., as "advances on account of freight," or "advances against freight" (o).

The freight to be earned by the vessel on the performance of the voyage may be insured as well as the vessel itself, and the cargo laden on board (p). The object of the contract is to protect the insured from being deprived by any of the perils insured against of the profit he would otherwise earn from the carriage of the goods. It is incumbent, therefore, on the insured to prove that, unless some of the perils insured against had intervened, some freight would have been earned, and evidence must be given, either that goods were put on board from the carriage of which freight would result, or that there was some contract under which the shipowner, if the voyage were not stopped by perils insured against, would have been entitled to demand freight (q). Prepaid freight cannot be recovered back from the shipowner (r). When an express contract of affreightment, under which the shipowner is entitled to the freight insured, can be proved, the risk on the policy will commence from the time that the shipowner has put himself into a condition to earn the freight, by making the vessel ready for sea and placing her at the disposal of the charterer, whether any goods have or have not been actually shipped on board under the contract (s). Thus, if a vessel is chartered for a voyage from A. to B., the interest in the freight commences on the vessel's sailing for A., either in ballast or with a small quantity only of goods for B., so long as she is starting solely with a view to the chartered freight (t). But, if no express contract of affreightment can be

(n) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 12.

(o) Price v. Maritime Ins. Co., (1901) 2 K.B. 412 ; 70 L.J. K.B. 780 ; Wilson v. Martin, 11 Ex. 684 ; 25 L.J. Ex. 217 ; Williams v. North China Ins. Co., 1 C.P.D. 757, 761 ; see Blakey v. Dixon, 2 B. & P. 321 ; Winter v. Haldimand, 2 B. & Ad. 649, 653, 658 ; Etches v. Aldan, 1 Man. & R. 157 ; Kirchner v. Venus, 12 Moore, P.C.C. 361, 390 ; per Blackburn, J., Allison v. Bristol Marine Ins. Co., 1 App.Cas. 229.

(p) As to insuring advances on freight, see Price v. Maritime Ins. Co., (1901) 2 K.B. 412 ; 70 L.J. K.B. 780.

(q) Lord Ellenborough : Forbes v. Aspinall, 13 East. 325 ; Patrick v. Eames, 3 Campb. 441.

(r) Allison v. Bristol Ins. Co., 1 App.Cas. 209.

(s) Thompson v. Taylor, 6 T.R. 478 ; Truscott v. Christie, 2 B. & B. 320 ; Devaux v. J'Anson, 5 Bing. N.C. 519 ; 8 L.J. C.P. 284.

(t) Barber v. Fleming, L.R. 5 Q.B. 59 ; 39 L.J. Q.B. 25 ; Foley v. United Fire Assur. Co., L.R. 5 C.P. 155 ; 39 L.J. C.P. 206 ; Mercantile Steam Co. v. Tyser, 7 Q.B.D. 73.

proved, the risk will not attach on the policy until goods have been actually shipped on board under circumstances giving the shipowner a right to freight (u).

When the insurance is on the freight to be earned on the outward and homeward voyage, and there is an express contract of charter-party for the outward and homeward voyage, the liability of the insurer will continue all through the outward and homeward voyage, whether any of the homeward cargo had or had not been taken on board at the time of the loss (x); but, if the insurance is on freight to be earned out and home, and the insured has only made a contract of affreightment for the outward voyage, the liability of the insurer, as respects the homeward voyage, will not commence until an express contract of affreightment for the homeward voyage has been entered into, or until a return cargo or return merchandise has been shipped on board, giving the shipowner a right to homeward freight(y). Freight may be insured for a portion of the voyage as well as a cargo of goods; and, if an insurance on freight is effected on a voyage from A. to B., the risk is not varied, and the underwriters are not discharged, because the vessel is in reality sailing from A. to C., touching at B., and the insured has neglected to disclose that fact to the underwriters (z). But, if the voyage is altogether a different voyage from the one insured, as, for instance, if the insurance is on the freight to be earned under a contract of affreightment for a particular voyage, and the voyage is subsequently altered, the underwriter will be discharged (a).

Insurance on passage money.—When the insurance has been effected on passage-money, and the ship is disabled and obliged to put into port for repairs, and great expenses are incurred in maintaining the passengers, there is no loss for which the underwriters are liable, if the vessel ultimately completes the voyage and earns the money (b).

Insurance on profits.—Profits may be insured equally by valued and open policies (c); but, whether insured by one or the other, it has been held that the assured cannot recover unless he proves that but for the intervention of the perils insured against some profit would in fact have been realised by the sale of his goods on arrival (d). When profits expected

(u) Tonge v. Watts, 2 Str. 1251.
(x) Davidson v. Willasey, 1 M. & S. 313; Atty v. Lindo, 1 B. & P. N.R. 236.
(y) Williamson v. Innes, 8 Bing. 81, n.
(z) Taylor v. Wilson, 15 East, 330.
(a) Sellar v. M'Vicar, 1 B. & P. N.R. 23.
(b) Willis v. Cooke, 5 E. & B. 647; 25 L.J. Q.B. 16; as to insurance against the charges and liabilities which may be incurred under the Passengers Act, 1852, see Gibson v. Bradford, 4 E. & B. 586; 24 L.J. Q.B. 159.
(c) Eyre v. Glover, 3 Campb. 276; 16 East, 218.
(d) Hodgson v. Glover, 6 East, 316.

to be realised from the carriage of merchandise are insured from the ordinary perils of the sea, and the ship is lost by a peril insured against, but the merchandise is brought safe to the port of destination by another vessel, there is no loss of profit within the meaning of the policy, and the underwriters are not responsible (e).

A charterer who enters into a sub-charter or contracts to carry goods in the ship may insure his expected profit which is properly described as "profit on charter" (f).

A person may also insure the sums which he is to receive by way of commission on the sale of merchandise; and if the merchandise from the sale of which such commissions were to arise was only prevented from arriving at the place of sale by the perils insured against, the assured may recover to the extent of his loss (g). The commission or brokerage which a ship's husband or shipbroker expects to earn under a binding contract can no doubt be insured if the earning thereof is liable to be prevented by maritime perils affecting the ship (h).

Insurance on bottomry and respondentia loans.—Loans on bottomry, or respondentia, are in the strictest sense maritime loans. A loan on bottomry is a loan on the security of the ship, whilst a loan on respondentia is a loan on the security of the goods. But in both cases it is of the essence of these maritime loans that the debt is not recoverable, if the ship be lost, or if the goods be lost. Loans on bottomry and respondentia, though themselves a species of insurance, may yet be the subjects of insurance, inasmuch as they are an interest exposed to risk from the perils of the sea (i). The lender (k) alone can insure the sum advanced; the nature of the contract shows this. Where the loan is made repayable in any event, the lender cannot insure it as a bottomry loan (l). The bond should always describe the risk which the lender assumes; and it is only against these risks that he has an insurable interest; for if the ship be lost by a peril, or from a cause, not at the risk of the lender, as, for example, if the ship be lost through the mis-

The law is different in the United States. See 1 Parsons, Ins., 194, 195.

(e) Chape v. Reynolds, 5 C.B. N.S. 651; 28 L.J. C.P. 194.

(f) See Asfar & Co. v. Blundell, (1896) 1 Q.B. 123; 65 L.J. Q.B. 138, for the nature of such an insurance.

(g) Flint v. Le Mesurier, before Lord Kenyon, 2 Park, Ins. 563; Barclay v. Cousins, 2 East, 544; King v. Glover, 2 B. & P. N.R. 206.

(h) See Buchanan v. Faber, 4 Com. Cas. 223; and per Lord Mansfield, as to prize agents, in Le Cras v. Hughes, 2 Park, Ins. 569.

(i) 1 Emerigon, c. viii., s. 11, pp. 241, 243; Pothier, Traité d'Assurance, Nos. 30, 31; Glover v. Black, 3 Burr. 1394; 1 W. Bl. 405.

(k) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 10.

(l) Stainbank v. Fenning, 11 C.B. 51; 20 L.J. C.P. 226; Stainbank v. Shepard, 13 C.B. 418; 22 L.J. Ex. 341; and see Simonds v. Hodgson, 6 Bing. 114; S. C. in error 3 B. & Ad. 50; 1 L.J. K.B. 51.

conduct of the master or owner, the debt survives. The risks which the lender assumes are generally the perils of the sea, and any words which import that the money borrowed is not to be paid unless she arrives safely are sufficient to indicate this. Whatever be the phraseology of the bond, the insurable interest in the lender on bottomry is the risk he runs of having the bond discharged, by the perils which he assumes.

Respondentia and bottomry loans must be specifically described in the policy; they cannot be insured under the general denomination of goods and merchandise (m). Yet if it can be shown to be the usage of any particular course of trade to insure these interests under the general words, they may be recovered under a policy containing such words only (n).

Commencement of risk on goods.—"Where goods or other moveables are insured 'from the loading thereof,' the risk does not attach until such goods or moveables are actually on board, and the insurer is not liable for them while in transit from the shore to the ship" (o).

The clause deferring the commencement of the risk is in Lloyd's policy in the following form:—"Beginning the adventure upon the said goods and merchandises upon the loading thereof aboard the said ship . . . upon the said ship, &c., and shall so continue and endure during her abode there, upon the said ship, &c. And further until the said ship with all her ordnance tackle apparel &c. and goods and merchandises whatsoever shall be arrived at upon the said ship &c. until she hath moored at anchor twenty-four hours in good safety; and upon the goods and merchandises, until the same be there discharged and safely landed" (p).

The common form of policy in this country affords no protection against those dangers to which the goods are exposed in being carried in boats or lighters from the quays or wharves of the port of loading to the ship's side. In this respect our practice differs from that of almost all continental states, which either decree by their laws or stipulate in their policies that the risk of the underwriters on goods shall commence directly the goods leave the shore in order to be loaded on board the ship. Of course goods even in this country may be protected while thus in transit from quay to ship by an express clause in the (m) See Glover v. Black, 3 Burr. 1394; 1 W. Bl. 399, 405, 422; Simonds v. Hodgson, 3 B. & Ad. 50; 1 L.J. K.B. 50. Glover v. Black was commented on in Mackenzie v. Whitworth, L.R. 10 Ex. 142; 1 Ex. D. 36; 45 L.J. Ex. 233; 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 10.

(n) Gregory v. Christie, 3 Doug. 419; 1 Marshall, Ins. 326.

(o) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, sched. 1, r. 4.

(p) Ib., sched. 1.

policy duly framed for the purpose. Thus, where a policy on goods at and from St. Petersburg to London contained this clause—"Beginning the adventure on the said goods from and immediately following the loading thereof on board boats at St. Petersburg"—it was not disputed that the risk on the goods commenced directly they were put on board boats at St. Petersburg to be loaded (in the usual course of trade there) on board the ship at Cronstadt (q). The risk as regards goods in the common form of policy commences from the "loading" and terminates with the "landing," while the risk upon the ship terminates when she has been moored at anchor twenty-four hours in good safety. Where there is an express stipulation in a policy of insurance on goods—as is usually the case—to the effect that the risk upon the policy shall commence from the loading of the goods on board the ship, and whenever an insurance is effected on goods laden on board a particular vessel, the risk on the policy does not commence until the goods are safely shipped on board. If they are lost by the upsetting of boats or lighters whilst they are being conveyed from the shore to the ship preparatory to the voyage the underwriters will not be responsible for the loss (qq).

Whenever, by the express terms of the policy, the adventure is to begin from the loading of goods on board at a particular place, the risk on the policy will not attach if no goods are taken on board at the place specified (r), or if the vessel is lost before she arrives at the port of loading (s); and the policy will not cover and protect goods previously taken on board, as the adventure had not commenced when those goods were received; but this, being a strict construction, has been relaxed when there is anything on the face of the instrument to satisfy the Court that the policy was intended to cover goods previously on board (t); and, therefore, if the policy is expressed to be made in continuation of a former policy, which former policy covered the antecedent cargo, the goods previously laden on board, as well as those received on board at the subsequent place of load-

(q) Harry v. Royal Exchange Assur. Co., 2 B. & P. 430; see per Heath, J., ib. 435. A clause such as "including risk of craft to and from the vessel" is commonly inserted in English policies. It is now also common to insert in Lloyd's policies a clause, called the "warehouse to warehouse" clause, which covers "all and every risk in craft to and from the vessel or vessels, and all risks, including fire, from the warehouse of the consignor by any conveyances by land or by water, and until safely delivered into the warehouse of the consignees and/or their agents: see Tole v. Chalmers, 5 Com. Cas. 213.

(qq) Arnould, vol. 1, p. 30 (ed. 8).

(r) Royal Exchange Assur. Co. v. McSwiney, 19 L.J. Q.B. 222; 14 Q.B. 661.

(s) Halhead v. Young, 6 E. & B. 312; 25 L.J. Q.B. 290.

(t) Mellish v. Allnutt, 2 M. & S. 106; Rickman v. Carstairs, 5 B. & Ad. 663; 3 L.J. K.B. 28.

ing designated in the subsequent policy, will be protected (u). And, if the adventure is to commence on the goods "whereso-ever loaded," the Courts will give the words the largest signification, so as to cover all antecedent shipments (x). Where part of an antecedent shipment was taken out at the loading port mentioned in the policy as the port from whence the adventure was to commence, and the whole cargo was inspected by custom-house officers for adjusting duties which were paid on it at that port, and was then put on board again with the knowledge of the underwriter, this was held to be in substance a re-loading of the whole cargo, so as to make it a cargo laden on board at the loading port mentioned in the charter-party (y).

The policy, however, protects goods loaded at a "liberty port" under the following or any similar clause:—"With liberty for the ship in that voyage to proceed and sail to and touch and stay at any ports or places whatsoever for any purpose whatsoever without being deemed a deviation" (z).

As regards "freight," the policy may attach from the moment the insurable interest exists, but to effect this the policy must be specially worded. A ship was chartered to carry a cargo from Liverpool to Lagos, there discharge, and reload another cargo for the United Kingdom, in consideration of a lump sum by way of freight, payable half before sailing from Liverpool, half on delivery of the homeward cargo. The shipowner effected an insurance on freight "at and from Lagos," and the policy contained a clause whereby the insurance company agreed that the insurance "shall commence upon freight and goods on merchandise aforesaid from the loading of the goods or merchandise on board the said ship or vessel at as above." The ship was lost before she had shipped any of her homeward cargo. It was held that this clause precluded the assured from recovering against the underwriters, although the freight was chartered freight (a). In another case the assured assigned a policy on chartered freight of the vessel Napier on a voyage to Baker's Island, and from Baker's Island to a port of destination in the United Kingdom. They then caused themselves to be re-insured, "lost or not lost, upon freight payable in respect to this present voyage

(u) Bell v. Hobson, 16 East, 240; Joyce v. Realm Insur. Co., L.R. 7 Q.B. 580; 41 L.J. Q.B. 356.

(x) Gladstone v. Clay, 1 M. & S. 418.

(y) Norman v. Kettlewell, 16 East, 188; Carr v. Montefiore, 33 L.J. Q.B. 57, 257; 5 B. & S. 408.

(z) Grant v. Delacour, 1 Taunt. 466; and see Hunter v. Leathley, 10 B. & C. 858; 8 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 274; affirmed 9 L.J. (O.S.) Ex. 118; Barclay v. Stirling, 5 M. & S. 6; Violett v. Allnutt, 3 Taunt, 419; cp. Grant v. Parton, 1 Taunt. 463.

(a) Beckett v. West of England Mar. Ins. Co., 25 L.T. 739; Hopper v. Wear Marine Ins. Co., 46 L.T. 107; Truscott v. Christie, 5 Moore, 33.

to be performed by the vessel Napier from Baker's Island to a port of discharge in the United Kingdom; the insurance on the freight beginning from the loading of the vessel." The Napier arrived at Baker's Island, and was wrecked after taking in about two-thirds of her homeward cargo. It was held, that the assured were not entitled to recover as for a total or partial loss of the freight—by Blackburn, J., on the ground that it was not intended that the risk should commence until the vessel sailed on her voyage from Baker's Island, and that the words "beginning from the loading of the vessel" did not extend the liability of the underwriters, but only added the further statement that they would not be liable for freight until the goods were actually loaded—by Mellor, J., and Lush, J., on the ground that these words did create a liability before the voyage commenced, but that the word "loading" must be taken to mean "complete loading" so that as the cargo was never fully loaded, the policy did not attach, and nothing could be recovered (b).

Duration and termination of risk on goods.—Where the risk on goods or other moveables continues until they are "safely landed," they must be landed in the customary manner and within a reasonable time after arrival at the port of discharge, and if they are not so landed the risk ceases (c). Whether the ship has arrived or not is a question of fact, but the rule is that a ship has arrived when she has reached "the place at which ships of her character ordinarily anchor. Underwriters must take notice of the usual practices prevailing in such cases" (d). The question of what is a "reasonable time" is a question of fact (e). The risk on "goods" may be of longer duration than the risk on ship when the policy is in the common form, and it will be so in all such cases where the ship cannot discharge within the twenty-four hours during which the protection extends; but the goods must be landed within a reasonable time. By "safely landed" is meant safely delivered on shore, at the ordinary wharves and quays or customary landing-places within the limits of the port of discharge (f). These limits are to be ascertained in case of doubt by the evidence of mercantile

(b) Jones v. Neptune Mar. Ins. Co., 41 L.J. Q.B. 370; L.R. 7 Q.B. 702; see also Atty v. Lindo, 1 Bos. & P. (N.R.) 236; Mackenzie v. Shedden, 2 Campb. 431; Sellar v. McVicar, 1 Bos. & P. (N.R.) 23; Foley v. United Fire and Mar. Ins. Co., 39 L.J. C.P. 206; Williamson v. Innes, 8 Bing. 81; Horncastle v. Stuart, 7 East, 400; Thompson v. Taylor, 6 T.R. 478.

(c) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, sched. 1, r. 5.

(d) Per Martin, B., in Lindsay v. Janson, 4 H. & N. 705; 28 L.J. Ex. 315. See also Stone v. Mar. Ins. Co. of Gothenburg, 1 Ex.D. 81; 45 L.J. Ex. 361; Samuel v. Royal Exchange Assur., 8 B. & C. 119; 6 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 315.

(e) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 88.

(f) See Gatliffe v. Bourne, 4 Bing. N.C. 314; Bourne v. Gatliffe (in error), 3 M. & G. 643; S.C. before the House of Lords, 7 M. & G. 850

usage (g). It is frequently necessary to employ smaller craft, such as lighters, boats, &c., to carry the goods from the ship to the shore. Whenever it is established that such a usage exists by the general course of trade, the underwriters are liable for any loss or damage that may happen to the goods in the course of their being so carried; for they are being landed in the customary manner (h). "The insurer, in estimating the price at which he is willing to indemnify the trader against all risques, must have under his consideration the nature of the voyage to be performed, and the usual course and manner of doing it. Everything done in the usual course must have been foreseen and in contemplation, at the time he engaged. He took the risque upon a supposition that what was usual or necessary, would be done. . . . Therefore, when goods are insured 'till landed,' without express words, the insurance extends to the boat, the usual method of landing goods out of a ship, upon the shore. If it is usual to stay so long at a port, or to go out of the way, the insurer is considered as understanding that usage" (i). In the port of London public lighters being employed in the general course of trade to unload ships' goods on such lighters, while being conveyed from the ship to the wharf are under the protection of this policy; but if the merchant sends his own lighter, the underwriter is discharged (k). This last statement of the law was questioned by Mathew, J., who said: "The case of Sparrow v. Carruthers (l) was decided in 1746 under a course of business totally different from that obtaining at the present time. Though the judgment in that case was assented to by a jury of merchants, it would appear to-day to be a very extraordinary decision to arrive at. Similarly with the later case of Strong v. Natally (m). But in any case the difficulty raised by those cases was obviated by inserting the clause 'including risk of craft.' That clause must cover carriage in a hired lighter, and why should it not also cover it in a lighter belonging to the assured, the person most concerned for the safety of the cargo?" (n). A policy of insurance on goods which includes "all risk of craft until the goods are discharged and safely

(g) See per Lord Esher in Sailing Ship Garston Co. v. Hickie, 15 Q.B.D. 580.

(h) Hurry v. Royal Exchange Assur., 2 B. & P. 430; Rucker v. London Assur. Co., 2 B. & P. 432; Matthie v. Potts, 3 B. & P. 23; Stewart v. Bell, 5 B. & A. 238.

(i) Per Lord Mansfield in Pelly v. Royal Exchange Assur. Co., 1 Burr. 348.

(k) Rucker v. London Assur. Co., 2 B. & P. N.R. 432; Stewart v. Bell, 5 B. & Ald. 238. See also Strong v. McAlly, 1 B. & P. N.R. 16, doubted in Paul v. Ins. Co. of North America, 15 T.L.R. 534.

(l) 2 Str. 1236.

(m) 1 B. & P. N.R. 16.

(n) Paul v. Ins. Co. of North America, 15 T.L.R. at p. 535.

landed " does not cover the risk to the goods while waiting on lighters at the port of delivery for transhipment into an export vessel. Bowen, L.J., said (o): " The risk insured against is the risk of the transit upon the lighters which have in the ordinary course of business to convey the goods to the shore. The nature of this risk can be perfectly appreciated and estimated by the parties to the contract. Landing goods means putting them upon the land, or upon that which by custom of the port is its equivalent. In the present case, instead of placing the goods on lighters to carry them to the shore, the goods were placed upon lighters which were to take them to an export vessel and there to load them as soon as she was ready to receive them. Such transhipment, however usual in the trade, is not the same thing as landing the goods directly and immediately upon the quay. A lighter which has to land its cargo has only to make for the quay and to wait its turn in accordance with the usages of the port. A lighter which is intended to tranship the goods to another ship may have to wait for its arrival and till it is ready to take the cargo, and may thus be subject to additional risks of exposure to the weather and of collision with other vessels or barges in the dock. In the smaller London docks lighters may be comparatively safe, but in the larger docks they are often swamped by the wind and by the waters; and yet might be obliged to wait days or possibly weeks for the arrival of the export vessel to which the goods were consigned." The risk on goods, therefore, ends directly they are put on terra firma, unless they are placed there only for a temporary purpose, subsidiary to the main purpose of the voyage, or under such circumstances as to be protected by the usage of the trade (p), or unless there be a special agreement to prolong the risk.

On an insurance of goods on a voyage policy, until the same are safely landed at the port of discharge, " including all risks to and from the ship," there is no implied warranty that the lighter used at the end of the voyage to convey the goods from the ship to the shore shall be seaworthy for that purpose (q). If a vessel is disabled and obliged to put into port before the voyage is completed, and is not worth repairing, and is consequently abandoned, and the master transhipps the goods, and after such transhipment the goods are lost, the underwriters will be liable upon the policy (r).

(o) Houlder & Co. v. The Merchants Marine Ins. Co., Ltd., 17 Q.B.D. 354; 55 L.J. Q.B. 420. See also Stewart v. Bell, 5 B. & Ald. 238.

(p) Harrison v. Ellis, 7 E. & B. 465; 25 L.J. Q.B. 239. See also Australian Agricultural Co. v. Saunders, L.R. 10 C.P. 668; 44 L.J. C.P. 391.

(q) Lane v. Nixon, L.R. 1 C.P. 412; 35 L.J. C.P. 243.

Duration and termination of risk on vessel.—It is generally expressly provided in the policy that the risk shall continue, as regards the ship, until she has arrived at her port of destination or port of discharge, and has been moored at anchor in safety twenty-four hours, and, as regards the goods, until they have been safely discharged and landed. Where a ship was insured "at and from" Jamaica, and was lost in coasting from one port of the island to another, it was held that she was protected by the policy in moving from port to port in the discharge of her cargo, and in taking fresh cargo, in the prosecution of the outward and homeward voyage in the ordinary and usual manner (s). Of course, the protection of the policy may be extended by express terms to the "final" or "last" port of discharge, not necessarily the last port originally intended, but the last port available (t); or it may be the port finally determined upon for any reason, even of necessity (u). But a vessel is not protected in going about from port to port, or cruising round the whole island, in order to dispose of her cargo, in a manner that is not warranted by the ordinary usage and custom of trade, as the risk is thereby increased to the detriment of the underwriter to an extent not contemplated at the time the insurance was effected. If the policy is on the ship until her arrival at the last port of discharge, and several ports are named in the policy, some of which are blockaded, the risk on the policy will cease on the arrival of the vessel at the last unblockaded port (x). But, if the vessel deviates from the voyage insured, and enters upon a fresh adventure, or goes to ports not named in the policy, through fear of the breaking out of hostilities, and of the ports of destination becoming hostile ports, the underwriters will be discharged (y). Where a ship was insured for the outward voyage "to all or any of the ports or places in the East Indies, China, or elsewhere, until arrival at the last place of discharge on the outward voyage," it was held that the outward voyage terminated as soon as the outward

(r) Plantamour v. Staples, 3 Doug. 1; 1 T.R. 611, n.; Shipton v. Thornton, 9 Ad. & E. 337; 8 L.J. Q.B. 73.

(s) Cruickshank v. Janson, 2 Taunt. 301; Warre v. Miller, 4 B. & C. 538; 4 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 8; Inglis v. Vaux, 3 Campb. 437; Moore v. Taylor, 1 A. & E. 25; Leigh v. Mather, 1 Esp. 412.

(t) Clason v. Simmonds, 6 T.R. 533; Brown v. Vigne, 12 East, 283; Neilson v. Delacour, 2 Esp. 619.

(u) Parkin v. Tunno, 11 East, 22; B lachenhagen v London Assur. Co., 1 Campb. 454. See also Crocker v. Sturge (1897), 1 Q.B. 330; 66 L.J. Q.B. 142; The Aiksham, 9 T.L.R. 605; Spalding v. Crocker, 2 Com. Cas. 189; Crocker v. The Gen. Ins. Co. of Trieste, 2 Com. Cas. 233.

(x) Doyle v. Powell, 4 B. & Ad. 267.

(y) Oliverson v. Brightman, 8 Q.B. 781; 15 L.J. Q.B. 274.

cargo had been discharged, and that the risk could not be prolonged so as to cover goods taken on board at intermediate places, to be carried onwards to the more distant ports or places named in the policy (z).

"Where, by a peril insured against, the voyage is interrupted at an intermediate port or place, under such circumstances as, apart from any special stipulation in the contract of affreightment, to justify the master in landing and re-shipping the goods or other moveables, or in transhipping them, and sending them on to their destination, the liability of the insurer continues, notwithstanding the landing or transhipment" (a).

In the absence of any further licence or usage, the liberty to touch and stay "at any port or place whatsoever" does not authorise the ship to depart from the course of her voyage from the port of departure to the port of destination (b). If a ship puts into a port justifiably, the captain may trade there, as there is no implied condition or warranty that a ship shall not trade in the course of her voyage, provided (1) That she does not stay longer than would be justified by the necessity that drove her into port; (2) That she does not thereby alter the risk insured (c).

Where, in a policy of insurance on a vessel for the outward voyage, there is a clause giving her liberty to "touch, stay, &c., at any ports whatsoever to take on board and land goods," the clause will protect the vessel while she is stopping for the bonâ fide discharge of the outward cargo, and is at the same time availing herself of the opportunity of taking in merchandise, being at the time in the due prosecution of the outward voyage; but "the captain has no right to mix up together the two objects of disposing of the remnant of the outward cargo and procuring a homeward cargo at the risk of the underwriters on the outward voyage. When the disposal of the outward cargo ceases to be the sole reason for his stay at" a particular port, "these underwriters are discharged" (d). If the party effecting the insurance is ignorant of the particular port at which the goods will be shipped, as well as of the name of the ship and of the species of the goods, he may protect himself against loss by a general insurance of goods of a certain value to be sent to him

(z) Richardson v. Lond. Assur. Co., 4 Campb. 94.

(a) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 59.

(b) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, sched. 1, r. 6.

(c) Raine v. Bell, 9 East, 195, followed in Cormack v. Gladstone, 11 East, 346, and approved in Laroche v. Oswin, 12 East, 130. See also Company of African Merchants v. British and Foreign Mar. Ins. Co., L.R. 8 Ex. 154; 42 L.J. Ex. 60.

(d) Lord Ellenborough, Inglis v. Vaux, 3 Campb. 437; Moore v. Taylor, 1 Ad. & E. 25; 3 L.J. K.B. 132.

by sea whatever may be the ship they are sent in, or the place at which they are put on board (e).

Arrival at port of destination—Mooring in safety (f).—The limits of the "port of discharge" are regulated by usage; and the term as used in policies of insurance includes the whole port within which any portion of the cargo is usually, according to the custom of such port, taken out of the vessel. Where the destination is general—e.g., the Baltic, or Jamaica, or to "ports of discharge"—the risk ceases when the ship has been "moored at anchor twenty-four hours in good safety" at the first port of discharge at which she calls to discharge the bulk of her cargo (g). Where a ship's place of destination was "her Majesty's Dockyard at Deptford," and the vessel got to the dock gates, but could not get into the dock by reason of ice which blocked up the entrance, and she was accordingly moored in the river alongside the dock gates, and was there driven on shore and totally lost, it was held that the underwriters continued liable, as she had never been moored in safety at her place of destination within the terms of the policy (h). But, where a vessel was chartered for a voyage from Quebec to Wallasey Pool, in the river Mersey, or as near thereto as she could safely get, and there discharge her cargo, and the vessel arrived in the Mersey and was towed abreast of Wallasey Pool, but could get no further by reason of her great draught of water, and the captain then began to discharge the cargo in lumpers, and also discharged his crew, and after several days, when a considerable portion of the cargo had been discharged, the ship fell over on her side and was injured, it was held that the vessel had arrived at her place of destination, and that the risk on the policy ceased after she had been moored twenty-four hours in safety, although it appeared that the captain intended ultimately to carry the vessel into Wallasey Pool with as much of the cargo as he could carry over the shallow part of the river intervening between his original anchorage and that port (i). The risk is frequently prolonged by express stipulation in the policy beyond the usual period of twenty-four hours (k). By a policy of insurance a ship was insured from

(e) Hunter v. Leathley, 10 B. & C. 858; 8 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 274; affirmed, 1 Cr. & J. 423; 9 L.J. (O.S.) Ex. 118.

(f) Lindsay v. Janson, 4 H. & N. 704; 28 L.J. Ex. 315.

(g) Cruickshank v. Janson, 2 Taunt. 301; Leigh v. Mather, 1 Esp. 412; Inglis v. Vaux, 3 Campb. 437.

(h) Samuel v. Royal Ex. Assur. Co., 8 B. & C., 123; 6 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 315; Stone v. Marine Ins. Co., 1 Ex.D. 81; 45 L.J. Ex. 361.

(i) Whitwell v. Harrison, 2 Exch. 127; 18 L.J. Ex. 465.

(k) See Magens, p. 23, on the necessity of this. See Gambles v. Ocean Mar. Ins. Co., 1 Ex.D. 141; 45 L.J. Ex. 366; Mercantile Mar. Ins. Co. v. Titherington, 34 L.J. Q.B. 11; Pearson v. Commercial Union Assur. Co., 1 App.Cas.

Liverpool to any port in the Pacific Ocean, "and during thirty days' stay in her last port of discharge." In another part of the policy there was the usual printed clause, by which she was to be insured "until she hath moored at anchor twenty-four hours in good safety." She arrived at her port of discharge at 7 P.M. on the 25th May, and anchored there, and at 3.45 A.M. on the 24th June she was driven ashore and lost. It was held, that the loss was covered by the policy, as the thirty days had not expired when she was so lost (l). If a vessel has sprung a leak or received her "death wound at sea," but comes into port and casts anchor in apparent safety for twenty-four hours, and the mischief is not discovered until after the expiration of the time limited for the continuance of the risk on the policy, the underwriter will nevertheless continue liable, as it is obvious that the vessel never was in reality moored in safety at all (m). But, although a ship is damaged, yet if she is not a mere wreck or in a sinking state at the time of her arrival, and is moored as a ship in the possession and control of her owners, she is "moored in safety" (n). If an embargo is laid on all English vessels at a foreign port, and the vessel enters in ignorance thereof, and remains at anchor twenty-four hours, and is subsequently seized, the underwriters are liable; "for she is in the power of the enemy the very moment she enters the port, and is not for one minute moored in safety" (o). And if, by reason of quarantine regulations or other laws of the port, the vessel is not lawfully moored, but is liable to be sent out of port to perform quarantine, or to be examined or fumigated, the risk continues on the policy, although the vessel may have remained at anchor more than twenty-four hours before any actual removal takes place, and before the port regulations against her mooring are enforced (p). But, where a vessel, after being moored, remained in actual safety as a ship for twenty-four hours, and so that during those twenty-four hours her owners had complete and undisturbed possession of her, but was afterwards seized in consequence of the master having smuggled before her arrival, it was held that the terms of the 498; Hunter v. Northern Mar. Ins. Co., 13 App.Cas. 717; Sailing Ship Garston v. Hickie, 15 Q.B.D. 580; 56 L.J. Q.B. 38; Cornfoot v. Royal Exchange Assur. (1904), 1 K.B. 40; 73 L.J. K.B. 22; Lidgett v. Secretan, L.R. 5 C.P. 190; 40 L.J. C.P. 257.

(l) Mercantile Mar. Ins. Co. v. Titherington, 34 L.J. Q.B. 11; 5 B. & S. 765.

(m) Meretony v. Dunlope, cited 1 T.R. 260, where it is stated that the verdict was given for the insured, whereas the court, in Knight v. Faith, 19 L.J. Q.B. 517; 15 Q.B. 649, treat the case as if the verdict had been for the insurer. See also Shawe v. Felton, 2 East, 110.

(n) Lidgett v. Secretan, L.R. 5 C.P. 190; 39 L.J. C.P. 196.

(o) Minett v. Anderson, Peake, 277.

(p) Waples v. Eames, 2 Str. 1243; Horneyer v. Lushington, 15 East, 46.

policy were satisfied, and that the loss by the seizure was a loss after the termination of the risk (q).

It is not the fact of unloading at any port into which the ship runs in the course of the voyage which puts an end to the risk on the ship, when insured either generally to an island or country, or to her port or ports of discharge. It is not until she has moored twenty-four hours in good safety at a port at which she was intended to unload, and at which the master actually breaks bulk for the purpose of unloading either the whole or the greater part of her cargo, that the risk on the ship will be held to terminate. If indeed the port into which she puts is one to which she was originally destined, then, if she is lost after having moored there twenty-four hours in good safety, the risk will no doubt be at an end, even although she has not actually broken bulk, but is only preparing to unload her cargo at the time of the loss (r).

The result of the cases as to what constitutes a mooring in good safety appears to be that a ship cannot be considered to have been moored for twenty-four hours in good safety unless she has been moored for that space of time in the harbour of her port of discharge: (1) in such a state of physical safety that she can keep afloat while her cargo is being unloaded; (2) in such a state of political safety (s) that she shall not have been subjected during that time to any embargo, seizure, or capture on the part of the government of the port or of strangers; (3) under such circumstances as to have had an opportunity of unloading and discharging. What is meant is not that there must have been nothing to prevent the immediate discharge of the ship, but that there shall have been no legal obstacles to the discharge; such as one arising from the quarantine regulations of the port (t). If the twenty-four hours' clause were struck out of the policy, the risk on the ship would still continue until her safe arrival at her port of destination, but would cease immediately on her being at her moorings (u).

The policy—Premium.—Where an insurance is effected at a premium to be arranged, and no arrangement is made, a reasonable premium is payable (v). The question what is reasonable (q) Lockyer v. Offley, 1 T.R. 252.

(r) Camden v. Cowley, 1 W. Bl. 417, 418; Barrass v. London Assur. Co., 1 Park, Ins. 74; Inglis v. Vaux, 3 Campb. 437; Leigh v. Mather, 1 Esp. 412; 1 Phillips, ss. 960, 962.

(s) Minett v. Anderson, Peake, N.P.R. 277; Horneyer v. Lushington, 15 East, 46; Lockyer v. Offley, 1 T.R. 252.

(t) Waples v. Eames, 2 Str. 1243; Angerstein v. Bell, 1 Park, 54; 1 Marsh., Ins. 263; Samuel v. Royal Exch. Co., 8 B. & C. 119; 6 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 315. See Stone v. Mar. Ins. Co. of Gothenburg, 1 Ex. D. 81; 1 Phillips on Insur., s. 968.

(u) See per Bramwell, B., in Stone v. Mar. Ins. Co. of Gothenburg, 1 Ex. D. 85; 45 L.J. Ex. 361.

(v) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 31 (1).

is a question of fact (x). Where an insurance is effected on the terms that an additional premium is to be arranged in a given event, and that event happens but no arrangement is made, then a reasonable additional premium is payable (y). The rate is usually a percentage on the value of the subject-matter insured—e.g., ten shillings per cent.—and varies with all the possibilities of the risks. The contract is not joint, but several, the underwriters being bound "each one for his own part," and each is therefore only liable for the proportion for which he signs (z). Almost all policies are effected by insurance brokers, whose business it is to act as middlemen between those merchants and shipowners who wish to insure their property, on the one hand, and the private underwriters or public insurance companies on the other. The broker is the agent of the assured, not of the underwriter, and therefore he owes no duty in the transaction to the latter, on which an action for negligence can be founded (a).

Unless otherwise agreed, the duty of the assured or his agent to pay the premium, and the duty of the insurer to issue the policy to the assured or his agent, are concurrent conditions, and the insurer is not bound to issue the policy until payment or tender of the premium (b).

Policy effected through broker.—Unless otherwise agreed, where a marine policy is effected on behalf of the assured by a broker, the broker is directly responsible to the insurer for the premium, and the insurer is directly responsible to the assured for the amount which may be payable in respect of losses, or in respect of returnable premium (c). The rule of law, founded on mercantile custom, by which the broker and not the assured, is liable to the underwriter for the premium upon a policy of marine insurance, is not limited to the ordinary form of Lloyd's policy, but extends also to a "company's policy," which contains a promise by the assured to pay the premium (d).

Unless otherwise agreed, the broker has, as against the assured, a lien upon the policy for the amount of the premium and his charges in respect of effecting the policy; and, where he has dealt with the person who employs him as a principal, he has also a lien on the policy in respect of any balance on any

(x) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 88.

(y) Ib., s. 31 (2).

(z) Tyser v. Shipowners' Syndicate, (Reassured), (1896) 1 Q.B. 135; 65 L.J. Q.B. 238. See also 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 24 (2).

(a) Empress Assur. Corp. v. Bowring & Co., 11 Com. Cas. 107.

(b) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 52.

(c) Ib., s. 53 (1). See Wavertree Sailing Ship Co. v. Love, 66 L.J. P.C. 77; (1897) A.C. 373.

(d) Universo Ins. Co. of Milan v. Merchant's Mar. Ins. Co. (1897), 2 Q.B. 93; 66 L.J Q.B. 564.

insurance account which may be due to him from such person, unless when the debt was incurred he had reason to believe that such person was only an agent (e).

Where a marine policy effected on behalf of the assured by a broker acknowledges the receipt of the premium, such acknowledgment is, in the absence of fraud, conclusive as between the insurer and the assured, but not as between the insurer and broker (f).

Premium—Return of.—Where the premium, or a proportionate part thereof is, by the Marine Insurance Act (g), declared to be returnable,—(a) If already paid, it may be recovered by the assured from the insurer; and (b) If unpaid, it may be retained by the assured or his agent (h).

Where the policy contains a stipulation for the return of the premium, or a proportionate part thereof, on the happening of a certain event, and that event happens, the premium, or, as the case may be, the proportionate part thereof, is thereupon returnable to the assured (i).

Where the consideration for the payment of the premium totally fails, and there has been no fraud or illegality on the part of the assured or his agents, the premium is thereupon returnable to the assured (k). Where the consideration for the payment of the premium is apportionable and there is a total failure of any apportionable part of the consideration, a proportionate part of the premium is, under the like conditions, thereupon returnable to the assured (l). In particular—(a) Where the policy is void, or is avoided by the insurer as from the commencement of the risk, the premium is returnable, provided that there has been no fraud or illegality on the part of the assured; but if the risk is not apportionable, and has once attached, the premium is not returnable: (b) Where the subject-matter insured, or part thereof, has never been imperilled, the premium, or, as the case may be, a proportionate part thereof, is returnable: Provided that where the subject-matter has been insured "lost or not lost" (m) and has arrived in safety at the time when the contract is concluded, the premium is not returnable unless, at such time, the insurer knew of the safe arrival; (c) Where the assured has no insurable interest throughout the currency of the risk, the premium

(e) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 53 (2).
(f) Ib., s. 54. See Dalzell v. Mair, 1 Campb. 532; De Gamende v. Pigou, 4 Taunt. 246; Foy v. Bell, 3 Taunt. 493.
(g) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41.
(h) Ib., s. 82.
(i) Ib., s. 83. See Gorsedd S.S. Co. v. Forbes, 5 Com. Cas. 413; Pyman v. Marten, 22 T.L.R. 834; Ib., 13 Com. Cas. 64.
(k) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 84 (1).
(l) Ib., s. 84 (2).
(m) See ante, p. 1137.

is returnable, provided that this rule does not apply to a policy effected by way of gaming or wagering; (d) Where the assured has a defeasible interest which is terminated during the currency of the risk, the premium is not returnable: (e) Where the assured has over-insured under an unvalued policy, a proportionate part of the premium is returnable; (f) Subject to the foregoing provisions, where the assured has over-insured by double insurance (n), a proportionate part of the several premiums is returnable: Provided that, if the policies are effected at different times, and any earlier policy has at any time borne the entire risk, or if a claim has been paid on the policy in respect of the full sum insured thereby, no premium is returnable in respect of that policy, and when the double insurance is effected knowingly by the assured no premium is returnable (o).

If there are separate voyages and several risks to be run, some of the premiums may be returnable and others not; but, if there is one entire voyage, and one risk, and the risk has commenced, there can be no return of premium (p). If the vessel sails in an unseaworthy condition, and there is no fraudulent representation or warranty of seaworthiness in the policy, and no evidence of fraud, the premium is returnable, as the underwriter's risk upon the policy never commenced, by reason of the seaworthiness of the vessel being, as we have before seen, a condition precedent to his liability (q). If the policy be on goods to be laden on board the particular vessel, and no goods are put on board, the premium is returnable (r); and, if part only of the goods covered by the policy are put on board, a portion of the premium corresponding with the deficiency may be claimed back (s). But, if the policy be on freight, the risk may, as we have seen, attach, although no goods have been put on board; and, if the risk once attaches, the premium cannot be recovered back(t). Where several policies have been effected, and, before the risk thereon has commenced, the interest turns out to be less than the amount insured on the whole, the insured is entitled to a reasonable return of premium upon all the policies; but, where an insurance has been effected by one or more policies, and the risk has commenced, and subsequent policies are afterwards signed, and a loss happens between the signing of the first and subsequent policies, the underwriters

(n) See 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 32.

(o) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 84 (3).

(p) Bermon v. Woodbridge, 2 Doug. 781.

(q) Penson v. Lee, 2 Bos. & P. 330.

(r) Martin v. Sitwell, 1 Show. 151.

(s) Horneyer v. Lushington, 15 East, 46.

(t) Moses v. Pratt, 4 Camp. 297.

on the first will be liable in proportion to their subscriptions to the extent of the whole sum insured, and therefore, the risk having been incurred by them, a return of the premium cannot be claimed (u). Where property has by mistake been insured for more than it is worth, the underwriter is bound to return the overplus premium; and, whenever it is established to be the custom and usage of trade to return a certain portion of the premium upon certain contingencies, the insured will be entitled to avail himself of the custom (x). Where an insurance was effected on a ship for a year, and part of the premium was to be returned "for every uncommenced month if sold or laid up," and the vessel had been laid up for several months within the year, but was employed again within the year, this was held not to be such a laying up as entitled the insured to a return of premium (y).

Void policy—Return of premium.—If a policy is rendered null and void by reason of a written misrepresentation or misstatement made by the insured by mistake and without fraud, the insured will be entitled to a return of his premium (z). But, if the insured has effected a fraudulent insurance with the view of cheating the underwriters, the law will not enable him to recover back the premium he has paid (a). If the insurance is illegal, as, for instance, if it has been effected upon an unlawful voyage or adventure, such as a smuggling enterprise, or a trading with foreign enemies, or a trading in breach of the navigation laws, and is consequently void, the premium cannot be recovered back if the unlawful voyage or adventure has been undertaken and both parties are in pari delicto; but there is a locus pœnitentiæ, so long as the contract continues executory (b). And, if an insurance be effected on a trading adventure with foreign enemies, and be consequently illegal in its inception, so that the risk never commences, yet, if it was always in the contemplation of the parties to obtain a licence legalising the trade, and they intended to insure a legal and not an illegal voyage, but from some mistake or misapprehension the licence was not obtained in sufficient time to legalise the adventure and enable the insured to recover upon the policy, the premium paid for such insurance is recoverable, as there was no intention on the part of the insured to violate the law (c). So, if the (u) Fisk v. Masterman, 8 M. & W. 165; 10 L.J. Ex. 306.

(x) Long v. Allen, 2 Park, Ins. 797 (ed. 8).

(y) Hunter v. Wright, 10 B. & C. 714; 8 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 259.

(z) Feise v. Parkinson, 4 Taunt. 640.

(a) Chapman v. Fraser, 1 Park, Ins. 456.

(b) Johnston v. Sutton, 1 Doug. 254; Lubbock v. Potts, 7 East, 449.

(c) Hentig v. Staniforth, 5 M. & S 122

insured was ignorant of the illegality of the voyage at the time he effected the insurance and paid the premium, as, for instance, if he did not know that hostilities had broken out, and that the parties with whom he was trading had at the time become foreign enemies, the premium is recoverable (d). Non-compliance with the requirements of the Merchant Shipping Act respecting the engagement of the crews of British vessels does not render the voyage illegal, but only furnishes ground for proceedings against the master for the breach of the statute (e). "Where the assured has parted with or lost his interest in the subject-matter insured, and has not, before or at the time of so doing, expressly or impliedly agreed to assign the policy, any subsequent assignment of the policy is inoperative: Provided that nothing in this section affects the assignment of a policy after loss" (f).

Double insurance—Over-insurance—Right of contribution.—"Where two or more policies are effected by or on behalf of the assured on the same adventure and interest or any part thereof, and the sums insured exceed the indemnity allowed by this Act (g), the assured is said to be over-insured by double insurance" (h).

"Where the assured is over-insured by double insurance:—(a) The assured, unless the policy otherwise provides, may claim payment from the insurers in such order as he may think fit, provided that he is not entitled to receive any sum in excess of the indemnity allowed by this Act; (b) Where the policy under which the assured claims is a valued policy, the assured must give credit as against the valuation for any sum received by him under any other policy without regard to the actual value of the subject-matter insured (i); (c) Where the policy under which the assured claims is an unvalued policy he must give credit, as against the full insurable value, for any sum received by him under any other policy; (d) Where the assured receives any sum in excess of the indemnity allowed by this Act, he is deemed to hold such sum in trust for the insurers, according to their right of contribution among themselves" (k).

Where the assured is over-insured by double insurance, each (d) Oom v. Bruce, 12 East, 225.

(e) Redmond v. Smith, 8 Sc. N.R. 268; 13 L.J. C.P. 159.

(f) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 51; Powles v. Innes, 11 M. & W. 10; 12 L.J. Ex. 163; North of England Oil Cake Co. v. Archangel Ins. Co., L.R. 10 Q.B. 249; 44 L.J. Q.B. 121.

(g) See 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 67 (1), as to indemnity in case of unvalued policy being the insurable value, and in case of valued policy the full value. As to return of premium in case of over-insurance by double insurance, see s. 84 (3) (e).

(h) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 32 (1).

(i) See Bruce v. Jones, 1 H. & C. 769; 32 L.J. Ex. 132.

(k) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 32 (2).

insurer is bound, as between himself and the other insurers, to contribute rateably to the loss in proportion to the amount for which he is liable under his contract (l). If any insurer pays more than his proportion of the loss, he is entitled to maintain an action for contribution against the other insurers, and is entitled to the like remedies as a surety who has paid more than his proportion of the debt (m). Where the assured is insured for an amount less than the insurable value or, in the case of a valued policy, for an amount less than the policy valuation, he is deemed to be his own insurer in respect of the uninsured balance (n).

Warranties.—There are certain stipulations, either expressly or impliedly, in a marine policy undertaken by the assured and known as warranties. They differ from representations (o) in being part of the policy, and requiring a literal fulfilment, whether material to the risk or not, and they cannot be controlled or excluded from the policy by representations. Warranties are generally expressed thus: "Warranted to sail on or before the 6th May, 1909." "Warranted neutral ship and neutral property"; or the word "warranted" is altogether omitted, and the words "to sail," &c., alone inserted.

A warranty in sects. 33—41 of the Marine Insurance Act, 1906 (p), relating to warranties, means a promissory warranty, that is to say, a warranty by which the assured undertakes that some particular thing shall or shall not be done, or that some condition shall be fulfilled, or whereby he affirms or negatives the existence of a particular state of facts (q). A warranty may be express or implied (r). A warranty, as above defined, is a condition which must be exactly complied with, whether it be material to the risk or not. If it be not so complied with, then, subject to any express provision in the policy, the insurer is discharged from liability as from the date of the breach of warranty, but without prejudice to any liability incurred by him before that date (s).

Non-compliance with a warranty is excused when, by reason of a change of circumstances, the warranty ceases to be applicable to the circumstances of the contract, or when compliance with the warranty is rendered unlawful by any subsequent law (t). Where a warranty is broken, the assured cannot avail himself of the defence that the breach has been remedied, and

(l) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 80 (1).
(m) Ib., s. 80 (2).
(n) Ib., s. 81.
(o) See ante, p. 1122.
(p) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41.
(q) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 33 (1).
(r) Ib., s. 33 (2).
(s) Ib., s. 33 (3).
(t) Ib., s. 34 (1).

the warranty complied with, before loss (u). A breach of warranty may be waived by the insurer (x).

Implied warranty of seaworthiness of ship.—In a voyage policy there is an implied warranty that at the commencement of the voyage the ship shall be seaworthy for the purpose of the particular adventure insured (y). Where the policy attaches while the ship is in port, there is also an implied warranty that she shall, at the commencement of the risk, be reasonably fit to encounter the ordinary perils of the port (z). Where the policy relates to a voyage which is performed in different stages, during which the ship requires different kinds of or further preparation or equipment, there is an implied warranty that at the commencement of each stage the ship is seaworthy in respect of such preparation or equipment for the purposes of that stage (a). A ship is deemed to be seaworthy when she is reasonably fit in all respects to encounter the ordinary perils of the seas of the adventure insured (b). In a time policy there is no implied warranty that the ship shall be seaworthy at any stage of the adventure, but where, with the privity of the assured, the ship is sent to sea in an unseaworthy state, the insurer is not liable for any loss attributable to unseaworthiness (c).

Before the insured, however, can recover against the underwriter upon a voyage policy, he is bound to prove, not only that the ship was tight, staunch, and strong, but that she was properly equipped with sails and stores, and that she was manned with a sufficient crew to navigate her on the voyage insured. These are conditions precedent to the policy attaching; and, if they are not complied with, so that the perils are enhanced, from whatever cause this may arise, and though no fraud was intended by the insured, the underwriters have a right to say they are not liable (d); but the insured is not obliged to keep the ship seaworthy throughout the voyage, or during the period of the risk (e). The insured warrants that

(u) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 34 (2).

(x) Ib., s. 34 (3).

(y) Ib., s. 39 (1). Cohen v. Davidson, 2 Q.B.D. 455; 46 L.J. Q.B. 305; this implied warranty is not excluded by a provision in the policy that the ship's fittings should be approved by a surveyor: Sleigh v. Tyser, (1900) 2 Q.B. 333; 69 L.J. Q.B. 626; Greenock S.S. Co. v. Maritime Ins. Co., 72 L.J. K.B. 868; (1903) 2 K.B. 657.

(z) Ib., s. 39 (2).

(a) Ib., s. 39 (3).

(b) Ib., s. 39 (4).

(c) Ib., s. 39 (5). Fawcus v. Sarsfield, 6 E. & B. 200; 25 L.J. Q.B. 249; Thompson v. Hopper, 6 E. & B. 172; 25 L.J. Q.B. 240; Gibson v. Small, 4 H.L. Cas. 353; Michael v. Tredwin, 17 C.B. 551; 25 L.J. C.P. 83; see also Dudgeon v. Pembroke, 2 App.Cas. 284; 46 L.J. Q.B. 409.

(d) Lord Ellenborough, Wedderburn v. Bell, 1 Campb. 1; Douglas v. Scougall, 4 Dow, 269.

(e) Jenkins v. Heycock, 8 Moo. P.C. 361; Biccard v. Shepherd, 14 Moo. P.C.

the ship is seaworthy for the purposes of the particular subject-matter of the insurance. Therefore in the case of a policy of insurance on deck cargo, it is not a compliance with the warranty of seaworthiness that the ship is fit to encounter ordinary rough weather with safety to herself, because the deck cargo is such as may be readily jettisoned in such weather (f). The insurer is entitled to expect that the shipowner will do all that can reasonably be expected to be done, to limit the risk covered by the insurance to those perils incidental to navigation which the care and skill of man cannot provide against. But, where the nature of the adventure, and the size and class of vessel to be employed, are known to both parties, the implied warranty of the shipowner cannot be carried further than that he shall do his utmost to make the particular vessel as fit for the voyage as she can possibly be made. Therefore, in sending a river steamer across the ocean, the warranty of seaworthiness is complied with, if the nature of the adventure is disclosed to the underwriter, and the owner does as much as can reasonably be done to make her fit for the voyage, though she may not be considered seaworthy in the ordinary sense of the term as applied to ordinary sea-going vessels (g).

Non-compliance with the requirements of the statutes respecting the engagement of the crew does not render a vessel unseaworthy; it must be shown that the crew was actually insufficient in number, or that there was a want of capacity in the master or other officers (h). If a ship becomes leaky or founders without any adequate cause as soon as she leaves the port, the presumption is that the vessel was unseaworthy at the time she put to sea (i). If the vessel is not properly found with cables, anchors, and ground tackling, she is unseaworthy (k); and so she is, if she has an insufficient crew, or an incompetent captain, or has no pilot on board at those parts of the voyage where a pilot is required (l); but, if a competent master, and crew and pilot have been provided in the first instance, the insurer is not discharged by their negligence or want of skill; "for there is no implied warranty on the part of the assured for the continuance of the seaworthiness of the vessel, or for the performance of their duty by the master and

471; Thin v. Richards, (1892) 2 Q.B. 141; 62 L.J. Q.B. 39.

(f) Daniels v. Harris, L.R. 10 C.P. 1; 44 L.J. C.P. 1.

(g) Burges v. Wickham, 3 B. & S. 669; 33 L.J. Q.B. 17; Clapham v. Langton, 34 L.J. Q.B. 46; 5 B. & S. 729.

(h) Redmond v. Smith, 7 M. & Gr. 457; 13 L.J. C.P. 159.

(i) Davidson v. Burnand, L.R. 4 C.P. 117; 38 L.J. C.P. 73.

(k) Watson v. Clark, 1 Dow, 336; Parker v. Potts, 3 ib. 23; Wilkie v. Geddes, ib. 57.

(l) Tait v. Levi, 14 East, 481.

crew" or pilot "during the whole course of the voyage" (m). If the master is unable, from stress of weather or other causes, to procure a pilot, this is a risk covered by the policy, and the insurer remains liable (n). And, if by accident or mistake a vessel sails out of port in an unseaworthy state, and the defect is remedied before any loss occurs, and she then sails again in a seaworthy state, the insurer will be liable on the policy for a subsequent loss (o). The parties may make any stipulations they think fit in the policy respecting the seaworthiness of the vessel; and the insurer may consent to take her as seaworthy, or insure conditionally on certain repairs being done. The insured also impliedly warrants that a loss shall not happen through his own personal default, and that he will himself do nothing to enhance the risk. If he neglects to have the ship properly documented according to her national character, or if he furnishes her with simulated papers without the knowledge of the underwriters, these last will be released from all liability upon the policy in respect of losses occasioned by the neglect, as such increased risk is not the risk they intended to take upon themselves (p).

If the insurance attaches before the voyage commences, it is enough if the state of the ship is commensurate with the then risk; and if the voyage is such as to require a different complement of men or state of equipment in different parts of it, as if it be a voyage down a canal or river, and thence to and on the open sea, it is enough if the vessel be at the time when she enters upon each stage of the navigation properly manned and equipped for it (q).

When the subject-matter is insured by a voyage policy "at and from" or "from" a particular place, it is not necessary that the ship should be at that place when the contract is concluded, but there is an implied condition that the adventure shall be commenced within a reasonable (r) time, and that if the adventure be not so commenced the insurer may avoid the

(m) Sadler v. Dixon, 8 M. & W. 895; 11 L.J. Ex. 435.

(n) Phillips v. Headlam, 2 B & Ad. 383; 9 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 238.

(o) Weir v. Aberdeen, 2 B. & Ald. 320; but see Quebec Mar. Ins. Co. v. Commercial Bank of Canada, L.R. 3 P.C. 234; 39 L.J. P.C. 53.

(p) Oswell v. Vigne, 15 East, 70; Pipon v. Cope, 1 Campb. 434; but if the master violates the 57 & 58 Vict. c. 60, s. 451, ante, p. 1129, by stowing a portion of the cargo on deck, and sails without a certificate of clearance, the absence of that document does not create a statutory unseaworthiness so as to discharge the underwriter: Wilson v. Rankin, L.R. 1 Q.B. 162; 35 L.J. Q.B. 87.

(q) Sadler v. Dixon, supra; Bouillon v. Lupton, 15 C.B. N.S. 138; 33 L.J. C.P. 37; Quebec Mar. Ins. Co. v. Commercial Bank of Canada, supra; Hedley v. Pinkney & Sons' S.S. Co., (1894) A.C. 222; 63 L.J. Q.B. 419.

(r) Reasonable time is a question of fact. See 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 88.

contract (s). The implied condition may be negatived by showing that the delay was caused by circumstances known to the insurer before the contract was concluded, or by showing that he waived the condition (t). It is a question for the jury whether the fact of the ship proving unseaworthy shortly after starting shows that it was so before starting. The burden of proof is upon the underwriters to show that the ship was unseaworthy at starting (u).

The rule of law that in voyage policies there is an implied warranty of seaworthiness or fitness does not extend to time policies. The ship may be at sea when the policy attaches, and may have encountered heavy weather which has rendered her unseaworthy; or again, during the currency of such a policy the ship may run short of tackle or necessaries; therefore the parties could not have contemplated that the ship should be made seaworthy at sea for the purposes of a new time policy attaching at sea. Even in a voyage policy, there is no warranty that the ship should be kept in a state of seaworthiness after the voyage has commenced and the policy has attached (x).

No implied warranty that goods are seaworthy.—In a policy on goods or other moveables there is no implied warranty that the goods or moveables are seaworthy (y). In a voyage policy on goods or other moveables there is an implied warranty that at the commencement of the voyage the ship is not only seaworthy as a ship, but also that she is reasonably fit to carry the goods or other moveables to the destination contemplated by the policy (z).

Warranty as to nationality.—There is no implied warranty as to the nationality of a ship, or that her nationality shall not be changed during the risk (a).

Warranty as to lawful adventure.—There is an implied warranty that the adventure insured is a lawful one, and that, so far as the assured can control the matter, the adventure shall be carried out in a lawful manner (b).

Express warranties.—An express warranty may be in any form of words from which the intention to warrant is to be

(s) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 42 (1); De Wolf v. Archangel, &c. Ins. Co., L.R. 9 Q.B. 451; 43 L.J. Q.B. 147.

(t) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 42 (2).

(u) Pickup v. Thames Ins. Co., 3 Q.B.D. 594; 47 L.J. Q.B. 749.

(x) See Dudgeon v. Pembroke, 2 App. Cas. 284; 46 L.J. Ex. 409; Thompson v. Hopper, E. B. & E. 1038; 27 L.J. Q.B. 441; Ballantyne v. Mackinnon, (1896) 2 Q.B. 455; 65 L.J. Q.B. 616.

(y) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 40 (1). See Koebel v. Saunders, 33 L.J. C.P. 310; 17 C.B.N.S. 71; Boyd v. Dubois, 3 Campb 133. As to warranty of fitness of goods as between shipowner and shipper, see Acatos v. Burns, 3 Ex. D. 282; 47 L.J. Ex. 566.

(z) Ib., s. 40 (2).

(a) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 37; Dent v. Smith, L.R. 4 Q.B. 414; 38 L.J. Q.B. 144.

(b) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 41. See Fracis v. Sea Ins. Co., 79 L.T. 28; Wilson v. Salamandra Ins. Co., 88 L.T. 96.

inferred (c). An express warranty must be included in, or written upon, the policy, or must be contained in some document incorporated by reference into the policy (d). An express warranty does not exclude an implied warranty, unless it be inconsistent therewith (e). Every positive averment on the face of a policy of insurance of facts material to the risk, forming the basis of the contract, "amounts to a warranty or condition; and, if such allegation be not strictly true, the insured cannot recover on the policy to whatever cause the loss be owing, whether the loss be connected with the subject of such warranty, or wholly independent of it; for it is a condition on which the contract is to take effect, which failing, the contract fails" (f). But every representation inserted in a contract does not, as we have seen (ante, p. 545), amount to a warranty. A written memorandum or representation does not become part of the policy from being folded up in it, or pinned thereto (g); but, if the policy refers to it or to any separate writing, the two documents may then be placed in juxtaposition and read together (h).

"Well" and "in good safety."—"Where the subject-matter insured is warranted 'well' or 'in good safety' on a particular day, it is sufficient if it be safe at any time during that day" (i), so that, if the vessel should have been lost in the morning of that day, and the insurance be effected in the afternoon, the underwriters will be liable (k). The warranties most frequently met with in maritime policies are warranties of the time of sailing, of departure with convoy, and warranties of neutrality.

Time of sailing.—When the vessel is warranted to sail by a particular day, the underwriter will be discharged if she does not sail at the time appointed; and the circumstance of her being prevented by inevitable accident, or detention of princes, does in nowise exonerate the insured from the consequences of his breach of contract (l). When the vessel has left her loading port with all her cargo and clearances on board, with no other object in view than to get in the safest way she can to the port of delivery, this is a sailing within the meaning of the warranty, although she does not proceed straight to sea, but sails to some general place of rendezvous to wait for convoy (m). But she

(c) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 35 (1).
(d) Ib., s. 35 (2).
(e) Ib., s. 35 (3).
(f) Le Blanc, J., Lothian v. Henderson, 3 Bos. & P. 515; De Hahn v. Hartley, 1 T.R. 343; Ollive v. Booker, 1 Ex. 416; 17 L.J. Ex. 21.
(g) Pawson v. Ewer, 1 Doug. 11, n.
(h) Routledge v. Burrell, 1 H.Bl. 254; Worsley v. Wood, 6 T.R. 710.
(i) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 38.
(k) Blackhurst v. Cockell, 3 T.R. 360.
(l) Hore v. Whitmore, Cowp. 784.
(m) Bond v. Nutt, Cowp. 601; Wright v. Shiffner, 11 East, 515; Thellusson v. Fergusson, 1 Doug. 361; Cockrane v.

must be actually out of port or be sailing down a river towards the sea, and have made a bonâ fide commencement of the voyage, in order to satisfy a warranty to sail (n). If the warranty be to sail after a specific day, and the ship sails before, or if it be not to sail during a particular period of the year, and the ship sails during the prohibited period, the liability on the policy does not attach, as the risk is a different risk from the one agreed to be run by the underwriter (o).

Warranties—Sailing with convoy.—If a vessel warranted "to depart with convoy" is proceeding from her loading port to the nearest place of rendezvous for convoy and is captured, the underwriters are nevertheless responsible, as the vessel was fulfilling the warranty at the time of the capture in the only mode in which it could be fulfilled, and was proceeding to secure convoy and departing with convoy, in the mercantile sense of the term, and according to the usage of trade (p). A warranty that the vessel shall "depart with convoy" does not mean merely that she is to sail out of port or from the place of general rendezvous with convoy, but that she is to have convoy for the whole voyage insured, unless prevented by stress of weather (q), or unless it is the usage for ships to be convoyed only part of the distance, and convoy beyond a certain point is not deemed necessary and is not provided by the government (r). The mode of the convoy is regulated by mercantile usage; and it is never considered necessary for the ship to be convoyed throughout by the same vessels, there being in general relays of convoy from stage to stage (s).

Neutrality.—Where insurable property, whether ship or goods, is expressly warranted neutral, there is an implied condition that the property shall have a neutral character at the commencement of the risk, and that, so far as the assured can control the matter, its neutral character shall be preserved during the risk (t).

Where a ship is expressly warranted "neutral" there is also an implied condition that, so far as the assured can control the matter, she shall be properly documented, that is to say, Fisher, 1 Cr. M. & R. 809; 4 L.J. Ex. 328; Lang v. Anderdon, 3 B. & C. 495; 3 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 62; Sea Ins. Co. v. Blogg, (1898) 2 Q.B. 398; 67 L.J. Q.B. 757.

(n) Moir v. Royal Exch. Assur. Co., 4 Campb. 84; Ridsdale v. Newnham, 3 M. & S. 456; Graham v. Barras, 5 B. & Ad. 1011.

(o) Vezian v. Grant, 2 Park, Ins. 673; Colledge v. Harty, 6 Exch. 205; 20 L.J. Ex. 146.

(p) Anderson v. Pitcher, 2 Bos. & P. 164.

(q) Jefferyes v. Legendra, 1 Show. 297; Lilly v. Ewer, 1 Doug. 72.

(r) D'Eguino v. Bewicke, 2 H. Bl. 551.

(s) De Garey v. Clagget, 2 Park, Ins. 708.

(t) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 36 (1).

that she shall carry the necessary papers to establish her neutrality, and that she shall not falsify or suppress her papers, or use simulated papers. If any loss occurs through breach of this condition, the insurer may avoid the contract (u).

Whenever property is insured as neutral property which is not neutral property, there is no contract, and no action can be maintained on the policy. But, if the property is neutral at the time the insurance is effected and the risk attaches on the policy, the circumstance of its ceasing to be so at a subsequent period does not affect the underwriter's liability (x). "If a war break out the next day, the underwriter is liable" (y). It is no answer to an action on a policy of insurance that the goods were contraband of war, and were shipped for the purpose of being sent to a belligerent port, unless facts establishing a fraudulent concealment (infra) are set forth (z). The sentence of a foreign court of admiralty, or prize court, falsifying the warranty of neutrality, will be conclusive evidence of the breach thereof (a), unless it appears on the face of such sentence that the grounds of the adjudication are erroneous, or the adjudication itself is involved in doubt (b).

Deviation from voyage insured.—Where the place of departure is specified by the policy, and the ship instead of sailing from that place sails from any other place, the risk does not attach (c). Where the destination is specified in the policy, and the ship, instead of sailing for that destination, sails for any other destination, the risk does not attach (d). Where, after the commencement of the risk, the destination of the ship is voluntarily changed from the destination contemplated by the policy, there is said to be a change of voyage (e). Unless the policy otherwise provides, where there is a change of voyage, the insurer is discharged from liability as from the time of change, that is to say, as from the time when the determination to change it is manifested; and it is immaterial that the ship may not in fact have left the course of voyage contemplated by the policy when the loss occurs (f).

(u) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 36 (2).

(x) Eden v. Parkinson, 2 Doug. 732; and see Dent v. Smith, L.R. 4 Q.B. 414; 38 L.J. Q.B. 144.

(y) Salucci v. Johnson, 2 Park, Ins. 716.

(z) Hobbs v. Henning, 34 L.J. C.P. 117; 17 C.B. N.S. 791; and see Chavasse, Ex parte, 34 L.J. Bk. 17. "Contraband of war" in its natural sense and in the absence of special circumstances, is applicable to goods only and not to persons. See Yangtaze Ins. Assoc. v. Indemnity Mut. Mar. Assoc., 77 L.J. K.B. 995; (1908) 2 K.B. 504.

(a) Bolton v. Gladstone, 5 East, 155; Baring v. Clagett, 3 Bos. & P. 201; Garrels v. Kensington, 8 T.R. 230.

(b) Dalgleish v. Hodgson, 7 Bing. 495; 9 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 138; Hobbs v. Henning, supra; Tabbs v. Bendelack, 3 Bos. & P. 207, n.

(c) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 43.

(d) Ib., s. 44.

(e) Ib., s. 45 (1).

(f) Ib., s. 45 (2).

Where a ship, without lawful excuse, deviates from the voyage contemplated by the policy, the insurer is discharged from liability as from the time of deviation, and it is immaterial that the ship may have regained her route before any loss occurs (g).

There is a deviation from the voyage contemplated by the policy—(a) Where the course of the voyage is specifically designated by the policy, and that course is departed from; or (b) Where the course of the voyage is not specifically designated by the policy, but the usual and customary course is departed from (h). The intention to deviate is immaterial; there must be a deviation in fact to discharge the insurer from his liability under the contract (i). Every policy of insurance is effected upon the implied understanding that the vessel will proceed straightway and without unnecessary delay to her place of destination. If, therefore, she voluntarily deviates from her course to put into port, and is afterwards lost, the underwriters will be discharged (k), unless it be shown that she went there under the pressure of necessity (l); or for necessary repairs or purposes essential to the safe prosecution of the voyage (m), or to avoid pirates, or icebergs, or other dangers of navigation (n), or that she went out of her way for the purpose of succouring a ship in distress (o), or of procuring convoy (p), or had liberty by the charter-party to make deviations or to call at different ports for trading purposes.

It is not necessary to a deviation or change of risk whereby the underwriters are discharged that the degree or period of the risk should be thereby increased (q). If the voyage insured has been actually abandoned, and it has been determined to alter the ship's destination, the underwriters will be discharged; but a mere meditated change of destination, not carried into effect by an actual abandonment of the voyage, will not have that effect (r). If a ship insured for one voyage sails upon another, and the same track for part of the distance leads towards both places of destination, and the vessel is taken before she arrives at the dividing point for the two voyages, the underwriters are

(g) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s, 46 (1).
(h) Ib., s. 46 (2).
(i) Ib., s. 46 (3).
(k) Elliott v. Wilson, 4 Bro. P.C. 470; Leduc v. Ward, 20 Q.B.D. 475; 57 L.J. Q.B. 379.
(l) Scott v. Thompson, 1 B. & P. N.R. 181; see Phelps v. Hill, (1891) 1 Q.B. 605; 60 L.J. Q.B. 382.
(m) Weir v. Aberdeen, 2 B. & Ald. 320; Delaney v. Stoddart, 1 T.R. 22.
(n) The Teutonia, L.R. 4 P.C. 171, 179.
(o) Arnould, Ins. 405; The Jane, 2 Hag. Adm. 345.
(p) Bond v. Nutt, Cowp. 601.
(q) Phillips on Insurance, 983; Hartley v. Buggin, 3 Doug. 39; Company of American Merchants v. British & Foreign Ins. Co., L.R. 8 Ex. 154; 42 L.J. Ex. 60.
(r) Tasker v. Cunninghame, 1 Bligh, 87; Driscol v. Bovil, 1 Bos. & P. 313.

nevertheless discharged, because the voyage was other than the particular voyage insured (s). But, if there is an actual inception of the voyage insured, and there exists only an intention to deviate, and no deviation had in fact taken place at the time of the loss, the underwriters will remain liable (t). And, if a loss occurs before any actual deviation has taken place, and the vessel afterwards deviates, the loss will fall upon the underwriters (u). But a vessel, or goods, or freight, may be insured for part of a voyage as well as the whole distance; and, if a vessel is chartered from A. to C., touching at B., and the vessel is insured from A. to B., there is no pretence for saying that the underwriters are discharged merely because the vessel is going on to an ulterior place of destination which is not disclosed at the time they accept the risk (x). And, if a ship is compelled by adverse circumstances in the course of her voyage to enter a port to victual, or repair, or re-fit, or if she is compelled to cast anchor, to pay toll, or to await a fair wind, she may avail herself of the opportunity to take in some additional cargo, provided no additional delay is thereby created (y). But, if the circumstances rendering it necessary to go into port or to cast anchor have been designedly brought about by the insured, this is a fraud upon the underwriters which discharges them from liability.

Deviation—When excused.—Deviation or delay in prosecuting the voyage contemplated by the policy is excused—(a) Where authorised by any special term (yy) in the policy: or (b) Where caused by circumstances beyond the control of the master and his employer; or (c) Where reasonably necessary in order to comply with an express or implied warranty; or (d) Where reasonably necessary for the safety of the ship or subject-matter insured; or (e) For the purpose of saving human life, or aiding a ship in distress where human life may be in danger (z); or (f) Where reasonably necessary for the purpose of obtaining medical or surgical aid for any person on board the ship; or (g) Where caused by the barratrous conduct of the master or crew, if barratry be one of the perils insured against (a). When the cause excusing the deviation or delay ceases to operate, the ship must resume her course, and prosecute her voyage, with reasonable despatch (b).

(s) Way v. Modigliana, 2 T.R. 32.
(t) Foster v. Wilmer, 2 Str. 1249; Heselton v. Allnutt, 1 M. & S. 46.
(u) Green v. Young, 2 Ld. Raym. 840; 2 Salk. 444; Hare v. Travis, 7 B. & C. 14; 5 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 343.
(x) Taylor v. Wilson, 15 East, 330.
(y) Laroche v. Oswin, 12 East, 131.
(yy) Mentz, Decker & Co. v. Mar. Ins. Co., (1910) 1 K.B. 132; 79 L.J. K.B. 104.
(z) Scaramanga v. Stamp, 5 C.P.D. 295; 49 L.J. C.P. 674.
(a) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 49 (1).
(b) Ib., s. 49 (2).

If a ship with goods on board, insured on a voyage to a foreign port, learns in the course of the voyage thither that an embargo has been laid on all ships of her nation at that port, but there is a prospect of the speedy removal of the embargo, and she accordingly goes into port as near as she can safely get to the port of destination, and there waits a short time for the removal of the embargo with the intention of continuing the voyage, she will be protected by the policy in so doing. But, if she abandons the voyage and sails back to her port of outfit and is lost on the homeward voyage (c), or if, through reasonable fear of an embargo, or of the ports of destination becoming hostile ports, she sails to a port not named in the policy, and so embarks on a new voyage or adventure, the underwriters will be discharged, as the new risk then run is not the risk they insured against (d). If the vessel goes out of her course in order to avoid a peril not insured against and is lost, the underwriters will be discharged, but not if the peril sought to be avoided was covered by the policy. Thus, where loss from capture in a particular port was excepted from the policy, and the vessel ran out to sea and out of her course to avoid capture, and sailed to an adjoining port, and was lost from peril of the sea, it was held that the underwriters were not liable (e); but, where the vessel was insured against capture in port, and put to sea, and deviated from her course to avoid capture, it was held that they were liable (f). Where there is a deviation clause in a charter-party which is contained in general words on a printed form, it is allowable to look at the main object of the charter-party, and the general words used may be limited so as not to defeat that main object (g).

Delay in voyage.—In the case of a voyage policy, the adventure insured must be prosecuted throughout its course with reasonable despatch, and, if without lawful excuse it is not so prosecuted, the insurer is discharged from liability as from the time when the delay became unreasonable (h). Unreasonable delay at any place at which the vessel is authorised to touch is equivalent to a deviation; for it is an implied term of every contract of insurance that the voyage shall be performed without delay, unless liberty is given to the vessel to halt in her course; and consequently, if there are unnecessary stoppages, the adventure becomes a different adventure from that which the (c) Blackenhagen v. Lond. Assurance, 1 Campb. 454.

(d) Oliverson v. Brightman, 8 Q.B. 781; 15 L.J. Q.B. 274.
(e) O'Reilly v. Royal Exch. Assur., 4 Campb. 246.
(f) O'Reilly v. Gonne, 4 Campb. 249.
(g) Glynn v. Margetson, (1893) A.C. 351; 62 L.J. Q.B. 466.
(h) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 48.

underwriters agreed to insure (i). But, if the delay is necessary and reasonable, the risk on the policy will continue, and the underwriters remain chargeable (k).

Insurances on voyages to several ports and places.—Where several ports of discharge are specified by the policy, the ship may proceed to all or any of them, but, in the absence of any usage or sufficient cause to the contrary, she must proceed to them, or such of them as she goes to, in the order designated by the policy. If she does not there is a deviation (l).

Where the policy is to "ports of discharge," within a given area, which are not named, the ship must, in the absence of any usage or sufficient cause to the contrary, proceed to them, or such of them as she goes to, in their geographical order. If she does not there is a deviation (m).

Where a policy was "at and from Martinique and all or any of the West India Islands" to London, and the vessel sailed from Martinique to St. Domingo to take in her cargo, which was far away from the direct course from Martinique to London, it was held that there was no deviation (n).

Licences to touch at different ports and places.—"In the absence of any further licence or usage, the liberty to touch and stay 'at any port or place whatsoever' does not authorise the ship to depart from the course of her voyage from the port of departure to the port of destination" (o). When, by the express terms of the policy, the vessel is to be "at liberty, in the outward or homeward bound voyage, to proceed, sail to, touch, and stay at, any ports or places whatsoever, without the same being deemed a deviation," the liberty extends only to such places as are in the usual course of the voyage, and customarily resorted to by traders making such voyages (p). A licence of this kind will not enable the captain to alter the regular course of the voyage, or touch at any place or port for purposes unconnected with the main adventure (q), or to stay an unreasonable time at places he is authorized to touch at (r); and, if he sails with convoy, it will not authorize him voluntarily to stay at places,

(i) Mount v. Larkins, 8 Bing. 122; 1 L.J. C.P. 20.

(k) Phillips v. Irving, 7 M. & G. 325; 13 L.J. C.P. 145.

(l) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 47 (1). See Bratson v. Haworth, 6 T.R. 531; Marsden v. Reid, 3 East, 577; Gairdner v. Senhouse, 3 Taunt. 16.

(m) Ib., s. 47 (2). See The Dunbeth, (1897) P. 133; 66 L.J. P. 66; Laird v. Robertson, 4 Brown P.C. 488; Lambert v. Liddard, 5 Taunt. 480; Andrews v. Mellish, 5 Taunt. 502.

(n) Bragg v. Anderson, 4 Taunt. 229; Ashley v. Pratt, 16 M. & W. 471; 17 L.J. Ex. 135.

(o) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, sched. 1, r. 6; see also ante, p. 1152.

(p) Lavabre v. Wilson, 1 Doug. 284.

(q) Bottomley v. Bovill, 5 B. & C. 210; 4 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 237.

(r) Urquhart v. Barnard, 1 Taunt. 450.

when by so doing he will part company with the convoy (s). Whenever a vessel is on a seeking voyage, and is to look about for some safe port of discharge, and has consequently "liberty to touch at any port or ports" in a particular sea "for orders, or any other purpose," the insured will be entitled to make every call, stay, or delay which may be necessary for safety and for the due accomplishment of the object of the voyage(t). Where the name of the place to which the vessel is to sail comprehends a particular town and harbour, and also an extensive district of coast, the policy will cover and protect only a voyage from the particular town and harbour, unless it appears that by maritime custom and usage the whole line of coast is considered, for insurance purposes, to be included under the name used in the policy (u). An open roadstead is a port within the meaning of the term "port" in a policy, if it is used as such by seafaring persons, and is resorted to by shipping for the discharge and loading of cargoes (x). Sometimes vessels are expressly insured for a general voyage to any ports or places whatsoever, in port and at sea, in all places, at all times, and in all services, to the intent that the risk may be covered by the policy, whatever may be the employment of the vessel, and however long the duration of the voyage.

Included and excluded losses.—Subject to the provisions of the Marine Insurance Act, 1906 (y), and unless the policy otherwise provides, the insurer is liable for any loss proximately caused by a peril insured against, but, subject as aforesaid, he is not liable for any loss which is not proximately caused by a peril insured against. In particular,—(a) The insurer is not liable for any loss attributable to the wilful misconduct of the assured, but, unless the policy otherwise provides, he is liable for any loss proximately caused by a peril insured against, even though the loss would not have happened but for the misconduct or negligence of the master or crew; (b) Unless the policy otherwise provides, the insurer on ship or goods is not liable for any loss proximately caused by delay, although the (s) Williams v. Shee, 3 Campb. 469.

(t) Hunter v. Leathley, 10 B. & C. 858; 8 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 274; affirmed 1 Cr. & J. 423; 9 L.J. (O.S.) Ex. 118.

(u) Constable v. Noble, 2 Taunt. 403.

(x) Sea Ins. Co. v. Gavin, 4 Bligh, N.S. 578; Brown v. Tayleur, 4 Ad. & E. 241; 5 L.J. K.B. 57; Cockey v. Atkinson, 2 B. & Ald. 460; Harrower v. Hutchinson, L.R. 5 Q.B. 584; 39 L.J. Q.B. 229.

(y) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 55. As to the statutory limitation of a shipowner's responsibility for damage caused to goods, or to another ship, by the acts of the master or mariners, see Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, ss. 502, 503. Sect. 506 of the same Act provides for the legality of insurance against the happening without the owner's actual fault or privity of any of the events in respect of which their liability is so limited, and such insurances are specially exempted from the requirements of the Stamp Act 1891, s. 93, sub-s. (i.).

delay be caused by a peril insured against; (c) Unless the policy otherwise provides, the insurer is not liable for ordinary wear and tear, ordinary leakage and breakage, inherent vice or nature of the subject-matter insured, or for any loss proximately caused by rats or vermin, or for any injury to machinery not proximately caused by maritime perils (z).

Loss by perils of the sea—Negligence and misconduct of master and mariners.—The risks that the underwriters generally take upon themselves by the common form of policy are perils of the sea, fire, pirates, letters of mart and countermart, takings at sea, restraint of princes and people, barratry of the masters and mariners, &c. "The term 'perils of the seas' refers only to fortuitous accidents or casualties of the seas. It does not include the ordinary action of the winds and waves" (a). "I am of opinion that 'perils of the sea' is a phrase having the same meaning in bills of lading and charter-parties as in policies of insurance" (b). Loss by pirates is a peril of the sea (c), and so are losses "by the swell of the tide in a dry harbour (d); by the wilful but not barratrous act of the crew in throwing the ballast overboard; or by a stranding rendered necessary by leakage produced by the careless loading of the cargo" (e); and it would seem that every accidental stranding is a peril of the sea(f). But damage to a ship by her being hove down on a beach to repair, is not a peril of the sea (g). Neither fire nor lightning is a peril of the sea (h). Direct damage done to cargo by rats is not a peril of the sea(i); but damage caused by the incursion of sea-water through rat holes, or a strained rivet hole, is a peril of the sea, and if the shipowner has not been guilty of neglect or default, he may rely on the exception (k). A damage whilst a vessel is in port is not covered by an insurance against "perils of the sea." As between the (z) See Trinder, Anderson & Co. v. Thames and Mersey Marine Ins. Co., 67 L.J. Q.B. 666; (1898) 2 Q.B. 114.

(a) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, sched. 1, r. 7. See Bensaude v. Thames & Mersey Mar. Ins. Co., (1897) A.C. 609; 66 L.J. Q.B. 666; Paterson v. Harris, 1 B. & S. 306; 30 L.J. Q.B. 354.

(b) Per Lord Bramwell, Hamilton v. Pardorf, 12 A.C. 527; 57 L.J. Q.B. 29. See also Wilson v. The Xantho, 12 A.C. 503; 56 L.J. P. 116. As to whether a loss by sea-worms or barnacles is a "peril of the sea," see judgment of Esher, M.R. Pandorf v. Hamilton, 55 L.J. Q.B. 550. A snow-storm is not.

(c) See judgment of Bowen, L.J., Pandorf v. Hamilton, 55 L.J. Q.B. 553; 17 Q.B.D. 674.

(d) Fletcher v. Inglis, 2 B. & Ald. 315.

(e) 1 Maude & P. 355, and the cases there cited.

(f) Per Lord Herschell, The Xantho, supra.

(g) Thompson v. Whitmore, 3 Taunt. 227.

(h) Per Lord Bramwell, Hamilton v. Pandorf, supra.

(i) Lavaroni v. Drury, 22 L.J. Ex. 2; 8 Exch. 170; Kay v. Wheeler, L.R. 2 C.P. 302; 36 L.J. C.P. 180.

(k) The Cressington, (1891) P. 152; 60 L.J. P. 25; Hamilton v. Pandorf, supra. See also The Thrunscoe, 66 L.J. P. 172; (1897) P. 301; The Freedom, 38 L.J. Adm. 25; Ballantyne v. Mackinnon, 65 L.J. Q.B. 616; (1896) 2 Q.B. 455.

carrier of goods by sea and the owner of such goods, losses which, though caused immediately by the violence of the winds and waves, are imputable to the ignorance or negligence of the master or mariners, are not losses by perils of the sea; but a different rule prevails in cases of insurance, where the immediate and not the remote cause of loss is regarded, so that if a vessel is stranded and wrecked through the incompetency or misconduct or barratry of the captain and crew, the loss is nevertheless, as between the insurer and the insured, a loss by perils of the sea, and is covered by the policy, provided the insured, if the insurance is on the vessel itself, had appointed a sufficient crew, and a captain who appeared to have competent skill at the commencement of the voyage (l). And generally a loss caused immediately by perils of the sea is within the policy, though it might not have occurred but for the concurrent action of some other cause which is not within the policy (m). If, by reason of the wilful extinguishment of a particular light by a hostile force, the captain miscalculates his position and the ship goes ashore, the loss is a loss by perils of the sea, although it might never have occurred if hostilities had not broken out (n). And if a ship is wrecked on a foreign coast, and the cargo gets into the hands of the authorities there, and the owners, in order to recover it, are compelled to pay a sum of money to such authorities, the loss of that sum, being an immediate consequence of the wreck, is a loss by perils of the sea (o). A loss occasioned by another vessel's running down the ship insured is a loss by perils of the sea (p), although there has been negligence and want of skill on the part of the master and crew of the ship insured (q). If a ship takes the ground on entering or leaving port, the loss is a loss by perils of the sea; but if she is hove down on a beach within the tideway, or placed in a graving dock to be repaired or cleaned, and rolls over, or is blown over by the wind, and is bilged or damaged, the loss is not a loss from perils of the sea; for the sea is not in such a case the proximate cause of the mischief (r). The collision clause now frequently inserted in policies to secure the ship-

(l) Redman v. Wilson, 14 M. & W. 483; 14 L.J. Ex. 333; Jackson v. Mumford, 9 Com. Cas. 114.

(m) Dudgeon v. Pembroke, 2 App. Cas. 284; 46 L.J. Q.B. 409.

(n) Ionides v. Univ. Mar. Ins. Co., 14 C.B. N.S. 259; 32 L.J. C.P. 170.

(o) Dent v. Smith, L.R. 4 Q.B. 414; 38 L.J. Q. B. 144.

(p) Sailing Ship Garston Co. v. Hickie, Borman & Co., 18 Q.B.D. 17; 56 L.J. Q.B. 38; The Xantho, 12 App. Cas. 503; 56 L.J. P. 116.

(q) Smith v. Scott, 4 Taunt, 126. See, however, The Xantho, supra; De Vaux v. Salvador, 4 Ad. & E. 420; 5 L.J. K.B. 134.

(r) Thompson v. Whitmore, 3 Taunt. 227; Phillips v. Barber, 5 B. & Ald. 161. See Davidson v. Burnand, L.R. 4 C.P. 117; 38 L.J. C.P. 73; Reischer v. Borwick, (1894) 2 Q.B. 548; 63 L.J Q.B. 753.

owner against damage, which he may be compelled to pay for injury done to others by his vessel coming into collision with another, does not extend to damages paid by the insured in respect of loss of life or personal injury (s). But where goods were carried on the terms of an ordinary bill of lading, excepting perils of the sea but not excepting negligence, and the loss apparently fell within the exception of perils of the sea, the burden of showing that the shipowners were not entitled to the benefit of the exception by reason of negligence fell upon the shippers (t). Loss or damage resulting from ordinary wear and tear, or from some inherent vice or defect (u), is not covered by the policy. There must be something fortuitous or accidental in the nature of the damage (x). If a vessel founders at sea in consequence of her hull having been eaten into by worms during the voyage, the loss is a loss by perils of the sea, as the sea is the proximate cause of the mischief. But if the vessel gets safe to some intermediate port at which she was authorised to touch, and is then unable to put to sea again in consequence of the ravages made in her hull by the worms, or in consequence of her bottom having been eaten into by rats while she was lying in port, the loss is not a loss from perils of the sea, but a loss from the ravages of worms and rats, as the worms and the rats are then the proximate, and not the remote cause of the mischief (y). Where a cargo was damaged by heat in consequence of the ventilators having to be closed during a storm of exceptional severity, it was held that the loss was occasioned by "accidents of the seas" (z).

Losses from old age and decay and other causes—Sea perils.—If a vessel is old, and her timbers decay during the voyage, and the bolts and fastenings become loosened, and she founders in a gale of wind which a younger and stouter vessel would in all probability have ridden out in safety, the loss is a loss by perils of the sea (a); but, if she gets safe into port and there drops to pieces, or is found to be unfit to go to sea again from

(s) Taylor v. Dewar, 5 B. & S. 58; 33 L.J. Q.B. 141. As to the meaning of the word "collision" see Union Mar. Ins. Co. v. Borwick, (1895) 2 Q.B. 179; 64 L.J. Q.B. 679; The Zeta, (1893) A.C. 468; 63 L.J. P. 17; Chandler v. Blogg, (1898) 1 Q. B. 32; 67 L.J. Q.B. 336; The Munroe, (1893) P. 248; Burger v. Indemnity Mut. Mar. Assur. Co., (1900) 2 Q.B. 348; 69 L.J. Q.B. 838; Xenos v. Fox, L.R. 4 C.P. 665; 38 L.J. C.P. 351.

(t) The Glendarroch, (1894) P. 226; 63 L.J. P. 89.

(u) Byles, J., Koebel v. Saunders, 17 C.B. N.S. 79; 33 L.J. C.P. 312. See also Jackson v. Mumford, 8 Com. Cas. 61.

(x) Paterson v. Harris, 1 B. & S. 336; 30 L.J. Q.B. 354.

(y) Hunter v. Potts, 4 Campb. 203. See also Magnus v. Buttemer, 11 C.B. 876; 21 L.J. C.P. 119; Corcoran v. Gurney, 1 E. & B. 456; 22 L.J. Q.B. 113.

(z) The Thrunscoe, (1897) P. 301; 66 L.J. P. 172

(a) Phillips v. Nairne, 4 C.B. 358; 16 L.J. C.P. 194.

age and decay, the loss is not a loss from perils of the sea, but from old age.

Where a policy was effected on merchandise laden on board a vessel, and the ship was disabled in a storm and obliged to put into port to refit, and the master, in order to defray the expense, sold part of the goods, and applied the proceeds in payment of such expense, it was held that, as it was want of funds aliunde which obliged the captain to have recourse to a sale of the goods, the loss was not a loss from a peril of the sea (b). If a cargo of living animals is insured "free from mortality and jettison," and the beasts are killed by the rolling of the ship in a storm, the underwriter is nevertheless liable, as the exception extends only to death from natural causes, and the death in such a case arises immediately from a peril of the sea (c). If a cargo of hemp or cotton is put on board in a damp and dangerous state, and it ferments and catches fire or becomes damaged, this is not a loss by perils of the sea, but from an inherent defect in the article itself (d); nor is it a loss by perils of the sea where meat is spoiled by reason of mere delay occasioned by stormy weather (e). A loss from capture or robbery by pirates is a loss by "perils of the sea" (f). If a vessel has sailed out of port on her intended voyage, and does not arrive at her port of destination within a reasonable period, and no intelligence can be obtained respecting her, this is evidence of the loss of the vessel from perils of the sea (g). Where one of the risks insured against was "all risks incident to steam navigation," and by failure of machinery the ship was detained so long that the charterers cancelled their charter-party under the terms contained in it, it was held that the loss was occasioned by such cancelling and not by the breaking down of the machinery (h).

Perils of fire and jettison.—When fire is one of the perils insured against, and "the ship is destroyed by fire, it is of no consequence whether this is occasioned by a common accident, (b) Powell v. Gudgeon, 5 M. & S. 437; Sarquy v. Hobson, 2 B. & C. 7; 1 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 222. In such a case the owner of the goods must resort to the shipowner for an indemnity against the loss. Hodgson v. Malcolm, 2 Bos. & P. N.R. 336.

(c) Lawrence v. Aberdein, 5 B. & Ald. 107; St. Paul Fire and Mar. Ins. Co. v. Morice, 11 Com. Cas. 153; Jacob v. Gaviller, 87 L.T. 26; Montoya v. Lond. Assur. Co., 6 Exch. 451; 20 L.J. Ex. 254; Brown v. Fleming, 7 Com. Cas. 245; Cator v. G. W. Ins. Co. of New York, L.R. 8 C.P. 552; 42 L.J. C.P. 266; Lysaght v. Coleman, (1895) 1 Q.B. 49; 64 L.J. Q.B. 175.

(d) Boyd v. Dubois, 3 Campb. 133; Byles, J., Koebel v. Saunders, 17 C.B. N.S. 79; 33 L.J. C.P. 312.

(e) Taylor v. Dunbar, L.R. 4 C.P. 206; 38 L.J. C.P. 178; Pink v. Fleming, 25 Q.B.D. 396; 59 L.J. Q.B. 559.

(f) 2 Roll. Abr. 248, fol. 10. See also Hagedorn v. Whitmore, 1 Stark. 157.

(g) Green v. Brown, 2 Str. 1199; Koster v. Reed, 6 B. & C. 19.

(h) Merc. Steamship Co. v. Tyser, 7 Q.B.D. 73. As to meaning of term "cancellation," see Jamieson v. Newcastle S.S. Freight Ins. Assoc., (1895) 2 Q.B. 90; 64 L.J. Q.B. 560.

or by lightning, or by an act done in duty to the state," to prevent the vessel from falling into the hands of the enemy (i), or by the gross negligence of the captain or crew (k). "Fire is still the causa causans; and the loss is covered by the policy." Where a vessel insured against fire was described in the policy as "lying in the Victoria Dock, with liberty to go into a dry dock," it was held that the ship was not covered by the policy whilst she was lying in the Thames not in transitu to the dry dock (l). When jettison (m) is one of the risks insured against, the policy will cover a loss occasioned by the throwing of the goods overboard to prevent their falling into the hands of the enemy (n). It is not an implied condition that the insured on goods must claim contribution of the other parties for a jettison before he can demand indemnity from his underwriters. He may demand it of them in the first instance; and, when the underwriters have paid him, they will be entitled to stand in his place with respect to the general average contribution (o).

Loss by capture and seizure.—Capture, properly so called, is a taking by the enemy as prize, in time of open war, or by way of reprisals, with intent to deprive the owner of all dominion or right of property over the thing taken. "Capture" by itself probably means belligerent capture only. Seizure, however, includes other seizures, such as one by revenue or sanitary officers of a foreign state (p). The mere capture of a vessel does not divest the owner of his property therein; it, however, entitles him, if she is insured, to give notice of abandonment to the underwriters. But when the vessel is condemned in a Prize Court the effect of that decision is to pass the property in her to the captors as from the date of the capture (q). Where an insurance was effected against capture only, and the vessel was driven on the enemies' coast in a stiff gale of wind, but received no damage, and, whilst she remained stranded on the shore, she was seized and confiscated, it was held that this was a loss by capture (r). But, if the vessel had been disabled or totally

(i) Gordon v. Rimmington, 1 Campb. 123.

(k) Busk v. Royal Exch. Assur. Co., 2 B. & Ald. 73.

(l) Pearson v. Commercial Un. Assur. Co., 33 L.J. C.P. 85; 15 C.B. N.S. 304; L.R. 8 C.P. 548; 42 L.J. C.P. 548; 1 App. Cas. 498; 45 L.J. Ex. 761.

(m) Jettison is the voluntary sacrifice in time of peril of something in or upon the ship by throwing it overboard with the intention of preserving the residue of the ship and cargo. See The Gratitudene, 3 C. Rob. 240.

(n) Butler v. Wildman, 3 B. & Ald. 398.

(o) Dickenson v. Jardine, L.R. 3 C.P. 639; 37 L.J. C.P. 321.

(p) Cory v. Burr, 8 A.C. 393; Miller v. Law Accident Ins. Co., (1903) 1 K.B. 712; 72 L.J. K.B. 428; St. Paul Fire and Mar. Ins. Co. v. Morice, 11 Com. Cas. 153; Robinson Gold Mining Co. v. Alliance Ins. Co., (1904) A.C. 359; 73 L.J. K.B. 898; Bolivia Republic v. Indemnity Mut. Mar. Ins. Co., 78 L.J. K.B. 596; (1909) 1 K.B. 785.

(q) Anderson v. Marten, 77 L.J. K.B. 959; (1908) A.C. 334.

(r) Green v. Elmslie, Peake, 278.

wrecked, it would have been a loss from perils of the sea (s). The circumstance that the capture has been occasioned by the barratry of the master, or that it is an illegal capture, does not render the capture less a capture (t). As insurances on voyages to ports blockaded by a British squadron are illegal, no action can be maintained for indemnity in respect of losses resulting from an attempt to break such a blockade, if it appears that the party bringing the action knew of the blockade and intended to break it at the time he effected the insurance. If he had no knowledge of the blockade or no intention to break it, or had fair ground to think that the blockade would be raised by the time the vessel reached her destination, the insurance will be valid (u). Insurances by British subjects of foreign vessels and cargoes from capture do not extend to captures made by order of the government of this country; for all insurances of enemies' property against British capture are null and void, as being contrary to the public policy of the law (x). This principle does not apply to insurance against seizure by a belligerent government of the property of its own subjects (y). In every policy of insurance there is an implied term, that the insurance shall not extend to cover any loss from capture of enemies' property by the British government on the breaking out of hostilities (z). But the property of neutrals will be covered by the policy (a); and so will the property of all persons who have received a licence to trade from the crown (b). If a foreigner consigns goods to merchants in this country on his own account and risk, and the consignees make advances to such foreign consignor in respect of the consignment, and insure the goods on his account, and a war breaks out which prevents the consignor from suing upon the policy in the courts of this country, the consignees cannot avail themselves of the policy for the purpose of recovering the amount of their advances from the underwriters, although it was made in their names as interest

(s) Hahn v. Corbett, 2 Bing. 205; 2 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 253; Ionides v. Universal Mar. Ins. Co., 14 C.B. N.S. 259; 32 L.J. C.P. 170, ante, p. 1175.

(t) Arcangelo v. Thompson, 2 Campb. 620; Powell v. Hyde, 5 E. & B. 611; 25 L.J. Q.B. 65; Palmer v. Naylor, 10 Exch. 382; 23 L.J. Ex. 323; Cory v. Burr, 8 App. Cas. 393; 52 L.J. Q.B. 657.

(u) Harratt v. Wise, 9 B. & C. 712; 7 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 309; Naylor v. Taylor, 9 B. & C. 718.

(x) Furtado v. Rogers, 3 B. & P. 191; Esposito v. Bowden, 7 E. & B. 763; 27 L.J. Q.B. 17.

(y) Driefontein Gold Mines v. Jansen, (1901) 2 K.B. 419; 70 L.J. K.B. 881; aff. H.L., 71 L.J. K.B. 857; (1902) A.C. 484; Nigel Gold Mining Co. v. Hoade, (1901) 2 K.B. 849; 70 L.J. K.B. 1006. As to meaning of "seizure," see Robinson Gold Mining Co. v. Alliance Mar. & General Assur. Co., (1902) 2 K.B. 489; 71 L.J. K.B. 942.

(z) Brandon v. Curling, 4 East, 417; Kellner v. Le Mesurier, ib. 396. See also Nickels v. Lond. and Prov. Mar. and Gen. Ins. Co., 70 L.J. K.B. 29.

(a) Visger v. Prescott, 5 Esp. 186.

(b) Usparicha v. Noble, 13 East, 332.

might appear. They should have insured their interest in the first instance (c). When a capture has been made, whether legal or not, the underwriters are liable for the expenses of a compromise made bonâ fide to prevent the ship's being condemned as a prize (d). If the capture does not take place until after the goods have been landed, the underwriters are not liable, as the voyage is terminated, although the goods may never have come to the possession of the consignees (e).

Arrests, restraints and detainments of kings, princes and people.—"The term 'arrests, &c., of kings, princes, and people' refers to political or executive acts, and does not include a loss caused by riot or by ordinary judicial process "(f). Whenever the ruling power in a state prevents the owner or his agents from enjoying the lawful right of user of the property insured, by an act which is not as against the state of which the assured is a subject—an act of war—the assured is entitled to recover any loss occasioned thereby from his underwriters under these words (g). A "restraint" does not necessarily involve the use of actual physical force; an authoritative prohibition on the part of the governing power is sufficient. But the master must have yielded to compulsion; if he act voluntarily there is no "restraint" (h). Capture is the forcible taking of a ship, &c., in time of war, with a view to appropriating it as prize. Arrest is a temporary detention of ship, &c., with a view to ultimately releasing it, or repaying its value. Embargoes are the most common cases of "arrests, restraints, and detainments" of princes. An embargo is an order of government (generally, but not always, issued in contemplation of hostilities) prohibiting the departure of ships, or goods from some or all of the ports within its dominions. The word "people" comprehends nations in their collective capacity, and not bodies of insurgents acting in opposition to their rulers. "It means the supreme power of the country, whatever it may be;" and, therefore, if a corn vessel is seized and detained by a hungry mob or a party of rebels, the loss resulting therefrom is not covered by the policy; for it is not a detention by "the (c) Conway v. Gray, 10 East, 536; but see Aubert v. Gray, 32 L.J. Q.B. 50; 3 B. & S. 163.

(d) Berens v. Rucker, 1 W. Bl. 313.

(e) Brown v. Carstairs, 3 Campb. 161.

(f) 6 Edw. 7. c. 41, sched. 1, r. 10.

(g) Rodocanachi v. Elliott, L.R. 9 C.P. 518; Robinson Gold Mining Co. v. Alliance Ins. Co., (1901) 2 K.B. 919; 73 L.J. K.B. 898; Stringer v. English and Scottish Mar. Ins. Co., L.R. 5 Q.B. 599; 39 L.J. Q.B. 214; Aubert v. Gray, 3 B. & S. 163; 32 L.J. Q.B. 50; Smith v. Rosario Nitrate Co., (1894) 1 Q.B. 174; Schroder v. Thompson, 7 Taunt. 462.

(h) Miller v. Law Accident Ins. Co., (1903) 1 K.B. 712; 72 L.J. K.B. 428; Mansell v. Hoade, 20 T.L.R. 150; St. Paul Fire and Mar. Ins. Co. v. Morice, 11 Com. Cas. 153; Yuill v. Scott Robson, (1908) 1 K.B. 270; 77 L.J. K.B. 259.

people" (i). But, if it be made by order of the executive officers of a foreign government, or by any foreign prince, potentate, or power, it is otherwise (k). It is not necessary in order to render the underwriters liable that there should be an intention to keep the ship; but where a ship was seized and the cargo plundered by natives, it was held to be within the policy (l). The clause does not extend to losses by detention by the British government, or by officers acting under its authority, unless the detention be unlawful. A foreigner, therefore, cannot sue any British subject in the courts of this country for such losses (m), unless he can show that it was an erroneous or unlawful detention (n). The insurance against the risk of detention by princes will not extend to cover any loss happening in the course of any contraband adventure in which the goods become liable to seizure as forfeited by the laws of this country (o), or by the laws of any foreign country, unless the underwriter has notice of the intention of the insured to engage in a foreign smuggling transaction, and accepts the increased risk, in which case he will be liable upon the policy, as our courts do not take notice of the revenue laws of foreign governments (p). If the detention arises from the captain's having carried simulated papers, or from his having neglected to provide proper national documents for his vessel, the underwriters will be discharged (q), unless they have received notice of the intention so to trade, and have accepted the increased risk, and the trading with simulated or defective papers is not unlawful by the laws of this country, but is resorted to in the furtherance of British commerce (r). If, by reason of a hostile embargo suddenly laid on the destined port, the further prosecution of the voyage becomes impracticable, and the ship returns, and the voyage is lost, the loss is not a loss by detention (s). Goods are detained where they are by the application of a hostile force prevented from being carried to their destination, as where they are in a blockaded port or a besieged town (t). The meaning of the term "restraint of princes" is not confined to an actual physical restraint, but includes a restraint arising from a

(i) Nesbitt v. Lushington, 4 T.R. 783.

(k) Rotch v. Edie, 6 T.R. 413; Miller v. Law Accident Ins. Soc., (1903) 1 K.B. 712; 72 L.J. K.B. 428.

(l) Johnston v. Hogg, 10 Q.B.D. 432; 52 L.J. Q.B. 343.

(m) Touteng v. Hubbard, 3 Bos. & P. 291.

(n) Mullett v. Shedden, 13 East, 304; Lozano v. Janson, 28 L.J. Q.B. 337; 2 E. & E. 60.

(o) Brandon v. Curling, 4 East, 416.

(p) Planché v. Fletcher, 1 Doug. 251; Holman v. Johnson, Cowp. 343.

(q) Bell v. Carstairs, 14 East, 374.

(r) Bazett v. Meyer, 5 Taunt. 824.

(s) Forster v. Christie, 11 East, 205.

(t) Rodocanachi v. Elliott, L.R. 9 C.P. 518; 43 L.J. C.P. 255. See Miller v. Law Accident Ins. Soc., (1902) 2 K.B. 694; 71 L.J. K.B. 551.

reasonable apprehension of danger; if such a restraint is likely to continue, the shipowner is entitled to discharge the cargo before reaching the port of destination (u). Every foreigner is deemed to be a party to the public authoritative acts of his own government; and a detention by order of such government is as much his act as if it proceeded immediately from himself. He cannot, therefore, make a loss resulting from such a detention the foundation of a claim for indemnity against any British subjects in the courts of this country (x), unless the insurance is expressly directed against such a contingency, and the insurer has expressly agreed to take upon himself such a risk (y). If the detention of goods takes place whilst they are on board the vessel at the port of destination, before the risk in the policy ceases, the underwriters are responsible; but, if the goods have been safely landed and are then seized, they are discharged from liability (z). The underwriters are sometimes exempted, by the express terms of the policy, from responsibility in case of confiscation, seizure, and capture in port. In these cases, whether the vessel was or was not at her port of discharge is a question of fact for a jury, to be determined by reference to custom and usage, as defining the limits of the port (a).

Loss by pirates, rovers and thieves.—Amongst the perils which the underwriters avowedly take upon themselves in our common printed forms of policy are those of "pirates, rovers and thieves." Pirates (aa) are persons who form the crew of a ship which sails without legal commission for the purpose of plundering other vessels indiscriminately. "The term 'pirates' includes passengers who mutiny and rioters who attack this ship from the shore" (b). The term "pirate" is also applied to the ship itself. The crew of a ship who mutiny and seize her, and then carry her off, are pirates (c), though in such a case the loss might also be ascribed to barratry (d). "The term 'thieves' does not cover clandestine theft, or a theft committed by any one of the ship's company, whether crew or passengers" (e).

Peril of barratry of master and crew.—"The term 'barratry' includes every wrongful act wilfully committed by the master or (u) Nobel's Explosives Co. v. Jenkins, (1896) 2 Q.B. 326; 65 L.J. Q.B. 638.

(x) Campbell v. Innes, 4 B. & Ald. 423; but see Aubert v. Gray, 32 L.J. Q.B. 50; 3 B. & S. 163.
(y) Simeon v. Bazett, 2 M. & S. 98.
(z) Brown v. Carstairs, 3 Campb. 160.
(a) Reyner v. Pearson, 4 Taunt. 662; Levy v. Vaughan, ib. 387; Levin v. Newnham, ib. 722; Mellish v. Staniforth, 3 Taunt. 499.
(aa) As to popular meaning of "pirate," see Bolivia Republic v. Indem. Mut. Mar. Ins. Co., (1909) 1 K.B. 785; 78 L.J. K.B. 596.
(b) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, sched. 1, r. 8; see also Nesbitt v. Lushington, 4 T.R. 783.
(c) Brown v. Smith, 1 Dow. P.C. 349.
(d) Dixon v. Reid, 5 B. & Ald. 597.
(e) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, sched. 1, r. 9.

crew to the prejudice of the owner, or, as the case may be, the charterer " (f), such as running away with the ship; or fraudulently carrying her out of her course; or sinking or deserting her; or fraudulently defeating or delaying the voyage; embezzling the cargo; smuggling (g); cruising for and taking prizes without the authority of the owner (h); sailing out of port without paying port dues, or in breach of an embargo, whereby the vessel or cargo is confiscated or lost; trading with alien enemies; or wilfully and knowingly sailing to a blockaded port, whereby the ship is seized by a British cruiser (i); and the act may be barratry, although it was done by the captain with no view of benefiting himself, but of securing some advantage for the shipowners. A deviation caused by the crew taking the ship on a different voyage is barratry (k). Where the deviation proceeds from ignorance or want of skill and not from fraud, it is not barratry, although it may be against the interest of the owners (l); for unless accompanied with fraud or criminal intent, no case of deviation will fall within the true definition of barratry (m). Barratry does not include simple negligence, unaccompanied by culpable misconduct, nor any act done in obedience to the commands of the shipowner, or from ignorance, or a mere error of judgment, or a mistake by the captain of the tenor of his instructions (n). A master who is a sole owner cannot commit barratry, because he cannot commit a fraud against himself; but, if a master, being also part owner, makes away with the ship in fraud of the other owners, that is barratry (o). Where barratry of the master was insured against, and the ship was warranted " free from capture and seizure," and the ship was seized in consequence of barratry, it was held that the loss was due to the seizure not the barratry (p).

Perils, losses, and misfortunes generally.—" The term ' all other perils ' includes only perils similar in kind to the perils

(f) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, sched. 1, r. 11. See Vallejo v. Wheeler, Cowp. 154; Earle v. Rowcroft, 8 East, 126.

(g) Dixon v. Reid, 5 B. & Ald. 597; Hucks v. Thornton, Holt, N.P. 30; Roscow v. Corson, 8 Taunt. 684; Ross v. Hunter, 4 T.R. 33; Havelock v. Hancil, 3 T.R. 277.

(h) Moss v. Byrom, 6 T.R. 379.

(i) Goldschmidt v. Whitmore, 3 Taunt. 508.

(k) Dixon v. Reid, 5 B. & Ald. 597; 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 49 (1) (g), ante, p. 1170.

(l) Phyn v. Royal Ex. Assur. Co., 7 T.R. 505.

(m) Earle v. Rowcroft, 8 East, 139; Bradford v. Levy, R. & M. 333; Bottomley v. Bovill, 5 B. & C. 212; 4 L.J (O.S.) K.B. 237.

(n) Todd v. Ritchie, 1 Stark. 240; Stamma v. Brown, 2 Str. 1173; Phyn v. Royal Exchange, 7 T.R. 505; Grill v. Gen. Iron Screw Colliery Co., L.R. 3 C.P. 476; 37 L.J. C.P. 205.

(o) Jones v. Nicholson, 10 Exch. 28; 23 L.J. Ex. 330. As to negligence of master who is also part owner, see Trinder, Anderson & Co. v. Thames and Mersey Mar. Ins. Co., (1898) 2 Q.B. 114; 67 L.J. Q.B. 666; Westport Coal Co. v. McPhail, (1898) 2 Q.B. 130; 67 L.J. Q.B. 674.

(p) Cory v. Burr, 8 App.Cas. 393; 52 L.J. Q.B. 657, ante, p. 1179.

specifically mentioned in the policy " (q). The clause generally inserted in policies extending the insurance to " all other perils, losses, and misfortunes that have or shall come to the hurt, detriment, or damage of the said goods and merchandise and ship, &c.," does not extend the protection of the policy to all perils that may come to the hurt, detriment, or damage of the thing insured, but the words are confined to perils of the same nature as those previously enumerated; so that in order to come within the general words, now under consideration, the dangers must be ejusdem generis with those specifically described (r). If, therefore, a vessel is fired into and sunk by mistake the loss is within this " sweeping clause " of the policy. If a vessel is lost or injured in port, whilst the policy continues in force, the loss will be covered by this clause; but the general words thereof are restrained in construction to perils of the same kind as those more particularly enumerated in the policy (s). And, where meat becomes putrid by reason of delay caused by tempestuous weather, it is not a loss within this clause (t). Nor will these general words include damage by the explosion of a boiler (u).

Total and partial losses—Constructive and actual—Distinctions between.—A loss may be either total or partial. Any loss other than a total loss, as hereinafter defined, is a partial loss (x). A total loss may be either an actual total loss, or a constructive total loss (y). Unless a different intention appears from the terms of the policy, an insurance against total loss includes a constructive, as well as an actual, total loss (z). Where the assured brings an action for a total loss and the evidence proves only a partial loss, he may, unless the policy otherwise provides, recover for a partial loss (a). Where goods reach their destination in specie, but by reason of obliteration of marks, or otherwise, they are incapable of identification, the loss, if any, is partial, and not total (b). Where the subject-matter insured is destroyed, or so damaged as to cease to be a thing of the kind insured, or where the assured is irretriev-

(q) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, sched. 1, r. 12.

(r) See Thames and Mersey Mar. Ins. Co. v. Hamilton, Fraser & Co., 56 L.J. Q.B. 626; 12 A.C. 484; The Knight of St. Michael, 67 L.J. P. 19; (1898) P. 30; Schloss Brothers v. Stevens, 75 L.J. K.B. 927; (1906) 2 K.B. 665.

(s) Cullen v. Butler, 5 M. & S. 461; Phillips v. Barber, 5 B. & Ald. 161; Naylor v. Palmer, 8 Exch. 739; 22 L.J. Ex. 329; Davidson v. Burnand, L.R. 4 C.P. 117; 38 L.J. C.P. 73.

(t) Taylor v. Dunbar, L.R. 4 C.P. 206; 38 L.J. C.P. 178; Pink v. Fleming, 25 Q.B.D. 396; 59 L.J. Q.B. 559.

(u) Thames and Mersey Mar. Ins. Co. v. Hamilton, Fraser & Co., 12 App.Cas. 484; 56 L.J. Q.B. 626, disapproving West India Teleg. Co. v. Home Ins. Co., 6 Q.B.D. 51; 50 L.J. Q.B. 41.

(x) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 56 (1).

(y) Ib., s. 56 (2).

(z) Ib., s. 56 (3).

(a) Ib., s. 56 (4).

(b) Ib., s. 56 (5).

ably deprived thereof, there is an actual total loss (c). In the case of an actual total loss no notice of abandonment need be given (d). Where the ship concerned in the adventure is missing, and after the lapse of a reasonable time no news of her has been received, an actual total loss may be presumed (e).

Constructive total loss.—Subject to any express provision in the policy, there is a constructive total loss where the subject-matter insured is reasonably abandoned on account of its actual total loss appearing to be unavoidable, or because it could not be preserved from actual total loss without an expenditure which would exceed its value when the expenditure had been incurred (f). In particular, there is a constructive total loss—(i) Where the assured is deprived of the possession of his ship or goods by a peril insured against, and (a) it is unlikely that he can recover the ship or goods, as the case may be, or (b) the cost of recovering the ship or goods, as the case may be, would exceed their value when recovered; or (ii) In the case of damage to a ship, where she is so damaged by a peril insured against that the cost of repairing the damage would exceed the value of the ship when repaired. In estimating the cost of repairs, no deduction is to be made in respect of general average contributions to those repairs payable by other interests, but account is to be taken of the expense of future salvage operations and of any future general average contributions to which the ship would be liable if repaired; or (iii) In the case of damage to goods, where the cost of repairing the damage and forwarding the goods to their destination would exceed their value on arrival (g).

Where there is a constructive total loss the assured may either treat the loss as a partial loss, or abandon the subject-matter insured to the insurer and treat the loss as if it were an actual total loss (h).

If a ship insured for a particular voyage grounds on a sand-bank and cannot be got off, the loss is a total loss, although the ship still exists in specie. If she is disabled by stress of weather, and is so strained as not to be worth repairing, the loss is a total loss, although she still exists as a ship in the dockyard. And, when a vessel has been wrecked, the cargo is totally lost if no part of it can be recovered for the benefit of the insured. If a cargo is so much injured as to be unfit for conveyance to the

(c) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 57 (1).
(d) Ib., s. 57 (2).
(e) Ib., s. 58.
(f) Ib., s. 60 (1). See Beaver Line Associated Steamers v. Lond. and Prov. Mar. and Gen. Ins. Co., 5 Com. Cas. 269.
(g) Ib., s. 60 (2). See Marten v. Steamship Owners Underwriting Assoc., 71 L.J. K.B. 718; Angel v. Merchants' Mar. Ins. Co., 72 L.J. K.B. 498; (1903) 1 K.B. 811; North Atlantic S.S. Co. v. Burr, 9 Com. Cas. 164.
(h) Ib., s. 61.

port of destination, and has consequently been landed at an intermediate port to prevent its entire destruction, the loss is in contemplation of law, as between the underwriter and insured, a total loss, and the latter is entitled to recover the full amount of the insurance (i). But in these cases, when the subject-matter of the insurance is not totally destroyed, the insured must, in order to recover the full amount of the insurance as for a total loss, ABANDON what remains, i.e., he must make a cession of all his proprietary rights thereto to the underwriters, and give them notice of abandonment.

Notice of abandonment.—Sect. 62 of the Marine Insurance Act, 1906 (k), enacts that:—"(1) Subject to the provisions of this section, where the assured elects to abandon the subject-matter insured to the insurer, he must give notice of abandonment. If he fails to do so the loss can only be treated as a partial loss. (2) Notice of abandonment may be given in writing, or by word of mouth, or partly in writing and partly by word of mouth, and may be given in any terms which indicate the intention of the assured to abandon his insured interest in the subject-matter insured unconditionally to the insurer. (3) Notice of abandonment must be given with reasonable diligence after the receipt of reliable information of the loss, but where the information is of a doubtful character the assured is entitled to a reasonable time to make inquiry. (4) Where notice of abandonment is properly given, the rights of the assured are not prejudiced by the fact that the insurer refuses to accept the abandonment. (5) The acceptance of an abandonment may be either express or implied from the conduct of the insurer. The mere silence of the insurer after notice is not an acceptance. (6) Where notice of abandonment is accepted the abandonment is irrevocable. The acceptance of the notice conclusively admits liability for the loss and the sufficiency of the notice. (7) Notice of abandonment is unnecessary where, at the time when the assured receives information of the loss, there would be no possibility of benefit to the insurer if notice were given to him. (8) Notice of abandonment may be waived by the insurer. (9) Where an insurer has re-insured his risk, no notice of abandonment need be given by him."

The notice of abandonment is required in all cases to give the

(i) Ionides v. Universal Ins. Co., 14 C.B. N.S. 292; 32 L.J. C.P. 176.

(k) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 62. See Cunningham v. Maritime Ins. Co., (1899) 2 Ir. R. 257; The Blairmore, 67 L.J. P.C. 96; (1898) A.C. 593; Western Assur. Co. of Toronto v. Poole, 72 L.J. K.B. 195; (1903) 1 K.B. 376; Duns, Brown, & Co. v. Binning, 11 Com. Cas. 190; Guthrie v. North China Ins. Co., 7 Com. Cas. 130.

insurers the means of inquiry and of guarding against fraud, to enable them to repair the ship if they should deem such a proceeding for their advantage, and to secure all the benefit that can be derived from the wreck. It must be given "within a reasonable time after the insured receives intelligence of the accident, that the underwriter may be entitled to the benefit of what may still be of value" (l). Notice of abandonment need not, however, be given to the underwriters of a policy of re-insurance (m). Where the insured receives information that the subject of insurance is in imminent danger of becoming a total loss he must immediately give notice of abandonment, and it is immaterial that the subject of insurance is afterwards justifiably sold (n). The abandonment must be an unconditional abandonment of the whole of the subject-matter of the insurance to the insurers or underwriters, unless the latter think proper to accept of a conditional abandonment. When the subject-matter of the insurance totally perishes, no notice of abandonment is necessary; for there is nothing to abandon (o). And, when it is so far annihilated that it no longer exists in specie, a formal abandonment of the comparatively valueless remnants of what was once a ship or a cargo is not necessary to enable the insured to recover as for a total loss (p), although, if these remnants are worth anything at all, or have been sold, the underwriters will be entitled to them, or to the value of them, or to the price they have fetched; for it is contrary to the principle of every contract of indemnity to permit the insured to recover more than the amount of the loss sustained (q). If the insurance is on freight, and the voyage is lost by a peril insured against, so that the freight cannot be earned by the insured, the loss is a total loss, and there is no need of an abandonment of freight; "for there is nothing to abandon" (r). If the adventure is brought to an end by a peril insured against, and the things are taken out of the power of the insured, as, for instance, if they are totally lost to him by reason of capture or seizure in a foreign port, or by (l) Mitchell v. Edie, 1 T.R. 613; Knight v. Faith, 15 Q.B. 649; 19 L.J. Q.B. 509; Gernon v. Royal Exch. Assur. Co., 6 Taunt. 383; King v. Walker, 33 L.J. Ex. 325; 3 H. & C. 209; Stringer v. English Ins. Co., L.R. 4 Q.B. 676; 38 L.J. Q.B. 321; aff. 5 Q.B. 599; 39 L.J. Q.B. 214; Western Assur. Co. of Toronto v. Poole, (1903) 1 K.B. 376; 72 L.J. K.B 193.

(m) Uzielli v. Boston Mar. Ins. Co., 15 Q.B.D. 11; 54 L.J. Q.B. 142.

(n) Kaltenbach v. Mackenzie, 3 C.P.D. 467; 48 L.J. C.P. 9.

(o) Rankin v. Potter, L.R. 6 H.L. 83; 42 L.J. C.P. 169.

(p) Cambridge v. Anderton, 2 B. & C. 691; 2 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 141; Allen v. Sugrue, 8 B. & C. 561; 7 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 53.

(q) Roux v. Salvador, 4 Sc. 34; 7 L.J. Ex. 328; Trinder, Anderson & Co. v. Thames & Mersey Mar. Ins. Co., (1898) 2 Q.B. 114; 67 L.J. Q.B. 666.

(r) Idle v. Roy. Ex. Assur. Co., 8 Taunt. 755; 3 Moore, 142; Mount v. Harrison, 4 Bing. 388; 6 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 6; Rankin v. Potter, supra.

political laws working detention and sale by a court, or by circumstances of distress and danger creating a mercantile necessity for a sale, there is no necessity for any notice of abandonment (s). And, where the sale was not under a condemnation of any court, but took place because the insured declined to give security to prevent the sale, it was held that such sale was a total loss occasioned by the seizure, the giving of the security under the circumstances not being the course which a prudent uninsured owner would have adopted (t). But it is otherwise where the sale is not a necessary or natural consequence of any of the perils insured against (u). A constructive total loss is a total loss within the meaning of a policy against "total loss only" (x).

Party to give notice of abandonment.—The party giving notice of abandonment must be the party in whom the property in the ship is at the time vested. Where, therefore, a policy of insurance has been deposited as security for an advance of money, the pledgee of the policy has no implied authority to give notice of abandonment; but it is otherwise with a person who has a mortgage on the ship (y).

Form of notice of abandonment.—The word "abandon" need not be used; any words showing an intention to give up the property insured upon the ground of its having been totally lost will be sufficient (z).

Effect of notice of abandonment.—"Where there is a valid abandonment the insurer is entitled to take over the interest of the assured in whatever may remain of the subject-matter insured, and all proprietary rights incidental thereto" (a). If they do not warrant an abandonment, or the insured neglects to give prompt notice of abandonment, he must proceed against the underwriters for the loss he has actually sustained. The insured then makes the best of what he can save, and resorts to the underwriter for the actual loss, after deducting the value of the remnants. On the other hand, when there is a constructive total loss and an abandonment, the risk of saving what remains to be saved is thrown upon the underwriter. After the abandonment the insurer stands in the place of the insured, and is clothed with the ownership of the property saved, and is entitled to all the

(s) Farnworth v. Hyde, 34 L.J. C.P. 207; 18 C.B. N.S. 835; Mullett v. Shedden, 13 East, 304; Mellish v. Andrews, 15 ib. 13; Cossman v. West, 13 App. Cas. 160; 57 L.J. P.C. 17.

(t) Stringer v. English Ins. Co., L.R. 5 Q.B. 599; 39 L.J. Q.B. 214.

(u) De Mattos v. Saunders, L.R. 7 C.P. 570.

(x) Adams v. Mackenzie, 13 C.B. N.S. 442; 32 L.J. C.P. 92.

(y) Jardine v. Leathley, 3 B. & S. 700; 32 L.J. Q.B. 132.

(z) Currie v. Bombay Native Ins. Co., L.R. 3 P.C. 72; 39 L.J. P.C. 1.

(a) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 62 (1).

profits and advantages that may accrue therefrom; and, if the insured recovers and retains possession of any portion of the property, the underwriters may maintain an action against him for the recovery of the value of it (b). The abandonment is retrospective in its operation, so that the title of the abandonees relates back to the time of the loss (c).

Insurance on freight.—"Upon the abandonment of a ship, the insurer thereof is entitled to any freight in course of being earned, and which is earned by her subsequent to the casualty causing the loss, less the expenses of earning it incurred after the casualty; and, where the ship is carrying the owner's goods, the insurer is entitled to a reasonable remuneration for the carriage of them subsequent to the casualty causing the loss" (d). Where a ship and the freight to be earned on the voyage were insured by separate sets of underwriters, and the ship was captured, and the ship and freight were abandoned to the respective underwriters, who each paid as for a total loss, and after that the ship was recaptured, and then performed her voyage and earned freight, it was held that the underwriters on the ship were entitled to the freight so earned, to the exclusion of the underwriters on the freight (e). The insured ship is by the abandonment vested in the underwriters from the time of the loss; and, as their ship earns the freight, they are entitled to it as purchasers of the ship (f); but if, at the time of the casualty, there is no freight pending, as, for instance, if the shipowner is carrying his own goods, the abandonment can give no right to freight (g). But freight is not an incident to the ownership of the vessel; and therefore, where a vessel was abandoned to the underwriters of the vessel upon a constructive total loss occurring through the fault of another vessel, it was held that they could not claim any share of the damages recovered from the owners of the wrong-doing vessel on account of the loss of freight (h). Where, after an embargo on a ship, the ship and freight were abandoned to the respective underwriters, and the embargo was taken off and the ship completed her voyage and earned freight, it was held that the shipowners had no right to the freight earned after the abandonment of the ship, and that the loss of freight was not demandable from the underwriters on freight, as it was not lost by means of the (b) Leatham v. Terry, 3 Bos. & P. 479.

(c) Cammell v. Sewell, 3 H. & N. 644; 27 L.J. Ex. 447.
(d) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 63 (2).
(e) Davidson v. Case, 5 Moo. 116. But see Sea Ins. Co. v. Hadden, 13 Q.B.D. 706; 53 L.J. Q.B. 252.
(f) Hickie v. Rodocanachi, 4 H. & N. 466; 28 L.J. Ex. 273.
(g) Miller v. Woodfall, 8 E. & B. 504; 27 L.J. Q.B. 120.
(h) Sea Ins. Co. v. Hadden, supra.

perils insured against, but by reason of the abandonment of the ship, which was the act of the insured themselves (i). A total loss of the ship, therefore, does not necessarily involve a total loss of the freight. The ship may get to port a mere wreck, and deliver her cargo and earn freight, and the shipowner may elect to abandon and proceed for a total loss; but, if he does so, the underwriters of the ship will be entitled to the freight, and the insured will have no claim to any indemnity from the underwriters on freight for the loss of freight. Thus, where a ship and freight were separately insured by separate policies, and the ship came into port greatly damaged, and after survey was found not worth repairing, and was finally abandoned, but the cargo was safely landed, and the freight was earned and received by the shipowners, and was then handed over by them to the underwriters, as incident to the ship, which being done, the shipowners proceeded against the underwriters on freight for indemnity for loss of freight, it was held that they had no claim whatever in respect thereof, as the freight had been earned and actually received by the shipowners, and might have been retained by them for their own use, but for their subsequent voluntary election to abandon to the underwriters on the ship, and to constitute such underwriters the owners of the damaged ship and the freight earned by it (k).

But in all these cases where the underwriters are entitled to the freight after abandonment, the freight has been earned by the insured ship. If another ship finishes the voyage, the underwriters are not entitled to the freight, unless the substituted vessel is their vessel, or has been hired for their benefit by their agents (l). And, if the goods in the ship are the property of the owner of the ship, and he is carrying them on his own account, the abandonees of the ship have no claim to freight (m). The shipowner and charterer may agree that a portion of the freight shall be prepaid, in which case, as it cannot be recovered back, that portion is not a risk, and is not insurable; but the remaining portion may be insured, and if the ship is wrecked, and only such an amount of cargo is saved as corresponds with the prepaid freight, the insured may recover as for a total loss (n).

When insured may abandon—Total losses.—The general rule is that the insured may abandon in every case and claim for a

(i) M'Carthy v. Abel, 5 East, 388.
(k) Scot. Mar. Ins. Co. v. Turner, 17 Jur. 631; 4 H.L.C. 312, n.; Benson v. Chapman, 8 C.B. 964; 2 H.L.C. 696.
(l) Hickie v. Rodocanachi, 4 H. & N. 467; 28 L.J. Ex. 273.
(m) Miller v. Woodfall, 8 E. & B. 493; 27 L.J. Q.B. 120.
(n) Allison v. Bristol Mar. Ins. Co., 1 App. Cas. 209.

total loss, when, by the occurrence of any of the misfortunes or perils insured against, the subject-matter of the insurance is so injured or deteriorated as to render any further dealing with it, in the mode contemplated at the time the policy was effected, worthless. If a vessel insured for a voyage is so much injured by perils of the sea that the cost of the repairs will be more than the vessel is worth when repaired, the insured may abandon and claim for a total loss (o). But not if the vessel is worth repairing, and can be repaired and re-fitted for sea at an expense less than her value when repaired (p). A vessel valued at 23,000*l.* was insured against risks which included perils of the sea, the insured value to be taken as the "repaired value" in ascertaining whether the vessel was a constructive total loss. The vessel being driven on the rocks, notice of abandonment was given by the assured, but the underwriters declined to accept it. The ship was floated by persons employed with the consent and for the benefit of all concerned, and was temporarily repaired and brought to England. The assured claimed to recover as for a constructive total loss. The vessel was not permanently repaired at the time of the trial, but the judge found that about 22,359*l.* was the proper amount to fix as the total cost of repair, and held that there was not a constructive total loss. It was held by the Court of Appeal, that in determining the question whether he had a right to abandon the vessel as a constructive total loss, the assured was not entitled to add the damaged value of the vessel to the cost of repair (q). Where a ship has sunk in deep water, the underwriters cannot escape liability for a total loss by intervening and raising the ship at their own expense (r). So, if a stranded vessel can by any means within reach of the captain, which he could reasonably use, be recovered and saved, the vessel cannot be abandoned by the insured; and, if the captain, to avoid the trouble of recovering the vessel, sells her as she lies, the sale will not entitle the insured to treat the loss as a total loss, and to abandon to the underwriters (s). When a ship and cargo are so submerged that both must be got up together, the expenditure incurred in raising them is for (o) Young v. Turing, 2 Man. & G. 593; Angel v. Merchants' Mar. Ins. Co., (1903) 1 K.B. 811; 72 L.J. K.B. 498; Irving v. Manning, 1 H.L.C. 287; Phillips v. Nairne, 4 C.B. 358; 16 L.J. C.P. 194; De Cuadra v. Swann, 16 C.B. N.S. 772; Kemp v. Halliday, L.R. 1 Q.B. 520; 35 L.J. Q.B. 156.

(p) Moss v. Smith, 9 C.B. 103; 19 L.J. C.P. 225.

(q) Angel v. Merchants' Mar. Ins. Co., (1903) 1 K.B. 881; 72 L.J. K.B. 498; dictum in Young v. Turing, 2 Man. & G. at p. 601, disapproved.

(r) Blairmore Sailing Ship Co. v. Macredie, (1898) A.C. 593; 67 L.J. P.C. 96.

(s) Knight v. Faith, 15 Q.B. 657; 19 L.J. Q.B. 509; Gardener v. Salvador, 1 M. & Rob. 116; Doyle v. Dallis, ib. 48; Tanner v. Bennett, R & M. 182.

the common preservation of both, and the cargo must contribute thereto as well as the ship, and the amount to be contributed by the cargo must be taken into account for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not the ship is a total loss (t). But there is no principle of law which requires a person to contribute to an outlay merely because he has derived a benefit from it. So where a vessel was put into dry dock for necessary repairs by the insurers under the policy, and the owners took advantage of her being there to have her surveyed for a reclassification at Lloyd's, it was held that they were not called upon to contribute to the expenses of getting her into and out of dock (u). The loss of the voyage has nothing to do with the loss of the ship; and the shipowner who has insured his ship cannot abandon the ship merely because the voyage cannot be completed and the freight earned (x). If the policy is on freight, and the ship is detained by an embargo, the loss is primâ facie total; but, if the embargo be taken off and she then earns freight, the loss is partial only (y). If the vessel is driven by stress of weather into port to repair and re-fit, and the master hypothecates the ship, freight, and cargo for the payment of these repairs, and the amount exceeds the value of the ship and freight, the loss is a total loss (z). Where goods are, in consequence of the perils insured against, lying at a place different from their destination, damaged, but in such a state that they can at some cost be put in a condition to be carried to their destination, the question to be determined is, whether it is practically possible to carry them on, that is, whether to do so will cost more than they are worth; and in determining this there must be taken into account all the extra expenses consequent on the perils of the sea, such as drying, landing, warehousing, and re-shipping the goods; but there must not be taken into account the fact that, if they are carried on in the original bottom, or by the original shipowner in a substituted bottom, they will have to pay the freight originally contracted to be paid, that being a charge to which the goods are liable when delivered, whether the perils of the sea affect them or not (a). Where the original bottom is disabled by the perils of the sea, so that the shipowner is not bound to carry the goods

(t) Kemp v. Halliday, supra. See Marine Ins. Co. v. China S.S. Co., 11 App. Cas. 573; 56 L.J. Q.B. 100; Ruabon S.S. Co. v. London Assurance, (1898) 1 Q.B. 722; 67 L.J. Q.B. 548.

(u) Ruabon S.S. Co. v. London Assurance, (1900) A.C. 6; 69 L.J. Q.B. 86; explaining Marine Ins. Co. v. China S.S. Co., supra.

(x) Pole v. Fitzgerald, Willes, 647.

(y) Everth v. Smith, 2 M. & S. 278.

(z) Benson v. Chapman, 7 Sc. N.R. 625; 2 H.L.C. 720.

(a) Farnworth v. Hyde, L.R. 2 C.P. 204; 36 L.J. C.P. 33.

on, and he does not choose to do so, there must not be taken into account the whole of the cost of transit from the place of distress to the place of destination, which must be incurred by the goods owner if he carries them on, but only the excess of that cost above that which would have been incurred if no peril had intervened (b).

The mere suspension or retardation of the voyage in the case of an insurance on goods is no ground of abandonment (c). If, however, the voyage is not worth pursuing by reason of the delay, or if salvage services have been rendered, and the insured has no means of paying them, he may persist in the abandonment, and claim as for a total loss; but, if it appears that he could probably have raised money to liberate the vessel, and that he made no exertion to do it, he cannot treat the loss as a total loss; for he is bound in every case to exert himself to the uttermost of his power to prevent the loss from being a total loss (d). If the cargo can be transhipped and forwarded to the port of destination without any material deterioration or delay, the insured has no right to abandon it and claim for a total loss; but it is his duty to go on with the adventure and turn it to the best advantage, and to proceed against the underwriter for a partial loss, being the amount of the actual damage sustained by the peril insured against (e).

Capture and re-capture and abandonment—Embargo—Spes recuperandi.—Capture by an enemy or a pirate, or an arrest of princes, or an embargo, entitles the insured to abandon and claim for a total loss, unless the embargo has been taken off, or the vessel has been re-captured and restored to the owners, or they have the immediate means of recovering the vessel (f), and may reasonably be expected to take possession of it (g). On re-capture by an English vessel the shipowner has a right to the restitution of his ship on payment of salvage; and, if the insurance is on the ship, and the ship is re-captured and placed within the power of the insured, the loss, which was before a total loss, becomes then only a partial loss (h), unless

(b) Rosetti v. Gurney, 11 C.B. 176; 20 L.J. C.P. 257; Farnworth v. Hyde, ante, p. 1192.

(c) Anderson v. Wallis, 2 M. & S. 240.

(d) Thornely v. Hebson, 2 B. & Ald. 518; Parry v. Aberdein, 9 B. & C. 416; 7 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 260; Dixon v. Reid, 5 B. & Ald. 597.

(e) Hunt v. Royal Exch. Assur., 5 M. & S. 53; Falkner v. Ritchie, 2 M. & S. 290.

(f) Goss v. Withers, 2 Burr. 692; Kleinwort v. Shepard, 28 L.J. Q.B. 147; 1 E. & B. 447; Cologan v. Lond. Assur., 5 M. & S. 455; Wilson v. Forster, 6 Taunt. 25.

(g) Lozano v. Janson, 28 L.J. Q.B. 343; 2 E. & E. 160.

(h) Hamilton v. Mendez, 2 Burr. 1198; 1 W. Bl. 276; Brotherston v. Barber, 5 M. & S. 418; Bainbridge v. Neilson, 10 East, 329.

the vessel is in a damaged and unseaworthy state, or the salvage and costs and expenses attendant upon the re-capture are likely to be more than the vessel is worth, and the voyage cannot be advantageously prosecuted. If the vessel be captured and re-captured, and the insured neither has the vessel restored to him nor any means of obtaining possession of it, or if the consequences of the capture are such as to occasion a total obstruction of the voyage, or render it not worth pursuing, if the salvage be high, if further expense be necessary, and the insurer will not, at all events, undertake to pay that expense, the loss continues a total loss, and the insured may abandon, notwithstanding the re-capture (i). Where a ship insured under a policy covering war risks was captured, and notice of abandonment was given to the underwriters and refused, and an action was commenced on the policy, and subsequently the vessel was released, it was held that the return of the ship after the commencement of the action did not disentitle the owners to recover as for a total loss (k).

Unreasonable abandonment.—"The privilege of abandoning," it has been justly observed, "is liable to great abuse. Where, as in the case of capture, the thing insured is completely gone out of the power of the insured, it is proper that he should recover at once as for a total loss, and leave the spes recuperandi to the insurer. But it seems unreasonable that the owner of a ship which is stranded (the captain and crew, his servants, being on the spot and in possession of the ship and cargo), should be at liberty to abandon these to a number of underwriters, who sometimes find it difficult to act in concert, and who have, perhaps, no means of disposing of the property thus thrown upon their hands but to the greatest disadvantage" (l). "I am not disposed," observes Lord Ellenborough, "to enlarge the grounds of abandonment against underwriters, a privilege which, every one knows, has been much abused. In almost every case of a valued policy it is the interest of the assured to abandon; and therefore it behoves the court to watch every such case, and in no instance to enlarge that which in the nature of the thing is only a partial, into a total, loss" (m).

Partial loss—Exception of partial losses.—A partial loss is not paid for, if there is a total loss of the vessel from perils insured against during the period covered by the policy;

(i) Dean v. Hornby, 3 E. & B. 190; 23 L.J. Q.B. 129; Milles v. Fletcher, 1 Doug. 232; M'Iver v. Henderson, 4 M. & S. 584; Pringle v. Hartley, 3 Atk. 195; Naylor v. Taylor, 9 B. & C. 718; Hadkinson v. Robinson, 3 Bos. & P. 388; but see Barker v. Blakes, 9 East, 293.

(k) Rays v. Royal Exch. Assur., (1897) 2 Q.B. 135; 66 L.J. Q.B. 534.

(l) Marshall on Insurance, 444 (ed. 4).

(m) Bainbridge v. Neilson, 10 East, 343.

because, when the underwriter pays the total loss, he actually discharges all partial losses occurring during the voyage, except such as fall within the suing and labouring clause, which are apart from the sum insured. He never stipulated to pay more than the total loss; and, if he were to pay for a partial loss, and also the whole value of the vessel, he would be paying more than he undertook to indemnify the insured against. If a partial loss is sustained, and then the whole subject-matter of the insurance is totally lost from a peril excepted from the policy, the underwriters will not be responsible for the partial loss, unless it has occasioned actual pecuniary loss to the insured (n). But if the total loss does not take place until after the expiration of the period covered by the policy, the underwriter will be responsible for the partial loss, and must pay the amount of the diminution in the value of the vessel occasioned by the partial loss, without reference to whether the vessel had been repaired or not before the total loss occurred (o). Where a vessel insured against perils of the sea was stranded and sustained such injuries that the cost of repairing her would have been greater than her value, and immediately afterwards was destroyed by fire, it was held that the insurers against fire were liable for the full amount in which they had insured the vessel (p). If a vessel loses a mast by a peril insured against, and is re-fitted, the loss is a partial loss; and, if the vessel then puts to sea, and is totally lost, the insured is entitled to be indemnified in respect of the partial loss, as well as the total loss; but, if, before the vessel is re-fitted, she is totally lost, the insured cannot then recover in respect of the partial loss (q). In case of a partial loss, and in the absence of other means of arriving at the loss, the insured is entitled to recover the cost of repairs up to the amount insured with the reduction of one-third new for old, even although this amount might be more than the amount payable for a total loss with benefit of salvage (r). A memorandum is frequently introduced at the foot of maritime policies, exempting the underwriters from all partial losses upon certain articles and descriptions of merchandise, and from all partial losses not amounting to 5*l.* per cent. upon other classes of merchandise, and from all partial losses upon ship and freight

(n) Livie v. Janson, 12 East, 656; The Dora Forster, (1900) P. 241; 69 L.J. P. 85.

(o) Lidgett v. Secretan, L.R. 6 C.P. 616; 40 L.J. C.P. 257.

(p) Woodside v. Globe Mar. Ins. Co., (1896) 1 Q.B. 105; 65 L.J. Q.B. 117.

(q) Stewart v. Steele, 5 Sc. N.R. 941; 11 L.J. C.P. 155.

(r) Aitchison v. Lohre, 4 App. Cas. 755; 49 L.J. Q.B. 123, where repairs were actually done: aliter where not done, see Pitman v. Universal Ins. Co., 9 Q.B.D. 192; 51 L.J. Q.B. 561, diss. Brett, L.J.

not amounting to 3*l.* per cent., unless the loss be a general average and contribution loss (ante, pp. 1008—1013). In many policies the underwriters exempt themselves from all partial or average losses of every description, excepting general average losses, so that they are not responsible at all upon the policy unless there is a total loss, or unless there has been a general average contribution. When the policy is warranted "free from particular average," no damage short of the absolute destruction of the thing insured will amount to a total loss. An exemption of this kind opens a wide door to fraud, inasmuch as a direct premium is offered to the insured to turn every partial loss into a total loss, in order that it may be covered by the policy (s).

General and particular average—Policies warranted free from average.—The term "average" is used, in insurance contracts and trading adventures, to denote every kind of partial loss or damage happening either to the ship or the cargo, from any cause whatever. It has been truly observed, that ambiguities frequently arise from the indiscriminate use, in mercantile matters, of the word AVERAGE, which has no less than four different meanings amongst commercial men. In policies of insurance the terms general average and particular average are constantly met with.

A particular average loss is a partial loss of the subject-matter insured, caused by a peril insured against, and which is not a general average loss (t). Expenses incurred by or on behalf of the assured for the safety or preservation of the subject-matter insured, other than general average and salvage charges (u), are called particular charges. Particular charges are not included in particular average (x).

Particular charges are recoverable from the insurer under the sue and labour clause; and this is so, even when the policy contains a warranty against particular average, if they were incurred with the object of presenting not merely a partial but a total loss (y). Particular average, instead of being contributed for by the general body of those who are interested in the adventure, falls entirely upon the particular owner of the

(s) Dyson v. Rowcroft, 3 Bos. & P. 476.

(t) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 64 (1).

(u) Subject to any express provision in the policy, salvage charges incurred in preventing a loss by perils insured against may be recovered as a loss by those perils: 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 65 (1). "Salvage charges" means the charges recoverable under maritime law by a salvor independently of contract. They do not include the expenses of services in the nature of salvage rendered by the assured or his agents, or any person employed for hire by them, for the purpose of averting a peril insured against. Such expenses, where properly incurred, may be recovered as particular charges or as a general average loss, according to the circumstances under which they were incurred: ib. s. 65 (2).

(x) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 64 (2).

(y) Kidston v. Empire Mar. Ins. Co., L.R. 2 C.P. 357; 36 L.J. C.P. 156.

property deteriorated by the damage; and such owner, if insured, has a claim against his underwriter in proportion: (1) to the degree by which the damage sustained may have diminished the value to him of the property insured; (2) to the sum which the underwriter by the policy has agreed to insure on such property (z). Particular average is thus distinguished from general average, for while in particular average the loss remains where it falls, in general average it is borne proportionately by all the interests concerned.

General average loss.—A general average loss is a loss caused by or directly consequential on a general average act and it includes a general average expenditure as well as a general average sacrifice (a). There is a general average act where any extraordinary sacrifice or expenditure is voluntarily and reasonably made or incurred in time of peril for the purpose of preserving the property imperilled in the common adventure (b). Where there is a general average loss, the party on whom it falls is entitled, subject to the conditions imposed by maritime law, to a rateable contribution from the other parties interested, and such contribution is called a general average contribution (c). Subject to any express provision in the policy, where the assured has incurred a general average expenditure, he may recover from the insurer in respect of the proportion of the loss which falls upon him; and, in the case of a general average sacrifice, he may recover from the insurer in respect of the whole loss without having enforced his right of contribution from the other parties liable to contribute (d). Subject to any express provision in the policy, where the assured has paid, or is liable to pay, a general average contribution in respect of the subject insured, he may recover therefor from the insurer (e). In the absence of express stipulation, the insurer is not liable for any general average loss or contribution where the loss was not incurred for the purpose of avoiding, or in connexion with the avoidance of, a peril insured against (f). Where ship, freight, and cargo, or any two of those interests, are owned by the same assured, the liability of the insurer in respect of general average losses or contributions is to be determined as if those subjects were owned by different persons (g).

Measure of indemnity for partial losses.—The measure of (z) Arnould, vol. 2, p. 1215 (ed. 8).

(a) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 66 (1). See The Leitrim, 71 L.J. P. 108; (1902) P. 256.
(b) Ib., s. 66 (2). See also ib., s. 66 (7) and Montgomery v. Indemnity Mut. Mar. Ins. Co., (1901) 1 K.B. at p. 151; (1902) 1 K.B. 734; 71 L.J. K.B. 467.
(c) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 66 (3).
(d) Ib., s. 66 (4).
(e) Ib., s. 66 (5).
(f) Ib., s. 66 (6).
(g) Ib., s. 66 (7). See Montgomery v. Indemnity Mut. Mar. Ins. Co., supra.

indemnity for partial losses may be qualified by express terms in the policy; and the commonest example of this is the memorandum in the Lloyd's policy which is as follows:—"Corn, fish, salt, fruit, flour, and seed are warranted free from average, unless general or the ship be stranded—sugar, tobacco, hemp, flax, hides, and skins are warranted free from average, under five pounds per cent., and all other goods, also the ship and freight, are warranted free from average, under three pounds per cent., unless general, or the ship be stranded." The term "average unless general" means a partial loss, and does not include particular charges (h). A general average loss, however small, is recoverable from the underwriters, but a particular average loss is not, unless it exceeds the specified percentage, in which case the underwriter is liable not merely for the balance over that percentage but for the whole loss. If a small portion of corn or flax is damaged from sea-water to the extent of 45*l*., and the entire value of the whole cargo is 1,000*l*., this is an average loss of $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. upon the whole, and is called "average" in mercantile phraseology; so that, if the cargo is warranted "free from average under 5*l*. per cent." the underwriters will be exempted from all responsibility in respect of this partial or average loss (i). If a cargo of corn insured "free from average" receives damage from sea-water, and the vessel puts into port for the purpose of drying the corn and preventing its total destruction, and the corn is so much damaged that if brought home it could not have been sold for an amount exceeding the expenses of unshipping, drying it, and bringing it home, the loss is total; but, if the value of the corn in England would exceed these expenses, the loss is an average loss within the warranty exempting the underwriters from liability. An insurance on goods warranted free of average, unless general, is equivalent to an insurance against their total loss only. As a general rule, where the whole or any part of the cargo is capable of being sent in a marketable state to the port of destination without laying out more money than it is worth, the master cannot sell, nor can the insured recover for a total loss (k). Where the subject-matter insured is warranted free from particular average, the assured cannot recover for a loss of part, other than a loss incurred by a general average sacrifice, unless the contract contained in the policy be apportionable; but, if the contract be apportionable, the assured may recover for a total loss of any apportionable part (l). Where the subject-matter insured is warranted free from particular average, either wholly or under a certain percentage, the insurer is nevertheless liable for salvage charges, and for particular charges and other expenses properly incurred pursuant to the provisions of the suing and labouring clause in order to avert a loss insured against (m). Unless the policy otherwise provides, where the subject-matter insured is warranted free from particular average under a specified percentage, a general average loss cannot be added to a particular average loss to make up the specified percentage (n). For the purpose of ascertaining whether the specified percentage has been reached, regard shall be had only to the actual loss suffered by the subject-matter insured. Particular charges and the expenses of and incidental to ascertaining and proving the loss must be excluded (o). The effect of a warranty against particular average is merely to limit the operation of the insurance to a total loss of the subject-matter, and is not to prevent a recovery under the suing and labouring clause of extraordinary expense which may be incurred in preserving it (p).

(h) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, sched. 1, r. 13.

(i) Wilson v. Smith, 3 Burr. 1550; M'Andrews v. Vaughan, 1 Park, Ins. 252; Mason v. Skurry, ib. 253; Oppenheim v. Fry, 33 L.J. Q.B. 267; 5 B. & S. 348.

(k) Reimer v. Ringrose, 6 Exch. 267; 20 L.J. Ex. 175; Rosetti v. Gurney, 11 C.B. 187; 20 L.J. C.P. 257; Gt. Ind. Penins. Rail. v. Saunders, 31 L.J. Q.B. 206; 1 B. & S. 41; 2 B. & S. 266; Booth v. Gair, 15 C.B. N.S. 291; 33 L.J. C.P. 99. See The Pomeranian, (1895) P. 349; 65 L.J. P. 39.

Insurance on separate bales or packages—Average and total losses.—If the merchandise insured is packed in separate bales, hogsheads, or packages, and the insurance is effected on each bale, hogshead, &c., separately, and some bales or hogsheads are totally lost, and others saved, the loss of each separate bale, hogshead, &c., is a total loss pro tanto (q); but, when the insurance is upon the bulk, and the goods are all of the same species, unless the loss exceeds the value specified in the memorandum, there is no average or partial loss, and there cannot, in such a case, be a total loss of a portion of the cargo (r). Where an insurance had been effected on goods generally, and several thousand bags of linseed were put on board, and by the memorandum as to average, seed was warranted free from average, the Court of Exchequer Chamber thought it was necessary, in the natural construction of the terms of the policy, to apply the exemption to all linseed on board collectively, whether shipped in bulk or in separate packages, and that the warranty could

(l) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 76 (1).
(m) Ib., s. 76 (2).
(n) Ib., s. 76 (3).
(o) Ib., s. 76 (4).
(p) Kidston v. Empire Ins. Co., L.R. 2 C.P. 357; 36 L.J. C.P. 156; Meyer v. Ralli, 1 C.P.D. 358; 45 L.J. C.P. 741.
(q) Entwisle v. Ellis, 2 H. & N. 555; 27 L.J. Ex. 105; Davy v. Milford, 15 East, 559.
(r) Hills v. Lond. Assur. Corp., 5 M. & W. 569; 9 L.J. Ex. 25.

not apply to each bag in which the seed happened to be packed as a distinct object (s); but, where the goods insured were described in the policy as "master's effects," and the memorandum was "free from all average," and some of the goods thus insured were totally lost, and others were saved, it was held that, as the articles which constituted "master's effects" were essentially different in their nature, and kind, and value, the insurer was liable in respect of the total loss of particular articles constituting "master's effects." To hold that, if the insured happens to be successful in rescuing any of the articles insured, even the clothes he may be wearing, he will thereby incur the penalty of forfeiting his insurance on the rest, though they are all totally lost, would lead to a result quite at variance with the object for which the memorandum as to average was introduced into policies (t). As soon as it is ascertained that the goods are of different species, it is as if the different species had been enumerated (u).

If the contents of any particular package, hogshead, &c., separately insured, are not totally destroyed, the loss is then only a partial or average loss, and the underwriters are exempted, by the memorandum, from liability (x). It is usual, therefore, to modify the effect of the memorandum by an express stipulation to the effect that the underwriters are to pay "average on each species of produce, or package of manufactured goods, or on each ten, fifteen, or twenty hogshead, &c." so as to give the insured a right to claim for an average or partial loss separately on each species, if the loss amounts to three or five per cent., although there may not have been a three or five per cent. loss upon the whole. This stipulation does not oust the claim of the assured in respect of a general average loss (y). If several average or partial losses take place under three or five per cent. each, but the aggregate amount of the whole exceeds three or five per cent., the underwriters will be liable (z). But a general average loss cannot be added to a particular average loss to make up a loss amounting to the specified percentage, when the subject-matter of the insurance is warranted "free from average under so much per cent. unless general" (a).

(s) Ralli v. Janson, 6 E. & B. 422; 25 L.J. Q.B. 300. See also Lysaght, Ltd. v. Coleman, (1895) 1 Q.B. 49; 64 L.J. Q.B. 175.

(t) Duff v. Mackenzie, 3 C.B. N.S. 16; 26 L.J. C.P. 313.

(u) Wilkinson v. Hyde, 3 C.B. N.S. 30; 27 L.J. C.P. 116.

(x) Hedburg v. Pearson, 7 Taunt. 154; Navone v. Haddon, 9 C.B. 43; 19 L.J. C.P. 161.

(y) Hagedorn v. Whitmore, 1 Stark. 157.

(z) Blackett v. Royal Exch. Assur. Co., 2 Cr. & J. 244; 1 L.J. Ex. 101; but see, as to excessive losses on the same thing, Stewart v. Merchants' Marine Ins. Co., 16 Q.B.D. 619; 55 L.J. Q.B. 81.

(a) Price v. A1 Ships Small Damage Ins. Assoc., 22 Q.B.D. 580; 58 L.J. Q.B. 269.

Whenever the policy is made free from average under so much per cent., and a loss happens, the proportion which the loss bears to the cargo must be calculated upon the cargo which was on board at the time of the loss (b). The petty charges of primage and average, previously mentioned (ante, p. 1008) as incident to navigation, form part of the necessary and ordinary expenses of the voyage; and the payment of them is not considered a loss within the meaning of the policy.

Exceptions of general average losses and stranding of vessel.—General average losses arising from general contribution by the owners of property exposed to a common peril of the seas to make good a loss incurred for the preservation of the common property of all (ante, p. 1008), must be made good by the underwriter under the general terms of the policy; and, when they are excepted from the average clause, the underwriter, of course, continues responsible in respect of them, although he is exempted from liability in respect of all other partial or average losses. It has been held that where ship and cargo both belong to the same person, as there can be no contribution in fact, the underwriter of a policy of insurance on cargo is not liable in respect of a general average loss (c); but this decision has been disapproved of (d). "Where the ship has stranded, the insurer is liable for the excepted losses, although the loss is not attributable to the stranding, provided that when the stranding takes place the risk has attached and, if the policy be on goods, that the damaged goods are on board" (e). To the clause "warranted free from average" is frequently annexed, as we have already seen, the exception "unless the ship be stranded." By the stranding of the vessel, under such a clause, the exemption from average is destroyed; and the loss falls within the general words of the policy, although it was not in anywise occasioned by the stranding (f). It is said to be a rule that, where a vessel takes the ground in the ordinary course of navigation in a tidal river or harbour upon the ebbing of the tide or from natural deficiency of water, so that she may float again upon the flow of the tide, such an event is not to be considered a stranding within the sense of the memorandum; but it is otherwise where the ground is taken by reason of some unusual occurrence (g). Where a ship ran on some wooden piles four

(b) Rohl v. Parr, 1 Esp. 444.
(c) Per Barnes J., The Brigella, (1893) P. 189; 62 L.J. P. 81.
(d) Montgomery v. Indemnity Mutual Marine Ins. Co., (1902) 2 K.B. 734; 71 L.J. K.B. 467.
(e) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, sched. 1, r. 14.
(f) Burnett v. Kensington, 7 T.R. 210; Roux v. Salvador, 4 Sc. 1; 7 L.J. Ex. 328; Thames & Mersey Marine Ins. Co. v. Pitts, (1893) 1 Q.B. 476.
(g) Wells v. Hopwood, 3 B. & Ald. 34;

feet under water which had been erected in a river about nine yards from the shore to keep up the banks, and lay on such piles until they were cut away, this was held to be a stranding within the policy (h). But, if the vessel merely grounds on a rock and gets off when the tide rises, and pursues her voyage, this is not a stranding, though the vessel may be injured; "if it is touch and go with the ship, there is no stranding" (i). But, when the ship accidentally takes the ground and remains there for any time, this constitutes a stranding, without reference to the damage sustained by the vessel (k). If the shore tackling, placed to keep the vessel upright when the tide leaves her, breaks, and she rolls over on her side and is stove in, this is a stranding (l). Where a ship, having encountered bad weather, and lost both her anchors, and had her masts cut away, was taken in tow by salvors, and placed on a bank out of the ordinary course of the voyage, where she lay on her port side for several tides, and sustained considerable further injury, it was held that there was a stranding (m). The stranding of a lighter, in which goods are being taken from the ship to the shore, is not a stranding of the vessel within the exception in the policy (n). The stranding must of course, in all cases, take place during the voyage covered by the policy, and while the insured goods are on board the vessel (o).

A clause in a policy "general average as per foreign statement," means that general average in the policy shall include such losses as the law of the port of adjustment regards as intentional sacrifices made for the benefit of the whole adventure although such losses may not be general average according to English law (p). The mere temporary suspension of the voyage for repairs at a port of refuge does not warrant an average adjustment at that port as between shipowner and owner of cargo; and the shipowner is not entitled to pro ratâ freight, unless it is shown that the owner of the goods had an option of having them sent on or of accepting them at that port (q).

Kingsford v. Marshall, 8 Bing. 458; 1 L.J. C.P. 135; Letchford v. Oldham, 5 Q.B.D. 538; 49 L.J. Q.B. 458.

(h) Dobson v. Bolton, 1 Park, Ins. 239; Raynor v. Godmond, 5 B. & Ald. 225.

(i) Lord Ellenborough, Macdougle v. Royal Exch. Assur., 4 Campb. 283.

(k) Harman v. Vaux, 3 Campb. 429; Barrow v. Bell, 4 B. & C. 736; 4 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 47.

(l) Bishop v. Pentland, 7 B. & C. 219; 6 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 6.

(m) De Mattos v. Saunders, L.R. 7 C.P. 570.

(n) Hoffman v. Marshall, 2 Sc. 559; 5 L.J. C.P. 70.

(o) The Alsace Lorraine, (1893) P. 209; 62 L.J. P. 107; as to the meaning to be attached to the word "burnt" in an exception, see The Glenlivet, (1894) P. 48; 63 L.J. P. 45.

(p) Marro v. Ocean Marine Ins. Co., L.R. 10 C.P. 414; 44 L.J. C.P. 229; The Mary Thomas, (1894) P. 108; 63 L.J. P. 49; De Hart v. Compania Anonima de Seguros Aurora, (1903) 2 K.B. 503; 72 L.J. K.B. 818.

(q) Hill v. Wilson, 4 C.P.D. 329; 48 L.J. C.P. 764.

Suing and labouring clause.—"And in case of any loss or misfortune it shall be lawful to the assured, their factors, servants and assigns to sue, labour, and travel for, in and about the defence, safeguards and recovery of the said goods and merchandises, and ship, &c., or any part thereof, without prejudice to this insurance; to the charges whereof we, the assurers, will contribute each one according to the rate and quantity of his sum herein assured. And it is especially declared and agreed that no acts of the insurer or insured in recovering, saving, or preserving the property insured shall be considered as a waiver, or acceptance of abandonment"(qq). This clause is not limited in construction to a case where the insured abandons, or may perchance abandon, so that the expense incurred is not only in respect of a subject-matter in which the underwriters are interested, but upon property which, by the abandonment, actually becomes or may become theirs (r).

"Where the policy contains a suing and labouring clause, the engagement thereby entered into is deemed to be supplementary to the contract of insurance, and the assured may recover from the insurer any expenses properly incurred (r) pursuant to the clause, notwithstanding that the insurer may have paid for a total loss, or that the subject-matter may have been warranted free from particular average (s), either wholly or under a certain percentage. General average losses and contributions and salvage (t) charges, as defined by this Act, are not recoverable under the suing and labouring clause (u). Expenses incurred for the purpose of averting or diminishing any loss not covered by the policy are not recoverable under the suing and labouring clause. It is the duty of the assured and his agents, in all cases, to take such measures as may be reasonable for the purpose of averting or minimising a loss" (x).

Measure of indemnity for loss—Extent of liability of insurer.—The sum which the assured can recover in respect of a loss on a policy by which he is insured, in the case of an unvalued policy to the full extent of the insurable value, or, in the case of a valued policy to the full extent of the value fixed by the policy,

(qq) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, Sched. I.

(r) Kidston v. Empire Ins. Co., L.R. 2 C.P. 357; 36 L.J. C.P. 156; Lee v. Southern Ins. Co., L.R. 5 C.P. 397; 39 L.J. C.P. 218; Meyer v. Ralli, 1 C.P.D. 358; 45 L.J. C.P. 741.

(s) See ante, p. 1196.

(t) See 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 65, as to meaning of salvage charges. See Aitchison v. Lohre, 4 App. Cas. 755; 49 L.J. Q.B. 123; Xenos v. Fox, 38 L.J. C.P. 351; L.R. 4 C.P. 665; Dixon v. Whitworth, 48 L.J. C.P. 538; 4 C.P. D. 371; Balmoral S.S. Co. v. Marten, (1902) A.C. 511; 71 L.J. K.B. 819.

(u) Aitchison v. Lohre, 4 App. Cas. 755; 49 L.J. Q.B. 123. See also Cunard S.S. Co. v. Marten, (1903) 2 K.B. 511; 72 L.J. K.B. 754; Gt. Indian Peninsular Ry. v. Saunders, 31 L.J. Q.B. 206; 2 B. & S. 266; Francis v. Boulton, 1 Com. Cas. 217.

(x) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 78. See Crouan v. Stanier, (1904) 1 K.B. 87; Western Assur. Co. of Toronto v. Poole, 72 L.J. K.B. 195; (1903) 1 K.B. 376.

is called the measure of indemnity (y). Where there is a loss recoverable under the policy, the insurer, or each insurer if there be more than one, is liable for such proportion of the measure of indemnity as the amount of his subscription bears to the value fixed by the policy in the case of a valued policy, or to the insurable value in the case of an unvalued policy (z). Subject to the provisions of the Marine Insurance Act, 1906, and to any express provision in the policy, where there is a total loss of the subject-matter insured,—(1) If the policy be a valued policy, the measure of indemnity is the sum fixed by the policy; (2) If the policy be an unvalued policy, the measure of indemnity is the insurable value of the subject-matter insured (a).

The underwriters are liable for total or average losses in proportion to the sums they have underwritten. Thus, if a man underwrite 100*l.* upon property valued at 500*l.* and a total loss happen, he shall pay 100*l.*, that being the amount of his subscription; and, if only an average loss, amounting to 60*l.* or 70*l.* per cent., then he shall pay only 60*l.* or 70*l.*, being his proportion of the loss. The liability of the underwriter is not restricted to the amount of his subscription: for he may be subject to an average and a total loss in the same voyage, or for several average or partial losses amounting together to more than his subscription (b). But the insured cannot, of course, in any case, recover anything beyond that which is a strict indemnity for losses actually sustained. If several articles be insured for one sum, with a distinct valuation on each, or so much upon ship, and so much upon cargo, and no part of the cargo be taken on board, so that the risk upon that never attaches, the insured will recover only such a portion of the sum insured as the value of the article lost bore to the value of the whole (c). In the case of open policies on freight, the usage is to calculate the loss upon the gross amount, and not upon the net value of the freight (d). When part of the goods insured is saved and the salvage exceeds the amount of the freight, the practice is to deduct the freight from the value of the goods saved, and to make up the loss upon the difference (e).

If the policy can be proved to have been fraudulently overvalued, it will be void. But if the assured has valued that which he intends should be at risk upon the basis of a value which

(y) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 67 (1).
(z) Ib., s. 67 (2).
(a) Ib., s. 68.
(b) Le Cheminant v. Pearson, 4 Taunt. 367; Brooks v. M'Donnell, 1 Y. & C. 515; 4 L.J. Ex.(Eq.) 60; and see s. 77, post, p. 1211.
(c) Amery v. Rogers, 1 Esp. 208.
(d) Palmer v. Blackburn, 1 Bing. 61; 1 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 1.
(e) Boyfield v. Brown, 2 Str. 1065.

turns out to be erroneous because of facts of which he was ignorant when he took out the policy, yet, if the policy attaches, the amount which he has valued as that which is to be at risk is to be taken as conclusive, although the amount actually at risk is very much less (f). Where several valued policies of insurance are effected upon the same vessel valued differently, and upon a total loss occurring the insured receives under some of the policies part of the sums insured, in an action upon another policy, he is only entitled to recover the difference between the amount received and the agreed valued in that policy (g). If the policy be an open policy on a ship, the value is taken to be the sum the ship is worth to the owner at the port where the voyage commences, including stores, furniture, provisions, wages, advances to sailors, and all expenses of outfit, to which are added the premium and costs of insurance. If it be an open policy on goods, the value is taken to be the prime cost of the goods as proved by the invoices and tradesmen's bills, adding thereto the shipping charges, and premium, and costs of insurance. The presumed value of the goods, if they had reached their place of destination and been sold there, has nothing to do with the calculation of the outset value. The insurer has nothing to do with the market; he has no concern in any profit or loss which may arise to the merchant from the goods. If they be totally lost, he must pay the prime cost, that is, the value of the thing he insured at the outset: he has no concern in any subsequent value (h). If the policy is a valued policy on a ship at and from A. to B., and the ship while at A. undergoing repairs is burnt so as to become a total loss, the underwriter is not entitled to deduct from the value the estimated expense of the repairs necessary to make the ship seaworthy for the voyage, but must pay the total agreed value (i).

"Where a ship is damaged, but is not totally lost, the measure of indemnity, subject to any express provision in the policy, is as follows:—(1) Where the ship has been repaired, the assured is entitled to the reasonable cost of the repairs, less the customary deductions, but not exceeding the sum insured in respect of any one casualty; (2) Where the ship has been only partially repaired, the assured is entitled to the reasonable cost of such repairs, computed as above, and also to be indemnified for the reasonable depreciation, if any, arising from the unrepaired damage, provided that the aggregate amount shall not exceed (f) The Main, (1894) P. 320; 63 L.J. P. 69.

(g) Bruce v. Jones, 1 H. & C. 769; 32 L.J. Ex. 132. See 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 32 (2) (b).

(h) Lewis v. Rucker, 2 Burr. 1170.

(i) Lidgett v. Secretan, L.R. 6 C.P. 616; 40 L.J. C.P. 257. See 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 77.

the cost of repairing the whole damage, computed as above; (3) Where the ship has not been repaired, and has not been sold in her damaged state during the risk, the assured is entitled to be indemnified for the reasonable depreciation arising from the unrepaired damage, but not exceeding the reasonable cost of repairing such damage, computed as above" (k).

The shipowner is entitled to have the ship repaired with materials and workmanship corresponding to its original character (l). The principal difficulty in adjusting a particular average loss on ship consists not in the rule of apportionment, but in ascertaining and fixing the amount of damage. If the damage done to the ship has not been repaired, the only mode of ascertaining its amount is by the estimate of surveyors. Where, however, the damage has been repaired, the established mode of estimating its amount is to deduct one-third from the whole expense both of labour and materials, which the repairs have cost, and to assess the damage at the remaining two-thirds. This is termed deducting one-third new for old, and it is done on the principle that, unless where the ship is quite new, the substitution of new for old materials is a benefit to the shipowner, who gets the ship the better for the repairs by the substitution of new work for old, and would consequently be a gainer if the whole expense of labour and repairs were regarded as so much pure loss to him. To avoid discussion in each particular case the amount of deduction is fixed at one-third (m).

Signed adjustments.—When an adjustment has been made of the amount of the loss, and indorsed upon the policy and signed by the underwriter, this binds the latter, unless he can show that it was made on wrong information, or under a mistake, or under the influence of misrepresentations (n). The adjustment is not an absolute and final settlement which is to be conclusively binding upon the parties (o); but, when the underwriter has once settled for the loss, he cannot recover back the money he has paid, unless there has been actual fraud on the part of the insured. If he pays for a total loss, which afterwards turns out to have been only an average loss, he cannot recover back his money, but must do the best he can with the property saved (p).

(k) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 69. See also ib., s. 77.

(l) Agenoria S.S. Co. v. Merchant's Mar. Ins. Co., 8 Com. Cas. 212; North Atlantic S.S. Co. v. Burr, 9 Com. Cas. 164.

(m) Da Costa v. Newnham, 2 T.R. 407; Poingdestre v. Roy. Exch. Assur. Co., Ry. & M. 378; Fenwick v. Robinson, 3 C. & P. 324; Lohre v. Aitchison, 2 Q.B.D. 501; 3 Q.B.D. 558; Lidgett v. Secretan, L.R. 6 C.P. at p. 627.

(n) Herbert v. Champion, 1 Campb. 134; Shepherd v. Chewter, ib. 274; Gammon v. Beverley, 8 Taunt. 124.

(o) Luckie v. Bushby, 13 C.B. 878; 22 L.J. C.P. 220.

(p) Da Costa v. Firth, 4 Burr. 1966.

Loss of freight.—To recover for loss of freight, a total loss by perils of the sea must be proved. If the master has the means of repairing a vessel which has sustained sea damage, and of shipping and bringing home the cargo, and neglects to avail himself of the opportunities within his reach, the insured cannot recover for loss of freight (q). Where the insurance was on freight, and the ship was injured by perils of the sea, and obliged to put into port and land the cargo to re-fit, and part of the cargo was so wetted by sea-water that it could not be re-laden on board without imminent danger of ignition, unless it went through a process which would have detained the vessel six weeks, at an expense equal to the freight, and the master sold the goods, and, finding he could not obtain others, sailed on his voyage, it was held that the underwriters were not liable to make good the loss of the freight on these goods (r). Where the plaintiff having entered into a charter-party by which the ship was to proceed to Newport and there load a cargo, insured the chartered freight, and the ship on the way to Newport was delayed by the perils insured against for so long a time that the freighter refused and was justified in refusing to load a cargo, it was held that there was a total loss of the freight (s). With respect to the measure of indemnity where there is a partial loss of freight, see Measure of Indemnity, p. 1203.

Partial loss of freight.—A partial loss of chartered freight may arise from the operation of a cesser clause like the following:—"In the event of loss of time from collision, stranding, want of repairs, breakdown of machinery, or any cause appertaining to the duties of the owner, preventing the working of the vessel for more than twenty-four working hours, the payment of hire shall cease from the hour when the detention begins until she be again in an efficient state to resume her service." When a loss of time occasioned by any of the perils insured against results in such a clause coming into operation, and thereby causes a loss of hire, such loss is recoverable under a policy on the chartered freight as a particular average loss (t). It seems in this country that a claim in respect of partial loss on freight can only be made good when either (1) only part of the full intended cargo out of which the freight was expected to

(q) Philpot v. Swan, 5 L. T. 183.

(r) Mordy v. Jones, 4 B. & C. 400; 3 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 250.

(s) Jackson v. Union Ins. Co., 8 C.P. 572; 10 C.P. N.S. 125; see Inman Steam Co. v. Bischoff, 7 A.C. 670; 52 L.J. QB.. 169; Brankelow S.S. Co. v. Canton Ins. Office, (1901) A.C. 462; 70 L.J. K.B. 952; The Alps, (1893), P. 109; 62 L.J. P. 59; The Bedouin, (1894) P. 1; 63 L.J. P. 30.

(t) The Alps, (1893) P. 109; 62 L.J. Adm. 59; The Bedouin, (1894) P. 1; 63 L.J. Adm. 30; Hough v. Head, 55 L.J. Q.B. 43.

arise was on board, or contracted for at the time of loss (u); (2) when some separable part of the whole cargo (i.e., separately valued or insured by the policy (v)) goes in bulk to the bottom of the sea, or is otherwise totally destroyed by a peril insured against (x). In both these cases there is a clear total loss of part, or partial loss of freight, which must be adjusted by the underwriter in the mode hereafter to be indicated.

The rule as to the amount recoverable for a partial loss of freight is thus stated:—"Subject to any express provision in the policy, where there is a partial loss of freight, the measure of indemnity is such proportion of the sum fixed by the policy in the case of a valued policy, or of the insurable value in the case of an unvalued policy, as the proportion of freight lost by the assured bears to the whole freight at the risk of the assured under the policy" (y).

Partial loss of goods, merchandise, &c.—Standard of value and measure of depreciation.—Where there is a partial loss of goods, merchandise, or other moveables, the measure of indemnity, subject to any express provision in the policy, is as follows:—(1) Where part of the goods, merchandise or other moveables insured by a valued policy is totally lost, the measure of indemnity is such proportion of the sum fixed by the policy as the insurable value of the part lost bears to the insurable value of the whole, ascertained as in the case of an unvalued policy (z); (2) Where part of the goods, merchandise, or other moveables insured by an unvalued policy is totally lost, the measure of indemnity is the insurable value of the part lost, ascertained as in case of total loss (a); (3) Where the whole or any part of the goods or merchandise insured has been delivered damaged at its destination, the measure of indemnity is such proportion of the sum fixed by the policy in the case of a valued policy, or of the insurable value in the case of an unvalued policy, as the difference between the gross (b) sound and damaged values at the place of arrival bears to the gross sound value (c).

If a partial loss has been sustained on goods and merchandise, this loss is calculated and adjusted by comparing the selling (u) Forbes v. Aspinall, 13 East, 323; Forbes v. Cowie, 1 Campb. 520.

(v) Ralli v. Janson (in error), 6 E. & B. 422; 25 L.J. Q.B. 300.

(x) See The Merchant Shipping Co. v. Armitage, L.R. 9 Q.B. 99; 43 L.J. Q.B. 24; Stevens Av. 174.

(y) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 70. See also ib. s. 67 (2).

(z) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 71 (1).

(a) Ib., s. 71 (2).

(b) "Gross value" means the wholesale price or, if there be no such price, the estimated value, with, in either case, freight, landing charges, and duty paid beforehand; provided that, in the case of goods or merchandise customarily sold in bond, the bonded price is deemed to be the gross value. "Gross proceeds" means the actual price obtained at a sale where all charges on sale are paid by the sellers: 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 71 (4).

(c) Ib., s. 71 (3); and see Francis v. Boulton, 65 L.J. Q.B. 153.

price of the sound commodity with the selling price of the damaged part of the same commodity at the port of delivery. The difference between these two subjects of comparison affords the proportion of loss in any given case, i.e., it gives the aliquot part of the original value which may be considered as destroyed by the perils insured against, and for which the insured is entitled to be recompensed. When this is ascertained, it only remains to apply this liquidated portion of loss to the standard by which the value is calculated (i.e., to the declared value in the case of a valued policy, and to the invoice price, &c., in the case of an open policy), "and you then get the one-half, the one-fourth, or one-eighth of the loss to be made good in terms of money" (d). If part of the cargo, capable of a several and distinct valuation at the outset, be totally lost, as if there be one hundred hogsheads of sugar, and ten happen to be lost, the insurer must pay the prime cost of those ten hogsheads, without any regard to the price for which the other ninety may be sold. But, where one hogshead happens to be spoiled, no measure can be taken from the prime cost to ascertain the quantity of such damage; but, if you can fix whether it be a third, fourth, or fifth worse, the damage is fixed to a mathematical certainty. This is to be found out, not by any price at the outset port, but at the port of delivery, where the voyage is completed and the whole damage known. Whether the price there be high or low, it equally shows whether the damaged goods are a third, a fourth, or a fifth worse than if they had come sound: consequently, whether the injury sustained be a third, fourth, or fifth of the value; and, as the insurer pays the whole prime cost if the thing be wholly lost, so if it be only a third, fourth, or fifth worse, he pays a third, fourth, or fifth of the value of the goods so damaged. For instance, suppose the value in the policy to be 30*l.*, the goods are damaged, but sell for 40*l.*; if they had been sound, they would have sold for 50*l.* The difference then between the sound and the damaged is a fifth; consequently, the insurer must pay a fifth of the prime cost or value in the policy, that is, 6*l.*: e converso, if they come to a losing market and sell for 10*l.*, being damaged, but would have sold for 20*l.* if sound, the difference is one-half, and the insurer must pay half the prime cost or value in the policy, that is, 15*l.* (e). To put the matter in another shape, "If goods valued at 100*l.*, and coming to a good market, would, if sound, have been sold for 120*l.*, but are so damaged as not to fetch more than 40*l.*, the loss will be that proportion of the prime cost (100*l.*), which the difference between the price of the damaged and the price of the sound goods (80*l.*) bears to the price of the sound, 120*l.* Thus, if 120*l.* : 80*l.* :: 100*l.* :— the answer is 66*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, the true loss" (f). This mode of calculation furnishes a criterion by which the amount of the deterioration on the damaged goods may be ascertained, without involving the underwriter in the fluctuations of a rising or falling market. The merchant in this way makes the market prices of the sound and damaged commodity serve as the scales in which to weigh the depreciation (g).

(d) Usher v. Noble, 12 East, 647. (e) Lewis v. Rucker, 2 Burr. 1170.

Where different species of property are insured under a single valuation, the valuation must be apportioned over the different species in proportion to their respective insurable values, as in the case of an unvalued policy, and the insured value of any part of a species is such proportion of the total insured value of the same as the insurable value of the part bears to the insurable value of the whole (h). Where a valuation has to be apportioned, and particulars of the prime cost of each separate species, quality, or description of goods cannot be ascertained, the division of the valuation may be made over the net arrived sound values of the different species, qualities, or descriptions of goods (i).

General average contributions and salvage charges.—Subject to any express provision in the policy, where the assured has paid, or is liable for, any general average contribution, the measure of indemnity is the full amount of such contribution, if the subject-matter liable to contribution is insured for its full contributory value; but, if such subject-matter be not insured for its full contributory value, or if only part of it be insured, the indemnity payable by the insurer must be reduced in proportion to the under insurance, and where there has been a particular average loss which constitutes a deduction from the contributory value, and for which the insurer is liable, that amount must be deducted from the insured value in order to ascertain what the insurer is liable to contribute (k). Where the insurer is liable for salvage charges the extent of his liability must be determined on the like principle (l). "The master is not compellable to part with the possession of the goods until the sum contributable in respect of them is either paid or (f) Marshall on Insurance, 504 (ed. 4); Johnson v. Sheddon, 2 East, 581; Hurry v. R. Ex. Assur. Co., 3 Bos. & P. 308; Tunno v. Edwards, 12 East, 488.

(g) Stevens on Average, 84.
(h) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 72 (1).
(i) Ib., s. 72 (2).
(k) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 73 (1). See Balmoral S.S. Co. v. Marten, 71 L.J. K.B. 819; (1902) A.C. 511; Pirie v. Steele, 2 M. & Rob. 49; Henderson Bros. v. Shankland, (1896) 1 Q.B. 525; 65 L.J. Q.B. 340.
(l) Ib., s. 73 (2).

secured to his satisfaction" (m). As agents for all parties concerned he has a lien upon the cargo for the proportion due from each cargo owner in respect of general average (n).

Liabilities to third parties.—Where the assured has effected an insurance in express terms against any liability to a third party, the measure of indemnity, subject to any express provision in the policy, is the amount paid or payable by him to such third party in respect of such liability (o).

General provisions as to measure of indemnity.—"Where there has been a loss in respect of any subject-matter not expressly provided for in the foregoing provisions of this Act, the measure of indemnity shall be ascertained, as nearly as may be, in accordance with those provisions, in so far as applicable to the particular case (p). Nothing in the provisions of this Act relating to the measure of indemnity shall affect the rules relating to double insurance, or prohibit the insurer from disproving interest wholly or in part, or from showing that at the time of the loss the whole or any part of the subject-matter insured was not at risk under the policy" (q).

Successive losses.—Unless the policy otherwise provides, and subject to the provisions of the Marine Insurance Act, 1906, the insurer is liable for successive losses, even though the total amount of such losses may exceed the sum insured (r). "Where, under the same policy, a partial loss, which has not been repaired or otherwise made good, is followed by a total loss, the assured can only recover in respect of the total loss: Provided that nothing in" sect. 77 of the Act of 1906 "shall affect the liability of the insurer under the suing and labouring clause" (s). Where a ship insured by a valued time policy was a constructive total loss by sea damage when the policy attached on her a total subsequent loss was held recoverable (t).

Rights of insurer on payment.—Where the insurer pays for a total loss, either of the whole, or in the case of goods of any apportionable part, of the subject-matter insured, he thereupon becomes entitled to take over the interest of the assured in whatever may remain of the subject-matter so paid for, and he is thereby subrogated to all the rights and remedies of the assured in and in respect of that subject-matter as from the time of the casualty causing the loss (u).

(m) Simonds v. White, 2 B. & C. 811; 2 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 159; per Abbott, C.J.

(n) See Cargo ex Galam, 33 L.J. Ad. 97; Strang v. Scott, 14 App. Cas. 601; 59 L.J. P.C. 1; Nobel's Explosives Co. v. Rea, 2 Com. Cas. 293.

(o) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 74.

(p) Ib., s. 75 (1).

(q) Ib., s. 75 (2).

(r) Ib., s. 77 (1); and see ante, p. 1204.

(s) Ib., s. 77 (2); Livie v. Janson, 12 East, 648.

(t) Barker v. Janson, L.R. 3 C.P. 303; 37 L.J. C.P. 105; Woodside v. Globe Assur. Co., (1896) 1 Q.B. 105; 65 L.J. Q.B. 117.

(u) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 79 (1). See

Subject to the foregoing provisions, where the insurer pays for a partial loss, he acquires no title to the subject-matter insured, or such part of it as may remain, but he is thereupon subrogated to all rights and remedies of the insured in and in respect of the subject-matter insured as from the time of the casualty causing the loss, in so far as the assured has been indemnified, by such payment for the loss (x).

Where the assured is over-insured by double insurance, each insurer is bound, as between himself and the other insurers, to contribute rateably to the loss in proportion to the amount for which he is liable under his contract (y). If any insurer pays more than his proportion of the loss, he is entitled to maintain an action for contribution against the other insurers, and he is entitled to the like remedies as a surety who has paid more than his proportion of the debt (z).

SECTION III.

OF FIRE INSURANCE.

Insurance against peril by fire (a).—When the underwriter, in consideration of a premium, undertakes to indemnify the insured against loss of, or injury to, property from fire, the contract is a contract of fire insurance, and the instrument by which it is effected is called a FIRE POLICY. In a contract of this kind, the insurers, after reciting the receipt of the premium, usually covenant or agree that, from a day named in the policy, unto, and inclusive of, another day named therein, and so long as the insured shall pay or cause to be paid the premium agreed upon, and the insurers shall accept the same, they, the insurers, will make good any loss or damage by fire to the property insured, except loss or damage from fire caused by foreign enemies, &c. When the policy refers to printed proposals, as embodying the terms upon which the insurance is effected, these proposals form part of the contract, and the policy and proposals must be read and construed together. Where, however, a slip containing particulars of the risk had been initialled by underwriters, but no policy had been signed, it was held that there was

Dickenson v. Jardine, L.R. 3 C.P. 639; 37 L.J. C.P. 321; King v. Victoria Ins. Co., (1896) A.C. 250; 65 L.J. P.C. 38.

(x) 6 Edw. 7, c. 41, s. 79 (2). See Assicurazioni Generali de Trieste v. Empress Assur. Corp., (1907) 2 K.B. 814; 76 L.J. K.B. 980; North of England Ins. Assoc. v. Armstrong, L.R. 5 Q.B. 244; 39 L.J. Q.B. 81.

(y) Ib., s. 80 (1).

(z) Ib., s. 80 (2).

(a) See 9 Edw. 7, c. 49, as to insurance companies and the class of business to which that Act applies.

a complete and binding contract of insurance (b). The insured must have a pecuniary interest in the property exposed to risk, or he must be accountable or responsible to some person for the safety or security of the property (c). If he has no such interest or accountability, the contract will be void at common law, independently of the 14 Geo. 3, c. 48, as being contrary to public policy, and holding out the strongest possible temptation to arson; but it is not necessary, to give the insured an insurable interest, that he should have the absolute property in the things insured. If he has a lien on them for money due to him, or if he holds them as a bailee, or depositary, or warehouseman, or as a commission-agent for sale, or as an artificer, or a common carrier, or is employing his work and labour upon them, he may lawfully insure them to their full value as goods held in trust or on commission, and may keep up a floating policy upon them for his own benefit and the benefit of his present and future customers (d). Where, however, the insurers had specially limited their liability to "goods on trust or on commission for which the insured are responsible," it was held that they were not liable for loss to goods sold, and in which the property had passed to the purchaser, although the insured held the delivery warrants for the convenience of paying the charges on the goods which were in bond (e). If the insured is a bankrupt in possession of after-acquired property by permission of his trustee, he has an insurable interest (f). An insurer cannot ratify a contract after becoming aware of the loss of the subject-matter (ff).

Parties entitled to benefit of insurance.—By sect. 7 of 22 & 23 Vict. c. 35, the person entitled to the benefit of a covenant to insure against loss or damage by fire shall have the same advantage from any insurance not effected in conformity with the covenant, as he would have from an insurance effected in conformity with the covenant; but this section has been repealed by sect. 14 of 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41, and Schedule II., Part I., and its place is practically supplied by the relief against forfeiture contained in sect. 14 of the above Act (g). A purchaser of property insured against fire does not, by the purchase, acquire a right to the benefit of the policy (h). Where machinery was

(b) Thompson v. Adams, 23 Q.B.D. 361.

(c) Marks v. Hamilton, 7 Exch. 323; 21 L.J. Ex. 109.

(d) Tasker v. Scott, 6 Taunt. 234; 1 Marsh. 556; L. & N. W. Ry. v. Glyn, 28 L.J. Q.B. 193; 1 E. & E. 652; Waters v. Monarch Ins. Co., 5 E. & B. 870; 25 L.J. Q.B. 102.

(e) North British Ins. Co. v. Moffatt, L.R. 7 C.P. 25; 41 L.J. C.P. 1; and see Martineau v. Kitching, L.R. 7 Q.B. 436, 457; 41 L.J. Q.B. 227.

(f) Marks v. Hamilton, 7 Exch. 323; 21 L.J. Ex. 109.

(ff) Grover v. Mathews, (1910) 2 K.B. 401; 79 L.J. K.B. 1025.

(g) See ante, p. 714.

(h) Poole v. Adams, 33 L.J. Ch. 639; Phœnix Assur. Co. v. Spooner, (1905) 2 K.B. 753; 74 L.J. K.B. 792.

mortgaged by a bill of sale, which contained a covenant to insure, but no provision for the application of the policy moneys in case of fire in liquidation of the mortgage debt, and the machinery was burnt, it was held that the mortgagee had no claim to the benefit of the policy as against the mortgagor (i). So also a lessee with an option of purchase has no right after a fire to exercise his option and claim the insurance money (k).

Things covered by policy.—An insurance on "household furniture, linen, and wearing apparel," will not include linen-drapery bought on speculation (l); nor will an insurance on the "interest in an inn" include the profits of the publican's trade (m); nor an insurance on "an oil mill and millwright's gear therein" include machinery in a separate detached building, although it is worked by the same motive power, and considered to be part of the mill (n). If a building be described as of one class instead of another requiring a larger premium, the policy will be nugatory (o).

Warranties.—Every statement, condition, and representation, material to the risk, will amount to a warranty, but not statements and representations concerning matters which do not form the basis of the contract and regulate the risk (p). While the nature of the contract requires that strict good faith be kept with the insurers in the representations made to them to induce them to accept the insurance, the parties may frame their contracts in their own terms, and subject to such conditions as they may think fit; and such conditions, when imposed upon or undertaken by the assured, are termed "warranties" and form the primary terms of the contract. When a formal proposal is executed, any statements therein made unconditionally, and expressly or by reference referred to in the policy, are warranties, and must be strictly and literally true, and their correctness is a condition precedent to the responsibility of the insurer. "It is simply sufficient, and ought to be sufficient," observed Lord St. Leonards (q), "to avoid the policy, that any one thing warranted is not true." Whenever the assured and the assurers are at issue, whether a statement or condition in the policy has been complied with or not, it will be important to

(i) Lees v. Whiteley, L.R. 2 Eq. 143; 35 L.J. Ch. 412.

(k) Edwards v. West, 7 Ch. D. 858; 47 L.J. Ch. 463; recognised in Isaacs v. Reginall, (1894) 3 Ch. 506; 63 L.J. Ch. 815; Raffety v. Schofield, (1897) 1 Ch. 937; 66 L.J. Ch. 448.

(l) Watchorn v. Langford, 3 Campb. 422.

(m) Wright v. Pole, 1 Ad. & E. 621.

(n) Hare v. Barstow, 8 Jur. 928.

(o) Newcastle Fire Ins. Co. v. Macmorran, 3 Dow, 255.

(p) Benham v. United Guar. Assur. Co., 7 Exch. 744; 21 L.J. Ex. 317; Baxendale v. Harvey, 4 H. & N. 450; S.C. nom. Baxendale v. Harding, 28 L.J. Ex. 236.

(q) Anderson v. Fitzgerald, 4 H.L.C. 484; Thomson v. Weems, 9 A.C. 687.

decide whether we have to deal with a warranty or a representation, since the first must be literally true, while it will be sufficient if the latter is so substantially (r).

Alteration of premises increasing risk.—In every policy of insurance against fire there is an implied promise or undertaking on the part of the insured that he will not, after the making of the policy, alter the premises so as to increase the risk. If he converts a house of two stories into a house of three stories, the liability of the insurer is increased; the premium, if previously fair, has then become inadequate, and the underwriter is discharged (s). It has been held that, if it is stated or asserted in the description of the premises in the policy, "that no fire is kept on the premises, and no hazardous goods deposited thereon," this refers merely to the ordinary state and condition of the property; and if on some particular occasion, for some temporary purpose, fire is brought upon the premises, or hazardous goods are temporarily or casually placed thereon, and a loss by fire consequently occurs, the policy is not forfeited, and the underwriters are not discharged (t). When no express warranty is infringed, the Court will look to the substance of the contract, and uphold it when the description is substantially correct; and the rule has been thus expressed. "If the description of the property is substantially correct, and a more accurate description would not have varied the premium, the error is not material" (u).

Notice of alterations.—If by the terms of the policy the insured is to give notice of the erection or use of new stoves or furnaces, or of the making of any alterations increasing the risk, and pay an increased premium, this, it has been held, refers to some permanent alteration or user, and not to a mere temporary or casual matter (x). But the authority of these cases is somewhat doubtful; and it has been held that, where, by the terms of the policy, steam-engines, stoves, or any description of fire-heat other than common fire-places, are not to be used unless notice has been given and the use allowed, the policy will be avoided if a steam-engine, with furnace attached, is brought on the premises, and used only on one or two occasions for experimental purposes, and not in the business of (r) Park. on Ins. 661—663.

(s) Sillem v. Thornton, 3 E. & B. 882; 23 L.J. Q.B. 368.

(t) Dobson. v. Sotheby, M. & M. 90; Shaw v. Robberds, 6 Ad. & E. 83; 6 L.J. K.B. 106; Thompson v. Equity Fire Assur. Co., (1910) A.C. 592; 80 L.J. K.B. 13. See, however, infra, Notice of Alterations.

(u) Smith's Merc. Law, 10th ed. 505, cited from an earlier edition with approval by Malins, V.-C.: The Universal Non-Tariff F.O., Forbes & Co.'s Claim, In re, L.R. 19 Eq. 485; 44 L.J. Ch. 761; Biggar v. Rock L. Assur. Co., (1902) 1 K.B. 516; 71 L.J. K.B. 79.

(x) Tim v. Reid, 6 Sc. N.R. 982; 12

the insured (y); but it must be proved that the risk of fire was increased by the thing done (z).

Misdescription of insured premises.—Where by the terms of a policy, the houses, buildings, or other places where insured goods were deposited, were to be accurately described, and a lodger who had only one room in a house effected an insurance upon goods therein, describing them as being in his "dwelling-house," it was held that the description was sufficiently accurate (a). A coffee-house keeper who does not furnish beds and lodgings for the night does not carry on the trade of an innkeeper within the meaning of a policy enumerating the trade of an innkeeper as doubly hazardous, and requiring an increased premium for the insurance of buildings where it is carried on (b). When mills are warranted to be worked by day only, and they are put in motion by means of shafts worked by steam power in an adjoining building, the warranty is not broken by the steam-engine and shafts being kept going all night to turn other mills, if it appears that the machinery of the insured mill was disconnected at night from the moveable shafts, and that the mill itself had ceased to work (c).

Fraudulent concealment of facts materially affecting risk.—If any extraordinary risk is known by the insured to exist at the time the policy is effected, and is not disclosed to the underwriter, this is a fraudulent concealment, which deprives the insured of all right of action upon the policy. Where a warehouse adjoining a boat-builder's shop took fire, and the fire was apparently extinguished, and the boat-builder sent immediate instructions for the insurance of his shop and premises, without communicating the fact of the neighbouring fire to the insurers, and the fire was not in fact extinguished, but broke out again on the following morning, and extended to the boat-builder's shop and premises and consumed them, it was held that the concealment of the increased risk from the recent existence of the adjoining fire avoided the policy (d).

Risks covered by policy.—As the insurers in most cases take upon themselves only the risk of fire, they will not be responsible unless there has been actual ignition of the property insured. If it has been damaged merely from atmospheric con-

L.J. C.P. 299; Barrett v. Jermy, 3 Exch. 545; 18 L.J. Ex. 215.

(y) Glen v. Lewis, 8 Exch. 617; 22 L.J. Ex. 228.

(z) Stokes v. Cox, 1 H. & N. 533; 26 L.J. Ex. 113.

(a) Friedlander v. London Assur. Co., 1 M. & Rob. 171.

(b) Doe v. Laming, 4 Campb. 73.

(c) Whitehead v. Price, 2 Cr. M. & R. 447; Mayall v. Mitford, 6 Ad. & E. 670.

(d) Bufe v. Turner, 6 Taunt. 338; Uzielli v. The Commercial Union Ins. Co., 12 L.T. 399; Wedderburn v. Bell, 1 Campb. 1; Seaton v. Heath, (1899) 1 Q.B. 782; 68 L.J. Q.B. 782.

cussion caused by an explosion of gunpowder at a distance (e), or from the heat or smoke of ordinary flues and chimneys which have been overheated and mismanaged, and there has been no outbreak of fire, they will not be responsible upon the policy; but if a chimney should have caught fire, and the firemen in extinguishing it injured and displaced the slates upon the roof, or accidentally poured water in the room below, and so defaced the ceilings or walls, such damage would be a consequential loss which the insurers would have to make good (f). Where it was provided that the insurers should not be liable if the property should be burnt "by foreign enemies, or any military or usurped power," and it was set on fire by a mob excited by the high price of provisions, it was held that this was not a burning by an usurped power within the meaning of the proviso (g). But, if the insurers exempt themselves from liability for losses by fire "happening from civil commotion," they will not be responsible for damage resulting from the incendiarism of a rebellious mob, or from the insurrection of the people (h). The insurer who paid a loss of this kind could formerly sue the hundred upon the Riot Act in the name of the insured (i). A policy contained an exception of "loss or damage by explosion, except for such loss or damage as shall arise from explosion of gas;" an explosive vapour escaped and caught fire, setting fire to other things; it afterwards exploded and caused a further fire, besides doing damage by the explosion; it was held that the word "gas" meant ordinary coal gas, and did not include the explosive vapour, and that the exemption applied to the damage caused by the subsequent explosion and its consequences just as much as to a fire originated by explosion (k). Where a ship was insured for three months against fire, and was described as lying in the Victoria wet docks, with liberty to go into a dry dock for repairs, it was held that she was covered by the policy whilst passing along the Thames, on her way from the wet dock to the dry dock, but not whilst she was lying in the river for the purpose of re-fixing her paddle-wheels, or for purposes of repair (l). And where the risk was stated to be on four pumps "at and from Ardrossan to the steamer ashore at Drogheda, and while there engaged at the wreck and until

(e) Everett v. Lond. Assur. Co., 19 C.B. N.S. 126; 34 L.J. C.P. 299.

(f) Austin v. Drewe, 6 Taunt. 436.

(g) Drinkwater v. Lond. Assur. Co., 2 Wils. 363.

(h) Langdale v. Mason, 2 Park. Ins. 965.

(i) Clark v. Hundred of Blything, 2 B. & C. 254; Yates v. Whyte, 5 Sc. 640; 7 L.J. C.P. 116. As to the procedure now, see 49 & 50 Vict. c. 38, ss. 2 (2), 4, and sched. 1.

(k) Stanley v. Western Ins. Co., L.R. 3 Ex. 71; 37 L.J. Ex. 73.

(l) Pearson v. Commercial Un. Assur. Co., 1 App. Cas. 498; 45 L.J. Ex. 761; ante, p. 1178.

again returned to Ardrossan, &c.," it was held that this did not include the risk while the pumps were on board the wreck on a voyage to Belfast, a port of safety (m). Under the words "from the 14th of February until the 14th of August," the whole of the 14th of August was held to be included (n).

Fires caused by negligence—Extraordinary risks.—One of the objects of insurance against fire is to guard against the negligence of servants and others; and therefore the simple fact of negligence has never been held to constitute a defence against the claim of the insured; and there is no distinction between the negligence of servants and agents and of the insured himself (o). But the underwriters do not take upon themselves extraordinary risks, unless those risks are expressly brought to their notice, and are accepted and insured against by them at the time the policy is effected.

Notice of loss—Partial losses.—By the terms of most contracts for insurance against fire, the insured is required to give, within a certain number of days, notice of the loss to the insurers, and to deliver full particulars of the damage sustained, and prove the amount of it; and the strict performance of these things in point of time, and the substantial performance of them in other respects, constitute a condition precedent to the right of the insured to be indemnified for his loss (p). By the term "full particulars" is meant the best particulars the insured can reasonably give (q). When a partial loss only has been sustained of the property insured, the insured is, of course, entitled only to be indemnified to the extent of such partial loss; to permit him to recover more, and put himself in a better situation than he was in before the loss occurred, would be totally opposed to the nature of a contract of insurance as a mere contract of indemnity. If a reasonable suspicion exists that buildings situate within the bills of mortality have been insured for more than their value and fired, but proof is wanting, the insurers may rebuild or repair at their own expense, and resist the claim of the insured for the money secured by the policy (r).

Forfeiture of policy—Non-payment of premium—Days of grace.—Where the insurance is for a year, and so on from year to year, or for a quarter of a year, and so on from quarter

(m) Waugate v. Foster, 3 Q.B.D. 582; 47 L.J. Q. B. 525.

(n) Isaacs v. Royal Ins. Co., L.R. 5 Ex. 296; 39 L.J. Ex. 189.

(o) Bush v. Roy. Ex. Assur. Co., 2 B. & Ald. 73.

(p) Roper v. Lendon, 28 L.J. Q.B. 260; 1 E. & E. 825; Worsley v. Wood 6 T.R. 710.

(q) Mason v. Harvey, 8 Exch. 819; 22 L.J. Ex. 336.

(r) Vernon v. Smith, 5 B. & Ald. 1; and see post, p. 1221.

to quarter, it is not kept alive after the expiration of the year or quarter by a mere proviso or condition giving a certain number of days of grace for the payment of the premium; but there should be an express stipulation that the insurance shall be continued and the property covered by the policy, until the expiration of the days of grace (s). Where a policy of insurance against loss by fire from year to year provided that the insured should, "as long as the managers agreed to accept the same, make all future payments annually at the office within fifteen days after the day limited by the policy, upon pain of forfeiture of the benefit thereof, and no insurance is to take place until the premium be actually paid," and a loss happened within fifteen days after the end of one year, but before the premium for the next was paid, it was held that the insurers were not liable, although the insured tendered the premium within the fifteen days, but after the loss; that the insurance was for a year, and not a year and fifteen days, and the policy at an end by non-payment at the very day; and that, the receipt of the premium being in the discretion of the insurers, they had clearly a right to refuse to continue the policy (t). Where there was a condition in a policy that the insured "should forfeit all benefit under his policy," if there was any false swearing in support of the claim he made, and the insured made an affidavit of damage to the amount of 1,081*l.*, and the claim was contested, and a jury gave a verdict for 500*l.* only, the Court granted a new trial (u).

Divers insurances on same property.—If the insured has effected two or more insurances upon the same property, he can, as we have before seen, recover no more than his actual loss; and, when he has obtained a full indemnity from the one he cannot resort to the other; but, as he is allowed to fix on which insurer he pleases, the law permits the one who has been compelled to make good the loss to resort to the others for contribution, and to recover from them a rateable proportion of the loss against which they have all insured (x). If the insurer pays the money, and subsequently the insured receives compensation from any other sources for his loss, the insurer is entitled to recover from the insured any sum in excess of the loss (y). A (s) Salvin v. James, 6 East, 571.

(t) Tarleton v. Staniforth, 5 T.R. 700, 1 B. & P. 471; Simpson v. Accid. Death Ins. Co., 2 C.B. N.S. 257; 26 L.J. C.P. 289; Roberts v. Security Co., (1897) 1 Q.B. 111; 66 L.J. Q.B. 119.

(u) Levy v. Baillie, 7 Bing. 349; 9 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 108.

(x) Davis v. Gildart, 2 Park. Ins. 601 (ed. 8); Godin v. London Assur. Co., 1 W. Bl. 103. See also Equitable Fire and Accident Office v. The Ching Wo Hong, (1907) A.C. 96; 76 L.J. P.C. 31.

(y) Darrell v. Tibbitts, 5 Q.B.D. 560; 50 L.J. Q.B. 33. See also Castellain v. Preston, 11 Q.B.D. 380; 52 L.J. Q.B. 366.

policy of fire insurance being a contract of indemnity merely, the insurer on making good the loss insured against is entitled, even though payment be made with knowledge of a then subsisting contract relating to the subject-matter between the assured and third parties, to stand in the place of the assured, and to recover from him the full value of any rights or remedies which he had renounced, and to which, but for renunciation, the insurer would have a right to be subrogated (z). There is no reason why the principles in respect of contribution should not be the same in respect of fire policies as they are in respect of marine policies; and if the same person in respect of the same right insures in two offices, there is no reason why they should not contribute in equal proportion in respect of a fire policy as they would in respect of a marine policy (a). Several mortgages were given upon the same premises, and the mortgagees severally insured in different offices; the premises were partly destroyed by fire; the plaintiffs were the last mortgagees; the prior mortgagees were paid an amount sufficient to reinstate the premises, and to pay the rent during the period of reinstatement, but the premises were not reinstated; the value of the premises before the fire was sufficient to cover all the mortgages, but, after the fire, was not sufficient to pay the prior mortgagees the balance due to them; it was held that, notwithstanding the payments to the prior mortgagees, the plaintiffs were entitled to recover to the full extent of their loss by the fire, except the loss of rent (b).

Insurances by warehousemen and bailees of customers' goods.—A warehouseman, wharfinger, common carrier, or bailee of goods, may insure the goods which come to his hands from time to time, in the ordinary course of trade, and may keep up a floating policy for the protection of the goods of his customers (c). It is not necessary that the bailee should have had any previous authority from the owners to insure in order to give him an insurable interest (d), nor that he should have made any charge for insurance, nor that he should be in anywise liable to make good to his customers the loss that has been sustained in order to entitle him to recover the full amount of the insurance from the insurers (e); but he is not entitled,

(z) West of England Fire Ins. Co. v. Isaacs, (1897) 1 Q.B. 226; 66 L.J. Q.B. 6.

(a) North British Ins. Co. v. London Ins. Co., 5 Ch.D. 569; 46 L.J. Ch. 537.

(b) Westminster Fire Office v. Glasgow Provident Soc., 13 App. Cas. 699.

(c) L. & N. W. Ry. v. Glyn, 1 E. & E. 652; 28 L.J. Q.B. 188; Crowley v. Cohen, 3 B. & Ad. 478; 1 L.J. K.B. 158.

(d) Hagedorn v. Oliverson, 2 M. & S. 485.

(e) Waters v. Mon. Life Co., 5 E. & B. 880; 25 L.J. Q.B. 102; L. & N. W. Ry. v. Glyn, supra.

when he has received the money, to appropriate it to his own use. The money is the money of the owners of the goods, and may be recovered by them from the insured who has received it (f).

Inability of insured to sue when no damage sustained.—Policies against fire being contracts of indemnity, whatever undoes the damnification in the whole, or in part, must operate upon the indemnity in the same degree. If, therefore, the loss or damage insured against has been caused by the act or default of some wrongdoer, and the insured has brought an action and recovered full compensation from such wrongdoer, he has then no ground to sue for an indemnity upon the contract of insurance; but, if the compensation he receives falls short of the real injury, an action would be maintainable for so much as would suffice to constitute a complete indemnity.

Rights of insurer and insured as against wrongdoers causing the loss.—Every insurer has a right to be put in the place of the insured, and to use the name of the latter in order to recover compensation from a wrongdoer who has caused the loss (g). If, therefore, the insurer has paid the amount of a loss caused by the wrongful act of a third party, he has a right to sue the latter in the name of the insured to recover compensation for the injury; and, if the insured receives from the insurer the amount insured, or full indemnity for his loss, and, after that, brings an action against, and obtains compensation from, a wrongdoer, he is not entitled to double satisfaction, and cannot put the money into his own pocket, but is a trustee thereof for the benefit of the insurer, and is bound to hand it over to the latter.

Laying out insurance money in rebuilding.—By 14 Geo. 3, c. 78, s. 83, the governors and directors of insurance offices are authorised, upon the request of any persons entitled to any house or other buildings which may be burnt down or damaged by fire, or upon any grounds of suspicion that the owners or occupiers, or other parties effecting the insurance, have been guilty of fraud or incendiarism, to cause the insurance money to be laid out in rebuilding (h). Trade fixtures put up by a tenant, being removable by him, are not comprised in the expression "house or other buildings" in the statute. Therefore, where such fixtures are separately insured and destroyed by fire during the tenancy, the landlord is not entitled to have the insurance money laid out under the Act; and a covenant by the tenant to deliver up the fixtures at the determination of the tenancy, as conferring a mere personal right resting in contract, makes no difference in this respect (i). In order to entitle an owner to have the money laid out in rebuilding, he must make a distinct request to that effect to the insurance office before they have settled with the tenant insuring; and in no case is the owner entitled himself to rebuild and claim the policy money (k).

(f) Randal v. Cockran, 1 Ves. sen. 97; Yates v. Whyte, 5 Sc. 640; 7 L.J. C.P. 116; Sidaways v. Todd, 2 Stark. 400; L. & N. W. Ry. v. Glyn, supra.

(g) Mason v. Sainsbury, 3 Doug. 64; Clark v. Hundred of Blything, 2 B. & C. 254; see Simpson v. Thomson, 3 App. Cas. 279; King v. Victoria Ins. Co. (1896) A.C. 250; 65 L.J. P.C. 38.

(h) The operation of this section is not limited to the metropolis, but is of universal application: Filliter v. Phippard, 11 Q.B. 347; 17 L.J. Q.B. 89; Gorely, Ex parte, 34 L.J. Bank. 1.

SECTION IV.

OF LIFE INSURANCE.

Contracts of life assurance (l).—"The contract commonly called life assurance is a mere contract to pay a certain sum of money on the death of a person in consideration of the due payment of a certain annuity for his life, the amount of the annuity being calculated, in the first instance, according to the probable duration of the life, and, when once fixed, it is constant and invariable" (m). This species of insurance is not, strictly speaking, a contract of indemnity: but it has so many features in common with those contracts, that it is convenient to consider it along with them. The acceptance of a proposal for an insurance on the life of the proposer would appear not to be binding upon the insurers until the premium is paid; and therefore, where, after acceptance of such a proposal, but before tender of the premium, there was a material alteration in the health of the proposer, it was held that there was no contract binding the company to issue a policy (n). Where an accident happened, after a proposal had been accepted and a cover note issued but before delivery of the policy which contained a clause that "immediate notice of accident" was to

(i) Gorley, Ex parte, supra.

(k) Simpson v. Scottish Union Insurance Co., 1 H. & M. 618; 32 L.J. Ch. 329.

(l) See 9 Edw. 7, c. 49. As to the insurance companies and the class of business to which that Act applies. As to insuring lives of children, see 59 & 60 Vict. 25, ss. 62—67, 84, and 59 & 60 Vict. c. 26, s. 13. As to avoidance of policies of life insurance of infants kept for reward, see 8 Edw. 7, c. 67, s. 7.

(m) Parke, B., Dalby v. Ind. & Lond. Life Ins. Co., 15 C.B. 387; 24 L.J. C. P. 6.

(n) Canning v. Farquhar, 16 Q.B.D. 727; 55 L.J. Q.B. 225.

be given, it was held that the immediate giving of notice was not a condition precedent to the right to recover in the absence of evidence that the assured knew or had an opportunity of knowing the conditions of the policy (o).

Contracts with de facto directors.—A person who effects a policy with a life insurance company in the ordinary course of business is not bound to inquire whether the persons signing the policy as directors have been legally appointed directors, or are empowered to use the seal of the company; it is sufficient if the policy appears on the face of it to be consistent with the articles of association of the company, and the Acts of Parliament under which it is incorporated (p).

Interest of insured.—By 14 Geo. 3, c. 48, s. 1, no insurance shall be made on the life of any person wherein the person for whose use and benefit, or on whose account, the policy shall be made, shall have no interest, by way of gaming or wagering (ante, p. 1213); it shall not be lawful to make any policy on life or lives without inserting therein the name of the person interested therein, or for whose use and benefit, and on whose account, the policy was made (q); and (sect. 3) in all cases where the insured has an interest in such life or lives, no greater sum shall be recovered and received from the insurer than the amount or value of the interest of the insured in such life or lives; but nothing therein contained is (sect. 4) to extend to insurances on ships, goods, or merchandises. If an insurance company lends money at interest upon the terms that the borrower do insure his life in double the money lent, the policy executed in furtherance of this agreement is not a gaming or wagering policy within the meaning of the statute (r). The interest in the insurer must be a pecuniary interest in the duration of the life insured (s); such as the interest which a creditor has in the life of his debtor (t), or a trustee in his trust moneys and revenues (u), or a wife in the life of her husband who is bound by law to support and maintain her (x), or the interest which a husband has in an annuity payable to his wife for life (y). A policy of insurance effected by a husband on the life of his wife may be enforced by him without giving affirma-

(o) Coleman's Depositories, Ltd., In re, (1907) 2 K.B. 798; 76 L.J. K.B. 865.

(p) County Life Assur. Co., In re, L.R. 5 Ch. 288; 39 L.J. Ch. 471.

(q) Hodson v. Observ. Life Assur. Co., 8 E. & B. 40; 26 L.J. Q.B. 303; Shilling v. Accid. Death Ins. Co., 2 H. & N. 42; 27 L.J. Ex. 16.

(r) Downes v. Green, 12 M. & W. 490; 13 L.J. Ex. 159.

(s) Halford v. Kymer, 10 B. & C. 724; 8 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 311.

(t) Anderson v. Edie, 2 Park. Ins. 914.

(u) Tidswell v. Ankerstein, Peake, 151.

(x) Reed v. R. Ex. Assur. Co., 2 Peake, 70.

(y) Henson v. Blackwell, 4 Hare, 434; 14 L.J. Ch. 329.

tive evidence of any insurable interest therein (z). By the Married Women's Property Act, 1882 (a), a married woman may effect a policy upon her own life or the life of her husband for her separate use; and a policy effected by her on her own life for the benefit of her husband and children, or by the husband on his own life for the benefit of his wife or children (b), will create a trust for the benefit of the objects named, and does not form part of the estate of the insured (c), unless the policy has been effected with intent to defraud creditors. A creditor has an insurable interest in the life of his debtor (d); and the circumstance that the creditor has other security does not vary the rule. But a debtor does not possess any insurable interest in the life of his creditor, where the latter has without consideration, or other circumstances to make the promise binding, promised not to enforce the debt in his own lifetime(e). But a contract for employment at a fixed salary for a certain term gives the employed an insurable interest in the life of the employer (f). A surety has an insurable interest in the life of his principal (g). The insurable interest is not, however, always rigidly limited to the amount actually due(h). A trustee has an insurable interest in respect of the legal right or interest vested in him (i), in like manner as the cestui que trust has in respect of the equitable interest (k).

In an action to recover the amount of a policy of insurance upon the life of a child, the plaintiff's step-sister, evidence was given of a promise made by the plaintiff to the mother of the child to take care of the child and help to maintain it; no objection was taken on behalf of the defendants that the plaintiff had not in fact incurred any expenditure in respect of the child: it was held that the plaintiff had an insurable interest in the child's life, and was entitled, in the absence of any objection as to the amount in fact expended by her, to recover the

(z) Griffiths v. Fleming, (1909) 1 K.B. 805; 78 L.J. K.B. 567.

(a) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 75, s. 11.

(b) See as to policies for the benefit of widow and children in the case of a second marriage, Griffiths' Policy, In re, (1903) 1 Ch. 739; 72 L.J. Ch. 330; Browne's Policy, In re, (1903) 1 Ch. 388; 72 L.J. Ch. 85.

(c) Mellor's Policy Trusts, In re, 7 Ch. D. 200; 47 L.J. Ch. 246; Seyton, In re, 34 Ch. D. 511; 56 L.J. Ch. 775; Davies' Policy Trusts, In re, (1892) 1 Ch. 90; 61 L.J. Ch. 650; Parker's Policies, In re; Parker v. Parker, (1906) 1 Ch. 526; 75 L.J. Ch. 297. But see Cleaver v. Mutual Reserve Fund, 61 L.J. Q.B. 128; (1892), 1 Q.B. 147, where the legal representatives were held entitled to recover the insurance money as part of the deceased's estate, where the deceased was murdered by his wife.

(d) Anderson v. Edie, 2 Park. on Ins. 914.

(e) Hebden v. West, 3 B. & S. 579; 32 L.J. Q.B. 85.

(f) Hebden v. West, supra.

(g) Lea v. Hinton, 5 De G. M. & G. 823; Branford v. Saunders, 25 W.R. 650.

(h) Downes v. Green, 12 M. & W. 481; 13 L.J. Ex. 159.

(i) Tidswell v. Ankerstein, Peake, 151.

(k) Yollop, Ex parte, 15 Ves. 60.

amount of the policy (l). A parent cannot make a valid insurance on the life of his child, unless he has a pecuniary interest in it (m). The expense of education does not of itself confer such an interest (n). The agent of the defendants, an insurance company, in good faith and believing his statement to be true, represented to the plaintiff that an insurance effected by him on the life of his mother would be a valid insurance, and the plaintiff relying upon that representation, effected such an insurance and paid premiums thereunder. In an action to recover back the premiums, it was held by the Court of Appeal, that, assuming the policy to be illegal and void for want of an insurable interest, the representation having been innocently made by the agent, the parties were in pari delicto, and the premiums could not be recovered back (o). If one person has a present interest in the policy, though, after that present purpose is satisfied, another person may be the party interested, the name of both persons must be inserted in the policy (p). If the insured has an insurable interest in the duration of the life at the time he effects the policy, and his interest afterwards ceases, he is not thereby prevented from suing upon the policy to recover so much of the sum insured as his interest in the life extended to at the time of the making of the policy. If, therefore, a creditor insures the life of his debtor for a certain sum, and the debt is paid, the creditor is not thereby deprived of his right of action upon the policy (q). But, though upon a life policy the insurable interest at the time of the making of the policy, and not the interest at the time of the death, is to be considered, the insured cannot recover from the insurers, whether upon one policy or many, more than the insurable interest which the person making the insurance had at the time he insured the life. If for greater security he thinks fit to insure with many persons, and by different contracts of insurance, and to pay the premiums upon each policy, he is at liberty to do so; but he can only recover or receive upon the whole the amount of his insurable interest; and if, therefore, he has received the whole amount from one insurer, he is precluded from recovering any more from the others (r). If the underwriter becomes bankrupt before the death has taken place and

(l) Barnes v. London, Edinb. & Glasg. Assur. Co., (1892) 1 Q.B. 864.

(m) Halford v. Kymer, 10 B. & C. 724; 8 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 311.

(n) Worthington v. Curtis, 1 Ch. D. 419; 45 L.J. Ch. 259.

(o) Harse v. Pearl Assur. Co., (1904) 1 K.B. 558; 73 L.J. K.B. 373.

(p) Evans v. Bignold, L.R. 4 Q.B. 622; 38 L.J. Q.B. 293.

(q) Dalby v. Ind. & Lond. Life Ins. Co., 24 L.J. C.P. 3; 15 C.B. 365; Law v. Lond. Indisp. Policy Co., 24 L.J. Ch. 196; 1 Kay & J. 223.

(r) Hebden v. West, ante, p. 1224.

the amount insured has become payable, the interest of the insured in the policy may be valued and proved under the bankruptcy against such bankrupt underwriter (s).

Warranties—Conditions.—A statement respecting the life insured does not amount to a warranty unless it is made the basis of the contract, and was intended by the parties to have that effect (t); but policies are generally granted subject to the condition that, if any untrue statement is contained in any of the documents addressed to the insurers in relation to the life insured, the policy shall be void (u). By untrue statement is sometimes meant a statement that is wilfully and designedly untrue (x). In other cases the policy will be void if the statement is unintentionally untrue (y), and is material (z). When there is a warranty that the person whose life is to be insured is in good health, it means that he is in a reasonably good state of health, not that he is perfectly free from illness. If there is a warranty that the party is "free from any disorder tending to shorten life," it does not mean that he has no disease at all; and it is not to be concluded that a disorder with which a person is afflicted at the time the insurance is effected is a disorder tending to shorten life, merely because he afterwards dies of it (a). A warranty that the party whose life is insured "has not been afflicted with, nor is subject to, vertigo, fits, &c.," does not mean that the party has never had a fit in his life, but that he is not at the time the insurance is made a person habitually or constitutionally afflicted with fits (b). If the insured, or his broker, or the agent effecting the policy, merely says that he believes, but will not warrant, the life to be a good one, the underwriter will be liable, unless he can show that the party so stating his belief knew that the life was not good (c). Unless it is so specifically stated, a condition that, in cases of fatal accident, notice must be given to the insurers within seven days, is not a condition precedent to recovery upon the policy (d).

Fraudulent misrepresentation and fraudulent concealment of circumstances material to be known to the underwriter naturally

(s) Cox v. Liotard, 1 Doug. 166, n.

(t) Wheelton v. Hardisty, 8 E. & B. 232; 26 L.J. Q.B. 265; 27 ib. 241.

(u) Cazenove v. Brit. Eq. Assur. Co., 28 L.J. C.P. 259; 6 C.B. N.S. 437; aff. 29 L.J. C.P. 160.

(x) Fowkes v. Manch. &c. Ins. A., 3 B. & S. 917; 32 L.J. Q.B. 153; Perrins v. Marine & Gen. Ins. Co., 2 E. & E. 317; 27 L.J. Q. B. 242; Sweeney v. Promoter Life Assur. Co., 14 Ir. C.L.R. 487.

(y) Macdonald v. Law Union Ins. Co., L.R. 9 Q.B. 328; 43 L.J. Q.B. 131.

(z) London Assur. Co. v. Mansel, 11 Ch.D. 363; 48 L.J. Ch. 331.

(a) Willis v. Poole, 2 Park. Ins. 935; Watson v. Mainwaring, 4 Taunt. 763; Areson v. Kinnaird (Lord), 6 East. 188.

(b) Chattock v. Shawe, 1 Mood. & Rob. 498.

(c) Stackpole v. Simon, 2 Park, Ins. 932.

(d) Stoneham v. Ocean Ins. Co., 19 Q.B.D. 237.

avoid life policies in common with all other contracts, the materiality of the misstatement or concealment being a question for the jury (e). Some policies, however, make the insurance company itself sole judge of the materiality of the falsehood, and adopt the most stringent provisions against misstatement, whether material or immaterial, known or not known to be untrue by the party making them, so that, observed Lord St. Leonards, "I am bound to say, unless they are fully explained to the parties, a vast number of persons will be led to suppose that they have made a provision for their families by an insurance on their lives, when, in point of fact, the policy is not worth the paper on which it is written" (f). False answers given to verbal inquiries as to whether the life sought to be insured had been previously insured at other offices have been held to be fraudulent misrepresentations avoiding the policy (g); and so have false answers respecting spitting of blood, consumptive symptoms, &c., or concerning the general health and state and condition of the life insured (h). If the insurer is referred for information to a former medical attendant of the life insured, and not to the immediate and usual medical attendant, such an omission to refer to the proper person will vacate the policy.

Principal and agent.—If an untrue statement, or a concealment of a fact, or non-communication of a material circumstance, takes place through the instrumentality of an agent, the insured, who is to benefit by the policy, is bound by it, though he himself is not privy to the falsehood of the representation, or the non-communication of the material fact. But the knowledge of a person who is an agent only for the purpose of obtaining proposals has been held, under certain circumstances, to be the knowledge of his principal (i). Where the agent of an insurance company induced the plaintiff to continue paying the premiums on a policy already effected by an untrue statement that after a certain date she would get a free policy which would give her all that she put in, it was held that she was entitled to repayment of all the premiums paid since the misrepresentations were made upon the grounds that those mis-

(e) Lindenau v. Desborough, 8 B. & C. 586; Jones v. Provinc. Ins. Co., 3 C.B. N.S. 65; 26 L.J. C.P. 272; Mutual Reserve L. Ins. Co. v. Foster, 20 T.L.R. 715; Joel v. Law Union and Crown Ins. Co., (1908), 2 K.B. 863; 77 L.J. K.B. 1108.

(f) Anderson v. Fitzgerald, 4 H.L.C. 507; Towle v. National Guardian Assur. Soc., 2 Giff. 42; 30 L.J. Ch. 900.

(g) Wainwright v. Bland, 1 M. & W. 32; 5 L.J. Ex. 147.

(h) Geach v. Ingall, 14 M. & W. 95; 15 L.J. Ex. 37; Thomson v. Weems, 9 App. Cas. 671. With respect to misstatement of age and receipt of premium after knowledge of, see Hemmings v. Sceptre Life Assoc., (1905) 1 Ch. 365; 74 L.J. Ch. 231.

(i) Bawden v. London, Edinb. & Glasg. Assur. Co., (1892) 2 Q.B. 534; 61 L.J. Q.B. 792. See also Fitzherbert v. Mather, 1 T.R. 12; Gladstone v. King, 1 M. & S. 35.

representations made the contract of insurance void and that the company could not retain the benefit of a contract entered into by the plaintiff by a misrepresentation, even though the agent had no authority to make it (k). Where a party effects a policy on the life of another, the person whose life is insured is not the general agent of the person procuring the insurance, so as to make his false representations those of the party procuring the insurance; and the same may be said of false representations of medical attendants and referees, unless these representations are expressly made the basis of the policy, or the parties making them are themselves the persons negotiating the contract. There is no analogy between the statements of the "life," or of the referees in the negotiation of a life insurance, and the statements of an insurance broker to underwriters, by which he induces them to subscribe the policy (l). But policies may be framed making the insured responsible for any material misrepresentation or concealment by the "life" or by the referees. Where the canvasser filled up the answers to the questions which formed the basis of the policy without any authority from the proposed insurer, who was ignorant that the canvasser had answered the questions falsely, it was held that the insurance company was not liable on the policy, since the canvasser must be regarded, in the circumstances, as having been the agent of the proposer and not of the company (m).

Indisputable policies.—Many insurance companies issue prospectuses and transact their business on the terms that all policies effected by them shall be unquestionable or indisputable, unless obtained by fraud (n).

Risks covered by life policies.—"When a man makes insurance upon a life generally, without any representation of the state of the life insured, the insurer takes all the risks, unless there was some fraud in the person insuring, either by his suppressing circumstances which he knew, or alleging what was false" (o). Where, therefore, there is no express provision in the policy that in the event of the insured dying by (k) Refuge Assur. Co. v. Kettlewell, (1909) A.C. 243; 78 L.J. K.B. 519; Levy v. Scottish Employers' Ins. Co., 17 T.L.R. 229; Life & Health Assur. Assoc. v. Yule, (1904) 6 F. 437.

(l) Wheelton v. Hardisty, 8 E. & B. 232, 285; 27 L.J. Q.B. 241.

(m) Biggar v. Rock Life Assur. Co., (1902) 1 K.B. 516; 71 L.J. K.B. 79. As to the knowledge of insurer's agent being the knowledge of insurer, see Bawden v. London, Edinb. & Glasg. Assur. Co., (1892) 2 Q.B. 534; 61 L.J. Q.B. 792; Holdsworth v. Lancs. & Yorks. Ry., 23 T.L.R. 521; Pearl Life Assur. Co. v. Johnson; Same v. Greenhalgh, (1909) 2 K.B. 288; 78 L.J. K.B. 777.

(n) Wood v. Dwarris, 11 Exch. 493; 25 L.J. Ex. 129; Wheelton v. Hardisty, supra; Anctil v. Manufacturers' L. Ins. Co., (1899) A.C. 604; 68 L.J. P.C. 123.

(o) Ross v. Bradshaw, 2 Park, Ins. 649 (ed. 7); 1 W. Bl. 312.

his own hand the policy shall become void, the policy is not vacated by the circumstance of his having died by his own hand while in a state of temporary insanity (p). But, if a man insures his own life for a certain sum to be paid to his executors after his decease, in consideration of annual premiums to be paid by him to an insurance company, the policy will be void, and the amount irrevocable, if he is killed in a duel, or feloniously destroys himself, or dies by the hand of the common hangman or public executioner (q). In some policies, where parties insure their own lives, a condition is inserted making void the policy in case the party shall die by his own hands, or by the hands of justice, or in consequence of a duel; and it has been held that such a condition is not limited to felonious self-destruction, but extends to all cases of voluntary self-destruction, so that, if a man destroys himself in a fit of phrenzy or delirium, the insurers will be discharged from liability (r). Such policies sometimes contain an exception to the effect that the policy in such a case shall not be void to the extent of any bonâ fide interest therein which at the time of such death shall be vested in any other person for a sufficient pecuniary or other consideration; and, where the insurance company with whom the policy was effected had advanced money to the insured upon mortgage and upon the deposit of the policy as a collateral security, it was held that they had such a bonâ fide interest, and that the policy was not void upon the suicide of the insured (s).

If the life is insured for one year from the day of the date of the policy, and the death occurs that very day twelvemonth, the insurer will be liable; for "from the day of the date excludes the day" (t). But the word "from" may mean either inclusive or exclusive, according to the apparent intention of the parties, to be gathered from the general context of the written instrument (u). An insurance to cover death "within the United Kingdom" is satisfied by a death in Jersey (x).

Forfeiture of policies—Non-payment of premium—Days of grace.—To keep the policy in force the renewal premium

(p) Horn v. Anglo-Austral. Assur. Co., 30 L.J. Ch. 511. But see Ellinger & Co. v. Mutual L. Ins. Co. of New York, (1905) 1 K.B. 31; 74 L.J. K.B. 39.

(q) Amicable Society v. Bolland, 4 Bligh, N.S. 194.

(r) Clift v. Schwabe, 17 L.J. C.P. 2; 3 C.B. 437; Dormay v. Borradaile, 16 L.J. C.P. 337; 5 C.B. 380; Moore v. Woolsey, 24 L.J. Q.B. 40; 4 E. & B. 243; Dufaur v. Profess. Life Assur. Co., 27 L.J. Ch. 817; 25 Beav. 599.

(s) White v. British Empire Mutual Life Assur. Co., L.R. 7 Eq. 394; 38 L.J. Ch. 53; Wigan v. English & Scottish Law Life Assur. Assoc., (1909) 1 Ch. 201; 78 L.J. Ch. 120.

(t) Howard's case, 2 Salk. 625.

(u) Pugh v. Leeds (Duke), Cowp. 714.

(x) Stoneham v. Ocean Ins. Co., 19 Q.B.D. 237.

must be actually paid: it is not sufficient that there was no intention to discontinue the policy, and that the office is not damnified by the delay (y). A policy of life insurance contained a condition that the assured had the option of paying the premium half-yearly or quarterly instead of annually. The dates on which such half-yearly or quarterly payments would fall due were named in the policy, and the assured had thirty days of grace from each such date within which he might make the half-yearly or quarterly payments. The premium was in fact, paid quarterly. The assured died within the thirty days of grace, which occurred after the falling due of the payment for the last quarter of the year. This payment had not been then made. Afterwards within the days of grace, the assignee of the policy paid the amount due, the death of the assured being not known either to the assignee or to the company. It was held by the Court of Appeal that the assignee was entitled to recover upon the policy the amount for which the assured's life was insured (z). "Payment of a premium at any time within the stipulated days of grace is equivalent to payment on the day when the premium became due" (a). Many policies, however, expressly provide that in case any person on whose life any insurance shall have been effected shall happen to die after the premium has become due, but before payment, the insurance shall nevertheless be valid, provided the premium is paid within the days of grace (b). A policy upon the life of W. lapsed by reason of a premium being unpaid for thirty days. The premium was subsequently sent to the company, who returned a receipt therefor. W. knew that there was some printing on the back of such receipt, but did not trouble to read it; it, in fact, stated that the policy had lapsed, and that the present payment was only accepted on the condition that the assured had been in good health for twelve months. It was held that the company could rely upon the condition; and that, as W. was admittedly in bad health at the time, the policy was of no effect (c). A claim under a winding-up in respect of (y) Acey v. Fernie, 7 M. & W. 151; 10 L.J. Ex. 9; London & Lanc. Life Assur. Co. v. Fleming, (1897) A.C. 499; 66 L.J. P.C. 116. If an agent without authority gives credit for the premiums, that is no receipt by the company so as to prevent the policy lapsing: Busteed v. West of England Co., L.R. 5 Ir. Ch. 553.

(z) Stuart v. Freeman, (1903) 1 K.B. 47; 72 L.J. K.B. 1; distinguishing Pritchard v. Merchant, &c., Life Assur. Soc., 27 L.J. C.P. 169; 3 C.B. N.S. 622. But see Simpson v. Accid. Death Ins. Co., 2 C.B. N.S. 295; 26 L.J. C.P. 289; Want v. Blunt, 12 East, 183; Tarleton v. Staniforth, 5 T.R. 695.

(a) Per Mathews, L.J., in Stuart v. Freeman, supra.

(b) Prince of Wales Life Assur. Co. v. Harding, 27 L.J Q.B. 301; E. B. & E. 183.

(c) Handler v. Mutual Reserve Fund Assoc., 90 L.T. 192.

a policy of life insurance is not affected by non payment of the premium where the days of grace have not expired until after the commencement of the winding-up (d).

Non-inception of risk—Return of premium.—When the policy is rendered null and void by reason of a misstatement made by the insured by mistake, and without fraud, and the risk has never attached, the premium is, in the case of marine insurance (see ante, p. 1159), recoverable; but if the policy is avoided by reason of the fraud or deceit of the insured or his agent, the premiums cannot then be recovered back (e). The policies of most insurance companies now provide, not only that the contract shall be void if there is any false statement or misrepresentation on the part of the insured of any material circumstance, but that all the premiums that may have been paid upon the policy shall be forfeited to the insurer, so that the policy may be avoided, and the premiums forfeited, by an innocent and unintentional misstatement (f). But Lord St. Leonards drew a distinction between that portion of the proviso which is framed as a protection to the insurer by making his liability for the payment of the amount insured dependent upon a true and accurate statement of every material circumstance, and the penal part of the proviso working a forfeiture of the premiums, and intimated that such a construction should be adopted as will afford a fair security to the insurer from misrepresentation and misstatement, on the one hand, and a just protection to the insured against the forfeiture, on the other, where there has been no wilful misstatement, or misconduct, on his part (g). When the policy has been void ab initio, or in any case "where a premium has been paid but the risk has not been run, whether this has been owing to the fault, pleasure or will of the assured, or to any other cause, the premium shall be returned by the insurers"; but if the risk has once commenced, there shall be no apportionment or return of the premium afterwards (h).

Waiver of forfeiture.—If, after the policy has been forfeited by non-observance of a condition annexed to it, the insurers or their agent continue to receive the premiums with full knowledge of the breach of the condition, they will be deemed to

(d) Albert Assur. Co., In re, Cook's Policy, L.R. 9 Eq. 703; 39 L.J. Ch. 257.

(e) Duffell v. Wilson, 1 Campb. 401.

(f) Duckett v. Williams, 2 Cr. & M. 348; 3 L.J. Ex. 141.

(g) Anderson v. Fitzgerald, 4 H.L.C. 484; Jones v. Provinc. Ins. Co., 3 C.B. N.S. 65; 26 L.J. C.P. 272; Cazenove v. Brit. Eq. Assur. Co., 29 L.J. C.P. 160.

(h) Tyrie v. Fletcher, Cowp. 666; Stevenson v. Snow, 3 Burr. 1237; Anderson v. Thornton, 8 Ex. 425; Fowler v. The Scottish Equitable, 28 L.J. Ch. 225; Foster v. Mutual Reserve Fund, 20 T.L.R. 715.

have waived the forfeiture, and will not afterwards be permitted to avoid the policy (i).

Assignment.—By the Policies of Assurance Act, 1867 (30 & 31 Vict. c. 144), any person or corporation becoming entitled, by assignment (k), or other derivative title, to a policy of life assurance, and possessing at the time of action brought the right in equity to receive and give an effectual discharge for the moneys thereby assured, may sue at law in the name of such person or corporation to recover such moneys. By sect. 3, no assignment is to confer on the assignee any right to sue, until a written notice of the date and purport of the assignment has been given to the assurance company at their principal place of business, which is to be specified in the policy (sect. 4); and the date on which the notice is received is to regulate the priority of all claims under any assignment; and a payment bonâ fide made in respect of any policy by any assurance company before the date on which the notice is received is to be as valid as if the Act had not been passed. By sect. 5, the assignment may be made either by indorsement on the policy or by a separate instrument in the form given in the Act. By sect. 6, every assurance company to whom notice of assignment shall have been given are, at the request in writing of the person giving the notice, and upon payment of a fee not exceeding five shillings, to deliver an acknowledgment in writing under the hand of the manager, secretary, treasurer, or other principal officer of the assurance company of their receipt of such notice; and such acknowledgment, if signed by a person being de jure or de facto the manager, secretary, treasurer, or other principal officer of the assurance company, will be conclusive evidence as against the company of their having duly received the notice to which the acknowledgment relates. By sect. 7, the expression "policy of life assurance" or "policy" is to mean an instrument by which the payment of moneys, by or out of the funds of an assurance company, on the happening of any contingency depending on the duration of human life, is assured or secured; and the expression "assurance company" is to mean and include every corporation, association, society, or company carrying on the business of assuring lives or survivorships, either alone or in conjunction with any other object. By sect. 8, the

(i) Wing v. Harvey, 23 L.J. Ch. 511; 5 De G. M. & G. 265; Armstrong v. Turquand, 9 Ir. Com. Law R. 32.

(k) See now, as to assignment of a chose in action, Jud. Act, 1873, s. 25 (6), ante, p. 222. Policies effected under the Friendly Societies Act, 1875, and, semble, under the Friendly Societies Act, 1896, are assignable in the ordinary way as well as by nomination under the Acts. Griffin, In re, (1902) 1 Ch. 135; 71 L.J. Ch. 112.

Act is not to apply to any policy of assurance granted or to be granted, or to any contract for a payment on death entered into, in pursuance of the provisions of 16 & 17 Vict. c. 45, or 27 & 28 Vict. c. 43 (l), or to any engagement for payment on death by any friendly society (m).

Notice of the assignment should be given to the insurance company, for the purpose of securing a right to sue in the name of the assignee (n). An assignment of a life policy to secure a debt, with proviso for redemption, is an assignment by way of mortgage (o), and must be duly stamped before payment out of the money assured (p).

Where a policy is to be void in case of suicide, unless it has been legally assigned, any circumstances constituting a valid, equitable assignment of the policy will satisfy the proviso (q); but an assignment by operation of law, such as an assignment by force of the Bankruptcy Acts, is not within the proviso, and will not keep the policy on foot for the benefit of creditors (r).

A contract for the sale of a life policy will be set aside by the Court where it was entered into on the basis of a common belief by the vendor and purchaser that the assured was alive, though he was in fact dead. Such a contract may be rescinded even after it has been completed by assignment of the policy to the purchasers (s).

Right of party interested in policy to recover insurance money.—The liability upon a life policy is not affected by the question whether the party claiming the benefit of the policy has, or has not, been damnified by the happening of the contingency upon which the money becomes payable. Thus, if a creditor insures the life of his debtor to the extent of the debt, and after the death of the debtor the executors of the debtor pay the debt to the creditor, the latter may nevertheless recover upon the policy the amount insured by him upon the life of such debtor (t). Amongst the purposes for which collecting societies and industrial assurance companies (u) may issue policies of (l) These two statutes are partially repealed by 45 & 46 Vict. c. 51.

(m) See 59 & 60 Vict. c. 25.

(n) Ante, p. 226; Williams v. Thorp, 2 Sim. 257; Colvill, Ex parte, 1 Mont. 110; 9 L.J. (O.S.) Ch. 55; Tennyson, Ex parte, 1 Mont. & Bl. 67; Thompson v. Tomkins, 2 Dr. & Sm. 8; 31 L.J. Ch. 633; Webb, In re, 36 L.J. Ch. 341.

(o) Caldwell v. Dawson, 5 Exch. 1; 14 Jur. 316; decided on sched. Pt. I. of 55 Geo. 3, c. 184, repealed by 33 & 34 Vict. c. 99, but re-enacted 54 & 55 Vict. c. 39, s. 86.

(p) 54 & 55 Vict. c. 39, s. 118.

(q) Jones v. Consol. Ins. Co., 28 L.J. Ch. 66; 26 Beav. 256; White v. British Assur. Co., L.R. 7 Eq. 394; 38 L.J. Ch. 53; ante, p. 1229.

(r) Jackson v. Forster, 1 E. & E. 463; 29 L.J. Q.B. 8; Moore v. Woolsey, 4 E. & B. 243; 24 L.J. Q.B. 40.

(s) Scott v. Coulson, (1903) 2 Ch. 249; 72 L.J. Ch. 600.

(t) Dalby v. Ind. & Lond. Life Ins. Co., 15 C.B. 390; 24 L.J. C.P. 8; Law v. Lond. Indisp. Assur. Co., 24 L.J. Ch. 196; 1 Kay & J. 223; ante, p. 1225.

(u) As to these societies and companies see 59 & 60 Vict. c. 25, and 59 & 60 Vict. c. 26.

assurance there shall be included insuring money to be paid for the funeral expenses of a parent, grandparent, grandchild, brother, or sister (x); and no policy effected before the passing of the Assurance Companies Act, 1909, with a collecting society or industrial assurance company is to be deemed to be void by reason only that the person effecting the policy had not, at the time the policy was effected, an insurable interest in the life of the person assured, or that the name of the person interested, or for whose benefit or on whose account the policy was effected, was not inserted in the policy, or that the insurance was not one authorised by the Acts relating to friendly societies, if the policy was effected by or on account of a person who had at the time a bonâ fide expectation that he would incur expenses in connection with the death or funeral of the assured, and if the sum assured is not unreasonable for the purpose of covering those expenses, and any such policy is to enure for the benefit of the person for whose benefit it was effected or his assigns (y).

Industrial assurance companies—Disputes.—By sect. 1 (b) of the Collecting Societies and Industrial Assurance Companies Act, 1896 (z), that Act applies to industrial assurance companies granting policies of life assurance for a less sum than 20*l.*, and receiving premiums by means of collectors at a greater distance than ten miles from the registered offices or principal place of business of the company at less periodical intervals than two months. By sect. 7 disputes between an industrial insurance company and a member or person insured or a person claiming through him may be settled by the County Court or by a Court of Summary Jurisdiction. It was held that the jurisdiction of a County Court or a Court of Summary Jurisdiction was limited to disputes arising with regard to policies originally granted for a less sum than 20*l.* (a).

Separation of funds of assurance company.—By sect. 3, subsect. 1 of the Assurance Companies Act, 1909 (b): "In the case of an assurance company transacting other business besides that of assurance or transacting more than one class of assurance business, a separate account shall be kept of all receipts in respect of the assurance business or of each class of assurance

(x) 9 Edw. 7, c. 49, s. 36 (1).

(y) Ib., s. 36 (2).

(z) 59 & 60 Vict. c. 26, s. 1 (b).

(a) Cowling v. Topping, (1906) 1 K.B. 466; 75 L.J. K.B. 176. Quære whether an industrial assurance company issuing policies for 20*l.* and upwards, as well as policies for sums less than 20*l.* comes in the provisions of sect. 7, so as to give any jurisdiction over disputes to a county court or court of summary jurisdiction. Ib.

(b) 9 Edw. 7, c. 49, s. 3. As to the application of the Act to fire insurance companies, see sect. 31; to accident insurance companies, see sect. 32; to employers liability insurance companies, see sect. 33; and to bond investment companies, see sect. 34 of the same Act.

business, and the receipts in respect of the assurance business, or, in the case of a company carrying on more than one class of assurance business, of each class of business, shall be carried to and form a separate assurance fund with an appropriate name: Provided that nothing in this section shall require the investments of any such fund to be kept separate from the investments of any other fund." And by sub-sect. 2: "A fund of any particular class shall be as absolutely the security of the policy holders of that class as though it belonged to a company carrying on no other business than assurance business of that class, and shall not be liable for any contracts of the company for which it would not have been liable had the business of the company been only that of assurance of that class, and shall not be applied, directly or indirectly, for any purposes other than those of the class of business to which the fund is applicable." And by sect. 30 it is provided in the case of life assurance companies that: "(e) Nothing in this Act providing that the life assurance fund shall not be liable for any contracts for which it would not have been liable had the business of the company been only that of life assurance shall affect the liability of that fund, in the case of a company established before the ninth day of August eighteen hundred and seventy, for contracts entered into by the company before that date; (f) In the case of a company carrying on life assurance business and established before the ninth day of August eighteen hundred and seventy, by the terms of whose deed of settlement the whole of the profits of all the business carried on by the company are paid exclusively to the life policy holders, and on the face of whose life policies the liability of the life assurance fund in respect of the other business distinctly appears, such of the provisions of this Act as require the separation of funds, and exempt the life assurance fund from liability for contracts to which it would not have been liable had the business of the company been only that of life assurance, shall not apply" (c).

Winding-up of insurance companies.—By sect. 15 of the Assurance Companies Act, 1909 (d), "the court may order the winding-up of an assurance company, in accordance with the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908 (e), and the provisions of that Act shall apply accordingly, subject, however, to the following modification:—The company may be ordered to be wound up on the petition of ten or more policy holders owning policies of an aggregate value of not less than ten thousand pounds: Provided that such a petition shall not be presented except by leave of the Court, and leave shall not be granted until a primâ facie case has been established to the satisfaction of the Court and until security for costs for such amount as the Court may think reasonable has been given" (f); and by sect. 18, "the court, in the case of an assurance company which has been proved to be unable to pay its debts, may, if it thinks fit, reduce the amount of the contracts of the company upon such terms and subject to such conditions as the court thinks just, in place of making a winding-up order" (g).

(c) 9 Edw. 7, c. 49, s. 30.
(d) 9 Edw. 7, c. 49, s. 15.
(e) 8 Edw. 7, c. 69.

Under the articles of association of an insurance company it was held that the policy-holders, who participated in the profits to some degree, were members, and liable to be put on the list of contributories upon the winding-up of the company (h), but that they were not to be called on to contribute until the shareholders were exhausted (i). The Court has jurisdiction to wind up an unregistered mutual insurance society; but it seems that the holders of policies in such a society are not liable to contribute to the payment of debts, and the funds of the society are distributable among them in proportion to their claims (k).

Insurance against injury by accident.—Insurances against accidents are in principle strictly life insurances, with a condition that the claim shall only arise in the event of death or injury occurring in a particular way (kk). They are subject to the provisions of the Gambling Act, in like manner as other life insurances (l). Where an insurance company granted policies of insurance against loss of life and personal injuries arising from "accidents at sea," it was held that death by sunstroke was not an "accident" within the meaning of the policy, and that death engendered by exposure to heat, cold, damp, and atmospheric influences, could not properly be said to be accidental (m); but death by drowning is a case of death by (f) And see 9 Edw. 7, c. 49, s. 16, as to the winding-up of subsidiary companies: British Widow's Assur. Co., In re, (1905) 2 Ch. 40; 74 L.J. Ch. 525; Nelson & Co., In re, (1905) 1 Ch, 551; 74 L.J. Ch. 290. The mode of valuing the policies in the case of a winding-up is provided for by sect. 17 and scheds. 6 and 7 of the same Act. See Popular Life Assur. Co., In re, (1909) 1 Ch. 80; 78 L.J. Ch. 37.

(g) See Gt. Britain Assur. Soc., In re, 20 Ch. D. 351; 51 L.J. Ch. 506.

(h) Winstone's case, 12 Ch.D. 239; 48 L.J. Ch. 607; but not a policy holder who has assigned his policy: Brown's case, 18 Ch.D. 639; 50 L.J. Ch. 714. As to the liability of the assignee, see Sanders' case, 20 Ch.D. 403; 51 L.J. Ch. 579.

(i) Albion Life Assur. Soc., In re, 16 Ch.D. 83.

(k) Great Britain Assur. Soc., In re, 16 Ch.D. 246; 51 L.J. Ch. 7, 506.

(kk) As to claim under a coupon policy, see General Accident, &c. Corp. v. Robertson, (1909) A.C. 404; 79 L.J. P.C. 1.

(l) Hodson v. The Observer Life Assur. Soc., 8 E. & B. 40; 26 L.J. Q.B. 303.

(m) Sinclair v. Maritime Passengers Assur. Co., 30 L.J. Q.B. 77; 3 E. & E. 478; Scarr v. General Accident Assur. Corp., (1905) 1 K.B. 387; 74 L.J. K.B. 237

"accident" within the meaning of such a policy (n). Cockburn, C.J., said:—"It is difficult to define the term accident, as used in a policy of this nature, so as to draw with perfect accuracy a boundary line between injury or death from accident and injury or death from natural causes. . . . At the same time, we think we may safely assume that, in the term accident, as so used, some violence, casualty or vis major is necessarily involved. We cannot think disease produced by the action of a known cause can be considered as accidental. Thus, disease or death engendered by exposure to heat, cold, damp, the vicissitudes of climate or atmospheric influences, cannot, we think, properly be said to be accidental, unless at all events the exposure is itself brought about by circumstances which may give it the character of an accident" (o). Where a person, insured against death from the effects of injury caused by accident, fell and dislocated his shoulder, and died shortly afterwards from pneumonia, caused by cold but accelerated by the accident, it was held that the death was caused by accident within the terms of the policy (p). A shock to the nerves from fright has been held to be an accident (q). Where a policy for insuring the payment of money in case the insured should be injured by accidental violence, and die from the direct effect of such accidental injury, expressly excepts death or disability from any disease or cause arising within the system of the insured before, or at the time of, or following such accidental injury, death from disease within the system, which disease has been caused by accidental violence, is not within the exception (r). In consequence of the above case, the clause contained in the policies of the company was varied, and the policy does not now insure against "death from rheumatism, gout, hernia, erysipelas, or any other disease or secondary cause or causes arising within the system of the insured before, or at the time of, or following such accidental injury (whether causing such death directly or jointly with such accidental injury)." Where erysipelas supervened upon, and in consequence of, an accidental cut, and the assured died of the erysipelas seven days after the accident, it was held that the insurers were protected by the (n) Trew v. Rail. Pass. Assur. Co., 6 H. & N. 839; 30 L.J. Ex. 317; Winspear v. Accident Ins. Co., 6 Q.B.D. 42; 50 L.J. Q.B. 232; Lawrence v. Accident Ins. Co., 7 Q.B.D. 216; 50 L.J. Q.B. 522.

(o) Sinclair v. Maritime Pass. Ins. Co., 3 E. & B. 478; 30 L.J. Q.B. 77.

(p) Isitt v. Rail. Pass. Assur. Co., 22 Q.B.D. 504; 58 L.J. Q.B. 191; but see Scarr v. Gen. Acc. Assur. Corp., (1905) 1 K.B. 387; 74 L.J. K.B. 237.

(q) Pugh v. L. B. & S. C. Ry., (1896) 2 Q.B. 248; 65 L.J. Q.B. 521; see also Mardorf v. Accident Ins. Co., (1903) 1 K.B. 514; 72 L.J. K.B. 362

(r) Fitton v. Accidental Death Ins. Co., 17 C.B. N.S. 122; 34 L.J. C.P. 29.

above condition, and were not liable (s). Where a policy of insurance against accidental death or injury excepted accidents incurred through exposure to obvious risk, and the insured in broad daylight was killed in crossing a railway in front of an approaching train, it was held that this came within the exception (t). Where a tramcar company insured against claims in respect of accidents to the amount of 250*l.* in respect of any one accident, it was held that the word "accident" meant an injury for which a person claimed compensation, and was not limited to one accident out of which many such injuries arose (u). Where the accident policy was renewable each year, it was held that an entirely new contract arose for each year, and that the amount payable under it in one year was not affected by an assignment of the policy in a previous year (x). Where an accident happens after the proposal is signed but before delivery of the policy, and the policy contains a provision inter alia that immediate notice of an accident must be given, and that the terms of the policy, so far as they contain anything to be done by the employer, are the essence of the contract, and the company do not prove that the plaintiffs knew of the condition as to giving immediate notice of any accident, the condition never becomes applicable to that risk, and the plaintiffs are entitled to recover (y).

Railway accidents—Damages.—Where a passenger by railway effected an insurance for 1,000*l.* with a company, to be paid to his personal representatives in the event of his death by a railway accident, and a proportionate part of the 1,000*l.* to be paid to the insured himself in case of any personal injury by reason of such accident, it was held that the damages recoverable in respect of personal injury to the insured, not attended with loss of life, were confined to compensation for bodily pain and suffering and the expenses of medical and surgical attendance, &c., and that loss of time or loss of profits resulting from the accident could not be taken into consideration by the jury: "otherwise one passenger, whose time is more valuable than another's, would, for precisely the same personal injury, receive a larger

(s) Smith v. Accident Ins. Co., L.R. 5 Ex. 302; 39 L.J. Ex. 211.

(t) Cornish v. Accident Ins. Co., 23 Q.B.D. 453; 58 L.J. Q.B. 591.

(u) South Staffordshire Tram. Co. v. Accident Assur. Assoc., (1891) 1 Q.B. 402; 60 L.J. Q.B. 260. As to "injury caused by external means," see Hamlyn v. Crown Accidental Ins. Co., (1893) 1 Q.B. 750; 62 L.J. Q.B. 409. As to injury caused by "accidental means," see Scarr v. Gen. Acc. Assur. Corp., (1905) 1 K.B. 387; 74 L.J. K.B. 237.

(x) Stokell v. Heywood, (1897) 1 Ch. 459; 65 L.J. Ch. 721.

(y) Coleman's Depositories, Ld., and Life and Health Assur. Assoc., In re, (1907) 2 K.B. 798; 76 L.J. K.B. 865; In re Williams and Thomas and the Lancashire and Yorkshire Accident Ins. Co., 19 T.L.R. 82.

remuneration than another whose time would be of less value" (z).

Breach of covenants to insure.—Where a covenant was entered into with an insurance company to keep up a policy in their office as security for money lent by them, and the policy was dropped, and the company recovered judgment for the amount of the loan, with interest thereon, it was held that the measure of damages was not the amount of the premiums which would have been payable to the company if the policy had been kept up, but the amount of injury sustained, either through loss of the security, or through the expenses incurred in effecting another insurance (a). Where a deed by which a debtor assigned a policy of insurance on his life for 1,000*l.* to trustees for his creditors, contained a covenant that he would not do any act or thing by which the policy should be forfeited, and the policy was subject to a condition that, if the insured should go beyond the limits of Europe without licence from the directors, the policy should be void, and the debtor went beyond the limits of Europe without licence from the directors, it was held that the measure of damages was the present value of the policy to be assessed by an actuary, taking into consideration the fact that the debtor had covenanted to pay, and would have to pay, the premiums on the policy (b).

Loss of life policy—Payment into Court.—Where an action was brought against a life insurance company upon a life policy which had been lost, and the directors of the company were of opinion that no sufficient discharge could otherwise be obtained, it was held that the provisions of the Life Assurance Companies (Payment into Court) Act, 1896, were applicable, and therefore leave should be given to the defendants to pay the amount of the policy into the High Court under Order LIV. (c.), r. 3(c).

SECTION V.

INSURANCE AGAINST BURGLARY.

Burglary.—Goods in a shop were insured against "theft following upon actual forcible and violent entry upon the premises;" early in the morning, during the temporary absence (z) Theobald v. Railw. Pass. Assur. Co., 23 L.J. Ex. 249; 10 Exch. 45.

(a) National Assur. Co. v. Best, 27 L.J. Ex. 19; 2 H. & N. 605; Brown v. Price, 4 C.B. N.S. 598; 27 L.J. C.P. 290.

(b) Hawkins v. Coulthurst, 5 B. & S. 343; 33 L.J. Q.B. 192.

(c) Harrison v. Alliance Assur. Co., (1903) 1 K.B. 184; 72 L.J. K.B. 115.

of the shopman, a thief gained access to the shop by turning the door-handle and walking in, and stole the goods: it was held that under the special circumstances of the case the loss was covered by the policy (d). Where a policy provided that there should be no claim on the policy for "loss by theft, robbery or misappropriation by members of the assured's business staff," and a theft was committed by a gang of men who gained admittance to the premises through the agency of an employee of the assured, it was held that there had been a loss within the meaning of the proviso which exempted the insurer from liability (e).

(d) George v. Goldsmiths', &c. Ins. Assoc., (1898) 2 Q.B. 136; 67 L.J. Q.B. 807. As to waiver of payment of premium, see Roberts v. Security Co., (1897) 1 Q.B. 111; 66 L.J. Q.B. 119.

(e) Saqui v. Stearns, (1911) 1 K.B. 427.

CHAPTER VI.

MERCANTILE INSTRUMENTS.

BILLS, NOTES, AND CHEQUES.

Negotiable instruments.—Bills of exchange, with cheques and promissory notes, constitute a paper currency to which special characteristics, unknown to the common law, were attached by the law merchant. The most important of these are negotiability, presumption of consideration, certain other presumptions, and estoppels directed to enable a "holder in due course" to take and hold the paper without being prejudiced by any defect, irregularity, or special arrangement between earlier parties of which he is not aware at the time, and the concession of days of grace. When an instrument is by the custom of trade transferable, like cash, by delivery, and is also capable of being sued upon by the person holding it pro tempore, then it is entitled to the name of a negotiable instrument, and the property in it passes to a bonâ fide transferee for value, though the transfer may not have taken place in market overt, and though the transferor had no title to it (a). But if either of the above requisites is wanting, that is, if it is either not accustomably transferable, or, though it be accustomably transferable, yet if its nature is such as to render it incapable of being put in suit by the party holding it pro tempore, it is not a negotiable instrument, nor will delivery of it pass the property in it to a vendee, however bonâ fide, if the transferor himself has not a good title to it, and the transfer is made out of market overt (b). Bills of exchange and promissory notes, whether payable to order or to bearer, are by the law merchant negotiable in both senses of the word. But a Paymaster-General's warrant for payment of pension signed by the payee is a mere receipt and not negotiable (c).

Bills of exchange—Definition.—It should be borne in mind

(a) London Jt. Stk. Bk. v. Simmons, (1892) A.C. 201 ; 61 L.J. Ch. 723 ; Thomson v. Clydesdale Bk., (1893) A.C. 282 ; 62 L.J. P.C. 91.

(b) Miller v. Race, 1 Smith, L.C. 463 (ed. 11).

(c) Jones v. Coventry, (1909) 2 K.B. 1029 ; 79 L.J. K.B. 41.

that the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (d), is, generally speaking, declaratory of the law, and may be regarded as a consolidation and re-enactment of it (e).

A bill of exchange is an unconditional order in writing (f), addressed by one person to another, signed (g) by the person giving it, requiring the person to whom it is addressed to pay on demand or at a fixed or determinable future time a sum certain in money to or to the order of a specified person (h), or to bearer (i). An instrument which does not comply with these conditions, or which orders any act to be done in addition to the payment of money, is not a bill of exchange (k). A bill is sometimes called a draft, and an accepted bill is often referred to as "an acceptance." The person who gives the order is called the drawer. The person thereby ordered to pay is called the drawee, and if he signifies his assent to the order in due form (l), he is then called the acceptor. The person to whom the money is payable is called the payee or bearer (i), as the case may be. Comparing the definition given by the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, s. 3, with the wider definition of "bills of exchange" in sect. 32 of the Stamp Act, 1891(m), it appears that instruments may require to be stamped as bills which do not possess the mercantile incidents of bills as defined by the Act of 1882. An instrument invalid as a bill under the Act may be valid as an agreement if it is in conformity with the requirements of the general law as to agreements (n). Where an instrument is so ambiguously worded that it is doubtful whether it was intended for a bill or for a note, the holder may treat it at his option as either (o). An order to pay out of a particular fund is not unconditional within the meaning of sect. 3 of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (p); but an unqualified order to pay, coupled with (a) an indication of a par-

(d) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61.

(e) M'Lean v. Clydesdale Banking Co., 9 App.Cas. 105; Boyse, In re, 33 Ch.D. 612; 56 L.J. Ch. 135.

(f) "Writing" includes print: sect. 2.

(g) Sect. 91. "(1) Where by this Act, any instrument or writing is required to be signed by any person, it is not necessary that he should sign it with his own hand, but it is sufficient if his signature is written thereon by some other person by or under his authority. (2) In the case of a corporation, where, by this Act, any instrument or writing is required to be signed, it is sufficient if the instrument or writing be sealed with the corporate seal. But nothing in this section shall be construed as requiring the bill or note of a corporation to be under seal." This section affects an alteration in the law.

(h) Camberlain v. Young, (1893) 2 Q.B. 206; 63 L.J. Q.B. 28.

(i) "Bearer" means the person in possession of a bill or note which is payable to bearer. See sect. 2.

(k) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 3 (1), (2).

(l) Ib., s. 17.

(m) 54 & 55 Vict. c. 39.

(n) See Brice v. Bannister, 3 Q.B.D. 569; 47 L.J. Q.B. 472; Hamilton v. Spottiswoode, 4 Ex. 200; 18 L.J. Ex. 393.

(o) Edis v. Bury, 6 B. & C. 433; 5 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 179; Fielder v. Marshall, 9 C.B. N.S. 606; 30 L.J. C.P. 158; cp. Allen v. Mawson, 4 Campb. 115.

(p) 54 & 55 Vict. c 39.

ticular fund out of which the drawee is to reimburse himself or a particular account to be debited with the amount, or (b) a statement of the transaction which gives rise to the bill (q), is unconditional (r). A bill is not invalid by reason—(a) That it is not dated; (b) that it does not specify the value given, or that any value has been given therefor; (c) that it does not specify the place where it is drawn or the place where it is payable (s).

Drawing of a bill.—A bill may be drawn payable to, or to the order of, the drawer; or it may be drawn payable to, or to the order of, the drawee (t). Where in a bill drawer and drawee are the same person, or where the drawee is a fictitious person (u) or a person not having capacity to contract, the holder may treat the instrument, at his option, either as a bill of exchange or as a promissory note (x).

The drawee must be named or otherwise indicated in a bill with reasonable certainty (y). A bill may be addressed to two or more drawees whether they are partners or not, but an order addressed to two drawees in the alternative or to two or more drawees in succession is not a bill of exchange (z).

Where a bill is not payable to bearer (a), the payee must be (q) "Bill" means "Bill of Exchange" by sect. 2. By sect. 4, (1) An inland bill is a bill which is or on the face of it purports to be (a) both drawn and payable within the British Islands, or (b) drawn within the British Islands upon some person resident therein. Any other bill is a foreign bill.

"For the purposes of this Act 'British Islands' mean any part of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, the islands of Man, Guernsey, Jersey, Alderney, and Sark, and the islands adjacent to any of them being part of the dominions of her Majesty.

(2) Unless the contrary appear on the face of the bill the holder may treat it as an inland bill."

The definition of a bill of exchange in sect. 3 embraces a cheque: see M'Lean v. Clydesdale, ante, p. 1242.

(r) Ib., s. 3 (3). See Boyse, In re, 33 Ch.D. 612; 56 L.J. Ch. 135.

(s) Ib., s 3, (4). Though an undated bill may be valid, it is irregular to issue it undated. As to filling in the date in the case of an undated bill or acceptance, see ib., ss. 12 and 20. The alteration of the date is a material alteration: s. 64 (2). Under most of the Continental codes it is essential that a bill should be dated.

By sect. 53, "(1) A bill, of itself, does not operate as an assignment of funds in the hands of the drawee available for the payment thereof, and the drawee of a bill who does not accept as required by this Act is not liable on the instrument. This sub-section shall not extend to Scotland.

"(2) In Scotland, where the drawee of a bill has in his hands funds available for the payment thereof, the bill operates as an assignment of the sum for which it is drawn in favour of the holder, from the time when the bill is presented to the drawee."

(t) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 5 (1).

(u) As to the meaning of fictitious person, see Vagliano v. Bank of England, (1891) A.C. 107; 60 L.J. Q.B. 145; Ashpitel v. Bryan, 32 L.J. Q.B. 91; affirmed by Ex. Ch. 33 L.J. Q.B. 328; Clutton v. Attenborough, (1897) A.C. 90; 66 L.J. Q.B. 221; Vinden v. Hughes, (1905) 11 Q.B. 795; 74 L.J. K.B. 410; North and South Wales Bank v. Macbeth, (1908) A.C. 137; 77 L.J. K.B. 464.

(x) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 5 (2); Miller v. Thomson, 3 M. & G. 576; Capital and Counties Bank v. Gordon, (1903) A.C. p. 250; Smith v. Bellamy, 2 Stark. 223.

(y) Ib., s. 6 (1), Peto v. Reynolds, 9 Ex. 410, and 11 Ex. 418; Fielder v. Marshall, 9 C.B. N.S. 606; 30 L.J. C.P. 158; Gray v. Milner, 8 Taunt. 739; Shuttleworth v. Stephens, 1 Campb. 407.

(z) Ib., s. 6 (2). See Acceptances, ib., s. 19 (2).

(a) "Bearer" means the person in named or otherwise indicated therein with reasonable certainty (b). A bill may be made payable to two or more payees jointly, or it may be made payable in the alternative to one of two, or one or some of several payees, and it may also be made payable to the holder of an office for the time being (c). Where the payee is a fictitious or non-existing person the bill may be treated as payable to bearer (d).

V., a foreign correspondent of the plaintiffs, was in the habit of drawing upon him to the order of C.P. & Co.; a clerk in the plaintiff's service forged V.'s signature, and also letters of advice with respect to the bills in question, and thus procured the genuine acceptance of the plaintiff; the clerk next forged indorsements of C.P. & Co., and presented the bills to the defendants, the Bank of England, who paid them, the plaintiff having advised them in the ordinary course that the bills were coming forward for payment; it was held by the House of Lords that C.P. & Co. were "fictitious or non-existing" payees within the meaning of sect. 7, sub-sect. (3), and that the Bank of England were not liable (e). A cheque drawn to the order of a fictitious or non-existing person is to be treated as a cheque payable to bearer although the drawer believes and intends the cheque to be payable to the order of a real person (f). Where a cheque is drawn by a real drawer who designates an existing person as the payee and intends him to receive the proceeds, the payee is not "a fictitious person" within sect. 7, sub-sect. 3 of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882. The drawer of a cheque induced by the fraud of W. drew the cheque to the order of K., an existing person, and intended him to be the payee, W. forged K.'s indorsement, and paid the cheque into his own account at his bankers, who received the amount of the cheque from the drawer's bank. It was held by the House of Lords that the drawer could recover the amount of the cheque from W.'s bankers (g).

Bills, when payable.—A bill is payable on demand—(a) Which is expressed to be payable on demand, or at sight, or on presenpossession of a bill or note which is payable to bearer. See sect. 1.

(b) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 7 (1); Soares v. Glyn, 8 Q.B. 24; Willis v. Barrett, 2 Stark. 29; Chamberlain v. Young, ante, p. 1242.

(c) Ib., s. 7 (2); Cowrie v. Sterling, 6 E. & B. 333; Yates v. Nash, 29 L.J. C.P. 306; Blanckenhagen v. Blundell, 2 B. & Ald. 417; cp. Holmes v. Jacques, L.R. 1 Q.B. 376; and Watson v. Evans, 32 L.J. Ex. 137.

(d) Ib., s. 7 (3); sub-sections (2) and (3) were not the law before the Act. See Yates v. Nash, 29 L.J. C.P. 306; 8 C.B. N.S. 581; M'Call v. Taylor, 34 L.J. C.P. 365; 19 C.B. N.S. 301.

(e) Vagliano v. Bank of England, (1891) A.C. 107; 60 L.J. Q.B. 145. The Court also held that the plaintiff had been guilty of negligence.

(f) Clutton v. Attenborough, (1897) A.C. 90; 65 L.J. Q.B. 122.

(g) North and South Wales Bank v. Macbeth, 77 L.J. K.B. 464; (1908) A.C. 137.

tation; or (b) in which no time for payment is expressed (h). Where a bill is accepted or indorsed when it is overdue, it shall, as regards the acceptor who so accepts, or any indorser who so indorses it, be deemed a bill payable on demand" (i).

A bill is payable at a determinable future time within the meaning of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, which is expressed to be payable—(1.) At a fixed period after date or sight; (2.) On or at a fixed period after the occurrence of a specified event which is certain to happen, though the time of happening may be uncertain; but an instrument expressed to be payable on a contingency is not a bill, and the happening of the event does not cure the defect (k).

Dating of bills.—"Where a bill expressed to be payable at a fixed period after date is issued undated, or where the acceptance (l) of a bill payable at a fixed period after sight is undated, any holder may insert therein the true date of issue or acceptance, and the bill shall be payable accordingly. Provided that (1) where the holder in good faith (m) and by mistake inserts a wrong date, and (2) in every case where a wrong date is inserted, if the bill subsequently comes into the hands of a holder in due course the bill shall not be avoided thereby, but shall operate and be payable as if the date so inserted had been the true date" (n).

Where a bill or an acceptance or any indorsement on a bill is dated, the date shall, unless the contrary be proved, be deemed to be the true date of the drawing, acceptance, or indorsement (o), as the case may be (p). A bill is not invalid by reason only that it is ante-dated or post-dated, or that it bears date on a Sunday (q). A post-dated cheque bearing a penny stamp, though taken by a holder before its date, is a valid cheque and can be sued on by the holder after its date (r).

Sum payable.—The sum payable by a bill is a sum certain within the meaning of this Act, although it is required to be paid—(a) With interest; (b) by stated instalments; (c) by

(h) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 10 (1).

(i) Ib., s. 10 (2).

(k) Ib., s. 11. See Coleham v. Cooke, Willes 393; Goss v. Nelson, 1 Burr. 226; Price v. Taylor, 5 H. & N. 540; 29 L.J. Ex. 331; Baring v. London and South-Western Bank, (1900) 1 Q.B. 270; 69 L.J. Q.B. 164.

(l) "Acceptance" means an acceptance completed by delivery or notification. See sect. 1.

(m) By sect. 90, "A thing is deemed to be done in good faith, within the meaning of this Act, where it is in fact done honestly, whether it is done negligently or not."

(n) Sect. 12 effects an alteration in the law.

(o) "Indorsement" means an indorsement completed by delivery; sect. 1.

(p) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 13 (1); Armfield v. Allport, 27 L.J. Ex. 42.

(q) Ib., s. 13 (2).

(r) Royal Bank of Scotland v. Tottenham, (1894) 2 Q.B. 715; 64 L.J. Q.B. 99.

stated instalments, with a proviso that upon default in payment of any instalment the whole shall become due; (d) according to an indicated rate of exchange or according to a rate of exchange to be ascertained as directed by the bill (s). Where the sum payable is expressed in words and also in figures, and there is a discrepancy between the two, the sum denoted by the words is the amount payable (t). Where a bill is expressed to be payable with interest, unless the instrument otherwise provides, interest runs from the date of the bill, and if the bill is undated from the issue (u) thereof (x).

Negotiability and transfer of bills.—Where a bill contains words prohibiting transfer, or indicating an intention that it should not be transferable, it is valid as between the parties thereto, but is not negotiable (y). A negotiable bill may be payable either to order or to bearer (z). A bill is payable to bearer which is expressed to be so payable, or on which the only or last indorsement is an indorsement in blank (a). A bill is payable to order which is expressed to be so payable, or which is expressed to be payable to a particular person, and does not contain words prohibiting transfer or indicating an intention that it should not be transferable (b). Where a bill, either originally or by indorsement, is expressed to be payable to the order of a specified person, and not to him or his order, it is nevertheless payable to him or his order at his option (c).

If the acceptor of a bill of exchange desires to qualify his acceptance he must do so on the face of the bill, in clear and unequivocal terms and so that any person taking the bill could not if he acted reasonably fail to understand that it was accepted subject to an express qualification (d). It would seem doubtful whether a cheque made payable to order, can be made not transferable under sect. 8 (e); and whether a cheque, payable to order or bearer, can be made "not negotiable" except by crossing it in manner provided by sect. 76 (f).

(s) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 9 (1). See Carlon v. Kenealy, 12 M. & W. 139; 13 L.J. Ex. 64; Gaskin v. Davis, 2 F. & F. 294; Oridge v. Sherborne, 11 M. & W. 374; 12 L.J. Ex. 313; Moffatt v. Edwards, Car. & M. 16; Worley v. Harrison, 3 A. & E. 669; 4 L.J. K.B. 268.

(t) Ib., s. 9 (2); Saunderson v. Piper, 5 Bing. N.C. 425; 8 L.J. C.P. 227; Phipps v. Tanner, 5 C. & P. 488.

(u) "Issue" means the first delivery of a bill or note complete in form to a person who takes it as a holder; sect. 2.

(x) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 9 (3); Doman v. Dibdin, R. & M. 381.

(y) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 8 (1). This was not so before the Act.

(z) Ib., s. 8 (2). See "bearer" defined by s. 2, supra.

(a) Ib., s. 8 (3).

(b) Ib., s. 8 (4).

(c) Ib., s. (8) 5.

(d) Meyer v. Decroix, (1891) A.C. 520; 61 L.J. Q.B. 205; National Bank v. Silke, (1891) 1 Q.B. 435; 60 L.J. Q.B. 199.

(e) Per Fry, L.J., National Bank v. Silke, (1891) 1 Q.B. 435; 60 L.J. Q.B. 199.

(f) Post, p. 1291. See per Lindley, L.J., National Bank v. Silke, supra.

A bill is negotiated when it is transferred from one person to another in such a manner as to constitute the transferee the holder (g) of the bill (h). A bill payable to bearer is negotiated by delivery (i). A bill payable to order is negotiated by the indorsement of the holder completed by delivery (k). Where the holder of a bill payable to his order transfers it for value without indorsing it, the transfer gives the transferee such title as the transferor had in the bill, and the transferee in addition acquires the right to have the indorsement of the transferor (l). Where any person is under obligation to indorse a bill in a representative capacity, he may indorse the bill in such terms as to negative personal liability (m).

"An indorsement (n), in order to operate as a negotiation, must comply with the following conditions, namely:—(1.) It must be written on the bill itself, and be signed by the indorser. The simple signature of the indorser on the bill, without additional words, is sufficient (o). An indorsement written on an allonge, or on a 'copy' of a bill issued or negotiated in a country where 'copies' are recognized, is deemed to be written on the bill itself. (2.) It must be an indorsement of the entire bill. A partial indorsement, that is to say, an indorsement which purports to transfer to the indorsee a part only of the amount payable, or which purports to transfer the bill to two or more indorsees severally, does not operate as a negotiation of the bill (p). (3.) Where a bill is payable to the order of two or more payees or indorsees who are not partners all must indorse, unless the one indorsing has authority to indorse for the others. (4.) Where, in a bill payable to order, the payee or indorsee is wrongly designated, or his name is misspelt, he may indorse the bill as therein described, adding, if he think fit, his proper signature. (5.) Where there are two or more indorsements on a bill, each indorsement is deemed to have

(g) "Holder" means the payee or indorsee of a bill or note who is in possession of it, or the bearer thereof; sect. 2.

(h) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 31 (1).

(i) Ib., s. 31 (2). See "bearer" and "delivery" defined by s. 2, supra.

(k) Ib., s. 31 (3). As to the nature of negotiation, see the remarks of Lord Blackburn in Crouch v. Crédit Foncier, L.R. 8 Q.B. at p. 381; 42 L.J. Q.B. 183.

(l) Ib., s. 31 (4). Per Byles, J., Harrop v. Fisher, 10 C.B. N.S. 196, at p. 203; 30 L.J. C.P. 283; Cunliffe v. Whitehead, 3 Bing. N.C. 828, at p. 830; 6 L.J. C.P. 255; Mowbray, Ex parte, 1 Jac. & W. 428; Edge v. Bumford, 31 Beav. 247; 31 L.J. Ch. 805; Day v. Longhurst, 62 L.J. Ch. 334.

(m) Ib., s. 31 (5). See ib., s. 16 (1), as to indorsements limiting or negativing liability, and sect. 26 as to indorsements in a representative capacity; Good v. Walker, 61 L.J. Q.B. 736.

(n) "Indorsement" means an indorsement completed by delivery; sect. 2.

(o) Richards v. Frankum, 9 C. & P. at p. 225; Mitchell v. Smith, 33 L.J. Ch. 596; Bishop, Ex parte, 15 Ch. D. 400; 50 L.J. Ch. 18; Young v. Glover, 3 Jur. N.S. 637.

(p) See Heilbut v. Nevill, L.R. 4 C.P. at p. 358; 38 L.J. C.P. 373.

been made in the order in which it appears on the bill, until the contrary is proved. (6.) An indorsement may be made in blank or special. It may also contain terms making it restrictive."(q).

If the written order duly stamped is made payable to "bearer," it is transferable by mere delivery (r); so that any bonâ fide holder or bearer of the instrument is entitled to maintain an action upon it in his own name as soon as it becomes payable. If, on the other hand, it is drawn "payable to order," it can only be assigned by indorsement from the payee (s). The indorsement may be written either on the back or the face of the bill (t), and is sometimes an indorsement in full, so called, because the indorser not only writes his own name on the bill, but expresses therein in whose favour the indorsement is made, as "pay the contents to Mr. A. B." and sometimes an indorsement in blank, when the name of the indorser himself alone appears upon the instrument, no mention being made of the indorsee. In the first case the indorsee can only transfer his interest in the bill by his own indorsement in writing; but, in the second, he can transfer it by delivery only, so that any subsequent bonâ fide holder may treat the first indorsement in blank as a direct indorsement to himself, and bring an action in his own name upon the instrument; and this he might formerly do notwithstanding subsequent indorsements in full had been made thereon (u); but this appears to have been altered, for by sect. 8 (3) (x) of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, a bill is payable to "bearer" which is expressed to be so payable, or on which the only or last indorsement is an indorsement in blank. Any number of persons, too, whether partners or not, may, it seems, join in suing upon a bill indorsed in blank (y).

The bill may be indorsed before the day that it bears date (z) and before acceptance, and whilst the date and the amount for which it is drawn are left in blank (a); and the acceptance and indorsement may be made before the bill is drawn; and a bill drawn and issued in blank for the name of the payee may, under certain circumstances, be filled up by a bonâ fide holder with his own name, and will bind the drawer(b).

(q) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 32.

(r) Gibson v. Minet, 1 H. Bl. 606. As to completion by delivery, see sect. 21, post, p. 1252.

(s) See Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, s. 31, post; Edge v. Bumford, 31 Beav. 247; 31 L.J. Ch. 805.

(t) Young v. Glover, 3 Jur. N.S. 637.

(u) Fairclough v. Pavia, 9 Exch. 695; 23 L.J. Ex. 215; Wookey v. Pole, 4 B. & Ald. 1, 9.

(x) Ante, p. 1246.

(y) Attwood v. Rattenbury, 6 Moore, 579; Ord v. Portal, 3 Campb. 239; Lowe v. Copestake, 3 C. & P. 300.

(z) Passmore v. North, 13 East, 517.

(a) Snaith v. Mingay, 1 M. & S. 87.

(b) Schultz v. Astley, 2 Bing. N.C.

So it has been held that where a bill is accepted in blank, and is afterwards filled in with the name of a drawer and indorser the acceptor cannot, as against a bonâ fide indorsee for value without notice of irregularity adduce evidence to show that either the drawing or indorsement is a forgery (c). If the indorsement is made before the bill has been filled up for any specific sum, the indorser may become liable to subsequent indorsees or holders to any amount warranted by the stamp. The indorsement is a letter of credit for an indefinite sum (d). If the payee of a bill or money order, not negotiable, indorses it, he is liable on his indorsement to his indorsee (e). The indorsee may treat the indorser as the drawer of a new bill, or as the indorser of the old bill; but he cannot treat him as both (f).

Inchoate bills.—Where a simple signature on a blank stamped paper is delivered by the signer in order that it may be converted into a bill, it operates as a primâ facie authority to fill it up as a complete bill for any amount the stamp will cover, using the signature for that of the drawer, or the acceptor, or an indorser; and, in like manner, when a bill is wanting in any material particular, the person in possession of it has a primâ facie authority to fill up the omission in any way he thinks fit (g). In order that any such instrument when completed may be enforceable against any person who became a party thereto prior to its completion, it must be filled up within a reasonable time, and strictly in accordance with the authority given (h). Reasonable time for this purpose is a question of fact (h). Provided that if any such instrument after completion is negotiated to a holder in due course, it shall be valid and effectual for all purposes in his hands, and he may enforce it as if it had been filled up within a reasonable time and strictly in accordance with the authority given (h). Where a defendant in an action brought by the payees of a promissory note against him, as maker of the note, had signed his name on a blank stamped piece of paper, and had entrusted the paper to another person with authority to fill it up as a promissory note for a certain sum payable to the plaintiffs, and deliver it to the 544; 5 L.J. C.P. 130; Cruchley v. Clarance, 2 M. & S. 90; Crutchley v. Mann, 5 Taunt. 529.

(c) London and S.W. Bank v. Wentworth, 5 Ex.D. 96; 49 L.J. Ex. 657; and see Hogarth v. Latham, 3 Q.B.D. 643; 47 L.J. Q.B. 339; contra, where notice of irregularity.

(d) Russell v. Langstaffe, 2 Doug. 515, a.; Hatch v. Searles, 2 Sm. & Giff. 147; 24 L.J. Ch. 22. See sect. 20, infra.

(e) Hill v. Lewis, 1 Salk. 132.

(f) Burmester v. Hogarth, 11 M. & W. 101; 12 L.J. Ex. 178.

(g) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 20 (1). Glenie v. Tucker, 77 L.J. K.B. 193; (1908) 1 K.B. 263.

(h) Ib., s. 20 (2). See also sect. 36, post, p. 1260. Crutchley v. Mann, 5 Taunt. 529; Carter v. White, 25 Ch.D. 666; 54 L.J. Ch. 138.

plaintiffs as security for an advance to be made by them, and that person had fraudulently filled the paper up as a promissory note for a larger amount and obtained by means of it an advance of that amount from the plaintiffs, who had no notice of the fraud, it was held by the Court of Appeal that the defendant was estopped from denying the validity of the note as between himself and the plaintiffs, and therefore the action was maintainable against him for the full amount of the note (i). A bill of exchange accepted for valuable consideration with the drawer's name left blank may be completed by the drawer's name being added after the death of the acceptor (k).

Negotiation of bill to party already liable thereon.—Where a bill is negotiated back to the drawer, or to a prior indorser or to the acceptor, such party may, subject to the provisions of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (l), re-issue and further negotiate the bill, but he is not entitled to enforce payment of the bill against any intervening party to whom he was previously liable (m).

Payment in due course.—A bill is discharged by payment in due course by or on behalf of the drawee or acceptor. "Payment in due course" means payment made at or after the maturity of the bill to the holder thereof in good faith and without notice that his title to the bill is defective (n). Subject to the provisions hereinafter contained, when a bill is paid by the drawer or an indorser it is not discharged; but (a) Where a bill payable to, or to the order of, a third party is paid by the drawer, the drawer may enforce payment thereof against the acceptor, but may not re-issue the bill. (b) Where a bill is paid by an indorser, or where a bill payable to drawer's order is paid by the drawer, the party paying it is remitted to his former rights as regards the acceptor or antecedent parties, and he may, if he thinks fit, strike out his own and subsequent indorsements, and again negotiate the bill (o). Where an accommodation bill is paid in due course by the party accommodated the bill is discharged (p).

(i) Lloyd's Bank, Ltd. v. Cooke, (1907) 1 K.B. 794; 76 L.J. K.B. 666, doubting and distinguishing; Herdman v. Wheeler, (1902) 1 K.B. 361; 71 L.J. K.B. 270. But see Smith v. Prosser, 77 L.J. K.B. 71; (1907) 2 K.B. 735.

(k) Carter v. White, 25 Ch.D. 666; 54 L.J. Ch. 138.

(l) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61.

(m) Attenborough v. Mackenzie, 25 L.J. Ex. 244; Wilkinson v. Unwin, 7 Q.B.D. 636; 50 L.J. Q.B. 338; Glenie v. Tucker, 77 L.J. K.B. 193; (1908) 1 K.B. 263.

(n) 45 & Vict. c. 61, s. 59 (1). See Harmer v. Steele, 4 Ex. at p. 14; 19 L.J. Ex. 34; Deacon v. Stodhart, 2 M. & G. 317; Glasscock v. Balls, 24 Q.B.D. 13; 59 L.J. Q.B. 51; Imperial Bank of Canada v. Bank of Hamilton, (1903) A.C. 49; 72 L.J. P.C. 1.

(o) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 59 (2).

(p) Ib., s. 59 (3). See Lazarus v. Cowie, 3 Q.B. 465; 11 L.J. Q.B. 310; Burbridge v. Manners, 3 Campb. 193; Attenborough v. Mackenzie, 25 L.J. Ex.

Restrictive indorsements.—The negotiability of the bill may be limited and restrained by the express terms of the indorsement.

"The drawer of a bill and any indorser may insert therein the name of a person to whom the holder may resort in case of need, that is to say, in case the bill is dishonoured by non-acceptance or non-payment. Such person is called the referee in case of need. It is in the option of the holder to resort to the referee in case of need or not as he may think fit" (q). The drawer of a bill, and any indorser, may insert therein an express stipulation—(1.) Negativing or limiting his own liability to the holder: (2.) Waiving as regards himself some or all of the holder's duties (r). Where a bill purports to be indorsed conditionally the condition may be disregarded by the payer, and payment to the indorsee is valid whether the condition has been fulfilled or not (s).

An indorsement in blank specifies no indorsee, and a bill so indorsed becomes payable to bearer (t). A special indorsement specifies the person to whom, or to whose order, the bill is to be payable (u). The provisions of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (x), relating to a payee (y) apply with the necessary modifications to an indorsee under a special indorsement (z). When a bill has been indorsed in blank, any holder may convert the blank indorsement into a special indorsement by writing above the indorser's signature a direction to pay the bill to or to the order of himself or some other person (a). An indorsement is restrictive which prohibits the further negotiation of the bill or which expresses that it is a mere authority to deal with the bill as thereby directed and not a transfer of the ownership thereof, as, for example, if a bill be indorsed "pay D. only," or "pay D. for the account of X.," or "pay D. or order for collection" (b). A restrictive indorsement gives the indorsee the right to receive payment of the bill, and to sue any party 244; Morley v. Culverwell, 7 M. & W. 182; 10 L.J. Ex. 35.

(q) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 15. This provision is new. The referee in case of need is sometimes called the drawee in case of need, or simply the "case of need." A bill must be protested or noted for protest before it can be presented to the case of need; see ib., ss. 65, 67, 68.

(r) Ib., s. 16.

(s) This effects an alteration in the law.

(t) Ib., s. 34 (1). By sect. 31 (2), a bill payable to bearer is negotiated by delivery.

(u) Ib., s. 34 (2). Soares v. Glyn, 8 Q.B. 24. See ib., s. 8 (5). A bill specially indorsed is payable to the indorsee therein designated, and can only be negotiated by his indorsement. Under sect. 8 (3), a special indorsement following an indorsement in blank controls the effect of the indorsement in blank.

(x) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61.

(y) See sects. 7, 8 as to payee.

(z) Ib., s. 34 (3).

(a) Ib., s. 34 (4). See Vincent v. Horlock, 1 Campb. 442; Wilkinson v. Johnston, 3 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 58; 3 B. & C. 428.

(b) Ib., s. 35 (1).

thereto that his indorser could have sued, but gives him no power to transfer his rights as indorsee unless it expressly authorize him to do so (c). Where a restrictive indorsement authorizes further transfer, all subsequent indorsees take the bill with the same rights and subject to the same liabilities as the first indorsee under the restrictive indorsement (d).

If the indorsement is accompanied by a notification that "the within must be credited to A.," or a direction "to pay A. for my use," every indorsee and subsequent holder has notice of the direction, and holds the bill, or the money he receives upon it, as the trustee of the restraining party (e). But an indorsement, "Pay J. S., or order, value in account with H. C. D.," was held not restrictive (f).

A bill on which the only or last indorsement is an indorsement in blank is a bill payable to bearer, so that if a bill had two indorsements on it, the first being in blank, but the second to a named indorsee, it would not be payable to bearer (g).

A partial indorsement, that is to say, an indorsement which purports to transfer to the indorsee a part only of the amount payable, or which purports to transfer the bill to two or more indorsees severally, does not operate as a negotiation of the bill (h). And, if the bill be indorsed for part only of the amount, and the limitation do not appear upon the face of the indorsement, the indorsee may sue for the whole sum due upon the bill, and will be a trustee of the surplus for the indorser (i).

Completion of contract by delivery.—By the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, sect. 21, "(1.) Every contract on a bill, whether it be the drawer's, the acceptor's, or an indorser's, is incomplete and revocable, until delivery (k) of the instrument in order to give effect thereto (l). Provided that where an acceptance is written on a bill, and the drawee gives notice to or according to the directions of the person entitled to the bill that he has accepted it, the acceptance then becomes complete and irrevocable (l). As between immediate parties, and as regards

(c) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 35 (2). See Lloyd v. Sigourney, 5 Bing. at p. 532; Williams, Deacon & Co. v. Shadbolt, 1 C. & B. 529, per Case, J.

(d) Ib., s. 35 (3).

(e) Lloyd v. Sigourney, 5 Bing. 525; 3 M. & P. 239; Sigourney v. Lloyd, 8 B. & C. 622; 7 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 73.

(f) Buckley v. Jackson, L.R. 3 Ex. 135.

(g) See 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 8 (3).

(h) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 32 (2). Hawkins v. Cardy, 1 Ld. Raym. 360.

(i) Reid v. Furnival, 1 Cr. & M. 538; 2 L.J. (O.S.) Ex. 199; Newton, Ex parte, 16 Ch.D. 330; 50 L.J. Ch. 484.

(k) "Delivery" means transfer of possession, actual or constructive, from one person to another. See sect. 2, and Clutton v. Attenborough, (1897) A.C. 90; 66 L.J. Q.B. 221.

(l) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 21 (1). Cox v. Troy, 5 B. & Ald. 474; Richards, In re, 36 Ch.D. 541; 56 L.J. Ch. 923; criticised, Whitaker, In re, 42 Ch. D. 119, at p. 125; 58 L.J. Ch. 487.

a remote party other than a holder in due course (m), the delivery—(a) In order to be effectual must be made either by or under the authority of the party drawing, accepting, or indorsing, as the case may be: (b) May be shown to have been conditional or for a special purpose only, and not for the purpose of transferring the property in the bill (n). But if the bill be in the hands of a holder in due course a valid delivery of the bill by all parties prior to him so as to make them liable to him is conclusively presumed (n). Where a bill is no longer in the possession of a party who has signed it as drawer, acceptor, or indorser, a valid and unconditional delivery by him is presumed until the contrary is proved" (o).

In order to constitute a valid indorsement of a bill of exchange as against the indorser, there must be a writing of the name of the holder, and a manual delivery to him of the bill with the intention, not only to pass the property in it, but to guarantee the payment if the acceptor makes default; and evidence of facts showing the absence of this intention is admissible under a traverse of the indorsement (p). There is no indorsement if the holder merely writes on the bill a direction to pay it to another person, and the other person gets possession of the bill without the holder's consent. Nor is there any indorsement, as between the indorser and his immediate indorsee, though the holder gives that person possession of the bill, if the delivery be merely for a collateral purpose, and without the intention to make him the transferee of the property in the bill (q), or with the intention only of making him indorsee and owner of the bill on the performance of certain terms and conditions (r). Where a testator wrote his name on the back of a bill payable to his order, and kept the bill in his possession, and his executrix after his death delivered the instrument to the plaintiffs without indorsing it, it was held that the writing of his name by the deceased, and the delivery by the executrix, would not together constitute an indorsement of the note, and that the party to whom it was delivered had consequently no right to sue upon it (s). If the indorsement is intended to constitute a testamentary gift, it must be authenticated as such (t).

(m) See "holder in due course," defined by sect. 29.

(n) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 21 (2). Bromage v. Lloyd, 1 Ex. 132; 15 L.J Ex. 257; Whitaker, In re, supra; Bell v. Ingestre (Lord), 12 Q.B. 317, at p. 319; 19 L.J. Q.B. 71.

(o) Ib., s. 21 (3).

(p) Denton v. Peters, L.R., 5 Q. B 475.

(q) Lloyd v. Howard, 15 Q.B.. 997; 20 L.J. Q.B. 1; Attenborough v. Clarke, 27 L.J. Ex. 138.

(r) Bell v. Ingestre (Lord), 12 Q. B. 317; 19 L.J. Q.B. 71; Castrique v. Buttigieg, 10 Moore, P.C. 109.

(s) Bromage v. Lloyd, 1 Exch. 32; 16 L.J. Ex. 257.

(t) Mitchell v. Smith, 33 L.J. Ch. 596

But if the party to whose order the bill is payable writes his name on the back of the bill, and hands it over to another, who delivers it to a third person for value, that is an indorsement from the holder to such third person, and constitutes the latter the absolute owner of the bill. Where the drawer of a bill wrote his name on the back of it, and delivered it to a party to get it discounted, and the latter pledged the bill with a pawnbroker, and appropriated the money he received on the deposit of the bill to his own use, it was held that there was a valid indorsement of the bill from the drawer to the pawnbroker(u). One who receives a bill of exchange (payable to order) unindorsed, acquires no better title under it than that which the person from whom he receives it had. Therefore, where A. had fraudulently obtained a bill from B. and handed it to C., in satisfaction of a bonâ fide debt, but without indorsing it, it was held that C. could not acquire a legal title to sue by obtaining A.'s indorsement after he had received notice of the fraud (x). But a transferee of an indorsed bill of exchange has all the rights of a holder for value, if it has been handed to him on account of a pre-existing debt, and is not affected by any infirmity of title in the transferor (y). When the drawer or party to whose order the bill is payable has written his name on the back of the bill, and handed the bill over in the ordinary course of transfer, it is afterwards transferable, as previously mentioned, from hand to hand, by mere delivery; and the consideration for each successive transfer cannot be inquired into, unless the bill has been stolen or obtained by misrepresentation or fraud. Any holder, therefore, who does not wish to sue in his own name on the bill may hand the bill over to another party, in order that the latter may sue upon it for him as his trustee (z). But the bill must be handed over prior to the commencement of the action; for, where the holder of a bill indorsed in blank, being unwilling to sue upon it himself, procured the plaintiff, who had no interest in the bill, to sue upon it, and handed the bill to the plaintiff after the commencement of the action, that the latter might produce it in court, it was held that the plaintiff was not entitled to recover upon it, as he was not the holder of the bill at the time he brought his action (a). If, however, the bill has been indorsed and (u) Barber v. Richards, 6 Exch. 63; 20 L.J. Ex. 135.

(x) Whistler v. Forster, 14 C.B. N.S. 248; 32 L.J. Ch. 161. See sect. 31 (4) of the Act, ante, p. 1247.

(y) Belshaw v. Bush, 11 C.B. 191; 24 L.J. C.P. 81; Misa v. Currie, 1 App. Cas. 554; 45 L.J. Ex. 852. See sect. 27 of the Act, post, p. 1257.

(z) Oulds v. Harrison, 10 Exch. 579; 24 L.J. Ex. 69; Law v. Parnell, 7 C.B. N.S. 282; 29 L.J. C.P. 17.

(a) Emmett v. Tottenham, 8 Exch. 884; 22 L.J. Ex. 281. By sect. 2 of the delivered to some person professing to act as the plaintiff's agent, although without his knowledge, and the plaintiff adopts the acts of the assumed agent, that is sufficient to entitle him to recover, although the action has been commenced in the plaintiff's name without his knowledge, and before the adoption (b).

Holder in due course.—A holder in due course is a holder (c) who has taken a bill, complete and regular on the face of it, under the following conditions; namely, (a) That he became the holder of it before it was overdue, and without notice that it had been previously dishonoured, if such was the fact: (b) That he took the bill in good faith (d) and for value (e), and that at the time the bill was negotiated to him (f) he had no notice of any defect in the title of the person who negotiated it (g).

In particular the title of a person who negotiates a bill is defective within the meaning of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, when he obtained the bill, or the acceptance thereof, by fraud, duress, or force and fear, or other unlawful means, or for an illegal consideration, or when he negotiates it in breach of faith, or under such circumstances as amount to a fraud (h).

A holder (whether for value or not) who derives his title to a bill through a holder in due course, and who is not himself a party to any fraud or illegality affecting it, has all the rights of that holder in due course as regards the acceptor and all parties to the bill prior to that holder (i).

Intermediate infirmities of title.—A bonâ fide holder for value is not affected by an intermediate fraud or infirmity of title of which he had no knowledge or notice at the time he advanced his money on the credit and security of the bill of which he is the holder. Therefore, if a bill of exchange, indorsed generally, and handed over by a person competent to indorse it, is afterwards stolen, and the thief delivers it for value to a party who Act, the word "holder" means the payee or indorsee of a bill or note who is in possession of it, or the bearer thereof.

(b) Ancona v. Marks, 7 H. & N. 686; 31 L.J. Ex. 163.

(c) For definition of "holder," see sect. 2.

(d) See ante, note (m), p. 1245.

(e) See post, sect. 27, p. 1257.

(f) Lewis v. Clay, 67 L.J. Q.B. 224.

(g) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 29 (1); Whistler v. Forster, 14 C.B. N.S. 248, at p. 258; 32 L.J. C.P. 161, at p. 163; M'Lean v. Clydesdale Bank, 9 App.Cas. at p. 114; London and County Bank v. London and River Plate Bank, 21 Q.B.D. 535; 57 L.J. Q.B. 601; cp. London Joint Stock Bank v. Simmons, (1892) A.C. 201; 61 L.J. Ch. 723; Lloyd's Bank v. Cooke, (1907) 1 K.B. 794; 76 L.J. K.B. 666.

(h) Ib., s. 29 (2).

(i) Ib., s. 29 (3); May v. Chapman, 16 M. & W. at p. 361; Masters v. Ibberson, 8 C.B. 100; 18 L.J. C.P. 348. By sect. 30, every signing party is presumed to have given value, and every holder a holder in due course until the contrary is shown, when the burden of proof is shifted, unless the holder proves that subsequently to the alleged defect value has in good faith been given for the bill.

receives it without notice of the theft, the latter has full authority to negotiate the bill or sue upon it(k). Every person having possession of a bill of exchange has, notwithstanding any fraud on his part, either in acquiring or transferring it, full authority to transfer such bill, but with this limitation, that to make such transfer valid there must be a delivery, either by him or some subsequent holder of the bill, to some one who receives such bill bonâ fide and for value, and who is either himself the holder of it or a person through whom the holder claims (l).

Rights of holder.—The rights and powers of the holder of a bill are as follows:—(1.) He may sue on the bill in his own name (m); (2.) Where he is a holder in due course (n), he holds the bill free from any defect of title of prior parties, as well as from mere personal defences available to prior parties among themselves, and may enforce payment against all parties liable on the bill (o); (3.) Where his title is defective (a) if he negotiates the bill to a holder in due course, that holder obtains a good and complete title to the bill, and (b) if he obtains payment of the bill the person who pays him in due course gets a valid discharge for the bill (p).

When holder bound to prove he gave value for bill.—When a bill of exchange is made payable to order, and is indorsed generally by the drawer, the indorsement is, as we have seen, tantamount to an order to pay the bill to the bearer or holder, so that the mere production of such a bill by a party in possession of it is primâ facie evidence that he is a bonâ fide indorsee and holder of the bill; but this presumption of ownership and title arising from possession may be rebutted by proof that the bill had been lost by, or improperly obtained from, the owner (q), or that the acceptance is a forgery (r); and such evidence, if given, throws upon the holder the onus of proving that he gave value for the bill.

(k) Peacock v. Rhodes, 2 Doug. 634; Raphael v. Bank of England, 17 C.B. 173; 25 L.J. C.P. 33.

(l) Alderson, B., Marston v. Allen, 8 M. & W. 494; 11 L.J. Ex. 126; Watson v. Russell, 3 B. & S. 34; 31 L.J. Q.B. 304. See sect. 29 of the Act, ante, p. 1255.

(m) See R. S. C., Ord. XVI., r. 5; and as to inferior Courts, 18 & 19 Vict. c. 67, s. 6; Jones v. Broadhurst, 9 C.B. 173; Agra Bank v. Leighton, L.R. 2 Ex. 56, at pp. 63—66; 36 L.J. Ex. 33; Law v. Parnell, 7 C.B. N.S. 282; 29 L.J. C.P. 17; Thornton v. Maynard, L.R. 10 C.P. 695; 44 L.J. C.P. 382; Davis v. Reilly, (1898) 1 Q.B. 1; 66 L.J. Q.B. 844; followed in Debtor, In re, (1908) 1 K.B. 344, 349; 77 L.J. K.B. 409.

(n) This section must be read in connection with sect. 29, ante, p. 1255.

(o) See Crouch v. Crédit Foncier of England, L.R. 8 Q.B. at pp. 380—382; 42 L.J. Q.B. 183.

(p) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 38; Marston v. Allen, 8 M. & W. at p. 504; 11 L.J. Ex. 126. See this section in Addison on Torts, 540 (ed. 7).

(q) Bulkeley v. Butler, 2 B. & C. 446.

(r) Mather v. Maidstone (Ld.), 26 L.J. C.P. 58; 1 C.B. N.S. 273.

Every party whose signature appears on a bill is primâ facie deemed to have become a party thereto for value (s). Every holder of a bill is primâ facie deemed to be a holder in due course; but if in an action on a bill it is admitted or proved (t) that the acceptance, issue, or subsequent negotiation of the bill is affected with fraud, duress, or force and fear, or illegality, the burden of proof is shifted, unless and until the holder proves that, subsequent to the alleged fraud or illegality, value has in good faith been given for the bill (u).

Wherever the bill is proved to have been illegal or fraudulent in its inception, or where the immediate indorser to the plaintiff is shown to have obtained possession of it by fraud, the plaintiff may be called upon for proof that he gave value for the bill, and took it without notice of the illegality or fraud; and, if such proof is not forthcoming, the plaintiff may be prevented from recovering upon the instrument (x).

What is valuable consideration.—By the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, sect. 27, "(1.) Valuable consideration for a bill may be constituted by,—(a) Any consideration sufficient to support a simple contract (y); (b) An antecedent debt or liability, and such a debt or liability is deemed valuable (z) consideration whether the bill is payable on demand or at a future time (a). Where value (b) has at any time been given for a bill the holder is deemed to be a holder for value as regards the acceptor and

(s) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 30 (1). See this section in Addison on Torts, 540 (ed. 7).

(t) The words "if it is admitted or proved" in sub-sect. 2 mean no more than that some evidence of circumstances in the nature of fraud must be given sufficient to be left to the jury; the onus then lies upon the plaintiff to prove that he acted in good faith, which by sect. 90 is interpreted to mean that the thing done was in fact done honestly, whether negligently or not: Tatham v. Haslar, 23 Q.B.D. 345; 58 L.J. Q.B. 432; London and County Bank v. London and River Plate Bank, 21 Q.B.D. 535; 57 L.J. Q.B. 601.

(u) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 30 (2). As to forgery of signature, see sect. 24, infra, p. 1259.

(x) Hall v. Featherstone, 3 H. & N. 284; 27 L.J. Ex. 308; Mather v. Maidstone (Ld.), 1 C.B. N.S. 273; 26 L.J. C.P. 58; Smith v. Braine, 16 Q.B. 244; 20 L.J. Q.B. 201; Berry v. Alderman, 14 C.B. 95; 23 L.J. C.P. 34; Harvey v. Towers, 6 Exch. 656; 20 L.J. Ex. 318; Paterson v. Hardacre, 4 Taunt. 114; Hogg v. Skeen, 18 C.B. N.S. 426; 34 L.J. C.P. 153; Fitch v. Jones, 5 E. & B. 245; 24 L.J. Q.B. 293.

(y) Richdale, Ex parte, 19 Ch.D. 409; 51 L.J. Ch. 462; Royal Bank of Scotland v. Tottenham, (1894) 2 Q.B. 715; 64 L.J. Q.B. 99; Rose v. Sims, 1 B. & Ad. 521, at p. 526; 9 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 85; Balfour v. Sea Assur. Co., 3 C.B. N.S. 300; 27 L.J. C.P. 17; Crears v. Hunter, 19 Q.B.D. 341; 56 L.J. Q.B. 518; Martingell, Ex parte, Browne, In re, (1904) 2 K.B. 133; 73 L.J. K.B. 446; cp. Hyams v. Stuart King, (1908) 2 K.B. 696; 77 L.J. K.B. 794.

(z) Valuable consideration has been defined as "some right, interest, profit, or benefit accruing to the one party, or some forbearance, detriment, loss, or responsibility given, suffered, or undertaken by the other": per Lush, J., Currie v. Misa, L.R. 10 Ex. at p. 162; 44 L.J. Ex. 94; and cp. per Bowen, L.J., Carlill v. Carbolic Co., (1893) 1 Q.B. at pp. 271, 272; 62 L.J. Q.B. at p. 264.

(a) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 27 (1); Poirier v. Morris, 2 E. & B. 89; 22 L.J. Q.B. 313; Currie v. Misa, L.R. 10 Ex. 153; 44 L.J. Ex. 94; approved in Fleming v. Bank of New Zealand, (1900) A.C. 577, at p. 586; 69 L.J. P.C. 120.

(b) "Value" means "valuable consideration": sect. 2.

all parties to the bill who became parties prior to such time (c). Where the holder of a bill has a lien on it, arising either from contract or by implication of law, he is deemed to be a holder for value to the extent of the sum for which he has a lien" (d). A banker's lien on negotiable securities is "an implied pledge" (e). a banker has, in the absence of agreement to the contrary, a lien on all bills received from a customer in the ordinary course of banking business in respect of any balance that may be due from such customer (f). If the banker knows that the bills do not belong to his customer no lien can attach (g).

Proof of want of consideration.—A bill or note, given in consideration of what is supposed to be a debt, is without consideration, if it appears that there was either a mistake in law (h) or in fact (i) as to the existence of the debt, and there has been no indorsement or transfer of the instrument for value.

Fraudulent transfers and indorsements.—If the acceptance or indorsement has been fraudulently made, and the plaintiff is a party to the fraud, or takes the bill with full knowledge of the fraud and of the infirmity of the title of his assignor, he cannot, as we have seen (k), sue upon the bill, although he has given full value for it; but an innocent indorsee, who has received the bill, and given value for it, without notice of the fraud, may, it seems, transfer his title and right of action to a person who has knowledge of the original fraud, but is no party thereto. The latter may purchase the title and interest of the innocent indorsee, and so obtain a right of action upon the instrument (l). If a person holds the bill for a specific purpose, as for the benefit of the drawer or acceptor, and indorses the bill over in breach of the trust reposed in him, the indorsee cannot, if he has notice of the trust at the time of the indorsement, acquire any better right or title to the bill than the indorser had; for by taking the bill under such circumstances he makes himself a party to a fraud (m). If the holder is a mere agent, he will be affected with the infirmity of the title of his principal, and cannot have a better right upon the bill than his principal

(c) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 27 (2); Hunter v. Wilson, 4 Exch. 489; 19 L.J. Ex. 8; Watson v. Russell, 3 B. & S. 34; 31 L.J. Q.B. 304; cp. Comber v. Leyland, (1898) A.C. 524, at pp. 530, 531; 67 L.J. Q.B. 884.

(d) Ib., s. 27 (3); Newton, Ex parte, 16 Ch.D. 330; 50 L.J. Ch. 484.

(e) Brandao v. Barnett, 3 C.B. at p. 531.

(f) Ib., London Chartered Bank of Australasia v. White, 4 App.Cas. 413; 48 L.J. P.C. 75.

(g) Kingston, Ex parte, L.R. 6 Ch. 632; 40 L.J. Bankr. 91.

(h) Southall v. Rigg, 11 C.B. 481; 20 L.J. C.P. 145.

(i) Bell v. Gardiner, 4 M. & Gr. 11; 11 L.J. C.P. 195. But see Cook v. Wright, 30 L.J. Q.B. 321; 1 B. & S. 559, ante, p. 11.

(k) Sects. 29, 30, ante, pp. 1255, 1257.

(l) May v. Chapman, 16 M. & W. 355, 360.

(m) Evans v. Kymer, 1 B. & Ad. 528 9 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 92.

has (n). If a bill obtained by fraud is handed over, without indorsement, to an innocent holder for value, and the indorsement is not made until after the holder becomes cognizant of the fraud, he cannot sue upon the bill (o). If the party at the time of signing the bill is, without negligence on his part, misled as to the nature and contents of the document which he is signing, his signature will be of no force; for his mind does not go with the signature, and it is in the view of the law no signature at all, and a bonâ fide holder for value cannot recover against a person who has signed under such circumstances (p).

Forged indorsement.—When a bill payable to order on demand is drawn on a banker (q), and the banker on whom it is drawn pays the bill in good faith and in the ordinary course of business, it is not incumbent on the banker to show that the indorsement of the payee or any subsequent indorsement was made by or under the authority of the person whose indorsement it purports to be, and the banker is deemed to have paid the bill in due course (r), although such indorsement has been forged or made without authority (s). This section constitutes an exception to sect. 24 of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (t), which provides that:—"Subject to the provisions of this Act, where a signature on a bill is forged or placed thereon without the authority of the person whose signature it purports to be, the forged or unauthorized signature is wholly inoperative, and no right to retain the bill or to give a discharge therefor or to enforce payment thereof against any party thereto can be acquired through or under that signature, unless the party against whom it is sought to retain or enforce payment of the bill is precluded from setting up the forgery or want of authority; provided that nothing in this section shall affect the ratification of an unauthorized signature not amounting to a forgery." Sect. 60 does not protect the banker when the drawer's signature has been forged (u).

(n) Solomons v. Bank of England, 13 East, 136.

(o) Whistler v. Forster, 14 C.B. N.S. 255; 32 L.J. C.P. 161.

(p) Foster v. Mackinnon, L.R. 4 C.P. 704; 38 L.J. C.P. 310; Lewis v. Clay, 67 L.J. Q.B. 224.

(q) "Banker" includes a body of persons, whether incorporated or not, who carry on the business of banking: sect. 2.

(r) As to payment in due course, see sect. 59 (1), ante, p. 1250.

(s) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 60; Charles v. Blackwell, 2 C.P.D. 151; 46 L.J. C.P. 368; cp. Bissell v. Fox, 53 L.T. 193; Smith v. Union Bank of London, L.R. 10 Q.B. 291, at p. 296; 44 L.J. Q.B. 117; 1 Q.B.D. 31; 45 L.J. Q.B. 149. A banker's draft by one branch of a bank on another is not within this section: Gordon v. London, City and Midland Bank, (1902) 1 K.B. 243; 71 L.J. K.B. 215.

(t) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 24. See Embiricos v. Anglo-Austrian Bank, (1905) 1 K.B. 677; 74 L.J. K.B. 326. This section does not apply to indorsements abroad.

(u) See Orr v. Union Bank, 1 Macq. H.L. Cas. 513.

Accommodation bills.—An accommodation party to a bill is a person who has signed a bill as drawer, acceptor, or indorser, without receiving value therefor, and for the purpose of lending his name to some other person (x). An accommodation party is liable on the bill to a holder for value; and it is immaterial whether, when such holder took the bill, he knew such party to be an accommodation party or not (y).

Where the bill has been accepted for the accommodation of the drawer without any consideration or value for the acceptance, and that was known to the indorsee at the time he took the bill, and the indorsee paid only part of the amount for which the bill was drawn, he can only recover the sum he actually paid for the bill (z). So, if part of the money due on the bill has been paid by the drawer, the holder can only recover the balance from the acceptor (a).

Indorsement of bills overdue.—Where a bill is negotiable in its origin it continues to be negotiable until it has been (a) restrictively indorsed (b) or (b) discharged by payment or otherwise (c). Where an overdue bill is negotiated, it can only be negotiated subject to any defect of title affecting it at its maturity, and thenceforward no person who takes it can acquire or give a better title than that which the person from whom he took it had (d). A bill payable on demand is deemed to be overdue within the meaning and for the purposes of this section, when it appears on the face of it to have been in circulation for an unreasonable length of time. What is an unreasonable length of time for this purpose is a question of fact (e). Except where an indorsement bears date after the maturity of the bill, every negotiation is primâ facie deemed to have been effected before the bill was overdue (f). Where a bill which is not overdue has been dishonoured any person who takes it with notice of the dishonour takes it subject to any defect of title attaching thereto at the time of dishonour, but nothing in this sub-section shall affect the rights of a holder in due course (g).

Whenever the bill is due at the time of the indorsement, it

(x) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 28 (1).

(y) Ib., s. 28 (2). As to accommodation bills, see further, sect. 46, post, p. 1269, sect. 50 (d).

(z) Wiffen v. Roberts, 1 Esp. 259. See sect. 38 of the Act, ante, p. 1256.

(a) Cook v. Lister, 13 C.B. N.S. 543; 32 L.J. C.P. 121.

(b) See sect. 35, ante, p. 1251.

(c) Ib., s. 36 (1). See sects. 59–64 as to discharges, and sect. 35 (2) as to restrictive indorsements.

(d) Ib., s. 36 (2). Lloyd v. Howard, 15 Q.B. 995; 20 L.J. Q.B. 1; Holmes v. Kidd, 3 H. & N. 801; 28 L.J. Ex. 112; see Alcock v. Smith, (1892) 1 Ch. 238; 61 L.J. Ch. 161.

(e) Ib., s. 36 (3); sub-sect. (3) effects an alteration in the law. See Serrel v. Derbyshire Ry. Co., 9 C.B. 811; 19 L.J. C.P. 371; Hughes, Ex parte, 43 L.T. 577.

(f) Ib., s. 36 (4).

(g) Ib., s. 36 (5). See sect. 29, ante p. 1255.

comes disgraced to the indorsee, and it is his duty to make inquiries concerning it. If he takes it, though he gives a full consideration for it, he takes it on the credit of the indorser, and subject to all the infirmities with which it may be incumbered in his hands (h). But the indorsee does not take it subject to claims arising out of collateral matters, such as the statutory right of set-off, which is merely a mode of preventing multiplicity of actions between the same parties (i). Where a bill is accepted or indorsed when it is overdue, it shall, as regards the acceptor who so accepts, or any indorser who so indorses it, be deemed a bill payable on demand (k).

Presentment for acceptance.—The acceptance (l) of a bill is the signification by the drawee of his assent to the order of the drawer (m). An acceptance is invalid unless it complies with the following conditions, namely: (a) It must be written on the bill and be signed by the drawee. The mere signature of the drawee without additional words is sufficient. (b) It must not express that the drawee will perform his promise by any other means than the payment of money (n). "A bill may be accepted—(1.) Before it has been signed by the drawer, or while otherwise incomplete: (2.) When it is overdue, or after it has been dishonoured by a previous refusal to accept, or by non-payment: (3.) When a bill payable after sight is dishonoured by non-acceptance, and the drawee subsequently accepts it, the holder, in the absence of any different agreement, is entitled to have the bill accepted as of the date of first presentment to the drawee for acceptance" (o). A document which is a complete bill of exchange in all respects except that of the signature of the drawer, is, when in the hands of the intended drawer, a bill of exchange (p).

General and qualified acceptances.—An acceptance is either (a) general or (b) qualified (q). A general acceptance assents

(h) Crossley v. Ham, 13 East, 503; Burrough v. Moss, 10 B. & C. 558; Lloyd v. Howard, 15 Q.B. 995; 20 L.J. Q.B. 1; Holmes v. Kidd, 3 H. & N. 891; 28 L.J. Ex. 112; Goggerley v. Cuthbert, 2 B. & P. N.R. 170.

(i) Oulds v. Harrison, 10 Exch. 579; 24 L.J. Ex. 69; Overend, Gurney & Co., In re, Swan, Ex parte, L.R. 6 Eq. 358. See also Charles v. Marsden, 1 Taunt. 224; Sturtevant v. Ford, 4 M. & Gr. 101; 11 L.J. C.P. 245; Lazarus v. Cowie, 3 Q.B. 459; 11 L.J. Q.B. 310; Parr v. Jewell, 16 C.B. 684; Carruthers v. West, 17 L.J. Q.B. 4; 11 Q.B. 143. But see Parr v. Jewell, 16 C.B. 684, and sects. 29 (2) and 36 of the Act, pp. 1255, 1260, ante; Deuters v. Townsend, 5 B. & S. 613; 33 L.J. Q.B. 301.

(k) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 10 (2).

(l) "Acceptance" means an acceptance completed by delivery or notification: sect. 2.

(m) Ib., s. 17 (1); Okell v. Charles, 34 L.T. 822.

(n) Ib., s. 17 (2); Young v. Glover, 3 Jur. N.S. 637; Jeune v. Ward, 1 B. & Ald. at p. 660.

(o) Ib., s. 18; sub-sect. (3) effects an alteration in the law.

(p) Reg. v. Bowerman, (1891), 1 Q.B. 112; 60 L.J. M C. 13.

(q) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 19 (1).

without qualification to the order of the drawer (r). A qualified acceptance in express terms varies the effect of the bill as drawn (r). In particular an acceptance is qualified which is—(a) conditional, that is to say, which makes payment by the acceptor dependent on the fulfilment of a condition therein stated: (b) partial, that is to say, an acceptance to pay part only of the amount for which the bill is drawn: (c) local, that is to say, an acceptance to pay only at a particular specified place: An acceptance to pay at a particular place is a general acceptance, unless it expressly states that the bill is to be paid there only and not elsewhere: (d) qualified as to time: (e) the acceptance of some one or more of the drawees, but not of all (r).

When presentment for acceptance is necessary.—Where a bill is payable after sight, presentment for acceptance is necessary in order to fix the maturity of the instrument (s). Where a bill expressly stipulates that it shall be presented for acceptance, or where a bill is drawn payable elsewhere than at the residence or place of business of the drawee it must be presented for acceptance before it can be presented for payment (t). In no other case is presentment for acceptance necessary in order to render liable any party to the bill (u). Where the holder of a bill, drawn payable elsewhere than at the place of business or residence of the drawee, has not time, with the exercise of reasonable diligence, to present the bill for acceptance before presenting it for payment on the day that it falls due, the delay caused by presenting the bill for acceptance before presenting it for payment is excused, and does not discharge the drawer and indorsers (x). Subject to the provisions of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (y), when a bill payable after sight is negotiated, the holder must either present it for acceptance or negotiate it within a reasonable time (z). If he do not do so, the drawer and all indorsers prior to that holder are discharged (a). In determining what is a reasonable time within the meaning of this section, regard shall be had to the nature of the bill, the usages of trade with respect to similar bills, and the facts of the particular case (b).

Rules as to presentment for acceptance.—A bill is duly presented for acceptance which is presented in accordance with the following rules:—(a) The presentment must be made by or on behalf of the holder to the drawee or to some person authorized

(r) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 19 (2).
(s) Ib., s. 39 (1).
(t) Ib., s. 39 (2).
(u) Ib., s. 39 (3).
(x) Ib., s. 39 (4).
(y) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61.
(z) Ib., s. 40 (1).
(a) Ib., s. 40 (2).
(b) Ib., s. 40 (3).

to accept or refuse acceptance on his behalf at a reasonable hour (c) on a business day and before the bill is overdue: (b) Where a bill is addressed to two or more drawees, who are not partners, presentment must be made to them all, unless one has authority to accept for all, then presentment may be made to him only (d): (c) Where the drawee is dead presentment may be made to his personal representative: (d) Where the drawee is bankrupt, presentment may be made to him or to his trustee: (e) Where authorized by agreement or usage, a presentment through the post office is sufficient (e).

Excuses for non-presentment for acceptance.—Presentment in accordance with the preceding rules is excused, and a bill may be treated as dishonoured by non-acceptance—(a) Where the drawee is dead or bankrupt, or is a fictitious (f) person, or a person not having capacity to contract by bill: (b) Where, after the exercise of reasonable diligence, such presentment cannot be effected: (c) Where, although the presentment has been irregular, acceptance has been refused on some other ground (g). The fact that the holder has reason to believe that the bill, on presentment, will be dishonoured does not excuse presentment (h).

Non-acceptance after customary time for consideration.—When a bill is duly presented for acceptance and is not accepted within the customary time, the person presenting it must treat it as dishonoured by non-acceptance (i). If he do not, the holder shall lose his right of recourse against the drawer and indorsers (i). A bill is dishonoured by non-acceptance—(a) when it is duly presented for acceptance, and such an acceptance as is prescribed by the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, is refused or cannot be obtained; or (b) when presentment for acceptance is excused and the bill is not accepted (k). Subject to the provisions of this Act when a bill is dishonoured by non-acceptance, an immediate right of recourse against the drawer and indorsers accrues to the holder, and no presentment for payment is necessary (l).

Qualified acceptances.—By sect. 44 (1) of the Bills of (c) "Reasonable hour" in the case of a trader means business hours, and in the case of a banker banking hours. See Parker v. Gordon, 7 East, 385.

(d) By s. 19 (2) an acceptance which is not the acceptance of all the drawees is a qualified acceptance. As to the consequences of a qualified acceptance see sect. 44.

(e) Ib., s. 41 (1).

(f) As to the meaning of fictitious person see Vagliano v. Bank of England, (1891) A.C. 107; 60 L.J. Q.B. 145; Vinden v. Hughes, (1905) 1 K.B. 795; 74 L.J. K.B. 710; North & South Wales Bank v. Macbeth (1908) A.C. 137; 77 L.J. K.B. 464.

(g) Ib., s. 41 (2); sub-sect. (2) effects an alteration in the law.

(h) Ib., s. 41 (3).

(i) Ib., s. 42.

(k) Ib., s. 43 (1).

(l) Ib., s. 43 (2).

Exchange Act, 1882, (1) The holder of a bill may refuse to take a qualified acceptance, and if he does not obtain an unqualified acceptance may treat the bill as dishonoured by non-acceptance. (2) Where a qualified acceptance is taken, and the drawer or an indorser has not expressly or impliedly authorized the holder to take a qualified acceptance, or does not subsequently assent thereto, such drawer or indorser is discharged from his liability on the bill. The provisions of this sub-section do not apply to a partial acceptance, whereof due notice has been given. Where a foreign bill has been accepted as to part, it must be protested as to the balance (m). (3) When the drawer or indorser of a bill receives notice of a qualified acceptance, and does not within a reasonable time express his dissent to the holder he shall be deemed to have assented thereto."

If the holder accepts the qualified acceptance, he must give notice of the nature of the acceptance to the prior parties (n). When the bill is payable a certain number of days after sight, it is to be accounted so many days after the bill shall be accepted or protested for non-acceptance (o). If no time at all is stated upon the face of the bill (p), or if it is payable at sight or on presentation, the instrument will be payable on demand (q).

The acceptance is usually made by the drawee's writing across the bill the word "accepted," and signing his name thereto (r). If the drawee, after he has put his name to the bill, and before he has parted with the possession of it or notified his acceptance, changes his mind, and runs his pen through the signature, the acceptance is cancelled, and he cannot be made liable upon the bill (s).

Liability of the acceptor—Failure of consideration.—"The acceptor of a bill, by accepting it—(1.) Engages that he will pay it according to the tenor of his acceptance: (2.) Is precluded from denying to a holder in due course: (a) The existence of the drawer, the genuineness of his signature, and his capacity and authority to draw the bill; (b) in the case of a bill payable to drawer's order, the then capacity of the drawer to indorse, but not the genuineness or validity of his indorsement; (c) in the case of a bill payable to the order of a third person, the existence of the payee and his then capacity

(m) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, sect. 44; subsect. (2) effects an alteration in the law.

(n) Rowe v. Young, 2 B. & B. 165, 210. See now sect. 44, ante, p. 1263, "Dishonour."

(o) Campbell v. French, 6 T.R. 212. See sect. 14, post, p. 1271.

(p) Abbott v. Douglas, 1 C.B. 491; 14 L.J. C.P. 202.

(q) Sect. 10, ante, p. 1244.

(r) See ib., s. 17 (2), ante, p. 1261.

(s) Cox v. Troy, 5 B. & Ald. 474. Sect. 21, ante, p. 1252.

to indorse, but not the genuineness or validity of his indorsement (t).

As between the acceptor and the drawer of a bill, failure of consideration is an answer to an action for the amount of the bill, so that, if a person purchases a bill payable at the end of three months for goods or money to be delivered to the acceptor at the end of one month, and the goods or the money are not delivered, the acceptor is not liable upon the bill, unless it was indorsed before it became due to a bonâ fide holder for value (u). When the bill has been negotiated the acceptor, except in case of a qualified acceptance (x), is bound to pay the bill at maturity, and to find out the holder for that purpose. He is not entitled to any presentment or formal demand of payment; and a request in the shape of the issue of a writ is the only request that need be made to him by the indorsee, although the bill be made payable on demand (y). A person who has accepted a bill of exchange cannot escape from liability to a bonâ fide indorsee by setting up a forgery of the name of the drawer (z). "The acceptor paying the bill has a right to the possession of the instrument for his own security, and as his voucher and discharge, pro tanto, in his account with the drawer, and to one who should refuse or be unable to deliver up the bill, the acceptor is not bound," without an indemnity, "to pay the sum therein specified" (a).

An acceptance of a bill of exchange can only be made by the party to whom the bill is addressed, or for his honour. An acceptance by any other person is not an acceptance within the usage and custom of merchants (b). Persons may, as we have before seen, draw, accept, or indorse bills in assumed or adopted names, and render themselves responsible upon the instrument by so doing (c); but, if the name of a party appearing on the face of a bill as drawer or indorser has been placed there without his authority, he cannot, of course, be made responsible upon the instrument, but the indorsee or holder must proceed against his own immediate indorsee, or the party from whom he got the bill. If the name of a party is mis-

(t) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 54.

(u) Astley v. Johnson, 5 H. & N. 137; 29 L.J. Ex. 161; Puget de Bras v. Forbes, 1 Esp. 117.

(x) Sect. 52 (2), post, p. 1270.

(y) Rumball v. Ball, 10 Mod. 38. Sect. 52 (1), post, p. 1270.

(z) Mather v. Maidstone (Lord), 18 C.B. 295; 25 L.J. C.P. 311. Sect. 54 (2) (a), supra.

(a) Ramuz v. Crowe, 1 Exch. 173; 16 L.J. Ex. 280. See sect. 52 (4), post, p. 1270.

(b) Davis v. Clarke, 6 Q.B. 19; 13 L.J. Q.B. 305; Fielder v. Marshall, 30 L.J. C.P. 158; 9 C.B. N.S. 606; but see Lindus v. Bradwell, 5 C.B. 583; 17 L.J. C.P. 123. See sect. 23 (1), post, p. 1301.

(c) Jenkins v. Morris, 16 M. & W. 881.

spelled, oral evidence is admissible to show who was intended (d). The acceptor cannot set up, as a defence to an action by an indorsee, that the drawer and first indorser was an uncertificated bankrupt at the time the acceptance was given. If he accepts the bill of a bankrupt, he is responsible to every bonâ fide holder (e). The acceptor is liable to indemnify any indorser who may pay the bill (f).

Liability of drawer and indorser.—By the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, sect. 55, "(1.) The drawer of a bill by drawing it—(a) Engages that on due presentment it shall be accepted and paid according to its tenor, and that if it be dishonoured he will compensate the holder or any indorser who is compelled to pay it, provided that the requisite proceedings on dishonour be duly taken; (b) is precluded from denying to a holder in due course the existence of the payee and his then capacity to indorse. (2.) The indorser of a bill by indorsing it—(a) Engages that on due presentment it shall be accepted and paid according to its tenor, and that if it be dishonoured he will compensate the holder or a subsequent indorser who is compelled to pay it, provided that the requisite proceedings on dishonour be duly taken (g); (b) is precluded from denying to a holder in due course (h) the genuineness and regularity in all respects of the drawer's signature and all previous indorsements; (c) is precluded from denying to his immediate or a subsequent indorsee that the bill was at the time of his indorsement a valid and subsisting bill, and that he had then a good title thereto."

Every person who draws or indorses a bill of exchange impliedly enters into a conditional contract to pay the amount of the bill to the payee or his assignee, if the acceptor does not pay the amount, unless he indorsed as agent for the plaintiff for the accommodation of the latter, and without value (i). When a bill is dishonoured, it is generally thrown back upon the first indorser, each indorser taking back from his immediate indorser what he has paid on account of the bill, and at the same time delivering up the bill to him, and the latter again throwing it back on his immediate indorser, till it at last arrives at the first indorser. They may arrange the matter amongst themselves; and any one indorser may sue the acceptor or drawer

(d) Willis v. Barrett, 2 Stark. 29. Sect. 32 (4), ante, p. 1247.

(e) Braithwaite v. Gardiner, 8 Q.B. 473; 15 L.J. Q.B. 187; Halifax v. Lyle, 8 Exch. 453; 18 L.J. Ex. 197. Sect. 54 (2), ante, p. 1264.

(f) Duncan, Fox & Co. v. North & South Wales Bank, 6 App.Cas. 1; 50 L.J. Ch. 355. Sect. 57 (1), post, p. 1298.

(g) Jenkins v. Comber, (1898) 2 Q.B. 168; 67 L.J. Q.B. 780.

(h) See sect. 29, ante, p. 1255.

(i) Castrique v. Buttigieg, 10 Moore, P.C. 109.

instead of any one of the preceding indorsers, striking out all the names upon the bill below his own (k). But, as the liability of the drawer and indorsers is a secondary and conditional liability, accruing only in default of payment by the acceptor, there must be proof of a regular presentment of the bill to the latter after it became due, and non-payment of the amount, termed a dishonour of the bill, and notice of such presentment and dishonour to the drawer or indorser, before the absolute liability of the latter upon the instrument can attach. Where the defendant was induced to put his name upon the back of a bill of exchange by the fraudulent representation of the acceptor that it was a guarantee, and the defendant signed it without knowing that it was a bill, and under the belief that it was a guarantee, and was guilty of no negligence in so signing it, it was held that he was not liable to a bonâ fide holder for value (l). The indorser is in a position of secondary liability or quasi suretyship for the payment of a bill; and when the indorser has paid the bill he is entitled to any securities which may have been deposited by the acceptor with the holder (m).

Giving time for payment.—The parties whose names appear upon the face of the bill are liable as principals and sureties, in the order in which they stand; and the rule that a release or discharge, or time given for payment to the principal, operates as a release or discharge to the surety, is applicable to such instruments. By giving time, therefore, to the acceptor, the drawer and indorsers will be discharged (n). But a binding agreement with a person who is no party to the bill, to give time to the acceptor, without the consent of the drawer, does not discharge the drawer (o). As between the holder and the acceptor, the acceptor is the principal debtor, and the drawer and indorsers are his sureties; but, as between the holder and the drawer, the drawer is the principal debtor, and the indorsers are his sureties; and, as between the holder and second indorser, the second indorser is the principal, and the subsequent or third indorser is his surety. A discharge, therefore, to the prior parties, the principals, is a discharge to the subsequent parties, the sureties; but a discharge to the subsequent parties, (k) Walwyn v. St. Quintin, 1 Bos. & P. 658.

(l) Foster v. Mackinnon, L.R. 4 C.P. 704; 38 L.J. C.P. 310; Lewis v. Clay, 67 L.J. Q.B. 224.

(m) Duncan, Fox & Co. v. North & South Wales Bank, 6 App.Cas. 1; 50 L.J. Ch. 355.

(n) English v. Darley, 2 Bos. & P. 61; Moss v. Hall, 5 Exch. 49; 19 L.J. Ex. 205; Davies v. Stainbank, 6 De G. M. & G. 679; Greenough v. McClelland, 2 E. & E. 429; 30 L.J. Q.B. 15; Lawrence v. Walmsley, 12 C.B. N.S. 799; 31 L.J. C.P. 143; ante, p. 1093.

(o) Frazer v. Jordan, 8 E. & B. 308; 26 L.J. Q.B. 288.

the sureties, is not a discharge to the prior parties, the principals (p).

Presentment for payment.—Section 45 of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, enacts that, "Subject to the provisions of this Act, a bill must be duly presented for payment. If it be not so presented, the drawer and indorsers shall be discharged. A bill is duly presented for payment which is presented in accordance with the following rules:—(1.) Where the bill is not payable on demand, presentment must be made on the day it falls due. (2.) Where the bill is payable on demand, then, subject to the provisions of this Act, presentment must be made within a reasonable time after its issue in order to render the drawer liable, and within a reasonable time after its indorsement, in order to render the indorser liable. In determining what is a reasonable time, regard shall be had to the nature of the bill, the usage of trade with regard to similar bills, and the facts of the particular case. (3.) Presentment must be made by the holder or by some person authorized to receive payment on his behalf at a reasonable hour on a business day, at the proper place as hereinafter defined, either to the person designated by the bill as payer, or to some person authorized to pay or refuse payment on his behalf, if with the exercise of reasonable diligence such person can there be found. (4.) A bill is presented at the proper place:—(a) Where a place of payment is specified in the bill and the bill is there presented; (b) where no place of payment is specified, but the address of the drawee or acceptor is given in the bill, and the bill is there presented; (c) where no place of payment is specified and no address given, and the bill is presented at the drawee's or acceptor's place of business if known, and if not, at his ordinary residence if known; (d) in any other case if presented to the drawee or acceptor wherever he can be found, or if presented at his last known place of business or residence. (5.) Where a bill is presented at the proper place, and after the exercise of reasonable diligence no person authorized to pay or refuse payment can be found there, no further presentment to the drawee or acceptor is required. (6.) Where a bill is drawn upon, or accepted by two or more persons who are not partners, and no place of payment is specified, presentment must be made to them all. (7.) Where the drawee or acceptor of a bill is dead, and no place of payment is specified, presentment must be made to a personal representative, if such there be, and with the exercise of reasonable diligence he can be found. (8.) When authorized by agreement or usage, a presentment through the post office is sufficient."

(p) Byles, 325 (ed. 16); ante, pp. 1093, 1094.

The holder is to present promptly, and to communicate without delay notice of non-payment or of the insolvency of the acceptor; for a party is not only entitled to knowledge of insolvency, but to notice that, in consequence of such insolvency, he will be called upon to pay the amount of the bill (q). If the acceptor accepts, payable at a banker's, he undertakes (r) to pay the bill at maturity, when presented for payment either to himself or at the banker's; if he accepts payable at a banker's, and not elsewhere, he contracts to pay the bill at maturity, provided it is presented at the banker's, but not otherwise (s). If the banker at whose bank the bill is payable is the holder of the bill at the time of its maturity, there is a sufficient presentment. If the bill is made payable at a particular town, and the holder goes there with the bill, and makes inquiry for the party to whom it is to be presented, and the latter is not to be found, this is a sufficient presentment at the place indicated (t). If the bill is made payable at a particular house, presentment to an inmate may suffice (u); or, if the house be shut up, at the house door (x); and, if two places be named, the holder has the option to present it at either (y). "A presentment according to the directions of a forged acceptance cannot be a good presentment as against the drawer" (z). The mention of the names and address of the London agents in a memorandum at the foot of a country banker's cheque does not make the cheque payable at the place so indicated; and non-payment there on presentment is not necessarily a dishonour (a).

Non-presentment for payment when excused.—Section 46 of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, enacts that "(1.) Delay in making presentment for payment is excused when the delay is caused by circumstances beyond the control of the holder, and not imputable to his default, misconduct, or negligence. When the cause of delay ceases to operate presentment must be made with reasonable diligence. (2.) Presentment for payment is dispensed with,—(a) Where, after the exercise of reasonable diligence presentment, as required (b) by this Act, cannot be

(q) Camidge v. Allenby, 6 B. & C. 383; 5 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 95.

(r) Sect. 19 (2), ante, p. 1262.

(s) Halstead v. Skelton, 5 Q.B. 93; 13 L.J. Q B. 117.

(t) Hardy v. Woodroffe, 2 Stark. 319. Sect. 46 (2), post.

(u) Buxton v. Jones, 1 M. & Gr. 83.

(x) Hine v. Allely, 4 B. & Ad. 624; 2 L.J. K.B. 105.

(y) Beeching v. Gower, Holt, N.P. 314.

(z) Wetton v. Hodd, 18 Jur. 630.

(a) Bailey v. Bodenham, 16 C.B. N.S. 288; 33 L.J. C.P. 252.

(b) See 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 45.

effected. The fact that the holder has reason to believe that the bill will, on presentment, be dishonoured, does not dispense with the necessity for presentment (c); (b) where the drawee is a fictitious (d) person (e); (c) as regards the drawer where the drawee or acceptor is not bound, as between himself and the drawer, to accept or pay the bill, and the drawer has no reason to believe that the bill would be paid if presented; (d) as regards an indorser, where the bill was accepted or made for the accommodation of that indorser, and he has no reason to expect that the bill would be paid if presented; (e) by waiver of presentment, express or implied."

By sect. 52, "(1.) When a bill is accepted generally presentment for payment is not necessary in order to render the acceptor liable. (2.) When by the terms of a qualified acceptance presentment for payment is required, the acceptor, in the absence of an express stipulation to that effect, is not discharged by the omission to present the bill for payment on the day that it matures (f). (3.) In order to render the acceptor of a bill liable it is not necessary to protest it, or that notice of dishonour shall be given to him (g). (4.) Where the holder of a bill presents it for payment, he shall exhibit the bill to the person from whom he demands payment, and when a bill is paid the holder shall forthwith deliver it up to the party paying it."

If the acceptor absconds, or shuts up his house and cannot be found, presentment is excused, because it cannot be made, and the bill may be treated as a dishonoured bill; but, if the acceptor has merely removed to a different residence, and can be discovered, the bill must be presented in the regular way (h). If the bill is a mere accommodation bill, and the acceptor had no effects of the drawer's in his hands during any portion of the period that the bill had to run, and the drawer could have had no reasonable expectation that the bill would be honoured by the acceptor, presentment to the latter is excused as against the drawer, as the latter cannot have been prejudiced by the want of presentment; for, "if the bill was presented and paid by the drawee, the drawer would become indebted to him in the (c) Boyse, In re, 33 Ch.D. 612, 623; 56 L.J. Ch. 135; Sands v. Clarke, 8 C.B. 759; 19 L.J. C.P. 87. But see Turner v. Stones, 12 L.J. Q.B. 303; 1 D. & L. 122; Robson v. Oliver, 16 L.J. Q.B. 437; 10 Q.B. 734; East of England Banking Co., In re, L.R. 4 Ch. 18; 38 L.J. Ch. 121.

(d) As to the meaning of fictitious person, see Vagliano v. Bank of England, (1891) A.C. 107; 60 L.J. Q.B. 145; Vinden v. Hughes, (1905), 1 K.B. 795; 74 L.J. K.B. 710: North and South Wales Bank v. Macbeth, (1908) A.C. 137; 77 L.J. K.B. 464.

(e) As to a "fictitious person," see Vagliano v. Bank of England, ante, p. 1244.

(f) Smith v. Vertue, 30 L.J. C.P. 56; 9 C.B. N.S. 214.

(g) Treacher v. Hinton, 4 B. & Ald. 413.

(h) Collins v. Butler, 2 Str. 1087.

amount, instead of being indebted to the holder of the bill" (i). "But the case of an indorser of a bill of exchange stands upon a different footing from that of a drawer. He (the indorser) is in the nature of a surety or guarantee of its payment on due presentment, and is presumed to know nothing about the arrangement between the drawer and drawee" (k). His liability, therefore, upon the bill does not arise until presentment has been duly made, and he has received notice of dishonour.

Days of grace—Calculation of time.—"Where a bill is not payable on demand the day on which it falls due is determined as follows: (1.) Three days (l), called days of grace, are, in every case where the bill itself does not otherwise provide, added to the time of payment as fixed by the bill, and the bill is due and payable on the last day of grace (m): Provided that—(a) When the last day of grace falls on Sunday, Christmas Day, Good Friday, or a day appointed by Royal proclamation as a public fast or thanksgiving day, the bill is, except in the case hereinafter provided for, due and payable on the preceding business day (n); (b) when the last day of grace is a bank holiday (other than Christmas Day or Good Friday) under the Bank Holidays Act, 1871, and Acts amending or extending it, or when the last day of grace is a Sunday and the second day of grace is a Bank Holiday, the bill is due and payable on the succeeding business day (o). (2.) Where a bill is payable at a fixed period after date, after sight, or after the happening of a specified event, the time of payment is determined by excluding the day from which the time is to begin to run and by including the day of payment. (3.) Where a bill is payable at a fixed period after sight, the time begins to run from the date of the acceptance if the bill be accepted, and from the date of noting or protest if the bill be noted or protested for non-acceptance, or for non-delivery. (4.) The term 'month' in a bill means calendar month" (p).

Presentment for payment before the expiration of the days of grace is premature, and will not enable the holder to charge

(i) Terry v. Parker, 6 Ad. & E. 507; 6 L.J. Q.B. 249. See Bethell, In re, 34 Ch.D. 561; 56 L.J. Ch. 334; and sect. 46 (2) (c), ante, p. 1270.

(k) Carter v. Flower, 16 L.J. Ex. 202; 16 M. & W. 743.

(l) By s. 92, where the time limited for doing any act or thing is less than three days, in reckoning time, the following days are excluded:—Sunday, Good Friday, Christmas Day, bank holidays, days appointed by royal proclamation as public fast or thanksgiving days.

(m) Kennedy v. Thomas, (1894) 2 Q.B. 759; 63 L.J. Q.B. 761.

(n) As to the term "business day," see sect. 92. It excludes both statutory and common law holidays.

(o) The above provision effects some alteration in the law.

(p) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 14.

the antecedent parties (q). A note dated the 31st January is payable "without grace" one month after date. It is due on February 28. A note for 280*l.* is made payable by two equal instalments, on January 1st and February 1st. The instalments fall due on January 4th and February 4th (r). Where a bill is dishonoured by non-payment on the last day of grace, no right of action arises till the next day (s). Foreign bills are sometimes drawn payable at one or more usances. Usance is the common period, fixed by the usage or habit of dealing between the country where the bill is drawn, and that where it is payable, for the payment of bills. As this usage or custom is different in different countries, it follows that the same phrase imports different periods of time, according to the country in which the bill is drawn. It sometimes means a month, sometimes two or more months, sometimes half a month. Moreover, bills may be drawn payable at usance, at half usance, or at double or treble usance. Where usance is a month, half usance means fifteen days. The existence of a usance will not be judicially noticed. It must be proved (t).

Notice of dishonour.—A bill is dishonoured by non-payment (a) when it is duly presented for payment and payment is refused or cannot be obtained, or (b) when presentment is excused and the bill is overdue and unpaid (u). Subject to the provisions of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, when a bill is dishonoured by non-payment, an immediate right of recourse against the drawer and indorsers accrues to the holder (x).

Subject to the provisions of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (y), when a bill has been dishonoured by non-acceptance or by non-payment, notice of dishonour must be given to the drawer and each indorser, and any drawer or indorser to whom such notice is not given is discharged; provided that—(1.) Where a bill is dishonoured by non-acceptance, and notice of dishonour is not given, the rights of a holder in due course subsequent to the omission, shall not be prejudiced by the omission. (2.) Where a bill is dishonoured by non-acceptance and due notice of dishonour is given, it shall not be necessary to give notice of a subsequent dishonour by non-payment unless the bill shall in the meantime have been accepted (z).

(q) Byles, 283 (ed. 17); Tassell v. Lewis, 1 Ld. Raym. 743. Sect. 14 (1), ante, p. 1271.

(r) Oridge v. Sherborne, 11 M. & W. 374; 12 L.J. Ex. 313. See also Smith v. Kendall, 6 T.R. 123.

(s) Kennedy v. Thomas, (1894) 2 Q.B. 759; 63 L.J. Q.B. 761.

(t) Mozeley & Whiteley's Law Dict. 466. See a table of "usances" given by Nouguier (ed. 1875), sect. 144.

(u) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 47 (1).

(x) Ib., s. 47 (2). Kennedy v. Thomas, supra.

(y) For provisions referred to, see sect. 50, excuses for non-notice and delay.

(z) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 48. See

Rules as to notice of dishonour.—By sect. 49 of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, "Notice of dishonour in order to be valid and effectual must be given in accordance with the following rules:—(1.) The notice must be given by or on behalf of the holder, or by or on behalf of an indorser who, at the time of giving it, is himself liable on the bill (a). (2.) Notice of dishonour may be given by an agent either in his own name, or in the name of any party entitled to give notice, whether that party be his principal or not (b). (3.) Where the notice is given by or on behalf of the holder, it enures for the benefit of all subsequent holders and all prior indorsers who have a right of recourse against the party to whom it is given. (4.) Where notice is given by or on behalf of an indorser entitled to give notice as hereinbefore provided, it enures for the benefit of the holder and all indorsers subsequent to the party to whom notice is given. (5.) The notice may be given in writing or by personal communication, and may be given in any terms which sufficiently identify the bill, and intimate that the bill has been dishonoured by non-acceptance or non-payment (c). (6.) The return of a dishonoured bill to the drawer or an indorser is, in point of form, deemed a sufficient notice of dishonour (d). (7.) A written notice need not be signed, and an insufficient written notice may be supplemented and validated by verbal communication. A misdescription of the bill shall not vitiate the notice unless the party to whom the notice is given is in fact misled thereby (e). (8.) Where notice of dishonour is required to be given to any person, it may be given either to the party himself, or to his agent in that behalf. (9.) Where the drawer or indorser is dead, and the party giving notice knows it, the notice must be given to a personal representative if such there be, and with the exercise of reasonable diligence he can be Ceylon Coaling Co. v. Goodrich, (1904) P. 319; 73 L.J. P. 104.

(a) See Chapman v. Keane, 3 Ad. & E. 193; 4 L.J. K.B. 185.

(b) Stewart v. Kennett, 2 Campb. 177; Harrison v. Ruscoe, 15 M. & W. 231; 15 L.J. Ex. 110; Berridge v. Fitzgerald, L.R. 4 Q.B. 639; 38 L.J. Q.B. 335; Phillips v. Gould, 8 C. & P. 355; Hartley v. Case, 4 B. & C. 339; 3 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 262; Lewis v. Gompertz, 6 M. & W. 403; 9 L.J. Ex. 182; East v. Smith, 16 L.J. Q.B. 295; Carter v. Flower, 16 M. & W. 743; 16 L.J. Ex. 201; Chard v. Fox, 14 Q.B. 201; Everard v. Watson, 22 L.J. Q.B. 222; 1 E. & B. 801; Caunt v. Thompson, 7 C.B. 411; 18 L.J. C.P. 128; Metcalfe v. Richardson, 11 C.B. 1011; Maxwell v. Brain, 10 Jur. N.S. 777.

(c) Caunt v. Thompson, 18 L.J. C.P. at p. 127; 7 C.B. 411; Shelton v. Braithwaite, 7 M. & W. 436; Everard v. Watson, 1 E. & B. at p. 804; 22 L.J. Q.B. 222. The notice need not expressly state that the bill has been presented and dishonoured (Paul v. Joel, 4 H. & N. 355; 28 L.J. Ex. 143), nor that it has been protested, if protest be necessary (Lowenthal, Ex parte, L.R. 9 Ch. 591; 43 L.J. Bankr. 83).

(d) Sub-sect. (6) effected an alteration in the law.

(e) Houlditch v. Cauty, 4 Bing. N.C. 411 at p. 419; 7 L.J. C.P. 217; and see Metcalfe v. Richardson, 11 C.B. 1011, as to verbal notice.

found. (10.) Where the drawer or indorser is bankrupt, notice may be given either to the party himself or to the trustee. (11.) Where there are two or more drawers or indorsers who are not partners, notice must be given to each of them, unless one of them has authority to receive such notice for the others. (12.) The notice may be given as soon as the bill is dishonoured (f) and must be given within a reasonable time thereafter (g). In the absence of special circumstances notice is not deemed to have been given within a reasonable time, unless—(a) where the person giving and the person to receive notice reside in the same place, the notice is given or sent off in time to reach the latter on the day after the dishonour of the bill (h); (b) where the person giving and the person to receive notice reside in different places, the notice is sent off on the day after the dishonour of the bill, if there be a post at a convenient hour on that day (i), and if there be no such post on that day then by the next post thereafter (k). (13.) Where a bill when dishonoured is in the hands of an agent, he may either himself give notice to the parties liable on the bill, or he may give notice to his principal. If he give notice to his principal, he must do so within the same time as if he were the holder, and the principal upon receipt of such notice has himself the same time for giving notice as if the agent had been an independent holder. (14.) Where a party to a bill receives due notice of dishonour, he has after the receipt of such notice the same period of time for giving notice to antecedent parties that the holder has after the dishonour. (15.) Where a notice of dishonour is duly addressed and posted, the sender is deemed to have given due notice of dishonour, notwithstanding any miscarriage by the post office."

If the bill has been duly presented to the acceptor, and the days of grace have elapsed, and the bill remains unpaid, the holder should give prompt notice of the dishonour of the bill to all the other parties to the instrument against whom he intends to proceed (l). A plaintiff in an action on the bill need not himself have given all the notices; he may avail himself of a notice duly given by any other party to the bill (m). When the (f) Burbridge v. Manners, 3 Campb. 193; Kennedy v. Thomas, (1894) 2 Q.B. 759; 63 L.J. Q.B. 761.

(g) London & River Plate Bank v. Bank of Liverpool, (1896) 1 Q.B. 7; 65 L.J. Q.B. 80; Hirschfield v. Smith, L.R. 1 C.P. 340, at p. 351; 35 L.J. C.P. 177.

(h) Smith v. Mullett, 2 Campb. 208.

(i) Williams v. Smith, 2 B. & Ald. at p. 500.

(k) Fielding v. Corry, 67 L.J. Q.B. 7; Ceylon Coaling Co. v. Goodrich, (1904) P. 319; 73 L.J. P. 104.

(l) Maltass v. Siddle, 6 C.B. N.S. 501; 28 L.J. C.P. 257.

(m) Jervis, C.J., Rowe v. Tipper, 13 C.B. 256; 22 L.J. C.P. 135.

bill becomes payable on a Sunday, Good Friday, or Christmas Day, the notice need not be given until the day after (n). Where a bill of exchange was indorsed to a branch bank of a London banking-house who sent it to another branch of the same bank, who indorsed it to the head establishment in London, it was held that each of the branch banks was to be considered an independent indorsee or holder, and each entitled to the usual notice of dishonour (o). Any agent in possession of the bill may give the notice; and it need not state at whose request it was given, nor who was the owner of the bill. Any persons also who pay the bill for the honour of a party thereto become, on payment, holders as upon a transfer from the person for whom they made the payment, and are entitled to avail themselves of a notice of dishonour given by any of the parties to the bill (p).

What amounts to notice of dishonour.—A mere demand of payment of a bill was always held not to amount to notice of dishonour (q); but an intimation that the bill has not been paid by the acceptor, or that it has not been paid in regular course, accompanied or unaccompanied by a demand of payment, was held to be sufficient (r). A mistake in the name of the person on whose behalf the notice is given will not avoid the notice, but will place the party giving it in the same situation as to the party to whom it is given as if the representation had been true, so that the defendant will have every defence against the plaintiff that he would have had if the notice had been really given by the party named (s). A misdescription, also, of the bill, not misleading the party receiving the notice, will not vitiate such notice (t). If the bill has really been dishonoured at the time the notice is given, but the party giving the notice was not himself certain of the fact at the time he gave the notice, it is no objection to the notice (u).

Posting the notice.—The notice of dishonour should, if possible, be communicated by the next post, if a post leaves within a few hours after information of the dishonour of the bill (x). The letter, when sent by post, must of course be (n) Sect. 92, ante, p. 1271, note (l).

(o) Clode v. Bayley, 12 M. & W. 51; 13 L.J. Ex. 17.
(p) Goodall v. Polhill, 1 C.B. 242; 14 L.J. C.P. 146. See sect. 68, post, p. 1282.
(q) Solarte v. Palmer, 7 Bing. 530; 2 Cl. & F. 97.
(r) Bailey v. Porter, 14 M. & W. 44; 14 L.J. Ex. 244; Paul v. Joel, 4 H. & N. 355; 28 L.J. Ex. 143. See now s. 49 (5), p. 1273.
(s) Parke, B., Harrison v. Ruscoe, 15 M. & W. 236; 15 L.J. Ex. 110.
(t) Bromage v. Vaughan, 16 L.J. Q.B. 10; 9 Q.B. 608; Rowlands v. Springett, 14 M. & W. 7; 14 L.J. Ex. 227; Mellersh v. Rippen, 21 L.J. Ex. 221; 7 Exch. 578. Sect. 49 (7), ante, p. 1273.
(u) Jennings v. Roberts, 24 L.J. Q.B. 102; 4 E. & B. 615.
(x) Darbishire v. Parker, 6 East, 3. Sect. 49 (12), (15), ante, p. 1274.

properly directed (y). An action is maintainable immediately after the notice has been received by the party to whom it is addressed; and it is sufficient for the plaintiff to show that the defendant must have received it according to the usual routine of the post-office delivery prior to the issuing of the writ (z).

Foreign bill — Protest — Noting — Damages — Re-exchange.—By the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, s. 51, "(1.) Where an inland bill has been dishonoured it may, if the holder think fit, be noted for non-acceptance or non-payment, as the case may be; but it shall not be necessary to note or protest any such bill in order to preserve the recourse against the drawer or indorser. (2.) Where a foreign bill, appearing on the face of it to be such, has been dishonoured by non-acceptance it must be duly protested for non-acceptance, and where such a bill, which has not been previously dishonoured by non-acceptance, is dishonoured by non-payment it must be duly protested for non-payment. If it be not so protested the drawer and indorsers are discharged. Where a bill does not appear on the face of it to be a foreign bill, protest thereof in case of dishonour is unnecessary (a). (3.) A bill which has been protested for non-acceptance may be subsequently protested for non-payment. (4.) Subject to the provisions of this Act, when a bill is noted or protested, it must be noted on the day of its dishonour. When a bill has been duly noted, the protest may be subsequently extended as of the date of the noting. (5.) Where the acceptor of a bill becomes bankrupt or insolvent or suspends payment before it matures, the holder may cause the bill to be protested for better security against the drawer and indorsers. (6.) A bill must be protested at the place where it is dishonoured: Provided that—(a) When a bill is presented through the post office, and returned by post dishonoured, it may be protested at the place to which it is returned and on the day of its return if received during business hours, and if not received during business hours, then not later than the next business day; (b) When a bill drawn payable at the place of business or residence of some person other than the drawee, has been dishonoured by non-acceptance, it must be protested for non-payment at the place where it is expressed to be payable, and (y) When duly addressed, the party is not answerable for miscarriage by the Post Office. Sect. 49 (15), p. 1274. Parke, B., Woodcock v. Houldsworth, 16 L.J. Ex. 49; 16 M. & W. 124; Walter v. Haynes, R. & M. 149; Clarke v. Sharpe, 3 M. & W. 166; Burmester v. Barron, 17 Q.B. 828; 21 L.J. Ex. 135; Baker, Ex parte, 4 Ch.D. 795; 46 L.J. Bankr. 60.

(z) Castrique v. Bernabo, 6 Q.B. 498; 14 L.J. Q.B. 3.

(a) Sub-sect. (2) effects an alteration in the law. See English Bank of River Plate, In re, (1893) 2 Ch. 438; 62 L.J. Ch. 578.

no further presentment for payment to, or demand on, the drawee is necessary. (7.) A protest must contain a copy of the bill, and must be signed by the notary making it, and must specify—(a) The person at whose request the bill is protested; (b) The place and date of protest, the cause or reason for protesting the bill, the demand made, and the answer given, if any, or the fact that the drawee or acceptor could not be found. (8.) Where a bill is lost or destroyed, or is wrongly detained from the person entitled to hold it, protest may be made on a copy or written particulars thereof. (9.) Protest is dispensed with by any circumstance which would dispense with notice of dishonour. Delay in noting or protesting is excused when the delay is caused by circumstances beyond the control of the holder, and not imputable to his default, misconduct, or negligence. When the cause of delay ceases to operate the bill must be noted or protested with reasonable diligence."

For the purposes of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, where a bill or note is required to be protested within a specified time or before some further proceeding is taken, it is sufficient that the bill has been noted for protest before the expiration of the specified time or the taking of the proceeding; and the formal protest may be extended at any time thereafter as of the date of the noting (b). Where a dishonoured bill or note is authorized or required to be protested, and the services of a notary cannot be obtained at the place where the bill is dishonoured, any householder or substantial resident of the place may, in the presence of two witnesses, give a certificate, signed by them, attesting the dishonour of the bill, and the certificate shall in all respects operate as if it were a formal protest of the bill. The form given in Schedule 1 to the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, may be used with necessary modifications, and if used shall be sufficient (c).

The protest simply announces the presentment and non-acceptance or non-payment of the bill. Noting is a minute made on the bill by the officer at the time of the refusal to accept, and is the preparatory step to protest. Notice of protest and of the dishonour of a foreign bill should always be sent by the first available opportunity (d). A bill of exchange payable in France, though drawn in England, is a foreign bill; and notice of dishonour according to French law is sufficient in an action against an indorser in England (e).

(b) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 93.

(c) Ib., s. 94. The form is as follows :—Know all men that I. A.B. (householder), of , in the county of , in the United Kingdom, at the request of C.D., there being no notary public available, did on the day of 19 , at , demand payment [or acceptance] of the bill of exchange hereunder written, from E.F., to which demand he made answer (state answer, if any), wherefore I now, in the presence of G.H. and J.K., do protest the said bill of exchange.—Signed A.B. G.H. and J.K., witnesses. N.B.—The bill itself should be annexed, or a copy of the bill and all that is written thereon should be underwritten.

Proof of notice of dishonour.—A promise by the defendant, after the bill becomes due, to pay the amount thereof, or a part payment, or the offer of it, or an admission by the defendant of his liability upon the bill, is evidence that notice of dishonour was duly given (f), or that without such notice the defendant is the proper person to pay the bill (g). A promise, after the bill is due, to pay the holder the amount of the bill, operates as "an admission on the part of the defendant that the holder had a right to resort to him upon the bill;" and, "if, when payment is demanded, the party omits to avail himself of the preliminary objection of want of protest or of want of notice, it is a question for the jury whether he does not thereby admit that all the steps that are essential to create liability in him have been duly taken" (h). If the defendant has suffered judgment by default in a prior action against him on the same bill, this is an admission by him of his liability upon the instrument, so as to dispense with proof of notice of dishonour (i).

Excuses for delay in giving notice of dishonour.—Delay in giving notice of dishonour is excused where the delay is caused by circumstances beyond the control of the party giving notice, and not imputable to his default, misconduct, or negligence, but when the cause of delay ceases to operate the notice must be given with reasonable diligence (k).

Dispensation of notice of dishonour.—Notice of dishonour is dispensed with—(a) When, after the exercise of reasonable diligence, notice as required by the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, cannot be given to or does not reach the drawer or indorser sought to be charged (l); (b) By waiver express or (d) Muilman v. D'Eguino, 2 H.Bl. 565. See sect. 51, ante, p. 1276.

(e) Hirschfield v. Smith, L.R. 1 C.P. 340; 35 L.J. C.P. 177; Horne v. Rouquette, 3 Q.B.D. 514. Sect. 72 (3), post. As to the damages recoverable in the case of a bill dishonoured abroad, see Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, s. 57 (2), post, p. 1298.

(f) Hicks v. Beaufort (Duke), 4 Bing. N.C. 229; 7 L.J. C.P. 131; Brownell v. Bonney, 1 Q.B. 39; 10 L.J. Q.B. 71; Jackson v. Collins, 17 L.J. Q.B. 142.

(g) Potter v. Rayworth, 13 East, 418.

(h) Campbell v. Webster, 2 C.B. 258; 13 L.J. C.P. 4.

(i) Rabey v. Gilbert, 6 H. & N. 536; 30 L.J. Ex. 170.

(k) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 50 (1). See Studdy v. Beesty, 60 L.T. 647; The Elmville, (1904) P. 319; sub nom. Ceylon Coaling Co. v. Goodrich, 63 L.J. P. 104; Allen v. Edmundson, 2 Ex. at p. 723; 17 L.J. Ex. 291.

(l) Allen v. Edmundson, 2 Ex. at p. 723; 17 L.J. Ex. 291; discussed Studdy v. Beesty, 60 L.T. at p. 649; Mackay v. Judkens, 1 F. & F. 208, Byles, J.; cp. s. 49 (15); Carew v. Duckworth, L.R. 4 Ex. at p. 319; 38 L.J. Ex. 149.

implied (m). Notice of dishonour may be waived before the time of giving notice has arrived, or after the omission to give due notice; (c) As regards the drawer in the following cases, namely, (1) where drawer and drawee are the same person, (2) where the drawee is a fictitious person (n) or a person not having capacity to contract, (3) where the drawer is the person to whom the bill is presented for payment, (4) where the drawee or acceptor is as between himself and the drawer under no obligation to accept or pay the bill, (5) where the drawer has countermanded payment; (d) As regards the indorser in the following cases, namely, (1) where the drawee is a fictitious person (n) or a person not having capacity to contract and the indorser was aware of the fact at the time he indorsed the bill, (2) where the indorser is the person to whom the bill is presented for payment, (3) where the bill was accepted or made for his accommodation (o).

If the party to whom the notice is to be given absents himself from his place of business, and the holder goes or sends there, and finds no one to receive the notice, this is equivalent to a dispensation of notice, since, according to the usage of merchants, a man who puts his name to a bill ought to be ready at his place of business to receive notice of dishonour (p). It has been also held that notice of dishonour to the drawer had been dispensed with or waived in the following cases:—where the drawer had himself countermanded the payment of the bill (q); where he stated, the day before a bill became due, that it would not be paid, and that it was not worth while to trouble him with a post letter to give him notice (r); where his residence was unknown, and the holder could not, by the exercise of reasonable diligence and inquiry, discover it (s); where he had no effects at any time in the hands of the acceptor, and would have no remedy against the acceptor or any other person in consequence of his being obliged to pay the bill (t); where, although goods had been sold by him to the drawee, yet a long period of credit had been given, and he had drawn the

(m) Phipson v. Kellner, 4 Campb. 285; Cordery v. Colville, 14 C.B. N.S. 374; 32 L.J. C.P. 210; Keith v. Burke, 1 C. & F. 551; see also Fenwick, Stobart & Co., In re, (1902) 1 Ch. 507; 71 L.J. Ch. 321.

(n) See Vagliano v. Bank of England, (1891), A.C. 107, 60 L.J. Q.B. 145; Vinden v. Hughes, (1905) 1 K.B. 795; 74 L.J. K.B. 710; North and South Wales Bank v. Macbeth, (1908) A.C. 137; 77 L.J. K.B. 464.

(o) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 50 (2).

(p) Allen v. Edmundson, 17 L.J. Ex. 291; 2 Ex. 719.

(q) Hill v. Heap, D. & R. N.P.C. 57.

(r) Burgh v. Legge, 5 M. & W. 421; 8 L.J. Ex. 258.

(s) Bateman v. Joseph, 2 Campb. 461; Sharp v. Bailey, 9 B. & C. 44; 7 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 138.

(t) Cory v. Scott, 3 B. & Ald. 619; Thomas v. Fenton, 5 D. & L. 28; 16 L.J. Q.B. 362; Carew v. Duckworth, L.R. 4 Ex. 313; 38 L.J. Ex. 149.

bill without any reasonable expectation that it would be accepted or paid (u). And a waiver of notice of dishonour may be inferred from a subsequent promise to pay, or any admission of liability on the bill, by the party entitled to notice (x).

If the drawer draws on a person who is not his debtor, nor has received any value for the bill, the bill must be considered primâ facie an accommodation bill. In such a case, the drawer is himself the person who ought to provide funds and pay the bill; and he is not, consequently, entitled to notice of dishonour (y). But the case is otherwise where the drawer has a fluctuating balance in the hands of the drawee (z); for the drawer has a right to notice of dishonour, if he has effects in the hands of the acceptor at any time from the drawing of the bill till it becomes due (a). Where the intention of all parties to an accommodation bill was that it should be met by the last indorser, the previous indorsers cannot be sued unless they have had notice of dishonour (b). The bankruptcy of the drawee or acceptor, however notorious, constitutes no excuse for an omission to give notice of dishonour (c): and the knowledge of the bankruptcy by the party entitled to notice is not equivalent to notice (d).

Transfer by delivery without indorsement.—Where the holder of a bill payable to bearer negotiates it by delivery without indorsing it, he is called a "transferor by delivery" (e).

A transferor by delivery is not liable on the instrument (f).

A transferor by delivery who negotiates a bill thereby warrants to his immediate transferee being a holder for value that the bill is what it purports to be, that he has a right to transfer it, and that at the time of transfer he is not aware of any fact which renders it valueless (g).

If a man goes into the money market with a bill of exchange, and gets it discounted without putting his name upon the back of it, and, in effect, sells the bill for what he can get for it, he is not responsible for the repayment of the money he received in exchange for it, if the parties to the bill turn out to be insolvent and the bill becomes worthless, unless he knew of (u) Claridge v. Dalton, 4 M. & S. 231.

(x) Woods v. Dean, 3 B. & S. 101; 32 L.J. Q.B. 1; Cordery v. Colville, 14 C.B. N.S. 374; 32 L.J.C.P. 210; Rabey v. Gilbert, 6 H. & N. 536; 30 L.J. Ex. 170.

(y) Bickerdyke v. Bollman, 1 T. R. 405. Sect. 52 (2), p. 1270; sect. 50 (2) (c), p. 1279.

(z) Blackhan v. Doren, 2 Campb. 503.

(a) Hammond v. Dufrene, 3 Campb. 145.

(b) Turner v. Samson, 2 Q.B.D. 23; 46 L.J. Q.B. 167.

(c) Thackray v. Blackett, 3 Campb. 164.

(d) Esdaile v. Sowerby, 11 East, 114.

(e) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 58 (1). "Delivery" means transfer of possession, actual or constructive, from one person to another: sect. 2.

(f) Ib., s. 58 (2).

(g) Ib., s. 58 (3).

the insolvency and the consequent worthlessness of the bill at the time he offered it for sale in the market (h). But, if the bill is a forgery, and is not what it purports upon the face of it to be, the transferor is bound to refund the money he received by way of discount upon the bill, as the transferee has not got what was agreed to be transferred to him in exchange for his money, and there is consequently a total failure of the consideration for the money (i).

Bills taken up suprà protest.—Where a bill of exchange has been protested for dishonour by non-acceptance, or protested for better security, and is not overdue, any person, not being a party already liable thereon, may, with the consent of the holder, intervene and accept the bill suprà protest, for the honour of any party liable thereon, or for the honour of the person for whose account the bill is drawn (k). A bill may be accepted for honour for part only of the sum for which it is drawn (l). An acceptance for honour suprà protest in order to be valid must—(a) be written on the bill, and indicate that it is an acceptance for honour: (b) be signed by the acceptor for honour (m).

Where an acceptance for honour does not expressly state for whose honour it is made, it is deemed to be an acceptance for the honour of the drawer (n). Where a bill payable after sight is accepted for honour, its maturity is calculated from the date of the noting for non-acceptance, and not from the date of the acceptance for honour (o). The acceptor for honour of a bill by accepting it engages that he will, on due presentment, pay the bill according to the tenor of his acceptance, if it is not paid by the drawee, provided it has been duly presented for payment, and protested for non-payment, and that he receives notice of these facts (p). The acceptor for honour is liable to the holder and to all parties to the bill subsequent to the party for whose honour he has accepted (q). Where a dishonoured bill has been accepted for honour suprà protest, or contains a reference in case of need, it must be protested for non-payment before it is presented for payment to the acceptor for honour, or referee in case of need (r). Where the address of the acceptor for honour is in the same place where the bill is protested for non-payment, the bill must be presented to him not later than the day following its maturity; and where (h) Fenn v. Harrison, 3 T.R. 579; Shuttleworth, Ex parte, 3 Ves. 368; Fydell v. Clark, 1 Esp. 447.

(i) Gurney v. Womersley, 4 E. & B. 131; 24 L.J. Q.B. 46.
(k) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 65 (1).
(l) Ib., s. 65 (2).
(m) Ib., s. 65 (3).
(n) Ib., s. 65 (4).
(o) Ib., s. 65 (5).
(p) Ib., s. 66 (1).
(q) Ib., s. 66 (2).
(r) Ib., s. 67 (1).

the address of the acceptor for honour is in some place other than the place where it was protested for non-payment, the bill must be forwarded not later than the day following its maturity for presentment to him (s). Delay in presentment or non-presentment is excused by any circumstance which would excuse delay in presentment for payment or non-presentment for payment (t). When a bill of exchange is dishonoured by the acceptor for honour it must be protested for non-payment by him (u).

Where a bill has been protested for non-payment, any person may intervene and pay it supra protest for the honour of any party liable thereon, or for the honour of the person for whose account the bill is drawn (x). Where two or more persons offer to pay a bill for the honour of different parties, the person whose payment will discharge most parties to the bill shall have the preference (y). Payment for honour supra protest, in order to operate as such and not as a mere voluntary payment, must be attested by a notarial act of honour, which may be appended to the protest or form an extension of it (z). The notarial act of honour must be founded on a declaration made by the payer for honour, or his agent in that behalf, declaring his intention to pay the bill for honour, and for whose honour he pays (a).

Where a bill has been paid for honour, all parties subsequent to the party for whose honour it is paid are discharged, but the payer for honour is subrogated for, and succeeds to both the rights and duties of, the holder as regards the party for whose honour he pays, and all parties liable to that party (b). The payer for honour on paying to the holder the amount of the bill and the notarial expenses incidental to its dishonour is entitled to receive both the bill itself and the protest (c). If the holder do not on demand deliver them up he shall be liable to the payer for honour in damages (d). Where the holder of a bill refuses to receive payment supra protest, he shall lose his right of recourse against any party who would have been discharged by such payment (e).

When the acceptor is holder at maturity.—When the acceptor

(s) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61 s. 67 (2).

(t) Ib., s. 67 (3).

(u) Ib., s. 67 (4).

(x) Ib., s. 68 (1). Payment for honour is known in Continental countries as payment by "intervention," which expresses its nature as a negotiorum gestio.

(y) Ib., s. 68 (2).

(z) Ib., s. 68 (3).

(a) Ib., s. 68 (4).

(b) Ib., s. 68 (5).

(c) This means the necessary protest for non-payment: English Bank of River Plate, In re, (1893) 2 Ch. 438; 62 L.J. Ch. 578.

(d) Ib., s. 68 (6).

(e) Ib., s. 68 (7).

of a bill is or becomes the holder of it at or after its maturity, in his own right (f), the bill is discharged (g).

Renunciation of bills—Express waiver.—When the holder of a bill at or after its maturity absolutely and unconditionally renounces his rights against the acceptor the bill is discharged (h). The renunciation must be in writing, unless the bill is delivered up to the acceptor (h). The liabilities of any party to a bill may in like manner be renounced by the holder before, at, or after its maturity; but nothing in this section shall affect the rights of a holder in due course without notice of the renunciation (i).

It has been held that where the holder of a note on his deathbed wished to forgive the debt to the promisor, and his nurse, at his dictation, wrote a paper to that effect, and that the note should be destroyed as soon as found, such renunciation was not an absolute and unconditional renunciation. The question of the effect of want of signature was not decided (k).

Rules as to sets.—Where a bill is drawn in a set, each part of the set being numbered, and containing a reference to the other parts, the whole of the parts constitute one bill (l). Where the holder of a set indorses two or more parts to different persons, he is liable on every such part, and every indorser subsequent to him is liable on the part he has himself indorsed as if the said parts were separate bills (m). Where two or more parts of a set are negotiated to different holders in due course, the holder whose title first accrues is as between such holders deemed the true owner of the bill; but nothing in this subsection shall affect the rights of a person who in due course accepts or pays the part first presented to him (n). The acceptance may be written on any part, and it must be written on one part only (o). If the drawee accepts more than one part, and such accepted parts get into the hands of different (f) Nash v. De Freville, (1900) 2 Q. B. 72; 69 L.J. Q.B. 484.

(g) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 61. Nash v. De Freville, supra. See sect. 37, ante, p. 1250. Sect. 61 effects an alteration in the law. As to the discharge of bills by indorsers, see sect. 59.

(h) Ib., s. 62 (1).

(i) Ib., s. 62 (2). This section effects an alteration in the law. See "holder in due course" defined by s. 29; and see Ingham v. Primrose, 7 C.B. N.S. 82; 28 L.J. C.P. 295.

(k) Francis v. Bruce, 44 Ch. D. 627; 59 L.J. Ch. 709; Edwards v. Walters (1890), 2 Ch. 157; 65 L.J. Ch. 557.

(l) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 71 (1). If one part of a set omits reference to the rest, it becomes a separate bill in the hands of a bona fide holder. See Kearne v. West Grenada Mining Co., 1 H. & N. 412; 26 L.J. Ex. 15; Pinard v. Klockman, 3 B. & S. 388; 32 L.J. Q.B. 82. Only one part of a set requires to be stamped. The remaining parts are exempt "unless issued or in some manner negotiated apart" from the stamped part. If the stamped part of a set be lost or destroyed, the unstamped parts are admissible in evidence on proof of such loss or destruction: Stamp Act, 1891 (54 & 55 Vict. c. 39), s. 39.

(m) Ib., s. 71 (2).

(n) Ib., s. 71 (3).

(o) Ib., s. 71 (4).

holders in due course, he is liable on every such part as if it were a separate bill (oo). When the acceptor of a bill drawn in a set pays it without requiring the part bearing his acceptance to be delivered up to him, and that part at maturity is outstanding in the hands of a holder in due course, he is liable to the holder thereof (p). Subject to the preceding rules, where any one part of a bill drawn in a set is discharged by payment or otherwise, the whole bill is discharged (q).

Promissory Notes.—By the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, Part IV., s. 89, "(1.) Subject to the provisions in this part and, except as by this section provided, the provisions of this Act relating to bills of exchange apply, with the necessary modifications, to promissory notes. (2.) In applying those provisions the maker of a note shall be deemed to correspond with the acceptor of a bill, and the first indorser of a note shall be deemed to correspond with the drawer of an accepted bill payable to drawer's order. (3.) The following provisions as to bills do not apply to notes; namely, provisions relating to—(a) Presentment for acceptance; (b) Acceptance; (c) Acceptance supra protest; (d) Bills in a set. (4.) Where a foreign note is dishonoured, protest thereof is unnecessary."

A promissory note is an unconditional promise in writing made by one person to another signed by the maker (r), engaging to pay, on demand (s) or at a fixed or determinable future time, a sum certain in money, to, or to the order of, a specified person or to bearer (t). An instrument in the form of a note payable to maker's order is not a note within the meaning of this section unless and until it is indorsed by the maker (u). A note is not invalid by reason only that it contains also a pledge of collateral security with authority to sell or dispose thereof (x). A note which is, or on the face of it purports to be, both made and payable within the British Islands is an inland note, and any other note is a foreign note (y). A promissory note is inchoate and incomplete until delivery (z) thereof to the payee (oo) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 71 (4).

(p) Ib., s. 71 (5).

(q) Ib., s. 71 (6).

(r) As to signature by the hands of an agent, see s. 91 (1), and as to the seal of a corporation in lieu of signature see s. 91 (2).

(s) See s. 10.

(t) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 83 (1). Kirkwood v. Carroll, (1903) 1 K.B. 531; 72 L.J. K.B. 208. Many instruments may require to be stamped as promissory notes which have not the mercantile incidents of notes as prescribed by the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882. See Stamp Act, 1891 (54 & 55 Vict. c. 39), s. 33. A promissory note issued in the United Kingdom must be on an impressed stamp. See Stamp Act, 1891, s. 2.

(u) Ib., s. 83 (2).

(x) Ib., s. 83 (3). See Yates v. Evans, 61 L.J. Q.B. 446; and Kirkwood v. Carroll, (1903) 1 K.B. 531; 72 L.J. K.B. 208; overruling Kirkwood v. Smith, (1896) 1 Q.B. 582; 65 L.J. Q.B. 408.

(y) Ib., s. 83 (4).

(z) "Delivery" means transfer of possession, actual or constructive, from one person to another: sect. 2.

or bearer (a). A promissory note may be made by two or more makers, and they may be liable thereon jointly, or jointly and severally according to its tenor (b). Where a note runs "I promise to pay" and is signed by two or more persons it is deemed to be their joint and several note (c).

Liability of maker.—The maker of a promissory note by making it engages that he will pay it according to its tenor and he is precluded from denying to a holder in due course (d) the existence of the payee and his then capacity to indorse (e). A promise to pay "to A., B., and C., or to their order, or the major part of them, 100*l*.," is a promissory note (f). If it appears doubtful whether the instrument was intended to be a bill or a note, it may be treated either as the one or the other, at the election of the payee (g). An instrument in the form of a bill of exchange addressed to no one, but accepted by the defendant, may be treated as a promissory note (h). But if it is a mere inchoate instrument, having neither the name of a drawer nor of a payee upon it, it is not a note (i). A promissory note need not contain an express promise in terms upon the face of it; it is sufficient if the promise appears by necessary inference from the words used (k). And its negotiability is not destroyed by an acknowledgment upon the face of it of a deposit of title deeds as a collateral security for the payment of the money (l). But it must in all cases, like bills of exchange, be drawn or made for the payment of money by some certain person absolutely and unconditionally. Any words, indeed, upon the face of the note qualifying the promise, and rendering the ultimate liability to pay the money uncertain, will deprive the note of negotiability, and render it a mere agreement (m). A promise to pay is none the less an unconditional promise because it refers to an agreement, if such agreement does not qualify the promise (n). Before the Bills of

(a) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 84.

(b) Ib., s. 85 (1). See Honey, Ex parte, L.R. 7 Ch. 178; 41 L.J. Bankr. 9.

(c) Ib., s. 85 (2). Buckley, Ex parte, 14 M. & W. 469; 14 L.J. Ex. 341.

(d) See s. 29, ante, p. 1255.

(e) Ib., s. 88.

(f) Watson v. Evans, 1 H. & C. 662; 32 L.J. Ex. 137. See also Grant v. Vaughan, 3 Burr. 1527.

(g) Edis v. Bury, 6 B. & C. 435; 5 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 179.

(h) Peto v. Reynolds, 9 Exch. 415; 23 L.J. Ex. 98; Fielder v. Marshall, 9 C.B. N.S. 606; 30 L.J. C.P. 158.

(i) M'Call v. Taylor, 19 C.B. N.S. 301; 34 L.J. C.P. 365, ante, p. 1244.

(k) Miller v. Thomson, 3 M. & Gr. 576; 11 L.J. C.P. 21. See also Morris v. Lee, 2 Ld. Raym. 1396; 1 Str. 629; 8 Mod. 562.

(l) Wise v. Charlton, 4 Ad. & E. 786; 6 L.J. K.B. 80. Sect. 83 (3), ante, p. 1284.

(m) Robins v. May, 11 Ad. & E. 213; 9 L.J. Q.B. 22; Clark v. Percival, 2 B. & Ald. 660; 9 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 296; Ferris v. Bond, 4 B. & Ald. 679; Blackenhagen v. Blundell, 2 B. & Ald. 417; Hill v. Halford, 2 Bos. & P. 413; Homes v. Jaques, L.R. 1 Q.B. 376; 35 L.J. Q.B. 130; Absolon v. Marks, 11 Q.B. 19; 17 L.J. Q.B. 7.

(n) Jury v. Baker, E.B. & E. 459; 28 L.J. Q.B. 255; Oridge v. Sherborne, 11 M. & W. 380; 12 J. Ex. 313; Carlon v.

Exchange Act, 1882, it was held in England, but not in Scotland, that a bill or note drawn payable to a specified person without the addition of words authorising transfer, e.g., "Pay A.," was not negotiable (o), and the action upon it must have been brought in the name of the original promisee or payee. But now by sect. 8, sub-sect. 4 of the Act of 1882, a bill is payable to order which is expressed to be so payable, or which is expressed to be payable to a particular person, and does not contain words prohibiting transfer or indicating an intention that it should not be transferable." And sub-sect. 3 of sect. 8 provides that "a bill is payable to bearer, which is expressed to be so payable, or on which the only or last indorsement is an indorsement in blank." But, if the words "or order" or "or bearer" have been omitted by mistake, they may, after the bill or note has been signed, be inserted with the consent of all parties in pursuance of an original intention to make the instrument negotiable (p).

The maker of a promissory note stands in the same position as the acceptor of a bill of exchange (ante, p. 1284). He is the party primarily liable upon the instrument, and is bound, when the note falls due, to seek out and pay the holder. He is not entitled to presentment, unless the note is payable at or after sight, or is made payable at some particular place (q). A promissory note, payable on demand, need not be presented to the maker in order to charge him, the commencement of an action against him being a sufficient demand of the money. But, in order to charge the indorser, the instrument, whether payable on demand or not, must be duly presented to the maker, and notice of dishonour given (ante, p. 1272); and, if payable on demand, it must be presented within a reasonable time, that is, a period reasonable with respect to the circumstances connected with each particular case (r).

Transfer of promissory notes.—If the maker of the note promises to pay the amount of the note to his own order, the note is not a promissory note within the statute until it has been indorsed by the maker; and then it becomes, in legal effect, a note payable to bearer, and so falls within the statute (s).

Kenealy, 12 M. & W. 139; 13 L.J. Ex. 64. See s. 9 (c), ante, p. 1245.

(o) Plimley v. Westley, 2 Bing. N.C. 249; 5 L.P. C.P. 51; but see s. 8, ante, pp. 1246, 1252.

(p) Kershaw v. Cox, 3 Esp. 246.

(q) Sect. 87, post, p. 1287.

(r) Chartered Mercantile Bank of India v. Dickson, L.R. 3 P.C. 574. Sect. 86, post, p. 1287.

(s) Sect. 83 (2), ante, p. 1284; Brown v. De Winton, 17 L.J. C.P. 285; 6 C.B. 336; Masters v. Baretto, 8 C.B. 433; 19 L.J. C.P. 50; Hooper v. Williams, 2 Exch. 20; 17 L.J. Ex. 315; Gay v. Lander, 17 L.J. C.P. 287; 6 C.B. 336; Flight v. Maclean, 16 M. & W. 51; 16 L.J. Ex. 23; Wood v. Mytton, 10 Q.B. 805; 16 L.J. Q.B. 446.

The first transfer of a note payable to order must, as in the case of bills, be made by indorsement and delivery. If such a note is delivered in the first instance without indorsement, the equitable interest only is transferred to the holder; and, if the note is indorsed by the maker, and not delivered, no right to sue upon the instrument is transferred; and a subsequent delivery by the executor of the maker will not complete the informal transfer, and enable the holder to sue upon the instrument (t).

Note payable on demand.—Where a note payable on demand has been indorsed, it must be presented for payment within a reasonable time of the indorsement, and if it be not so presented the indorser is discharged (u). In determining what is a reasonable time, regard shall be had to the nature of the instrument, the usage of trade, and the facts of the particular case (x). Where a note payable on demand is negotiated, it is not deemed to be overdue, for the purpose of affecting the holder with defects of title of which he had no notice, by reason that it appears that a reasonable time for presenting it for payment has elapsed since its issue (y).

Presentment of note for payment.—Where a promissory note is in the body of it made payable at a particular place, it must be presented for payment at that place in order to render the maker liable, but in any other case, presentment for payment is not necessary in order to render the maker liable (z). Presentment for payment is necessary in order to render the indorser of a note liable (a). Where a note is in the body of it made payable at a particular place, presentment at that place is necessary in order to render an indorser liable; but when a place of payment is indicated by way of memorandum only, presentment at that place is sufficient to render the indorser liable, but a presentment to the maker elsewhere, if sufficient in other respects, shall also suffice (b). Where a promissory note is made payable at a particular place, presentment for payment at that place is under sect. 87 of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c), necessary in order to render the maker of the note liable, although such place of pre(u) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 86 (1). By s. 10 read with s. 89, a note is payable on demand which is expressed to be payable on demand, or at sight, or on presentation, or in which no time for payment is expressed.

(t) Bromage v. Lloyd, 1 Exch. 32; 16 L.J. Ex. 257. See s. 84, ante, p. 1285.

(x) Ib., s. 86 (2).

(y) Ib., s. 86 (3). This sub-section negatives the application of sect. 36 (3) to promissory notes payable on demand.

(z) Ib., s. 87 (1).

(a) Ib., s. 87 (2).

(b) Ib., s. 87 (3). By virtue of sect. 89, presentment for payment will be governed by the same rules as applying to bills, as to which see sect. 45. As to excuses for non-presentment and delay, see s. 46.

(c) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61.

sentment may have been inserted merely for the purpose of giving jurisdiction to a particular Court. Where a plaintiff may succeed by proving either presentment for payment at a place within the jurisdiction of a particular Court, or, in the alternative, dispensation with such presentment, prohibition ought not to issue if the plaintiff undertakes to rely upon the case involving presentment within the jurisdiction (d).

Indorsement of notes and bills overdue.—As a rule of law the indorsee of a bill or note which is overdue must take it on the credit of the indorser, and can stand in no better position (e). He takes it subject to all its equities (f). But an original absence of consideration in an accommodation bill does not, it seems, attach to the document, so as to defeat the title of a bonâ fide indorsee for value (g). In the case of a note payable on demand the same rule will not hold, at all events where the note or cheque has not been made a very long time, for they are not overdue at any particular date. The question for the jury is whether under all the circumstances the indorsee ought to have been led to inquire into the title of the indorser (h). A promissory note payable on demand cannot be treated as overdue, so as to affect an indorsee with any equities against the indorser, merely because it is indorsed a number of years after its date, and no interest has been paid on it for several years before such indorsement (i). Notes payable at and after sight must be presented to the maker before an action can be maintained against him for non-payment. "He is to see the note before he is to be called upon to pay it" (k). When a note is made payable a certain time after sight, the time does not begin to run from the day of the date, but from the day of the note being presented for sight (l).

Days of grace are allowed on promissory notes (m), as well as on bills of exchange (ante, p. 1271).

Bills and notes for payment of sums under 1*l.*—Section 1 of 26 & 27 Vict. c. 105, repeals 17 Geo. 3, c. 30, and so much of any other Act as prohibits or restrains, or imposes any penalty for, the uttering or negotiating any promissory note (not being (d) Josolyne v. Roberts, (1908) 2 K.B. 349 ; 77 L.J. K.B. 845.

(e) Brown v. Davis, 3 T.R. 80 ; Borough v. White, 4 B. & C. 325 ; 3 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 227.

(f) Sturtevant v. Ford, 4 M. & Gr. 101 ; 11 L.J. C.P. 245. Sect. 36, ante, p. 1260, and sect. 89, p. 1284.

(g) Carruthers v. West, 17 L.J. Q.B. 4 ; 11 Q.B. 143 ; Swan, Ex parte, L.R. 6 Eq. 345 ; Sturtevant v. Ford, supra.

(h) London & County Banking Co. v. Groome, 8 Q.B.D. 288 ; 51 L.J. Q.B. 224. See sect. 86, supra.

(i) Brooks v. Mitchell, 9 M. & W. 15 ; 11 L.J. Ex. 51.

(k) Dixon v. Nuttall, 1 Cr. M. & R. 307 ; 3 L.J. Ex. 290.

(l) Sturdy v. Henderson, 4 B. & Ald. 592.

(m) Brown v. Harraden, 4 T.R. 153.

a note payable to bearer on demand), bill of exchange, draft, or undertaking in writing, being negotiable or transferable, for the payment of 20*s.*, or above that sum and less than 5*l.*, or on which 20*s.* or above that sum and less than 5*l.*, shall remain undischarged, made, drawn, or indorsed in any other manner than as directed by the said Act. By 7 Geo. 4, c. 6, s. 3 (n), heavy penalties are imposed upon all persons issuing or negotiating promissory notes payable to the bearer on demand for any sum of money less than 5*l.* The issue of bank notes has been subjected to various prohibitions and restrictions by the legislature (o).

Dividend warrants (p), issued by the Bank of England for the payment of dividends on stock in the public funds, are not negotiable, so as to entitle the holder to demand the dividend; but, as there is in general an acknowledgment at the foot of the warrant by the payee of his having received the dividend therein mentioned, it is the custom of the bank to pay the amount to the holder of the warrant and receipt; and these documents are accordingly transferred from hand to hand, and are generally considered to be negotiable (q).

Foreign scrip.—Scrip issued in England by a foreign government entitling the holder to delivery of definitive bonds of the foreign government, which by the usage of trade is transferred by mere delivery, passes by such delivery to a bonâ fide holder for value without notice that the vendor had no title (r). But the mere fact that an instrument is negotiable in a foreign country is not sufficient to make it so by English law (s).

Bankers' cheques.—By the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, s. 73, "A cheque is a bill of exchange drawn on a banker payable on demand (t). Except as otherwise provided in this Part, the provisions of this Act applicable to a bill of exchange payable on demand apply to a cheque."

Presentment of cheque for payment.—Subject to the pro-

(n) This section is partially repealed; see St. L. Rev. Acts, 1873.

(o) 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 98; 7 & 8 Vict. c. 32. These statutes are partially repealed; see St. L. Rev. Acts, 1861, 1874.

(p) As to crossed dividend warrants, see sect. 95, post, p. 1293.

(q) Partridge v. Bank of England, 9 Q.B. 424—427.

(r) Goodwin v. Robarts, 1 App. Cas. 476; 45 L.J. Q.B. 478; see also Rumball v. Met. Bank, 2 Q.B.D. 194; 46 L.J. Q.B. 346; Fine Art Society v. Union Bank, 17 Q.B.D. 705; 56 L.J. Q.B. 70; London Joint Stock Bank v. Simmons, (1892) A.C. 201; 61 L.J. Ch. 723; Edelstein v. Schuler, (1902) 2 K.B. 144; 71 L.J. K.B. 572. As to what amounts to notice of the vendor's lack of title, see Sheffield (Earl) v. London Joint Stock Bank, 13 App. Cas. 333; 57 L.J. Ch. 986; Venables v. Baring, (1892) 3 Ch. 527; 61 L.J. Ch. 609.

(s) Picker v London & County Bank, 18 Q.B.D. 515; 56 L.J. Q.B. 299; Williams v. Colonial Bank, 15 App. Cas. 267; 60 L.J. Ch. 131.

(t) See National Bank v. Silke, (1891) 1 Q.B. 435; 60 L.J. Q.B. 199, and Imperial Bank of Canada v. Bank of Hamilton, (1903) A.C. 49; 72 L.J. P.C. 1.

visions of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, where a cheque is not presented for payment within a reasonable time (u) of its issue, and the drawer or the person on whose account it is drawn had the right at the time of such presentment as between him and the banker to have the cheque paid and suffers actual damage through the delay, he is discharged to the extent of such damage, that is to say, to the extent to which such drawer or person is a creditor of such banker to a larger amount than he would have been had such cheque been paid (x). In determining what is a reasonable time regard is to be had to the nature of the instrument, the usage of trade and of bankers, and the facts of the particular case (y). The holder of such cheque as to which such drawer or person is discharged shall be a creditor, in lieu of such drawer or person, of such banker to the extent of such discharge, and entitled to recover the amount from him (z).

It has been held that the holder of a cheque does not lose his remedy against the drawer by reason of non-presentment within any period short of six years after taking it, unless the insolvency of the banker on whom it is drawn has taken place in the interval, or unless there is an actual loss to the drawer by the delay (a). If the cheque is presented in due time and refused payment, the loss will fall on the drawer (b). Sending a cheque by post to the banker on whom it is drawn is generally a good presentment (c). If the holder of a cheque sends it to his agent for presentment by the post on the day after that on which he has received it, the agent has the following day to present it for payment (d). If the cheque is delivered to the holder by the drawer after banking hours, and after it has become impossible to pay the cheque to a banker on that day, the delivery will count from the succeeding day; and, if the cheque is drawn upon a country bank situate at a distance, such distance must be taken into consideration in determining whether the cheque has been presented within a reasonable time (e).

(u) Whether or not a cheque has been presented within a reasonable time of its issue is a question of fact for the jury: Wheeler v. Young, 13 T.L.R. 468.

(x) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 74 (1); Hopkins v. Ware, L.R. 4 Ex. 268; 38 L.J. Ex. 147.

(y) Ib., s. 74 (2).

(z) Ib., s. 74 (3). This section effects some alteration in the law.

(a) Robinson v. Hawksford, 9 Q.B. 52; 15 L.J. Q.B. 377. See also Defries & Sons, Ltd., In re, 78 L.J. Ch. 720; (1909) 2 Ch. 423.

(b) Laws v. Rand, 3 C.B. N.S. 442; 27 L.J. C.P. 76; Bailey v. Bodenham, 16 C.B. N.S. 288; 33 L.J. C.P. 252.

(c) Heywood v. Pickering, L.R. 9 Q.B. 428; 43 L.J. Q.B. 145. Sect. 45 (8), ante, p. 1268.

(d) Rickford v. Ridge, 2 Campb. 537; Hare v. Henty, 10 C.B. N.S. 65; 30 L.J. C.P. 302; Prideaux v. Criddle, L.R. 4 Q.B. 455; 38 L.J. Q.B. 232.

(e) Bond v. Warden, 1 Coll. Ch. C. 583.

Garnishees had given a judgment debtor a cheque, but upon service of the order immediately stopped the cheque at the bank; it was held that the giving of the cheque had not extinguished the debt, which was therefore still capable of being attached(f).

Revocation of banker's authority.—The duty and authority of a banker to pay a cheque drawn on him by his customer are determined by—(1.) Countermand of payment: (2) Notice of the customer's death (g).

Crossed cheques (h).—Where a cheque bears across its face an addition of—(a) The words "and company" or any abbreviation thereof between two parallel transverse lines, either with or without the words "not negotiable"; or (b) Two parallel transverse lines simply, either with or without the words "not negotiable"; that addition constitutes a crossing, and the cheque is crossed generally (i). Where a cheque bears across its face an addition of the name of a banker, either with or without the words "not negotiable," that addition constitutes a crossing, and the cheque is crossed specially and to that banker (k). A cheque may be crossed generally or specially by the drawer (l). Where a cheque is uncrossed, the holder may cross it generally or specially (m). Where a cheque is crossed generally the holder may cross it specially (n). Where a cheque is crossed generally or specially, the holder may add the words "not negotiable" (o). Where a cheque is crossed specially, the banker to whom it is crossed may again cross it specially to another banker for collection (p). Where an uncrossed cheque, or a cheque crossed generally, is sent to a banker for collection, he may cross it specially to himself (q).

A crossing authorized by the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, is a material part of the cheque, and it shall not be lawful for any person to obliterate or, except as authorized by the Act, to add to or alter the crossing (r).

(f) Cohen v. Hale, 3 Q.B.D. 371; 47 L.J. Q.B. 496.

(g) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 75; Curtice v. London, City & Midland Bank, (1908) 1 K.B. 293; 77 L.J. K.B. 341; Backhouse v. Charlton, 8 Ch.D. 444; Beaumont, In re, (1902) 1 Ch. 889; 71 L.J. Ch. 478. Cp. Cohen v. Hale, 3 Q.B.D. 371; 47 L.J. Q.B. 496; M'Lean v. Clydesdale Bank, 9 App. Cas. 95.

(h) Sects. 76—82 are extended by 46 & 47 Vict. c. 55, s. 17, to any document issued by a customer of any banker and intended to enable any person to obtain payment from the banker of the sum mentioned in the document, just as if the document were a cheque. See the origin of crossing cheques explained by Parke, B., in Bellamy v. Marjoribanks, 7 Exch. 389, at p. 402; 21 L.J. Ex. 70; and the common law effect of crossing commented on by Lord Cairns in Smith v. Union Bank of London, 1 Q.B.D. 31, at p. 33; 44 L.J. Q.B. 117.

(i) Ib., s. 76 (1).

(k) Ib., s. 76 (2). See National Bank v. Silke, (1891) 1 Q.B. 435; 60 L.J. Q.B. 199.

(l) Ib., s. 77 (1).

(m) Ib., s. 77 (2).

(n) Ib., s. 77 (3).

(o) Ib., s. 77 (4).

(p) Ib., s. 77 (5).

(q) Ib., s. 77 (6).

(r) Ib., s. 78. See Abrokerri (Ashanti) Mines v. Economic Bank, (1904) 2 K.B.

Duties of banker as to crossed cheque.—Where a cheque is crossed specially to more than one banker, except when crossed to an agent for collection being a banker, the banker on whom it is drawn shall refuse payment thereof (s). Where the banker on whom a cheque is drawn which is so crossed nevertheless pays the same, or pays a cheque crossed generally otherwise than to a banker, or if crossed specially otherwise than to the banker to whom it is crossed, or his agent for collection being a banker, he is liable to the true owner of the cheque for any loss he may sustain owing to the cheque having been so paid (t). Provided that where a cheque is presented for payment which does not at the time of presentment appear to be crossed, or to have had a crossing which has been obliterated, or to have been added to or altered otherwise than as authorized by this Act, the banker paying the cheque in good faith and without negligence shall not be responsible or incur any liability, nor shall the payment be questioned by reason of the cheque having been crossed, or of the crossing having been obliterated or having been added to or altered otherwise than as authorized by this Act, and of payment having been made otherwise than to a banker or to the banker to whom the cheque is or was crossed, or to his agent for collection being a banker, as the case may be (t).

Where the banker on whom a crossed cheque is drawn in good faith and without negligence pays it, if crossed generally, to a banker, and if crossed specially, to the banker to whom it is crossed, or his agent for collection being a banker, the banker paying the cheque, and, if the cheque has come into the hands of the payee, the drawer, shall respectively be entitled to the same rights and be placed in the same position as if payment of the cheque had been made to the true owner thereof (u). Where a person takes a crossed cheque which bears on it the words "not negotiable," he shall not have and shall not be capable of giving a better title to the cheque than that which the person from whom he took it had (x).

Where a banker in good faith and without negligence receives payment for a customer (y) of a cheque crossed generally or 465, at p. 472 ; 73 L.J. K.B. 742. It may be negligence on the part of a banker to receive payment for a customer of a crossed cheque marked "account of payee" when the banker has information which may lead him to think that the account into which he is paying the amount of the cheque is not the payee's account : Becan v. The National Bank, Ltd., 23 T.L.R. 65.

(s) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 79 (1).
(t) Ib., s. 79 (2).
(u) Ib., s. 80.
(x) Ib., s. 81.
(y) The word "customer" in s. 82 of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, involves use and habit, and bankers who collect a cheque for an absolute stranger cannot claim the protection afforded them by this section when it turns out that specially to himself, and the customer has no title or a defective title thereto, the banker shall not incur any liability to the true owner of the cheque by reason only of having received such payment (z). A banker receives payment of a crossed cheque for a customer within the meaning of sect. 82 of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, notwithstanding that he credits his customer's account with the amount of the cheque before receiving payment thereof (a). A banker's draft addressed by one branch of a bank to another is not a cheque within the meaning of sect. 82 of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (b).

The provisions of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c), as to crossed cheques apply to a warrant for payment of dividend (d).

When a cheque is drawn payable to bearer, it is treated as money or cash, and is transferable from hand to hand, like a bill of exchange, but does not require any acceptance by the banker on whom it is drawn to establish its validity. A person therefore who receives a cheque payable to bearer bonâ fide for value, relying on the order of the party making it, is entitled to recover the amount from him, although the cheque has been lost or stolen (e). A banker's cheque payable to bearer on demand, given on account of a pre-existing debt, and received by the bearer bonâ fide, is indefeasible, although it may have been obtained from the drawer by fraud (f). In this respect it does not differ from a bill. When it is drawn payable to order, it is a bill of exchange, and negotiable as such when indorsed (g). The holder cannot sue the banker upon whom it has been drawn, unless the banker has accepted the cheque, or promised to pay it to the holder. The post-dating of a cheque, whether it is payable to order or bearer, does not invalidate the instrument in the hands of a bonâ fide holder for value with notice that it was post-dated (h).

Cancellation of bills and notes.—Where a bill is intention-the stranger had no title to the cheque; Matthews v. Brown & Co., 63 L.J. Q.B. 494. As to who is a "customer," see La Cave v. Crédit Lyonnais, (1897) 1 Q.B. 148; 66 L.J. Q.B. 226; G. W. Ry. v. London & County Banking Co., (1901) A.C. 414; 70 L.J. Q.B. 915.

(z) Ib., s. 82. Clarke v. London & County Banking Co., (1897) 1 Q.B. 552; 66 L.J. Q.B. 354.

(a) 6 Edw. 7, c. 17, s. 1. This Act was passed in consequence of the decision of the House of Lords in Capital & Counties Bank v. Gordon, (1903) A.C. 240; 72 L.J. K.B. 451.

(b) Capital & Counties Bank v. Gordon, supra.

(c) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, ss. 76—82.

(d) Ib., s. 95.

(e) Watson v. Russell, 5 B. & S. 968; 34 L.J. Q.B. 93.

(f) Misa v. Currie, 1 App.Cas. 554; 45 L.J. Ex. 852.

(g) Keene v. Beard, 8 C.B. N.S. 372; 29 L.J. C.P. 287; as to presentment of cheques, see ante, p. 1289.

(h) Whistler v. Foster, 14 C.B. N.S. 248; 32 L.J. C.P. 161; Austin v. Bunyard, 6 B. & S. 687; 34 L.J. Q.B. 217; Bull v. O'Sullivan, L.R. 6 Q. B. 209; 40 L.J. Q.B. 141; Gatty v. Fry, 2 Ex.D. 265; 46 L.J. Ex. 605; see sect. 13, ante, p. 1245.

ally cancelled by the holder or his agent, and the cancellation is apparent thereon, the bill is discharged (i). In like manner any party liable on a bill may be discharged by the intentional cancellation of his signature by the holder or his agent (k). In such case any indorser who would have had a right of recourse against the party whose signature is cancelled, is also discharged (k). A cancellation made unintentionally, or under a mistake, or without the authority of the holder is inoperative; but where a bill or any signature thereon appears to have been cancelled the burden of proof lies on the party who alleges that the cancellation was made unintentionally, or under a mistake, or without authority (l). If the drawer of a cheque or bill tears it up with the intention of destroying it, but does it so imperfectly that the pieces are pasted together again so as to bear no marks of cancellation about them, the drawer will be responsible upon the instrument to a holder for value who has taken it without having any just cause for supposing that it had been cancelled. This has been held to be the case where the appearance of the instrument was consistent with its having been divided into two parts for the purpose of safe transmission through the post, and where it was believed to have been so divided by the plaintiff who received it (m).

Alterations in bill or note avoiding the contract.—Where a bill or acceptance is materially altered without the assent of all parties liable on the bill, the bill is avoided except as against a party who has himself made, authorized, or assented to the alteration, and subsequent indorsers (n). Provided that, where a bill has been materially altered, but the alteration is not apparent, and the bill is in the hands of a holder in due course, such holder may avail himself of the bill as if it had not been altered, and may enforce payment of it according to its original tenour (n). In particular the following alterations are material, namely, any alteration of the date, the sum payable, the time of payment, the place of payment, and, where a bill has been accepted generally, the addition of a place of payment without the acceptor's assent (o).

(i) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 63 (1).
(k) Ib., s. 63 (2).
(l) Ib. s. 63 (3).
(m) Ingham v. Primrose, 7 C.B. N.S. 82; 28 L.J. C.P. 295.
(n) Ib., s. 64 (1). Imperial Bank of Canada v. Bank of Hamilton, (1903) A.C. 49; 72 L.J. P.C. 1. The proviso does not apply to Bank of England notes. Leeds and County Bank v. Walker, 11 Q.B.D. 84; 52 L.J. Q.B. 90.
(o) Ib., s. 64 (2). As to material alterations, see Knill v. Williams, 10 East, 431; Outhwaite v. Luntley, 4 Campb. 179; Société Générale v. Metropolitan Bank, 21 W.R. 335; Sutton v. Toomer, 7 B. & C. 416; 6 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 49; Warrington v. Early, 2 E. & B. 763; 23 L.J. Q.B. 47; Hirschfield v. Smith, L.R. 1 C.P. 340; 35 L.J. C.P. 177. As to immaterial alterations, see Attwood v. Griffin, 2 C. & P. 368; Farquhar v.

An alteration of a bill or note in a material particular, after it has been negotiated, will avoid the contract, such as the addition to a promissory note for the payment of money with lawful interest, of the words "Interest at £6 per cent." written in the corner of the note, without the assent of the maker, after the note had been signed by him (p); the cutting off the signature of one of several joint promisors who have united together in undertaking a joint liability by their joint note of hand (q); the addition to the note of the name of a new promisor without the consent of the defendant (r); the acceleration of the time of payment of a bill of exchange by an alteration in the date of the bill and the time that it has to run (s), or the postponement of the date of payment of a cheque (t); an insertion of an incorrect date, where the bill bore no date upon the face of it (u); an alteration in the place of payment; or an insertion of some particular place of payment, without the privity and assent of the acceptor (x). The acceptor of a bill of exchange, however, is not under a duty to take precautions against fraudulent alterations in the bill after acceptance (y); and this principle applies equally as between a customer of a bank and the bank (z).

Immaterial alterations.—Whenever the alteration is immaterial, the substance of the contract remaining the same, the contract is not vitiated, although the alteration has been made by the plaintiff himself (a). Where, therefore, the date of a bill, payable three months after date, was altered from the 2nd to the 22nd of March, it was held, as between the indorsee and the acceptor, that the alteration was an immaterial alteration, the time of payment not being accelerated (b). Where a promissory note expressed no time for payment, and, while Southey, M. & M. 14; 2 C. & P. 497; but see Bank of Montreal v. Exhibit and Trading Co., 11 Com. Cas. 250 as to adding the word "Limited" to the name of an unincorporate company.

(p) Warrington v. Early, 2 E. & B. 763; 23 L.J. Q.B. 47; and see Hirschfield v. Smith, L.R. 1 C.P. 340; 35 L.J. C.P. 177.

(q) Mason v. Bradley, 11 M. & W. 590; 12 L.J. Ex. 425.

(r) Gardner v. Walsh, 5 E. & B. 91; 24 L.J. Q.B. 285.

(s) Master v. Miller, 4 T.R. 320; 5 T.R. 367; 1 Smith's L.C. 747 (ed. 10); Hirschman v. Budd, L.R. 8 Ex. 171; 42 L.J. Ex. 113. See s. 64, supra.

(t) Vance v. Lowther, 1 Ex.D. 176; 45 L.J. Ex. 200.

(u) Harrison v. Cotgreave, 4 C.B. 562; 16 L.J. C.P. 198.

(x) See now sect. 64 (2) of the Act, supra; Calvert v. Baker, 4 M. & W. 417; 8 L.J. Ex. 40; Tidmarsh v. Grover, 1 M. & S. 735; Desbrow v. Wetherby, 1 Mood. & R. 438; Crotty v. Hodges, 4 M. & Gr. 561; 11 L.J. C.P. 289; Burchfield v. Moore, 23 L.J. Q.B. 261; 3 E. & B. 683.

(y) Scholfield v. Londesborough (Earl), (1896) A.C. 514; 65 L.J. Q.B. 593.

(z) Colonial Bank of Australia v. Marshall, (1906) A.C. 559; 75 L.J. P.C. 76.

(a) Aldous v. Cornwell, post, p. 1296.

(b) Parry v. Nicholson, 13 M. & W. 778; 14 L.J. Ex. 119.

it was in the possession of the payee, the words "on demand" were added without the assent of the maker, it was held, in an action by the payee against the maker, that, as the alteration only expressed the effect of the note as it originally stood, and was therefore immaterial, it did not affect the validity of the instrument (c). An alteration or addition, moreover, to the contract, before it has been finally completed, made with the assent of the parties to be affected thereby, will not avoid the instrument, or render a fresh stamp necessary (d). Where a joint and several promissory note was altered after the two first makers had signed the instrument, but before the defendant had affixed his signature, it was held that the note was not vitiated as regarded the defendant, and that no fresh stamp was requisite (e). Where a bill was made payable on the 1st of January, and the person to whom it was directed struck out the word January, and inserted March, and then accepted the bill, and sent it to the drawer, who, perceiving the enlarged acceptance, struck out March and again inserted January, and at that time sent the bill for payment, which the acceptor refused, whereupon the holder of the bill again struck out January, and left the bill payable in March, as the acceptor had accepted it, it was held that the acceptor was responsible for the non-payment of the bill on the 1st of March, pursuant to his original acceptance (f). Where the holder of a bill for value agreed to take a new bill, and a bill at three months was sent him, to which he objected, requiring a bill at two months, and the three was accordingly altered to two, and the bill made payable at two instead of three months, it was held that the alteration did not invalidate the bill (g). Where the defendant signed an acceptance, leaving the amount in the body of the bill blank, but put the sum for which he desired to accept in the margin, and handed it to the drawee, who filled it up for a larger amount, and altered the figures in the margin accordingly; it was held that the defendant was liable to bonâ fide holders for value for the larger amount, because the marginal figures were no essential part of the bill (h).

Whenever the plaintiff has altered a bill or note so as to vitiate the security, and deprive the defendant of a remedy which he would otherwise have had upon the instrument against

(c) Aldous v. Cornwell, L.R. 3 Q.B. 573; 37 L.J. Q.B. 201.

(d) Fitch v. Jones, 5 E. & B. 238; 24 L.J. Q.B. 293.

(e) Wright v. Inshaw, 1 Dowl. N.S. 802.

(f) Price v. Shute, cited 4 T.R. 336.

(g) Tarleton v. Shingler, 7 C.B. 812.

(h) Garrard v. Lewis, 10 Q.B.D. 30.

the parties whose names are upon the face of it, the plaintiff will not only be deprived of all right of action upon the bill, but he will also lose all remedy for the recovery of the debt for which the bill was given (i). But, if the defendant has assented to the alteration, and the security is vitiated for want of a new stamp, or the bill has been accidentally or ignorantly altered by the plaintiff, without any fraudulent intent, and the defendant's remedy against any other parties is not affected by the alteration, the plaintiff's right of action for the recovery of the debt on account of which the bill was given is not discharged (k). Where a sum of 250*l.* had been advanced to a banker upon the security of a promissory note, and the note was subsequently altered by the parties, and vitiated by reason of there being no fresh stamp, it was held that the 250*l.* might be recovered independently of the note, upon a common count for money lent (l). And, where the names of prior indorsers of a bill had been struck out by mistake, it was held that the erasure might be corrected (m). It lies upon the party suing upon a bill or note to account for any material alteration appearing upon the face of it, or to give some reasonable evidence from which it may be inferred that the alteration was not made under such circumstances as would avoid the instrument, or render a fresh stamp necessary (n), unless the making of the bill, as set out by the plaintiff, is admitted on the record, the defendant merely denying the indorsement to the plaintiff (o), or the alteration is immaterial, and does not affect the plaintiff's right of action (p).

If a bill of exchange or note is altered in any material particular, and the alteration is apparent (see sect. 64, p. 1294), the remedy of the bonâ fide holder for value is confined to a right to recover the consideration for the bill as between himself and the party from whom he received it. A similar remedy may be resorted to by each indorsee against his immediate indorser, till the party is reached through whose fraud or laches the alteration was made; and the loss must rest with him, as it was

(i) Alderson v. Langdale, 3 B. & Ad. 660; 1 L.J. K.B. 273.

(k) Atkinson v. Hawdon, 2 Ad. & E. 628; 4 L.J. K.B. 85; Sloman v. Cox, 1 C. M. & R. 471; 4 L.J. Ex. 7.

(l) Sutton v. Toomer, 7 B. & C. 416; 6 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 49.

(m) Wilkinson v. Johnston, 3 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 58; 3 B. & C. 428.

(n) Knight v. Clements, 8 Ad. & E. 215; 7 L.J. Q.B. 144; Henman v. Dickinson, 5 Bing. 183; 7 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 68; Clifford v. Parker, 3 Sc. N.R. 233; 10 L.J. C.P. 227; Cariss v. Tattersall, 3 Sc. N.R. 257; 10 L.J. C.P. 187.

(o) Sibley v. Fisher, 7 Ad. & E. 444; 7 L.J. Q.B. 2.

(p) Falmouth (Earl) v. Roberts, 9 M. & W. 469; 11 L.J. Ex. 180; and even where the alteration is material, a written contract may be looked at to see the terms of a parol contract: Pattinson v. Luckley, L.R. 10 Ex. 330; 44 L.J. Ex. 180, ante, p. 190.

his duty to have preserved the instrument in its original state (q).

Lost instruments.—Where a bill has been lost before it is overdue, the person who was the holder of it may apply to the drawer to give him another bill of the same tenor, giving security to the drawer if required to indemnify him against all persons whatever in case the bill alleged to have been lost shall be found again (r). If the drawer on request as aforesaid refuses to give such duplicate bill, he may be compelled to do so (r). In any action or proceeding upon a bill, the Court or a judge may order that the loss of the instrument shall not be set up, provided an indemnity be given to the satisfaction of the Court or judge against the claims of any other person upon the instrument in question (s). If the bill or note was not originally negotiable, that is, payable to bearer or to order, the loss of it is no defence to an action upon the instrument (t). But, if a negotiable bill or note has been lost, the loss, if permitted to be set up, is an answer as well to an action upon the instrument as for the recovery of the debt for which it was given (u).

Damages recoverable on the dishonour of bills.—By the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, s. 57, "Where a bill is dishonoured (x), the measure of damages (y), which shall be deemed to be liquidated damages, shall be as follows:

"(1) The holder may recover from any party liable on the bill, and the drawer who has been compelled to pay the bill may recover from the acceptor, and an indorser who has been compelled to pay the bill may recover from the acceptor or from the drawer, or from a prior indorser—(a) The amount of the bill; (b) Interest thereon from the time of presentment for payment if the bill is payable on demand, and from the maturity of the bill in any other case (z); (c) The expenses of noting (a), or, when protest is necessary (b), and the protest has been extended, the expenses of protest.

"(2) In the case of a bill which has been dishonoured abroad,

(q) Burchfield v. Moore, 3 E. & B. 687; 23 L.J. Q.B. 263. See Leeds and County Bank v. Walker, 11 Q.B.D. 84; 52 L.J. Q.B. 90. See sect. 64, p. 1294.

(r) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 69.

(s) Ib., s. 70.

(t) Charnley v. Grundy, 14 C.B. 614; 23 L.J. C.P. 121.

(u) Hansard v. Robinson, 7 B. & C. 90; 5 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 242; Crowe v. Clay, 9 Exch. 608; 23 L.J. Ex. 150.

(x) See sect. 43, dishonour by non-acceptance; sect. 47, dishonour by non-payment.

(y) Damages given by this section can be recovered under Order XIV. See also the notes to Order III., Rule 6, in the Annual Practice.

(z) London & Universal Bank v. Clancarty, (1892) 1 Q.B. 689; 61 L.J. Q.B. 225; Lawrence v. Willocks, (1892) 1 Q.B. 696; 61 L.J. Q.B. 519.

(a) Dando v. Boden, (1893) 1 Q.B. 318; 62 L.J. Q.B. 339.

(b) As to what protest is necessary, see English Bank of River Plate, In re, (1893) 2 Ch. 438; 62 L.J. Ch. 578.

in lieu of the above damages, the holder may recover from the drawer or an indorser, and the drawer or an indorser who has been compelled to pay the bill may recover from any party liable to him, the amount of the re-exchange with interest thereon until the time of payment.

" (3) Where by this Act interest may be recovered as damages such interest may, if justice require it, be withheld wholly or in part, and where a bill is expressed to be payable with interest at a given rate, interest as damages may or may not be given at the same rate as interest proper."

Notwithstanding the provisions of sub-s. (1), the drawer of a foreign bill is entitled, upon its being dishonoured and protested here, to recover from the acceptor damages in the nature of re-exchange which the drawer is by the foreign law liable to pay to the holder of the bill (c). But protest for better security where the acceptor becomes insolvent before maturity is not necessary, and the expenses of such a protest are not recoverable by the drawer from the acceptor (d). When a bill has been dishonoured abroad the only damages are the amount of re-exchange with interest thereon, under sub-s. (2), and not the amount of the bill and interest under sub-s. (1) (e).

Damages for not meeting bills at maturity.—Where the defendants, a banking company, had, under a special agreement, accepted the plaintiffs' bills, but their bank stopped before the bills arrived at maturity, and the plaintiffs arranged with another house to take up the bills, and paid commission, and also paid the expenses of protesting the bills and of telegraphing, it was held that, although as a general rule in an action on a bill of exchange by an indorsee against the acceptor neither general nor special damages can be recovered, yet, under the above circumstances, the commission and other expenses were recoverable, as the reasonable and natural consequences of the defendants' breach of contract (f).

Specific appropriation of securities.—Securities held by an acceptor against his acceptances are available to the billholders if both drawer and acceptor become insolvent, on the ground that the equity of the drawer to the surplus produce of the securities after answering the demand upon them can only be accomplished by first satisfying the amount due on the bills (g).

(c) Gillespie, In re, 18 Q.B.D. 286; 56 L.J. Q.B. 74.

(d) English Bank of River Plate, In re ante, p. 1298.

(e) Commercial Bank of Australia, In re, 36 Ch.D. 522; 57 L.J. Ch. 131.

(f) Prehn v. Royal Bank of Liverpool, L.R. 5 Ex. 92; 39 L.J. Ex. 41.

(g) Waring, Ex parte, 19 Ves. 345; see Banner v. Johnson, L.R. 5 H.L. 157; 40 L.J. Ch. 730; Mann,

There must not only be an insolvency, but both estates must be in a course of judicial administration (h), and the mere fact that the acceptor or drawer, a joint-stock company, has been ordered to be wound up, is not sufficient proof of insolvency (i). Where only one of the parties is within the jurisdiction of the Court, and the other is not, the latter is still free to dispose of his property as he sees fit, and he may object to his property being appropriated in a particular manner, and may recall a previous direction respecting it (k).

In a transaction between principal and agent a direction given by the principal to the agent as to the application of the proceeds of the sale of particular goods is binding on the agent, and he cannot set up a general lien against such direction (l). But as between vendor and purchaser where bills are drawn by the vendor upon the purchaser, with directions to place them to the account of the shipment of goods, and the bills of lading are handed to the purchaser, there is no specific appropriation, but the goods pass by the bills of lading (m).

If the securities are not realized until after the billholder has proved against the estate, his proof must be reduced by the amount received from the securities, and any dividend received on the excess of the original over the reduced proof must be refunded (n).

Parties to bills and notes—Capacity and authority of parties.—By the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, s. 22: "(1) Capacity to incur liability as a party to a bill is co-extensive with capacity to contract. Provided that nothing in this section shall enable a corporation to make itself liable as drawer, acceptor, or indorser of a bill unless it is competent to it so to do under the law for the time being in force relating to corporations (o). (2.) Where a bill is drawn or indorsed by an infant, minor, or corporation having no capacity or power to incur liability on a Ex parte, 5 Ch. D. 367; 46 L.J. Bank. 107; Royal Bank of Scotland v. Commercial Bank of Scotland, 7 App.Cas. 366; Dever, Ex parte (No. 2), 14 Q.B.D. 611; 54 L.J. Q.B. 390. As to what amounts to a specific appropriation, see Banner, Ex parte, 2 Ch. D. 278; 45 L.J. Bank. 93.

(h) General South American Co., Ex parte, L.R. 10 Ch. 635.

(i) Kickie & Co.'s Case, L.R. 4 Eq. 226; 36 L.J.Ch. 809.

(k) General South American Co., Ex parte, supra.

(l) Frith v. Forbes, 4 De. G. F. & J. 409; 32 L.J. Ch. 10. See Dever, Ex parte, 13 Q.B.D. 766.

(m) Entwistle, In re, 3 Ch.D. 477.

(n) Barned's Banking Co., In re, Joint Stock Discount Co., Ex parte, L.R. 10 Ch. 198; 44 L.J. Ch. 494. As to a lien on cargo being given to meet bills, see Frith v. Forbes, 4 De G. F. & J. 409; 32 L.J. Ch. 10. This case appears to rest upon its own peculiar facts. See Dever, Ex parte, 13 Q.B.D. 766 and the other cases cited. Ranken v. Alfaro, 5 Ch.D. 786; 46 L.J. Ch. 832. But see Robey & Co. v. Ollier, L.R. 7 Ch. 695; Phelps & Co. v. Comber, 29 Ch.D. 813; 54 L.J. Ch. 1017; Brown & Co. v. Kough, 29 Ch.D. 848; 54 L.J. Ch. 1024.

(o) As to signing by corporations, see ante, p. 1242, note (g).

bill, the drawing or indorsement entitles the holder to receive payment of the bill, and to enforce it against any other party thereto."

Parties to bills and notes—Signature essential to liability.—"No person is liable as drawer, indorser, or acceptor of a bill who has not signed it as such: Provided that (1.) Where a person signs a bill in a trade or assumed name, he is liable thereon as if he had signed it in his own name; (2.) The signature of the name of a firm is equivalent to the signature by the person so signing of the names of all persons liable as partners in that firm" (p).

Forged or unauthorised signature on bill.—"Subject to the provisions of this Act, where a signature on a bill is forged or placed thereon without the authority of the person whose signature it purports to be, the forged or unauthorized signature is wholly inoperative, and no right to retain the bill or to give a discharge therefor or to enforce payment thereof against any party thereto can be acquired through or under that signature, unless the party against whom it is sought to retain or enforce payment of the bill is precluded from setting up the forgery or want of authority. Provided that nothing in this section shall affect the ratification of an authorized signature not amounting to a forgery" (q).

Signature by procuration.—A signature by procuration operates as notice that the agent has but a limited authority to sign, and the principal is only bound by such signature if the agent in so signing was acting within the actual limits of his authority (r).

Where a person signs a bill as drawer, indorser, or acceptor, and adds words to his signature, indicating that he signs for or on behalf of a principal, or in a representative character, he is not personally liable thereon; but the mere addition to his signature of words describing him as an agent, or as filling a representative character, does not exempt him from personal liability (s). Determining whether a signature on a bill is that of the principal or that of the agent by whose hand it is written, the construction most favourable to the validity of the instrument shall be adopted (t).

Stranger signing bill liable as indorser.—Where a person signs a bill otherwise than as drawer or acceptor, he thereby incurs the liabilities of an indorser to a holder in due course (u).

(p) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 61, s. 23.
(q) Ib., s. 24. As to this section, see Addison on Torts, 628 (ed. 8).
(r) Ib., s. 25. Reid v. Rigby, (1894) 2 Q.B. 40; 63 L.J. Q.B. 451.
(s) Ib., s. 26 (1).
(t) Ib., s. 26 (2).
(u) See Steele v. McKinley, 5 App.

Parties to bills and notes—General principles.—The liabilities inter se of successive indorsers of a bill must, in the absence of all evidence to the contrary, be determined according to the ordinary principles of the law merchant, whereby a prior indorser must indemnify a subsequent one; but this may be qualified or even inverted by considering the true relations between the parties (x).

When the drawee is requested to pay a certain sum of money "on behalf," or "on account," of a named third party, and the drawee accepts in his own name on behalf of such third party, and the surrounding circumstances show that he had authority so to accept, and that he has bound such third party by his acceptance, he will not himself be personally liable upon his acceptance (y); but, if the bill is drawn upon him without qualification, and he accepts in his own name, he cannot exempt himself from the ordinary liability of an acceptor by saying that he accepts on behalf of some third party on whom the bill is not drawn (z). If a bill of exchange is addressed to several persons, and one of them alone accepts it, he is personally responsible upon the bill (a). Where a bill upon the face of it purports to be accepted "per procuration," that circumstance is a notice to whoever takes the bill that it has been accepted by an agent acting under an authority given to him by a principal; and the holder cannot maintain an action against the principal, if the authority has been exceeded (b).

If a party signs a promissory note whereby he promises in his own name to pay a sum of money on behalf of a third party, he will himself be personally responsible for the payment of the money (c), unless it plainly appears from the surrounding circumstances that he contracted as agent, and bound his principal by the contract (d). Parties who promise in their own names to pay money cannot exonerate themselves from personal liability by describing themselves as "trustees," "treasurers," "directors," or "secretaries" of a named charity, company, or

Cas. 574; Edwards v. Barnard, 32 Ch.D. 447; 55 L.J. Ch. 935; Jenkins v. Comber, (1898) 2 Q.B. 168; 67 L.J. Q.B. 780.

(x) Macdonald v. Whitfield, 8 App. Cas. 733; 52 L.J. P.C. 70

(y) Leadbitter v. Farrow, 5 M. & S. 345, ante, p. 349.

(z) Mare v. Charles, 5 E. & B. 31; 25 L.J. Q.B. 119; Nicholls v. Diamond, 9 Exch. 154; 23 L.J. Ex. 1; ante, p. 349.

(a) Owen v. Van Uster, 10 C.B. 318; 20 L.J. C.P. 61; but see Edwards v. Barnard, supra.

(b) Stagg v. Elliott, 12 C.B. N.S. 373; 31 L.J. C.P. 260; Eyre v. M'Dowell, 14 Ir. C.L.R. 314. Sect. 25, ante, p. 1301.

(c) Healey v. Story, 3 Exch. 3; 18 L.J. Ex. 8, ante, p. 349.

(d) Agg v. Nicholson, 1 H. & N. 165; 25 L.J. Ex. 348; Lindus v. Melrose, 3 H. & N. 137; 27 L.J. Ex. 327.

association (e), or as "executors" (f). But, if the promise is, on the face of the note, expressed to be made by a principal, and the party whose signature is attached to it signs the name of the principal to the instrument, adding his own name only as agent, he will, as we have seen, incur no personal liability upon the note, provided he was duly authorized to act in the matter (g).

A partner in a mercantile or trading firm may draw, accept, or indorse bills of exchange and promissory notes in the trading name of the firm so as to bind the partnership, because the drawing, accepting, and negotiating bills and notes are usual and necessary for the purpose of carrying on the trade and business of a mercantile firm. But it is not every partnership which gives such an authority. Solicitors and professional men in partnership have no such power; nor have brokers who are in partnership for the mere purpose of obtaining orders on commission and dividing the expenses (h). Every one of the partners in a mercantile firm is liable upon such bills or notes, whether his individual name is or is not used in the collective name of the firm, and whether it does or does not appear upon the face of the instrument, and whether such partner is dormant and secret, or a known and active member of the co-partnership, and whether the proceeds of such bill or note are dedicated and applied to partnership purposes, or to the private use of the individual partner (i). Where one of the acting partners of a firm accepted a bill in the name of the firm to obtain a loan, and then applied the money to his own private use, it was held that a secret partner, not known at the time of the acceptance to be a partner in the firm, might be sued upon the bill (k). And, where a bill was indorsed by a partner in the trading name of the firm, it was held that a person not known to be a partner at the time of the indorsement might be sued upon the instrument (l). "There may be partnerships," observes Lord Ellenborough, "where none of the existing partners have their names in the firm. Third persons may not know who they are; and yet they are all bound by the acts

(e) Price v. Taylor, 5 H. & N. 540; 29 L.J. Ex. 331; Bottomley v. Fisher, 1 H. & C. 211; 31 L. J. Ex. 417; Dutton v. Marsh, L.R. 6 Q.B. 361; 40 L.J. Q.B. 175.

(f) Childs v. Monins, 5 Moo. 282.

(g) Buckley, Ex parte, 14 M. & W. 469; 14 L.J. Ex. 341; Alexander v. Sizer, L.R. 4 Ex. 102; 38 L.J. Ex. 59; ante, pp. 344—350.

(h) See sect. 23, ante, p. 1301; Yates v. Dalton, 28 L.J. Ex. 69; Forster v. Macreth, L.R. 2 Ex. 163; 36 L.J. Ex. 94.

(i) Lloyd v. Ashby, 2 B. & Ad. 23; 9 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 144; Brown v. Kidger, 3 H. & N. 853; 28 L.J. Ex. 66.

(k) Wintle v. Crowther, 1 Cr. & J. 316; 9 L.J. (O.S.) Ex. 65.

(l) Vere v. Ashby, 10 B. & C. 288; 8 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 57.

of any of the partners in the name of the firm or partnership"(m). But, if the taker or holder thereof knew at the time he received the bill or note that the transaction was not a partnership transaction, but the private affair and dealing of the single partner, the other members of the firm will not be liable thereon. The bill or note must, in order to bind the partnership, be made, accepted, or indorsed in the trading name of the firm, or in some adopted name, recognised and used by the partnership in its ordinary course of business; or, if made, accepted, or indorsed by the one partner in his own name, the drawing, acceptance, or indorsement must be expressed to be made by him for, and as the act of, the firm at large (n). Where a signature to a bill is common to an individual partner and to the firm, a bonâ fide holder for value without notice has not the option to sue either the individual or the firm. The presumption is that the bill was given for the firm, but this may be rebutted, and if so it is immaterial that the holder took it as the bill of the firm (o). Where a member of a firm has no authority to bind his partners by drawing or accepting bills, he cannot bind them by giving a post-dated cheque (p).

Where a bill of exchange was drawn upon a firm, and accepted by one of the partners in his own name, it was held that he must be understood to exercise his power to bind his co-partners, and to accept the bill according to the terms in which it is drawn (q). Thus, where a bill of exchange was addressed to "James Masterman & Co.," and was accepted by James Masterman only, without the words "and Co.," it was held that the acceptance was the acceptance of the firm, and that all the partners were liable upon it (r). If, however, the bill or note is drawn, or made, or accepted, or indorsed by the one partner in his own name only without mention of the partnership, and without its being expressed on the face of the instrument that the drawing or making, acceptance or indorsement, is made or done for the firm, the one partner whose name appears upon the instrument is the only person who can be sued thereon, although the proceeds thereof have been applied to the joint purposes of the firm, unless the partnership has been in the habit of paying bills and notes so made and negotiated, and has consequently adopted the name of the partner as the name

(m) Swan v. Steele, 7 East, 210; Thicknesse v. Bromilow, 2 Cr. & J. 425.

(n) Smith v. Jarves, 2 Raym. 1484; Galway v. Matthew, 1 Campb. 403.

(o) Yorks Banking Co. v. Beatson, 5 C.P.D. 109; 49 L.J. C.P. 380.

(p) Forster v. Mackreth, L.R. 2 Ex. 163; 36 L.J. Ex. 94.

(q) Mason v. Rumsey, 1 Campb. 384; but see sect. 23, ante, p. 1301.

(r) Wells v. Masterman, 2 Esp. 730. See sect. 23, ante, p. 1301.

of the firm in bill transactions (s). A bill of exchange was drawn against a firm of B. & Co. B., one of the partners, accepted the bill, signing the name of the firm and adding his own underneath: it was held that the acceptance was that of the firm, and that the addition of B.'s name did not make him separately liable (t). If the firm carries on business in the name of an individual partner, his acceptance or indorsement will be treated as the acceptance or indorsement of the firm; and all the partners, consequently, will be liable upon the instrument (u). The plaintiff pressed C., his partner, for payment of a debt, and C. gave him two bills purporting to be accepted by the defendant's firm, and the plaintiff at first believed they were so accepted; in fact, one partner had accepted without the authority of the other. There was no drawer's name, and the plaintiff subsequently, knowing something was wrong, and therefore knowing that he had no authority, filled in the name of his own firm. It was held he could not recover on the bills against the partner who had not authorised the acceptance (x).

A partnership may have divers trading names, and it may be bound by the use of any one of them by one of the partners. If a firm has been in the habit of paying bills and notes, made, accepted, or indorsed in a name which is not the ordinary trading name of the co-partnership, it will be deemed to have given an implied authority to such partner to use such name, as the name of the firm, in bill transactions, and will be as much bound thereby as if the ordinary trading name of the firm had been made use of (y). If a dormant or secret partner has contracted in the name of the firm, or in an adopted name, he may be sued in his real name (z). When any one of the partners has accepted a bill of exchange, or endorsed a promissory note, in a name differing from the ordinary trading name of the firm, the proper question for the jury is whether the name used, though inaccurate, substantially describes the firm, or whether it so far varies that the acceptor or indorser must be taken to have accepted or issued the bill or note on his own account, and not in the exercise of his general authority as a partner (a).

(s) Emly v. Lye, 15 East, 7.

(t) Edwards v. Barnard, 32 Ch.D. 447; 55 L.J. Ch. 935.

(u) South Carolina Bank v. Case, 8 B. & C. 427; 5 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 364; and see Stephens v. Reynolds, 5 H. & N. 513; 29 L.J. Ex. 278.

(x) Hogarth v. Latham, 3 Q.B.D. 643; 47 L.J. Q.B. 339.

(y) Williamson v. Johnson, 1 B. & C. 146; 1 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 65.

(z) Ball v. Gordon, 9 M. & W. 345; 11 L.J. Ex. 221.

(a) Faith v. Richmond, 11 Ad. & E. 339; 9 L.J. Q.B. 97; Kirk v. Blurton, 9 M. & W. 284; 12 L.J. Ex. 117; Norton v. Seymour, 3 C.B. 792; 16 L.J. C.P. 100; Stephens v.

Where the plaintiff sued as indorsee for value of a bill of exchange drawn on C. Brothers, accepted by an agent (appointed for the purpose of liquidating the affairs of C. Brothers) in his own name and that of the defendant, a former partner, but the defendant knew nothing about it, it was held that the agent had no authority to accept in defendant's name; and that, not being a partner, he had no authority to accept bills drawn on the firm (b).

Bills and notes by trustees or directors of co-partnerships.—In order to render the shareholders or co-partners liable upon bills of exchange or promissory notes, accepted, made, or indorsed by the trustees or directors in the trading name of the co-partnership, it must be made out affirmatively by the parties suing upon such bills or notes that the directors had either an express or an implied authority to bind the other members by drawing, accepting, or making, or indorsing bills and notes, either by showing that companies instituted for similar purposes have constantly been in the habit of vesting such a power in the hands of their directors, or that it was absolutely necessary for the purpose of carrying on the concern that such a power should be placed in their hands (c). If the directors are authorised to issue bills, they must be drawn in conformity with mercantile custom and usage (d).

Bills and notes by corporations.—When a corporation is established for trading purposes, it is from its nature capable of drawing a bill of exchange, and making the promise implied by law from making a bill, and is liable to be sued on the bill (e).

Bills of exchange and promissory notes by registered companies.—A bill of exchange or promissory note shall be deemed to have been made, accepted, or indorsed, on behalf of the company if made, accepted, or indorsed in the name of, or by or on behalf or on account of, the company by any person acting under its authority (f). This section does not confer on all companies registered under the Act the power of issuing bills of exchange, such a power only existing where, upon a fair construction of the memorandum and articles of association, it appears that it was intended to be conferred (g). A promise by directors in their own names on behalf of the com-

Reynolds, 5 H. & N. 517; 29 L.J. Ex. 278.

(b) Odell v. Cormack Brothers, 19 Q.B.D. 223.

(c) Dickinson v. Valpy, 10 B. & C. 137; 8 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 51; Steele v. Harmer, 14 M. & W. 831; 15 L.J. Ex. 217.

(d) State Fire Ins. Co., In re, 32 L.J. Ch. 300.

(e) Murray v. East India Co., 5 B. & Ald. 204. See sect. 22, ante, p. 1300, and sect. 91 (2), ante, p. 1242.

(f) 8 Edw. 7, c. 69, s. 77.

(g) Peruvian Ry. Co. v. Thames & Mersey Marine Ins. Co., L.R. 2 Ch. 617; 36 L.J. Ch. 864.

pany will be binding on the company under this section, and will not, if the directors were duly authorised to make the promise, render them personally responsible (h). But, if any director, manager, or officer of any registered limited company, or any person on its behalf, signs, or authorises to be signed, on behalf of such company, any bill of exchange, promissory note, indorsement, cheque, or order for money or goods, or issues, or authorises to be issued, any bill of parcels, invoice, receipt or letter of credit of the company, wherein the name of the company is not mentioned with the word "limited" after it, he is personally liable to the holder of the bill, &c., for the amount thereof, unless the same is duly paid by the company (i). If the directors are, by the deed of settlement or articles of association, absolutely prohibited from borrowing money or issuing bills of exchange or promissory notes, the company cannot be made responsible upon bills or notes issued in defiance of the prohibition (k), unless the shareholders acquiesce in the proceeding, and do not call the directors to account (l). If bills or notes issued by directors in their own names on behalf of the company are drawn or made without authority, or are informally drawn, and are not, consequently, binding upon the company, the parties who have signed them will themselves be responsible upon them (m). When the directors are expressly authorised to accept bills or issue promissory notes on behalf of the company, the company will be bound if the authority is substantially acted upon. It need not be exercised in the very terms in which it is given, or be strictly or technically accurate in point of form (n); and, if there has been a plain departure from the terms of the authority, and the shareholders have acquiesced in it, the company will be bound (o). A proviso in a bill of exchange drawn by a joint-stock company, limiting the liability thereunder, is repugnant and void (p). Where a company is being voluntarily wound up, (h) Lindus v. Melrose, 3 H. & N. 177; 27 L.J. Ex. 327; Chapman v. Smethurst, 78 L.J. K.B. 654; (1909) 1 K.B. 927; Aggs v. Nicholson, 1 H. & N. 165; 25 L.J. Ex. 348; Forbes v. Marshall, 11 Exch. 166; 24 L.J. Ex. 305; Halford v. Cameron's, &c. Co., 16 Q.B. 442; 20 L.J. Q.B. 160; Edwards v. Cameron's, &c. Co., 6 Exch. 269; Alexander v. Sizer, L.R. 4 Ex. 102; 38 L.J. Ex. 59.

(i) See 8 Edw. 7, c. 69, s. 63 (3). Penrose v. Martyn, 28 L.J. Q.B. 28; E. B. & E. 499.

(k) Balfour v. Ernest, 5 C.B. N.S. 601; 28 L.J. C.P. 170.

(l) Martin, B., Forbes v. Marshall, 11 Exch. 179; 24 L.J. Ex. 305.

(m) Penkivil v. Connell, 5 Exch. 381; 19 L.J. Ex. 305; Dutton v. Marsh, L.R. 6 Q.B. 361; 40 L.J. Q.B. 175; Premier Industrial Bank v. Crabtree, 78 L.J. K.B. 105, (1909) 1 K.B. 106.

(n) Thompson v. Wesleyan Newspaper Assoc., 8 C.B. 861; 19 L.J. C.P. 114; Land Credit Co. of Ireland, In re, L.R. 4 Ch. 460; 40 L.J. Ch. 341.

(o) Allen v. Sea, &c. Ins. Co., 9 C.B. 578; 19 L.J. C.P. 305.

(p) State Fire Ins. Co., In re, 32 L.J. Ch. 300; see sect. 3, ante, p. 1242.

and there are four liquidators, one of them cannot, in the absence of any authority from the company, and solely upon the strength of a general resolution of his co-liquidators, accept bills on behalf of the company (q).

Conversion of bills and notes.—A man who holds a bill of exchange for a particular purpose has no right, without authority, to go and receive money on the bill, and, if he does so, he is responsible for a conversion of the instrument (r). If, therefore, a bill of exchange or negotiable security is delivered into the hands of an agent or mandatory, that he may get it discounted, and he neglects to do so, and pays away the bill or note in furtherance of his own purposes, he is responsible for a conversion of the security (s); but if he pursues the authority given him, and gets the bill discounted, but misapplies the proceeds, he is not responsible for the conversion of the security, but for the misapplication of the money (t).

Conversion of lost or stolen bank-notes or negotiable securities.—If a bill of exchange, bank-note, or promissory note is lost, and the finder refuses to deliver the instrument to the owner on demand, he is guilty of a conversion of it, and is responsible in damages to the extent of the full value of the security. If the instrument is payable to bearer, and the finder, before any demand is made upon him, delivers the note to another, he is exempt from all further responsibility in respect of it (u). If the person to whom it is transferred took the note with knowledge of the infirmity of the title of the person from whom he received it (x), or if it is transferred to him for the mere purpose of enabling him to sue upon it, and he has given no value for the instrument, he will have no better title than the person from whom he has received it (y), and will be responsible for a conversion if he fails to deliver it up to the owner on demand. But if he is a bonâ fide holder for value, and took and discounted the note without any knowledge that the person from whom he received it had no title to it, he becomes the lawful owner of the instrument, and may retain it or pay it away (z). If he has given full value for the instru-

(q) London & Mediterranean Bank, In re, L.R. 5 Ch. 567; 40 L.J. Ch. 26; London & Mediterranean Bank, In re, Birmingham Banking Co., Ex parte, L.R. 3 Ch. 651; 36 L.J. Ch. 807; London & Mediterranean Bank, In re, L.R. 6 Ch. 206; 40 L.J. Ch. 26.

(r) Alsager v. Close, 10 M. & W. 583; 12 L.J. Ex. 50.

(s) Cranch v. White, 1 Bing. N.C. 414; Atkins v. Owen, 4 Ad. & E. 819; 6 L.J. K.B. 267.

(t) Palmer v. Jarmain, 2 M. & W. 282.

(u) See Addison on Torts, 626 (ed. 8).

(x) Burn v. Morris, 2 Cr. & M. 579; 3 L.J. Ex. 193; Rice v. Reed, (1900) 1 Q.B. 54; 69 L.J. Q.B. 33; Lovell v. Martin, 4 Taunt. 799.

(y) Bailey v. Bidwell, 13 M. & W. 73; 13 L.J. Ex. 264.

(z) Miller v. Race, 1 Burr. 452; 1

ment, that is in general conclusive evidence of bona fides. If, on the other hand, he has paid a small sum for a bank-note of large value, payable on demand, that would be evidence the other way (a). The whole burthen of impeaching the title of the holder of the instrument falls upon the plaintiff, who disputes that title (b). It is not enough for him to show that he lost the instrument, or that it has been stolen from him, and that immediately after the loss or the robbery it was found to be in possession of the defendant (c). The latter is not bound, from proof of those circumstances alone, to account for his possession of the security (d). But if the note is one of unusual value, and is found in the possession of the defendant immediately after the loss, and he declines to say from whom he received it, or to give reasonable information of the circumstances under which he became possessed of it, he would be required to prove that he gave value for the instrument (e); and if it was payable to bearer on demand, and he gave much less than its real value, and took it from a total stranger, without making any inquiry, and under circumstances which ought to have aroused suspicion in the mind of any prudent person, this will be evidence to show that he took it with knowledge of the infirmity of the title of the person from whom he received it, and to fix him with that infirmity of title. Gross negligence and want of caution are not in themselves sufficient to defeat the title of the holder, where he has given value for the security (f); but gross negligence may be evidence of mala fides, though it is not the same thing (g).

In the case of stolen notes, if the possession is recent, and the surrounding circumstances such as to show that the defendant stole the note, or received it into his possession knowing it to have been stolen, the plaintiff cannot maintain his action unless he has prosecuted for the felony. In all cases he should use diligence to apprise the public of his loss (h).

Smith's L.C. 747 (ed. 10); Grant v. Vaughan, 3 Burr. 1524; Lawson v. Weston, 4 Esp. 57; see sect. 29, p. 1255, and sect. 38.

(a) Raphael v. Bank of England, 17 C.B. 173; 25 L.J. C.P. 33.

(b) Worc. Co. Bank v. Dorch. & Milt. Bank, 10 Cush. 489; Wyer v. Dorch. &c. Bank, 11 Cush. 51; see sect. 30 of the Act, ante, p. 1257.

(c) Miller v. Race, supra. But see sect. 30, ante, p. 1257.

(d) King v. Milsom, 2 Campb. 5. But see sect. 30, ante, p. 1257.

(e) Bailey v. Bidwell, 13 M. & W. 76; 13 L.J. Ex. 264.

(f) Bayley, J., Backhouse v. Harrison, 5 B. & A. 1105; Raphael v. Bank of England, supra, overruling Snow v. Leathem, 2 C. & P. 317; Snow v. Peacock, 3 Bing. 406; 4 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 120; and Easley v. Crockford, 10 Bing. 243; 3 L.J. C. P. 22.

(g) Goodman v. Harvey, 4 Ad. & E. 870; 6 L.J. K.B. 260; Arbouin v. Anderson, 1 Q.B. 498; 11 L.J. Q.B. 31.

(h) Beckwith v. Corral, 3 Bing. 444; 4 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 139.

CHAPTER VII.

CONTRACTS OF ASSOCIATION.

THE subjects of partnership and joint stock companies have, because of their magnitude and perplexity, been omitted from the present edition, and the reader must be referred to those works which deal specially with these subjects, but the questions relating to contracts made by and with partnerships will be found in their proper places throughout the work.

OF MARRIAGE.

Contracts in restraint of marriage are void, as being contrary to the public policy of the law (a). A covenant or promise, therefore, which restrains a party from marrying AT ALL, unless he marries a particular person, is null and void (b). If the restraint is not to operate for an indefinite period, but only for six years, there must be reasonable grounds to restrain the party for that period (c). But the law recognizes in a husband a species of interest in the widowhood of his wife, which makes it lawful for him to grant an annuity to his widow, to continue so long only as she remains unmarried (d).

Marriage brokerage contracts, or contracts for the payment of money, or the conveyance of property, or the performance of some act or duty, on the condition of the procurement of a particular marriage, are void, as being contrary to public policy. If, therefore, a man binds himself to pay a sum of money to another, on condition that he will bring about a particular marriage, the instrument is void (e), whether the condition, or cause, or consideration for the bond or covenant does or does

(a) Baker v. White, 2 Vern. 215; Hartley v. Rice, 10 East, 22; Bonfield v. Hassell, 32 L.J. Ch. 475; 32 Beav. 217; Robinson v. Ommaney, 23 Ch.D. 285; 52 L.J. Ch. 440.

(b) Lowe v. Peers, 4 Burr. 2230—2234.

(c) Hartley v. Rice, 10 East, 22. But a covenant to pay a woman a sum of money, so long as she continues sole and unmarried, is not illegal: Gibson v. Dickie, 3 M. & S. 463.

(d) Lloyd v. Lloyd, 21 L.J. Ch. 596; 2 Sim. N.S. 255; Newton v. Marsden, 2 Jo. & H. 356; 31 L.J. Ch. 690.

(e) Hall v. Potter, 3 Lev. 411; Show. P.C. 76; 4 Br. P.C. 145, n.; 3 P. Wms. 76.

not appear upon the face of it (f). A bond, given by the husband to the wife's father to induce the latter to give his consent to the marriage, has been held to be in the nature of a marriage brokerage contract, and contrary to public policy (g). And there is no difference between a bond to pay money, and a bond to forgive a debt due, or a covenant or agreement to release an obligation, duty, or liability, as an inducement for the consent of parents and guardians (h). A lease granted in consideration of the procurement of a particular marriage will be set aside, and the estate discharged of the lease (i). Money paid under an agreement by which the defendant undertook to assist the plaintiff to get married by the introduction of suitors is recoverable by the plaintiff, such an agreement being an illegal marriage brocage contract (k).

Bonds and unilateral covenants to marry.—If a man of full age binds himself by deed to marry a woman by a day named, he is responsible for the non-performance of his bond or covenant, although the woman may not be bound by a reciprocal contract to marry him (l). If the covenantee is ready and willing to receive the covenantor as a husband, and the latter neglects to fulfil his contract, he is liable to an action, for it is the duty of the man to go and offer himself to the woman, and not for the woman to go in search of the man (m). A woman is also as much bound by such a deed or covenant as a man, provided it has been obtained openly and fairly, and with perfect good faith; but, as women are in general peculiarly liable to be deceived and imposed upon in affairs in which their feelings are concerned, such a contract or engagement obtained from a woman is regarded with the greatest jealousy and suspicion, particularly where the man has entered into no corresponding engagement on his part (n). If such a bond is obtained by means of any misrepresentation or concealment of the circumstances and situation in life of the party to whom it is given, it is undoubtedly fraudulent, and may be set aside (o). Where a bond was given by the defendant, a single lady, which recited that a marriage had been agreed upon between her and the (f) Collins v. Blantern, 2 Wils. 347; Arundel v. Trevillian, 1 Ch. Rep. 47; Drury v. Hooke, 1 Vern. 412; Debenham v. Ox, 1 Ves. senr. 276; Smith v. Aykwell, 3 Atk. 566; Cole v. Gibson, 1 Ves. senr. 503; Booth v. Warrington (Earl), 4 Br. P.C. 163.

(g) Keat v. Allen, 2 Vern. 588; Pre. Ch. 267.

(h) Hamilton (Duke), v. Mohun (Lord), 1 P. Wms. 118; 2 Vern. 652; 1 Salk. 158.

(i) Stribblehill v. Brett, 2 Vern. 446; 4 Br. P.C. 145.

(k) Hermann v. Charlesworth, (1905) 2 K.B. 123; 74 L.T. K.B. 620.

(l) Atkins v. Farr, 1 Atk. 287.

(m) Holcroft v. Dickenson, 1 Freem. 346; Seymour v. Gartside, 1 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 12; 2 D. & R. 55.

(n) Cock v. Richards, 10 Ves. 437.

(o) Key v. Bradshaw, 2 Vern. 102.

plaintiff, but had been deferred at her request until after the death of her father, and as a provision for the plaintiff she bound herself to give him 1,200*l.*, and interest at 5*l.* per cent., in case she should refuse to marry him on her father's death, or should intermarry with anybody else, and the lady broke her engagement by marrying a third party, it was held that she and her husband were responsible for the payment of the money (p). But, if a bond of this description has been clandestinely obtained from a single lady having expectations from her parent, without the knowledge of such parent, it is a fraud upon the latter; and the Court, if appealed to, will set it aside (q).

Contracts of betrothment are contracts between a man and a woman to marry at a future time. If a man makes an offer of marriage to a woman, the acceptance thereof by the latter may, so far as it is necessary to be proved in order to enable her to sustain an action against the man for a breach of his engagement, be established through the medium of her conduct and actions at the time, as well as by express words (r). If there be an express promise by the man, and it appears that the woman countenanced it, and by her actions at that time behaved herself as if she agreed to the matter, that is sufficient evidence of a promise on her side (s). Therefore, where a man asked for and obtained the consent of the parents to his marriage with their daughter, and she stood in the room within the hearing of the parties, and made no objection to the match, it was held that her silence afforded as cogent evidence of her assent as an express affirmative (t).

Authentication of contract.—Oral engagements and promises to marry will sustain an action, unless the marriage is limited to take place upwards of a year from the making of the contract (ante, p. 34). A man who was paying attentions to a girl was asked what his intentions were, and he replied, "I have pledged my honour to marry the girl in a month after Christmas;" and it was held that this declaration, taken in connection with his visits to the house and conduct towards the girl, was sufficient evidence of a promise of marriage (u). But a mere vague intimation by a party of his future intentions is no evidence of a promise of marriage (x). The statute 32 & 33 Vict. c. 68,

(p) Box v. Day, 1 Wils. 59.
(q) Woodhouse v. Shepley, 2 Atk. 539; Drury v. Hooke, 1 Vern. 412; Hartley v. Rice, 10 East, 22.
(r) Harvey v. Johnston, 17 L.J. C.P. 298; 6 C.B. 295.
(s) Hutton v. Mansell, 6 Mod. 172.
(t) Daniel v. Bowles, 2 C. & P. 553.
(u) Potter v. Deboos, 1 Stark. 82.
(x) Cole v. Cottingham, 8 C. & P. 75.

which enables the parties to an action for breach of promise of marriage to be called as witnesses, also provides that the plaintiff's evidence must be corroborated by some other material evidence in support of the promise (y).

Time of performance.—If the marriage is appointed to take place at a remote and unreasonably distant time, the contract would be voidable at the option of either of the parties, as being in restraint of matrimony (ante, p. 78). If no time is fixed and agreed upon for the performance of the contract, it is, in contemplation of law, a contract to marry within a reasonable period after request; and either of the parties may call upon the other to fulfil the engagement, and, in case of default, may bring an action for damages. If both parties lie by for an unreasonable period, and do not treat the contract as a continuing contract, the engagement will be deemed to be abandoned by mutual consent. If the time of performance is fixed, and, by bodily disease, it becomes impossible for one party to go through the ceremony without danger to health, this is a valid ground for postponement of performance, on giving notice to the other party (z). If either of the parties puts it out of his or her power to fulfil the contract, by marrying somebody else, there is a breach of the engagement; and a right of action at once attaches. If in such a case the contract was a contract to marry on request, no request need be made, as the defendant by his conduct has dispensed with the necessity of it, and rendered it useless (a). So, if there is a promise to marry at a fixed time, and before the time arrives one of the parties absolutely refuses to fulfil the promise, there is a breach, for which an action will lie at once (b).

Excuses for non-performance.—If the party making the promise was married at the time it was made, and was consequently incapable of entering into the contract or of performing it, the incapacity constitutes no excuse for non-performance (c); but a promise of marriage made by a married man to a woman who at the time of the promise knew that he had a wife living is void as being against public policy, and no action for damages will lie for breach of such a promise after the wife's death (d).

(y) As to what is "material evidence in support of the promise," see Bessela v. Stern, 2 C.P.D. 265; 46 L.J. C.P. 467; Wiedemann v. Walpole, (1891) 2 Q.B. 534; 60 L.J. Q.B. 762.

(z) Hall v. Wright, E. B. & E. 746; 29 L.J. Q.B. 43.

(a) Short v. Stone, 8 Q.B. 358; 15 L.J. Q.B. 143; Lovelock v. Franklyn, 8 Q.B. 378; 15 L.J. Q.B. 145.

(b) Frost v. Knight, L.R. 7 Ex. 111; 41 L.J. Ex. 78.

(c) Wild v. Harris, 7 C.B. 999; 18 L.J. C.P. 297; Millward v. Littlewood, 20 L.J. Ex. 2; 5 Exch. 775.

(d) Wilson v. Carnley, (1908) 1 K.B. 729; 77 L.J. K.B. 594; approving Spiers v. Hunt, (1908) 1 K.B. 720; 77 L.J. K.B. 321.

Previous insanity and confinement in a lunatic asylum constitute no excuse for non-performance of a promise of marriage (e). Notwithstanding a promise of marriage proved, if a man has conducted himself in a brutal or violent manner, and threatened to use a woman ill, she has a right to say she will not commit her happiness to such keeping (f).

Conditional promises of marriage.—If a man promises to marry a woman if she will come from America to England and marry him, or will do any other particular act or thing, there is a sufficient consideration for the promise; and, if the condition precedent is accomplished,—if, for instance, the voyage is performed, or the act done, and the woman is ready, and willing and able to be married to the man,—he is responsible for the non-fulfilment of his promise. The validity of conditional promises of marriage will depend upon the reasonableness of the condition and the time limited for its accomplishment. If the marriage is to depend upon the happening of a distant and uncertain event, which may, in all probability, not take place during the lives of the parties, it would be a contract in restraint of marriage. If the condition is a lawful condition, the liability attaches as soon as the condition has been accomplished (g). If it is stipulated that the woman shall have a certain marriage portion, or that the man shall make a certain settlement, the liability upon the contract does not attach until the condition has been accomplished. And, if a reverse of fortune prevents one of the parties from fulfilling the engagement in respect of the portion or the settlement, the other is discharged.

Fraudulent concealment of material circumstances—Misrepresentation and deceit.—It is no answer to an action for a breach of promise of marriage to show that the plaintiff at the time of the making of the promise was engaged to marry someone else; and that the pre-engagement was concealed from the defendant. A party is not bound in all cases to disclose such a fact; but the concealment of it might, under certain circumstances, amount to a fraud (h). Neither is a party bound to disclose that at some previous period of his life he was of unsound mind, and had been confined in a lunatic asylum (i). If a woman at the time of the betrothment was a woman of loose and immodest character, and this was unknown at the time to the man who promised to marry her, the latter is entitled,

(e) Baker v. Cartwright, 10 C.B. N.S. 124; 30 L.J. C.P. 364.

(f) Leeds v. Cook, 4 Esp. 257.

(g) Harvey v. Johnston, 17 L.J. C.P. 298; 6 C.B. 295.

(h) Beachey v. Brown, E. B. & E. 796; 29 L.J. Q.B. 105.

(i) Baker v. Cartwright, 10 C.B. N.S. 124; 30 L.J. C.P. 364.

as soon as he discovers her real character, to break off the engagement. General reputation of want of chastity must be established in such a case (k); or, if particular instances of misconduct are relied upon, they must be fully proved. If the circumstances, whatever they may be, were known to the other contracting party, there is then no fraud or deceit in the matter, and he has no ground for refusing to complete his engagement (l). If false representations are made by a woman, or by her friends in collusion with her, as to her circumstances and situation in life, and the amount of her fortune and marriage portion, the fraud is an answer to any action that may be brought for a breach of the promise of marriage (m).

Accidents and mishaps altering condition of either of parties.—If, subsequently to the making of a contract to marry, one of the parties by bodily disease becomes unfit for the performance of the most important duty of marriage, the party so unfitted is not thereby entitled to treat the contract as dissolved, the other party still desiring its performance. But the latter may break off the engagement; for if a man, by disease, accident, or mutilation, becomes impotent, he could never maintain an action against a woman for refusing to marry him (n).

Abandonment of contract.—Parties who have exchanged mutual promises of marriage may, of course, at any time before the contract is carried into effect by the performance of the marriage ceremony, dissolve the engagement by mutual consent (o).

Damages for breach of promise of marriage.—In an action for breach of promise of marriage, wherein it is laid as special damage that the defendant debauched the plaintiff and ruined her character, it would be misdirection to tell the jury that they might give her damages as a solatium for the injured feelings of her parents and family; but, where the defendant is a person of property, they may take into their consideration not only the plaintiff's pecuniary loss in not becoming his wife, but the injury done to her future prospects of marriage, her injured feelings and affections, and the mortification she must suffer in not being able to look her family in the face. In such an action the damages cannot be measured by a known standard, as in commercial cases, but the amount is peculiarly (k) Foulkes v. Sellway, 3 Esp. 236.

(l) Irving v. Greenwood, 1 C. & P. 350; Young v. Murphy, 3 Bing. N.C. 54; 6 L.J. C.P. 180; Bench v. Merrick, 1 Car. & K. 467.

(m) Wharton v. Lewis, 1 C. & P. 529.

(n) Hall v. Wright, E. B. & E. 763; 29 L.J. Q.B. 43.

(o) King v. Gillett, 7 M. & W. 55; 10 L.J. Ex. 164; as to evidence of exoneration and discharge from the contract, see Davis v. Bomford, 30 L.J. Ex. 139; 6 H. & N. 245.

a question for the jury; and, where no witnesses were called for the defendant, and it appeared that imputations had been cast upon the plaintiff, a person in humble life, and her witnesses, which failed, and the jury gave 2,500*l.* damages against the defendant, who was a person of property, and a new trial was asked for simply upon the ground that the damages were excessive, the application was refused (p). An action for breach of promise of marriage, where no special damage is alleged, does not survive against the personal representatives of a deceased promisor (q). As to ratification of a promise by a minor, see ante, p. 404.

Promises of portions and settlements.—A promise to give a woman a specific sum on her marriage, or to pay money to either the intended husband or wife, or settle property upon them, or either of them, in the event of their marrying, creates a binding obligation in the eye of the law; for "marriage is one of the strongest considerations in the law to found a contract, gift, or grant" (r). But the promise must be made by a person of full age, and must not be the expression of a mere desire or wish to make a settlement (s). It must also be authenticated, as we have before seen, by a note in writing, signed by the promisor or his agent (t). If, therefore, the husband, prior to the marriage, gives a verbal promise to the wife that he will settle her property upon her, she has nothing to rely upon but his honour; and if, after the marriage, he breaks his word, she has no remedy against him (u). Subsequent marriage is not part performance of a parol contract in consideration of marriage; nor will acts of part performance by the party sought to be charged prevent the operation of the statute (x). But, if a husband writes a letter promising to make a settlement upon his intended wife, or a father, by a letter, promises "to give such a fortune with his daughter to one who shall marry her," this is a sufficient compliance with the requirements of the statute. But the promise must be an absolute promise, and not dependent upon conditions and contingencies remaining unaccomplished (y). Where a person by writing

(p) Berry v. Da Costa, L.R. 1 C.P. 331; 35 L.J. C.P. 191.

(q) Finlay v. Chirney, 20 Q.B.D. 494; 57 L.J. Q.B. 247.

(r) Laver v. Fielder, 32 Beav. 1; 32 L.J. Ch. 365.

(s) Beaumont v. Carter, 32 Beav. 586; Moorhouse v. Colvin, 15 Beav. 341; 21 L.J. Ch. 177, 782.

(t) Ante, p. 33; Randall v. Morgan, 12 Ves. 73; Bawdes v. Amhurst, Pr. Ch. 404; Caton v. Caton, L.R. 2 H.L. 127; 36 L.J. Ch. 886.

(u) Montacute v. Maxwell, 1 P. Wms. 620; Caton v. Caton, L.R. 1 Ch. 137; 35 L.J. Ch. 292; but see Williams v. Williams, 37 L.J. Ch. 854.

(x) Caton v. Caton, supra.

(y) Bird v. Blosse, 2 Ventr. 361; Moore v. Hart, 1 Vern. 110; Alt v. Alt, 4 Giff. 84; 32 L.J. Ch. 52.

promised, as a mark of esteem and friendship to a young man, that he would allow him 500*l.* a year, and at his death bequeath him 10,000*l.*, and this writing was shown to the parent of a young woman, who thereupon gave consent to the marriage, it was held to be a mere nudum pactum, for that there was no connection between the promisor and the parent (z).

Contracts in fraud of settlements and promises of marriage portions.—Any private underhand agreement or treaty entered into for the purpose of infringing or defeating an open, public agreement, made in consideration of marriage, is fraudulent and void (a). A bond, for example, given by the husband to return part of his wife's marriage portion, without the privity of his own parents and guardians, and of all the parties to the treaty of marriage, is fraudulent and void, and cannot be enforced against him. If the father, or any other relation or friend of the husband or wife, who has agreed to make a settlement of property upon one or both of them on their marriage, or to give a marriage portion to the wife, takes a bond or covenant from either the husband or wife, or both of them, to repay the whole or any part of such marriage portion, or to re-convey an estate granted or intended to be granted, the contract is void, as being a fraud upon the parties to the treaty of marriage, and upon the parents and guardians who had a right to give or withhold their consent to the marriage (b).

If the relations of a woman furnish her with money, in order that she may appear to have a considerable marriage portion, and secretly take from her a bond or covenant to repay the money advanced after her marriage, the bond is void (c). So, if a relation or friend of the husband advances him money, or clothes him with the apparent possession of property, to enable him to make a show of wealth in order to obtain a corresponding portion with his wife, and takes from such husband a bond or covenant for the repayment of the money advanced, or the surrender of the property intrusted to him, the bond or covenant will be void, and the husband will be entitled to hold the property for his own use, notwithstanding that he was himself a party to the deceit (d). Where a widow, on the marriage of her son, agreed with the intended wife's relations to make a (z) Dashwood v. Jermyn, 12 Ch.D. 776.

(a) Kemp v. Coleman, 1 Salk. 156; Turton v. Benson, 2 Vern. 764; Pitcairn v. Ogbourne, 2 Ves. sen. 380; 1 Ves. sen. 277.

(b) 1 Eq. Abr. 88, E. 3; Peyton v. Bladwell, 1 Vern. 240; Scott v. Scott, 1 Cox, 367; Palmer v. Neave, 11 Ves. 165; Morrison v. Arbuthnot, 8 Br. P.C. 247; 1 Br. Ch.C. 548, n.

(c) Gale v. Lindo, 1 Vern. 475.

(d) Thompson v. Harrison, 1 Cox, 346; Webber v. Farmer, 4 Br. P.C. 170.

settlement on him and his wife and the children of the marriage, of certain lands which she had in jointure, but she, at the same time, obtained a secret agreement from her son to pay her an annuity, it was held that this agreement was fraudulent and void (e). If a man about to be married is largely indebted, and a relation comes forward and pays off his debts in order to enable him to gain the consent of the parents of the lady to the match, and at the same time takes a bond from the lady and her intended husband to pay him a certain sum within a specified period from the celebration of the nuptials, the bond is a fraud upon the parents, and the husband and wife are entitled, after the marriage, to set it aside, although they were both parties to the fraud (f).

Upon the same principle, creditors, who conceal wholly, or in part, debts due to them from a man about to be married, and represent that he is not indebted, or is only indebted to them to a less amount, in order to serve the turn of their debtor, and get the parents of the woman to consent to the marriage, will be bound by such fraudulent representations, and will be barred from all remedy for obtaining payment of their debts, just as effectually as if they had executed a release under seal (g).

Marriage settlements.—In a former edition of this work the subject of the rights of husband and wife under settlements made upon the wife was partially and inadequately treated. It has here been entirely omitted, as being outside the scope of this work.

Marriage contract, its nature and requisites.—Marriage, as understood in Christendom, is the voluntary union for life of one man and one woman, to the exclusion of all others (h). The marriage contract itself is founded on the consent of the parties, and ranges amongst that class of contracts called consensual contracts. Consent of parents and guardians was, by 26 Geo. 2, c. 33, and 4 Geo. 4, c. 17, made essential to the validity of all marriages of minors by licence (not being widowers or widows, who were deemed to be emancipated), so that, after a marriage had been actually celebrated and consummated, and followed by the pro-creation of children and a lengthened cohabitation, it might be annulled by the Ecclesiastical Court, and declared

(e) Lamlee v. Hanman, 2 Vern. 466, 499.

(f) Redman v. Redman, 1 Vern. 347; Montefiori v. Montefiori, 1W. Bl. 363; Money v. Jorden, 21 L.J. Ch. 531; Maunsell v. White, 22 L.T. 293.

(g) Nevill v. Wilkinson, 1 Br. Ch. 543; Eastabrooke v. Scott, 3 Ves. 460; 16 Ves. 125.

(h) Hyde v. Hyde, L.R. 1 P. & M. 130; 35 L.J. P. & M. 57; Brinkley v. Att.-Gen., 17 P.D. 76; 59 L.J. P.D.A. 51; Bethell, In re, 38 Ch. D. 220; 57 L.J. Ch. 487.

void ab initio, by reason of the want of such consent prior to the celebration of the nuptials (i). But this was found to be productive of so much mischief that these Acts were repealed; and it has now been enacted that, after the marriage has been actually solemnised, it shall not be necessary in support of such marriage to give any proof of the residence of the parties previous to the marriage within the district where the marriage was solemnised, or of the consent of any person whose consent to the marriage is required by law, and that no evidence shall be given to prove the non-residence or non-consent in any suit touching the validity of such marriage (k).

Age of consent.—The age of consent to marriage is fourteen in males and twelve in females. If, however, a boy under fourteen, or a girl under twelve, actually go through the form of marriage, such marriage is not absolutely void; it is inchoate and imperfect only. If, on arriving at the age of consent, they cohabit, or continue a cohabitation previously begun, the marriage is a good marriage, by reason of the subsequent ratification of the contract (l).

Presumption of marriage.—Where the form of marriage has been gone through, it will be presumed that all the requisites of a valid marriage have occurred until the contrary be shown, there being a strong legal presumption in favour of marriage particularly after a great length of time (m), for the presumption of marriage is much stronger than the presumption raised with regard to other facts (n). Where, therefore, a man and woman are proved to have lived together as man and wife for a considerable time, the law will presume, unless the contrary is clearly proved, that they were living together in consequence of a valid marriage (o); and where it is proved that there was an intention to marry and that some form was gone through to perfect that intention, those who claim by virtue of the marriage are not bound to prove that all necessary ceremonies were performed according to law (p).

Void marriages.—All marriages celebrated after the 31st of August, 1835, between persons within the prohibited degrees

(i) Harrison v. Southampton, 22 L.J. Ch. 722; 4 De G. M. & G. 137.

(k) 4 Geo. 4, c. 76, ss. 16, 26; R. v. Birmingham, 8 B. & C. 29; 7 & 8 Vict. c. 56, s. 3; 19 & 20 Vict. c. 119, s. 17.

(l) Co. Litt. 79 a, 79 b; 1 Rolle Abr. 341.

(m) Piers v. Piers, 2 H.L. Cas. 331, 361.

(n) De Thoren v. Att.-Gen., 1 App. Cas. 686, 690.

(o) Shephard, In re; George v. Thyer, (1904) 1 Ch. 456; 73 L.J. Ch. 401; Aronegary v. Sambonade, 6 App. Cas. 364, 371; 50 L.J. P.C. 28, 32; Sichel v. Lambert, 33 L.J. C.P. 137; 15 C.B. N.S. 781.

(p) Shephard, In re, supra; Piers v. Piers, supra.

of affinity are absolutely void (q). And this rule applies to Jews who are domiciled British subjects as well as to Christians (r). If a widow, therefore, goes through the marriage ceremony with the brother of her deceased husband, the ceremony is a mere form, and will be productive of no legal marriage between the parties (s). But by the Deceased Wife's Sister's Marriage Act, 1907 (t), "no marriage heretofore or hereafter (u) contracted between a man and his deceased wife's sister (x), within the realm or without shall be deemed to have been or shall be void or voidable, as a civil contract, by reason only of such affinity," and provided also that in case, before the passing of this Act, any such marriage shall have been annulled, or either party thereto (after the marriage and during the life of the other) shall have lawfully married another, it shall be deemed to have become and to be void upon and after the day upon which it was so annulled, or upon which either party thereto, lawfully married another as aforesaid." The Act further provides that notwithstanding anything contained therein or in the Matrimonial Causes Act, 1857 (y), it shall not be lawful for a man to marry the sister of his divorced wife, or of his wife by whom he has been divorced, during the lifetime of such wife (z). It has been enacted that, if any persons knowingly and wilfully intermarry in any other place than a church or chapel, or registered building, or the registrar's office, without licence, or due publication of banns, or due notice to the superintendent-registrar, or without certificate of notice duly issued, the marriage of such persons shall be absolutely null and void (a). But it must be shown that both parties have knowingly and wilfully disregarded the provisions of the Marriage Acts. If the disobedience and misconduct are on one side only, the marriage is not invalid (b). And by 19 & 20 Vict. c. 119, s. 17, it is enacted that, after any marriage shall have been solemnised under the authority of 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 85, of 1 Vict. c. 22, and of 3 & 4 Vict. c. 72, it shall not be necessary

(q) 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 54.

(r) De Wilton, In re, (1900) 2 Ch. 481; 69 L.J. Ch. 717.

(s) Reg. v. Chadwick, 11 Q.B. 173, 205; 15 C.B. N.S. 781.

(t) 7 Edw. 7, c. 47, s. 1.

(u) The Act was passed on August 28, 1907.

(x) The word "sister" includes a sister of the half-blood: 7 Edw. 7, c. 47, s. 5.

(y) 20 & 21 Vict. c. 85.

(z) 7 Edw. 7, c. 47, s. 3 (2).

(a) 4 Geo. 4, c. 76, s. 22; 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 85, s. 42; 61 & 62 Vict. c. 58, s. 15; Reg. v. Millis, 10 Cl. & F. 534; 7 Jur. 911; Catherwood v. Caslon, 13 M. & W. 261; 13 L.J. Ex. 334. Where during the publication of the banns one of the parties was resident in Scotland, see 49 & 50 Vict. c. 3; and where one party was resident in Ireland, see 62 & 63 Vict. c. 27; as to the validity of marriages in contravention of the Indian Divorce Act, see Warter v. Warter, 15 P.D. 152; 59 L.J. P. 45.

(b) Wright v. Elwood, 1 Curt. 49, 662; Dormer v. Williams, ib. 874.

in support of such marriage to give any proof that the registered building in which any marriage may have been solemnised had been certified as a place of religious worship, or that it was the usual place of worship of either of the parties, nor shall any evidence be given to prove the contrary in any suit touching the validity of the marriage.

Publication of banns and celebration of marriage in false name.—If banns have been published in a false name with the knowledge of both the parties to the marriage contract for purposes of fraudulent concealment, the marriage will be invalid (c); but no court of justice, ecclesiastical or civil, will lend its aid to enable a man who has concealed his true name at the time of the publication of the banns, or has purposely procured the banns to be published in false names, without the knowledge of the woman he was about to marry, to turn round upon her and annul the marriage and bastardise his children on the ground that he had knowingly and wilfully evaded the provisions of the Marriage Acts (d). Where one of the parties to the marriage contract had assumed a false name, and procured the publication of the banns and the celebration of the marriage in such false name, for the purpose of concealing his or her real condition in life, the other party who had been deceived was entitled to a declaration of the nullity of the marriage from the ecclesiastical court (e). If the error is not a mere error nominis, or misnomer, but an error de corpore, or de personâ, the contract is voidable as to the party who has been deceived; but, if it is a mere misnomer, and the party has married the person that he or she intended to marry, the mere verbal mistake will not suffice to invalidate the marriage (f). Numerous cases have occurred where, in the publication of banns, there has been a partial departure from the true name, and the marriage has, notwithstanding, in the absence of fraud, been held to be valid on the ground that the name, though incorrect, designated the right person (g).

Marriage by licence in a false name is not of the same importance as marriage by banns in a false name. A mere misdescription or misnomer of the parties in the licence will not avoid the marriage, provided the incorrect name represents the

(c) Midgley v. Wood, 30 L.J. P. 57; it must be shown that both parties knowingly and wilfully concurred: Gompertz v. Kensit, L.R. 13 Eq. 369; 41 L.J. Ch. 382.

(d) Rex v. Wroxton, 4 B. & Ad. 640; 2 L.J. M.C. 64; Rex v. Billingshurst, 3 M. & S. 257; Pougett v. Tomkyns, ib. 262, n.

(e) Frankland v. Nicholson, 3 M. & S. 261, n.; Midgley v. Wood, supra.

(f) Clowes v. Clowes, 3 Curt. 190; Rex v. Burton-on-Trent (Inhabitants), 3 M. & S. 537.

(g) Sullivan v. Sullivan, cited Bevan v. M'Mahon, 30 L.J. P. 71; 2 Sw. & T. 230.

right person (h). But, if any fraud or intentional deception has been practised with the knowledge and connivance of both parties upon the ordinary, "if, for instance, a licence were obtained for one person with the intention that it should be used for another, such a licence might not be valid" (i).

Marriage before registrar.—Where a widow went through a form of second marriage at a registry office, her surname, condition and the places of residence of both husband and wife being wrongly stated in the formal notice handed in to the registrar, it was held that, notwithstanding these irregularities, the marriage was valid (k).

Fraudulent celebration of sham marriage.—A party cannot avail himself of his own fraud to annul an apparent marriage. If a man has imposed a pretended clergyman and a supposititious licence upon a young unmarried woman, the Court will not at his instance annul the apparent marriage (l). If persons, professing to marry according to the rites of the Church of England, knowingly or wilfully consent to, or acquiesce in, the solemnization of such marriage by any person not being in holy orders, the marriage is null and void (m).

Test of validity of marriage—Conflict of laws.—The law of the country where a marriage is solemnized does not always determine the validity of the marriage. A union formed between a man and a woman in a foreign country, although in that foreign country it may bear the name of marriage, is not valid in England unless it is in its essence the voluntary union for life of one man and one woman to the exclusion of all others (n). Restrictions and prohibitions against marriage are decided upon by the law of the place where the marriage is celebrated; so that in the case of a marriage in England, where the marriage is valid of a British woman domiciled in England with a man domiciled in a country where in the circumstances the marriage would be invalid, the law of England, as the place where the marriage is celebrated, will prevail as the proper test, at all events in England, of the validity of the marriage (o). A marriage celebrated in France, however, may be valid in this country, though it is invalid according to French law (p). A (h) Bevan v. M'Mahon, ante, p. 1321.

(i) Lane v. Goodwin, 4 Q.B. 366; 12 L.J. Q.B. 157.

(k) Rutter, In re, (1907) 2 Ch. 592; 77 L.J. Ch. 34.

(l) Hawke v. Corri, 2 Hag. Consist. 288.

(m) 4 Geo. 4, c. 76, s. 22.

(n) Bethell, In re, 38 Ch.D. 220; 57 L.J. Ch. 487; Brinkley v. Att.-Gen., 15 P.D. 76; 59 L.J. P. 51.

(o) Ogden v. Ogden, (1907) P. 107; 76 L.J. P. 9; Sottomayer v. De Mattos, 5 P.D. 94; 49 L.J. P. 9; Simonin v. Mallac, 29 L.J. P. & M. 97; 2 Sw. & Tr. 67; Hay v. Northcote, (1900) 2 Ch. 262; 69 L.J. Ch. 586.

(p) Este v. Smith, 18 Beav. 112; 23 L.J. Ch. 705.

marriage with a deceased husband's brother, if valid according to the law of the country where it was celebrated, and in which the parties were then domiciled, is valid in this country (q).

Whenever any attempt is to be made to invalidate a marriage, parties must not slumber over their rights; for "everything," observes Sir William Scott, "is to be presumed in favour of a matrimonial union which has produced children, and united parties by a long cohabitation; such an union is not to be dissolved, unless by some pressing obligations of law" (r).

Release by marriage.—If a creditor marries his debtor, the debt is released and extinguished, but a contract not broken nor converted into a chose in action at the time of the marriage, or during the coverture, will not be released by the marriage. Consequently, if a man, in contemplation of marriage, enters into a contract in writing with his intended wife, to the effect that his heirs or executors shall, after his decease, pay her a certain sum of money in case she should survive him, this contract is not released and discharged by the marriage. Therefore a bond, the condition of which cannot be broken during coverture, is not extinguished by the marriage of the obligor and obligee (s). And such contract will be enforced when it would be in furtherance of the manifest intention of the parties to do so, as in the case of an agreement by persons about to marry for the mutual settlement of their estate, or of the estate of either of them on the other, on the marriage. If an executrix marries the debtor, it is no release in law, because she has the debt in another right (t). Therefore, if the executrix of the obligee of a bond marry the obligor, there is no release of the debt; and after the death of such executrix an action may be maintained in respect of it by the administrator de bonis non (u). Where a man covenanted to pay a woman an annuity for her separate use free from anticipation, and afterwards married her, it was held that the annuity was only suspended by the marriage, and that the widow was entitled to recover arrears accrued subsequently to the death of the husband (x). An obligation in which the husband is obligor and the wife is obligee is destroyed by the marriage, but this does not affect the rights of third parties. Where the wife is (q) Bozelli, In re, (1902) 1 Ch. 751; 71 L.J. Ch. 505. As to such a marriage in this country being invalid, see Reg. v. Chadwick, ante, p. 1320, note (s).

(r) Diddear v. Faucit, 3 Phil. 581; Piers v. Piers, 2 H.L.C. 367; Field's Marriage Bill, ib. 48.

(s) Milbourn v. Ewart, 5 T.R. 385; Cage v. Acton, 1 Ld. Raym. 515; 1 Salk. 325; Dolling v. White, 22 L.J. Q.B. 327.

(t) Needham's case, 8 Co. 136, a.

(u) Wankford v. Wankford, 1 Salk. 306.

(x) Fitzgerald v. Fitzgerald, L.R. 2 P.C. 83; 37 L.J. P.C. 44.

entitled to the bond as legal personal representative, and the extinguishment of the bond would prejudice creditors or legatees, such extinguishment will not take place; but where a wife besides being personal representative was also sole legatee, and all debts had been paid, it was held that a bond given by her husband to his mother-in-law, the testatrix, was extinguished (y).

Deeds of separation (z).—The husband and wife could not at common law by contract between themselves change their legal capacities or characters (a). Formerly, when by reason of matrimonial differences they wished to live separate upon certain terms, it was necessary that a trustee should be appointed to contract with the husband for that purpose (b); but this is not so where the contract is by way of compromise of legal proceedings (c). The husband may covenant with any third party to pay to him a certain sum of money for the separate use of the wife (d) either for a term of years or during her natural life, provided the covenant is absolute and unqualified, and the performance of it is not made to depend upon the contingency of a future separation, or made conditional upon the wife's consent to live separate (e). If it appears by the deed that the separation is not a present, immediate, and actually accomplished separation, but is subsequently to be carried into effect, the contract will be void, as being contrary to the public policy of the law (f). But a deed, made at a time when the parties are living apart and entered into for the purpose of enabling them to live together, to protect the wife and so prevent a future separation, is not against the policy of the law (g); nor is it so if it is only intended to provide for such a separation as the wife may be entitled to by law (g). A trust for a wife so long as she shall continue to cohabit with her husband, with

(y) Price, In re, 11 Ch. D. 163; 48 L.J. Ch. 478.

(z) As to when the Court will insert a dum sola et casta clause, see Wood v. Wood, (1891) P. 272; 60 L.J. P. 66; Lander v. Lander, (1891) P. 161; 60 L.J. P. 65.

(a) Co. Litt. 112, a; Ewers v. Hutton, 3 Esp. 254; Garth v. Earnshaw, 3 Y. & C. 584; St. John (Ld.), v. St. John (Ly.), 11 Ves. 530.

(b) Sanders v. Rodway, 22 L.J. Ch. 230; 16 Beav. 207; Hunt v. Hunt, 31 L.J. Ch. 161; 31 Beav. 89.

(c) McGregor v. McGregor, 21 Q.B.D. 424; 57 L.J. Q.B. 59.

(d) As to power of Court to increase alimony, see Gandy v. Gandy, 30 Ch.D. 57; 54 L.J. Ch. 1154; Bishop v. Bishop, (1897) P. 138; 66 L.J. P. 69.

(e) Clough v. Lambert, 10 Sim. 174; Bostock v. Hume, 7 M. & Gr. 893; 13 L.J. C.P. 225; Logan v. Birkett, 1 Myl. & K. 225; 2 L.J. Ch. 52. As to what amounts to a breach of covenant not to molest, see Fearon v. Aylesford, 14 Q.B.D. 792; 54 L.J. Q.B. 33; Sweet v. Sweet, (1895) 1 Q.B. 12; 64 L.J. Q.B. 108; Hunt v. Hunt, (1897) 2 Q.B. 547; 67 L.J. Q.B. 18.

(f) Westmeath v. Salisbury, 5 Bl. N.S. 393; Hindley v. Westmeath, 6 B. & C. 200; 5 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 115.

(g) Harrison v. Harrison, (1910) 1 K.B. 35; 79 L.J. K.B. 133.

a gift over to the latter, is not void as being against public policy on the ground that it contemplates a future separation (h). A covenant by the trustee to indemnify the husband against debts and expenses contracted by him and his wife during the time they were cohabiting together, as well as against debts that may subsequently be contracted by her, is not, in contemplation of law, a covenant or engagement to pay money as an inducement for a separation, and is not consequently void (i). If the husband has been induced to execute the separation deed by fraudulent misrepresentation or fraudulent concealment on the part of the trustee, the deed will be invalid, and the husband cannot be sued upon it (k). All contracts for the prevention of cohabitation between husband and wife are null and void (l), unless it appears that the husband has by cruelty or misconduct forfeited his marital rights (m). An agreement between a husband and the father of the wife, that the husband and wife should live apart, and that the husband should execute a deed of separation containing all usual and proper clauses, and securing an annuity for the maintenance of his wife and child, and that the expense of the agreement and deed should be borne equally by the husband and the father, has been decreed to be specifically performed (n). Where an annuity was given to a wife while living separate, during the joint lives of the husband and wife, it was continued even where the parties were subsequently divorced (o); but where the husband covenanted to pay his wife for her sole and separate use during her life if she should "so long continue to live separate and apart" an annuity for her maintenance, clothes and other necessaries, and the wife, after her husband's death, remarried, it was held that the annuity ceased to be payable on the death of her husband (p). The question whether a deed is a separation deed or a post-nuptial settlement depends on the intention of the parties, to be gathered from the terms of the deed (q). The existence of a deed of separation containing a covenant not to sue for restitution of conjugal rights is

(h) Hope Johnstone, In re, (1904) 1 Ch. 470; 73 L.J. Ch. 321.

(i) Jones v. Waite, 5 Sc. N.R. 951; 9 Cl. & F. 88; Summers v. Ball, 8 M. & W. 596; 10 L.J. Ex. 368.

(k) Evans v. Edmonds, 22 L.J. C.P. 211; 13 C.B. 777; Evans v. Carrington, 30 L.J. Ch. 364; 1 Jo. & H. 598; but see Kendall v. Webster, 1 H. & C. 440; 31 L.J. Ex. 492.

(l) Wren v. Bradley, 17 L.J. Ch. 172; 2 De G. & S. 49; Cartwright v. Cartwright, 22 L.J. Ch. 841; 3 De G. M. & G. 982.

(m) Westmeath v. Westmeath, 2 Hagg. Eccles. Sup. 115; Swift v. Swift, 34 L.J. Ch. 209, 394; 34 Beav. 266.

(n) Gibbs v. Harding, L.R. 5 Ch. 336; 39 L.J. Ch. 374; and see 36 Vict. c. 12, s. 2.

(o) Charlesworth v. Holt, L.R. 9 Ex. 38; 43 L.J. Ex. 25.

(p) Gilling, In re, 74 L.J. Ch. 335.

(q) Rowell v. Rowell, (1900) 1 Q.B. 9; 69 L.J. Q.B. 55.

not to be disregarded by the Court because the respondent in a suit for that purpose does not appear in it to set up the deed(r).

Subsequent reconciliation puts an end to the husband's covenant to pay an annuity to the wife (s), unless it is provided that a subsequent cohabitation shall in no wise alter or affect such liability (t); but it does not, it seems, amount to an accord and satisfaction of her claims for arrears (u). Mere casual acts of intercourse are not conclusive evidence that the parties to a deed of separation have ceased to live apart (x). If the husband has not forfeited his marital rights by his own misconduct, he may discharge himself from his liability thereon by offering to receive back the wife (y), unless he has covenanted absolutely and unconditionally with the trustee to pay the annuity during the life of the wife (z), in which case his liability to pay the annuity is not discharged by the subsequent commission of adultery by the wife, or by a decree for a judicial separation pronounced in consequence of such adultery (a). When a separation has taken place, and property has been settled upon the wife and children of the marriage for their support, the settlement will be upheld against the future creditors of the husband, unless it appears that the separation was illusory and without adequate cause (b). Articles of agreement made in contemplation of a separation, and by which funds were vested in a trustee upon trust for the wife and children, have been held not to be rendered void by a subsequent reconciliation and resumption of cohabitation, but to be a subsisting voluntary settlement (c).

(r) Kennedy v. Kennedy, (1907) P. 49; 76 L.J. P. 34; which see also as to the time for the consideration of the deed by the Court where such a suit is followed by one of divorce.

(s) St. John (Ld.) v. St. John (Ly.), 11 Ves. 537; Bateman v. Ross, 1 Dow, 245; Nicol v. Nicol, 31 Ch.D. 524; 55 L.J. Ch. 437. As to the effect on a quasi-separation deed between persons who have been living in concubinage, see Abdy, In re, (1895) 1 Ch. 455; 64 L.J. Ch. 465.

(t) Wilson v. Mushett, 3 B. & Ad. 751; 1 L.J. K.B. 250; Webster v. Webster, 22 L.J. Ch. 837; 4 De G. M. & G. 437.

(u) Macau v. Macau, 70 L.J. K.B. 90.

(x) Rowell v. Rowell, (1900) 1 Q.B. 9; 69 L.J. Q.B. 55.

(y) Whorewood v. Whorewood, Ch. Cas. 250.

(z) Seeling v. Crawley, 2 Vern. 386.

(a) Baynon v. Batley, 1 L.J. C.P. 75; 8 Bing. 256; Jee v. Thurlow, 2 B. & C. 551; 2 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 81; Seagrave v. Seagrave, 13 Ves. 439; Fearon v. Aylesford (Earl), 14 Q.B.D. 792; 54 L.J. Q.B. 33.

(b) Hobbs v. Hull, 1 Cox, 445; Nunn v. Wilsmore, 8 T.R. 529; Stephens v. Olive, 2 Br. C.C. 90.

(c) Spark's Trusts, In re, (1904) 1 Ch. 451; 73 L.J. Ch. 259, following Ruffles v. Alston, L.R. 19 Eq. 539; 44 L.J. Ch. 308. The Court of Appeal subsequently sanctioned a compromise as being for the benefit of the infants interested; see (1904) 2 Ch. 121; 73 L.J. Ch. 576.

APPENDIX ON STAMPS.

CHAPTER I.

GENERAL PRINCIPLES.

The Stamp Act, 1891.—The Stamp Act, 1891 (a), consolidated and amended the provisions theretofore contained in various Acts relating to stamp duties (b).

Interpretation of terms.—By sect. 122, it is enacted that in this Act unless the context otherwise requires "The Commissioners" means the Commissioners of Inland Revenue; "Material" includes every sort of material upon which words or figures can be expressed; "Instrument" includes every written document; "Stamp" means as well a stamp impressed by means of a die as an adhesive stamp; "Stamped," with reference to instruments and material, applies as well to instruments and material impressed with stamps by means of a die as to instruments and material having adhesive stamps affixed thereto; "Executed" and "Execution," with reference to instruments not under seal, mean signed and signature; "Money" includes all sums expressed in British or in any foreign or colonial currency; "Stock" includes any share in any stocks or funds transferable at the Bank of England or at the Bank of Ireland, and India promissory notes, and any share in the stocks or funds of any foreign or colonial state or government, or in the capital stock or funded debt of any county council, company, corporation, or society in the United Kingdom, or of any foreign or colonial company, corporation, or society; "Marketable security" means a security of such a description as to be capable of being sold in any stock market in the United Kingdom (c); "Steward" of a manor includes deputy steward.

Section 1 grants the duties specified in the schedule to the Act (d).

(a) 54 & 55 Vict. c. 39.

(b) The Stamp Duties Management Act, 1891 (54 & 55 Vict. c. 38), contains provisions relating principally to offences, and to the sale of stamps.

(c) See Texas Land Co. v. Inland Rev. Com., 26 Scot. L.R. 49.

(d) See Onslow v. Inland Rev. Com., (1891) 1 Q.B. 239; 60 L.J. Q.B. 138.

By sect. 120, any instrument which, by any Act passed before 1st January, 1871, and not relating to stamp duties, is specifically charged with the duty of 35*s.*, shall be chargeable only with the duty of 10*s.* in lieu of the said duty of 35*s.*

Instruments relating to Crown property.—By sect. 119, except where express provision to the contrary is made by this or any other Act, an instrument relating to property belonging to the Crown, or being the private property of the Sovereign, is to be charged with the same duty as an instrument of the same kind relating to property belonging to a subject.

How instruments are to be written and stamped.—By sect. 2, all stamp duties for the time being chargeable by law upon any instruments are to be paid and denoted according to the regulations in this Act contained, and except where express provision is made to the contrary are to be denoted by impressed stamps only.

By sect. 3 (1), every instrument written upon stamped material is to be written in such manner, and every instrument partly or wholly written before being stamped, is to be so stamped, that the stamp may appear on the face of the instrument, and cannot be used for or applied to any other instrument written upon the same piece of material (e).

Stamping of instruments after execution.—By sect. 15 (1) save where other express provision is in this Act made, any unstamped or insufficiently stamped instrument may be stamped after the execution thereof, on payment of the unpaid duty and a penalty of ten pounds, and also by way of further penalty, where the unpaid duty exceeds ten pounds, of interest on such duty, at the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, from the day upon which the instrument was first executed up to the time when the amount of interest is equal to the unpaid duty.

(2.) In the case of such instruments hereinafter mentioned as are chargeable with ad valorem duty, the following provisions shall have effect:—

(a) The instrument, unless it is written upon duly stamped material, shall be duly stamped with the proper ad valorem duty before the expiration of thirty days after it is first executed, or after it has been first received in the United Kingdom in case it is first executed at any place out of the United Kingdom, unless the opinion of the commissioners with respect to the amount of duty with which the instrument is chargeable has, before such expiration, been required under the provisions of this Act:

(e) As to instruments charged with more than one duty, see sect. 3 (2), post, p. 1330.

(b) If the opinion of the commissioners with respect to any such instrument has been required, the instrument shall be stamped in accordance with the assessment of the commissioners within fourteen days after notice of the assessment:

(c) If any such instrument executed after the sixteenth day of May one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight has not been or is not duly stamped in conformity with the foregoing provisions of this sub-section, the person in that behalf hereinafter specified shall incur a fine of ten pounds, and in addition to the penalty payable on stamping the instrument there shall be paid a further penalty equivalent to the stamp duty thereon, unless a reasonable excuse for the delay in stamping, or the omission to stamp, or the insufficiency of stamp, be afforded to the satisfaction of the commissioners, or of the Court, judge, arbitrator, or referee before whom it is produced (f):

(d) The instruments (g) and persons to which the provisions of this sub-section are to apply are as follows:—

Title of Instrument as described in the First Schedule to this Act.	Person liable to Penalty.
Bond, covenant, or instrument of any kind whatsoever.	The obligee, covenantee, or other person taking the security.
Conveyance on sale	The vendee or transferee.
Lease or tack	The lessee.
Mortgage, bond, debenture, covenant, and warrant of attorney to confess and enter up judgment.	The mortgagee or obligee; in the case of a transfer or reconveyance, the transferee, assignee, or disponee, or the person redeeming the security.
Settlement	The settler.

(3.) Provided that save where other express provision is made by this Act in relation to any particular instrument:

(a) Any unstamped or insufficiently stamped instrument which has been first executed at any place out of the United Kingdom, may be stamped, at any time within thirty days after it has been first received in the United Kingdom, on payment of the unpaid duty only: and

(f) See sect. 14, post, p. 1334.

(g) The provisions of paragraph (d) apply to conveyances or transfers operating as voluntary dispositions inter vivos, see 10 Edw. 7, c. 8, s. 74 (3).

(b) The commissioners may, if they think fit, mitigate or remit any penalty payable on stamping (h).

(4.) The payment of any penalty payable on stamping is to be denoted on the instrument by a particular stamp.

Instruments to be charged with more than one duty.—By sect. 3 (2), if more than one instrument be written upon the same piece of material, every one of such instruments is to be separately and distinctly stamped with the duty with which it is chargeable. By sect. 4, except where express provision to the contrary is made by this or any other Act: (a) an instrument containing or relating to several distinct matters is to be separately and distinctly charged, as if it were a separate instrument, with duty in respect of each of the matters; (b) an instrument made for any consideration in respect whereof it is chargeable with ad valorem duty, and also for any further or other valuable consideration or considerations, is to be separately and distinctly charged as if it were a separate instrument with duty in respect of each of the considerations.

Several deeds on one sheet of paper, vellum, &c., made to answer several unconnected purposes, must bear a distinct stamp in respect of each; but if the contract, though effecting several purposes, carries into effect only one entire transaction, one stamp only is required. Thus, if a lease (i) under seal also contains a covenant on the part of the lessor to sell the demised premises to the lessee, a deed stamp is not requisite in addition to the lease stamp, as the sale is ancillary to the lease (k); but, if the covenant embraces other and different premises, there must be a deed stamp in addition to the lease stamp. If a lease also contains a guarantee by a third party as surety for the payment of the rent, the guarantee is ancillary to the lease, and the lease stamp suffices (l); but if the lease be under seal and the guarantee refers to the payment of the price of goods and chattels covenanted to be bought and sold, or any matter not ordinarily or necessarily incident to the lease, there must be a deed stamp as well as a lease stamp (m). If several leases are granted to different lessees (n), or several surrenders of leases (o), or several releases of separate causes of action, are (h) By the Finance Act, 1895 (58 & 59 Vict. c. 16), s. 15, the limit of time prescribed by this section was repealed.

(i) As to leases, see sect. 77 (2), post, p. 1357

(k) Worthington v. Warrington, 5 C.B. 635; 17 L.J. C.P. 117.

(l) Price v. Thomas, 2 B. & Ad. 218; Pratt v. Thomas, 4 C. & P. 554.

(m) Wharton v. Walton, 7 Q.B. 471; 14 L.J. Q.B. 321; Lovelock v. Franklyn, 8 Q.B. 371; 15 L.J. Q.B. 146.

(n) Doe v. Day, 13 East, 241.

(o) Reg. v. Everdon, 16 L.J. Q.B. 18.

made to different parties (p), or several annuities are granted by one deed, engrossed on one piece of parchment, separate stamps are required; but if there be several leases of different properties to one lessee (q), or a release of several causes of action against one releasee, or of one joint cause of action against several persons jointly liable (r), or the grant of one annuity only, payable in different proportions to different individuals (s), one stamp suffices. And if there are two deeds on the same piece of parchment or paper, the circumstance of one of them being unstamped will not prevent the other from being given in evidence if duly stamped (t). An appointment of new trustees, which also vests the property in them, is chargeable in respect of each of such matters (u); and also a deed of transfer made between four residuary legatees for dividing amongst them parts of the testator's personal estate (x).

It has been held that several matters set forth and authenticated by one written document were so connected together as to form one contract and transaction, and to require only one stamp, in the following cases: where a sale and mortgage were simultaneously agreed upon and carried into effect by one and the same deed (y); where a bond and covenant to pay money, and also where a lease contained a power of attorney, and the deed and power in each case related to the same subject-matter; where a conveyance of land was coupled with a declaration of trust as to stock ancillary to such conveyance (z); where a lease under seal also contained a covenant to insure (a); where a surety became bound with his principal, and by the same bond the principal bound himself to indemnify the surety against loss (b); where a transfer deed of shares also contained a covenant on the part of the purchaser to observe the rules of the company (c); where indentures of apprenticeship divided a seven years' binding into two distinct periods, to be served with two different masters, and contained separate covenants with the several masters (d); where a deed of surrender of a (p) Rex v. Weeks, 2 Ld. Raym. 1445.

(q) Blount v. Pearman, 1 Sc. 55; 4 L.J. C.P. 149.

(r) Perry v. Bouchier, 4 Campb. 80.

(s) Cook v. Jones, 15 East, 237.

(t) Anon., Salk. 162.

(u) Hadgett v. Inland Rev. Com., 3 Ex. D. 46.

(x) Freeman v. Inland Rev. Com., L.R. 6 Ex. 101; 40 L.J. Ex. 85.

(y) Rushbrook v. Hood, 5 C.B. 131; 17 L.J. C.P. 58.

(z) Doe v. Fereday, 12 Ad. & E. 23; 11 L.J. Q.B. 19.

(a) Wilson v. Smith, 12 M. & W. 401; 13 L.J. Ex. 113.

(b) Annandale v. Pattison, 9 B. & C. 919; 8 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 66.

(c) Wolseley v. Cox, 2 Q.B. 321; 11 L.J. Q.B. 9.

(d) Rex v. Louth, 8 B. & C. 247; 6 L.J. (O.S.) M.C. 107.

lease also contained a covenant on the part of the surrenderee to grant a new lease (e).

Agreements and leases (f) on one sheet of paper must have both a lease and an agreement stamp, unless the agreement is strictly ancillary to the lease, and the two are necessarily connected together and form part of one entire contract (g). Where leasehold and copyhold premises were put up to auction in two separate lots, and the purchaser signed a memorandum agreeing to purchase the two lots at separate prices, it was held that two agreement stamps were necessary (h). If an agreement for a lease also contains an agreement on the part of the intended lessor to give the lessee the option of purchasing the premises, separate agreement stamps are not necessary; but, if the agreement to sell includes more premises than are comprised in the agreement for the lease, or relates to other and different premises, there are then two several contracts, and there must be two agreement stamps (i). There may be a variety of stipulations and engagements entered into at the same time by divers parties, forming the several parts of one contract, together constituting one transaction, and requiring consequently but one stamp (k). "Where a debtor compounds with his creditors, and where each creditor signs the same deed covenanting either to give further day of payment or to take a certain sum as a composition, . . . every covenant is in fact a separate covenant and the several deed of each creditor who signs the deed; but, the whole being only one transaction, a separate stamp for each person is never required" (l). An agreement by several persons to subscribe to one common fund, or to do certain things in furtherance of one common purpose, requires but one stamp, although the parties may have several interests, and subject themselves to separate liabilities (m). Where the members of a mutual insurance club all executed the same power of attorney, severally authorising the persons therein named to sign the club policies for them, it was held

(e) Doe v. Phillips, 11 Ad. & E. 796; 3 P. & D. 603.

(f) As to leases, see also sect. 77 (2), post, p. 1357.

(g) Wharton v. Walton, 7 Q.B. 474; 14 L.J. Q.B. 321.

(h) Watling v. Horwood, 12 Jur. 48.

(i) Lovelock v. Franklyn, 8 Q.B. 379; 16 L.J. Q.B. 182; Worthington v. Warrington, 5 C.B. 635; 17 L.J. C.P. 117.

(k) Rex v. Louth, 8 B. & C. 247; 6 L.J. (O.S.) M.C. 107; Stead v. Liddard, 8 Moore, 2; 1 Bing. 196; 1 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 52.

(l) Mansfield, C.J., Bowen v. Ashley, 1 B. & P. N.R. 278; Ramsbottom v. Davis, 4 M. & W. 584; 8 L.J. Ex. 80.

(m) Davis v. Williams, 13 East, 232; Goodson v. Forbes, 6 Taunt. 171; 1 Marsh. 525.

that this was one transaction, and that the instrument required but one stamp (n).

Appropriated stamps.—By sect. 10 (1), a stamp which, by any word or words on the face of it, is appropriated to any particular description of instrument, is not to be used, or, if used, is not to be available for any instrument of any other description. (2) An instrument falling under the particular description to which any stamp is so appropriated as aforesaid, is not to be deemed duly stamped, unless it is stamped with the stamp so appropriated. An instrument liable to duty as a promissory note, stamped with a penny "Postage and Inland Revenue" stamp only, was not allowed to be given in evidence to prove payment of the sum in dispute (o).

Facts affecting duty to be set forth.—By sect. 5, all the facts and circumstances affecting the liability of any instrument to duty, or the amount of the duty with which any instrument is chargeable, are to be fully and truly set forth in the instrument, under a penalty of 10*l.* for certain offences mentioned.

Valuation of foreign or colonial money, or stock and marketable securities.—By sect. 6 (1), where an instrument is chargeable with ad valorem duty in respect of any money in any foreign or colonial currency, or any stock, or of any marketable security (p), such duty shall be calculated on the value of such money in British currency, according to the current rate of exchange on the day of the date of the instrument, or of the stock or security according to the average price thereof. The Finance Act, 1899, amends this by fixing a rate of exchange according to which the ad valorem duty shall be calculated in the case of all such instruments, except bills of exchange and promissory notes (q).

Effect of statement of value.—By sect. 6 (2), where an instrument contains a statement of current rate of exchange, or average price, as the case may require, and is stamped in accordance with such statement, it is, so far as regards the subject-matter of the statement, to be deemed duly stamped, unless or until it is shown that the statement is untrue, and that the instrument is in fact insufficiently stamped.

Denoting stamp.—By sect. 11, where the duty with which an instrument is chargeable depends in any manner upon the duty paid upon another instrument, the payment of the last-mentioned duty shall, upon application to the commissioners, (n) Allen v. Morrison, 8 B. & C. 565; 7 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 106.

(o) Ashling v. Boon, (1891) 1 Ch. 568; 60 L.J. Ch. 396.

(p) See as to the meaning of these terms, sect. 122, ante, p. 1327.

(q) 62 & 63 Vict. c. 9, s. 12.

and production of both the instruments, be denoted in such manner as the commissioners think fit.

Reception in evidence of unstamped instruments. — By sect. 14 (1), upon the production of an instrument chargeable with any duty as evidence in any Court of Civil Judicature in any part of the United Kingdom, or before any arbitrator or referee, notice shall be taken by the judge, arbitrator or referee, of any omission or insufficiency of the stamp thereon; and, if the instrument is one which may legally be stamped after the execution thereof, it may, on payment to the officer of the Court whose duty it is to read the instrument, or to the arbitrator or referee, of the amount of the unpaid duty, and the penalty payable on stamping the same, and of a further sum of 1*l.*, be received in evidence (r), saving all just exceptions on other grounds. The section then directs the officer of the Court to account for the duties and penalties, and provides for the denoting of the payment of the duty and penalty upon the instrument (sub-sects. 2 and 3).

A new trial shall not be granted by reason of the ruling of any judge that the stamp upon any document is sufficient, or that the document does not require a stamp (s). The ruling of the judge is final only when he decides that the instrument is admissible in evidence (t). If the judge rules that the stamp upon a document is sufficient, no appeal lies against his ruling, even though it should appear to be incorrect (u).

By sect. 14 (4), save as aforesaid, an instrument executed in any part of the United Kingdom (x), or relating, wheresoever executed, to any property situate, or to any matter or thing done or to be done, in any part of the United Kingdom, shall not, except in criminal proceedings, be given in evidence, or be available for any purpose whatever, unless it is duly stamped in accordance with the law in force at the time when it was first executed (y); see sect. 38 (1), post, p. 1377. The presumption is that an instrument has been duly stamped in the absence of evidence to the contrary (z).

(r) See Mason v. Motor Traction Co., (1905) 1 Ch. 419; 74 L.J. Ch. 273, for instance where the Court looked at an unstamped copy of a document, not as an agreement, but as evidencing the terms of a proposal of sale.

(s) R. S. C., Order XXXIX., r. 8.

(t) Sharples v. Richard, 26 L.J. Ex. 302.

(u) Blewitt v. Tritton, (1892) 2 Q.B. 627; 61 L.J. Q.B. 773.

(x) E.g., executed in England upon a sale in Australia: Wright v. Inland Rev. Com., 11 Exch. 458; 25 L.J. Ex. 49.

(y) See Clarke v. Roche, 3 Q.B.D. 170; 47 L.J. Q.B. 147; Ashling v. Boon, (1891) 1 Ch. 568; 60 L.J. Ch. 306; Birchall v. Bullough, (1896) 1 Q.B. 325; 65 L.J. Q.B. 252; Coolgardie Gold Fields, In re, (1900) 1 Ch. 475; 69 L.J. Ch. 868.

(z) Marine Ins. Co. v. Haviside, L.R. 5 H.L. 624; 42 L.J. Ch. 173.

Sections 12, 13, provide for the mode to be pursued in order to procure the commissioners to express their opinion as to the duty, the effect of such a proceeding, and the mode of appealing from the commissioners' assessment.

Use of adhesive stamps.—By sect. 7, any stamp duties of an amount not exceeding two shillings and sixpence upon instruments which are permitted by law to be denoted by adhesive stamps not appropriated by any word or words on the face of them to any particular description of instrument, and any postage duties of the like amount, may be denoted by the same adhesive stamps.

Cancellation of adhesive stamps.—By sect. 8 (1), an instrument the duty upon which is required, or permitted by law, to be denoted by an adhesive stamp, is not to be deemed duly stamped with an adhesive stamp, unless the person required by law to cancel the adhesive stamp, cancels the same by writing on or across the stamp his name or initials, or the name or initials of his firm, together with the true date of his so writing, or otherwise effectively cancels the stamp, and renders the same incapable of being used for any other instrument or for any postal purpose, or unless it is otherwise proved that the stamp appearing on the instrument was affixed thereto at the proper time. An adhesive stamp used on a letter or power of attorney for appointing a proxy to vote at a meeting is sufficiently cancelled within the meaning of sect. 8, sub-sect. 1 of the Stamp Act, 1891, by the writing across it of the date of cancellation alone, or other marks of a defacing nature (a). If there are several stamps, the cancellation must extend to all; see sect. 8 (2). (3) Every person who, being required by law to cancel an adhesive stamp, neglects or refuses duly and effectually to do so in manner aforesaid, shall incur a fine of 10*l.*

Section 9 imposes a fine of 50*l.* for frauds in relation to adhesive stamps and duties. Section 121 provides for the recovery of penalties.

Restamping altered contracts.—If, after a contract has been entered into and executed, the parties vary the terms thereof either by an alteration in the body of the written instrument, or by an indorsement, qualifying and restricting or extending its operation, and neglect to have the writing restamped, they will be unable to recover upon either contract (b). If the first agreement is altered, and turned into another and different agreement, and the plaintiff brings his action thereon, and then finds that the substituted contract cannot be enforced by reason of its being unstamped, he cannot resort back to the contract which was abandoned by consent, and seek to recover upon it in its original state. If a bill of exchange or a promissory note is altered in any material particular, it becomes a new security, and must be re-stamped (c); but, whilst a contract is in fieri, and before it is completely executed by all parties, and perfected, an alteration may be made without rendering a new stamp necessary (d). Before a promissory note has been negotiated, it may be converted into a bill of exchange, or altered as to its date, or the time that it has to run, in furtherance of the original intention of all parties, and to correct a mistake (e). And a subsequent alteration of a written agreement in a point not material, made by consent of all parties, does not render a fresh stamp necessary, such as an alteration made for the mere purpose of adding the style or address of the parties, or adding the words "or order" accidentally omitted on a bill of exchange (f); or altering the name of the port whence the certificate of a ship's registry was granted, a wrong port having been inserted by mistake (g); or rectifying a clerical error in the name, in declaring the interest on a policy (h); or altering a place at which a bill is made payable, with the consent of the acceptor (i); or inserting it when it has been accidentally omitted; or the insertion by the bonâ fide holder of a bill of his name in a blank left to be filled up by the name of the payee; for the issuing of the bill in blank conveys an implied authority to the holder to insert the name; and the insertion thereof merely completes the contract, and carries into effect the original intention (k). If a bill of exchange or a promissory note, however, is altered in any material particular, it becomes a new security, and must be re-stamped (l). This will be the case if the parties by indorsement agree to enlarge the time for the fulfilment of the con-

(a) M'Mullen v. "Sir Alfred Hickman" Steamship, Ltd., 71 L.J. Ch. 766.

(b) Reed v. Deere, 7 B. & C. 265; 3 C. & P. 624.

(c) Knill v. Williams, 10 East, 431; Bathe v. Taylor, 15 East, 412.

(d) Jones v. Jones, 1 C. & M. 721; 2 L.J. Ex. 249; Spicer v. Burgess, 1 C.M. & R. 129; 3 L.J. Ex. 285; Wright v. Inshaw, 1 Dowl. N.S. 802; 6 Jur. 857.

(e) Webber v. Maddocks, 3 Campb. 1; Kennerley v. Nash, 1 Stark. 452; Downes v. Richardson, 5 B. & Ald. 674; 1 D. & R. 332.

(f) Byrom v. Thompson, 11 Ad. & E. 31; 9 L.J. Q.B. 26; Farquhar v. Southey, Moo. & M. 14; 2 C. & P. 497.

(g) Cole v. Parkin, 12 East, 471.

(h) Robinson v. Touray, 1 M. & S. 217; 3 Campb. 160; Sawtell v. Loudon, 5 Taunt. 359; 1 Marsh. 99

(i) Jacob v. Hart, 6 M. & S. 142; 2 Stark. 45; Walter v. Cubley, 2 Cr. & M. 151; 3 L.J. Ex. 2.

(k) Crutchley v. Clarence, 2 M. & S. 90.

(l) Knill v. Williams, 10 East, 431; Bathe v. Taylor, 15 East, 412; Tidmarsh v. Grover, 1 M. & S. 735; Walton v. Hastings, 4 Campb. 223; 1 Stark. 215; Cowie v. Halsall, 4 B. & Ald. 197; 3 Stark. 36.

tract (m), or if a fresh signature is added at the bottom of a promissory note, after it has been negotiated, so as to make the note the joint note of two promisors, instead of the note of one person only, or if the date has been altered (n).

Admissibility in evidence for collateral purposes of unstamped, or wrongly stamped, documents.—An unstamped writing "may be given in evidence for the purpose of showing that it is a mere piece of waste paper, from the very circumstance of its being unstamped, or to serve some collateral purpose" (o). An unstamped policy has been received in evidence to support an action for the penalties (p), and an unstamped contract to prove a fraud (q), and an unstamped guarantee to show that the giving of it up was a sufficient consideration for a promise (r). A memorandum on the back of an unstamped promissory note of the payment of a certain sum of money for interest has been allowed to be given in evidence as an admission of a certain principal sum being due (s). Memoranda of payments, not given in evidence or sought to be set up as an acquittance or discharge of a debt, but in order to prove an over-payment, have been held admissible unstamped (t); and, although an unstamped receipt for money cannot be given in evidence as an acquittance or discharge of a debt, yet it may be looked at by a witness to refresh his memory upon the subject of the receipt of the money (u).

When a stamped contract is in the hands of one of the parties to an action, who refuses to produce it, the Court will allow secondary evidence of the contents to be given through the medium of an unstamped draft or copy (x); and, if a contract is proved to be in the hands of the defendant in an action, and the latter refuses to produce it after notice, the Court will presume it to be duly stamped, unless the contrary be shown (y);

(m) Bacon v. Simpson, 3 M. & W. 78; 7 L.J. Ex. 34; Stephens v. Lowe, 2 M. & Sc. 44; 9 Bing. 32; 1 L.J. C.P. 150. See Yates v. Evans, 61 L.J. Q.B. 446.

(n) Cardwell v. Martin, 9 East, 190; 1 Campb. 79, 180; Bowman v. Nichol, 5 T.R. 537; Perring v. Hone, 12 Moore, 145; 5 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 33.

(o) Smart v. Nokes, 13 L.J. C.P. 79; 7 Sc. N.R. 786; Coppock v. Bower, 4 M. & W. 361; 8 L.J. Ex. 9; Williams v. Gerry, 10 M. & W. 226; 11 L.J. Ex. 389; Enthoven v. Hoyle, 13 C.B. 394; 21 L.J. C.P. 100; Matheson v. Ross, 2 H.L.C. 300; 13 Jur. 307.

(p) Holland v. Duffin, Peake, 81.

(q) Keable v. Payne, 8 Ad. & E. 555; 7 L.J. Q.B. 218; Holmes v. Sixsmith, 7 Exch. 802; 21 L.J. Ex. 313.

(r) Haigh v. Brooks, 10 Ad. & E. 309; 9 L.J. Q.B. 194.

(s) Manly v. Peel, 5 Esp. 121.

(t) Clark v. Hougham, 3 D. & R. 323; 1 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 249.

(u) Rambert v. Cohen, 4 Esp. 213; Catt v. Howard, 3 Stark. 3; Jacob v. Lindsay, 1 East, 460; Maugham v. Hubbard, 8 B. & C. 14; 6 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 229.

(x) Munn v. Godbold, 11 Moore, 49; 4 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 54; Braythwayte v. Hitchcock, 10 M. & W. 494; 12 L.J. Ex. 38.

(y) Crisp v. Anderson, 1 Stark. 35.

and the same presumption will be adopted where a contract has been lost (z).

Stamp duties on contracts executed abroad.—Our courts of law do not, as previously mentioned, take notice of the revenue laws of foreign states. Where an action was brought in this country for the recovery of money lent in France, and unstamped receipts for the money were produced in proof of the loan, evidence to show that by the law of France such receipts required stamps to render them evidence was rejected (a). But, if the law of the country in which the contract is made renders the contract null and void if it is not stamped, it cannot be enforced here if it has not the foreign stamp (b). Promissory notes made abroad and negotiated here are subjected to our stamp duties (c).

(z) Rex v. Long Buckby, 7 East, 45; Pooley v. Goodwin, 4 Ad. & E. 94; 5 N. & M. 466; Hart v. Hart, 1 Hare, 1; 11 L.J. Ch. 9; Closmadeuc v. Carrel, 18 C.B. 36; 35 L.J. C.P. 216. See Marine Insurance Co. v. Haviside, ante, p. 1334.

(a) James v. Catherwood, 3 D. & R. 190.

(b) Bristow v. Sequeville, 5 Exch. 279; 19 L.J. Ex. 289.

(c) See ante, p. 1241, Bills of Exchange.

CHAPTER II.

OF THE STAMPS APPROPRIATE TO PARTICULAR CONTRACTS.

Stamp duties on deeds.—Deeds of any kind whatsoever which are not specifically described in the schedule of the Stamp Act, 1891, are liable to a duty of 10*s.* (a). The mere fact of a contract having a seal placed against the signatures of the parties does not, as we have seen, make the contract a deed. A contract, therefore, does not require a deed stamp merely because there is a seal attached to it (b). "The party who seeks to bring an instrument within the Stamp Act must show clearly that it falls within it; he must, so to speak, 'hit the bird in the very eye.' No intendments can be made in favour of the liability" (c). If an old deed appears on the face of it to have been stamped, and the parchment is worn and the stamp obliterated, so that the nature and amount of it cannot be ascertained, the document is admissible in evidence; and it is for the parties who seek to impeach the deed to show, either that it was not stamped at all, or that it was stamped with a wrong stamp (d).

Progressive duty, according to the number of words contained in a deed, used to be imposed upon all deeds, but by the Stamp Act, 1891, the duties thereinafter mentioned are granted, and there is no mention made of progressive duties, which are therefore abolished (e).

Attested copies—Duplicates and counterparts.—Attested or authenticated copies or extracts of certain documents mentioned are charged with the same duty as the original instruments in the case of an instrument chargeable with any duty

(a) 54 & 55 Vict. c. 39. See Inland Rev. Com. v. Maple & Co., (1908) A.C. 22; 77 L.J. K.B. 55. By 46 & 47 Vict. c. 52, s. 144, every deed, &c., relating solely to property which is part of the estate of the bankrupt, and which after the execution of such deed, &c.. is, or remains, the estate of the bankrupt, or of the trustee, and every power of attorney, &c., or other instrument relating solely to the property of any bankrupt, or to any proceeding under any bankruptcy, is exempted from stamp duty (except in respect of fees under that Act). This section is extended to companies wound up by order of the Court by the Finance Act, 1895 (58 & 59 Vict. c. 16), s. 16.

(b) Chanter v. Johnson, 14 M. & W. 408; 14 L.J. Ex. 289; Brown v. Vawser, 4 East, 584.

(c) Per cur., Phillips v. Morrison, 12 M. & W. 740; 13 L.J. Ex. 213.

(d) Doe v. Coombs, 3 Q.B. 687; 12 L.J. Q.B. 36.

(e) See the preamble to the Act, and sect. 1.

not amounting to 1*s.*, and in any other case with a duty of 1*s.* (f). But copies or extracts of or from any law proceedings are exempt. With respect to copies and extracts, it is also enacted by sect. 63 of the Stamp Act, 1891, that an attested or otherwise authenticated copy or extract of or from—(1) an instrument, chargeable with any duty; (2) an original will, testament, or codicil; (3) the probate or probate copy of a will or codicil; (4) letters of administration or a confirmation of a testament, may be stamped at any time within fourteen days after the date of the attestation or authentication, on payment of the duty only. Duplicates or counterparts of any instrument chargeable with stamp duty, not amounting to 5*s.*, are subjected to the same duty as is charged on the original instrument; and, in any other case, the stamp duty on the duplicate or counterpart is 5*s.*

By sect. 72, the duplicate or counterpart of an instrument chargeable with duty (except the counterpart of an instrument chargeable as a lease, such counterpart not being executed by or on behalf of any lessor or grantor), is not to be deemed duly stamped unless it is stamped as an original instrument, or unless it appears by some stamp impressed thereon that the full and proper duty has been paid upon the original instrument of which it is the duplicate or counterpart.

A copy or extract certified of or from any register of births, baptisms, marriages, deaths, or burials is chargeable with one penny duty; and see sect. 64 of the Act.

Purchase of property under authority of statute.—The ad valorem duty imposed by sect. 12 of the Finance Act, 1895 (g), on "any property" purchased under statutory authority of which a duly stamped instrument of conveyance is required, is payable in respect of the whole property, personal as well as real, and is not confined to property which can only be transferred in writing (h). A conveyance which had been produced at the collector's offices in order to be provisionally marked with the duty payable and has thereafter been stamped with that duty, has not thereby been "produced to the Commissioners of Inland Revenue duly stamped" in the sense of sect. 12 of the Act of 1895. The date of the "completion of the purchase" within the section is the date of the final payment of the price (i).

(f) See the schedule, tit. "Copy."
(g) 58 & 59 Vict. c. 16, s. 12.
(h) Eastbourne Corporation v. Att.-Gen., (1904) A.C. 155; 73 L.J. K.B. 259.
(i) Lord Advocate v. Caledonian Ry., (1908) S.C. 566; Att.-Gen. v. Felixtowe Gas Light and Coke Co., (1907) 2 K.B. 984; 76 L.J. K.B. 1107.

Conveyances or transfers on sale of any property (except certain stocks) (k) are subject to the ad valorem duty specified in the schedules to the Act varying from 6*d.*, where the value of the consideration does not exceed 5*l.*, to 1*l.* 10*s.* 0*d.*, where the value exceeds 275*l.*; and for any conveyance or transfer of any kind not thereinbefore described, to a duty of 10*s.* By sect. 73 of the Finance Act, 1910 (l), these duties are now double those specified in the Stamp Act, 1891; but the section inter alia does not apply to the conveyance or transfer of any stock or marketable security as defined by sect. 122 of the Act of 1891. By sect. 54, the term "conveyance on sale" includes every instrument, and every decree or order of any Court, or of any commissioners, whereby any property, or any estate or interest in any property, upon the sale thereof is transferred to or vested in a purchaser, or any other person on his behalf or by his direction (m). This includes an agreement for the sale of the goodwill of a business (n).

By sect. 55 (1), where the consideration, or any part of the consideration, for a conveyance on sale consists of any stock or marketable security (o), the conveyance is to be charged with ad valorem duty in respect of the value of the stock or security; (2) where the consideration, or any part of the consideration, for a conveyance on sale consists of any security not being a marketable security, the conveyance is to be charged with ad valorem duty in respect of the amount due on the day of the date thereof for principal and interest upon the security.

By sect. 56 (1), where the consideration, or any part of the consideration, for a conveyance on sale, consists of money payable periodically for a definite period, not exceeding twenty years, so that the total amount to be paid can be previously ascertained, the conveyance is to be charged in respect of that consideration with ad valorem duty on such total amount; (2) where the consideration, or any part of the consideration,

(k) See the schedule, tit. "Conveyance or transfer."

(l) 10 Edw. 7, c. 8, s. 73.

(m) See Inland Rev. Com. v. Glasgow & S. W. Ry., 12 App.Cas. 315; 56 L.J. P.C. 82; G. W. Ry. v. Inland Rev. Com., (1894) 1 Q.B. 507; 63 L.J. Q.B. 405; Huntington v. Inland Rev. Com., (1896) 1 Q.B. 422; 65 L.J. Q.B. 297; Chesterfield Brewery v. Inland Rev. Com., (1899) 2 Q.B. 7; 68 L.J. Q.B. 204; Bristol (Marquess) v. Inland Rev. Com., (1901) 2 K.B. 336; 70 L.J. K.B. 759; G. N. Ry. v. Inland Rev. Com., (1901) 1 K.B. 416; 70 L.J. K.B. 336. By the Finance Act, 1898 (61 & 62 Vict. c. 10), s. 6, the term "conveyance on sale" is to include a decree or order for foreclosure: see Inland Rev. Com. v. Tod, (1898) A.C. 399; 67 L.J. P.C. 42; Lovell and Collard's Contract, In re, (1907) 1 Ch. 249; 76 L.J. Ch. 246.

(n) Inland Rev. Com. v. Angus, 23 Q.B.D. 579; and see sect. 59, post, p. 1361.

(o) See Foster v. Inland Rev. Com., (1894) 1 Q.B. 516; 63 L.J. Q.B. 173; Dawson v. Inland Rev. Com., (1905) 2 Ir. R. 69.

for a conveyance on sale, consists of money payable periodically for a definite period exceeding twenty years, or in perpetuity, or for any indefinite period not terminable with life, the conveyance is to be charged in respect of that consideration with ad valorem duty (q) on the total amount which will or may, according to the terms of sale, be payable during the period of twenty years next after the day of the date of such instrument; (3) where the consideration, or any part of the consideration, for a conveyance on sale, consists of money payable periodically (r) during any life or lives, the conveyance is to be charged, in respect of that consideration, with ad valorem duty on the amount which will or may, according to the terms of sale, be payable during the period of twelve years next after the day of the date of the instrument; (4) provided that no conveyance on sale chargeable with ad valorem duty in respect of any periodical payments, and containing also provision for securing the payments, is to be charged with any duty in respect of such provision, and no separate instrument made in that case for securing the payments is to be charged with any higher duty than 10*s*.

By sect. 57, where any property is conveyed to any person in consideration, wholly or in part, of any debt due to him, or subject either certainly or contingently to the payment or transfer of any money or stock, whether being or constituting a charge or incumbrance upon the property or not, the debt, money, or stock is to be deemed the whole or part, as the case may be, of the consideration in respect whereof the conveyance is chargeable with ad valorem duty (s).

By sect. 58 (1), where property contracted to be sold for one consideration for the whole, is conveyed to the purchaser in separate parts or parcels by different instruments, the consideration is to be apportioned in such manner as the parties think fit, so that a distinct consideration for each separate part or parcel is set forth in the conveyance relating thereto, and such conveyance is to be charged with ad valorem duty in respect of such distinct consideration; (2) where property contracted to be purchased for one consideration for the whole by two or more persons jointly, or by any person for himself and others, or wholly for others, is conveyed in parts or parcels by separate instruments to the persons by or for whom the same was purchased for distinct parts of the consideration, the conveyance of each separate part or parcel is to be charged with ad valorem duty in respect of the distinct part of the consideration therein specified; (3) where there are several instruments of conveyance for completing the purchaser's title to property sold, the principal instrument of conveyance only is to be charged with ad valorem duty, and the other instruments are to be respectively charged with such other duty as they may be liable to, but such last-mentioned duty shall not exceed the ad valorem duty payable in respect of the principal instrument; (4) where a person having contracted for the purchase of any property, but not having obtained a conveyance thereof, contracts to sell the same to any other person, and the property is in consequence conveyed immediately to the sub-purchaser, the conveyance is to be charged with ad valorem duty in respect of the consideration moving from the sub-purchaser; (5) where a person having contracted for the purchase of any property, but not having obtained a conveyance, contracts to sell the whole, or any part or parts thereof, to any other person or persons, and the property is in consequence conveyed by the original seller to different persons in parts or parcels, the conveyance of each part or parcel is to be charged with ad valorem duty, in respect only of the consideration moving from the sub-purchaser thereof, without regard to the amount or value of the original consideration; (6) where a sub-purchaser takes an actual conveyance of the interest of the person immediately selling to him, which is chargeable with ad valorem duty in respect of the consideration moving from him, and is duly stamped accordingly, any conveyance to be afterwards made to him of the same property by the original seller shall be chargeable only with such other duty as it may be liable to, but the last-mentioned duty shall not exceed the ad valorem duty. And see post, p. 1361, as to agreements to be deemed conveyances (sect. 59). By the Finance Act, 1900 (t), a conveyance on sale made for any consideration in respect whereof it is liable to ad valorem duty, and in further consideration of a covenant to make, or of the purchaser having made, substantial improvements or additions to the property, or of any covenant relating to the subject-matter of the conveyance, shall not be chargeable with any duty in respect of such further consideration.

(q) Where part of the consideration on a sale consists of money payable periodically on a contingency for a term exceeding twenty years, or in perpetuity or for an indefinite period, ad valorem stamp duty must under sect. 56, sub-sect. 2, of the Stamp Act, 1891, be paid on twenty years' purchase of such annual payment: Underground Electric Rys. Co. v. Inland Rev. Com., (1906) A.C. 21; 75 L.J. K.B. 117.

(r) Where part of the consideration was to be paid by instalments of 1,000*l*. each at intervals of six months, it was held to be a periodical payment within the corresponding section, and not a deferred payment merely: Limmer Asphalte Co. v. Inland Rev. Com., L.R. 7 Ex. 211; 41 L.J. Ex. 106.

(s) Inland Rev. Com. v. Tod, ante, p. 1341; Swayne v. Inland Rev. Com., (1900) Q.B. 172; 69 L.J. Q.B. 63

(t) 63 & 64 Vict. c. 7, s. 10.

By sect. 60, where, upon the sale of any annuity or other right not before in existence, such annuity or other right is not created by actual grant or conveyance, but is only secured by bond, warrant of attorney, covenant, contract, or otherwise, the bond or other instrument, or some one of such instruments, if there be more than one, is to be charged with the same duty as an actual grant or conveyance, and is for the purposes of this Act to be deemed an instrument of conveyance or sale. This section covers the grant of an annuity for an indefinite period in consideration of the payment of a sum of money (u). This section does not reach a sale of property in consideration of an annuity where there is no conveyance or written contract chargeable under sect. 59 (x).

By sect. 61 (1), in the cases hereinafter specified the principal instrument is to be ascertained in the following manner: (a) where any copyhold or customary estate is conveyed by a deed, no surrender being necessary, the deed is to be deemed the principal instrument; (b) in other cases of copyhold or customary estates, the surrender or grant, if made out of Court, or the memorandum thereof, and the copy of court roll of the surrender or grant, if made in Court, is to be deemed the principal instrument; (c) where in Scotland there is a disposition or assignation executed by the seller, and any other instrument is executed for completing the title, the disposition or assignation is to be deemed the principal instrument: (2) in any other case the parties may determine for themselves which of several instruments is to be deemed the principal instrument, and may pay the ad valorem duty thereon accordingly.

By sect. 62, every instrument, and every decree or order of any Court or of any commissioners, whereby any property on any occasion, except a sale or mortgage, is transferred to or vested in any person, is to be charged with duty as a conveyance or transfer of property (y).

Provided that a conveyance or transfer made for effectuating the appointment or retirement of a trustee is not to be charged with any higher duty than 10*s*. (z).

(u) Mersey Docks and Harbour Board v. Commissioners, (1897) 2 Q.B. 316; 66 L.J. Q.B. 697. As to stamp on undertaking to leave minerals unworked, see G. N. Ry. v. Inland Rev. Com., (1901) 1 K.B. 416; 70 L.J. K.B. 336.

(x) See Blandy v. Herbert, 9 B. & C. 396; 7 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 223; Mestayer v. Biggs, 1 C. M. & R. 110; 3 L.T. Ex. 292.

(y) See Kemp v. Inland Rev. Com., (1905) 1 K.B. 581; 74 L.J. K.B. 112.

(z) These provisions apply to any conveyance or transfer for effectuating the retirement of a trustee,

By sect. 117, every condition of sale framed with the view of precluding objection or requisition upon the ground of absence or insufficiency of stamp upon any instrument executed after the sixteenth day of May one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight, and every contract, arrangement, or undertaking for assuming the liability on account of absence or insufficiency of stamp upon any such instrument or indemnifying against such liability, absence, or insufficiency, shall be void (a).

Contracts not operating as transfers and conveyances of the legal estate in property were not liable to the ad valorem stamp, although they might operate upon the equitable estate (b). Agreements in writing, consequently, for the sale of land or veins or beds of coal, which did not transfer the land or the coal to the purchaser, by reason of their not having been made under seal, needed only to be stamped with a common agreement stamp (c). A contract amounting to a purchase and sale of the goodwill of a business requires an ad valorem stamp as a conveyance (d); and so do simple contracts operating as transfers of fixtures or growing crops, or of any description of property, not being simple contracts for the purchase and sale of goods and chattels (e). Where by a marriage settlement the defendant, in consideration of a sum of money paid by the intended wife's father as a marriage portion, and also in consideration of the marriage, covenanted to pay an annuity to the plaintiff, to the use of the intended husband and wife, it was held that the transaction was not a purchase or a sale of an annuity within the language of the schedule to the 13 & 14 Vict. c. 97 (repealed), and that the ad valorem stamp was not requisite (f). And, where a person who was entitled to the reversion of stock after the death of the party entitled for life, agreed to pay the latter an annuity, in consideration of his permitting the stock to be sold and the proceeds of the sale to be received by such reversioner for his own benefit, it was held that the transaction was not a sale of an annuity in the ordinary acceptation of the although no new trustee is appointed, see 2 Edw. 7, c. 7, s. 9; 10 Edw. 7, c. 8, s. 74 (6).

(a) See Eastbourne Corporation v. Att.-Gen., (1904) A.C. 155; 73 L.J. K.B. 259; and Finance Act, 1895 (58 & 59 Vict. c. 16), s. 12, ante, p. 1340.

(b) See now sect. 59, post, p. 1361; Inland Rev. Com. v. Angus, 23 Q.B.D. 579.

(c) Phillips v. Morrison, 12 M. & W. 742; 13 L.J. Ex. 212; Rex v. Ridgwell, 6 B. & C. 665; 5 L.J. (O.S.) M.C. 67; Wilmot v. Wilkinson, 6 B. & C. 511; 5 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 196.

(d) Potter v. Inland Rev. Com., 10 Exch. 147; 23 L.J. Ex. 345.

(e) Horsfall v. Key, 2 Ex. 778; 17 L.J. Ex. 266; Cattle v. Gamble, 5 Bing. N.C. 46; 8 L.J. C.P. 162; Att.-Gen. v. Brown, 3 Exch. 662; 18 L.J. Ex. 336.

(f) Massy v. Nanney, 3 Bing. N.C. 480; 6 L.J. C.P. 185.

term, and that the deed was properly stamped with a common deed stamp (g).

Mortgages (h), bonds, debentures, covenants (except a marketable security (i) otherwise charged with duty), warrants of attorney to confess and enter up judgment, and foreign securities of any kind, are liable, when they are the only, or principal, or primary security (other than an equitable mortgage, see infra), for the payment or repayment of money not exceeding 300*l*., to an ad valorem duty ranging from 3*d*. to 7*s*. 6*d*., and exceeding 300*l*., to a duty of 2*s*. 6*d*. for every 100*l*. or fractional part of 100*l*. When they are the collateral, or auxiliary, or additional, or substituted security (other than an equitable mortgage), or by way of further assurance where the principal or primary security is duly stamped, they are liable to a duty of 6*d*. for every 100*l*. or fractional part of 100*l*. (k). An equitable mortgage is subject to a duty of 1*s*. for every 100*l*. and any fractional part of 100*l*.

Transfers, assignments, dispositions, or assignations of the above, except a marketable security, or of any money secured thereby, or by any warrant of attorney or judgment, are liable to a duty of 6*d*. for every 100*l*. or fractional part, exclusive of interest, which is not in arrear; and, where any further money is added to the money already secured, the same amount of duty is payable as if for a principal security. Re-conveyances, releases, discharges, surrenders, re-surrenders, warrants to vacate, or renunciations of any of the above securities, or of the benefit of them, or of the money thereby secured, are liable to a duty of 6*d*. upon every 100*l*. or fractional part of 100*l*. (l).

By the Stamp Act, 1891, s. 86 (1), the term "mortgage" means a security by way of mortgage for the payment of any definite and certain sum of money advanced or lent at the time, or previously due and owing, or forborne to be paid, being payable, or for the repayment of money to be thereafter lent,

(g) Blandy v. Herbert, 9 B. & C. 396; 7 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 223; Limmer Asphalte Co. v. Inland Rev. Com., L.R. 7 Ex. 211; 41 L.J. Ex. 106; Sweetmeat Automatic Delivery Co. v. Inland Rev. Com., (1895) 1 Q.B. 484; 64 L.J. Q.B. 84; Conservators of River Thames v. Inland Rev. Com., 18 Q.B.D. 279; 56 L.J. Q.B. 181.

(h) Stamp Act, 1891, schedule 1, par. 1. Harris v. Birch, 9 M. & W. 593; 11 L.J. Ex. 219.

(i) As to stamp duty on marketable securities, see 10 Edw. 7, c. 8, s. 76.

(k) Stamp Act, 1891, schedule 1, par. 2. The amount of duty payable under this sub-heading has been limited by sect. 7 of the Revenue Act, 1903 (3 Edw. 7, c. 46), to the sum of 10*s*.

(l) See the schedule, tit. "mortgage," and British Oil and Cake Mills v. Inland Rev. Com. 72 L.J. K.B. 312; (1903) 1 K.B. 689. As to exemption of re-conveyance under Building Societies Act, see Old Battersea Building Soc. v. Inland Rev. Com., (1898) 2 Q.B. 294; 67 L.J. Q.B. 696

advanced, or paid, or which may become due upon an account current, together with any sum already advanced or due, or without, as the case may be; and includes—(a) conditional surrender by way of mortgage, further charge, wadset, and heritable bond, disposition, assignation, or tack in security, and eik to a reversion of or affecting any lands, estate, or property, real or personal, heritable or moveable, whatsoever: and (b) any deed containing an obligation to infeft any person in an annual rent, or in lands or other heritable subjects in Scotland, under a clause of reversion, but without any personal bond or obligation therein contained for payment of the money or stock intended to be secured: and (c) any conveyance of any lands, estate, or property whatsoever in trust to be sold or otherwise converted into money, intended only as a security, and redeemable before the sale or other disposal thereof, either by express stipulation or otherwise, except where the conveyance is made for the benefit of creditors generally, or for the benefit of creditors specified who accept the provision made for payment of their debts in full satisfaction thereof, or who exceed five in number: and (d) any defeazance, letter of reversion, back bond, declaration, or other deed or writing for defeating or making redeemable, or explaining or qualifying, any conveyance, transfer, disposition, assignation, or tack of any lands, estate, or property whatsoever, apparently absolute, but intended only as a security; and (e) any agreement (other than an agreement chargeable with duty as an equitable mortgage), contract, or bond accompanied with a deposit of title deeds for making a mortgage, wadset, or any other security or conveyance as aforesaid of any lands, estate, or property comprised in the title deeds, or for pledging or charging the same as a security: and (f) any deed whereby a real burden is declared or created on lands or heritable subjects in Scotland: and (g) any deed operating as a mortgage of any stock or marketable security (m). (2) For the purpose of this Act the expression "equitable mortgage" means an agreement or memorandum, under hand only, relating to the deposit of any title deeds or instruments constituting or being evidence of the title to any property whatever (other than stock or marketable security) (n), or creating a charge on such property.

(m) As to debentures, see Rowell v. Inland Rev. Com., (1897) 2 Q.B. 194; 66 L.J. Q.B. 528; City of London Brewery Co. v. Inland Rev. Com., (1899) 1 Q.B. 121; 68 L.J. Q.B. 978; Knight's Deep v. Inland Rev. Com., (1900) 1 Q.B. 217; 69 L.J. Q.B. 66; British Oil and Cake Mills v. Inland Rev. Com., (1903) 1 K.B. 689; 72 L.J. K.B. 312; Att.-Gen. v. Regent's Canal and Dock Co., (1904) 1 K.B. 263; 73 L.J. K.B. 50; Mount Lyell Mining Co. v. Inland Rev. Com., (1905) 1 K.B. 161; 74 L.J. K.B. 4; London and India Docks Co. v. Att.-Gen., (1909) A.C. 7; 78 L.J. K.B. 132; Firth v. Inland Rev. Com., (1904) 2 K.B. 205; 73 L.J. K.B. 632.

By sect. 87 (1), a security for the transfer or re-transfer of any stock is to be charged with the same duty as a similar security for a sum of money equal in amount to the value of the stock; and a transfer, assignment, disposition, or assignation of any such security, and a re-conveyance, release, discharge, surrender, re-surrender, warrant to vacate, or renunciation of any such security, is to be charged with the same duty as an instrument of the same description relating to a sum of money equal in amount to the value of the stock.

By sect. 87 (2), a security for the payment of any rent-charge, annuity, or periodical payments, by way of repayment, or in satisfaction or discharge of any loan, advance, or payment intended to be so repaid, satisfied, or discharged, is to be charged with the same duty as a similar security for the payment of the sum of money so lent, advanced, or paid. This section does not apply to the case of a grant of a perpetual annuity in consideration of a sum of money paid by way of purchase. Such an annuity falls under sect. 60 (o).

By sect. 87 (3), a transfer of a duly stamped security, and a security by way of further charge for money or stock, added to money or stock previously secured by a duly stamped instrument, is not to be charged with any duty by reason of its containing any further or additional security for the money or stock transferred or previously secured, or the interest or dividends thereof, or any new covenant, proviso, power, stipulation, or agreement in relation thereto, or any further assurance of the property comprised in the transferred or previous security (p).

By sect. 87 (4), where any copyhold or customary lands or hereditaments are mortgaged alone by means of a conditional surrender or grant, the ad valorem duty is to be charged on the surrender or grant, if made out of court, or the memorandum thereof, and on the copy of court roll of the surrender or grant, if made in court. (5) Where any copyhold or customary lands or hereditaments are mortgaged, together with other property, for securing the same money or the same stock, the ad valorem duty is to be charged on the instrument relating to the other property, and the surrender or grant, or the memorandum thereof, or the copy of court roll of the surrender or grant, as the case may be, is not to be charged with any higher duty than 10*s*. (6) An instrument chargeable with ad valorem duty as a mortgage is not to be charged with any further duty by reason of the equity of redemption in the mortgaged property being thereby conveyed or limited in any other manner than to a purchaser, or in trust for, or according to the direction of, a purchaser.

(n) See sect. 23, post, p. 1352.

(o) See Mersey Docks and Harbour Board v. Inland Rev. Com., (1897) 2 Q.B. 316; 66 L.J. Q.B. 697.

(p) See Wale v. Inland Rev. Com., 4 Ex.D. 270; 48 L.J. Ex. 574; City of London Brewery Co. v. Inland Rev. Com., ante, p. 1347.

By sect. 88 (1), a security for the payment or repayment of money to be lent, advanced, or paid, or which may become due upon an account current, either with or without money previously due, is to be charged, where the total amount secured or to be ultimately recoverable is in any way limited, with the same duty as a security for the amount so limited (q). (2) Where such total amount is unlimited, the security is to be available for such an amount only as the ad valorem duty impressed thereon extends to cover; but where any advance or loan is made in excess of the amount covered by that duty the security shall for the purpose of stamp duty be deemed to be a new and separate instrument, bearing date on the day on which the advance or loan is made. (3) Provided that no money to be advanced for the insurance of any property comprised in the security against damage by fire, or for keeping up any policy of life insurance comprised in the security, or for effecting in lieu thereof any new policy, or for the renewal of any grant or lease of any property comprised in such security upon the dropping of any life whereon the property is held, shall be reckoned as forming part of the amount in respect whereof the security is chargeable with ad valorem duty.

By sect. 89, the exemption from stamp duty conferred by 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 32, for the regulation of benefit building societies, shall not extend to any mortgage to be made after the 31st July, 1868, except a mortgage by a member of a benefit building society for securing the repayment to the society of money not exceeding 500*l*.

Marketable securities and foreign and colonial share certificates.—By the Stamp Act, 1891, s. 82 (1), marketable securities for the purpose of the charge of duty thereon (see definition, sect. 122, ante, p. 1327) include—(a) A marketable security, made or issued by or on behalf of any company or body of persons corporate or unincorporate formed or established in the United Kingdom; and (b) A marketable security by or on behalf of any foreign state or government, or foreign or colonial municipal body, corporation, or company (hereinafter called a foreign security), bearing date or signed after the third day of June one thousand eight hundred and sixty-two, (i.) Which is made or issued in the United Kingdom (r), or (ii.) Which, though originally issued out of the United Kingdom, has been, after the sixth day of August one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five, or is offered for subscription, and given or delivered to a subscriber in the United Kingdom, or (iii.) Which, the interest thereon being payable in the United Kingdom, is assigned, transferred, or in any manner negotiated in the United Kingdom; and (c) A marketable security by or on behalf of any colonial government which if the borrower were a foreign government would be a foreign security (hereinafter called a colonial government security) (s).

(q) See Suffield (Baron) v. Inland Rev. Com., (1908) 1 K.B. 865; 77 L.J. K.B. 746.

By the Finance Act, 1910 (t), s. 77, "(2) Where a contract note is a continuation or carrying over note made for the purpose of continuing or carrying over any transaction for the sale or purchase of stock or marketable securities, the contract note, although it is made in respect of both a sale and purchase, shall be charged with duty under this section as if it related to one of these transactions only, and, if different rates of duty are chargeable in respect of these transactions, to that one of those transactions which would render the contract note chargeable at the highest rate. (3) For the purposes of this Part (u) of this Act, the expression "contract note" means the note sent by a broker or agent to his principal, or by any person who by way of business deals, or holds himself out as dealing, as a principal in any stock or marketable securities, advising the principal, or the vendor or purchaser, as the case may be, of the sale or purchase of any stock or marketable security, but does not include a note sent by a broker or agent to his principal where the principal is himself acting as broker or agent for a principal, and (r) See Revelstoke (Lord) v. Inland Rev. Com., (1898) A.C. 565; 67 L.J. Q.B. 855.

(s) As to the meaning of "marketable security," see Brown, Shipley & Co. v. Inland Rev. Com., (1895) 2 Q.B. 598; 64 L.J. M.C. 241; Knight's Deep v. Inland Rev. Com., (1900) 1 Q.B. 217; 69 L.J. Q.B. 66. As to composition for stamp duty upon transfer of Canadian and colonial stock, see sect. 114 of the Act, 1894 (57 & 58 Vict. c. 30), s. 39, to the stock of any foreign state or government which is inscribed in the books of the Bank of England, and by the Finance Act, 1898 (61 & 62 Vict. c. 10), s. 5, to certain stock of British protectorates. As to stamp duty on other foreign or colonial securities, see the Finance Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict. c. 9), s. 4.

Sect. 82 (2), and sect. 85 of the Stamp Act, 1891, were repealed by the Customs and Inland Revenue Act, 1893 (56 & 57 Vict. c. 7), s. 4.

(t) 10 Edw. 7, c. 8, s. 77. The stamp duties chargeable on contract notes are set out in sub-sect. 1. As to the obligation to execute contract notes and the penalties incurred for failure to do so, see sect. 78 (3), post, p. 1351.

(u) I.e., Part V. of the Act.

is himself either a member of a stock exchange in the United Kingdom or a person who bonâ fide carries on the business of a stockbroker in the United Kingdom, and is registered as such in the list of stockbrokers kept by the Commissioners. (4) Where a contract note advises the sale or purchase of more than one description of stock or marketable security, the note shall be deemed to be as many contract notes as there are descriptions of stocks or securities sold or purchased." By sect. 79, "(1) The provisions of this Part (uu) of this Act as to contract notes shall apply to any contract under which an option is given or taken to purchase or sell any stock or marketable security at a future time at a certain price, as it applies to the sale or purchase of any stock or marketable security, but the stamp duty on such a contract shall be one-half only of that chargeable on a contract note: Provided that, if under the contract a double option is given or taken, the contract shall be deemed to be a separate contract in respect of each option. (2) Any contract note made or executed in pursuance and in consequence of the exercise of an option given or taken under a contract duly stamped in accordance with the provisions of this section shall be charged with one-half only of the duty which would otherwise have been chargeable thereon under this part of this Act, provided that it bears on its face a certificate by the broker, agent, or other person mentioned in the last preceding section to the effect that it is made or executed in the exercise of an option for which a duly stamped contract has been rendered on the date mentioned in the certificate."

All stamp duties on a contract note are to be denoted by an adhesive stamp appropriated to a contract note, and the stamp is to be effectively cancelled by the person by whom the note is executed by writing on or across the stamp his name or initials, or the name or initials of his firm, together with the true date of his so writing; and any stamp duty on a contract note may be added to the charge for brokerage or agency and is recoverable as part of such charge (x); but no broker, agent, or other person is to have any legal claim to any charge for brokerage, commission, or agency with reference to the sale or purchase of any stock or marketable security of the value of 5*l.* or upwards who fails to comply with the provisions of this section (sect. 78) as to executing contract notes (y).

Where an instrument is liable to duty under two or more (uu) I.e., Part V. of the Act.

(x) 10 Edw. 7, c. 8, s. 78 (4), (5).
(y) 10 Edw. 7, c. 8, s. 78 (3).

categories of taxation, the Crown has an option to decide under which category it is to be assessed (z).

By sect. 83, every person who in the United Kingdom makes, issues, assigns, transfers, negotiates, or offers for subscription any foreign security or colonial government security not being duly stamped, shall incur a fine of 20*l*. By the Finance Act, 1895 (a), where foreign securities within the meaning of sects. 82 and 83 of the Stamp Act, 1891, are issued in the United Kingdom and the interest thereon is not payable in the United Kingdom, and such evidence of the amount of the securities as the commissioners require is produced to them, the commissioners may accept payment of the amount of stamp duty which would be payable if all the securities were duly stamped, and on such payment may dispense with the necessity of the securities being stamped.

By sect. 84, the commissioners may at any time, without reference to the date thereof, allow any foreign security or colonial government security to be stamped without the payment of any penalty, upon being satisfied, in any manner that they may think proper, that it was not made or issued, and has not been transferred, assigned, or negotiated within the United Kingdom.

By sect. 23, it is enacted (1) that every instrument under hand only (not being a promissory note or bill of exchange) given upon the occasion of the deposit of any share warrant or stock certificate to bearer or foreign or colonial share certificate or any security for money transferable by delivery by way of security for any loan, shall be deemed to be an agreement and be charged with duty accordingly, and (2) the same duty is made chargeable in the case of an instrument under hand qualifying or making redeemable a duly stamped transfer of any registered stock or marketable security. (3) A release or discharge of any such instrument is not liable to ad valorem duty. The instrument must be under hand. If under seal it is chargeable with ad valorem mortgage duty under sect. 86, sub-sect. 1 (d) and (g).

A deed of assignment of goods and chattels as an additional security for the payment of a principal sum and interest thereon, already secured by a warrant of attorney, was held to be sufficiently stamped with a common deed stamp (b); and so also was a deed executed and indorsed on a former mortgage deed, (z) Speyer v. Inland Rev. Com., (1908) A.C. 92; 77 L.J. K.B. 302.

(a) 58 & 59 Vict. c. 16, s. 14.
(b) Pierpoint v. Gower, 5 Sc. N.R. 605; 12 L.J. C.P. 55.

as a further security for the sum thereby secured (c), and a declaration of trust of a surrender of copyholds by way of security (d). A security for contingent future payments was held to be as much within the words and meaning of the former statute as a security for certain future payments (e).

Covenants (f).—Any separate deed of covenant (not being an instrument chargeable with ad valorem duty as a conveyance on sale or mortgage) made on the sale or mortgage of any property, and relating solely to the conveyance or enjoyment of or the title to the property sold or mortgaged, or to the production of the muniments of title relating thereto, or to all or any of the matters aforesaid, is liable to a duty equal to the amount of the ad valorem duty payable in respect of the consideration or mortgage money, where that does not exceed 10*s*., and in any other case 10*s*. (g).

Exchanges, partitions, &c.—By sect. 73, where, upon the exchange of any real or heritable property for any other real or heritable property, or upon the partition or division of any real or heritable property, any consideration exceeding in amount or value 100*l*. is paid or given, or agreed to be paid or given, for equality, the principal or only instrument whereby the exchange or partition or division is effected is to be charged with the same ad valorem duty as a conveyance on sale for the consideration, and with that duty only; and where in any such case there are several instruments for completing the title of either party, the principal instrument is to be ascertained, and the other instruments are to be charged with duty in the manner hereinbefore provided in the case of several instruments of conveyance (h). In any other case the instrument effecting the exchange is liable to a duty of 10*s*. (i).

Settlements.—Any instrument, whether voluntary or upon any good or valuable consideration, other than a bonâ fide pecuniary consideration, whereby any definite and certain principal sum of money (whether charged or chargeable on lands or other

(c) Robinson v. Macdonnell, 5 M. & S. 228.

(d) Haywood v. Bibby, 11 M. & W. 812; 12 L.J. Ex. 404.

(e) Canning (Lord) v. Raper, 1 E. & B. 164; 22 L.J. Q.B. 87.

(f) As to bonds for securing payments at certain periods, see Jones v. Inland Rev. Com., (1895) 1 Q.B. 484; 64 L.J. Q.B. 84; Clifford v. Inland Rev. Com., (1896) 2 Q.B. 187; 65 L.J. Q.B. 582; Lewis v. Inland Rev. Com., (1898) 2 Q.B. 290; 67 L.J. Q.B. 694; National Telephone Co. v. Inland Rev. Com., (1900) A.C. 1; 69 L.J. Q.B. 43; County of Durham Electrical Power Distribution Co. v. Inland Rev. Com., (1909) 2 K.B. 604; 78 L.J. K.B. 1158.

(g) As to covenant to execute a mortgage, see United Realization Co. v. Inland Rev. Com., (1899) 1 Q.B. 361; 68 L.J. Q.B. 218.

(h) See sect. 58, ante, p. 1342. As to exchange of shares, see Coats v. Inland Rev. Com., (1897) 2 Q.B. 423; 66 L.J. Q.B. 732.

(i) See the schedule, tit. "Exchange."

hereditaments or heritable subjects, or not, or to be laid out in the purchase of lands or other hereditaments or heritable subjects or not), or any definite and certain amount of stock, or any security, is settled or agreed to be settled, in any manner whatsoever, is liable for every 100*l.*, and also for any fractional part of 100*l.*, of the amount or value of the property settled or agreed to be settled, to a duty of 5*s.* (k). Instruments of appointment relating to any property in favour of persons specially named or described as the objects of a power of appointment, where duty has been duly paid in respect of the same property upon the settlement creating the power, or the grant of representation of any will or testamentary instrument creating the power are exempted from duty (l).

By sect. 74 (4) of the Finance Act, 1910 (m), where any instrument is chargeable with duty both as a conveyance or transfer under sect. 74 (which deals with stamp duty on gifts inter vivos) and as a settlement under the heading "Settlement" in Schedule I. to the Act of 1891, the instrument is to be charged as a conveyance or transfer under sect. 74 and not as a settlement under the Act of 1891.

By sect. 104 (1) of the Stamp Act, 1891, where any money which may become due or payable upon any policy of life insurance, or upon any security not being a marketable security, is settled or agreed to be settled, the instrument whereby the settlement is made or agreed to be made is to be charged with ad valorem duty in respect of that money. (2) Provided as follows: (a) Where in the case of a policy, no provision is made for keeping up the policy, the ad valorem duty is to be charged only on the value of the policy at the date of the instrument; (b) If in any such case the instrument contains a statement of the said value, and is stamped in accordance with the statement, it is, so far as regards the policy, to be deemed duly stamped, unless or until it is shown that the statement is untrue, and that the instrument is in fact insufficiently stamped.

By sect. 105, an instrument chargeable with ad valorem duty as a settlement in respect of any money, stock, or security is not to be charged with any further duty by reason of containing provision for the payment or transfer of the same money, stock, or security, or by reason of containing, where the money, stock, or security is in reversion, or is not paid or transferred upon the execution of the instrument, provision for the payment by the person entitled in possession to the interest or dividends of the money, stock, or security, during the continuance of such possession, of any annuity or yearly sum not exceeding interest at the rate of 4*l.* per centum per annum upon the amount or value of the money, stock, or security.

(k) Stamp Act, 1891, sched. 1, tit. "Settlement." Inland Rev. Com. v. Oliver, 78 L.J. P.C. 146; (1909) A.C. 427.

(l) See the Stamp Act, 1891, sched. 1, tit. "Settlement." Russell v. Inland Rev. Com., (1902) 1 K.B. 142; 71 L.J. K.B. 201.

(m) 10 Edw. 7, c. 8, s. 74 (4).

By sect. 106 (1), where several instruments are executed for effecting the settlement of the same property, and the ad valorem duty chargeable in respect of the settlement of the property exceeds 10*s.*, one only of such instruments is to be charged with the ad valorem duty. (2) Where a settlement is made in pursuance of a previous agreement upon which any ad valorem settlement duty exceeding 10*s.* has been paid in respect of any property, the settlement is not to be charged with ad valorem duty in respect of the same property. (3) In each of the aforesaid cases the instruments not chargeable with ad valorem duty are to be charged with the duty of 10*s.* (n).

Revocations of uses and trusts of any property by any writing not being a will are liable to a duty of 10*s.* (o).

Releases or renunciations (p) of any property, or of any right or interest in any property, in any other case except upon a sale (see "Conveyance") or by way of security (see "Mortgage"), are liable to a duty of 10*s.* (q).

Under the Stamp Act, 1891, a lease or tack for any definite term not exceeding a year of any dwelling house, or part, at a rent not exceeding the rate of 10*l.* per annum, is liable to a duty of 1*d.*; and for any definite term less than a year of a furnished dwelling house or apartments where the rent exceeds 25*l.* to a duty of 2*s.* 6*d.*; and for any other lands, tenements, or heritable subjects, except or otherwise than as aforesaid, the same duty as a lease for a year at the rent reserved. A lease or tack for any other definite term, or for any indefinite term, of any lands, tenements, or heritable subjects, where the consideration consists of money, stock, or security, requires the same duty as a conveyance on a sale for the same consideration; and, where the consideration is a rent at a rate or average rate not exceeding 5*l.* up to 100*l.*, it is liable to a duty varying according to the rate of the rent, and according to the duration of the term, whether it is more or less than thirty-five years or one

(n) See Onslow v. Inland Rev. Com., (1891) 1 Q.B. 239; 60 L.J. Q.B. 138.

(o) Schedule, tit. "Revocation."

(p) "Renunciation" in this connection is a term of Scotch and not of English law; see G. N. Ry. v. Inland Rev. Com., (1901) 1 K.B. 416; 70 L.J. K.B. 336.

(q) Schedule, tit. "Release."

hundred years. Leases of any other kind whatsoever not hereinbefore described are liable to a duty of 10*s*. (r).

But now by the Finance Act, 1910 (s), s. 75, the stamp duties chargeable under the heading "Lease or Tack" in the first schedule to the Stamp Act, 1891, are to be double those which would have been chargeable immediately before the passing of Act of 1910 under that heading, but sect. 75 is not to apply to leases or tacks on which a fixed duty of 1*d*. is chargeable under that heading.

By sect. 75 (1) of the Act of 1891, an agreement for a lease or tack, or with respect to the letting of any lands, tenements, or heritable subjects, for any term not exceeding thirty-five years, or for any indefinite term, is to be charged with the same duty as if it were an actual lease or tack made for the term and consideration mentioned in the agreement. (2) A lease or tack made subsequently to, and in conformity with, such an agreement duly stamped, is to be charged with the duty of 6*d*. only. An agreement to take lands, &c., is not chargeable with an ad valorem duty. An agreement to hire, signed by the lessee only, was considered sufficiently stamped with an agreement stamp. "Even if signed by the lessor, there is nothing to stamp as a lease. It is a mere agreement which, but for the Statute of Frauds, need not have been in writing" (t).

By sect. 76 (1), where the consideration, or any part of the consideration, for which a lease or tack is granted or agreed to be granted, consists of any produce or other goods, the value of the produce or goods is to be deemed a consideration in respect of which the lease or tack or agreement is chargeable with ad valorem duty. (2) Where it is stipulated that the value of the produce or goods is to amount at least to, or is not to exceed, a given sum, or where the lessee is specially charged with, or has the option of paying after any permanent rate of conversion, the value of the produce or goods is, for the purpose of assessing the ad valorem duty, to be estimated at the given sum, or according to the permanent rate. (3) A lease or tack or agreement for a lease or tack made either wholly or partially for any such consideration, if it contains a statement of the value thereof, and is stamped in accordance with the statement, is, so far as regards the subject-matter of the statement, to be deemed duly stamped, unless or until it is otherwise shown that the statement is incorrect, and that the lease or tack or agreement is in fact not duly stamped.

(r) Schedule, tit. "Lease."
(s) 10 Edw. 7, c. 8, s. 75.
(t) Glen v. Dungey, 4 Ex. 61; 18 L.J. Ex. 359.

By sect. 77 (1), a lease or tack or agreement for a lease or tack, or with respect to any letting, is not to be charged with any duty in respect of any penal rent, or increased rent in the nature of a penal rent, thereby reserved or agreed to be reserved or made payable, or by reason of being made in consideration of the surrender or abandonment of any existing lease, tack, or agreement of or relating to the same subject-matter. (2) A lease made for any consideration in respect whereof it is chargeable with ad valorem duty, and in further consideration either of a covenant by the lessee to make, or of his having previously made, any substantial improvement of or addition to the property demised to him, or of any covenant relating to the matter of the lease, is not to be charged with any duty in respect of such further consideration (u). (3) No lease for a life or lives not exceeding three, or for a term of years determinable with a life or lives not exceeding three, and no lease for a term absolute not exceeding twenty-one years, granted by an ecclesiastical corporation aggregate or sole, is to be charged with any higher duty than 35*s*. (4) A lease for a definite term exceeding thirty-five years granted under the Trinity College (Dublin) Leasing and Perpetuity Act, 1851, is not to be charged with any higher duty than would have been chargeable thereon if it had been a lease for a definite term not exceeding thirty-five years. (5) An instrument whereby the rent reserved by any other instrument chargeable with duty and duly stamped as a lease or tack is increased is not to be charged with duty otherwise than as a lease or tack in consideration of the additional rent thereby made payable.

By sect. 78 (1), the duty upon an instrument chargeable with duty as a lease or tack of—(a) any dwelling-house or tenement, or part of a dwelling-house or tenement, for a definite term not exceeding a year, at a rent not exceeding the rate of 10*l*. per annum; or (b) any furnished dwelling-house or apartments for any definite term less than a year: and upon the duplicate or counterpart of any such instrument: may be denoted by an adhesive stamp, which is to be cancelled by the person by whom the instrument is first executed; (2) every person who executes, or prepares, or is employed in preparing, any such instrument (u) These provisions of sub-sect. 2 do not apply as respects any further consideration in the lease consisting of a covenant which if it were contained in a separate deed would be chargeable with ad valorem stamp duty, and accordingly the lease is in any such case to be charged with duty in respect of any such further consideration under sect. 4 of the Stamp Act, 1891; see the Revenue Act, 1909 (9 Edw. 7, c. 43), s. 8. This enactment overrides the decision in British Electric Traction Co. v. Inland Rev. Com., (1902) 1 K.B. 441; 71 L.J. K.B. 92.

(except letters or correspondence) which is not, at or before the execution thereof, duly stamped, shall incur a fine of 5*l*.

Where the expenditure of money in improvements constitutes the consideration for the lease, it is not a lease by way of fine or premium within the meaning of the former statutes (x). The granting of a lease in consideration of a premium is a sale of an interest in the land for a term of years; and the premium must be "truly expressed and set forth in words at length" in the deed (y).

A contract for the sale of vesture and herbage and growing grass for a certain sum is properly stamped as a lease granted in consideration of a sum of money by way of fine or premium (z).

Every contract which operates as a demise of realty for any determinate term is in contemplation of law a lease (a). A mere acknowledgment of an antecedent tenancy, or of an existing tenancy, does not require a lease stamp (b). A lease for a term of forty-five years at a substantial rent for the first twenty-three years, and at a peppercorn rent during the remaining twenty-two years, is not a lease exceeding thirty-five years at a yearly rent (c).

Agreements for leases are charged with the same duty as leases (d).

Assignments and surrenders of leases — Agreements to surrender.—Every assignment of a lease made upon any other occasion than a sale or mortgage is subjected to duty as a conveyance (e). Every surrender not being of copyholds and not chargeable with duty as a conveyance on sale or mortgage is chargeable with a duty of 10*s*. (f). Every agreement which operates as a surrender must be stamped as a surrender (g).

Contracts of apprenticeship.—Instruments of apprenticeship, except those relating to any poor child apprenticed by or at the sole charge of any parish (h) or township, or by or at the sole charge of any public charity, and those in Ireland where pre (x) Nicholls v. Cross, 14 M. & W. 42; 14 L.J. Ex. 244.

(y) Doe v. Lewis, 10 B. & C. 675; 8 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 300. As to lease of telephone, see Sweetmeat Automatic Delivery Co. v. Inland Rev. Com., (1895) 1 Q.B. 484; 64 L.J. Q.B. 84.

(z) Cattle v. Gamble, 5 Bing. N.C. 46; 8 L.J. C.P. 162.

(a) Burton v. Reevell, 16 L.J. Ex. 86; 16 M. & W. 311.

(b) Eagleton v. Gutteridge, 11 M. & W. 465; 12 L.J. Ex. 359; Glen v. Dungey, 4 Ex. 61; 18 L.J. Ex. 359; Doe v. Wiggins, 4 Q.B. 367; 12 L.J. Q.B. 177.

(c) Pearson v. Inland Rev. Com., L.R. 3 Ex. 242; 37 L.J. Ex. 171.

(d) See sect. 75, ante, p. 1356.

(e) See sect. 62, ante, p. 1344; and see the duties chargeable on conveyances, ante, p. 1341.

(f) See the schedule, tit. "Surrender."

(g) Williams v. Sawyer, 6 Moo. 226; 3 Br. & B. 70.

(h) See Rex v. Halesworth, 3 B. & Ad. 717; R. v. Skeffington, 3 B. & Ald. 382.

mium does not exceed 10*l.*, are liable to a duty of 2*s.* 6*d.* A sectarian charity is not considered to be a "public charity"; but a charity restricted to the members of a particular trade, or confined to the inhabitants of a particular locality, is a public charity, and instruments of apprenticeship relating to persons apprenticed at the sole cost of such a charity are exempt (i).

By sect. 25, every writing relating to the service or tuition of any apprentice, clerk, or servant placed with any master to learn any profession, trade, or employment (except articles of clerkship to a solicitor or law agent or writer to the signet specifically charged with duty), is to be deemed an instrument of apprenticeship.

The following exemption from duty is contained in the general exemptions at the end of the schedule of the Stamp Act, 1891:—Instruments of apprenticeship, bonds, contracts, and agreements entered into in the United Kingdom for or relating to the service in any of his Majesty's colonies or possessions abroad of any person as an artificer, clerk, domestic servant, handicraftsman, mechanic, gardener, servant in husbandry, or labourer.

If the contract is only a contract of hiring and service, it must be stamped with an agreement stamp, unless it is under seal and requires a deed stamp, or unless it is a contract "for the hire of labourers, artificers, manufacturers, or menial servants," and as such exempt from all stamp duty (k). In calculating the amount of the duty regard must be had only to the value of what is given, directly or indirectly, to the master as consideration for the taking of the apprentice. If the friends of the latter covenant to provide meat, lodging, and clothing, this is not a benefit rendered to the master, nor anything given to him, but to the apprentice himself, and it cannot be made the subject of stamp duty under the Act (l); nor can a reservation to the master of a portion of the apprentice's earnings, the master being otherwise entitled to the whole (m). But, if any friends of the apprentice make a secret bargain with the master, to give him some consideration beyond what is expressed upon the face of the deed of apprenticeship, the contract is void (n). Money promised or agreed to be paid by a person not competent to contract or to make a valid payment amounts to nothing, and

(i) See Hall v. Derby Urban Sanitary Authority, 16 Q.B.D. 165; 55 L.J. M.C. 21.

(k) See post, p. 1362.

(l) R. v. St. Petrox, 4 T.R. 196; R. v. Aylesbury, 3 B. & Ad. 569; 1 L.J. M.C. 38.

(m) R. v. Bradford, 1 M. & S. 151.

(n) R. v. Amersham, 4 Ad. & E. 508; 5 L.J. M.C. 49.

will not invalidate the deed (o); nor will the insertion therein of a greater sum than was actually paid (p).

Charter-parties, which expression includes (sect. 49 (1)) any agreement or contract for the charter of any ship or vessel, or any memorandum, letter, or other writing, between the captain, master, or owner of any ship or vessel, and any other person, for or relating to the freight or conveyance of any money, goods, or effects on board of the ship or vessel, are subjected to a stamp duty of 6*d*. (q). By sect. 49 (2), the duty upon a charter-party may be denoted by an adhesive stamp, which is to be cancelled by the person by whom the instrument is last executed, or by whose execution it is completed as a binding contract. By sect. 50, where a charter-party is first executed out of the United Kingdom, without being duly stamped, any party thereto may, within ten days after it has been first received in the United Kingdom, and before it has been executed by any person in the United Kingdom, affix thereto an adhesive stamp denoting the duty chargeable thereon, and at the same time cancel such adhesive stamp, and the instrument so stamped shall be deemed duly stamped. By sect. 51, a charter-party may be stamped with an impressed stamp after execution upon the following terms; that is to say, (1) within seven days after the first execution thereof, on payment of the duty and a penalty of 4*s*. 6*d*.; (2) after seven days, but within one month after the first execution thereof, on payment of the duty and a penalty of 10*l*.; and shall not in any other case be stamped with an impressed stamp. A guarantee for the due performance of a charter-party does not require to be stamped as a charter-party (r).

Transfers of ships.—Instruments for the sale, transfer, or other disposition, either absolutely or by way of mortgage or otherwise, of any ship or vessel, or any part, interest, share, or property of or in any ship or vessel, are exempted from duty (s).

Agreements.—Any agreement or memorandum of agreement made in England or Ireland under hand only, or made in Scotland without any clause of registration, and not otherwise specifically charged with any duty, whether the same be only evidence of a contract or obligatory upon the parties from its being a written instrument, is liable to a duty of 6*d*. Although a writing may not be evidence of the whole contract, yet, if it

(o) R. v. Bourton, 9 B. & C. 872.
(p) R. v. Keynsham, 5 East, 309.
(q) Schedule, tit. "Charter-party," and sect. 49 (1).
(r) Rein v. Lane, L.R. 2 Q.B. 144; 36 L.J. Q.B. 81.
(s) See the general exemptions at the end of schedule 1.

is evidence of a material part of it, and a necessary part in the proof of the contract, it requires a stamp (t). By sect. 22, the duty of 6*d.* upon an agreement may be denoted by an adhesive stamp, which is to be cancelled by the person by whom the agreement is first executed. As to mortgages and securities deemed to be agreements, see ante, p. 1346.

By sect. 59 (1), any contract or agreement [made in England or Ireland under seal or under hand only, or made in Scotland with or without any clause of registration] (u) for the sale of any equitable estate or interest in any property whatsoever (x), or for the sale of any estate or interest in any property, except lands, tenements, hereditaments or heritages (y), or property locally situate out of the United Kingdom (z), or goods, wares, or merchandise, or stock or marketable securities, or any ship or vessel, or part interest, share, or property of or in any ship or vessel, shall be charged with the same ad valorem duty to be paid by the purchaser as if it were an actual conveyance on sale of the estate, interest, or property contracted or agreed to be sold. (2) Where the purchaser has paid the said ad valorem duty and before having obtained a conveyance or transfer of the property, enters into a contract or agreement for the sale of the same, the contract or agreement shall be charged, if the consideration for that sale is in excess of the consideration for the original sale, with the ad valorem duty payable in respect of such excess consideration, and in any other case with the fixed duty of ten shillings or of sixpence, as the case may require. (3) Where duty has been duly paid in conformity with the foregoing provisions, the conveyance or transfer made to the purchaser or sub-purchaser, or any other person on his behalf or by his direction, shall not be chargeable with any duty, and the commissioners, upon application, either shall denote the payment of the ad valorem duty upon the conveyance or transfer, or shall transfer the ad valorem duty thereto upon production of the contract or agreement, or contracts or agreements, duly stamped. (4) Provided (t) Ramsbottom v. Mortley, 2 M. & S. 445; Glover v. Halkett, 2 H. & N. 487; 26 L.J. Ex. 416. See Carlill v. Carbolic Smoke Ball Co., (1892) 2 Q.B. 484; 61 L.J. Q.B. 696.

(u) The words between brackets have been repealed by 9 Edw. 7, c. 43, s. 7, and schedule.

(x) See Farmer v. Inland Rev. Com., (1898) 2 Q.B. 141; 67 L.J. Q.B. 775; Chesterfield Brewery v. Inland Rev. Com., (1899) 2 Q.B. 7; 68 L.J. Q.B. 204.

(y) See West London Syndicate v. Inland Rev. Com., (1898) 2 Q.B. 507; 67 L.J. Q.B. 956.

(z) See Brooke v. Inland Rev. Com., (1896) 2 Q.B. 356; 65 L.J. Q.B. 657; Smelting Co. of Australia v. Inland Rev. Com., (1897) 1 Q.B. 175; 66 L.J. Q.B. 137; Inland Rev. Com. v. Muller's Margarine Co., (1901) A.C. 217; 70 L.J. K.B. 677; Danubian Sugar Factories v. Inland Rev. Com., (1901) 1 K.B. 245; 70 L.J. K.B. 211.

that where any such contract or agreement is stamped with the fixed duty of ten shillings or of sixpence, as the case may require, the contract or agreement shall be regarded as duly stamped for the mere purpose of proceedings to enforce specific performance or recover damages for the breach thereof. (5) Provided also that where any such contract or agreement is stamped with the said fixed duty, and a conveyance or transfer made in conformity with the contract or agreement is presented to the commissioners for stamping with the ad valorem duty chargeable thereon within the period of six months after the first execution of the contract or agreement, or within such longer period as the commissioners may think reasonable in the circumstances of the case, the conveyance or transfer shall be stamped accordingly, and the same, and the said contract or agreement, shall be deemed to be duly stamped. Nothing in this proviso shall alter or affect the provisions as to the stamping of a conveyance or transfer after the execution thereof. (6) Provided also, that the ad valorem duty paid upon any such contract or agreement shall be returned by the commissioners in case the contract or agreement be afterwards rescinded or annulled, or for any other reason be not substantially performed or carried into effect, so as to operate as or be followed by a conveyance or transfer.

Exemptions (a).—The provision with respect to agreements is subject to the following exemptions:—(1) Agreement or memorandum the matter whereof is not of the value of 5*l*. (2) Agreement or memorandum for the hire of any labourer, artificer, manufacturer, or menial servant. (3) Agreement, letter, or memorandum made for or relating to the sale of any goods, wares, or merchandise (aa). (4) Agreement or memorandum made between the master and mariners of any ship or vessel for wages on any voyage coastwise from port to port in the United Kingdom (b). With respect, however, to hire-purchase agreements, sect. 7 of the Finance Act, 1907 (c), provides that any agreement for or relating to the supply of goods on hire, whereby the goods in consideration of periodical payments will or may become the property of the person to whom they are supplied, shall be charged with stamp duty as an agreement, or if under seal as a deed, as the case requires, and the exemption numbered (3) under the heading "Agree-

(a) As to exemptions in favour of friendly societies, see 59 & 60 Vict. c. 25, s. 33.

(aa) As to electrical energy being within these words, see County of Durham Electrical, &c., Co. v. Inland Rev. Com., (1909) 2 K.B. 604; 78 L.J. K.B. 1158.

(b) See also sect. 23, ante, p. 1352.

(c) 7 Edw. 7, c. 13, s. 7.

ment or any memorandum of an agreement," in the first schedule to the Stamp Act, 1891 (which exempts agreements for the sale of goods), shall not apply in the case of any such instrument. Electrical energy is to be deemed to be goods, wares, or merchandise for the purposes of sect. 59 and of the third exemption under the heading "Agreement or any memorandum of an agreement" in the first schedule of the Stamp Act, 1891 (d).

Firemen and stokers employed on board merchant vessels worked by steam, and placed under the orders of the engineer, are to be considered as artificers and labourers, and not seamen; and contracts for the hiring and service of such persons, so to be employed, are exempt from stamp duty (e). All instruments between the master and seamen of any ship, required to be made in a form approved by the Board of Trade, are exempt from stamp duty (f). And so are indentures of apprenticeship to the sea service (g), and to the fishery service (h), a master's bond (i), contract tickets (k), passage broker's bonds (l), and salvage bonds for the King's ships (m).

Exemption of agreements relating to the sale of goods and chattels.—A written agreement by a debtor to sell and deliver goods, and by a creditor to receive them, in satisfaction and discharge of an existing debt, is an agreement "for or relating to the sale of chattels" within the exemption of the Stamp Act (n). But a contract under seal for the sale and purchase of goods and chattels is not exempt from the stamp duty on deeds. If the parties to a contract of purchase and sale choose to resort to a solemn and formal contract under seal, such contract, if executory, must be stamped with a deed stamp; and, if it operates as an immediate transfer of the thing sold to the purchaser, it must have an ad valorem conveyance stamp before it can be given in evidence in any court of justice (o). Fructus industriales, such as growing crops of turnips, potatoes, and corn, being considered, as previously mentioned, goods and chattels (ante, p. 27), are within the exemption of the statute; and simple contracts as to them need not, consequently, be stamped to be admissible in evidence. A contract with a water company for the supply of water is a contract for "the sale of goods, wares, and merchandise" within the exemption, and

(d) 9 Edw. 7, c. 34, s. 19.
(e) Wilson v. Zulueta, 14 Q.B. 405; 19 L.J. Q.B. 49.
(f) 57 & 58 Vict. c. 60, s. 721.
(g) Ib., s. 108 (1).
(h) 57 & 58 Vict. c. 60, s. 395 (7).
(i) Ib., s. 309 (2).
(k) Ib., s. 320 (4).
(l) Ib., s. 342 (2).
(m) Ib., s. 563.
(n) Chatfield v. Cox, 18 Q.B. 321; 21 L.J. Q.B. 279.
(o) Clayton v. Burtenshaw, 5 B. & C. 41; 7 D. & R. 800.

does not, consequently, require a stamp; and it is immaterial whether the subject-matter of the sale exists at the time of the making of the contract, or whether it has afterwards to be made, manufactered, or provided (p). An agreement to make a complicated machine with wheels and springs, according to a certain specification, is an agreement relating to the sale of goods within the exemption, unless the contract provides for the erection of it in a dwelling-house, or upon the soil and freehold as a fixture, in which case it is a contract for the performance of work and labour and the supply of materials, and not a contract of sale (q). An agreement for the sale and purchase of a ship comes within the exemption, as being a contract relating to the sale of goods and chattels (r); and the transfer of the ship itself is expressly exempted from all stamp duty (see p. 1360). A memorandum relating to the sale of goods, such as a bill of parcels, is admissible in evidence to establish a sale, and show who was the purchaser of the goods, although it has an unstamped receipt at the bottom of it (s). An agreement to participate in the profit and loss of a fishing adventure, or to take a share in the outfit of a ship, is not an agreement for the sale of goods, and is not, consequently, within the exemption (t); but an agreement to take a share of certain goods purchased, and participate in the profit and loss of a re-sale, is an agreement relating to the sale of goods within the exemption (u).

An agreement relating to the sale of goods comes within the exemption, notwithstanding the introduction into it of collateral matter (x). An agreement to cancel a bargain for the purchase of particular goods, and make a new arrangement respecting them, falls within the exemption (y); and so also does a warranty contained in a receipt for the price of a horse (z), and an agreement to take a share in a horse already purchased (a). If, however, the writing is introduced for the purpose of proving an agreement independent of the contract for the sale of goods, it will not be admitted in evidence without being stamped with an agreement stamp. And, if the contract established by (p) West Mid. Water Co. v. Suwerkropp, M. & M. 408; 4 C. & P. 87; Gurr v. Scudds, 11 Ex. 190.

(q) Pinner v. Arnold, 2 Cr. M. & R. 616; 5 L.J. Ex. 1.

(r) Meering v. Duke, 2 M. & R. 121; 6 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 211.

(s) Millen v. Dent, 10 Q.B. 846; 16 L.J. Q.B. 374.

(t) Leigh v. Banner, 1 Esp. 403.

(u) Venning v. Leckie, 13 East, 7.

(x) Tooke v. Meering, Dans. & Ll. 35.

(y) Whitworth v. Crockett, 2 Stark. 431.

(z) Skrine v. Elmore, 2 Campb. 407.

(a) Marson v. Short, 2 Bing. N.C. 118; 4 L.J. C.P. 270.

the writing is an entire contract for something more than a sale of goods, such as an agreement for the sale of chattels and the goodwill of a business (b), or for the sale and purchase of a patent article, and a licence to exercise and enjoy the patent right of using such article, it does not fall within the exemption of the statute (c).

Stamp duty on guarantees and indemnities—Exemption of guarantees for the payment of goods.—Any memorandum in writing signed by the defendant, undertaking to be answerable for the debt or default of another, is an agreement within the meaning of the Stamp Acts (d). But guarantees for the payment of goods sold to a third party are within the exemption of the statute, and need not consequently be stamped to be admissible in evidence (e); and so are agreements by brokers to indemnify their principals and employers against loss on the resale of goods purchased by them (f), provided the primary object of the writing is a purchase or sale of goods, and the guarantee or indemnity against loss is secondary and subsidiary thereto (g). If the primary object of the written undertaking or guarantee, however, be the obtaining of money upon a pledge of goods, it does not come within the exemption, although it may authorize the party making the advance to sell the goods when they come to hand, in satisfaction and discharge of the sum borrowed (h). Guarantees not relating exclusively to the sale of goods and chattels must be stamped with an agreement stamp (i).

Stamp duty on export bonds and on delivery orders has been abolished by the Finance Act, 1905 (k).

Warrants for goods are liable to a duty of 3*d*. (l). Any document or writing given by any inland carrier acknowledging the receipt of goods conveyed by such carrier, or a weight note issued together with a duly stamped warrant, and relating solely to the same goods, is exempted from duty.

By sect. 111 (1), the term "warrant for goods" means any document or writing, being evidence of the title of any person

(b) South v. Finch, 3 Bing. N.C. 506.

(c) Chanter v. Dickinson, 5 M. & Gr. 253; 12 L.J. C.P. 147.

(d) Glover v. Halkett, 2 H. & N. 487; 26 L.J. Ex. 416.

(e) Warrington v. Furbor, 8 East, 242; Martin v. Wright, 6 Q.B. 917; 14 L.J. Q.B. 142; Sadler v. Johnson, 16 M. & W. 775; 16 L.J. Ex. 178.

(f) Curry v. Edensor, 3 T.R. 524.

(g) Southgate v. Bohn, 16 M. & W. 34; 16 L.J. Ex. 51.

(h) Smith v. Cator, 2 B. & Ald. 778.

(i) Wharton v. Walton, 7 Q.B. 474; 14 L.J. Q.B. 321.

(k) 5 Edw. 7, c. 4, s. 5. Sect. 8 (1) and schedule of this Act repeal ss. 69, 70 and 71 of the Stamp Act, 1891.

(l) Schedule, tit. "Warrant for goods."

therein named, or his assigns, or the holder thereof, to the property in any goods, wares, or merchandise lying in any warehouse or dock, or upon any wharf, and signed or certified by or on behalf of the person having the custody of such goods, wares, or merchandise. By sub-sect. (2) the duty upon a warrant for goods may be denoted by an adhesive stamp, which is to be cancelled by the person by whom the instrument is made, executed, or issued. By sub-sect. (3) every person who makes, executes, or issues, or receives or takes by way of security or indemnity, any warrant for goods not being duly stamped, shall incur a fine of 20*l.*

Transfers of government stock do not require a stamp (m); and transfers of shares registered in a colonial register are, unless executed in any part of the United Kingdom, exempt from British stamp duty (n).

Share warrants (o) issued under the provisions of the Companies Act, 1867 (p), are liable to a duty of an amount equal to three times the amount of the ad valorem stamp duty which would be chargeable on a deed transferring the share specified in the warrant if the consideration for the transfer were the nominal value of such share.

By the Stamp Act, 1891, s. 107, if a share warrant is issued without being duly stamped, the company issuing the same, and also every person who, at the time when it is issued, is the managing director or secretary or other principal officer of the company, shall incur a fine of 50*l.*

Stock certificates to bearer.—By sect. 108, for the purposes of this Act the expression "stock certificate to bearer" includes every stock certificate to bearer issued after the third day of June one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one, under the provisions of the Local Authorities Loans Act, 1875, or of any other Act authorising the creation of debenture stock, county stock, corporation stock, municipal stock, or funded debt, by whatever name known.

By sect. 109 (1), where the holder of a stock certificate to bearer has been entered on the register of the local authority as the owner of the share of stock described in the certificate, the certificate shall be forthwith cancelled so as to be incapable of being re-issued to any person. (2) Every person by (m) Walker v. Bartlett, 18 C.B. 848; 25 L.J. C.P. 263; see the general exemptions at the end of the first schedule, Stamp Act, 1891.

(n) 8 Edw. 7, c. 69, s. 36 (a).

(o) See the schedule, tit. "Share warrants," and 62 & 63 Vict. c. 9, s. 4.

(p) Repealed, see now the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 69).

whom a stock certificate to bearer is issued without being duly stamped shall incur a fine of 50*l.* (q).

Orders or authorities for the transfer of mining shares of any mining company conducted on the cost-book system, or any notice to the purser or officer of any such transfer, are charged with a duty of 6*d.* By sect. 110 (1), the duty may be denoted by an adhesive stamp to be cancelled by the person by whom the authority is executed; and by sub-sect. (2) a penalty of 20*l.* is imposed, if the order is not duly stamped.

Scrip certificates or other documents (r) (1) entitling any person to become the proprietor of any share of any company or proposed company, or (2) issued or delivered in the United Kingdom, and entitling any person to become the proprietor of any share of any foreign or colonial company or proposed company; or denoting or intended to denote the right of any person as a subscriber in respect of any loan raised or proposed to be raised by any company or proposed company, or by any municipal body or corporation, or issued or delivered in the United Kingdom, denoting or intending to denote the right of any person as a subscriber in respect of any loan raised or proposed to be raised by or on behalf of any foreign or colonial state, government, municipal body, corporation, or company: and letters of allotment or renunciation, or any other document having the effect of a letter of allotment (1) of any share of any company or proposed company, or (2)in respect of any loan raised or proposed to be raised by any such company, or by any municipal body or corporation, or (3) issued or delivered in the United Kingdom, of any share of any foreign or colonial company or proposed company, or in respect of any loan raised or proposed to be raised by or on behalf of any foreign or colonial government, state, company, municipal body or corporation, are respectively chargeable with the stamp duty of 1*d.*

By sect. 79 (1), every person who executes, grants, issues, or delivers out any document chargeable with duty as a letter of allotment, letter of renunciation, or scrip certificate, or as scrip, before the same is duly stamped, shall incur a fine of 20*l.* (2) The stamp duty of 1*d.* on a letter of renunciation may be denoted by an adhesive stamp, which is to be cancelled by the person by whom the letter of renunciation is executed.

(q) These sections are extended to any instruments to bearer issued by any company or body of persons in the United Kingdom: Finance Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict. c. 9), ss. 5, 6.

(r) The term "share" under this heading, and under that of "Letter of Allotment and Letter of Renunciation," includes a fractional part of a share, see the Revenue Act, 1909 (9 Edw. 7, c. 43), s. 9.

Contracts for the sale and purchase of land and interests in land, not being under seal, and not operating as an actual transfer of the property or interest agreed to be bought and sold, must be stamped as agreements (s); and so also must all contracts for the sale and purchase or acquisition of incorporeal hereditaments (ante, p. 634 (t)). And contracts for the sale and purchase of the growing produce of fruit-trees, growing grass, growing timber, underwood, or hops, not sold with a view to its immediate severance and removal from the soil as a chattel, and where, consequently, the right to the land for a limited time for the benefit and sustenance of the growing crop passes by the contract, must be stamped with the ad valorem duty on conveyances on sales (u); but, if the growing produce is sold with a view to its immediate severance and removal as a chattel, the contract is then a contract for the sale and purchase of goods and chattels (x), and as such is exempt from stamp duty.

Contracts for the sale of fixtures (ante, p. 633), if they amount to an actual transfer of the interest of the fixtures, must be stamped with an ad valorem stamp as conveyances (y). But, if the contract does not amount to an actual transfer of the right of property in the fixtures, and right of severance, it is properly stamped as an agreement (z).

Contracts of hiring and service between "labourers, artificers, manufacturers, or menial servants," and their employers, are, as we have already seen, expressly exempted from all stamp duty (a): but all other contracts of hiring and service must be stamped with the ordinary agreement stamp. A contract for the hiring of a clerk is not within the exemption, and must consequently be stamped (b).

Contracts for the letting and hiring of taskwork (ante, pp. 867, 888), or for the performance of work by the job or task, must, if the remuneration to be paid for the work is of the value of 5*l*. or upwards, be stamped as agreements (c), unless the contract can be shown to be a contract for the hire of "labourers,

(s) Rex v. Ridgwell, 6 B. & C. 665; 5 L.J. (O.S.) M.C. 67.

(t) Phillips v. Morrison, 12 M. & W. 740; 13 L.J. Ex. 242; Waddington v. Bristow, 2 B. & P. 452.

(u) Catlin v. Gamble, 5 Bing. N.C. 46; 8 L.J. C.P. 162.

(x) Washbourn v. Burrows, 1 Ex. 107; 16 L.J. Ex. 266.

(y) Horsfall v. Key, 2 Ex. 778; 17 L.J. Ex. 267.

(z) Chanter v. Dickinson, 5 M. & Gr. 253; 12 L.J. C.P. 147; Wick v. Hodgson, 12 Moore, 213; 5 L.J. (O.S.) C.P. 55.

(a) A contract for the hiring of a farm bailiff at a salary, and a certain portion of the clear annual profits, does not require a stamp: Reg. v. Wortley, 15 Jur. 1187; 21 L.J. M.C. 44.

(b) Dakin v. Watts, 2 Cr. & Dix. Cir. Rep. 225.

(c) Hegarty v. Milne, 14 C.B. 627; 23 L.J. C.P. 151.

artificers, manufacturers, or menial servants," within the exemption. A contract by a builder for the erection of a house, according to certain plans and specifications, for an agreed sum of money (ante, p. 881), must be stamped as an agreement. If a contract is entered into for the sale of certain goods and chattels and fixing them up in a dwelling-house, such as a contract for the purchase and sale of coppers, grates, and stoves, bells, locks, &c., and one sum is to be paid for the goods and another for the work of fixing them, the contract, so far as it relates to the sale of the goods, will be exempt from stamp duty; but the provision as to the erection of the articles in the dwelling-house will require a stamp, if the remuneration for the work amounts to 5*l*. The sum to be paid for the work cannot be added to the price of the goods so as to raise the value of the subject-matter of the contract. If one entire sum only is to be paid in solido, the contract would probably be considered to be a contract for work and labour and the supply of materials, and would then require a stamp, if the sum to be paid amounted to 5*l*. (ante, p. 1362). No contract, made pursuant to the Highway Acts, relating to the making, maintaining, or repairing of highways, is chargeable with any higher duty than 6*d*. (d).

Calculation of the value of an agreement.—In calculating the value of the subject-matter of the contract, regard must be had to the consideration or immediate inducement for the undertaking or promise sought to be enforced, and not to the value of the thing concerning which the contract has been made; for, if the consideration does not amount to 5*l*. in value, the written memorandum of the promise does not fall within the operation of the Stamp Acts, although the subject-matter of it, or the thing to which it relates may far exceed that value, and the breach of it may consequently give rise to a claim for damages far surpassing 5*l*. Thus, where a wharfinger receives merchandise to be warehoused and shipped under a special agreement, the value of the matter of the agreement is not the value of the merchandise, but the price of the wharfage and charge on shipment which the wharfinger is to receive as the consideration for his promise (e). So, where a parcel is delivered to a carrier to be carried under a special contract, the value of the "matter of the contract" is the price of the carriage, and not the value of the parcel (f). So, in the case of agreements for leases, the value of the "matter of the agreement" is not the value of the land, nor the value of the occupation, but the amount of rent reserved and agreed to be paid (g). And, in the case of an agreement to confess a judgment, the value of "the matter of the agreement" is not the amount of the judgment, but the debt and costs to be recovered (h). And, where there is an agreement to pay interest on a bill, the value of the subject-matter of the agreement is the amount of interest agreed to be paid, and not the amount of the bill (i).

(d) See the Stamp Act, 1891, schedule, tit. "Agreement."

(e) Chadwick v. Sills, R. & M. 15; Baldwin v. Alsager, 13 M. & W. 365; 14 L.J. Ex. 34.

(f) Latham v. Rutley, R. & M. 13.

Contracts of uncertain value not measurable by any pecuniary standard, such as a contract of marriage, do not require a stamp (k). If, at the time of the making of the agreement, the subject-matter of it does not appear to be of the value of 5*l*., a stamp does not become necessary merely because the value subsequently turns out to be a little more than 5*l*. (l).

Bare offers and proposals, not acceded to and accepted in writing, and not amounting to evidence of a concluded contract, are in general admissible in evidence without a stamp; such as a builder's or artificer's estimate of the cost of certain work, and his offer or proposal to do it upon certain terms (m); a schoolmaster's printed prospectus of the terms upon which he provides board and instruction for his pupils (n); a landlord's unsigned particulars of the terms upon which he lets his land (o); letters containing mere offers or proposals of salary or hire, to be paid for work to be done, or services to be rendered afterwards, although they are assented to and acted upon (p).

Bare admissions and acknowledgments also, not amounting to written evidence of a contract, and not constituting in themselves the evidence of the contract, are in general admissible in evidence without a stamp: such as an "I O U 200*l*. for value received," or a simple acknowledgment of a loan or a debt not containing upon the face of it an express promise of payment (q); or a statement of accounts containing upon the face of it a simple admission or acknowledgment of a certain balance

(g) Doe v. Wiggins, 4 Q.B. 367; 12 L.J. Q.B. 177; Doe v. Amos, 2 M. & R. 180; 6 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 226.

(h) Ames v. Hill, 2 B. & P. 150.

(i) Semple v. Steinau, 8 Ex. 622; 22 L.J. Ex. 224; Pemberton v. Vaughan, 10 Q.B. 87; 16 L.J. Q.B. 161; Taylor v. Steele, 16 M. & W. 665; 16 L.J. Ex. 177.

(k) Orford v. Cole, 2 Stark. 351.

(l) Liddiard v. Gale, 4 Ex. 816; 19 L.J. Ex. 160; Cox v. Bailey, 6 Sc. N.R. 798; 6 M. & Gr. 193.

(m) Pennifold v. Hamilton, 2 Stark. 475.

(n) Clay v. Crofts, 20 L.J. Ex. 361; Edgar v. Blick, 1 Stark. 464.

(o) Ramsbottom v. Tunbridge, 2 M. & S. 434; Ramsbottom v. Mortley, ib. 445; Hawkins v. Warre, 3 B. & C. 690; 5 D. & R. 520.

(p) Hudspeth v. Yarnold, 9 C.B. 625; 19 L.J. C.P. 321.

(q) Israel v. Israel, 1 Campb. 499; White v. North, 3 Ex. 689; 18 L.J. Ex. 316; Hyne v. Dewdney, 21 L.J. Q.B. 278; Melanotte v. Teasdale, 13 M. & W. 216; 13 L.J. Ex. 358.

being due from the defendant to the plaintiff (r); or a mere attornment in writing from a tenant to his landlord, unaccompanied by any terms or conditions (s); or a proviso inserted in a stamped receipt to the effect that the acceptance of the rent should not operate as a waiver of a previous notice to quit (t); or a simple acknowledgment of an advance of money on furniture; or a cognovit containing no words or terms of agreement (u). But, if there be any terms or conditions for the payment of money by instalments or otherwise, it is an agreement within the statute. If, therefore, to an I O U for 40*l.* be added the words, "to be paid on the 22nd instant," the instrument must be stamped as a promissory note (x). An undertaking by an attorney to recover the amount of a bill deposited with him, or to re-deliver the same to the plaintiff, or a mere acknowledgment of a duty which a party takes upon himself to perform, or a mere memorandum of deposit of bills, to get discounted or return on demand, is not "evidence of a contract" within the meaning of the Stamp Acts (y).

A mere acknowledgment that a party holds wine or goods as a bailee or depositary is admissible in evidence without a stamp (z). And so is a mere acknowledgment of a tenancy upon sufferance, although it contains upon the face of it an agreement to give immediate possession to the landlord (a). A draft agreement, having on the back of it, "we approve of the draft," signed by the plaintiff and defendant, was admitted in evidence, for the purpose of proving an admission of the parties (b). Any mere admission, indeed, or acknowledgment in writing, amounting simply to a link in the chain of evidence by which a contract or agreement is sought to be established, may be given in evidence without a stamp, such as an advertisement in the newspapers, intended to establish the simple fact of a dissolution of partnership (c), or an unsigned statement of the terms upon which lands are let (d), or of the mode in which the value of certain articles, growing crops, &c., should be calculated and ascertained (e), or a mere written con-

(r) Goodyear v. Simpson, 15 M. & W. 16; 15 L.J. Ex. 191.

(s) Doe v. Smith, 8 Ad. & E. 255; 7 L.J. Q.B. 158.

(t) Doe v. Fuller, Tyr. & Gr. 17.

(u) Huxley v. O'Connor, 8 C. & P. 204; Ames v. Hill, 2 B. & P. 150; Reardon v. Swabey, 4 East, 188.

(x) Brooks v. Elkins, 2 M. & W. 74; 6 L.J. Ex. 6.

(y) Langdon v. Wilson, 7 B. & C. 640, n. (b); 6 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 177; Mullett v. Huchison, 7 B. & C. 639; 6 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 176.

(z) Blackwell v. M'Naughtan, 1 Q.B. 127.

(a) Barry v. Goodman, 2 M. & W. 769; 6 L.J. Ex. 188.

(b) Doe v. Pedgriph, 4 C. & P. 312; Frazer v. Bunn, 8 C. & P. 704.

(c) Jenkins v. Blizard, 1 Stark. 418.

(d) Bolton (Lord) v. Tomlin, 5 Ad. & E. 856; 6 L.J. K.B. 45.

(e) Marshall v. Powell, 9 Q.B. 779; 16 L.J. Q.B. 5.

sent to the institution of certain legal proceedings, or a mere consent to the performance of any other act, matter, or thing (f).

A mere acknowledgment of the terms upon which a bill of exchange has been deposited (g), or an acknowledgment of the receipt of title deeds by way of deposit as a security for the repayment of money, is not an agreement within the meaning of the Stamp Acts, and does not require an agreement stamp. Therefore, where a document stamped as a promissory note contained, beside the ordinary promise to pay, a memorandum of a deposit of counterpart leases as a collateral security for the payment of the amount of the note, it was held that an agreement stamp was not necessary in addition to the promissory note stamp (h). But if the admission or acknowledgment is coupled with a promise or undertaking, it becomes then either a promissory note or an agreement, and must be stamped accordingly. A mere attornment in writing does not require a stamp (i): but, if it is expressed to be made upon certain terms and conditions: if it proceeds to state the amount of rent and the mode of payment, and to set forth the terms of the tenancy, and is signed and witnessed, it is evidence of an agreement chargeable with duty (k). And whenever the writing constitutes in itself the sole evidence of the contract sought to be enforced, it is inadmissible without a stamp, whether it has or has not been signed by the parties against whom it is offered in evidence (l).

Acknowledgments of debts in writing, given in evidence for the purpose of barring the Statute of Limitations, are expressly exempted from the operation of the Stamp Acts (m). But, if the writing amount to a promissory note, it cannot be received in evidence without a promissory note stamp (n).

Bare licences and authorities not amounting in themselves to evidence of a contract may likewise be given in evidence without a stamp, such as an authority to discharge a debt or pay money, or to institute legal proceedings, or to sell goods, or to leave apartments without notice (o), or to make a second dis-

(f) Hill v. Johnson, 3 C. & P. 456.

(g) De Porquet v. Page, 15 Q.B. 1073; 20 L.J. Q.B. 28.

(h) Fancourt v. Thorne, 9 Q.B. 312; 15 L.J. Q.B. 344; Pyle v. Partridge, 15 M. & W. 20; 15 L.J. Ex. 129.

(i) Doe v. Edwards, 5 Ad. & E. 95; 5 L.J. K.B. 238.

(k) Cornish v. Searell, 8 B. & C. 471; 6 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 254; Doe v. Frankis, 11 Ad. & E. 792; 9 L.J. Q.B. 177.

(l) Chadwick v. Clark, 1 C.B. 700; 14 L.J. C.P. 233.

(m) 9 Geo. 4, c. 14, s. 8; Morris v. Dixon, 4 Ad. & E. 845; 5 L.J. K.B. 155.

(n) Jones v. Ryder, 4 M. & W. 35; 7 L.J. Ex. 216; Parmiter v. Parmiter, 3 De G. F. & J. 461; 30 L.J. Ch. 508.

(o) Parker v. Dubois, 1 M. & W. 30; 5 L.J. Ex. 90; Humphreys v. Briant, 4 C. & P. 157; Diplock v. Hammond, 5 De G. M. & G. 320; 23 L.J. Ch. 550; Bethell v. Blencowe, 3 Sc. N.R. 568—573; 10 L.J. C.P. 243.

tress (p), or to continue a distress on the land, the landlord giving time for payment (q), or a minute of a resolution of a company authorizing the appointment of a clerk, and fixing the amount of his salary, or authorizing the acceptance of a tender for work to be done upon certain terms (r), or an authority or request to provide board and lodging for an illegitimate child (s). But, if there is no other evidence of the contract but what is afforded by the written memorandum, then the memorandum must be stamped as an agreement (t).

Simple contracts of deposit and pledge.—An agreement for the deposit of goods and chattels, bills of lading, or dock warrants, as a security for the repayment of money advanced, is sufficiently stamped with a common 6*d.* agreement stamp, and does not require, unless it is accompanied with a deposit of title-deeds, the ad valorem mortgage stamp (u). A mortgage stamp is required only where there is a regular conveyance by way of security for the repayment of money, and not where there has been merely a deposit of goods, or of some documents relating to goods, as a bill of lading or dock warrant (x). If the document does not amount to an agreement, but to a mere admission or acknowledgment of the deposit as a security for the payment of the money, no stamp at all is required, unless it contains a promise for the payment of money, in which case it must be stamped as a promissory note (y).

Bank notes for money not exceeding 1*l.* require a stamp of 5*d.*; exceeding 1*l.* and not 2*l.*, 10*d.*; exceeding 2*l.* and not 5*l.*, 1*s.* 3*d.*; exceeding 5*l.* and not 10*l.*, 1*s.* 9*d.*; exceeding 10*l.* and not 20*l.*, 2*s.*; exceeding 20*l.* and not 30*l.*, 3*s.*; exceeding 30*l.* and not 50*l.*, 5*s.*; exceeding 50*l.* and not 100*l.*, 8*s.* 6*d.*

By sect. 29, the term "banker" means any person carrying on the business of banking in the United Kingdom. The term "bank note" includes—(a) any bill of exchange or promissory note issued by any banker, other than the Bank of England, for the payment of money not exceeding 100*l.* to the bearer on demand; and (b) any bill of exchange or promissory note so issued which entitles or is intended to entitle the bearer or

(p) Hill v. Ramm, 6 Sc. N.R. 571; Pyle v. Partridge, 15 M. & W. 20; 15 L.J. Ex. 129.

(q) Fishwick v. Milnes, 4 Ex. 825; 19 L.J. Ex. 153.

(r) Vaughton v. Brine, 1 Sc. N.R. 258; 9 L.J. C.P. 326; Lucas v. Beach, 1 Sc. N.R. 350; 1 M. & S. 417.

(s) Beeching v. Westbrook, 8 M. & W. 411; 10 L.J. Ex. 464.

(t) Bowen v. Fox, 2 M. & R. 167; 6 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 235.

(u) See the Stamp Act, 1891, schedule, tit. "Mortgage," and also sect. 86, ante, p. 1346.

(x) Harris v. Birch, 9 M. & W. 594; 11 L.J. Ex. 219; Attenborough, In re, 11 Exch. 463; 25 L.J. Ex. 22.

(y) Pyle v. Partridge, supra; Fancourt v. Thorne, 9 Q.B. 312; 15 L.J. Q.B. 344.

holder thereof, without indorsement, or without any further or other indorsement than may be thereon at the time of the issuing thereof, to the payment of money not exceeding 100*l.* on demand, whether the same be so expressed or not, and in whatever form, and by whomsoever, such bill or note is drawn or made.

By sect. 30, a bank note issued duly stamped, or issued unstamped by a banker duly licensed or otherwise authorized to issue unstamped bank notes, may be from time to time re-issued without being liable to any stamp duty by reason of the re-issuing.

By sect. 31 (1), if any banker, not being duly licensed or otherwise authorized to issue unstamped bank notes, issues, or permits to be issued, any bank note not being duly stamped, he shall incur a fine of 50*l.*; (2) if any person receives or takes in payment or as a security any bank note, issued unstamped contrary to law, knowing the same to have been so issued, he shall incur a fine of 20*l.*

Bills of exchange and promissory notes.—Bills of exchange payable on demand, or at sight or on presentation, are liable to a duty of 1*d.*, and so are bills of exchange expressed to be payable at a period not exceeding three days after date or sight(z). Bills of exchange of any other kind whatsoever (except a bank note) and all promissory notes (except a bank note) drawn, or expressed to be payable, or actually paid, or indorsed, or in any manner negotiated in the United Kingdom for any sum of money not exceeding 5*l.*, require a stamp of 1*d.*; exceeding 5*l.* and not 10*l.*, 2*d.*; 10*l.* and not 25*l.*, 3*d.*; 25*l.* and not 50*l.*, 6*d.*; 50*l.* and not 75*l.*, 9*d.*; 75*l.* and not 100*l.*, 1*s.*; exceeding 100*l.*, 1*s.* for every 100*l.*, or part of 100*l.* (a). A promissory note of any kind, even although payable on demand or at sight, requires to be stamped with an ad valorem stamp under the first schedule of the Stamp Act, 1891 (b). By the Finance Act, 1899 (c), the duty payable on bills of exchange drawn and expressed to be payable out of the United Kingdom, when actually paid or indorsed or negotiated in any manner within the United Kingdom, shall be reduced to 6*d.* where the amount

(z) Finance Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict. c. 9), s. 10 (2).

(a) The Stamp Act, 1891, schedule, "Bill of Exchange;" Bradlaugh v. De Rin, L.R. 5 C.P. 473; 39 L.J. C.P. 254.

(b) Oettinger v. Cohn, 77 L.J. K.B. 299; (1908) 1 K.B. 582. Quære, whether a promissory note payable on demand or at sight does not require to be stamped with a penny stamp under sect. 32 of the Stamp Act, 1891, as a bill of exchange as well as to be stamped with an ad valorem stamp as a promissory note. Ib.

(c) 62 & 63 Vict. c. 9, s. 10 (1).

exceeds 50*l.* and not 100*l.*, and 6*d.* more for every 100*l.* and fraction of 100*l.*

By sect. 32, the term "bill of exchange" (d) for the purposes of this Act includes draft, order, cheque, and letter of credit, and any document or writing (except a bank note) entitling or purporting to entitle any person, whether named therein or not, to payment by any other person of, or to draw upon any other person for, any sum of money; and the expression "bill of exchange payable on demand" includes—(a) an order for the payment of any sum of money by bill of exchange or promissory note, or for the delivery of any bill of exchange or promissory note in satisfaction of any sum of money, or for the payment of any sum of money out of any particular fund which may or may not be available, or upon any condition or contingency which may or may not be performed or happen; and (b) an order for the payment of any sum of money weekly, monthly, or at any other stated periods, and also any order for the payment by any person at any time after the date thereof of any sum of money, and sent or delivered by the person making the same to the person by whom the payment is to be made, and not to the person to whom the payment is to be made, or to any person on his behalf (e).

By sect. 33 (1), the term "promissory note" (f) includes any document or writing (except a bank note) containing a promise to pay any sum of money (g); (2) a note promising the payment of any sum of money out of any particular fund which may or may not be available, or upon any condition or contingency which may or may not be performed or happen, is to be deemed a promissory note for that sum of money (h).

By sect. 34 (1), the fixed duty of 1*d.* on a bill of exchange payable on demand (i), or at sight or on presentation, may be denoted by an adhesive stamp, which, where the bill is drawn in the United Kingdom, is to be cancelled by the person by whom the bill is signed before he delivers it out of his hands, custody, or power. (2) The ad valorem duties upon bills of exchange and promissory notes drawn or made out of the United Kingdom are to be denoted by adhesive stamps. The provisions of this

(d) See Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, s. 3, ante, p. 1242.

(e) See sect. 97 (3) of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882; London Clearing Bankers v. Inland Rev. Com., (1896) 1 Q.B. 542; 67 L.J. Q.B. 372.

(f) See Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, s. 83, ante, p. 1284.

(g) See Smith v. Dean, 69 L.J. Q.B. 331.

(h) Mortgage Insurance Corporation v. Inland Rev. Com., 21 Q.B.D. 352; 57 L.J. Q.B. 174; British India Co. v. Inland Rev. Com., 7 Q.B.D. 165; 50 L.J. Q.B. 517.

(i) See Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, s. 10, ante, p. 1245.

section apply to bills of exchange expressed to be payable at a period not exceeding three days after date or sight which are chargeable with the duty of 1*d.* under sect. 10 (2) of the Finance Act, 1899 (k).

By sect. 35 (1), every person into whose hands any bill of exchange or promissory note, drawn or made out of the United Kingdom, comes in the United Kingdom before it is stamped shall, before he presents for payment, or indorses, transfers, or in any manner negotiates, or pays, the bill or note, affix thereto a proper adhesive stamp or proper adhesive stamps of sufficient amount, and cancel every stamp so affixed thereto; (2) provided as follows: (a) if at the time when any such bill or note comes into the hands of any bonâ fide holder there is affixed thereto an adhesive stamp effectually cancelled, the stamp shall, so far as relates to the holder, be deemed to be duly cancelled, although it may not appear to have been affixed or cancelled by the proper person; (b) if at the time when any such bill or note comes into the hands of any bonâ fide holder there is affixed thereto an adhesive stamp not duly cancelled, it shall be competent for the holder to cancel the stamp as if he were the person by whom it was affixed, and upon his so doing the bill or note shall be deemed duly stamped, and as valid and available as if the stamp had been cancelled by the person by whom it was affixed; (3) but neither of the foregoing provisoes is to relieve any person from any fine or penalty incurred by him for not cancelling an adhesive stamp. Presenting a foreign bill for acceptance was held to be not negotiating it within the meaning of the corresponding section of the former Act (l). And the holder of a foreign bill payable on demand might stamp it properly by affixing to it and cancelling a stamp before presenting it for payment (m).

By sect. 36, a bill of exchange or promissory note which purports to be drawn or made out of the United Kingdom is, for the purposes of determining the mode in which the stamp duty thereon is to be denoted, to be deemed to have been so drawn or made, although it may in fact have been drawn or made within the United Kingdom (n).

By sect. 37 (1), where a bill of exchange or promissory note has been written on material bearing an impressed stamp of (k) See Revenue Act, 1909 (9 Edw. 7, c. 43), s. 10, and Finance Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict. c. 9), s. 10 (2).

(l) Sharples v. Bickard, 2 H. & N. 57; 26 L.J. Ex. 302.

(m) Boyse, In re, 33 Ch.D. 613; 56 L.J. Ch. 135.

(n) See the difference between this definition and the definitions of inland and foreign bills and notes in the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, ss. 4, 83 (4). See also Griffin v. Weatherly, L.R. 3 Q.B. 753; 37 L.J. Q.B. 280.

sufficient amount but of improper denomination, it may be stamped with the proper stamp on payment of the duty, and a penalty of 40*s.* if the bill or note be not then payable according to its tenor, or of 10*l.* if the same be so payable; (2) except as aforesaid, no bill of exchange or promissory note shall be stamped with an impressed stamp after the execution thereof.

By sect. 38 (1), every person who issues, indorses, transfers, negotiates, presents for payment, or pays any bill of exchange or promissory note liable to duty and not being duly stamped (o) shall incur a fine of 10*l.*, and the person who takes or receives from any other person any such bill or note not being duly stamped shall not be entitled to recover thereon, or to make the same available for any purpose whatever (p). (2) Provided that if any bill of exchange payable on demand or at sight or on presentation is presented for payment unstamped, the person (q) to whom it is presented may affix thereto an adhesive stamp of 1*d.*, and cancel the same, as if he had been the drawer of the bill, and may thereupon pay the sum in the bill mentioned, and charge the duty in account against the person by whom the bill was drawn, or deduct such duty from the said sum, and such bill is, so far as respects the duty, to be deemed valid and available (r). (3) But the foregoing proviso is not to relieve any person from any fine or penalty he may have incurred in relation to such bill (s).

By sect. 39, when a bill of exchange is drawn in a set according to the custom of merchants, and one of the set is duly stamped, the other or others of the set shall, unless issued or in some manner negotiated apart from the stamped bill, be exempt from duty; and, upon proof of the loss or destruction of a duly stamped bill forming one of a set, any other bill of the set which has not been issued or in any manner negotiated apart from the lost or destroyed bill may, although unstamped, be admitted in evidence to prove the contents of the lost or destroyed bill.

(o) "Duly stamped" has not the same meaning here as in s. 8.

(p) See sect. 14, ante, p. 1334. A promissory note insufficiently stamped cannot be admitted in evidence to prove the receipt of the money for which it was given: Ashling v. Boon, (1891) 1 Ch. 568; 60 L.J. Ch. 306; but it may be used for the purpose of refreshing a witness's memory: Birchall v. Bullough, (1896) 1 Q.B. 325; 65 L.J. Q.B. 252. The section does not affect post-dated cheques: Royal Bank of Scotland v. Tottenham, (1894) 2 Q.B. 715;; 64 L.J. Q.B. 99.

(q) The banker is the only person who can affix and cancel the stamp in the manner permitted by this subsection.

(r) The provisions of this subsection apply to bills of exchange payable at a period not exceeding three days after date or sight which are chargeable with 1*d.* stamp duty under the Finance Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict. c. 9), s. 10 (2), see Revenue Act, 1909 (9 Edw. 7, c. 43), s. 10.

(s) This section applies to foreign as well as to inland bills and notes.

The stamp duty upon a protest of any bill of exchange or promissory note, where the duty on the bill or note does not exceed 1*s.*, is the same as the duty upon the bill or note, and in every other case the stamp duty is 1*s.* (t); and by sect. 90, the duty upon a notarial act and upon the protest by a notary public may be denoted by an adhesive stamp, &c.

Any words in writing, importing a promise to pay a sum certain, are a promissory note within the meaning of the Stamp Acts, and must be stamped accordingly, unless the promise is to pay a sum already secured by a duly stamped promissory note (u). But, if the amount is uncertain, or the money is made payable on terms and conditions rendering the contract a special agreement, it should have an agreement stamp (x). Bills of exchange cannot be re-issued after they have once been paid without a fresh stamp (y); but a party paying an accommodation bill after maturity, on behalf of the acceptor, may bring an action against the drawer without having the bill re-stamped; for there is no re-issue of the bill in such a case. To make a fresh stamp necessary there must be a payment by the party ultimately liable (z). A mere authority to pay money does not require a bill of exchange stamp (a).

Post-dated cheques.—The date upon the face of a cheque or draft must be taken to be the date of the issue of the instrument; and, if the stamp is conformable therewith, the cheque or draft is admissible in evidence, although it was post-dated; but the maker is liable to a penalty (b).

What instruments are bills of exchange within the Stamp Acts.—It was the object of the legislature to treat as bills of exchange, and to subject to stamp duty, all such drafts and orders as, being payable on a contingency, or out of a particular fund, would not otherwise, in strictness of law, have fallen under that denomination (c). If no sum whatever is

(t) See the schedule, tit. "Protest."

(u) Drury v. Macaulay, 16 M. & W. 146; 16 L.J. Ex. 3; Ellis v. Mason, 7 Dowl. P.C. 598; Wheatley v. Williams, 1 M. & W. 533; Shrivell v. Payne, 8 Dowl. P.C. 441; Walker v. Roberts, Car. & Marsh. 590; Shelton v. James, 5 Q.B. 199; 13 L.J. Q.B. 90.

(x) Cholmeley v. Darley, 14 M. & W. 344; 14 L.J. Ex. 328.

(y) 55 Geo. 3, c. 184, s. 10.

(z) Thomas v. Fenton, 16 L.J. Q.B. 362; Lazarus v. Cowie, 3 Q.B. 459; 11 L.J. Q.B. 310; Jewell v. Parr, 22 L.J. C.P. 253; 13 C.B. 914.

(a) Hamilton v. Spottiswoode, 4 Ex. 210; 18 L.J. Ex. 393.

(b) Williams v. Jarrett, 5 B. & Ad. 32; 2 L.J. K.B. 156; Whistler v. Forster, 14 C.B. N.S. 248; 32 L.J. C.P. 161; Austin v. Bunyard, 6 B. & S. 687; 34 L.J. Q.B. 217; Bull v. O'Sullivan, L.R. 6 Q.B. 209; 40 L.J. Q.B. 141; Gatty v. Fry, 2 Ex.D. 265; 46 L.J. Ex. 605; Clarke v. Roche, 3 Q.B.D. 170; 47 L.J. Q.B. 147. See sect. 13, Bills of Exchange Act, ante, p. 1345.

(c) Firbank v. Bell, 1 B. & Ald. 36; Butts v. Swan, 4 Moore, 485; 2 B. & B. 78.

expressed in the order, and the total amount directed to be paid is indefinite, there is nothing to determine the amount of the stamp duty; and the instrument cannot consequently be stamped at all (d).

The duties upon bills of exchange and promissory notes are subject to the following exemptions: (1.) Bill or note issued by the Bank of England or the Bank of Ireland. (2.) Draft or order drawn by any banker in the United Kingdom upon any other banker in the United Kingdom, not payable to bearer or to order, and used solely for the purpose of settling or clearing any account between such bankers. (3.) Letter written by a banker in the United Kingdom on any other banker in the United Kingdom, directing the payment of any sum of money, the same not being payable to bearer or to order, and such letter not being sent or delivered to the person to whom payment is to be made, or to any person on his behalf. (4.) Letter of credit granted in the United Kingdom authorizing drafts to be drawn out of the United Kingdom payable in the United Kingdom. (5.) Draft or order drawn by the Paymaster-General on behalf of the Court of Chancery in England or by the Accountant-General of the Supreme Court of Judicature in Ireland. (6.) Warrant or order for the payment of any annuity granted by the National Debt Commissioners, or for the payment of any dividend or interest on any share in the government or parliamentary stocks or funds. (7.) Bill drawn by any person under the authority of the Admiralty, upon and payable by the Accountant-General of the Navy. (8.) Bill drawn (according to a form prescribed by his Majesty's orders by any person duly authorized to draw the same) upon and payable out of any public account for any pay or allowance of the army or auxiliary forces, or for any other expenditure connected therewith. (9.) Draft or order drawn upon any banker in the United Kingdom by an officer of a public department of the State for payment of money out of a public account. (10.) Bill drawn in the United Kingdom for the sole purpose of remitting money to be placed to any account of public revenue. (11.) Coupon or warrant for interest attached to and issued with any security with any agreement or memorandum for the renewal or extension of time for payment of a security (e).

Bills of lading (ante, pp. 589, 980) of any goods, merchandise, or effects to be exported or carried coastwise, require a 6*d.* stamp.

(d) Crowfoot v. Gurney, 2 M. & Sc. 473; 2 L.J. C.P. 21; Jones v. Simpson, 2 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 22; 2 B. & C. 318.

(e) The Stamp Act, 1891, schedule, tit. "Bills of Exchange. See Rothschild v. Inland Rev. Com., (1894) 2 Q.B. 142.

By sect. 40, they are not to be stamped after execution, and a fine of 50*l.* is imposed upon every person who makes or executes a bill of lading not duly stamped (f).

Contracts of insurance.—A policy of sea insurance is liable to a duty of 1*d.*—(1) Where the premium or consideration does not exceed the rate of 2*s.* 6*d.* per centum of the sum insured. (2.) In any other case—(a) for or upon any voyage in respect of every full sum of 100*l.*, and also any fractional part of 100*l.* thereby insured, 1*d.* (g); (b) for time in respect of every full sum of 100*l.*, and also any fractional part of 100*l.* thereby insured, where the insurance shall be made for any time not exceeding six months, 3*d.*; where the insurance shall be made for any time exceeding six months and not exceeding twelve months, 6*d.* (h).

By sect. 91, for the purposes of this Act, the expression "policy of insurance" includes every writing whereby any contract of insurance is made or agreed to be made, or is evidenced, and the expression "insurance" includes assurance.

By sect. 92 (1), for the purposes of this Act the expression "policy of sea insurance" means any insurance (including re-insurance) made upon any ship or vessel, or upon the machinery, tackle, or furniture of any ship or vessel, or upon any goods, merchandise, or property of any description whatever on board of any ship or vessel, or upon the freight of, or any other interest which may be lawfully insured in or relating to, any ship or vessel, and includes any insurance of goods, merchandise, or property for any transit which includes not only a sea risk, but also any other (i) risk incidental to the transit insured from the commencement of the transit to the ultimate destination covered by the insurance. (2) Where any person, in consideration of any sum of money paid or to be paid for additional freight or otherwise, agrees to take upon himself any risk attending goods, merchandise, or property of any description whatever while on board of any ship or vessel, or engages to indemnify the owner of any such goods, merchandise, or property from any risk, loss, or damage, such agreement or engagement shall be deemed to be a contract for sea insurance.

(f) The Stamp Act, 1891, schedule, tit. "Bills of lading."

(g) Finance Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 16), s. 5.

(h) Stamp Act, 1891, schedule 1. See also Financial Act, 1901 (1 Edw. 7, c. 7), s. 11, and Revenue Act, 1903 (3 Edw. 7, c. 46), s. 8.

(i) The word other was land in the former statute, 47 & 48 Vict. c. 62, s. 8.

Section 8 of the Finance Act, 1903 (k), provides for the stamping of policies on vessels in course of construction.

By sect. 93 (1), a contract for sea insurance (other than such insurance as is referred to in sect. 506 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894), shall not be valid unless the same is expressed in a policy of sea insurance (kk).

(2) No policy of sea insurance made for time shall be made for any time exceeding twelve months (l).

(3) A policy of sea insurance shall not be valid unless it specifies the particular risk or adventure, the names of the subscribers or underwriters, and the sum or sums insured, and is made for a period not exceeding twelve months (m).

By sect. 94, where any sea insurance is made for a voyage and also for time, or to extend to or cover any time beyond thirty days after the ship shall have arrived at her destination and been there moored at anchor, the policy is to be charged with duty as a policy for a voyage, and also with duty as a policy for time.

By sect. 95 (1), a policy of sea insurance may not be stamped at any time after it is signed or underwritten by any person, except in the two cases following; that is to say, (a) Any policy of mutual insurance having a stamp impressed thereon may, if required, be stamped with an additional stamp provided that at the time when the additional stamp is required the policy has not been signed or underwritten to an amount exceeding the sum or sums which the duty impressed thereon extends to cover: (b) Any policy made or executed out of, but being in any manner enforceable within, the United Kingdom, may be stamped at any time within ten days after it has been first received in the United Kingdom on payment of the duty only. (2) Provided that a policy of sea insurance shall for the purpose of production in evidence be an instrument which may legally be stamped after the execution thereof, and the penalty payable by law on stamping the same shall be the sum of 100*l*.

Legal alterations in policies may be made under certain restrictions.—By sect. 96, nothing in this Act shall prohibit the making of any alteration which may lawfully be made in the terms and conditions of any policy of sea insurance after the policy has been underwritten; provided that the alteration be made before notice of the determination of the risk originally (k) 3 Edw. 7, c. 8.

(kk) Genforsikrings Aktieselskabet v. Da Costa, (1911) 1 K.B. 137; 80 L.J. K.B. 236.

(l) Charlesworth v. Faber, 5 Com. Cas. 408; Royal Exchange Assur. Corp. v. Sjorforsakrings Aktiebolaget Vega, (1902) 2 K.B. 384; 71 L.J. K.B. 739. As to policy of sea insurance containing continuation clause, see 1 Edw. 7, c. 7, s. 11.

(m) Home Mar. Ins. Co. v. Smith, (1898) 2 Q.B. 351; 67 L.J. Q.B. 777; Great Britain SS. Premium Association v. White, 29 Sc. L.R. 104.

insured, and that it do not prolong the time covered by the insurance thereby made beyond the period of six months in the case of a policy made for a less period than six months, or beyond the period of twelve months in the case of a policy made for a greater period than six months, and that the articles insured remain the property of the same person or persons, and that no additional or further sum be insured by reason or means of the alteration.

Penalty on assuring unless policy duly stamped.—By sect. 97 (1), If any person (a) becomes an assurer upon any sea insurance, or enters into any contract for sea insurance, or directly or indirectly receives or contracts or takes credit in account for any premium or consideration for any sea insurance, or knowingly takes upon himself any risk, or renders himself liable to pay, or pays, any sum of money upon any loss, peril, or contingency relative to any sea insurance, unless the insurance is expressed in a policy of sea insurance duly stamped, or (b) makes or effects, or knowingly procures to be made or effected, any sea insurance, or directly or indirectly gives or pays, or renders himself liable to pay, any premium, or consideration for any sea insurance, or enters into any contract for sea insurance, unless the insurance is expressed in a policy of sea insurance duly stamped, or (c) is concerned in any fraudulent contrivance or device, or is guilty of any wilful act, neglect, or omission, with intent to evade the duties payable on policies of sea insurance, or whereby the duties may be evaded, he shall for every such offence incur a fine of 100*l.* (2) Every broker, agent, or other person negotiating or transacting any sea insurance contrary to the true intent and meaning of this Act, or writing any policy of sea insurance upon material not duly stamped, shall for every such offence incur a fine of 100*l.*, and shall not have any legal claim to any charge for brokerage, commission, or agency, or for any money expended or paid by him with reference to the insurance, and any money paid to him in respect of any such charge shall be deemed to be paid without consideration, and shall remain the property of his employer. (3) If any person makes or issues, or causes to be made or issued, any document purporting to be a copy of a policy of sea insurance, and there is not at the time of the making or issue in existence a policy duly stamped whereof the said document is a copy, he shall for such offence in addition to any other fine or penalty to which he may be liable incur a fine of 100*l.*

Contracts of insurance against accidents or sickness, or damage to property.—By the Stamp Act, 1891, there is imposed upon every policy of insurance for any payment agreed to be made during the sickness of any person or his incapacity from personal injury, or by way of indemnity (n) against loss or damage of or to any property, a stamp duty of 1*d.* (o).

By sect. 98 (1), for the purposes of this Act the expression "policy of life insurance" means a policy of insurance upon any life or lives or upon any event or contingency relating to or depending upon any life or lives except a policy of insurance against accident; and the expression "policy of insurance against accident," means a policy of insurance for any payment agreed to be made upon the death of any person only from accident or violence, or otherwise than from a natural cause, or as compensation for personal injury, and includes any notice or advertisement in a newspaper or other publication which purports to insure the payment of money upon the death of or injury to the holder or bearer of the newspaper or publication containing the notice only from accident or violence or otherwise than from a natural cause. (2) A policy of insurance against accident is not to be charged with any further duty than one penny by reason of the same extending to any payment to be made during sickness or incapacity from personal injury (p). An instrument by which an insurance company, in consideration of a premium, agrees to pay a certain sum in the event of the assured obtaining a certain age—the intention being to make provision for old age—and a smaller sum in the event of his dying before reaching that age, is a "policy of life insurance" within the meaning of sect. 98, sub-s. 1 of the Stamp Act, 1891. Accordingly such an instrument is chargeable with stamp duty as a policy of life insurance, and not under the heading "Mortgage, Bond, Debenture Covenant" (q). By the Finance Act, 1895 (r), "a policy of insurance for any payment agreed to be made during the sickness of any person or his incapacity from personal injury" is to include a notice or advertisement in a newspaper or other publication which purports to insure such payment. And by the Finance Act, 1899 (s), the expression "policy of insurance against acci-

(n) See Finance Act, 1907 (7 Edw. 7, c. 13), s. 8 (1).

(o) Schedule, tit. "Policy of insurance."

(p) As to what is a policy of insurance, see Mortgage Insurance Co. v. Inland Rev. Com., 21 Q.B.D. 352; 57 L.J. Q.B. 630; and as to composition of stamp duty upon policies of insurance against accidents and against loss or damage of or to any property, see sect. 116 of the Act as amended by the Finance Act, 1896 (59 & 60 Vict. c. 28), s. 13, and the Finance Act, 1907 (7 Edw. 7, c. 13), s. 8 (2).

(q) Prudential Assur. Co. v. Inland Rev. Com., 73 L.J. K.B. 734; (1904) 2 K.B. 658.

(r) 58 Vict. c. 16, s. 13.

(s) 62 & 63 Vict. c. 9, s. 11 as dent" is to include policies of insurance or indemnity against employers' liability when the annual premium does not exceed £2.

By sect. 99 of the Act of 1891, the duty of one penny upon a policy of insurance other than a policy of sea insurance or life insurance may be denoted by an adhesive stamp, which is to be cancelled by the person by whom the policy is first executed.

Contracts of insurance upon any life or lives.—Policies of insurance upon any life or lives, or upon any event or contingency relating to, or depending upon, any life or lives (except accidents) (t) are charged, where the sum insured does not exceed 10*l.*, with a stamp duty of 1*d.*; and where it exceeds 10*l.* but not 25*l.*, 3*d.*; and where it exceeds 25*l.* and not 500*l.*, with a stamp duty of 6*d.* for every 50*l.* and every fractional part of 50*l.*; and, where it exceeds 500*l.* and not 1,000*l.*, then for every 100*l.*, and any fractional part of 100*l.*, 1*s.*; and when it exceeds 1,000*l.*, then for every 1,000*l.*, and any fractional part of 1,000*l.*, 10*s.* (u).

By sect. 91, the term "insurance" includes assurance, and the term "policy" includes every writing whereby any contract of insurance is made, or agreed to be made, or is evidenced.

By sect. 100, every person who (1) receives, or takes credit for any premium or consideration for any insurance other than a sea insurance, and does not, within one month after receiving, or taking credit for the premium or consideration, make out and execute a duly stamped policy of insurance; or (2) makes, executes, or delivers out, or pays or allows in account, or agrees to pay or allow in account, any money upon or in respect of any policy other than a policy of sea insurance which is not duly stamped, shall incur a fine of 20*l.*

By sect. 118 (1), no assignment of a policy of life insurance shall confer on the assignee therein named, his executors, administrators, or assigns, any right to sue for the moneys assured or secured thereby, or to give a valid discharge for the same, or any part thereof, unless the assignment is duly stamped, and no payment shall be made to any person claiming under any such assignment unless the same is duly stamped. (2) If any payment is made in contravention of this section, amended by 7 Edw. 7, c. 13, s. 8 (3). See Lancashire Insurance Co. v. Inland Rev. Com., (1899) 1 Q.B. 353; 68 L.J. Q.B. 143.

(t) See sect. 98, ante, p. 1383.

(u) See the schedule, tit. "Policy." The re-insurance between insurance companies of a risk upon a duly stamped policy of life insurance is liable to an ad valorem duty. The practice, however, is to limit the charge on such policies to 6*d.* if under hand, or 10*s.* if under seal.

the stamp duty not paid upon the assignment, together with the penalty payable on stamping the same, shall be a debt due to his Majesty from the person by whom the payment is made.

Receipts (x) given for or upon the payment of money amounting to 2*l.* or upwards are liable to a stamp duty of 1*d.* The following are the exemptions:—(1.) Receipt given for money deposited in any bank, or with any banker, to be accounted for and expressed to be received of the person to whom the same is to be accounted for. (2.) Acknowledgment by any banker of the receipt of any bill of exchange or promissory note for the purpose of being presented for acceptance or payment. (3.) Receipt given for or upon the payment of any parliamentary taxes or duties, or of money to or for the use of his Majesty. (4.) Receipt given by an officer of a public department of the State for money paid by way of imprest or advance, or in adjustment of an account, where he derives no personal benefit therefrom. (5.) Receipt given by any agent for money imprested to him on account of the pay of the army. (6.) Receipt given by any officer, seaman, marine, or soldier, or his representatives, for or on account of any wages, pay, or pension, due from the Admiralty or army pay office. (7.) Receipt given for any principal money or interest due on an exchequer bill. (8.) The eighth exemption was repealed by the Stamp Act, 1895 (y), and the duty on a receipt written upon a bill of exchange or promissory note is now to be charged, but the name of a banker or payee, written on a duly stamped bill or note in the ordinary course of business, is not to be taken as a receipt chargeable with stamp duty. (9.) Receipt given upon any bill or note of the Bank of England or the Bank of Ireland. (10.) Receipt given for the consideration money for the purchase of any share in any of the government or parliamentary stocks or funds, or in the stocks and funds of the Secretary of State in Council of India, or of the Bank of England, or of the Bank of Ireland, or for any dividend paid on any share of the said stocks or funds respectively. (11.) Receipt indorsed or otherwise written upon or contained in any instrument liable to stamp duty, and duly stamped, acknowledging the receipt of the consideration money therein expressed, or the receipt of any principal money, interest, or annuity thereby secured or therein mentioned (z). (12.) Receipt given for any allowance by way of drawback or otherwise upon the exportation of any goods or merchandise from the United Kingdom. (13.) Receipt given for the return of any duty of customs upon certificates of over entry. (14.) Receipt given by an officer of a County Court for money received by him from a party to any proceeding in the Court. (15.) Receipt given by or on behalf of a clerk to justices for money received in respect of a fine(a).

(x) The Stamp Act, 1891, schedule, tit. "Receipts."

(y) 58 Vict. c. 16, s. 9.

(z) See London and Westminster Bank v. Inland Rev. Com., (1900) 1 Q.B. 166; 69 L.J. Q.B. 102.

By sect. 101 (1), the term "receipt" includes any note, memorandum, or writing whatsoever whereby any money amounting to 2*l.* or upwards, or any bill of exchange or promissory note for money amounting to 2*l.* or upwards, is acknowledged or expressed to have been received or deposited or paid, or whereby any debt or demand, or any part of a debt or demand, of the amount either in payment or as a security, or by purchase or otherwise, of 2*l.* or upwards, is acknowledged to have been settled, satisfied, or discharged, or which signifies or imports any such acknowledgment, and whether the same is or is not signed with the name of any person (b). (2) The duty upon a receipt may be denoted by an adhesive stamp, which is to be cancelled by the person by whom the receipt is given before he delivers it out of his hands.

Counsel's initials or signature placed against the fee marked on a brief or statement of fees, and thus indicating payment thereof by the solicitor instructing him, makes these documents liable to stamp duty as receipts within the meaning of the Stamp Act, 1891 (c).

By sect. 102, a receipt given without being stamped may be stamped with an impressed stamp upon the terms following; that is to say, (1) within fourteen days after it has been given, on payment of the duty and a penalty of 5*l.*; (2) after fourteen days, but within one month, after it has been given, on payment of the duty and a penalty of 10*l.*; and shall not in any other case be stamped with an impressed stamp. A receipt executed out of the United Kingdom may be executed upon an adhesive stamp; or, if executed unstamped, it falls under the provisions of sect. 15.

By sect. 103, if any person (1) gives a receipt liable to duty and not duly stamped; or (2) in any case where a receipt would be liable to duty refuses to give a receipt duly stamped; or (3) upon a payment to the amount of 2*l.* or upwards gives a receipt for a sum not amounting to 2*l.*, or separates or divides the amount paid with intent to evade the duty; he shall incur a fine of 10*l*.

(a) These two last exemptions were added by the Revenue Act, 1898 (61 & 62 Vict. c. 46), s. 8.

(b) See Att.-Gen. v. Carlton Bank, (1899) 2 Q.B. 158; 68 L.J. Q.B. 788; Firth v. Inland Rev. Com., (1904) 2 K.B. 205; 73 L.J. K.B. 632.

(c) General Council of the Bar v. Inland Rev. Com., (1907) 1 K.B. 462; 76 L.J. K.B. 212.

If the receipt appears to be an acknowledgment of the receipt of money paid by way of gift and gratuity, and not in discharge of a debt, claim, or demand, it is not within the statute (d). A memorandum or acknowledgment of the receipt of money or bills or securities, by way of deposit, does not require a receipt stamp; for the words of the former Stamp Acts (which are very similar to the present Act), "every receipt or discharge given for or upon the payment of money," clearly apply to writings given as a discharge of money antecedently due, and not to an acknowledgment that money has been deposited to be accounted for on demand (e). If a receipt for money and an agreement are written on the same piece of paper, the receipt is admissible in evidence if it has a receipt stamp, although there be no agreement stamp (f).

(d) Boyle v. Brandon, 13 M. & W. 738; 14 L.J. Ex. 344.

(e) Tomkins v. Ashby, 9 D. & R. 545; 6 B. & C. 542; 5 L.J. (O.S.) K.B. 246; Levy v. Alexander, 19 L.J. Ex. 113; 4 Ex. 485; and see the exemptions, ante, p. 1385.

(f) Grey v. Smith, 1 Campb. 387.

GENERAL INDEX.

ABANDONMENT,
of legal proceedings, sufficient consideration for promise, 11.
of right to remove fixtures, 703.
ornamental and trade fixtures, 700.
of distress, 800.
of possession extinguishing lien, 908.
in cases of marine insurance, 1186.
notice of, 1186.
by whom to be given, 1186, 1188.
form of, 1188.
effect of, 1188.
when insured may abandon, 1190.
unreasonable abandonment, 1194.
See MARINE INSURANCE. of contracts to marry, 1315.

ABROAD,
contracts made, interpretation of, 58.
limitation of actions on, 219.
stamp duty on, 1338.
debts contracted by bankrupt, effect of discharge on, 199.

ABSTRACT OF TITLE. See SALE OF LAND.

ACCEPTANCE of biddings at auctions, 17, 476.
of offers through post, 17.
by telegram, 18.
made by advertisement, 13, 310.
of part of debt in satisfaction of whole, 151.
of full amount of debt before action, 152.
of money orders, &c., operating by way of novation, 180.
of specialty securities in satisfaction of simple contract debts, 185.
constructive, of goods, 535.
of bills of lading, delivery orders, and dock warrants transferring property in goods, 536.
of goods, what constitutes, 606.
damages for refusal to accept goods, 625.
of bills of exchange, 1261.
qualified acceptance, 1263.
See BILL OF EXCHANGE.

ACCEPTANCE AND ACTUAL RECEIPT of goods within Statute of Frauds, 28, 532.
articles received for inspection and approval, 534.
goods purchased by bailee, 534.
constructive acceptance and receipt, 535.
delivery by vendor to carrier or wharfinger on behalf of purchaser, 537, 604.
acceptance before actual receipt, 532.

ACCEPTANCE AND ACTUAL RECEIPT—continued.
of delivery orders and dock warrants, 536.
part acceptance and actual receipt binding the contract, 537.
effect of acceptance taking contract out of Statute of Frauds, 538.
See DELIVERY ORDER—SALE OF GOODS.

ACCEPTOR
of bill of exchange, liability of, 1264.
failure of consideration, 1164.
days of grace, 1271.
acceptance by agents, 1301, 1303.
by partners, 1303.
by registered companies, 1306.
See BILL OF EXCHANGE.

ACCESSORY AGREEMENT,
specific performance of, where principal agreement cannot be enforced, 294.

ACCIDENT,
railway, presumption of negligence, 1018.
insurance against injury by, 1236.
damages recoverable, 1238.

"ACCIDENTS OF THE SEAS," loss by, 1176.

ACCOMMODATION BILLS AND NOTES,
effect of bankruptcy on, 270.
when holder bound to prove he gave value, 1256.
nature of, 1260.
right of action on, 1260.
indorsement of, when overdue, 1260.
presentment of, when excused, 1261, 1263.
See BILL OF EXCHANGE.

ACCORD AND SATISFACTION, substituted performance of something different from what was stipulated to be done, 183.
discharge by, 183.
accord, executory, 184.
acceptance of specialty, or additional simple contract, securities, 185.
composition deeds and agreements, 186.
transfer of property by way of, 188.
with one of several joint plaintiffs, 188.
See APPROPRIATION OF PAYMENTS—PAYMENT.

ACCOUNTANT,
liability of, for negligence, 889.

ACCOUNT STATED,
nature of, 470.
implied promise in respect of, 470.
none in case of infant or lunatic, 471.
of void claims, 471.
with trustees, effect of, 471, 472.
when jus tertii cannot be set up to defeat, 472.
settlement of mutual accounts, 472.
when accounts cannot be re-opened, 472, 473.

ACCOUNTS. See APPROPRIATION.
appropriation of payments where several, 165.
settlement of, amounting to payment, 216.
separate, and one running account, 166.
mistakes in, 473.

ACCOUNTS—continued.
admission of correctness of, not conclusive, 473.
between principal and agent, 946.
duty of agent to keep, 946.
liability of agent for refusing to account, 947.
statute of limitations where agent in fiduciary position, 947.
See ADJUSTMENT, APPROPRIATION.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT of seal, to be made before delivery of deed, 19.
See BOND.
by matter of record, 21.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF DEBTS contracted during infancy, 40, 411.
form and requisites of, 211, 212.
conditional, 212.
authentication of, 211.
lost, oral evidence of contents of, 213.
by one of several joint contractors, 213.
executor, 214.
devisee for life, 214.
partner, when evidence against firm, 360.
to whom to be made, 214.
exemption of, from stamp duty, 214.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF DEEDS AND SPECIALTIES, extending period of limitation, 210.

ACT OF BANKRUPTCY. See BANKRUPTCY.

ACT OF GOD,
loss by, exemption from liability for, at common law, 986, 987.
meaning of term, 1027.

ACT OF PARLIAMENT,
contract in contravention of policy of, 83.
contracts made illegal by, 88—95, 97, 103—120.
implied contract arising out of, 455.
See ILLEGAL CONTRACTS.

ADHESIVE STAMPS,
use of, 1333.
cancellation of, 1333.

ADJUDICATION IN BANKRUPTCY,
effect of, 268.
effect of annulling, 276.

ADJUSTMENT,
of account to take debt out of Statute of Limitations, 216.
of losses in maritime insurance, 1204, 1205, 1206.
of average loss, where to be made, 1013.
generally, 1204, 1206.

ADMINISTRATION
of justice, contracts obstructing, 81.
of assets, generally, 249, 250.
limitation of liability on covenants in leases, 249.
protection afforded under Judicial Trustees Act, 251.
rights of personal representative as to payment of debts, 252.
defences to actions against personal representatives, 252, 253.
suspending Statute of Limitations, where debtor administers to creditor, 220.
de bonis non, 256.

ADMINISTRATION BONDS,
assignment of, 222.

ADMINISTRATOR. See EXECUTOR.

ADMISSIBILITY OF EVIDENCE. See EVIDENCE.

ADMISSION,
written evidence of, exemption from stamp duty, 214.
by partner, when evidence against firm, 360.
See ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF DEBT.

ADULTERATED FOOD,
illegal sale of, 111.

ADVANCE FREIGHT,
when recoverable back, 995.
insurable interest in, 1109.

ADVERSE CLAIMANTS,
to chattels bailed, liabilities of bailee, 848.
establishment of title by interpleader, 850.

ADVERTISEMENT,
contract by, what constitutes, 15, 310.
of sale by auction, effect of, 13.

AFFREIGHTMENT,
contracts of, 970.
foreign, law of country regulating, 63.
See CHARTER-PARTY.

AGE OF CONSENT,
what constitutes, to marriage, 1319.

AGENCY,
the contract of, nature of, 942.
corrupt transactions with agents, prevention of, 944.
revocation of authority, 945.
when the authority is irrevocable, 946.
accounting, duty of agent as to, 946.
refusal to account, liability of agent for, 946.
liabilities of brokers, factors, and commission agents, 947.
of forwarding agents, 948.
liability of principals to brokers, factors, and agents, 848.
del credere commissions, nature of, 948.
liability of insurance brokers to their principals, 949.
share and stock brokers, 950.
solicitors, 952.
sheriff's officers, 953.
estate and house agents, 953.
receipt of money and goods on account of principal, 954.
by sub-agents, 955.
payment by one agent to another, 956.
purchases by agent with the money of principal, 956.
frauds by agents on their principals, 957.
payment of commission, 957.
extra work by agents, when payment for recoverable, 958.
rights of shipbrokers to commission, 958.
policy brokers, 959.
travellers for orders, 959.
house and estate agents and auctioneers, 959.
right of agent to be reimbursed on revocation of authority, 960.
lien of factors and brokers, 961.
of packers, 962.

AGENCY—continued.
lien of insurance brokers, 962.
of solicitors, 963.
of shipmasters, 966.
of ship's husband, 966.
of shipwrights, 967.
indemnification of agents, 967.
breach of warranty of authority by agent, 968.
damages for breach of warranty, 968.
negligence of bank managers, 969.

AGENT. See also AGENCY.
signature by, under Statute of Frauds, 41.
authority of, to make deed, 43.
purchase for undisclosed principal, 132.
payment of interest by, 218.
to, 219.
contracts with, 321.
rights of principals upon, 321.
principals contracting as agents, 322.
concealment of agency, 322.
rights of undisclosed principals, 322, 326.
proof of agency, where contract in writing, 324, 326.
purchases in name of one of several joint adventurers, 324 recovery of money of principal paid away by agent, 325.
rights of principals upon deeds made by agents, 325.
liabilities of undisclosed principals on simple contracts, 322, 326.
authority of agent to sign writings for principal, 41, 43, 327.
special authority, 329.
contracts by infant agents, 330.
subsequent ratification by principal, 330.
limitation of authority, 332.
revocation of authority, 945.
publication of, 333.
misrepresentation and fraudulent concealment by agents, 126, 127, 131, 333.
contract by agent acting in his own interest, 334.
liability of principals on contracts under seal, 334.
warranties by agents, 334.
representations not amounting to warranty, 336.
representations forming no part of contract with principal, 336.
purchases by servant in name of master, 337.
authority of foremen and managers, 338.
of telegraph clerks, 339.
of shipmasters, 339.
limitation of, 339.
of ship's husband, 343.
of stockbrokers, 343.
of shipbrokers, 343.
of counsel, 343.
of solicitors, 344.
rights of agents on simple contracts, 344.
factors, auctioneers, and policy brokers, 345.
repudiation of contract by principal, 346.
pretended assumption of agency, 346.
on contracts under seal, 346.
liabilities of agents on simple contracts, 347, 468.
contracts on behalf of foreign principals, 348.
undisclosed agencies, 348.
oral evidence of, 348.
notoriety of agency, 350.

AGENT—continued.
contracts with—continued.
liabilities of agents on simple contracts—continued.
public officers, 350.
pretended agencies, 351.
irresponsible principals, 353.
government agents, 353.
money received by agent for principal, 354.
money wrongfully and illegally received by agent, 355.
receipt of money by agents to be paid over to stranger, 355.
liabilities of agent on contracts under seal, 315, 356.
exemption of public officers, 356.
execution of deeds by agents not rendering them personally liable, 357.
rights of partners upon contracts with third parties, 357.
See PARTNERSHIP.
of joint-stock companies, 381.
frauds by, 127.
fraudulent concealment by principal, 127.
constructive frauds by, 131.
confidential, 131, 132.
payments through, 159, 161.
payment to agent in ordinary course of business, 159.
payments and settlements between principal and agent, 162, 468.
payment by and to, extending period of limitation, 218, 219.
acceptance of goods by servant, 532.
by forwarding agent, 537.
warranties by, on sale of goods, 554.
demises by, 655.
distress by, 779.
pledges by mercantile agent, 822.
deposit by, with bankers, 853.
indemnification of, by principal, 967.
damages for breach of warranty of authority by, 968.
of charterers, authority of, 980.
authority of servants of railway company, to bind by special contract, 1050.
assurance of life by, 1227.
bills of exchange by, 349, 1301, 1303.
promissory notes by, 1302.
AGISTERS,
of cattle, liabilities of, 862, 866.
AGREEMENT,
to sell goods, 28, 527.
requisites of. See CONTRACT—CONSIDERATION.
stamp on, 1360.
exemptions, 1362.
for lease, 22, 43, 651.
stamp on, 1356.
to surrender lease, 22, 716.
stamp on, 1358.
for transfer of shares, 640.
for remuneration of solicitors, 894.
AGRICULTURAL HOLDINGS ACT,
customs under, implied annexed by contract, 69.
agreement in contravention of, as to compensation, 90.
fixtures under, 698.
crops under, 740.
distress for rent under, 774.
exemption of live stock and machinery, 788.

AGRICULTURAL USAGES. See CUSTOM.

ALIEN AMI,
contracts with, legality of, 437.
can hold real and personal property, 437.

ALIEN ENEMI,
contracts with, 103, 437.

ALLOTMENT,
of shares, when voidable, 137.
withdrawal of application for shares before, 15.
letters of, title to, 638.

ALTERATION OF CONTRACTS,
release by, 189.
immaterial, 190.
of deeds after execution, 189, 191.
filling up of blanks, 191.
evidence to explain, 191.
cancellation by mistake, 191.
of principal obligation discharging surety, 1092
of marine policies, 1134.
of bills and notes, 1294, 1295.
re-stamping altered contracts, 1335.

ALTERATIONS IN PROPERTY,
authentication of contract to make, 25.
after sale and before transfer, 502.
effect on fire insurance of, increasing risk, 1215.
notice of, 1215.

ALTERNATIVE STIPULATIONS,
nature of, 139.

AMBASSADOR,
privilege of, from actions, 439.
exemption of, from distress, 791.

AMBIGUITY, latent, 46.
patent, 47.
See INTERPRETATION.

ANCESTOR,
liabilities of heir-at-law upon covenants of, 241.

ANCHORS,
illegal sale of, exceeding certain weight, unless proved, 111.
sale of, warranty of proof implied, 112.

ANIMALS,
carriage of live, under special contract, 1022.

ANNUITY,
assignment of, 239.
specific performance of agreement for, 294.
stamp duty on grant of, 1344.

APARTMENTS. See FURNISHED HOUSES.

APPORTIONMENT,
of periodical payments, 170.
of rent and conditions on severance of reversion, 681.
of work, for ascertaining remuneration, 876.

APPRAISEMENT,
after distress, 800, 802.

APPRENTICESHIP,
illegal ante-dating of articles of, 85.
contract of, nature of, 937.
when to be in writing, 43, 937.
may be made with corporation as master, 938.
rights and liabilities of parties to, 938.
liability of master for fraud of apprentice, 335.
of covenantors for misconduct of apprentice, 938.
infant apprentice, not liable on covenant to serve, 405.
on contract to accept professional engagement, 405.
provisions of, to be for benefit of apprentice, 938.
when wages may be agreed to be suspended, 939.
implied stipulation as to place of performance, 939.
premium paid under, not apportionable, 137.
not recoverable on death of master, 137, 940.
dissolution of, 939.
misconduct of apprentice, 939.
in case of infant apprentice, 939.
when master bound to refund portion of premium on, 939.
by order of justices, 940.
damages for loss of apprentice's services, 941.
stamp on, 937 note (i), 1358.
decoying apprentice away, implied promise to pay for services, 453.

APPROPRIATION,
of payments, generally, 164.
by debtor, 165.
by creditor, 165.
separate accounts and one entire running account, 166.
of goods, to use of purchaser, 587.
of funds of life assurance companies, 1234.
specific, of securities, 1299.

APPROVAL,
receipt of goods on, not amounting to acceptance, 534.
delivery of goods on, when property passes to buyer, 580.
rule for ascertaining, 580.

APPURTENANCES,
what are, 656.

ARBITRATION,
agreement to submit disputes to, 14, 82.

ARBITRATOR,
effect of award of, 194.
office of, of honorary character, 873.
duty of, to exercise reasonable care and skill, 899.
difference between, and valuer, 899.
occupies a judicial position, 899.

ARCHITECT,
fraud of, agreement not to raise question of, 82.
approval of, payment for work dependent on, 878.
biassed and corrupt decisions of, relief against, 878, 879.
certificate of, 878.
action for wrongfully withholding, 879.
plans of, property in, 879.
no claim for remuneration, when negligent, 890.

ARMY,
sale of commissions in, prohibited by statute, 91, note (k).

ART,
oral evidence to explain terms of, 71.

ARTICLES OF ASSOCIATION,
contracts in violation of, 381.

ARTIFICERS,
lien of, 887.
See WORK AND SERVICES.

ASSENT,
of parties to contracts, 14.
conditional, admissibility of oral evidence of, 71.
of husband to wife's contracts, 425.

ASSETS,
administration of, 249.
rights of personal representative in, 252.

ASSIGNEES,
of lessee, liability of, on covenants, 227.

ASSIGNMENT,
in fraud of creditors, 85, 87, 88.
of income of office, 91, 92.
of personal contracts, 221.
of debts and choses in action under Judicature Act, 222.
See CHOSE IN ACTION.
effect of subsequent bankruptcy, 269.
of policies of life assurance, 222, 1232.
marine insurance, 222, 1114.
by indorsement or in customary manner, 1114.
of bonds, 222.
of bills of lading, 222.
of exchange, 222.
of future calls, 380.
what is an assignment, 224.
See CHOSE IN ACTION.
notice of assignment, 225.
of chose in action, may be made foundation of new contract, 227.
of covenants, 227.
See COVENANTS RUNNING WITH THE LAND.
of rents, 239.
of annuities, 239.
of term, liability of personal representative after, 248.
of contract to purchase land, 520.
covenant not to assign demised premises, 668.
damages for breach of, 751.
of reversion, 676.
extinguishing right to distrain, 681.
of lease, 668, 669, 749.
of lease after forfeiture, 715.
of securities by creditor to surety as indemnification, 1102.
stamps on,
of mortgage, 1346.
of lease, 1358.
of indentures of apprenticeship, 1358.
See BANKRUPTCY—BILL OF SALE—COVENANTS RUNNING WITH THE LAND—DEATH—NOVATION AND SUBSTITUTION.

ASSIGNMENT FOR BENEFIT OF CREDITORS,
effect of, 187.
See COMPOSITION DEED.

ASSUMPTION,
of agency, liability for, 346.

ASSURANCE. See FIRE INSURANCE—LIFE INSURANCE—MARINE INSURANCE.

ATTESTED COPIES,
stamp duty on, 1339.

ATTORNEY. See SOLICITORS—AGENT.

ATTORNMENT,
of warehouse-keeper to holder of delivery order, 536.
by mortgagor to mortgagee, 754.
by tenant to mortgagee, 756.

AUCTION,
sale of land by, 17, 476.
advertisement of, effect of, 13.
biddings at, 17, 476.
puffers, 476.
without reserve, 477.
conditions and particulars, 478, 479.
misdescription of thing sold, effect of, 494, 495.
sale of goods by, 632.
at reserved price, 633.

AUCTIONEER,
signature by, as agent, 42.
right of, on sales made by him, 345.
authority of, as agent for both vendor and purchaser, 478.
deposit in the hands of, 509.
liability of, for deposit, 849.
right of, to commission, 959, 960.
See AGENT—STAKEHOLDER.

AUTHENTICATION,
of contracts under seal, 18.
See DEED.
of simple contracts, 22.
when necessary, 22, 23.
by signed writing, 22, 529.
interests in land, 22—28.
of executory contracts for sale of goods, 28, 529.
for sale of fixtures, 28, 633.
for sale of shares, 28, 29.
of promises by executors, 29.
of promises to answer for debt of another, 29, 1080.
of agreements in consideration of marriage, 33.
not to be performed within a year, 34.
requisites of memorandum, 36.
signature, 39.
by agents, 41.
of acknowledgments to bar Statute of Limitations, 211.
of executory promises by deed, 42.
of leases, 42.
of authority of agent to make deeds, 43.
of promises made by infants, 44, 405, 411.
of contracts of service, 917.
of guarantees, 1080.
of contract of marriage, 1312.

AUTHORITY,
of agent to make deeds, 43.
contracts, 327, 329.
revocation of, 945.
when irrevocable, 946.
coupled with an interest, 946.
breach of warranty of, 968.
damages recoverable, 968.
stamp on written evidence of, not required, 1372.

AVERAGE,
general, in cases of carriers by sea, 1008.
in cases of insurance, 1195, 1196.
See GENERAL AVERAGE.

AVOIDANCE OF CONTRACTS. See ILLEGAL CONTRACTS. effect of, where contract immoral, 75.
illegal, 122.
on ground of fraud and unfair dealing, 124.
false representations, 126.
fraudulent concealment, 126.
fraud by means of agents, 127.
fraudulent misrepresentations by directors, 127.
fraudulent misreading of deed, 129.
determination of power, 130.
effect of fraud, 129.
on ground of duress, 131.
of mistake, 133.
of failure of consideration, 136.
rule where failure partial only, 137.
of irregular allotment of shares, 137.
of payment, 167.
made during infancy, 411.
of sales of land, for fraudulent concealment, 525.
of sales of goods, 572.
on ground of fraudulent misrepresentation, 572.
made through third party, 573.
of fraudulent breach of warranty, 574.
of fraudulent use of trade mark, 574.
of fraudulent concealment, 575.
on sale with all faults, 577.
election of purchaser to avoid, 578.
of leases, 707, 749.
provisoes for re-entry, 709, 710.
of contracts for works and services, 874.
of policies of sea insurance, 1157, 1159.
of bills and notes for want of consideration, 1258.
for unauthorised alterations, 1294.
of promises of marriage, 1315.
See ILLEGAL CONTRACTS—FRAUD.

AWARD. See ARBITRATION.
effect of, 194.

BAIL BOND,
assignment of, 222.
See BOND.

BAILEES,
of goods, position of, 310.
purchase of goods by, acceptance and receipt where, 534.
loss of goods by theft or negligence of servants of, 864.
detention of chattels by, under claim of lien, 902.

BAILEES—continued.
lien of, right of, 902.
not exerciseable, where at variance with terms of bailment, 904.
parties against whom lien may be claimed, 905.
general, definition of, 906.
notice that goods will be held subject to, 906.
by custom of trade, 908.
extinguishment of, by abandonment of possession, 908.
by tender of debt, 910.
statutory power of sale in discharge of, 909.
to wharfingers or warehouse owners, 909.
insurance by, against fire, 1220.

BAILMENT FOR HIRE—(Letting of Chattels).
nature and definition of, 805.
warranty as to seaworthiness of ship, 806.
implied as to furniture let out for immediate use, 806.
as to horse let out for riding, 806.
duties of hirers of chattels, 807.
use of chattels let to hire, 807.
losses from negligence, 807.
losses from piracy, robbery, disease, and accident, 807.
determination of bailment, 808.
loans of money to be used for hire, 808.
moneylenders, 809.
See Moneylenders. of money in hands of bankers, 852.
warehousing chattels for reward, 864.
negligence of depositary, 865.
loss of chattels by wharfinger, 865.
passengers' luggage in cloak-rooms, 865.
of materials to workmen, 899.
under special contract, 902.
transfer of, 910.
joint and separate rights of action, 913.
re-delivery of materials furnished by employer, 913.
liability for delivery to wrong person, 913.
claims against bailees for damages, 914.
See Bailment without Reward—Carriers — Common Carriers—Warehousemen.

BAILMENT WITHOUT REWARD,
gratuitous loans, 810.
liability of borrower, 810.
care to be taken by borrower, 810.
extent of, for negligence and misconduct, 811, 812.
losses from ordinary casualties, 812.
misuse by borrower, 812.
want of skill, 813.
restoration of thing borrowed, or its equivalent, 813.
loss by robbery, fire or inevitable accident, 813.
liability of lender, 814.
implied obligations and duties of lender, 814.
loans to one of several partners, 359, 814.
to registered companies, 815.
damages in action for not replacing stock, 815.
measure of, 815, 816.
deposit or simple bailment, 778.
definition of, 844.
requisites of, 844.
executory and executed promises, 844.
liabilities of depositary, 844.
negligent keeping, 845.
ordinary casualties, 845.

BAILMENT WITHOUT REWARD—continued.
deposit or simple bailment—continued.
liabilities of depositary—continued.
carelessness on part of depositor in selecting a person notoriously unfit to be trusted, 845.
theft by servant of depositary, 846.
use and enjoyment by depositary of subject-matter of deposit, 846.
transfer of deposit to stranger, 847.
remedy of depositor, 847.
restoration of deposit, 847.
joint and several deposits, 848.
transfers of subject-matter of bailment, 848.
adverse claimants, 848.
eviction by title paramount, 848.
stakes in hands of stakeholders to abide event of lawful game, 849.
power of depositary to compel rival claimants to establish their title by interpleader, 850.
liabilities of depositary holding possession wrongfully, 850.
liabilities from taking possession of goods by finding, 850.
liabilities of depositor, 850.
lien of depositary, 850.
deposit of money with one of several partners, 850.
liability of firm for loss, 851.
for fraudulent acts of one partner, 851.
deposit of money with bankers, 852.
nature of transaction, 852.
Statute of Limitations when bar to recovery of, 852.
relation between customer and banker, 853.
deposit of bills, notes, and securities in hands of bankers, 853.
lien of bankers on securities, for overdrawn account, 853.
receipt given for bank-notes as cash, effect of, 853.
receipt of cheques by bankers on account of customers, 853.
duty of bankers to honour customers' drafts, 854.
payment of cheques, 854.
joint accounts and joint deposits with bankers, 855.
deposits and accounts with bankers in names of trustees, agents, and receivers, 855.
separate accounts opened by same person in different capacities, 856.
loss of trust money in hands of bankers, 856.
payment of forged cheques, drafts and orders on bankers, 857.
payment by bankers under suspicious circumstances, 857.
duty of bankers as to torn cheques, 857.
forgery facilitated by negligence of customer, 857, 858.
negligence in dealing with cheque amounting to estoppel, 858.
forged indorsements, 858.
cheques paid by mistake, 859.
payment of cheques at branch banks, 859.
position of branch banks, 859.
lien of bankers, 860.
damages for non-payment of cheques by bankers, 860.
mandate or gratuitous commission, 860.
non-feasance and misfeasance, when action lies for, 860.
bailment of money and chattels to be carried gratuitously, 861.
loss or damage from negligence, 861.

BAILMENT WITHOUT REWARD—continued.
mandate or gratuitous commission—continued.
bailments of chattels to be mended gratuitously, 861.
employment of unskilful persons, 861.
custody and safekeeping of chattel, liability for, 862.
bailment of money for investment, 862.
bailments of living animals, 862.
negligent management, liability for, 862, 863.
bailments of perishable commodities, 863.
use of subject-matter of mandate, 863.
theft and negligence by servants of bailee, 864.
expenses in connection with commission, implied authority to incur, 864.

BAILORS,
liability of, for negligence, 901.
for fraudulent concealment of dangerous nature of articles bailed, 901.

BANK HOLIDAY,
performance of contract on, postponement of, 142.

BANK NOTE,
payment with stolen, when valid, 156.
good tender, for sums above 5*l.*, 167.
not, when, 167.
deposit of, with banker, 853.
when exempt from stamp duty, 1379.
See BILL OF EXCHANGE.

BANKERS,
contracts with, 309, 391.
payment between bankers and their customers, 164.
deposit of money with, 853.
deposit of bills and securities with, 853.
receipt of cheques by, 853.
general duties and liabilities of, 854.
payment of cheques, 854.
joint accounts and joint deposits, 855.
deposits and accounts in name of trustees, agents, and receivers, 855.
separate accounts in different capacities, 856.
loss of trust money, 856.
payment by, of forged cheques, drafts, and orders, 857, 858.
cheques paid by mistake, 859.
payment of cheques at branch banks, 859.
lien of, 860, 1258.
for overdrawn account, 853.
damages against, for non-payment of cheques, 860.
negligence of, 896.
bank managers, 969.
limitation of actions, for deposit of money with, 852.
See BAILMENT WITHOUT REWARD.

BANKERS' DRAFTS. See CHEQUE.

BANKING COMPANIES,
joint-stock, executory contracts for sale of shares in, 639.

BANKING CO-PARTNERSHIPS,
contracts with, 391.
under 7 Geo. IV. c. 46...392.
See COUNTRY BANKERS ACT.

BANKRUPT,
contracts with, 272, 273, 434.
with trustee, 435.
contribution between trustees in, 435.

BANKRUPT—continued.
payment to, validity of, 164.
rights of, 272, 274.
See BANKRUPTCY.

BANKRUPTCY. See INSOLVENCY.
contracts in contravention of Bankruptcy Acts, 84.
fraud on creditors, 87.
release by composition, 177, 186, 198.
See COMPOSITION.
discharge of bankrupt from debts and causes of action, 195—197.
operation of payment of dividend, 197.
composition with creditors, 198.
effect of discharge on debts contracted abroad, 199.
effect of receiving order, 267.
transfer of executory contracts, to trustee, 269.
equitable interests not vesting in trustee, 269.
money in hands of bankrupt clothed with specific trust, 270.
sale of bankrupt's book-debts, goodwill, &c., 271.
contracts in which bankrupt is interested in right of his wife, 271.
contracts made with bankrupt during, 272.
rights of undischarged bankrupt, 274.
disclaimer by trustee, 274.
liability of trustee upon bankrupt's covenants and executory contracts, 275.
set off in, 275.
effect of annulling adjudication, 276.
specific performance of sale of debts under, 294.
of married woman, effect of, 420.
act of, revoking licence to distrain, 831.
of principal, does not discharge surety, 1104.

BANKRUPTCY ACTS,
contracts in contravention of, 84.
See ILLEGAL CONTRACTS.

BANNS,
publication of, in false name, effect of, 1321.

BARGAIN AND SALE. See SALE.

BARON AND FEME. See MARRIED WOMEN.

BARRATRY,
meaning of, 1182.
perils of sea include, 1175.
insurance against, 1183.
deviation amounting to, 1170, 1183.

BARRISTERS,
authority of, in conduct of cause, 343.
honorary character of services of, 873.
negligence of, 895.
stamp duty on receipt for fees, 1386.

BEER,
contracts to buy from one brewer, breach of, 103.

BELLRINGING,
injunction to restrain, in breach of covenant, 301, 302.

BENEFICES,
purchase of, simoniacal contract, 93.
bonds for resigning, void, 94.
illegal charges upon, 94.

BENEFIT BUILDING SOCIETIES,
contracts with, 402.

BETROTHMENT,
contracts of, 1312.
authentication of, 1312.
performance of, 1313.
time of performance, 1313.
excuses for non-performance of, 1313.
conditional, validity of, 1314.
avoidance of, by misrepresentation and deceit, 1314.
by alteration of condition of either party, 1315.
abandonment of, 1315.
damages for breach of, 1315.
See PROMISE OF MARRIAGE.

BETTING. See GAMING CONTRACTS.

BETTING-HOUSE KEEPERS,
money deposited as bets with, recovery of, 107.

BIDDINGS AT AUCTIONS. See AUCTIONS.
sale by, 17.
when complete, 17.

BILATERAL CONTRACTS,
nature of, 1, 2, 13.
contracts of sale rank as, 474.

BILL OF EXCHANGE,
foreign law governing, 60—63.
evidence to explain, 74.
given to secure money lost at or lent for play, 108.
recovery of money paid upon forged, 136, 137.
payment by, 153.
acceptance of renewed, 154.
actions for debts secured by dishonoured, 155.
renunciation by parol of holder's claim on, 175.
accord and satisfaction by, 183, 184, 186.
part payment by, taking debt out of Statute of Limitations, 216.
made by agent, 349, 1300, 1301, 1302.
partner, in fraud of partnership, 362.
to secure private debt, 363.
railway company, 387.
infant, 412.
married woman, 424.
payment of rent by, suspending right to distrain, 777.
deposit of, with banker, effect of, 853.
negotiable instrument, 1241.
nature of, 1241.
definition of, 1241, 1242.
form of, 1243.
when payable, 1244.
dating of, 1245.
sum payable, 1245.
transfer and negotiability of, 1246, 1247.
inchoate bills, 1249.
period within which to be completed, 1249.
negotiation to party already liable thereon, 1250.
payment in due course, 1250.
restrictive indorsements, 1251.
rights of indorsee under, 1251.
special indorsements, 1251.
partial indorsements, 1252.

BILL OF EXCHANGE—continued.
completion of contract by delivery, 1252.
holder in due course, 1255.
intermediate infirmities of title, 1255.
rights of holder, 1256.
when holder bound to prove he gave value for bill, 1256.
what is valuable consideration, 1257.
proof of want of consideration, 1258.
fraudulent transfers and indorsements, 1258
forged indorsements, 793, 1259.
accommodation bill, 1260.
indorsement of bills overdue, 1260.
acceptance of, 1261.
general or qualified acceptances, 1261.
presentment for acceptance, 1261.
when necessary, 1262.
rules as to, 1262.
excuses for non-presentment, 1263.
non-acceptance after customary time, 1263.
qualified acceptances, 1262, 1263.
rights of parties to, 1264.
in case of foreign bill, 1264.
protest as to non-accepted balance, 1264.
notice of, effect of, 1264.
how effected, 1264.
liability of acceptor, 1264.
failure of consideration, 1264.
liability of drawer and indorser, 1266.
giving time for payment, 1267.
presentment for payment, 1268.
non-presentment when excused, 1269.
days of grace, 1271.
calculation of time of, 1171.
notice of dishonour, 1272.
rules as to, 1273.
what amounts to, 1275.
posting the notice, 1275.
foreign bill, 1276.
protest, 1276.
noting, 1276, 1277.
re-exchange, 1276.
proof of, 1278.
excuses for delay in giving, 1278.
dispensation of, 1278.
transfer by delivery without indorsement, 1280.
bills taken up supra protest, 1281.
retiring of bills by acceptors at maturity, 1282.
renunciation of bill, 1283.
express waiver, 1283.
rule as to sets, 1283.
promissory notes, 1284.
See PROMISSORY NOTE.
bills and notes for payment of sums under 1*l.*, 1153.
bankers' cheques, 1289.
See CHEQUE.
cancellation of, 1158.
alteration, bills avoiding contract, 1294.
material alterations, 1294, 1295.
immaterial alterations, 1295, 1296.
loss of bills and notes, 1298.
damages in action on, 1298.
for not meeting bill at maturity, 1299 specific appropriation of securities, 1299.
lien of bill-holder on cargo, 1300 note (n).

BILL OF EXCHANGE—continued.
parties to, capacity and authority of, 1300.
signature essential to liability, 1301.
forged or unauthorised, 1301.
by procuration, operation of, 1301.
by stranger, liability of, as indorser, 1301.
general principles affecting, 1302.
liability of agents accepting bills, 349, 1301, 1302.
acceptance by partners, 362, 1303, 1304.
in fraud of firm, 362.
by partner in his own name, 1304.
by dormant partner, 1305.
by trustees or directors of co-partnerships, 1306.
by corporations, 1306.
by registered companies, 1306.
conversion of, 1308.
lost or stolen negotiable instruments, 1308, 1309.
stamp duty on, 1374, 1378.
what are within Stamp Acts, 1375, 1378.

BILL OF LADING,
assignment of, 222.
acceptance of, of goods on board ship in transitu, 536.
delivery under, transfer by, 589.
shipment and carriage of goods under, 589, 980, 1034.
indorsement of, effect of, 590, 591.
liability for freight resulting from acceptance of, 999.
transfer of, 1013, 1014.
stamp on, 1379.
See DEMURRAGE—STOPPAGE IN TRANSITU.

BOARD AND LODGING. See LODGING-HOUSE KEEPERS. rights and liabilities in respect of contracts for, 761.

BONDS,
nature and requisites of, 19, 53.
foreign, determination of legal effect of, 61.
right of executor to sue on, 245.
recovery of money paid upon forged bonds, 466.
assignable, 222.
transfer of, by death, 245.
penal obligations, 285.
to secure faithful services, 1084.
to partnership and associations, 1087.
by partners, 1105.
by one partner in fraud of co-partnership, 362.
to marry, 1311.
replevin, assignment of, 222.
stamp duty on, 1346.
See PENALTIES.

BOOK DEBTS,
of bankrupt, power of trustee to sell, 271.

BOROUGH COUNCILS,
Metropolitan, contracts with, 398.

BORROWING AND LENDING,
for gaming purposes, not recoverable, 108.
nature and effect of contract of, 808, 809, 810.
See BAILMENT WITHOUT REWARD—MONEYLENDERS.

BOTTOMRY BOND,
foreign bond, law governing validity of, 63.
nature and effect of, 834, 1144.
maritime lien created by, 835.

BOTTOMRY BOND—continued.
sea risk essential to, 835.
interest chargeable on, 835.
repayment of, depends on safe arrival, 835.
discharge of, by payment or total loss, 835.
constructive total loss is not, 835.
extent of authority of master to bind owner by, 835.
governed by law of the flag, 835, 836.
necessity for, to be shown, 836, 839.
owners, if possible, to be communicated with, 836.
as collateral security for bills of exchange for repairs and necessaries, 837.
doctrine of constructive total loss not applicable to, 837.
priority of bond-holder where ship sold, 837.
when British consul in foreign port can hypothecate by, 837.
judgment in rem takes priority of, 838.
priority of maritime lien, in case of several bonds, 838.
hypothecation of freight and cargo by, 838.
abandonment of ship and freight, not allowed, 839.
sed secus by French law, 839.
insurable interest of lender of money on, 1110, 1144.
See also MARITIME LIEN.

BOUGHT AND SOLD NOTES,
nature and effect of, 531.
signature of, by brokers, 42, 531.
discrepancies between, and entry in broker's books, 531.
stamp on, 1351.

BOUNDARIES,
agreements concerning, when an interest in land, 26.
of estate, duty of tenants to preserve, 693.

BREACH,
of contract. See CONTRACT.
of covenant. See COVENANT.
of promise of marriage. See PROMISE OF MARRIAGE.
of warranty. See WARRANTY.

BREWERS,
contract by publican to buy beer of one brewer, breach of, 103.

BRIBERY. See ILLEGAL CONTRACTS.

BRIDGES,
dangerous, liability of railway company for, 1018, 1066.

BROKERAGE,
marriage contracts, illegality of, 1310.

BROKERS,
rights of undisclosed principal, 323.
not affected by Stock Exchange custom, 323.
authority of, 343.
right of action of, for price of goods sold by them, 345.
of policy brokers on policy, 345.
sales by, 531.
bought and sold notes, 531.
liability of, by custom of trade, 532.
on stock exchange, 641.
practice on Stock Exchange as to sales, 641, 642.
rules as to delivery of stock, 643.

BROKERS—continued.
agency of. See AGENCY.
rights and liabilities of, as between themselves and their principals, 947, 948.
insurance brokers, 949.
share brokers, 950.
stock brokers, 950.
ship brokers, authority of, 343.
commission of, 958.
policy brokers, commission of, 959.
lien of, 961—963.
See BOUGHT AND SOLD NOTES.

BUGS,
nuisance of, rendering houses uninhabitable, 673.
in case of unfurnished house, 673.
in case of furnished apartments, 760.

BUILDING CONTRACTS,
specific performance. See SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE.
nature and effect of, 876.
conditions precedent, 877.
approval of work before payment, 877.
architect's certificate of approval, 878.
See CERTIFICATE OF APPROVAL.
unfinished work taken possession of by employer, effect of, 879.
substantial performance by contractors, 880, 881.
abatement of contract price, effect of, 882.
non-performance by time specified, 883.
penalties for, 883.
penalties to secure performance, 884.
destruction of work before payment, party to bear loss, 884.
deviations from contract, recovery of extras, 885.
prevention of performance, 887, 914.
liabilities of contractor for negligence and want of skill, 889.
work rendered useless by negligence of workmen, 889.
damages for prevention of performance, 914.
See WORK AND SERVICES.

BUILDING SOCIETIES. See BENEFIT BUILDING SOCIETIES.

BURGLARY,
insurance against, 1239.

BUSHES,
tenant's right of property in, 707.

BUYING AND SELLING. See SALE.

BYGONE SERVICES,
not constituting valid consideration for a promise, 7.
rendered at previous request of promisor, 7, 8.

CALLS,
assignment of future, invalid, 380.
on shareholders, payment of, as between vendor and purchaser, 644.
mandamus to public companies to make, 440.
liability of mortgagee when registered, 841.

CANAL ACT. See COMMON CARRIERS.

CANCELLATION,
of contracts, by mistake, 191.
of bills and notes, 191, 1293.
of leases, effect of, 749.
of adhesive stamps, 1335.

CAPTURE,
definition of, 1178.
loss by, 1179, 1180, 1181.
abandonment by insured on, 1193.

CARGO,
hypothecation of, by master, when allowed, 838.
complete, under charter-party, what is, 978.

CARRIAGE OF MERCHANDISE,
contracts for, nature of, 969, 970.
on high seas, 970.
on land, 1015.
See CARRIERS BY WATER—CHARTER-PARTIES—CARRIERS BY LAND—COMMON CARRIER.

CARRIERS,
delivery of goods to, by vendor, 537, 602, 603.
delivery under bill of lading, 536.
deterioration to goods in transit, 605.
stoppage in transitu, 612.
See STOPPAGE IN TRANSITU.
carriage of passengers, 1015.
See CARRIERS BY LAND—CARRIERS BY WATER—COMMON CARRIER.

CARRIERS BY LAND,
carriage of passengers and merchandise by, duty of, 1015, 1016.
injuries to passengers and goods, 1015.
railway accident, primâ facie evidence of negligence, 1018.
loss of goods or money by the way, 1019.

CARRIERS BY WATER,
contracts made abroad, interpretation of, 63.
contracts for carriage of merchandise, 969.
contracts of affreightment, 970.
charter-parties, 970.
See CHARTER-PARTY.
shipment and carriage of merchandise under bills of lading, 980.
bill of lading, nature of, 980.
exceptions in, 980.
duties of master before signing, 980, 981.
delivery on board, what amounts to, 981.
statements in, when conclusive, 981.
as to condition of goods shipped, 981.
as to quantity shipped, 981.
exoneration of master for misrepresentation, 981.
creating estoppel, as against shipowner, 981.
freight payable on delivery under, 982.
consignee no right to deduct from, for goods not shipped, 982.
countermand of shipment, 982.
re-delivery of goods to consignor, 982.

CARRIERS BY WATER—continued.
shipment and carriage—continued.
loss of, or damage to, goods by the way, 982.
implied promise to carry safely, 982, 984.
limitation of liability by special contract, 990, 993.
loss by act of God, dangers and accidents of the seas, rivers, and navigation, 986, 987.
losses occasioned by negligence or misconduct, 987.
proof of loss by negligence and not by peril of the sea, 989.
loss by fire, 990.
limitation of liability of shipowner by statute, 990.
losses occasioned by negligence of licensed pilots, 991.
delivery of goods by shipowners, 992.
losses on board lighters conveying goods from ship to shore, 993.
payment of freight or hire, 993.
calculation of freight, 996.
payment pro ratâ, 997.
time freight, 997.
shipowner's lien for freight, 998.
payment of freight by consignee, 998.
liability for freight resulting from acceptance of goods under bills of lading, 999.
payments in lieu of freight extinguishing right of lien, 1002.
payment of demurrage on charter-parties and bills of lading, 1003.
primage and average, 1008.
general average and contribution, 1008.
transfer of bills of lading, 1013.
damages for breach of charter-parties, 1014.
restrictions on carriage of dangerous goods, 1014.
under Merchant Shipping Act, 1014.
See COMMON CARRIER—RAILWAY CARRIERS—CHARTER-PARTY.

CARRIERS WITHOUT REWARD. of money and goods, liability for loss or damage by negligence, 861.

CATTLE,
agistment of, 862.
loss of, by agisters, 866.

CAUSE OF ACTION,
release of, ex contractû, 174.
when time of limitation of, begins to run, 205, 206.

CAVEAT EMPTOR,
doctrine of, when applicable in sales of goods, 565, 576.
does not apply where buyer has no opportunity of inspection, 568, 576.

CERTIFICATE OF APPROVAL,
of work by architect, 878.
wrongful withholding of, relief against, 878.
action for, 879.

CERTIFICATE OF STOCK,
pledge of, 842.
stamp on, 1366.
foreign, 1349.

CERTIFIED COPIES,
stamp on, 1339.

CHAIN-CABLES,
illegal sale of, exceeding certain weight, unless proved, 111.
sale of, warranty of proof implied, 112.

CHAMPERTY,
what constitutes, 80.
agreement involving, is void, 80, 81.
agreement by solicitor amounting to, 80.
See MAINTENANCE.

CHARACTER,
servants', no legal obligation on master to give, 941.

CHARITY COMMITTEE,
personal liability of, 395.

CHARTER-PARTY,
foreign, interpretation of, 63.
specific performance of, not decreed, 296.
and bill of lading, as between charterer and shipowner, 591.
nature and effect of, 970.
customary stipulations, 970.
construed by law of place where made, 971.
operating as demise of ship, 341, 616, 971.
as contract to carry, 341, 616, 970.
parties to, 971.
where there is a demise of ship, 616, 972.
where a contract for carriage, 972.
general ship, 972.
master of ship more than mere agent, 973.
performance of, 973.
commencement of voyage, 973, 974.
conditions precedent to shipowner's liability, 973.
naming by charterer of safe port, 973.
loading at ship's risk, 973.
conditions precedent to freighter's liability, 974, 976.
arrival at or departure on named day, 973.
to load in regular turn, 974.
where alternative modes of performance, 974.
ship to be reasonably fit, 974.
steamships carrying cargo, 974, 975.
what constitutes seaworthiness, 975.
representations in, 975.
amounting to description and not warranty, 975.
in respect of tonnage, 975.
warranted as A1...975.
"now at sea," 975.
as to steam power, 975.
as to ship's carrying capacity, 976.
other warranties, 976.
substantial performance of conditions precedent, 976.
time of performance, 976.
reasonable time, 977, 978.
unusual circumstances, 977.
no action where neither party ready, 977.
"usual dispatch of port," 977.
time of essence of contract, 977.
See TIME OF PERFORMANCE.
mode of performance, 978.
distinction between neglect to load and failure to provide cargo, 978.
complete cargo, what constitutes, 978.

CHARTER-PARTY—continued.
mode of performance—continued.
stowage of cargo by stevedore, 978, 979.
impossibility of performance, 979.
authority of agent of charterer, 980.
countermand of shipment, 982.
re-delivery of goods to consignor, 982.
expenses of re-shipment, 982.
loss or damage of goods by the way, 982.
master generally bound to forward the cargo, 983.
reasonable time allowed for trans-shipment, 983.
where unable to communicate with owner, 983.
must not sell without leave, 983.
duty of master to shipowner, 983.
"danger of the seas"—rats, 984, 988.
implied promise to carry safely, 982, 984.
loss by theft, &c., 984.
limitation of liability by special contract, 985.
for leakage or breakage, 985.
for negligence of pilot, 986.
for loss of passenger's luggage, 986.
for loss by thieves, 986.
for negligence of master and crew, 986.
"act of God and King's enemies, 986.
"dangers of the seas," what are, 987, 989.
collision, 988.
loss by fire, 990.
limitation of shipowner's liability by statute, 990.
not extended to lighters, 993.
negligence and misconduct, 988, 989.
proof and negligence, 989.
licensed pilots, 991.
exemption of shipowner by statute, 991.
delivery of goods by shipowners from ship to shore, 992, 993.
expenses after goods delivered over ship's rail, 993.
loss of goods on board lighters, 991, 993.
payment of freight or hire, 993.
where demise of ship, 993.
where contract of carriage, 994.
goods to be delivered, 994.
work to be performed, 994.
unless special contract, 994.
where part of cargo sold for repairs, 994.
freight paid in advance, 995.
where hire to cease during detention, 995.
unforeseen or inevitable accident, 995.
contract for use of entire ship, 995.
damage by peril of seas, &c., 995.
fault of master and crew, 995.
paying freight for full cargo, 995, 996.
calculation of freight, 996.
payment pro ratâ, 997.
time freight, 997.
lien for freight, 998.
payment by consignee, 998.
bills of lading, payment of freight, "as per charter-party," 999, 1000.
charterers to pay a "lump freight," 1001.
payments in lieu of freight, 1002.
extinguishment of lien by, 1002.
time for discharge of cargo, 1002.
payment of demurrage, 1003.
reasonable diligence implied, 1002, 1003.
specified time, 1003.

CHARTER-PARTY—continued.
payment of demurrage—continued.
unforeseen events, 1003.
crowded docks, bad weather, &c., 1003, 1004.
strike of dock labourers, 1003.
"usual and customary manner," 1005.
custom to unload by lighters, 1005.
"turn to deliver," 1005, 1006.
lay days commence on arrival at usual place of discharge, 1006.
"weather working day," meaning of, 1006.
no demurrage where detained after loading by bad weather, 1006.
lay days are working days, 1006.
substitution of new port of discharge, 1006.
work done on Sundays, 1006.
fraction of day, 1007.
"liability to cease when cargo shipped," 1007.
"as soon as cargo shipped, loading excepted," 1007.
"or as near thereto as she may safely get," 1007.
"all other conditions as per charter-party," effect of, 1008.
primage and average, 1008.
general average and contribution, 1008.
nature of, 1008.
general average loss, what is, 1009.
how distributed, 1009.
freight and earnings, 1009.
on outward and homeward voyage, 1009.
goods on board, 932.
exception of deck cargoes, 1009, 1010.
sale of cargo at port of refuge, 1010.
ship in distress, 1013.
masts, &c., cut away, 1013.
expenses to avoid danger, 1011.
expenses of landing and warehousing cargo, 1011.
depreciation in value of cargo by average act, 1011.
stranded by master's negligence, 1011.
extraordinary expenses incurred by sacrifice, 1011, 1012.
cost of raising submerged ship, 1012.
salvage money, 1012.
average adjustment, 1013.
where to be made, 1013.
damages recoverable for breach of, 1014.
stamp on, 1360.
See BILL OF LADING.

CHARTERER,
liability of, for stores furnished for use of vessel, 341.
authority of agents of, 980.

CHATTELS. See GOODS.

CHEMISTS,
sale of medicines by, 115.
right of action for charges, 115.
liability of, for negligence, 889.

CHEQUE,
payment by, effect of, 156.
proof of, 158.
receipt of, by bankers on account of their customers, 853.
payment of, by bankers, 854.
See BAILMENT WITHOUT REWARD—BANKERS.
nature and requisites of, 1289.

CHEQUE—continued.
presentment of, for payment, 1289.
revocation of banker's authority, 1291.
crossed cheque, 1291.
duties of banker as to, 1292
cancellation of, 1293, 1294.
stamp on, 1375, 1378.
post-dated, 1378.

CHILDREN. See INFANT.

CHOSE IN ACTION,
assignment of, in equity, 221.
bonds and contracts allowed by statute, 222.
under Judicature Act, 222.
moneys due and to become due under contract, 223.
what is, under Judicature Act, 224.
general rule as to, 224.
notice of, under Judicature Act, 225.
when to be given, 226.
to whom to be given, 226.
in writing, necessary under Judicature Act, 226.
parol, good as equitable assignment, 226.
wrong date rendering assignment invalid, 226.
question of validity of, determined by law of place where executed, 227.
may be made foundation of new contract, 227.
husband's right to wife's, at common law, 261.
effect of bankruptcy on, 269.
See BILL OF EXCHANGE—PROMISSORY NOTE.

CHURCHWARDENS. See PARISH OFFICERS.

CIVIL DEATH,
forfeiture of rights by, 259.
effect of, on contracts, 259.
imprisonment of husband, operating as, 432.
disabilities of convicts, 438.
of outlaws, 438.

CLOAK ROOM,
passenger's luggage in, liability for loss of, 865.
as a reasonable facility, duty of railway company to provide, 1060.

CLOTHES,
title to, by service, 941.

CLUB COMMITTEES,
contracts with, 395.
liabilities of members of, 395.
non-liability of subscribers, 396.

COALS,
sale of, by weight only, 110.
exceptions, 110.
power of local authority to make by-laws for, 110.

COHABITATION,
liabilities resulting from, 434.
contracts by kept mistresses, 434.

COINAGE,
contracts relating to, or involving, payment in current, discharge of, 109.
illegality of contracts for payment for work otherwise than in, 117.
tender of payment in current, what constitutes, 167.

COLONIAL JUDGMENT,
when conclusive inter partes, 194.

COMBINATIONS. See TRADE UNIONS.

COMMENCEMENT,
of time of limitation, 205.
of leases, 657.
of current year of tenancy, how regulated, 727.

COMMISSION AGENTS. See AGENT.

COMMISSIONERS OF PUBLIC WORKS, &c.,
contracts with, 397.
funds subject to payment of claims, 397.
of salaries of officers, 398.

COMMISSIONS IN THE ARMY,
sale of, formerly lawful, 86.
prohibited now by statute, 91, note (k).

COMMITTEES,
authority of members of, 369.
contracts by, of companies formed under Companies Clauses Act, 387.
contracts with, of unregistered joint-stock companies, 393—396.
of clubs, 395.
of charities, 395, 396.
See PROVISIONAL COMMITTEES.

COMMODATUM,
or gratuitous loan, distinction between, and loan at interest, 808.

COMMON CARRIER,
who is to be deemed, 1019, 1020.
nature and extent of duties of, 1021.
as regards goods, 1021.
dogs and living animals, 1022.
diseased animals, 1022.
supply of water and food for animals by railway company, 1023.
dangerous goods, 1023.
representations by railway companies time-tables, 1023.
implied undertaking of railway companies to forward passengers or goods without unnecessary delay, 1024.
negligence of common carriers, 1025.
implied undertaking by railway company to carry passengers safely, 1025.
special agreement to be carried at own risk, 1025.
invitation to alight, 1025.
opening carriage door is, 1025.
calling out name of station, 1026.
over-shooting platform, 1026.
carriage door slammed by porter, 1026.
overcrowding platform, 1026.
door of train negligently left open, 1026.
loss of goods by common carrier, 1026.
by "act of God or king's enemies," non-liability for, 1026.
meaning of "act of God," 1027.
losses for which not responsible, 1027, 1028.
contributory negligence, definition of, 1029.
limitation of liability of common carrier by public notice, 1030.
in case of loss of money, jewelry or other valuables, 1030.

COMMON CARRIER—continued.
Common Carriers Act, 1830...1030.
declaration of value by consignor, 1030.
consignor bound by, 1031.
statutory notice of increased rate of charge, 1031.
fixing up of, 1031.
effect of, 1031, 1032.
protection of common carrier by special contract from loss by fire and sea risks, 1033.
stipulation exempting common carriers by water from loss of luggage unless bill of lading signed, 1034.
exemption of carrier, by special contract, from all responsibility for damage to certain classes and descriptions of goods in transitu, 1033, 1034.
void limitation of liability, 1035.
loss of passenger's luggage by railway companies, 1036.
charge for luggage by excursion trains, 1037.
application of Act, 1038.
to carriage of goods by land only, 1038.
to passenger's luggage, 1049, 1053.
declaration of value, by whom to be made, 1039.
articles to which the statute extends, 1030, 1040.
losses covered by the statute, 1041.
loss through theft by servants, 1041.
liability of carrier's servants, 1042.
negligence of consignor, 1043.
defective packing, 1043.
Railway and Canal Act, 1854...1043.
liability for neglect or default in carriage of animals or goods, 1043.
limitation of, beyond certain amount unless value declared, 1044.
does not extend to felonious acts of servants, 1044 negligence of carrier does not exempt from, even where special contract, 1044.
carriage of goods, special contracts for, 1045.
unjust and unreasonable conditions for, 1046.
just and reasonable conditions for, what are, 1048.
reasonable facilities for, to be afforded, 1047.
extension of Act to steam vessels of railway company, 1043, 1049.
liability of railway company during sea transit, 1049.
implied authority of railway servants to bind company by special contract, 1050.
commencement and duration of liability, 1050.
loss or damage in warehouses, 1050.
delivery at place of destination, 1051.
of luggage at railway stations, 1052.
acceptance of goods and passengers for carriage beyond limits of ordinary destination, 1053.
acceptance for carriage to particular destination, 1053, 1054.
by named route, 1053.
one railway company agent for another, 1054.
partly by sea and partly by land, 1055.
in ships not belonging to railway company, 1055.
refusal of consignee to receive goods, 1055.
carrier as bailee, 1055.
deposit of goods in safe place, 1056.
payment of fare or hire, 1056.
carrier's lien, 1056, 1057.

COMMON CARRIER—continued.
common carrier's charges, 1058.
railway charges, 1058, 1059.
to be reasonable, 1059.
duty of railway and canal companies to afford facilities for carriage, 1047, 1059.
of goods, 1059.
recovery of overcharges, 1061.
of passengers, 1061.
carriage of packed parcels, 1062.
injunction against railway companies to enforce statute, 1063.
passengers' fares, 1065.
right to alight at intermediate station, 1065.
season tickets, conditions as to, 1065.
forfeiture of deposit, 1066.
dangerous railway bridges and embankments, 1066.
liability in respect of, 1066.
common ferrymen, duties and responsibilities of, 1066.
loss of goods by, 1066.
notice of action to railway companies, 1067.
parties to be made plaintiffs in actions against carriers, 1067.
joint bailments to common carriers, 1067.
parties to be made defendants, 1069, 1070.
carriage of goods and passengers over distinct lines of railway, 1070.
damages in actions against common carriers, 1071.
measure of, 1071, 1072.
in respect of delay in delivery, 1074.
in case of personal injuries, 1075.
claim for refusal to carry, 1075.
defences to actions against common carriers, 1076.
evidence at trial of actions, 1076.
of bailment, 1076.
of special contract, 1077.
of jus tertii by common carrier, 1078.

COMMON CARRIERS ACT. See COMMON CARRIER.

COMPANY. See JOINT-STOCK COMPANY.

COMPENSATION,
agreements for, contrary to Agricultural Holdings Act, 90.
receipt signed for, obtained by misrepresentation, not a valid discharge, 129.
in damages for breach of contract, 277—292.
for use and occupation of land, 681, 750.
See DAMAGES.

COMPETENCY
of parties to contracts. See PARTIES TO CONTRACTS.

COMPOSITION DEEDS,
with creditors, 84, 87, 177, 186, 198.
private underhand agreements to secure better terms to one creditor than to another, 84.
fraudulent concealment by debtors, 84, 87.
under Bankruptcy Act, release by, 87, 177, 186.
See FRAUD—FRAUDULENT PREFERENCE—FRAUDULENT CONCEALMENT.

COMPOUNDING FELONIES OR MISDEMEANORS, contracts for, illegality of, 82.
See ILLEGAL CONTRACTS.

COMPULSION OF LAW,
money paid under, not recoverable, 461.

COMPUTATION OF TIME,
meaning of "month," 57.
"from" a certain date, 58.

CONCEALMENT,
fraudulent, of material fact, 126.
by means of agents, 127.
of agency, rights of undisclosed principals, 322.
avoiding sale of lands, 525.
of goods, 575.
of latent defects in leaseholds, 672.
in policy of insurance. See FRAUDULENT CONCEALMENT.

CONDITION,
words of, amounting to express covenant, 51, 56.
amounting to warranty, 554.

CONDITIONAL ASSENT,
admissibility of oral evidence of, 71.

CONDITIONAL CONTRACT,
specific performance of, when decreed, 293.

CONDITIONAL LIABILITIES, limitation of action for, 207.

CONDITIONAL PROMISE OF MARRIAGE,
validity of, 1314.

CONDITIONAL RELEASE,
may be subject to condition subsequent, 177.

CONDITIONAL SALE,
of goods, what constitutes, 555.

CONDITIONAL TENDER,
nature of, 169.

CONDITIONS PRECEDENT,
interpretation of, 53.
distinguished from independent promises, 55.
waiver of, partly performed, 55.
nature of, 142.
demand of performance, when necessary, 143.
waiver of, 144.
dispensation of performance of, 145.
to right to distrain, 776.
to payment for work and services, 876.
in charter-parties, performance of, 976.
in guarantees, to surety's liability, 1083, 1090.
See PERFORMANCE.

CONDITIONS OF SALE,
provisions in, as to absence or insufficiency of stamp, void, 91.
signature of, by auctioneers, on behalf of vendors and purchasers, 478, 479.
cannot be contradicted or altered by verbal declarations of auctioneer in auction-room, 479.
proof of notice of, 479.
effect of misdescription of property in, 494.
of land, not to be misleading, 499.

CONDUCT. See ESTOPPEL.

CONFIDENTIAL AGENTS,
disabilities of, 131.

CONFLICT OF LAWS. See FOREIGN CONTRACTS.

CONSENT OF PARTIES,
discharge by, 171.
See RELEASE.

CONSIDERATION,
for enforcement of simple contract, 2.
absence of, 2.
trust and confidence, 3.
insufficient, 3, 4, 5.
fraudulent, 5.
sufficient, 5.
good and valuable, 5.
for bill of exchange, 1257.
work and services, 5, 873.
loss or inconvenience, 6.
services to third party at request of promisor, 7.
past, coupled with previous request, 7.
failure of, 8.
partial, general rule as to, 137.
recovery of money back on, 136, 465.
in case of bills of exchange, 1264.
written promises without consideration, 9.
moral obligations, 9.
forbearance of legal or equitable rights, 10.
adequacy of consideration, 12.
in case of guarantees, 12, 1080.
advertisements for tenders, 12.
of sale by auction, 13.
bilateral promises, 2, 13.
mutual promises, 13.
assent of parties, 14.
statement of, on face of guarantee, 1082.

CONSTRUCTION OF CONTRACTS. See INTERPRETATION.

CONSTRUCTIVE ACCEPTANCE
of goods, 535.

CONSTRUCTIVE CONTRACTS,
nature of, 446.

CONSTRUCTIVE DELIVERY
of goods, 597.

CONSTRUCTIVE FRAUD,
by trustees and others, 131.

CONSTRUCTIVE NOTICE,
of contents of leases, &c., 229.
doctrine of, not applicable to charter-party, 1008.

CONSTRUCTIVE OCCUPATION
of land, entitling landlord to compensation, 682.

CONSTRUCTIVE POSSESSION of goods by purchaser, 535.
extinguishing seller's lien, 535.

CONTINGENT LIABILITIES,
limitation of actions for, 207.

CONTINUATION POLICIES,
stamp duty on, 1125, note (o), 1131, note (u).

CONTINUING BREACHES,
of covenants and agreements, parties entitled to sue, 237.
of real covenants, rights of heirs upon, 242.

CONTINUING GUARANTEES. See GUARANTEE.

CONTRACT,
definition of, 1.
unilateral or bilateral, 1, 2, 13.
principal or accessorial, 2.
by matter of record, 2.
by deed, 2, 18.
See DEED.
simple, 2.
See SIMPLE CONTRACT.
consideration for, 2.
absence of, 2.
valuable, 3.
fraudulent, 5.
sufficient, 5.
work and services, 5.
loss or inconvenience, 6.
services to third party, 7.
part, 7.
failure of, 8.
written promises without, 9.
moral obligations, 9.
forbearance to sue, 10.
adequacy of, 12.
assent of parties to, 14.
biddings at auctions, 17.
contracts by post, 17.
by telegram, 18.
by deed, 18.
See DEED.
by matter of record, 21.
authentication of, 22.
See AUTHENTICATION.
interpretation of, 45.
See INTERPRETATION.
discharge of, 138.
See PERFORMANCE—DISCHARGE.
parties to, 308.
strangers to the contract, 308.
with bankers, warehousemen, and wharfingers, 309, 310.
parties entitled to enforce contracts under seal, 311.
trustee and cestui que trust, 312.
covenantees omitting to execute deed, 313.
parties liable upon simple contract, 313.
upon deeds, 315.
covenants in feigned names, estoppel, 315.
and obligations by one person on behalf of another, 315.
joint or several promises, 315.
joint or separate interests of covenantees, 316.
tenants in common, rights of, 317.
joint tenants, rights of, 317.
joint or several liabilities, in case of implied contracts, 318.
ex contractu, 319.

CONTRACT—continued.
parties to—continued.
joint and several purchases, 321.
with agents, 321.
See AGENT.
with partners, 357.
See PARTNERSHIP.
with corporations, 372.
See CORPORATIONS.
with joint-stock companies, 379.
See JOINT-STOCK COMPANIES.
with railway companies, 386.
See RAILWAY COMPANIES.
with associations, 388.
with mining companies, 389.
with insurance companies, 390.
with banking co-partnerships, 391.
with provisional directors, &c., of projected undertakings, 393.
See PROVISIONAL COMMITTEES.
with clubs, 395.
with trustees, &c., of public works, 397.
with public officers, 398.
with metropolitan borough councils, 398.
with parish councils, 399.
with district councils, 399.
with parish officers, 400.
with friendly societies, 400.
with industrial and provident societies, 401.
with benefit building societies, 402.
with freehold land societies, 403.
with loan societies, 404.
with registered trade unions, 404.
with infants, 404.
See INFANTS.
with executors, 414.
See EXECUTORS.
with married women, 418—434.
See MARRIED WOMEN.
with bankrupts, 434.
See BANKRUPTS.
with drunkards, 435.
See DRUNKARDS.
with lunatics, 435.
See LUNATICS.
with aliens, 437.
See ALIENS.
with prisoners of war, 438.
See PRISONERS.
with convicts, 438.
See CONVICTS.
with outlaws, 438.
See OUTLAWS.
with foreign sovereigns, &c., 439.
See FOREIGN GOVERNMENT.
mandamus to, 439—444.
See MANDAMUS.
express, 445.
implied, 446—473.
void, 75—124.
See ILLEGAL CONTRACTS.
discharge of, by release, 171—183.
See RELEASE.
by accord and satisfaction, 183.
See ACCORD AND SATISFACTION.

CONTRACT—continued.
discharge of, by alteration, 189—191.
See ALTERATION OF CONTRACTS.
by death, 194.
by bankruptcy, 195, 199.
See BANKRUPTCY.
limitation of actions, 199—220.
See LIMITATION.
transfer of, by assignment of, 221.
See ASSIGNMENT.
by death, 241—261.
See HEIR-AT-LAW—EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS.
by marriage, 261—267.
See MARRIED WOMEN.
by bankruptcy, 267—276.
See BANKRUPTCY.
remedy for breach of, 277—292.
See DAMAGES.
enforcement of, 292—307, 439—444.
See INJUNCTION—MANDAMUS—SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE.
for sale of lands, 474—526.
See SALE OF LANDS.
sale of goods and chattels, 526—633.
See SALE OF GOODS—WARRANTY.
sale of incorporeal hereditaments, 634.
stocks and shares, 636—650.
See INCORPOREAL HEREDITAMENTS. demise of lands, 651.
See LANDLORD AND TENANT.
demise of lodgings, &c., 760, 764.
See LANDLORD—LODGING-HOUSE KEEPER—INNKEEPER.
bailment for hire, 805.
See BAILMENT FOR HIRE.
gratuitous bailment, 748, 750, 844.
See BAILMENT WITHOUT REWARD.
mortgage, 817, 841.
See MORTGAGE.
pledge, 817, 820.
See PLEDGE.
deposit, 844.
taskwork, 888.
See WORK AND SERVICES.
hiring and service, 915—941.
See MASTER AND SERVANT.
apprenticeship, 937—939.
See APPRENTICESHIP. agencies, 942—969.
See AGENCY.
carriage by water, 970—1015.
See CARRIERS BY WATER.
carriage by land, 1015—1019.
See CARRIERS BY LAND.
common carriers, 1019—1078.
See COMMON CARRIER.
suretyship, 1079—1105.
See GUARANTEE.
marine insurance, 1105—1212.
See MARINE INSURANCE.
fire insurance, 1212—1222.
See FIRE INSURANCE.
life insurance, 1222—1239.
See LIFE INSURANCE.
bills of exchange and promissory notes, 1241—1309.
See BILL OF EXCHANGE—PROMISSORY NOTE.

CONTRACT—continued.
of and concerning marriage, 1310—1326.
See MARRIAGE—MARRIED WOMEN.
stamps on, 1327—1387.
See STAMP DUTIES.

CONTRACT NOTE,
obligation to execute, 116, 1350.
claim for charges barred, on failure to execute, 1351.
stamp duty on, 1350.
how denoted, 1351.

CONTRIBUTION,
between executors, 417.
between trustees in bankruptcy, 435.
general average, 1008.
See GENERAL AVERAGE.
between co-sureties, 1100.
See GUARANTEE.
release of co-surety, 1097.
death of co-surety, 1099, 1102.

CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE,
definition of, 1029.
by consignor of goods for carriage, 1029.

CONVERSION,
of bills and promissory notes, 1308.
of lost or stolen bank-notes, 1308.
negotiable instruments, 1308.

CONVICTION,
revesting of property on, 594.

CONVICTS,
disability of, to make contracts, 438.

CONVOY,
warranty as to sailing with, in policies of insurance, 1167.
misrepresentation in, avoiding policy, 1123.
sailing to rendezvous to wait, 1166.
deviation to procure, 1169.
liberty to touch, when under, 1172.

COPARCENERS,
right of action of, 316.

CO-PARTNERSHIP. See PARTNERSHIP.

COPIES. See ATTESTED COPIES—CERTIFIED COPIES.

CORPORATIONS,
limited partnerships, constitution of, 371.
contracts with, 373.
want of mutuality of obligation, 373.
incapacity of members of corporation, 373.
implied contracts not under seal, 375.
with trading corporations, 378.
contracts with joint-stock companies, 379.
requisites of, 380.
See JOINT-STOCK COMPANIES.
contracts with railway companies, 387.
informal contracts for services by railway companies, 388.
See RAILWAY COMPANIES.

CORPORATIONS—continued.
contracts with companies authorized to sue in name of their public officer, 388.
liability of the public officer, 389.
contracts with mining companies, 389.
bills and notes by, 1306.

CORRESPONDENCE,
contract by, what constitutes, 46.

COSTS
in forfeiture of lease, recovery of, from lessee as debt, 716.
of distress, 803.
of previous legal proceedings, when recoverable as damages, 283, 631, 968.

CO-SURETIES. See CONTRIBUTION—GUARANTEE.

COUNCILS,
contracts with, county, 397 note (i).
metropolitan borough, 398.
parish, 399.
district, 399.

COUNSEL. See BARRISTER.

COUNTERFEIT MONEY,
void agreement for payment in, 122.

COUNTERMAND
of delivery orders, 609.
of shipment of goods, 982.

COUNTRY BANKERS ACT, 1826.
banking co-partnership established under, 392.
mode of suing, 392.
judgment against, effect of, 392.
execution against, 392.

COUNTY COUNCILS,
contracts with, 397 note (i).

COUNTY COURT JUDGMENT,
effect of, as bar to action on same subject-matter, 192.

COVENANT. See also COVENANTS RUNNING WITH LAND.
non-execution by covenantees, effect of, 313.
in feigned name, 315.
by one person on behalf of another, 315.
joint or separate interests of covenantees, 316.
rights of tenants in common on, 317.
joint tenants on, 317.
words amounting to, 50.
words of proviso and condition, construed as express covenant, 51.
by implication of law, 52.
dependent and independent, 53, 55.
conditions precedent, 53.
mutual, 56.
usual, in agreement for lease, 57.
release of, before breach, 171, 174.
general, 176.
not to sue, 177.
for limited time, 178.
assignment of, 227.
continuing breaches of, 237.
rights of heir upon, 241, 242.

COVENANT—continued.
liability of personal representative for breach of, 242.
transfer of, annexed to estates pur autre vie, 243.
annexed to leasehold estates, 244.
for payment of rent, liability of executor on, 247.
to repair, extent of executor's liability, 248.
assignment of lease, effect on covenants, 248.
injunctions to restrain breach of, 303—306.
implied, what constitutes, 448, 522.
for title to realty, 521.
damages for breach of, 523.
for quiet enjoyment, 665.
damages for breach of, 750.
to pay rent, 667.
not to let or assign over, 668.
damages for breach of, 751.
to repair, 685.
damages for breach of, 751.
restricting user of demised premises, 694.
forfeiture for breach of, 708.
effect of surrender on existing breaches of, 720.
breach of, by equitable assignees, 749.
damages for breach of, 749, 750, 751.
destruction of buildings by fire or tempest, 752.
to consume hay or straw on farm, 752.
to insure life, 1239.
to marry, 1311.
stamp on, 1346, 1353.

COVENANTS RUNNING WITH LAND,
nature of, 227.
privity of estate and privity of contract, 227.
covenants between landlord and tenant, or reversioner and lessee, 227.
covenants real annexed to reversionary estates, 231—234.
assignees of grantees of licence, 234.
requisites of covenant, 234—237.
parties entitled to sue, 237.
continuing breaches, 237.
implied covenants arising from word "demise," 238.
covenants annexed to estate of joint tenants and tenants in common, 238.
assignments of rent and annuities, 239, 240.
difference between rent and annuity, 239.
right of husband on wife's, 261.
limitation of doctrine of, 749.

COVERTURE. See MARRIED WOMEN.

CREDIT,
pledging husband's, implied authority of wife, 425.
extent of authority, 425.
sale of goods on, action for, 624.

CREDITOR,
payment according to direction of, discharge of debtor on, 152.
payment to creditor of, by garnishee or under execution, 162.
appropriation of debts by, 165.
appointment of, as executor, effect of, 258.

CREDITORS,
fraud on, 87.
contracts, delaying or hindering, 87, 88.
assignment for benefit of, 187.
See BANKRUPTCY—COMPOSITION DEEDS—FRAUD.

CROPS AND GROWING PRODUCE,
sale of, when contract for, an interest in land, 26.
authentication of, 28.
when distrainable, 785, 802.
tenant's right to, 740.

CUMULATIVE STIPULATIONS,
nature of, 139.

CURRENT COIN,
contracts relating to, or involving payment in money, discharge of, in, 109.
illegality of contracts for payment for work otherwise than in, 117.
tender of payment in, what constitutes, 167.

CUSTOM AND USAGE,
admissibility of oral evidence of, 67.
to identify subject-matter, 68.
impliedly annexed to express terms of written contract, 69.
influence of, upon meaning of words, 70.
in case of marine policies, 1130, 1135.

CUSTOM OF THE COUNTRY, annexed to contract under Agricultural Holdings Act, 69.
regulating rights and liabilities of outgoing and incoming tenants, 743, 744.

CUSTOMS,
increase of, added to contract price, 541.
contracts to evade payment of, 85.
See ILLEGAL CONTRACTS.

DAMAGES,
for breach of contract, 277.
nominal, 277.
general, 278.
special, 278, 281.
recovery of interest generally, 279.
costs of previous legal proceedings, 283.
pecuniary liabilities swelling amount, 284.
reduction of, rule as to, 284.
excessive, rule as to, 285.
penal obligations, 285.
penalties for breach of contract, 286.
liquidated damages, 287.
penalties under denomination of, 290.
injunction where option to take, 307.
plaintiffs', in actions of tort founded on contract, 290.
breach of contract for sale of realty, 507, 509, 512, 513.
non-performance by purchaser, 512.
non-performance by vendor, 513.
breach of covenants for title, 523.
non-performance of contract for sale of goods by non-acceptance, 625.
measure of damages, 625.
by non-delivery, 626.
measure of damages, 626, 627.
breach of warranty, 629.
measure of damages, 629, 630, 631.
special damages, 281, 631.
re-sale with warranty, 632.
costs of legal proceedings, 632.
for waste, 705.
improvement by tenant no answer to action for, 705.

DAMAGES—continued.
for obstructing reversioner entering to inspect waste, 706.
holding over, 732, 733, 754.
breach of contract to grant lease, 749, 750.
in actions for use and occupation, 750.
breach of covenants for quiet enjoyment, 750.
of covenant not to assign, 751.
of covenant to repair, 751.
destruction by fire or tempest, 752.
dilapidations by tenants, 691, 753.
of covenant to consume straw on farm, 753.
keeping distress without selling, 804.
action for not replacing stock, 815.
non-payment of cheques by bankers, 860.
contracts for performance of work, 913.
building contracts, 914.
prevention of performance, 914.
wrongful dismissal, 934, 940.
refusing to employ, 940.
action for loss of services of apprentice, 941.
breach of warranty of authority by agents, 968.
costs of previous legal proceedings, 968.
breach of charter-parties, 1014, 1071.
actions against common carriers, 1071.
measure of damages, 1071.
limitation of amount by statute, 1071, 1072.
for non-delivery of goods, 1072.
for delay in delivery of goods, 1073, 1074.
for personal injuries, 1075.
for refusing to carry, 1075.
breach of contracts of indemnity, 1104.
bankruptcy of principal debtor, 1104.
recovery of interest on money paid by sureties, 1104.
breach of contracts of insurance, 1238.
against railway accidents, 1238.
breach of covenants to insure, 1239.
upon dishonour of bills, 1276, 1298.
for breach of promise of marriage, 1315.

DANGEROUS EMPLOYMENTS, injuries to servants from, liability of master for, 924, 925.
in case of servants in common employment, 925.

DANGEROUS GOODS,
bailment of, liability of bailor for injury from, 901.
carriage of, right of master or shipowner to refuse, 1014.
carriage of explosives, notice to carrier, 1023.

DANGEROUS MACHINERY,
servant using, liability of master to, 924, 925.

DAYS OF GRACE,
in fire insurance, 1218.
in life insurance, 1229.
on bills of exchange, 1271.
on promissory notes, 1288.

DEATH,
discharge of contracts by, 194.
transfer of interest in contracts by, 241, 242.
See EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS—HEIR-AT-LAW.
transfer of trust and mortgage estates on, 243.
of executor or administrator, effect of, 256.
civil death, 259, 438.
of one of several joint contractors, 260.

DEATH—continued.
of husband, rights of surviving wife, 432.
of wife, husband's rights of survivorship, 433.
of master or servant, terminating contract of service, 930.
of principal releasing surety, 1099.
of surety, 1099.
of co-surety, 1102.

DEBENTURE,
when liable to stamp duty, 1346.

DEBTOR, appropriation of payments by, 165.
appointment of, as executor or administrator of creditor, 258.
appointment by, of creditor as executor, 258.

DECEIT. See FRAUD.

DECK CARGOES,
thrown overboard, excluded generally from general average, 1010, 1129.
custom to exempt underwriters not invalid, 1130.
stowing of goods on deck, in violation of contract with shipper, 1010.
when protected against loss by jettison, 1129.
prohibition of, at certain periods of year, 1129.
See MARINE INSURANCE.

DEED,
nature of contracts by, 18.
requisites of, 19.
signing, 19.
sealing and delivery of, 19, 20.
delivery of, as escrow, 21.
deeds inter partes and deeds poll, nature of, 21.
executory promises requiring authentication by, 42.
authority of agent to make, must be under seal, 43.
except in case of joint contractors, 43.
parties entitled to enforce, 311.
not executing deed, 313.
parties liable upon, 315.
covenants in feigned names, 315.
by one person on behalf of another, 315.
of joint and separate interests under deeds, 316.
liability of partners upon, 370.
interpretation of, 45, 58, 60.
estoppel by, 72, 315, 654.
fraudulent misreading of, effect of, 129.
alteration of, effect of, 189, 191.
evidence to explain, 191.
merger of simple contract in, 192.
acknowledgment of, to bar Statute of Limitations, 210.
made by agent, rights of principal on, 325.
liabilities of principal on, 334.
rights of agent on, 346.
liability of agent on, 356.
wife cannot bind husband by, 423.
power of wife to bind herself by, 423.
transfer of shares by, 646.
surrender of interest in tenements or hereditaments by, 716.
stamp duties on, 1339.

DEEDS OF SEPARATION,
validity of, 1324.
effect of subsequent reconciliation on covenants in, 1326.

DEFAULT. See PERFORMANCE.

DEFEASANCE,
of contracts, power of, 173.
fraudulent exercise of power of, 177.
See AVOIDANCE OF CONTRACTS.

DEFEASIBLE LEASES,
nature of, 707.
by disclaimer, 709.

DEFEASIBLE SALES,
of goods, 555.

DEFECTS,
concealment of, in sales of realty, 525, 526.
in sales of goods, 575.
See FRAUDULENT CONCEALMENT.

DELAY,
in performance of contracts, 140.
in performance of voyage, 977, 978, 1171.
in performance of railway journey, 1024.
damages against carriers for, in delivery of goods, 1074.
See TIME OF PERFORMANCE.

DEL CREDERE COMMISSION,
definition of, 948.
liability of factor on, 32.
duty of agent to account, 947.

DELIVERY,
of deed, authentication by, 20.
as escrow, 21.
of deposit, to owner on demand, 847.
in case of joint and several owners, 848.
of adverse claimants, 848.

DELIVERY OF BILL,
without indorsement, transfer by, 1280.

DELIVERY OF GOODS,
in part payment, operating as acknowledgment of debt, 216.
actual and constructive, 597.
proof of, 597, 598.
and payment, concurrent conditions, 598.
rules as to, 599.
place of delivery, 599.
where time not fixed, 599.
where goods in possession of third person, 599.
hours of delivery, 600.
expenses of delivery, 600.
of wrong quantity, 600.
by instalments, 602.
to carrier, 604.
effect of, 604.
seller's duty, 604.
for sea transit, 604.
deterioration in transit, 605.
right of buyer to examine goods, 605.
acceptance of goods, what constitutes, 606.
buyer not bound to return rejected goods, 606.
refusal to take, liability of buyer, 606.
damages for refusal to accept, 625.
damages for non-delivery, 626.
measure of damages, 626, 627.

DELIVERY OF GOODS—continued.
by carriers by water, 992.
at place of destination, 1051.
at railway station, 1052.
liability of company for passengers' luggage, 1052.
See SALE OF CHATTELS—ACCEPTANCE AND RECEIPT—DELIVERY ORDER—STOPPAGE IN TRANSITU.

DELIVERY ORDER,
transfer of possession of goods through medium of, 310, 583.
mere acceptance of, by purchaser, not actual acceptance of goods, 536.
receipt of, by wharfinger, for goods not in his possession, effect of, 537.
countermand of, before acceptance, 609.
extinguishment of right of countermand, 609, 611, 612.
intervention of rights of sub-purchasers preventing the exercise of right of, 612.
See STOPPAGE IN TRANSITU.
stamp on, abolition of, 1365.

DEMAND,
of performance of contract, when necessary, 143.
waiver of, 144.
time of limitation, when demand is condition precedent, runs from, 208.

DEMISE. See LANDLORD AND TENANT.
implied covenants under word, in lease, run with term, 238.
meaning of term, in lease, 238, 449.
for term of years, when operating as an assignment, 951.

DEMURRAGE. See CHARTER PARTY.
nature of, 1003.
shipowners' right of action for, 1003.
interpretation of charter-party as to payment of, 1004.
liability for payment of under bills of lading, 1008.

DENOTING STAMP,
in respect of duty paid on another instrument, 1333.

DEPENDENT COVENANTS AND PROMISES. See CONDITIONS PRECEDENT.

DEPOSIT. See BAILMENT WITHOUT REWARD.
definition of, 844.
requisites of, 844.
money deposited to abide wager, 123.
on illegal consideration, not recoverable, 137.
on sale of lands, recovery of, 509.
forfeiture of, 509.
in hands of auctioneer, 509.
letting of places of, 764.
money deposited with one of several partners, 850.
with bankers, 852.
See BANKERS.
limitation of actions for, 852.
stamp on contracts of, 1373.

DEPOSITARIES. See STAKEHOLDERS.

DESCRIPTION,
sale by, implied condition on, 562.

DESERTED DEMISED PREMISES, recovery of, by landlord, by summary proceedings, 738.

DESERTION,
of husband by wife, 428.
of wife by husband, 428.
authority of wife to pledge husband's credit for necessaries. 428, 429.
order for protection of wife's property and earnings, 431.

DETENTION OF CHATTELS, order for specific delivery of chattels wrongfully detained, 300.
justification of, by bailee, under claim of lien, 902.

DEVIATIONS,
in building contracts, 880.
See BUILDING CONTRACTS.
from insured voyage, 1168.
See MARINE INSURANCE.

DEVISEES,
rights and liabilities of, 241, 246.
See HEIR-AT-LAW.
acknowledgment of debt by, binding estate, 214.

DILAPIDATIONS,
by tenants, 685.
damages recoverable in respect of, 690, 691, 752.

DIRECTORS,
fraudulent representations by, 127.
of co-partnership, 358.
of trading associations, 369.
of joint-stock companies, contracts with, 379.
of railway companies, contracts with, 386.
bills and notes by, 387.
of companies for carrying on public undertakings, 387.
of projected undertakings, 393.
See PROVISIONAL COMMITTEES.
of life assurance company, 1223.

DISABILITIES,
of trustees and agents for sale, 132.
temporary, extending Statute of Limitations, 203.
of infants, 404—412.
of married women, 418—434.
of drunkards and lunatics, 435.
of aliens, 103, 437, 438.
of convicts and outlaws, 438.
of sovereigns and ambassadors, 439.

DISCHARGE IN BANKRUPTCY, order of, effect of, 195.

DISCHARGE OF BANKRUPT,
effect of, 195, 196, 197.
on debts contracted abroad, 199.

DISCHARGE OF CONDITIONS OR COVENANTS,
before breach, 174.

DISCHARGE OF CONTRACTS,
by performance, 138.
See PERFORMANCE.
before breach, 171, 174.
by consent, 171.
by parol, 174.
of bill of exchange, 175.

DISCHARGE OF CONTRACTS—continued.
by accord and satisfaction, 183.
by acceptance of securities, 185.
by operation of law, 189.
by death, 194.
by bankruptcy, 195.
See RELEASE—ALTERATION—ACCORD AND SATISFACTION—MERGER—JUDGMENT RECOVERED.

DISCHARGE OF SERVANTS. See MASTER AND SERVANT.

DISCLAIMER,
by trustee in bankruptcy, 275.
by tenant of landlord's title, 708.
operating as forfeiture, 709.

DISCONTINUANCE OF ACTION,
good consideration for promise, 10.

DISHONOUR,
of cheque, by banker, 854.
notice of, 1272.
to whom to be given, 1272.
rules as to, 1273.
what amounts to, 1275.
posting notice, 1275.
proof of, 1278.
excuses for delay in giving, 1278.
dispensation of, 1278.

DISHONOURED BILLS AND NOTES, debts secured by, actions for, 155.

DISMISSAL,
of servants for incompetency, 931.
for misconduct, 931.
wrongful dismissal, 934.
damages for, 934, 940.

DISPENSATION,
of conditions precedent, 145.
of performance, 145, 171.
renunciation, amounting to, 171.

DISSOLUTION,
notice of, of co-partnership, 367.

DISTRESS,
on bankrupt, limitation of landlord's right of, 197.
right to distrain, 680.
extinguished by assignment of reversion, 681.
by tender, 781.
under Judicature Act, 1873...775.
Bankruptcy Act, 1883...774.
Agricultural Holdings Act, 1908...774.
Companies Act, 1908...792.
Landlord and Tenant Act, 1851...776.
ejectment, where not sufficient, 737.
hypothecation of chattels, 829.
licence to seize, to secure payment of debt, 829, 830.
for rent in arrear, 772.
rent must be ascertained, 775.
conditions precedent to right, 776.
agreements not to distrain, 776.
acceptance of bill, by way of payment, 777.

DISTRESS—continued.
rent payable in advance, 777.
agreement for, not valid as against mortgagee, 780.
when payable, 777.
several demises, 777.
after termination of term, 778.
by agents, 779.
receiver appointed by mortgagee, 780.
by Court of Chancery, 780.
joint tenants, 780.
tenants in common, 781.
executors, 781.
when to be made, 781.
before probate, 781.
tender of rent before, 781.
time, mode, and place of distraining, 781.
things not distrainable, 783.
property of Crown, 783.
things annexed to the freehold, 783.
cattle, sheep, &c., unless no other distress available, 784.
things in actual use, 784, 785.
implements of trade, 784.
perishable articles, growing crops, &c., money, 785.
property of strangers in own possession, 786.
on the premises, with leave of landlord, 786.
statutory exemptions, 786.
wearing apparel, bedding, tools and implements of trade, 786.
limitation of value of goods exempted, 787.
goods of undertenant and lodger, 787.
summary remedy for goods distrained, 788.
live stock taken in for feeding or breeding, 788, 789.
redemption of, by owner, 789.
agricultural machinery not property of tenant, 789.
railway rolling stock at any "works," 789.
where partly property of tenant, 789.
summary order for restoration, if wrongfully distrained, 789.
frames, looms, &c., hired for use in textile manufactories, 789.
gas or water meters, &c., belonging to public companies, 789.
gas stove let for hire by gas company, 789, note (m).
goods of foreign ambassadors, 791.
of companies in liquidation, 792.
materials placed on premises to be worked on by tenant, 790.
goods not within exemption, 790.
property of guests at common inn, 791.
goods in custody of law, 791.
under writ of execution, 791.
growing crops, 791.
landlord's right to rent in arrear, 791.
things distrainable, 792.
chattels of traders, in possession of tenant, 792.
exceptions, 785, 786, 793.
chattels mortgaged by tenant, 793.
under licence to distrain, 794, 830.
licence not assignable, 794.
goods fraudulently removed, 794.
what is fraudulent removal, 795.
double value, action for, on, 795.
what amounts to distress, generally, 796.
in case of warehousemen, 796.

DISTRESS—continued.
what amounts to,
in case of lodging-house keeper, 796.
for more rent than due, 796.
when unlawful, 796.
repeated distress for same rent, 797.
when lawful, 797.
where bill for rent dishonoured, 797.
impounding goods, 797.
See IMPOUNDING GOODS.
abandonment of distress, 800.
statutory power of sale, 800.
appraisement, 800.
tender of rent before sale, 801.
action for selling after tender, 801.
where distress for more rent than due, 801.
parties to whom to tender, 801.
growing crops and things removed, 802.
period within which goods may be replevied, 802.
notice of distress, necessary before sale, 801, 802.
when to be given, 802.
inventory of goods to be made, 802.
damages for selling goods not in inventory, 802.
sale to be for best price, 802, 803.
costs and expenses, scale of, 803.
treble charges recoverable for excessive costs and charges levied, 803.
copy of, to be given by broker, 803.
effect of non-compliance with statutes authorising sales, 804.
keeping distress without selling, 804.
lien of landlord for rent on goods distrained, 804.
sale necessary to give purchaser title to goods, 805.
landlord cannot purchase goods distrained, 805.

DISTRICT COUNCILS,
contracts with urban, 399.
to carry out Public Health Acts, 399.
requisites of, 399.

DIVIDEND WARRANTS,
transfer of, 1289.

DIVIDENDS,
in bankruptcy, effect of payment of, 197.

DIVISIBLE CONTRACTS,
part good, part bad, effect of, 120.
See ILLEGAL CONTRACTS.

DOCK WARRANTS,
acceptance of, by purchaser, effect of, 536.
stamp on, 1365.
See DELIVERY ORDER.

DOCUMENTS OF TITLE,
pledges of, by mercantile agents, 823.
See PLEDGE.

DOMESTIC SERVANTS,
general hiring of, for year, 919.
subject to month's notice or month's wages, 919, 931.
termination of service, at end of first month by fortnight's notice, 919.
proof of custom necessary, 919.
by death of master or servant, 930.
rights and liabilities of, 921.
common employment of, 926.

DOMESTIC SERVANTS—continued.
duties of, 929.
dismissal of, for misconduct or disobedience, 931.
sufficient grounds for, 932.
insufficient grounds for, 933.
damages for wrongful, 934, 940.
disability of, from sickness, dissolving contract, 933.
wages of, presumption of payment of, 936.
character, no legal obligation on master to give, 941.
decoying away, liability for, 453.
See MASTER AND SERVANT.

DORMANT PARTNER,
liability of, 363.
private agreement, exempting from liability, effect of, 364.
retirement of, extent of liability on, 369.
notice of, when necessary, 369.

DOUBLE RENT AND DOUBLE YEARLY VALUE,
for holding over, 733, 734.

DRAFT,
stamp on, 1375.
See CHEQUE.

DRAWER,
of bill of exchange, liability of, 1266.

DRUGGISTS. See CHEMISTS.

DRUGS,
sale of, regulation of, by statute, 111.
See POISON.

DRUNKARDS,
contracts with, voidable, 435.

DUPLICATES. See PAWNBROKERS.

DURATION OF LEASES,
for years, 657, 658.
from year to year, 659.
tenancy at will, 661.
by sufferance, 663.

DURESS,
contracts made under, voidable, 133, 413.

DUTY,
created by contract, neglect of, giving cause of action, 290.
of parent to provide for children, 413.
of seller and buyer, on sale of goods, 596.
customs duty on goods warehoused to be added to price, 544.

EARNEST AND PART PAYMENT, nature and effect of, in contracts of sale of goods, 528.

EJECTMENT,
of tenants, recovery of possession, 735.
licence to eject, right of lessor under, 736.
under provisoes for re-entry, 736.
where no sufficient distress, 737.
recovery of possession of deserted premises, 738.
recovery of possession of houses and small tenements, 739.
by summary proceedings, 739.
in county court, 739, 740.

EMBANKMENT,
dangerous, liability of railway company for, 1066.

EMBARGO,
meaning of, 1180.
abandonment of ship after, 1189.
shipowners no right to freight earned after, 1189.
giving right of abandonment, 1193.

EMBLEMENTS,
agreements as to, not an interest in land, 27.
meaning of, on sale of goods, 527, note (s).
tenant's right to, under custom of country, 743.

EMPLOYER,
contracts in fraud of, invalidity of, 86.
See ILLEGAL CONTRACTS.
rights and liabilities of, and workman, 874.
defeasible contracts between, and workman, 874.
time of performance, 875.
duty of, to exercise caution in choosing employé, 898.
Employers' Liability Act, 927, 928.
contract to abandon rights under, 78.
Workmen's Compensation Act, 928.
contract to give up rights under, 929.
See WORK AND SERVICES—MASTER AND SERVANT.

ENCROACHMENT,
on waste by tenant, rights of landlord, 748.
when Statute of Limitations runs against landlord, 748.

ENEMIES. See FOREIGN ENEMIES.

EQUITABLE ESTATES
and interests, transfer of, 292, 482.

EQUITABLE ESTOPPEL, principle of, when applicable to contracts for sale of land, 498.

EQUITABLE INTERESTS, of bankrupt, when passing to trustee, 269.

ERASURES
in contracts. See ALTERATION.

ESCROW,
delivery of deed as, 21.

ESTATE AGENTS,
duties and responsibilities of, 953.
right of, to commission, 959, 960.
on revocation of authority, 960.

ESTOPPEL,
by deed, 72.
confined to parties to contract, 72.
in pais, 72.
in case of covenants in feigned names, 315.
equitable, 498.
in sale of goods, by words or conduct, 592.
lease by, 654.
surrender of lease by, 717.

EVICTION,
of purchaser of realty from want of title in vendor, 520.
See TITLE. of tenants, extinction of rent by, 674, 675.
by railway companies, under statutory powers, 676.
of bailee by title paramount, 848.

EVIDENCE,
inadmissibility of oral evidence to add to, alter, or contradict written contract, 45, 46, 48, 64, 551.
admissibility of, of surrounding circumstances to explain intention, 46.
in case of latent ambiguity, 46.
patent ambiguity, 47.
oral testimony in aid of insufficient written evidence of contract, 67.
oral evidence of custom and usage, 69, 1128.
annexation of agricultural and mercantile customs, 69.
customary meaning of particular words, 70.
terms of art, 71.
trade acceptations, 71.
oral evidence of conditional assent, 71.
estoppel by deed, 72.
in pais, 72.
mistaken or untrue averments, 73.
discharge of contracts in writing before breach, by oral agreement, 171.
oral renunciation of claims on bills, 175.
oral evidence to explain alterations in contract, 191.
of agency, 324, 326, 348.
of warranty, 551.
of false and fraudulent representation, 551.
that party relied on it, 552.
of delivery of goods, 597, 598.
of terms of tenancy, 653.
of subject-matter of demise, 656.
of notice to quit, 730, 731.
of bailment, in action for loss of goods, 1076.
of special contract of carriage, 1077.
of jus tertii by carrier, 1078.
admissibility in, of unstamped documents, 1237.

EXCESSIVE DAMAGES,
rule as to, 285.
catching bargain, 285.

EXCHANGE OF OFFICES,
when legal, 86.

EXCHEQUER BONDS,
assignment of, 222.

EXCISE LAWS,
contracts in contravention of, 85, 110, 120.

EXCURSION TRAIN,
luggage taken by, implied promise by passenger to pay for, 1037.

EXECUTION,
on partnership property, for separate debt of partner, 361.
purchaser of goods with notice of, 596.

EXECUTOR DE SON TORT,
liability of, 254.

EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS,
contracts with, 414.
interest of, 415.
liabilities of, on their own contracts, 416.
for acts of each other, 417.
authentication of promises by, under Statute of Frauds, 29.

EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS—continued.
payment to one of several, 163, 164.
acknowledgment of debts by, 213, 214.
part payment by one of several, 218.
Land Transfer Act, 1897, position of, under, 241.
right of action of, for breach of covenant, 242.
transfer of trust and mortgage estates on death, 243.
covenants annexed to estates, pur autre vie, 243.
covenants annexed to leasehold estates and interests, 244.
bonds and personal covenants and simple contracts, 244.
executory contracts of deceased person, 245.
liability of real estate for debts of deceased, 246.
liabilities of, on covenants for payment of rent, 247.
covenants to repair, 248.
after assignment of term, 242, 248.
upon personal contracts, 249.
administration of assets, 249.
limitation of liability on covenants, 249.
application of assets in payment of debts, 250.
specialty and simple contract debts, 250.
protection under Judicial Trustees Act, 251.
order of payment of creditors, 252.
retention of debt due from deceased, 252.
compromise of action by creditor, 252.
defences in actions, 252, 253.
dilapidations, simple contract debt due from late incumbent, 253.
liability on executory contracts of deceased, 253.
joint liability of, 254.
executor de son tort, 254.
feme covert executrix, 255.
effect of appointment of, 255.
death of, 256.
continuation of chain of representation, 256.
administration de bonis non, 256.
survivorship of liability, 257.
appointment of debtor as executor or administrator, 258.
of creditor as executor, 258.
civil death, effect of, on rights of action as executor, 259.
felons, choses of action pass to administrator, 260.
joint and several contracts, 260.
survivorship of joint contractors, 260.
distress by, by statute, 781.
liability of, for negligence, in respect of assets, 845.

EXECUTORY ACCORD,
no bar to action, 184.

EXECUTORY CONTRACTS,
authentication of, required by deed, 42.
for sale of goods, 28, 528.
transfer of, by death, 245, 253.
with bankrupts, pass to trustee, 269.
for sale of shares, how effected, 639.

EXPECTANT HEIRS,
extortionate contracts with, 412.

EXPLOSIVES,
sale of, statutory provisions as to, 111.
carriage of, right of carriers by sea to refuse, 1014.
liability of consignor for damage caused, 1023.

EXPORT BONDS,
stamp duty on, abolition of, 1365.

EXPULSION OF WIFE,
by husband, what amounts to, 430.
liability of husband for necessaries, 430.

EXTORTION,
extortionate contracts with expectant heirs, 412.
money obtained by, recovery of, 463.

EXTRAS,
liability for, on deviations from building contracts, 886.
extra work by agent by order of principal, 958.

FACTORIES,
letting of standing place in, amounting to demise, 764.

FACTORS,
contracts made with, rights of, on, 32, 345.
amounting to guarantee, within Statute of Frauds, 32.
liability of, on del credere commissions, 32.
liabilities of, to their principals, 947, 948.
pledges by, 822.
provisions of Factors Acts, as to, 822.
mercantile agent, under, 823.
validity of pledge by, 822.
title of pledgee, when good, 823.
possession by, what constitutes, 822.
consent of owner to, 823.
rights acquired by exchange of goods or documents, 823.
agreements through clerk of, 823.
provisions as to, in case of consignees, 823.
disposition by seller remaining in possession, 824.
buyer obtaining possession, 824.
transfer of documents of title, effect of, on seller's lien, 825.
mode of transferring documents of title, 825.
lien of, extent of, 961, 962.
See AGENT—PLEDGE.

FAILURE OF CONSIDERATION,
effect of, on contract, 8.
recovery of money paid upon, 136, 632.
partial, general rule as to recovery of money, 137.
for bill of exchange, 1264.

FALSE PRETENCES,
money obtained by agents by, recovery of, 355.
See FRAUDULENT MISREPRESENTATION.

FALSE REPRESENTATION. See FRAUD.
rescission of contract on ground of, 126.

FAULTS,
sale of realty with all, 526.
of chattels with all, 577.
See FRAUD.

FEE FARM RENTS, limitation of suits for, 193.

FELLOWSHIP,
assignment of income of, 91.

FELONS,
disabilities of, 259.
under Forfeiture Act, 260.

FEME COVERT. See MARRIED WOMEN.

FENCES,
repair of, no implied contract by lessor for, 693.

FERRYMAN,
duties of, as common carrier, 1066.
liability of, for non-delivery of goods, 1066.

FIDELITY BOND,
for faithful service, 1087.

FIGURES,
in contracts, controlled by words, 48

FINDING of goods, duty of finder, 850.
of negotiable securities, 1308.

FIRE,
loss or destruction by, affording no answer to action for non-payment of rent, 674.
when tenant is excused, 762.
amounting to waste, 704.
to non-performance of covenant, 752.
limitation of liability of shipowners for loss by, 990.
loss by, in maritime insurance, 1177.
insurance by bailees against, 1220.

FIRE INSURANCE,
specific performance of contract of, 294.
contracts of fire insurance, 1212.
parties entitled to benefit of insurance, 1213.
things covered by policy, 1214.
warranties, statements and conditions, &c., amounting to, 1214.
alteration of premises increasing risk, 1215.
notice of alterations, 1215.
misdescription of insured premises, 1216.
fraudulent concealment of facts materially affecting risk, 1216.
risks covered by policy, 1216.
fires caused by negligence, 1218.
extraordinary risks, 1218.
notice of loss, 1218.
partial losses, 1218.
forfeiture of policy, 1218.
non-payment of premium, 1219.
days of grace, 1219.
divers insurances on same property, 1219.
insurances by warehousemen and bailees of customer's goods, 1220.
inability of insured to sue when no damage sustained, 1221.
rights of insurer and insured as against wrong-doers causing loss, 1221.
laying out insurance money in rebuilding, 1221.

FIRMS. See PARTNERSHIP.

FITNESS,
implied warranty or condition as to, on sale of goods, 564.
when goods sold to be used for specific purpose, 566.

FIXTURES,
meaning of term, generally, 695.
contracts for sale of, 633.
authentication of, 28, 633.
landlord's fixtures, what are, 696.
tenant's right to, on leaving, 696.
tenant's fixtures, what are, 696.
agricultural tenant's fixtures, removable by statute, 697.
under Landlord and Tenant Act, 697.
under Agricultural Holdings Act, 698.
under Small Holdings Act, 699.
ornamental, 699.
domestic and trade, 699.
by local custom and usage, 700. abandonment of right, 700, 703.
inability to remove after expiration of term, 701.
mortgagee's right to, after surrender of lease, 702.
distraint on, 783.
See DISTRESS.
mortgage of, 839.
right to, as between mortgagor and mortgagee, 840.
stamp duty on sale of, 1368.

FOOD,
sale of adulterated, statutory provision as to, 111.

FORBEARANCE,
of legal proceedings, good consideration for promise, 10.
See CONSIDERATION.

FORCIBLE ENTRY,
by landlord for purpose of ejecting tenant, 735.
in case of small tenements, 739.
licence to eject tenant in case of non-payment of rent, 736.

FORECLOSURE,
of right of redemption of pledge, 826.
pledgee's power of sale, 826.

FOREIGN CONTRACTS,
made in one country and enforced in another, 58.
interpretation of, 58, 60.
bonds, bills, and notes, interpretation of, 60.
foreign purchases, 63.
foreign affreightments, 63.
what detremines locus contractûs, 63.
when enforceable in this country, 122.
void foreign contracts, 122.
debts contracted abroad, effect of discharge in bankruptcy on, 199.
limitations of actions upon, 219.
specific performance of, general rule as to, 307.
protest and noting of foreign bills, 1276.
re-exchange, 1276.
stamp on, 1338.

FOREIGN ENEMIES,
illegality of contracts with, 103, 437.
unless made pursuant to licence to trade, 103, 437.

FOREIGN FRIENDS,
contracts with, legality of, 437.

FOREIGN GOVERNMENT,
privilege of agent of, from being sued, 439.
Statute of Limitations does not run against agent, 439.

FOREIGN JUDGMENTS,
implied contracts in respect of, 454.
recovered, effect of, 194.
when conclusive inter partes, 194.

FOREIGN MONEY,
payment in, 470.

FOREIGN PRINCIPALS,
contracts on behalf of, liability of agent on, 348.

FOREIGN SCRIP,
transfer of, 1289.
stamp on, 1349.

FOREMEN,
authority of, to bind employer, 338.

FORFEITURE,
of deposits on sale of lands, 509.
of lease, 708.
provisoes for re-entry on, 709.
effect of, on lessee's liability on covenants, 712.
waiver of, 713.
lessor's right of election, 713.
relief against, 714.
See RELIEF AGAINST FORFEITURE.
where no notice to remedy breach given, 714.
for breach of covenant to insure or pay rent, 714, 715.
assignment after, 715.
of pledges, 862.
of policies of fire insurance, 1218.
of policies of life insurance, 1229.
waiver of, 1231.

FORFEITURE ACT, 1870, disabilities of felons under, 260.

FORGED SECURITIES,
recovery of money paid for, 137.

FORGED TRANSFERS,
registration of, 648.
effect of registration of, 648.
liability of company for, 649.
power of company to compensate registered purchasers, 649, note (e).

FORGERY
of cheques, drafts, and orders, 857, 1259.
forged indorsements, 858, 1259.
recovery of money paid for forged bills, notes, or securities, 137, 466.

FORNICATION. See ILLEGAL CONTRACTS.
contracts tending to promote, void, 76.

FORWARDING AGENTS,
as distinguished from agents for custody, 537.
not bound to see quality of goods corresponds with contract, 948.

FRAUD,
by agent, misrepresentations avoiding contract, 333.
money obtained by agent by, 355.
See AGENT.
contracts in fraud of masters and employers, 86.
See ILLEGAL CONTRACTS.
fraudulent gifts, trust deeds, and settlements made by debtor, 84, 87.

FRAUD—continued.
on creditors, 87.
enabling deceived party to avoid contract, 124.
by agents on third parties, 127.
by directors of companies, 127.
fraudulent misreading of deed, 129.
effect of, 129.
determination of power to avoid contract on ground of, 130.
constructive fraud, 131.
by trustees, agents, &c., 131, 132.
by partner, on his co-partners, 362.
recovery of money obtained by, on sale of land, 526.
on sale of goods, 572.
fraudulent releases, Court will set aside, 177.
puffers at sales by auction of land, 476.
of goods, 632.
avoiding contract for sale of realty, 525.
See SALE OF LAND.
for sale of goods, 572.
See SALE OF GOODS.
by agents on their principals, 957.
on sureties, 1098.
on parties to marriage contract, 1321, 1322.

FRAUDS BY SERVANTS AND AGENTS,
rendering master or principal responsible, 127.

FRAUDS (STATUTE OF),
See AUTHENTICATION.
contracts relating to sale of lands or interest in lands, 22.
as affecting leases, 22.
part performance takes case out of, 23.
furnished houses and lodgings, 24.
sale of milk-walk, 25.
agreements to alter and repair buildings, 25.
services in connection with transfer of land, 25, 26.
agreements concerning landmarks, 26.
agreements for growing crops, grass, timber, &c., 26.
executory contracts for sale of goods, 28.
See SALE OF GOODS.
fixtures, 28, 633.
shares, not within the statute, 29.
promises by executors and administrators, 3, 29.
promises to answer for debt, default, or miscarriage of another, 29.
operation of statute on, 30, 31.
collateral undertakings, 31, 32.
agreements in consideration of marriage, 33, 1312.
agreements not to be performed within year, 34.
part performance does not take case out of statute, 34.
performance of contract depending on uncertain event, 35.
contract not enforceable by reason of statute not void, 36.
requisites of memorandum, 36.
on sale of goods, 37.
agreement for service, 38.
agreement for lease, 38.
promise to answer for debt, default, &c., of another, 38.
signature, 39.
by agents, 41.
unconscientious use of, 42.

FRAUDULENT CONCEALMENT,
by debtor compounding with creditor, 87, 88.
by agents, 127, 333.

FRAUDULENT CONCEALMENT—continued.
by principal, by means of his own agent, 127.
avoiding contracts, 126.
for sale of lands, 525.
of chattels, 575.
of dangerous character of article bailed, 901.
liability of bailor for injury from, 901.
in marine insurance cases, 1122, 1123.
in fire insurance, 1216.
in life insurance, 1226.
by agents, 1227.
avoiding treaty of marriage, 1314.
or contract of betrothment, 1314.

FRAUDULENT MISAPPROPRIATION,
by one partner, of money deposited with firm, 851.

FRAUDULENT MISREPRESENTATION,
by agents, 127, 333.
avoiding contracts, 126.
by directors of joint-stock companies, 127.
on sale of lands, 525.
of chattels, 572.
avoiding sale, 572.
made through third party, 573.
by insurers, 1122, 1216, 1226.
in contracts to marry, 1314.

FRAUDULENT PREFERENCE. See COMPOSITION DEEDS—FRAUD.

FRAUDULENT RELEASE,
to defeat action, Court will set aside, 177.

FRAUDULENT REMOVAL,
to avoid distress, seizure of goods after, 794.

FREEHOLD LAND SOCIETIES.
distinction between, and benefit building societies, 403.
contracts with, 403.

FREIGHT,
See CHARTER-PARTY.
payment of, under charter-party, 993.
calculation of, 996.
payment pro ratâ, 997.
time freight, 997.
shipowners' lien for freight, 998.
payment of freight by consignee, 998.
in respect of sub-freight, 998.
payment of freight under bills of lading, 999.

FREIGHT POLICIES,
insurable interest in freight, 1108, 1109.
in advance freight, 1109, 1111, 1142. meaning of freight in marine insurance, 1141.
when risk attaches, 1141.
rights of insurer as to freight on abandonment, 1189.
See MARINE INSURANCE.

FRIENDLY SOCIETIES,
contracts with, 401.
loans of money to, 401.
salaries of officers of, 403.

FRUIT,
sale of, 26.
See CROPS.

FUNDS,
sale and transfer of stock in the, 649.
specific performance of, when decreed, 649.

FURNISHED HOUSES AND APARTMENTS,
letting and hiring of, 24, 760.
when infested with bugs and nuisances, 673, 761.
liabilities of hirers of, 761, 762.
notice to quit, 763.
stamp duty, 1357.
See LODGING-HOUSE KEEPER—NOTICE TO QUIT.

FURNITURE,
letting and hiring of, implied warranty as to, 806.

FUTURE GOODS,
meaning of, in contract for sale, 539.

GAMBLING,
in the funds, 106.

GAME,
illegal contracts as to ground game, 89.
sale of, without licence, 110.
penalty for, 110.

GAMING CONTRACTS,
illegality of, 103.
effect of avoidance of, 122.
lawful and unlawful games, 107, 849.
securities for money won at play or lent for gaming, when void, 108.
money knowingly lent for gaming, not recoverable, 108.
money in hands of depositaries, when recoverable, 123.
by infants, 412.
gaming policies of insurance, 1109, 1223.

GARNISHEE,
payment by, valid discharge as against judgment debtor, 162.

GAS,
stop-cocks, liability of tenant as to, 705.
pipes, liability of tenant for damage from, 705.
supply of, duty of gas company in respect of, 705.
meters, exemption of, from distress, 789.
stoves, let for hire by gas company, exemption of, from distress, 789, note (m).
wilful breach of contract to supply, 936.
penalty for, 936.

GENERAL AND PARTICULAR AVERAGE,
as used in contracts of insurance, 1196.
average and total losses, 1199.

GENERAL AVERAGE AND CONTRIBUTION,
nature of, 1008, 1196—1199.
liability of shipowner, and owners of goods shipped on board for payment of, 1008, 1196—1199.

GOODS,
authentication of contracts for sale of, 28, 528.
See SALE OF GOODS.
part payment by delivery, 216.

GOODS—continued.
bargained and sold, 622.
sold and delivered, 623.
sold on credit, 624.
letting of chattels, 805.
See BAILMENT.
mortgage of, 817.
See PLEDGE.
imperfect hypothecation of, 829.
See HYPOTHECATION.

"GOODS SPECIE AND EFFECTS,"
what is included in term, in marine insurance, 1127.

GOODWILL,
sale of bankrupt's, authority of trustee, 271.
specific performance of sale of, 294.
stamp duty on sale of, 1345.

GOVERNMENT AGENTS,
contracts with, non-liability of agents, 353.

GOVERNMENT (FOREIGN),
privilege of, from actions, 439.

GOVERNMENT STOCK,
transfers of, exemption from stamp duty, 1366.

GRACE,
days of. See DAYS OF GRACE.

GRANT,
meaning of word, 448, 522.
of incorporeal hereditaments, must be by deed, 634.
See INCORPOREAL HEREDITAMENTS.

GRASS,
contract for sale of, when an interest in land, 26.

GRATUITOUS BAILMENTS. See BAILMENT WITHOUT REWARD.

GRATUITOUS COMMISSION. See BAILMENT WITHOUT REWARD.

GRATUITOUS PROMISES,
nature and effect of, 2—5.
revocation of, 16.

GRATUITOUS SERVICES,
nature of, 873.

GROUND GAME,
illegal contracts as to, 89.

GROUND RENT,
payment of, by tenant under compulsion by superior landlord, 677.
deduction thereof by tenant from rent, 676, 677.

GROWING CROPS. See CROPS.

GUARANTEE,
consideration for, 12.
adequacy of, 12, 13.
contracts in the nature of, 30.
nature and effect of, 1079.
authentication of, 29, 30, 1080.
under Statute of Frauds, 1080, 1081.
primary and secondary liabilities, 1081.

GUARANTEE—continued.
statement of consideration on face of, 1082.
incomplete contract of, 1083.
fidelity bonds, 1084.
construction of recitals of, 1084.
where office for life, 1084.
where duration of employment uncertain, 1084.
change in employment, 1084.
notice of, 1084.
where office is annual office, 1085.
duration and extent of surety's liability, 1085.
release of surety, 1085.
by change in employment of principal, 1086.
by statutory change in duties of public office, 1086.
where surety deprived of his remedy against principal, 1087.
bonds under seal to partnerships and associations, 1087.
release by change in constitution of firm, 1087.
limitation of liability of surety, 1088.
in case of floating balance, 1088.
continuing liabilities, 1088.
construction of contracts under seal, 1089.
not under seal, 1089.
revocation of contract not under seal, 1089.
application of Statute of Limitations to, 1089, 1094.
guarantees not importing continuing liability, 1090.
conditions precedent to liability of surety, 1083, 1090.
duty of person guaranteed, 1091.
duty of employer to inform surety of employee's dishonest acts, 1092.
alteration of principal obligation discharging surety, 1092.
extension of time of payment, 1093.
when surety not discharged by, 1094.
by acceptance of collateral security by creditor, 1094.
by assenting to alteration of principal obligation, 1094.
Statute of Limitations, when pleadable as a defence, 1094.
suretyship where relation does not appear upon face of contract, 1095.
release of principal debt, effect of, 1096.
discharge of surety, 1017.
release of principal obligation, reserving remedies against surety, 1096.
what amounts to an absolute release, 1097.
release of one of several co-sureties, 1097.
payment by principal debtor, effect of, 1097.
fraud on sureties, 1098.
discharge of surety by death of principal, 1099.
death of surety, notice of by executor to creditor, 1099.
indemnification of sureties, 1100.
implied promise by principal to indemnify surety, 1100.
payment of debt constitutes surety simple contract creditor of principal, 1100.
compromise of action by surety, after notice to principal, 1100.
right of principal to defend action brought against surety, 1100.
contribution between co-sureties, 1100.
principal creditor not entitled to benefit of collateral securities given to surety, 1102.
death of co-surety, does not determine liability of survivor, 1102.

GUARANTEE—continued.
indemnification of sureties—continued.
assignment of judgments and securities for surety's indemnification, 1102.
judgment against principal not binding sureties, 1103.
breach of contracts of indemnity, 1104.
bankruptcy of principal debtor, 1104.
recovery of interest on money paid by sureties, 1104.
guarantees by one of several partners in name of firm, 1105.
stamp on, 1265.

GUARDIANS OF THE POOR. See PARISH OFFICERS.

GUEST. See INNKEEPER.

HAY AND STRAW,
covenants to consume on land, 746.
breach of, by sale off land, 740.
action for value under Sale of Farming Stock Act, 746.
mode of estimating value, 746, 747.
measure of damages for, 753.

HEIR-AT-LAW,
transfer of real estate under Land Transfer Act, 1897...241.
descent of real and personal covenants entered into with ancestor, 241.
right of action of, in respect of continuing breaches of real covenants, 242.
transfer of trust and mortgage estates on death, 243.
transfer of covenants annexed to estates pur autre vie, 243.
liabilities of, upon covenants running with the land, 247.
See COVENANTS RUNNING WITH THE LAND.

HEIRS,
extortionate contracts with expectant, 412.

HEREDITAMENTS,
sale of corporeal. See SALE OF LANDS.
sale of incorporeal. See INCORPOREAL HEREDITAMENTS.

HIGHWAY ACTS,
contracts by rural district councillors allowed under, 117.

HIRING AND SERVICE. See MASTER AND SERVANT.

HIRING OF GOODS. See BAILMENT FOR HIRE. purchase by hirer, acceptance and receipt of goods on, 534.

HOLDING OUT,
as partner, liability of person, 364.

HOLDING OVER,
after expiration of lease, effect of, 732.
in case of sub-tenant, 732.
in case of one joint-tenant, 732.
effect of payment of rent, 732, 733.
double yearly value for, liability for, 733.
action for, 733.
by whom maintainable, 733.
after notice to tenant to quit, 733, 734.
holding over must be wilful and contumacious, 733.
effect of waiver of notice to quit, 734.
double rent for, 734.
damages recoverable for, 754.

HONORARY SERVICES
by barristers, &c., 873.

HORSES,
sale of, 546—549.
See WARRANTY.
in market overt, restrictions on, 594.
letting and hiring of, 805—809.
warranty of fitness, 806.
duties of hirer, 807.
borrowing and lending of, 810—814.
care to be exercised, 811.
loss from ordinary casualties, 812.
misuser by borrower, 812.
want of skill, 813.
See BAILMENT WITHOUT REWARD.

HOUSE AGENTS,
duties and responsibilities of, 953.
right of, to commission, 959.
when their authority has been revoked, 960.

HOUSES,
demise of uninhabitable, 673.
recovery of possession of, and small tenements, 739.

HUSBAND. See MARRIED WOMEN.

HYPOTHECATION,
nature and effect of, 818.
imperfect hypothecation of goods and chattels, 829.
licence to seize for non-payment of debt, 829.
revocation of licence by act of bankruptcy, 831.
hypothecation of ships, 831.
maritime lien, 834.
See MARITIME LIEN.
bottomry, 834.
See BOTTOMRY BOND.
power of shipmaster to hypothecate, 835.
lien on vessels causing damage, 837.
priority of maritime liens, 838.
of cargo and merchandise, 838.
illegal pledge of certificate of registry of ship, 839.
mortgage of fixtures, 839.
mortgage of shares and stock, 841.

ILLEGAL CONTRACTS,
distinction between void and voidable, 75.
by registered joint-stock companies, 385.
(1) Void contracts,
immoral contracts, 75.
contracts tending to promote fornication and prostitution, 76.
contracts against public policy, generally, 77, 78.
providing for future separation of husband and wife, 78.
deeds of separation, when enforceable, 78.
in restraint of marriage, 78, 1310.
maintenance, 79.
champerty, 80.
obstructing or interfering with administration of public justice, 81—83.
in contravention of policy of Act of Parliament, 83.
of Bankruptcy Acts, 84.
for evasion of licensing, and excise Acts, 85.
ante-dating of apprenticeship articles, 85.
lease for use of premises contrary to statute, 85.
parish indemnities, agreements with overseers, when not void, 85, 86.

ILLEGAL CONTRACTS—continued.
void contracts—continued.
contracts against public policy—continued.
sale of letters of recommendation and public offices of trust, 86.
in fraud of masters and employers, 86.
of creditors, 87.
contracts made illegal by statutes, 88. illegal partnerships, 89.
as to ground game, 89.
as to compensation under Agricultural Holdings Act, 90.
as to payment of tithe rent-charge, 90.
as to stamp duty, 90.
sale of offices, 91.
sale of or charge on pensions, 92.
simoniacal contracts, 93.
resigning and charging benefices, 94.
contracts in restraint of industry and trade, 95, 97—102.
trade unions, 96.
contracts restraining exercise of trade or profession in particular localities, 97.
contracts creating monopolies, 102.
contracts with foreign enemies, 103.
gaming contracts and wagers, 103—107.
lotteries, 107.
betting-house keepers, 107.
lawful games, 107.
notes, bills, and mortgages given to secure money won at, or lent for play, 108.
money knowingly lent for gaming, 108.
sale by illegal weights and measures, 108.
coinage, 109.
illegal sale of coals, 110.
of game, 110.
of spirituous liquors, 110.
of poison, 111.
of adulterated food, 111.
of explosive substances, 111.
of chain-cables and anchors, 111.
smuggling, 112.
sale of exciseable articles, 112.
Sunday sales and trading, 113.
contracts for prohibited services, 114.
unauthorised medical practitioners, 115.
unstamped contract notes, 116.
unauthorised sea insurance transactions, 116.
uncertificated solicitors, 117.
contracts by rural district councillors, 117.
illegality of contracts for payment of work otherwise than in current coin, 117.
the truck system, 117—120.
divisible contracts, part being good and part bad, 120.
indivisible, illegal, and void contracts, 121.
void foreign contracts, 122.
effect of avoidance, 122.
money in hands of depositaries and stakeholders, 123.
(2) Voidable contracts,
avoidance of contracts on ground of fraud and unfair dealing, 124—126.
false representations, 126.
fraudulent concealment, 126.
fraud by means of agents, 127.
fraudulent misrepresentations by directors of companies, 127—129.

ILLEGAL CONTRACTS—continued.
voidable contracts—continued.
avoidance of contracts—continued.
fraudulent mis-reading of deed, 129.
effect of fraud, 129.
determination of power of avoidance, 130.
constructive fraud by trustees, agents, &c., 131.
duress, agreements made under, 133.
by young persons, 413.
mistake, contracts made under, 133.
rectification of, 134.
failure of consideration, 136.
partial failure, 137.
recovery of money paid for forged bonds, forged shares, and void securities, 137.
money received under, 137.
implied promise to refund, 467.
illegal pledge of certificate of registry of ship, 839.
marriage brokerage contracts, 1310.
illegal marriages, 1319.

ILLEGITIMATE CHILD,
promise to pay money for maintenance of, 6, 7.
promise by mother to release father of, on present money payment, 76.
promise to give up, 78.

IMBECILITY. See LUNATICS.

IMMORAL CONTRACTS. See ILLEGAL CONTRACTS.

IMPLIED CONTRACTS,
nature and effect of, 446.
implied covenants, 448.
implied promises, 449.
joint interests in implied contracts, 318.
liability of agents on, 348—357.
See AGENTS.
with firms in partnership, 358.
with corporations, 374.
between vendor and purchaser of goods, 559.
See WARRANTY.
annexed to contracts for sale of shares, 644.
of carriers to carry safely, 984.
part execution of special contract, 453.
for sale of goods, 454.
of indemnity, 454.
with respect to foreign judgments, 454.
implied contracts by statute, 455.
in respect of money paid for another, 455—462.
See MONEY PAID.
money received, 460—470.
See MONEY HAD AND RECEIVED.
account stated, 470—473.
See ACCOUNT STATED.

IMPLIED COVENANTS,
as between landlord and tenant, 52, 448.
annexed to estates or interests in land, 238.

IMPLIED PROMISES,
effect of, 449.
in respect of money paid for another, 455.
resulting from executory contracts of sale, 559.
resulting from services, 873, 874.
to do work well, 889.

IMPLIED REQUESTS,
action on, to pay money, 8, 456.

IMPLIED STIPULATIONS,
effect of, 56.

IMPLIED WARRANTY. See WARRANTY.
by letters of furnished houses and lodgings, 760.
of title by pledgor, 821.
in marine insurance, 1161, 1162.
See MARINE INSURANCE.
in fire insurance, 1214.
See FIRE INSURANCE.
in life insurance, 1226.
See LIFE INSURANCE.

IMPOSITION,
money obtained by, recovery of, 463.

IMPOSSIBILITY,
of performance of contracts, 147.
in case of carriers, 979.
See PERFORMANCE.

IMPOUNDING GOODS,
impounded goods cannot be re-taken by tenant, 778.
on premises to secure distress, legal by statute, 797.
what constitutes, 797, 798.
duty of distrainor to find proper pound, 798, 799.
to feed cattle in pound, 799.
improper use of goods by distrainor, actionable, 799.
re-capture of goods by distrainor, where pound broken, 799.
where distrainor must impound on premises, 799.
procedure thereon, 799.
sale of impounded goods, 799.
return of goods on payment of rent and charges, 800.

IMPRISONMENT OF HUSBAND, effect of, on marital rights, 432.

INCLOSURE OF WASTE LAND,
by tenant, rights of landlord, 748.
when Statute of Limitation begins to run against landlord, 748.

INCOME TAX,
deduction of, from rent, 677.

INCOMING PARTNERS,
liabilities of, novation, 365.

INCOMING TENANTS. See OUTGOING TENANTS.

INCOMPETENCY,
of parties to contracts. See PARTIES TO CONTRACTS.
of workmen, 889.
dismissal of skilled servant for, 931.

INCORPOREAL HEREDITAMENTS,
grants and assignments of, authentication of, 634—650.
sale of patent right, 636.
shares in limited company, 636.
shares in mining company, 636.
mode of establishing title to, 637.
partners in mining company hold as trustees, 637.
mode of selling, 637.
cesser of vendor's liability, 637.

INCORPOREAL HEREDITAMENTS—continued.
sale of patent right—continued.
shares and letters of allotment, 638.
title to, 638.
registration of, 638.
certificate primâ facie evidence of title, 638.
transfer of shares of deceased member, 639.
registration of transferee of, 639.
executory contracts for sale of shares, how effected, 639 practice as to, 639.
in case of banking company, 639.
when property in shares passes, 639.
equitable ownership, transfer of, 640.
dividends on shares, to whom payable, 640.
petition for winding up company, effect of, 640.
agreements for transfer of shares, 640.
specific performance of, when decreed, 640, 649.
mode of performance, 641—644.
time of performance, 644.
implied undertakings, 644, 645.
payment of calls, 644.
rights of scripholders, 645.
transfer deeds, 646.
share certificates, 647.
registration of forged transfers, 648.
mortgage of incorporeals, generally, 841.

INDEMNIFICATION,
of master by servant, for servant's negligence, 930.
of agent by principal, 967.
of surety by principal, 1100.
by co-sureties, 1100.
by assignment of judgments and securities, 1102.
breach of contracts of, 1104.

INDEMNITY,
parish, legality of, 85.
implied contracts of, 454.

INDEPENDENT COVENANTS AND PROMISES,
liability in respect of, 55.

INDIA BONDS,
assignment of, 222.

INDIVISIBLE CONTRACTS. See ILLEGAL CONTRACTS.
illegality of, 121.
contract for performance of illegal act, 121.
founded on legal and illegal consideration, 121.
fraud on creditors, 122.
immorality, 122.
agreements void under Statute of Frauds, 122.
agreements for payment in counterfeit money, 122

INDORSEMENT,
of bills of exchange and promissory notes, 1241.
transfer by, 1252, 1253.
restraining negotiability of bill or note, 1246, 1251.
intermediate infirmities of title, 1255.
fraudulent indorsements, 1258.
forged, 1259.
responsibilities of bankers as to, 858.
indorsement of overdue bills and notes, 1260.
liability of indorser, 1266.
delivery without, transfer by, 1280.
by agents, 349.
by partners, 363.

INDORSEMENT—continued.
of bill of lading, 590.
of delivery order, 611.
of assignment of marine policy, 1114.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES,
contracts with, statutory provisions regulating, 401.
See FRIENDLY SOCIETIES.

INFANT,
confirmation of promises by, 44, 405, 411.
officer of corporation, incapacity to contract, 373.
contracts with, generally, 404.
by infant agents, 330.
ratification by principal, 330.
under Infants' Relief Act, 404.
guaranteeing, 32.
not enforceable, 405, 406.
rights of, under Statute of Limitations, 203.
ex contractu, 407.
contracts binding on, 407.
test as to, 404, 405, 406. power to grant leases, 407, 408.
necessary repairs to dwelling-house, 408.
custom of gavelkind to sell land, 408.
for necessaries, 404, 408.
liability of parent, 408.
what are necessaries, 408.
onus of proof on plaintiff, 408, note (e).
what are not necessaries, 409.
what may or may not be necessaries according to circumstances, 410.
reasonable price payable for goods supplied, 528.
purchase of estates and shares in companies, 411.
avoidance of contracts made by, 411.
in respect of bills of exchange, 412.
loans void in law, 412.
ratification of promises by, 44, 405, 411.
extortionate contracts with expectant heirs, 412.
undue influence, avoiding contract with, 413.
obligation of parent to provide for, 413.

INJUNCTION,
to compel performance or restrain breach of contract, 300.
of covenants to expend hay and manure on farm, 301.
not to let, 301.
not to carry on certain trades, 301.
to perform duties of directors, 302.
positive and negative agreements, 302, 303.
agreements to sing, 302.
of charter-party, 303.
to grant easements, 303.
not to build, plant, or inclose, 303.
to compel parties to abide by their own statements and representations, 306.
in case of foreign contracts, 307.
where option to take liquidated damages, 307.
to restrain waste, 706.
against railway company under Railway and Canal Act, 1063.

INNKEEPER,
common, who is, 764.
distinction between, and lodging-house keeper, 765.
duty of, to receive guest, 765.
liability to damages for breach of duty, 765.
extent of obligation, 766.

INNKEEPER—continued.
duty of—continued.
protection of guest from loss of goods, 766.
by robbery, 767.
limitation of liability by statute, 769.
who is a guest or traveller, 769.
ceases when guest no longer a traveller, 770.
question of fact, 765, 770.
lien of, to what goods it attaches, 771.
goods held in nature of a pledge, 771.
when lost or destroyed, 771, 772.
distress for rent, goods of guest at inn exempt from, 791

INSANITY. See LUNATICS.

INSOLVENCY,
of purchaser of goods, rights of unpaid seller on, 608.
right of vendor to countermand delivery order and stop goods, 609.
See DELIVERY ORDER—STOPPAGE IN TRANSITU.

INSTALMENTS,
delivery of goods by, remedies for breach of contract for, 173, 602.

INSURABLE INTEREST,
in contracts of marine insurance, 1108—1114.
life insurance, 1223—1226.

INSURANCE,
contracts of, nature of, generally, 1105, 1106.
mutual, what constitutes, 1106.
under Marine Insurance Act, 1106.
modification of, 1106.
policies of, nature of, 1107.
reference to slip in legal proceedings, 1107.
See BURGLARY—FIRE INSURANCE—LIFE INSURANCE—MARINE INSURANCE.

INSURANCE BROKERS,
right of, to commission, 116, 959.
payment to, by underwriter in money, 161.
liabilities of, to their principals, 949.
lien of, 962.
See AGENCY.

INSURANCE COMPANIES,
contracts with, liability of funds for, 390, 391.
novation in case of, 182.
winding up of, 1235.

INSURE,
breach of covenant to, 1239.

INTENTION OF PARTIES,
in sale of goods, 579.
how ascertained, 579.

INTEREST,
payment of, taking debt out of operation of Statute of Limitations, 215.
operating as admission of debt, 217.
by one of several joint debtors and co-contractors, 218.
by strangers and agents, 219.
in actions upon contracts, recovery of, as damages, 279, 632.
notice of claim of, 280.
on money paid by sureties, recovery of, 1104.

INTEREST IN LAND. See FRAUDS (STATUTE OF).

"INTEREST OR NO INTEREST." See MARINE INSURANCE.

INTERLINEATIONS, to correct mistake, or add new term to written contract, 189.
evidence to explain, 191.
See ALTERATION.

INTERPLEADER,
between rival claimants to property held by depositaries and stakeholders, 850.

INTERPRETATION,
of contracts, 45.
evidence of surrounding circumstances, 46.
latent ambiguity, 46.
patent ambiguity, 47.
figures and words at length, 48.
repugnant and void limitations of liability, 48.
limitation of liability to particular fund, 49.
words amounting to a covenant, 50.
words of proviso and condition, 51.
covenants by implication of law, 52.
bonds and obligations, 53.
dependent and independent covenants, 53.
conditions precedent, 53.
waiver of conditions precedent, 55.
independent covenants and promises, 55.
covenants founded on mutuality of obligation and liability, 56.
implied stipulations, 56.
usual covenants, 57.
computation of time, 57.
contracts made in one country and enforced in another, See FOREIGN CONTRACTS.
evidence to explain. See EVIDENCE.
of warranties, on sale of goods, 553.
admissibility of oral evidence. See ORAL EVIDENCE—CUSTOM.

INVESTMENT,
bailment of money for, 862.

INVITATION TO ALIGHT FROM TRAINS, without warning of danger, amounting to negligence, 1025.

I O U,
primâ facie evidence of account stated, 470.
of promise to pay, 471

IRRESPONSIBLE PRINCIPALS,
agents of, non-liability of, 353.

JETTISON,
loss by, a peril of the sea, 987.
average adjustment for, 1013.
of goods stowed on deck, when excluded from general average, 1010.
insurance against, 1177.
See GENERAL AVERAGE AND CONTRIBUTION.

JOB. See TASKWORK.

JOINT BAILMENTS,
of goods and chattels to bailees, 848.
rights of action of joint owners, against bailees, 913.
of money to stakeholders, 849,
to bankers, 855.
to common carriers, 1069,

JOINT CONTRACTORS,
rights of, 315.
joint and separate rights of action, 315, 848, 913.
tenants in common and joint tenants, 317.
joint assignees of estates with covenants annexed, 238.
See PARTIES TO CONTRACTS.
joint interests in implied contracts, 318.
liabilities of, 319.
of executors and administrators on their own contracts, 416.
for acts of each other, 417.
of infant executor, 418.
See EXECUTORS.
rights and liabilities of joint contractors inter se, 318, 456.
See CONTRIBUTION.
release of, 175.
accord and satisfaction with one of several, 188.
acknowledgment by one of several, 213.
part payment by one of several, 218.
survivorship of, 260.

JOINT CONTRACTS. See PARTNERSHIP.
with executors, 254.
joint retainer or employment, 315.
joint services, 315.
joint and separate interests of covenantees, 316.
joint and separate interests in implied contracts, 318.
joint and several liabilities ex contractu, 319.
joint and several premises, 320.
joint and several purchases, 321, 324.
joint bailments of goods or money, 848, 913.
joint account with bankers, 855.

JOINT-STOCK BANKING CO-PARTNERSHIPS,
contracts with, 391.
established under Country Bankers Act, 392.
See BANKING—CO-PARTNERSHIP—CONTRIBUTORIES.

JOINT-STOCK COMPANY,
fraudulent misrepresentation by directors of, 127.
contracts with, 379.
provisional contracts with, 381.
requisites of contracts with, 380.
contracts by agents of, 381.
in violation of provisions of articles of association, 381.
debentures and floating charges, 383.
liability of company and its officers, 384.
effect of winding-up order, 385.
contracts with co-partnerships and associations authorised to sue and be sued in name of secretary, treasurer, or public officer, 388.
liability of public officer, 389.
liabilities of managers and shareholders of mining companies, 389.
proof of parties being shareholders, 390.
contracts with insurance companies, 391.
contracts with banking co-partnership, 392.
established under County Bankers Act, 392.
liabilities of provisional directors and committeemen, 393.
powers and responsibilities of provisional committeemen, 394.
contracts with committees of clubs, 395.
distress on goods of, 792.
exemption from, where company in liquidation, 792.
loans to, 815.

JOINT-STOCK COMPANY—continued.
mortgage of shares in, 841.
bills and notes by, 1306.
See PROVISIONAL COMMITTEES—RAILWAY COMPANIES.

JOINT TENANTS,
rights of, 317.
tenants in common, 317.
on covenants running with land, 238.
use and occupation by one of several, 684.
surrender and acceptance of surrender by, 719.
distress by, 780.

JUDGMENT RECOVERED,
effect of, 192.
county court judgment, 192.
foreign and colonial judgments, 194.
against principal not binding surety, 1103.

JUDICIAL SEPARATION, effect of decree for, 431.
liability of husband for necessaries, where alimony ordered, 431.
rights of creditors before decree, preservation of, 431.

JUDICIAL TRUSTEES ACT, 1896, protection of trustees for breach of trust, 251.
remuneration of judicial trustees under, 958, note (f).

JUS TERTII,
on account stated, 472.
between landlord and tenant, 739.
pawnor and pawnee, 821, 828, 906.
bailor and bailee, 848, 850, 911, 912.
banker and customer, 855.
principal and agent, 954.
common carrier and consignee, proof of, 1078.

JUSTICE,
illegality of contracts tending to obstruct administration of, 81.

KING'S ENEMIES,
loss by, exemption of carrier by water from, 987.
exemption of common carrier from, 1026.

LAND. See SALE OF LANDS.
authentication of contracts affecting, 22—27.
limitation of actions for money charged on, 199.

LANDLORD AND TENANT,
authentication of leases, 22, 42.
interpretation and construction of leases, 70, 72.
See LEASE.
covenants running with land, 227, 229, 668, 749.
See COVENANTS RUNNING WITH LAND.
transfer of covenant by death, 241, 243.
effect of assignment on covenants, 248.
specific performance of agreement to grant lease, 294.
of contracts to renew leases, 294.
of contracts to erect buildings, 295.
leases, 651.
agreements for leases, 22, 42, 651.
present demises, 652.
proof of terms of holding, 653.

LANDLORD AND TENANT—continued.
leases—continued.
lease by estoppel, 654.
as against lessee, 654.
as against lessor, 654.
demises by agents, 655.
ascertainment and identification of subject-matter of demise, 656.
things appurtenant, 656.
what passes by lease, 657.
commencement and duration of, 657.
leases from year to year, 659.
half-yearly, quarterly, monthly, and weekly hirings, 661.
tenancy at will, 661.
tenancy by sufferance, 663.
leases under powers, 664.
rights and liabilities of lessor and lessee, 664. covenants for quiet enjoyment, 665.
for payment of rent, 667.
not to "let, set, or demise," 668—670.
non-execution of lease by lessee, 670.
non-execution of lease by lessor, 671.
concealment of latent defects, 672.
demises of poisoned herbage, 673.
of houses unfit for habitation, 673.
warranty of reasonable fitness for habitation under Working Classes Act, 673, 674.
rooms infested with bugs, 673.
payment of rent, 674.
exception of damage by fire, 674.
extinction and suspension of rent by eviction, 674, 675.
eviction by railway companies under statutory powers, 676.
assignment of reversion, 676.
payment of ground rent by tenant, 676.
deduction thereof from tenant's rent, 676.
deduction of income-tax, land-tax, sewers rate, and other outgoings from rent, 677—680.
right to distrain for rent, 680, 772.
See DISTRESS FOR RENT.
extinguishment of right to distrain by assignment of reversion, 681.
apportionment of rent, 681.
action for use and occupation, 681, 750.
constructive occupation, 682.
use and occupation by one of several joint tenants, or tenants in common, 684.
covenants and agreements to repair, 685.
liability of tenant for damage to demised premises, 689.
waste, permissive, by tenant for years, 689.
commissive, by tenant for term of years, 690.
by tenant from year to year, 692.
timber trees, right of landlord to enter and cut, 691.
duty of tenant to preserve landlord's landmarks and boundaries, 691.
repair of fences, no implied agreement by landlord as to, 691.
restrictive covenants as to user of premises, 305, 694.
fixtures. See FIXTURES. licence to commit waste, 704.
right of reversioners to enter to inspect waste, 704.
injuries from fire, 704.
damages for, 705.
improvement by tenant no answer to action, 705.

LANDLORD AND TENANT—continued.
waste—continued.
damages—continued.
breach of duty to rebuild, measure of damages, 705.
covenant not to commit waste, measure of damages, 706.
injunction to restrain waste, 706.
acquiescence in commission of waste, effect of, 707.
right of property in trees and bushes, 707.
defeasible leases, 707.
forfeiture of leases, 708—716.
disclaimer and forfeiture, 708.
proviso for re-entry, 709.
effect of re-entry on lessee's liability on his covenants, 712.
waiver of forfeiture, 713.
lessor's right of election, 713.
relief against forfeiture, 714.
breach of covenants or conditions respecting insurance or payment of rent, 714.
assignment after forfeiture, 715.
costs, 716.
surrender, 716.
deeds and agreements of surrender, 716.
surrenders by act and operation of law, 717.
substitution of new tenant in place of original tenant, 718.
surrender and acceptance of surrender by joint tenants, 719.
non-extinguishment by surrender of derivative estates, 720.
effect of, on existing breaches of covenant, 720.
notice to quit, when necessary, 720.
how notice may be given, and by whom, 721, 722.
form and effect of notice, 723.
alternative and peremptory notices, 723.
length of notice, 724.
time of quitting specified in notice, 725.
application of notice to current term of hiring, 726.
commencement of current year of tenancy, 727.
calculation of current year from one of usual feast days, 728.
admissions by tenant of commencement of term, 728.
different periods of entry, 729.
service of notice to quit, 730.
service of notice through post-office, 731.
acceptance of informal notice, 731.
proof of notice, 731.
waiver of notice to quit, 731.
proof and effect of holding over, 732.
double yearly value for holding over, 733.
double rent for holding over, 734.
determination of tenancies by railway notices, 735.
recovery of possession, 735.
licence to eject, 736.
under provisoes for re-entry, 736.
where there is no sufficient distress, 737.
where demised premises are deserted, 738.
of houses and small tenements, 739.
rights of outgoing and incoming tenants, 740.
away-going crops, allowances for tillage, manure, &c., 740 sale of hay, straw, or manure off land, 746.
non-payment of tithe rent-charge by outgoing tenant, 747.
inclosure of waste land by tenants, 748.

LANDLORD AND TENANT—continued.
leases obtained by misrepresentation, 748.
cancellation of lease, effect of, 749.
assignment of tenancy, effect of, 749.
equitable assignees, breach of covenants by, 689.
damages for breach of contract to grant lease, 749, 750.
in action for use and occupation, 750.
for breach of covenant for quiet enjoyment, 750.
on eviction damages assessable once for all, 751.
not to assign, 751.
to repair, 751.
destruction of buildings by fire or tempest, 752.
to consume hay and straw on farm, 753.
for holding over, 754.
recovery of rent when mortgagor becomes tenant to mortgagee, 754.
when mortgaged premises in possession of lessees, 755.
when lease by mortgagor and mortgagee after mortgage, 757.
notice of mortgage to lessee, 759.
contracts for letting and hiring of furnished houses and lodgings, 760.
implied warranties on part of lessors of furnished apartments, 760.
rights and liabilities of lodging-house keepers and lodgers, 761.
destruction of buildings by fire, excuse of performance, 762.
proof of duration of term of hiring, 762.
notice to quit, 763.
letting and hiring places of stowage and deposit, 764.
room or standing places in factories, 764.
lodgings in common inns, 764.
who is a common innkeeper, 764.
duties of innkeepers, 765.
to receive guest, 765.
extent of obligation, 766.
to protect guest from loss of goods, 766.
from robbery and theft, 766, 767.
limitation of liability by statute, 769.
who is a guest and traveller, 769, 770.
when innkeeper's duty to guest ceases, 770.
innkeeper's lien, when it attaches, 771.
when it is lost, 772.
damages for breach of covenant to insure, 1239. stamp on leases, 1355.

LANDMARKS,
agreements concerning, when an interest in land, 26.
preservation of, by tenants, 693.

LAND TAX,
deduction of, from rent, 677, 678.

LAND TRANSFER ACTS,
devolution of realty on death of owner, 241.
liability of real estate for debts of deceased, 247.
registration of title under, 483.

LATENT AMBIGUITY,
what is a, 46.
oral evidence to explain, 46.

LATENT DEFECTS,
concealment of, on letting of realty, 672.
in sale of goods, 576.

LAY-DAYS,
what days understood by term, 1006, 1007.

LEASE,
authentication of, 22, 42.
void unless by deed, 43.
discrepancy between, and counterpart, 66.
construction of particular words in, 70.
recital in, lessee estopped by, 72.
stamp duty on, 1355.
See LANDLORD AND TENANT.

LEASEHOLD ESTATES,
title to, 489, 490.

LEGACY,
payment of creditor by, 157.

LESSEE AND LESSOR. See LANDLORD AND TENANT.

LETTERS OF ALLOTMENT,
title to, on sale of, 638.
stamp duty on, 1367.
See SHARES.

LETTERS OF CREDIT,
stamp on, exemption of, 1379.

LETTERS OF RECOMMENDATION,
sale of, void as against public policy, 86.

LETTERS PATENT,
no warranty of indefeasibility of patent on sale of, 696.

LETTING AND HIRING,
of land, 651—772.
See LANDLORD AND TENANT.
of chattels, 805—816.
See BAILMENT FOR HIRE.

LEX LOCI CONTRACTUS,
interpretation of contracts according to, 58.
what determines locus contractûs, 63.

LEX LOCI SOLUTIONIS,
what determines, 61.

LIABILITY. See LIMITATION OF LIABILITY.

LICENCE,
to trade with foreign enemies in time of war, 103.
by parol, does not release covenants, 174.
assignees of grantees of, extent of liability, 234.
to enjoy profits on soil, 634, 635.
to seize chattels not assignable, 635, 831.
parol, to enjoy easement, when determined, 635.
of pleasure, 635.
distinct from licence of profit, 636.
conditional, on sale of patent right, 736.
to commit waste, effect of, 704.
to landlords to eject tenants for non-performance of covenants, 736.
to distrain and sell chattels, 794.
to seize chattels for non-payment of debt, 829.
revocation of, by act of bankruptcy, 831.
marriage by, in false name, 1321.
stamp duty, exemption from, 1372.

LICENSING ACTS,
contracts contravening policy of, 85, 110, 112.
See ILLEGAL CONTRACTS.
LIEN,
of unpaid seller for price of goods sold, 607, 608.
where goods sold without stipulation as to credit, 608.
on credit, but term has expired, 608.
part delivery, right of lien on remainder, 611.
termination of, 611.
by delivery to carrier for transmission to buyer, 611.
when buyer or his agent obtains lawful possession, 611.
by waiver, 611.
extinction of, by buyer being in constructive possession, 536.
of innkeepers, 771.
See INNKEEPERS.
maritime, 834.
See MARITIME LIEN.
on vessels causing damage by collision, 837.
on stock and shares, 842.
of depositary, 850.
of bankers, 860.
of mandatary, 864.
of workmen and artificers, 887.
of bailees. See BAILEES. right of lien, 902.
claim at variance with contract of bailment, 904.
against whom it may be claimed, 905.
general lien, 906.
by custom of trade, 908.
notice of, 907.
extinguishment of, by abandonment of possession, 908.
by tender of debt, 910.
statutory power of sale in discharge of, 909.
transfer of bailment, 910.
of factors and brokers, 961.
of insurance brokers, 962, 1156, 1157.
of packers, 962.
of solicitors, 963.
See SOLICITORS.
of ship-masters, 966.
of ship's husband, 966.
of shipwrights, 967.
of shipowners for freight, 998.
extinguishment of, by payments in lieu of freight, 1002.
of common carriers, 1056, 1057.
on cargo given to meet bills, 1300, note (n).

LIFE INSURANCE,
contracts of, 1222.
with de facto directors, 1223.
interest of assured, 1223.
gaming or wagering policies prohibited, 1223.
requisites of policy, 1223.
nature of interest, 1223.
parties who have an insurable interest, 1223, 1224.
amount recoverable limited to interest, 1225.
warranties, statements amounting to, 1226.
conditions, 1226.
fraudulent misrepresentation and concealment of material facts, 1226.
untrue statements by agent of insured, 1227, 1228.
by agent of insurer, 1227.

LIFE INSURANCE—continued.
contracts of—continued.
indisputable policies, 1228.
risks covered by policies, 1228.
forfeiture of policies, 1229.
non-payment of premium, 1229.
days of grace, 1230.
non-inception of risk, 1231.
return of premium, 1231.
waiver of forfeiture, 1231.
assignment of life policies, 222, 1232.
notice of, 1233.
contract for sale of policy, rescission of, 1233.
right of party interested in policy to recover insurance money, 1233.
industrial life assurance company, statutory provisions as to, 1234.
settlement of disputes, 1234.
separation of funds of assurance company, 1234.
winding-up of assurance companies, 1235.
novation by policy holders, 182.
insurance against injury by accident, 1236.
meaning of term "accident," 1236, 1237.
against railway accidents, 1238.
damages recoverable, 1238.
breach of covenants to insure, 1239.
damages, measure of, 1239.
loss of policy, 1239.
payment of sum insured into Court, 1239.
stamp on policies of, 1384.
on assignment of policies of, 1384.

LIFE TENANT,
acknowledgment by, binding estate as against remaindermen, 214.

LIGHTERS,
losses on board of, conveying goods to shore, 992, 993.
liability for, under marine policy, 1149, 1150, 1202.

LIMITATION OF ACTIONS,
Statutes of Limitation, 199.
fee-farm rents and money charged on land, 199.
rights of mortgagees, 200, 201.
rent and specialty and simple contract debts, 202.
what are specialty debts, 203.
exception in favour of persons labouring under temporary disabilities, 203.
infants and lunatics, 203.
married women, 204.
commencement of time of limitation, 205.
contingent and conditional liabilities, 207.
unknown and undiscovered breaches of contract, 209.
acknowledgments of deeds and specialties extending limitation, 210.
acknowledgments of simple contract debts, 211.
form and requisites of acknowledgment, 211.
lost acknowledgments, oral evidence of contents of, 213.
by one of several joint contractors, 213.
by executor or devisee for life, 214.
to whom acknowledgment to be made, 214.
exemption of promise or acknowledgment from stamp duty, 214.
payment of interest on principal debt, 215.
part payment of principal debt, 215.
by bill or note, 216.

LIMITATION OF ACTIONS—continued.
part payment of principal debt—continued.
by performance of service or by delivery of goods, 216.
by adjustment and settlement of accounts, 216.
payment of interest on principal debt, 215.
effect of, 217.
by one of several joint debtors or co-contractors, 218.
by strangers and agents, 218.
to strangers and agents, 219.
in respect of contracts made abroad, 219.
suspension of statute, 220.
no limitation in cases of express trust, 220.
deposit of money with bankers, 852.

LIMITATION OF AUTHORITY,
of agents, 332.

LIMITATION OF LIABILITY,
repugnant and void limitations of liability, 48.
to particular fund, 49.
of innkeepers, by statute, 769.
of carriers by water, by special contract, 985.
by statute, 990.
of common carriers, by public notices under Carriers Act, 1030.
carriage of valuables, &c., 1030.
statutory notice of increased charges, 1031.
by special contract against fire and sea risks, 1033.
for damage to certain classes, &c., of goods, 1033.
notices of, to what risks applicable, 1034.
void limitations by common carriers, 1035.
of surety, 1088.
primary and secondary liabilities, 1081.
extent of liability, 1085, 1088.
continuing liability, 1088, 1090.

LIMITED PARTNERSHIP,
illegal, dissolution of, 89.
definition and constitution of, 371.
registration of, 371.
modification of general law in case of, 371.
law as to private partnerships, where not excluded, applies to, 372.
winding-up of, application of Companies Act, 1908, to, 372.

LIQUIDATED DAMAGES,
penal obligations, 285.
penalties for breach of contract, 286.
penalties under denomination of, 290.
injunction where option to take, 307.

LIQUIDATION. See BANKRUPTCY.

LIQUIDATOR,
contracts with, of company being wound up, 385.

LIVERY,
title to, by hiring and service, 941.

LOAN,
for gaming, when not recoverable, 108.
to infant, void in law, 412.
to married woman, wife no implied authority to borrow, 424.
gratuitous, 810, 811.
of realty, 812.
at interest, 808, 809.
to one of several partners, 359, 814.
to registered companies, 815.
See BAILMENT—BANKERS.

LOAN SOCIETIES. See FRIENDLY SOCIETIES.
contracts with, statutory provision regulating, 404.

LODGER,
goods of, not distrainable, 762.
summary remedy for recovery, where goods seized, 787, 788.
landlord cannot follow, removed to avoid distress, 795.

LODGING-HOUSE KEEPER,
authentication of contracts with, 24.
letting lodgings for prostitution, 77.
rights and liabilities of lodging-house keepers and lodgers, 761.
implied warranties of, 760.
that lodgings are reasonably fit for habitation, 760, 761.
proof of duration of term of hiring, 762.
weekly, monthly, quarterly, half-yearly, and yearly hirings, 763.
notice to quit, 763.
See LANDLORD AND TENANT—NOTICE TO QUIT.

LOSS,
of acknowledgment of debt, 213.
of title-deeds, after delivery of abstract, 494.
of bills and notes, 1298.
indemnification of drawer, 1298.
defence of, on indemnity being given, 1298.
transfer of title by finder, in case of, 1308.

LOSS OF GOODS. See RISK.
on voyage, liability of carrier for, 982, 983.

LOSS OR INCONVENIENCE,
good consideration for contract, 6.

"LOST OR NOT LOST." See MARINE INSURANCE.

LOST PROPERTY,
duty of finder of, as to its preservation, 850.
right to recover expenses for preserving and restoring, 868.

LOTTERY. See ILLEGAL CONTRACTS. illegal contract in respect to, 107.

LUGGAGE,
duty of common carrier of passengers to carry, 1023, 1029.
void limitations of liability, 1035.
loss of, by cabman, 1019.
personal, carriage of, by railway companies, 1036.
what constitutes, 1036, 1037.
loss of, liability of railway companies for, 1036.
in cloak-room, receipt of, by railway companies as warehousemen, 865, 1035.
lien of companies for charges, 866.
conditions limiting liability, 866.
notice of, 866.
liability for acts and omissions of railway porters, 1037.
non-liability of company where merchandise disguised as, 1038.
liability when travelling with passenger, 1038.
non-liability when under passenger's control, 1038.
received as servant's, but is master's, 1038.
charge for, by excursion train, 1037.
delivery of, to passengers at railway station, 1052.
application of Railway Traffic Act to, 1053.
See COMMON CARRIER.

LUNATICS,
Statutes of Limitation running against, 203.
contracts with, when void, 435, 436.
when found lunatic by inquisition, 436.
no defence to action by person dealing in good faith, 436.
burden of proof, 436.
implied contract for necessaries supplied to wife, 436.
authority of wife to pledge husband's credit, 437.
when voidable, 437.
implied contract for expenses of protecting person and estate, 437.

MAINTENANCE,
what constitutes, 79.
action of, 79.
defences available in, 79, 80.

MANAGERS,
authority of, extent of, 338.
of mining companies, liabilities of, 389.
See PROVISIONAL COMMITTEES.

MANAGING COMMITTEE. See PROVISIONAL COMMITTEES.

MANDAMUS,
to parties to contracts, 439.
to public companies to make calls, 440.
to local authorities, &c., to discharge pecuniary obligations, 440.
action in which claim for, maintainable, 441.
not maintainable, 443.
declaration in action for, 443.

MANDATE,
or gratuitous commission, 860.
executory promises to undertake gratuitous office or trust, 860.
acceptance of trust by entering on the employment, 860.
non-feasance and misfeasance, 860.
acceptance of money or goods to be carried gratuitously, 861.
liability for loss or damage from negligence, 861.
acceptance of goods to be repaired or mended gratuitously, 861.
liability for employment of unskilled persons, 861, 889.
acceptance of money for investment, 862.
acceptance of living animals to be nourished and taken care of, 862.
perishable commodities to be preserved and kept, 863.
use of subject-matter of, by mandatary, 863.
theft and negligence by servants of mandatary, 864.
re-payment of expenses necessarily incurred by mandatary in execution of his commission, 864.

MANUFACTURE,
warranty as to, of goods, 569, 570.
when contract to, must be authenticated as contract of sale, 28, 528.
or making up of materials, contracts for, 585, 586.
negligent or unskilful work, 889.
liability for damage resulting from, 889.

MANUFACTURE—continued.
safe keeping and re-delivery of materials, 899.
liability of bailee for theft of servants, 900.
See BAILMENT—WORK AND SERVICES.

MANUFACTURERS,
supply of goods by sample by, warranty of merchantable quality, 568, 569.

MANURE,
allowances for, on quitting holding, 740.
sale of, off farm, in breach of covenant, 746.
measure of damages for, 753.

MARINE INSURANCE,
nature of contracts of insurance in general, 1105, 1106.
of mutual insurance, 1106.
of policies of insurance, 1107.
of slip or memorandum of terms, 1107.
reference to slip in legal proceedings, 1107, 1125.
definition of, 1107,
mixed sea and land risks, 1107.
maritime venture and maritime perils, 1108.
insurable interest, definition of, 1108.
wagering or gaming policies, invalidity of, 1109.
what are, 1109, 1110.
interest or no interest, 1110.
without further proof than policy itself, 1110.
without benefit of salvage to insurer, 1110.
liability of brokers effecting, to penalty, 1110.
interest of any nature is insurable, 1110.
persons who have, 1110.
when it must attach, 1111.
insurer must have, at time of loss, 1111.
"lost or not lost" clause, effect of, 1111.
assignment of interest after loss, 1112.
quantum of interest, 1112.
of mortgagor in mortgaged subject-matter, 1112.
of mortgagee, 1112.
effecting assurance for benefit of self and others, 1112.
extent of interest of owner of insurable property, 1112.
assignment of interest, effect of, 1113.
exception in case of transmission by operation of law, 1113.
assignment of marine policy, 1114.
when and how policy is assignable, 1114.
by indorsement or other customary manner, 1114.
rights of assignee on, passing beneficial interest, 1114.
assured with no interest cannot assign, 1115.
insurable value, ascertainment of, 1115.
measure of value, 1115.
in insurance on ship, 1115.
in case of a steamship, 1115.
of ship engaged in special trade, 1115.
in insurance on freight, 1115.
on goods or merchandise, 1115.
on any other subject-matter, 1115.
disclosure and representations, 1116.
insurance is uberrimæ fidei, 1116.

MARINE INSURANCE—continued.
disclosure by assured, 1116.
circumstances which must be disclosed, 1116, 1118.
which need not be disclosed, 1116, 1119, 1122.
duty of assured's agent to disclose material circumstances, 1117.
disclosure by agent effecting insurance, 1121.
duty of agent to disclose material circumstances, 1121.
representations pending negotiation of contract, 1122.
avoidance of contract by insurer for untrue, 1122.
when material, 1122.
of fact, 1122.
of expectation or belief, 1122.
withdrawal or correction of, 1122.
materiality of, a question of fact, 1122.
misrepresentation and concealment, distinction between, 1122, 1123.
affording ground for rescission of contract, 1123.
fraudulent misrepresentations, what are, 1123.
oral evidence of, admissible to control liability, 1123.
when contract deemed to be concluded, 1124.
reference to slip or other customary memorandum to show, 1124.
where slip has been initialled, 1124.
policy of, 1124,
contract must be embodied in, 1124.
when it may be executed and issued, 1124.
provisions of Stamp Act as to, 1124, 1125.
reference to slip in legal proceedings, 1107, 1125.
what it must specify, 1125.
must be signed by or on behalf of insurer, 1126.
signature by seal of corporation, 1126.
by or on behalf of several insurers, effect of, 1126.
designation of subject-matter, 1126.
usage regulating, may be regarded, 1126.
non-disclosure of policy being a re-insurance, 1127.
on ship only, 1127.
on "ship's tackle and furniture," 1127.
on "goods, specie, and effects," 1127.
usage of trade to explain term, 1127.
mere mistake in ship's name, when discharging underwriters, 1127.
oral evidence to explain customary meaning of trade terms, 1128.
general insurance on goods and merchandise, 1128.
meaning of term "goods," 1128.
when it covers "substituted cargoes," 1129.
on deck cargoes, 1129.
when protected against loss by jettison, 1129.
not generally subject to general average contribution, 1129.
custom exempting underwriters not invalid, 1130.
custom and usage, as to risks covered by, 1127, 1130.
in case of intermediate voyages, 1130.
voyage and time policies, 1131.
definition of, 1131.
continuation clauses, effect of Finance and Stamp Acts, 1131.
valued policy, 1132.
value fixed, when conclusive, 1132.
unvalued or open policy, 1132.

MARINE INSURANCE—continued.
policy of—continued.
floating policy by ship or ships, 1132.
definition of, 1132.
declaration of value by indorsement or in other customary manner, 1133.
order in which to be made, 1133.
in case of goods, 1133.
where made after loss or arrival, 1133.
form of, 1133, 1134.
ordinary voyage policy, 1134.
alterations in, when allowed, 1134.
provisions of Stamp Act as to, 1135.
construction of, 1133, 1135.
rules for, 1135.
effect of usage on construction, 1135, 1136.
where policy partly in print and partly in writing, 1136.
commencement of risk, 1137.
implied condition as to, 1140.
"lost or not lost," 1137.
"at and from," 1137, 1138, 1140.
"port" or "ports," 1138.
"place" or "places," 1138.
"port of discharge," 1138.
insurance on freight, 1141.
"at and from," when risk attaches, 1141.
meaning of "freight" in insurance law, 1141.
on advanced freight, 1142.
on outward and homeward voyage, 1143.
extent of insurer's liability, 1143.
insurance on passage money, 1143.
on profits, 1143.
See PROFITS.
on bottomry loans, 1144.
See BOTTOMRY BOND.
on respondentia loans, 1144.
nature of loan, 1144.
must be specifically described in policy, 1145.
commencement of risk on goods, 1145.
form of clause in Lloyd's policy, 1145.
"from the loading thereof," 1145.
at a particular place, when risk attaches, 1146.
duration and termination of risk, 1148.
on goods, 1148.
until "safely landed," meaning of, 1148, 1149.
in case of transhipment, 1150.
voyage policy, 1150.
on ship, 1151.
until arrival at "final" or "last" port of discharge, 1151.
in case of transhipment of goods, 1152.
with liberty to touch and stay at any ports whatsoever, 1152.
on outward voyage, 1152.
arrival at port of destination, 1153.
mooring in safety, 1153.
what constitutes, 1155.
risks in landing goods, 1153.
premium payable on, 1155.
reasonable, where premium to be arranged, 1155.
where additional premium to be arranged, 1156.
when payable, 1156.

MARINE INSURANCE—continued.
premium payable on—continued.
when payable—continued.
duties of assured or his agent and insurer, 1156.
where policy effected through broker, 1156.
liability of broker to underwriter, 1156.
lien of broker on policy for premium, 1156.
effect of receipt on policy for premium, 1157.
return of, enforcement of, 1157.
by agreement, 1157.
for failure of consideration, 1157.
where consideration apportionable, 1157.
where policy void from commencement of risk, 1157, 1159.
where subject-matter never imperilled, 1157.
where no insurable interest, 1157.
in case of over-insurance under unvalued policy, 1158.
by double insurance, 1158, 1159.
where there are separate voyages and several risks, 1158.
where policy on goods to be laden on particular ship, 1158.
on freight, 1158.
where several policies effected, 1158.
double insurance, or over-insurance, definition of, 1160.
rights of assured on, 1160.
contribution between insurers, 1160, 1161.
under-insurance, effect of, 1161.
warranty, 1161.
express or implied, 1161.
nature of, 1161.
breach of, when excused, 1161.
implied, of seaworthiness, 1162.
conditions precedent to recovery under, 1162.
presumptions of unseaworthiness, 1163.
as to commencement of risk, 1164.
in case of voyage policies, 1165.
as to legality of adventure, 1165.
not implied as to seaworthiness of goods, 1165.
as to nationality of ship, 1165.
express, meaning of term, 1165, 1166.
"well" and "in good safety," 1166.
time of sailing, 1166.
to sail or depart with convoy, 1167.
of neutrality of ship or goods, 1167.
implied conditions, 1167, 1168.
deviation from voyage insured, 1168.
amounting to barratry, 1183.
alteration of port of departure, 1168.
sailing for different destination, 1168.
change of voyage, 1168.
what constitutes deviation, 1169, 1172.
when excused, 1170.
delay in voyage amounting to deviation, 1171.
on voyages to several ports and places, 1172.
where order designated in policy, 1172.
where policy is to unnamed ports in given area, 1172.
licences to touch at different ports and places, 1172.
loss and abandonment, 1173.
included and excluded losses, 1173.
loss by perils of the sea, 1174.
meaning of term "perils of the sea," 1174.

MARINE INSURANCE—continued.
loss and abandonment—continued.
loss by perils of the sea—continued.
negligence and misconduct of master and mariners, 1174.
sea risks covered by policy, 1176.
losses from old age, decay, and other causes, 1176.
perils of fire and jettison, 1177.
loss by capture and seizure, 1177.
arrests, restraints, and detainments of kings, princes, and people, 1180.
loss by pirates, rovers, and thieves, 1182.
peril of barratry of master and crew, 1182, 1183.
perils, losses, and misfortunes generally, 1183.
meaning of term "all other perils," 1183, 1184.
total and partial losses, 1184.
constructive and actual total losses, distinction between, 1184.
actual total loss, nature of, 1184.
notice of abandonment unnecessary, 1185.
presumption of, in case of missing ship, 1185.
constructive total loss, nature of, 1185.
where assured deprived of possession of ship, 1185.
in case of damage to ship, 1185.
to goods, 1185.
effect of, 1185.
notice of abandonment, 1186.
by whom to be given, 1186, 1188.
when required, 1186, 1187.
when unnecessary, 1187.
in case of re-insurance, 1187.
form of, 1188.
effect of, 1188.
insurance on freight, 1189.
when insured may abandon, 1190.
total losses, 1190, 1191.
in case of policy on voyage, 1192.
on freight, 1192.
on goods, 1193.
capture and re-capture, 1193, 1194.
embargo, 1193.
spes recuperandi, 1193.
unreasonable abandonment, 1194.
partial loss, 1194.
what constitutes, 1194, 1195.
exception of partial losses, 1194, 1195.
general and particular average, 1196.
policies warranted free from average, 1196.
meaning of term average, 1196.
particular average, meaning of, 1196.
recovery of salvage charges, 1196, note (u).
particular charges, what are, 1196.
not included in particular average, 1196.
distinction between, and general average, 1197.
general average loss, 1197.
what constitutes, 1197.
includes general average expenditure, 1197.
general average contribution towards, 1197.
contribution for general average expenditure, 1197.
for general average sacrifice, 1197.
when insurer not liable for general average loss or contribution, 1197.

MARINE INSURANCE—continued.
general and particular average—continued.
general average loss—continued.
liability of insurer, where ship, freight, or cargo owned by same insurer, 1197.
measure of indemnity for losses, 1197.
definition of, 1203, 1204.
in case of partial losses, 1197.
qualification of liability clause, 1198.
"average unless general," 1198.
"free from average under 5l. per cent.," 1198, 1199.
"free from average," 1198.
"average," meaning of, in mercantile phraseology, 1198.
"warranted free from particular average," 1198, 1199.
losses recoverable under warranty, 1198, 1199.
charges and expenses excluded under warranty, 1199.
effect of warranty, 1199.
insurance on separate bales or packages, 1199.
average and total losses, 1199.
"free from average" under specified percentage, 1200.
exceptions of general average losses, 1201.
in case of stranding of ship, 1202.
suing and labouring clause, 1203.
form of, 1203.
extends to property to which underwriters entitled by abandonment, 1203.
losses and expenses not recoverable under, 1203.
duty of assured to avert or minimise loss, 1203.
extent of liability of insurer, 1203.
limitation of liability to amount of subscription, 1204.
on valued policy, 1204.
on ship, 1205.
on unvalued policy, 1204.
on open policy on freight, 1204.
on ship or goods, 1205.
on fraudulent over-value of policy, 1204.
on several valued policies, 1205.
on partial loss of ship, 1205.
cost of repairs, 1205.
depreciation of ship, 1206.
deductions for new materials, 1206.
signed adjustments, when conclusive, 1206.
loss of freight, 1207.
when assured entitled to recover for, 1207.
partial loss of freight, 1207.
rule as to amount recoverable, 1208.
partial loss of goods, merchandise, &c., 1208.
standard of value and measure of depreciation, 1208.
where goods, &c., totally lost on valued policy, 1208.
on unvalued policy, 1208.
where goods delivered in damaged condition, 1208.
mode of calculating and adjusting loss, 1208, 1209.
apportionment of valuation, 1210.

MARINE INSURANCE—continued.
general and particular average—continued.
measure of indemnity for losses—continued.
general average contributions, 1210.
extent of liability, 1210.
in case of salvage charges, 1210.
liabilities to third parties, 1211.
general provisions as to measure of indemnity, 1211.
successive losses, liability of insurer for, 1211.
rights of insurer on payment, 1211.
right of subrogation, 1211.
on double insurance, 1212.
on under-insurance, 1161.
stamp on policy of, 1380.

MARITIME INTEREST,
chargeable on loan by bottomry bond, 835.

MARITIME LIEN,
conferred by bottomry bond, 835, 1144.
nature of, 835.
authority of master to create, 835, 836.
none in respect of repairs and supplies, 836.
not extinguished by sale of ship as unseaworthy, 837.
for damage caused by collision, 837.
how enforced, 837.
when lost, 837.
priority of liens, 838.
insurable interest of lender on, 1110.
See BOTTOMRY BOND.

MARKET OVERT,
sale in, what constitutes, 593.
title acquired by, 593.
sale by sample, not a, 593.
of horses, subject to statutory formalities, 594.
of stolen goods, 594.
conviction of thief, 594.
revesting of property, 594, 595.

MARKETABLE SECURITIES,
stamp on, 1349.

MARRIAGE,
authentication of agreements in consideration of, 33, 1312.
effect of, on wife's contracts, 261.
contracts in restraint of, void, 78, 1310.
reputed, liabilities resulting from, 433.
brokerage contracts, 1310.
bonds and covenants to marry, 1311.
contracts of betrothment, 1312.
authentication of contract, 34, 1312.
time of performance, 1313.
excuses for non-performance, 1313.
conditional promises of marriage, 1314.
fraudulent concealment of material circumstances, 1314.
misrepresentation and deceit, 1314.
accidents and mishaps altering condition of either of parties, 1315.
abandonment of contract, 1315.
breach of promise of marriage, 1315.
damages for, 1315.
promises of portions and settlements, 1316.
contracts in fraud of settlements and promises of marriage portions, 1317.
marriage settlements, 1318.

MARRIAGE—continued.
the marriage contract, 1318.
nature and requisites of, 1318.
age of consent, 1319.
presumption of marriage, 1319.
void marriages, 1319.
of deceased wife's sister, 1320.
publication of banns in false name, 1321.
celebration of, in false name, 1321.
by licence in false name, 1321.
before registrar, 1322.
fraudulent celebration of sham marriage, 1322.
release by marriage, 1323.
separation deeds, legality of, 78, 1324, 1325.
subsequent reconciliation, effect of, on, 1326.

MARRIAGE BROKERAGE
contracts, 1310.

MARRIAGE CONTRACTS. See MARRIAGE—MARRIED WOMEN.

MARRIAGE SETTLEMENTS. See SETTLEMENTS.

MARRIED WOMEN,
contracts for separation of husband and wife, 78, 1324.
Statutes of Limitations running against, 203, 204.
when possessed of separate property, 204.
payment of interest by, 218.
payment of interest to husbands of, 219.
as executrix or administratrix, 255.
rights of husband on wife's ante-nuptial contracts, 261.
by statute, 262.
liability of husband on wife's ante-nuptial contracts, 263.
by statute, 264.
liability of surviving husband, 265.
liability of surviving wife, 267.
contracts in which bankrupt is interested in right of his wife, 271.
bankruptcy of, 272.
rights of husband on wife's contracts during coverture, 418.
rights and liabilities of wife on contracts during coverture, 420.
inability of wife to bind herself or husband by deed, 423.
authority of wife to sign for husband, 424.
loans to, 424.
sale of goods to, 425.
pledging husband's credit, 425, 426.
proof of assent of husband to wife's contracts, 426.
non-liability of husband on wife's contracts after separation, 427.
desertion of husband by wife, 428.
desertion of wife by husband, 428, authority to pledge husband's credit for necessaries, 428, 429.
expulsion of wife by husband, what amounts to, 430.
liability of husband for wife's necessaries during separation by consent, 430.
effect of decree for judicial separation, 431.
order for protection of deserted wife's property, 431, 432.
imprisonment of husband, effect of, 432.
death of husband, rights and liabilities of wife, 267, 432.
death of wife, husband's rights by survivorship, 265, 433.
reputed marriage, liabilities from, 433.
insanity of husband, effect of, 436.
See MARRIAGE.

MASTER AND SERVANT,
contracts in fraud of masters void, 86.
liabilities of master on contracts made by servant as his agent, 337.
authority of servant to pledge master's credit, 337, 338.
implied promise to pay servant for services rendered, 452.
to pay master where servant decoyed away, 453.
requisites of contracts of hiring and service, 915.
who is a servant, 916.
duty of servant, 917.
authentication of contracts between, 917.
yearly hirings, 918.
defeasible, domestic service, 919.
month's warning or month's wages, 919.
damages for wrongful dismissal, 934.
monthly or weekly hiring, 920.
service at will, 921.
liabilities of master, 921.
duties of servant, 917, 921, 929.
liability of master for personal negligence, 923.
dangerous employments, where danger known to servant, 924.
servant using dangerous machinery, 925.
defective tackle in mines, 925.
negligence of fellow-servant, 926.
Employers' Liability Act, 927.
Workmen's Compensation Act, 928.
personal injury, meaning of, under, 929.
contracting out of, prohibited, 929.
indemnification of master by servant for negligence, 930.
termination of contract, 930.
by consent or by death of either party, 930.
warning, notice to leave, 931.
dismissal of servant for incompetency, 931.
for misconduct, 931.
disability from sickness in case of household servant, 933.
wrongful dismissal, 933.
payment of wages pro ratâ, 934.
damages for, 934, 940.
amount of wages recoverable, 919, 935.
deductions not allowed, 935.
wages payable in current coin in certain trades, 117, 935.
presumption of payment of wages, 936.
jurisdiction of justices and County Courts in case of disputes, 936.
breach of contract causing injury to others, 936.
penalty for, 936.
seamen's wages, summary remedy for, 936.
damages for refusing to employ, 940.
right of servant to clothes by hiring and service, 941.
contracts of apprenticeship, 937—940.
See APPRENTICESHIP—HIRING AND SERVICE—WORK AND SERVICES.

MASTER OF SHIP. See SHIPMASTER.

MAXIMS,
ambiguitas verborum latens verificatione suppletur, 47.
caveat emptor, 336, 559, 562, 565, 568, 573, 576.
delegatus non potest delegare, 329, 424.
de minimis non curat lex, 573.
ex dolo non oritur contractus, 551.
ex nudo pacto non oritur actio, 2.
id certum est quod certum reddi potest, 775.
in pari delicto potior est conditio possidentis, 122, 902.
omne accessorium sequitur suum principale, 699, 885.

MAXIMS—continued.
omnis ratihabitio retrotrahitur, et mandato priori æquiparatur, 8, 331.
qui dolo desiit possidere pro possidente damnatur, 207.
qui non prohibet quod prohibere potest, assentire videtur, 426.
respondeat superior, 335, 355.
volenti non fit injuria, 925.

MEASURE AND VALUE,
payment by, where total deviation from building contract, 886.

MEASURE OF DAMAGES. See DAMAGES.

MEDICAL PRACTITIONER. See SURGEON.

MEMORANDUM IN WRITING. See FRAUDS (STATUTE OF).

MENIAL SERVANTS,
who are, 919.
termination of hiring by customary notice, 919.
month's warning or month's wages, 919.

MERCANTILE AGENT,
within Factors Acts. See FACTORS.

MERCANTILE INSTRUMENTS. See BILL OF EXCHANGE—BILL OF LADING—DOCK WARRANTS—CHEQUE—PROMISSORY NOTE.

MERCHANTABLE QUALITY,
implied warranty of, 568.

MERGER,
of simple contracts in deeds and specialties, 192.

METROPOLITAN BOROUGH COUNCILS,
contracts with, 398.
for works and materials, when to be under seal, 399.

MILK WALK,
contract for sale of, an interest in land, 25.

MINING COMPANIES,
contracts with managers and shareholders of, 389.
who is a shareholder, 390.
title to shares in, 637.
mode of establishing, 637.
partners in company hold as trustees, 637.
mode of selling shares, 637.
cesser of vendor's liability, 637.
See SHARES.

MISDESCRIPTION. See MISREPRESENTATION.

MISFEAZANCE,
liability of mandataries for, 860.

MISREADING,
fraudulent, of a deed, 129.

MISREPRESENTATION,
by agents, 127, 333.
by directors of companies, 127.
amounting to fraud, in case of sale of lands, 495—502.
sale of chattels, 551.
See WARRANTY.
lease obtained by, 748.
in marine assurance, 1123.
in fire assurance, 1216.

MISREPRESENTATION—continued.
in life assurance, 1226.
in contracts of marriage, 1314.
See FRAUDULENT MISREPRESENTATION—FRAUDULENT CONCEALMENT.

MISTAKE,
in written contract not under seal, 73.
effect of, as estoppel, 74.
contract made under, 133.
rectification of, 134.
cancellation of contract by, 191.
payment to agents under, 355.
money paid by, when recoverable, 456, 462.
in account stated, 473.
cheque paid by, when banker liable for, 859.
over-insurance by, 1158, 1160.
adjustments signed by underwriters by, 1206.

MISTRESSES,
contracts with, liability of reputed husbands on, 434.

MODE OF PERFORMANCE,
of contract, generally, 138.
of charter-party, 978.

MONEY,
lost by carrier by the way, 1019.
by contributory negligence of consignor, 1029.

MONEY HAD AND RECEIVED,
money of principal paid away by agent by mistake, 325.
money received by agent for principal, 354.
money wrongfully received by agent, 355.
implied promise to pay over money received for use of another, 460.
in respect of money which ought not in conscience or equity to be retained, 460.
payments made by mistake, 460.
of fact, 460.
in absence of fraud, 461.
of law, 460.
when not recoverable, 462.
by trustees or agents, 462.
on settlement of accounts, 463, 473.
period from which Statute of Limitations runs, 463.
where both parties under mistake, 463.
money improperly received and wrongfully detained, 463.
by oppression, imposition, extortion, or fraud, 461, 463, 465.
under compulsion of law, 461.
actions in respect of, 464.
money received without consideration or on consideration which has failed, 465.
actions in respect of, 465.
under illegal contract, 467.
money received by agents, 468.
receipt of foreign money, effect of, 470.
for purchase of property to which vendor has no title, 520, 521.

MONEY-LENDERS,
definition of, 809.
registration of, necessary, 809.
illegality of contracts with, if unregistered, 809.

MONEY-LENDERS—continued.
harsh and unconscionable bargains by, 809, 810.
jurisdiction of Court to relieve borrower, 810.
what constitutes, 810.

MONEY LENT. See BORROWING—LOAN.

MONEY ORDERS,
stamp duty on, 1375.
See BILL OF EXCHANGE—CHEQUE.

MONEY PAID,
recovery of, for forged securities, 136, 137.
implied promise in respect of, for another, 455.
implied request to pay money, action to recover, 456.
by mistake, 456, 462.

MONOPOLIES,
contracts creating, illegality of, 102.
See ILLEGAL CONTRACTS.

MONTH,
meaning of, in legal documents, 57.

MONTH'S WARNING OR MONTH'S WAGES,
servant, when entitled to, 919.

MONTHLY LETTINGS,
presumption of, 661.

MORAL OBLIGATION,
arising from past benefit, when not a good consideration, 7.
when it will support an express promise, 9, 10.

MORTGAGE,
given to secure money lost at play, invalidity of, 108.
limitation of actions affecting rights of mortgagees, 200.
See LIMITATION OF ACTIONS.
transfer by death, provisions as to, on, 243.
specific performance of contract to execute, 295.
right of mortgagee to remove fixtures, 702.
when mortgagor becomes tenant to mortgagee, 754.
when mortgaged premises are in possession and occupation of lessees, 755.
leases by mortgagor after making of mortgage, 757.
notice of, to lessee, 759.
nature of, 817.
of goods and chattels, 818.
by bailor, 849.
distress on goods mortgaged by tenant, 793.
rights of mortgagee, 793, 794.
amounting to bill of sale, 818, 819.
by joint stock companies, 818.
repayment of debt on demand, 819.
by day named, 819.
fraudulent dealing with goods by mortgagor, 819.
remedy of mortgagee, 819.
conversion of mortgaged goods, rights of mortgagee, 819.
mortgagor in possession as reputed owner, effect of, 820.
pledges of goods and chattels, 820.
See PLEDGE.
of ships and shares of vessels, 831.
of fixtures, 839.
how made, 839.
what passes by, 839.

MORTGAGE—continued.
of fixtures—continued.
sale on default, 839.
duty of mortgagee to account, 839.
equity of redemption barred by foreclosure, 840.
right to fixtures as between mortgagor and mortgagee, 840.
of stock and shares, 841.
registration of, 841.
liability of mortgagee for calls, 841.
equitable mortgage, how effected, 841.
fraudulent transfer by mortgagee, when ineffectual, 841.
void by reason of reputed ownership, 841.
lien upon shares and stocks, 842.
equitable title, how perfected, 842.
stamp on, 1346.
See HYPOTHECATION—PLEDGE.

MUNICIPAL CORPORATION. See CORPORATIONS.

MUTUAL ACCOUNTS. See ACCOUNT STATED.
settlement of, 472.
when accounts cannot be reopened, 472, 473.

MUTUAL COVENANTS,
nature of, 53.
when not binding on parties, 56.

MUTUAL CREDIT CLAUSE,
in bankruptcy, object of, 275.

MUTUAL PROMISES,
nature of, 1, 13.

MUTUALITY,
of contract, 1, 2, 13, 14.
in regard to corporations, 373.
of relief to both parties in cases of specific performance, 293, 294.

MUTUUM,
or loan for use and consumption, 813.

NECESSARIES,
for infants, 408—410.
See INFANTS.
for married women, 428, 430.
See MARRIED WOMEN.

NEGATIVE COVENANTS, enforcement of observance of, by injunction, 300, 302, 303.
See INJUNCTION.

NEGLIGENCE,
in performance of contract, parties to be plaintiffs in actions for, 290.
of hirer of chattels, 807.
of borrower, 810, 812.
of lender in not making known defects, 814.
of executors, 845.
of depositary, 845, 846, 865.
of depositor, 845, 846.
of customers, 857.
of bankers, 857, 896, 969.

NEGLIGENCE—continued.
of public officers, 897.
of mandatary, 865.
of warehousemen, 864, 865.
of workmen, 889.
of surgeons, &c., 890, 897.
of solicitor, 890—895.
See SOLICITOR.
of barristers, 895.
of surveyors or valuers, 896.
of arbitrator, 899.
of bailee's servant, 901.
of bailor, 901.
of fellow-servant, 926.
of bank managers, 969.
of carriers by water, 987—993.
at sea, 988, 989, 1174.
of licensed pilots, 991.
of carriers by land, 1015—1018.
railway accident, primâ facie evidence of, 1018.
of common carrier, 1025—1029.
contributory, in case of carriers, 1029.
of consignor, loss of goods occasioned by, 1043.
causing fire, 1218.

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS,
what are, 1241.
See BILL OF EXCHANGE—PROMISSORY NOTE.

NEUTRALITY,
warranty of, in policies of marine assurance, 1167.

NOMINAL DAMAGES,
recovery of, 277.
See DAMAGES.

NON-ACCEPTANCE. See ACCEPTANCE. of goods sold, damages for, 625.

NON-DELIVERY . See DELIVERY OF GOODS. of goods sold, damages recoverable for, 626.

NON-FEAZANCE,
non-liability of mandataries for, 860.

NON-PAYMENT,
of purchase-money for land after execution of conveyance, 524.
of price of goods sold, remedies of seller for, 622.
of premium in fire assurance, 1218.

NOTE. See PROMISSORY NOTE—BILL OF EXCHANGE.

NOTICE,
of dissolution of partnership, 367.
of retirement of partners, 367.
of stoppage in transitu, 618.
to banker, of trust, 856.
under Carriers Act, of increased charges, 1031.
to insurer, of loss by fire, 1218.

NOTICE OF ABANDONMENT. See ABANDONMENT.

NOTICE OF ACTION,
to railway companies, not necessary generally before actions ex contractu, 1067.

NOTICE OF ASSIGNMENT,
of chose in action, 225, 226.

NOTICE OF COVENANTS,
constructive, 229.

NOTICE OF DISHONOUR. See BILL OF EXCHANGE.
to whom to be given, 1273.
rules as to, 1273.
what amounts to, 1275.
posting of, 1275.
proof of, 1278.
excuses for delay in giving, 1278.
dispensation of, 1278.

NOTICE OF DISTRESS,
not necessary at common law, 801, 802.

NOTICE TO QUIT,
when necessary, 720.
how and by whom to be given, 721.
under Agricultural Holdings Act, 721.
by agents, 722.
by joint owner, 722.
form and effect of, 723.
alternative and peremptory notices, 723.
length of, 724.
under Agricultural Holdings Act, 725.
time of quitting specified in notice, 725.
application of, to current term, 726.
commencement of current year, 727.
calculation of current year, 728.
admission by tenant of commencement of term, 728.
where there are different periods of entry, 729.
service of, 730.
through post office, 731.
acceptance of informal notice, 731.
proof of, 731.
waiver of, 731.
railway notices, determination of tenancies by, 735.
in case of lodgings and furnished apartments, 763.

NOTING,
of foreign bills, 1276.

NOVATION AND SUBSTITUTION,
nature and effect of, 179.
substitution of new for original contract, 179, 180.
release by, 179.
drafts and orders operating by way of, 180—182.
in case of life assurance companies, 182.
partnerships, 365.
substituted performance of something different, 183.
by assignment of chose in action, 227.

NUDUM PACTUM,
nature and definition of, 2, 3, 4, 7, 9, 11.

OBLIGATION. See BOND.
moral, consideration sufficient to support, 9, 10.
of parent towards child, 9.
in respect of infant's contracts, 10.

OCCUPATION OF LAND. See USE AND OCCUPATION.
compensation for, 681.
constructive, meaning and effect of, 682

OFFERS,
of reward for information, 6.
of sale, withdrawal of, 17.
publication of, by advertisement, 15, 310.
acceptance of, 14, 15, 17.
through post, 17.
by telegram, 18.
must be unconditional, 16.
conditional, 17.
biddings at auctions, mere, 17, 476.
contract dates from, 17.
to pay not amounting to tender, 169.
of marriage, 1312.
and proposals not requiring stamp, 1370.
See PROMISE OF MARRIAGE.

OFFICES,
sale of, illegality of, 86, 95.
See ILLEGAL CONTRACTS.

OPPRESSION. See DURESS—EXTORTION.
money obtained by, right to recover, 463, 464.

ORAL CONTRACTS,
for tenancy, enforcement of, 294.
sale of land, 479.

ORAL DISCHARGE,
of contract, dispensing with performance, 171.
of note or bill, of no effect, 175.

ORAL EVIDENCE. See EVIDENCE.

ORDER OF DISCHARGE,
in bankruptcy, effect of, 195.

ORDERS FOR MONEY,
in favour of creditors, operating as novation of debt, 180.
See MONEY ORDERS.

OUTGOINGS,
deduction of, by tenant, from rent, 677, 679, 680.

OUTGOING TENANT,
rights of, 740—746.
away-going crops, tillages, manures, &c., 740.
sale of straw off the land, 746.
removal of fixtures. See FIXTURES.
non-payment of tithe rent-charge by, 747.

OUTLAWS,
disabilities of, 259, 438.
See CIVIL DEATH.

OVERSEERS. See PARISH OFFICERS.

OWNERSHIP,
transfer of, in case of contract for sale of land, 481, 482.
of goods, 579.

PACKED PARCELS,
carriage of, increased charge by railway company for, 1062.
defective packing, when carrier liable for deterioration from, 1027.

PACKERS,
lien of, 862.

PAIS,
estoppel in. See ESTOPPEL.

PARENT,
contract by, to give up control of children, illegality of, 77.
obligation of, to provide for children, 413.
liability of, for medical advice and medicines ordered for his children, by servant, 338.
for clothes and goods delivered at his residence by order of his children, 408.
consent of, to marriage of minors, 1319.

PARISH COUNCILS,
contracts with, how made, 399.

PARISH INDEMNITIES,
legality of, for charges in respect of illegitimate children, 85.
of apprentices gaining settlements, 86.

PARISH OFFICERS,
authority of, to enter into contracts, 400.
contracts with, 400.
liabilities of, upon contracts made by them on behalf of parish, 400.

PAROL DISCHARGE,
of contracts before breach, 171, 174.

PAROL EVIDENCE. See EVIDENCE.

PAROL LICENCE,
no discharge of covenant, 174.
when pleadable by way of defence, 174.

PART ACCEPTANCE,
and receipt of goods sold, 28, 537.

PART DELIVERY, of goods, exercise of seller's right of lien on remainder, 611.

PARTIAL LOSS,
exception of, in policies of marine insurance, 1194.
in policies of fire insurance, 1218.
notice of, 1218.

PARTICULAR AVERAGE,
definition of, 1196.

PARTICULAR CHARGES,
recoverable under sue and labour clause, 1196.

PARTIES TO CONTRACTS,
parties entitled to sue on covenants, 237.
in actions of tort founded on contract, 290.
parties entitled to enforce simple contracts, 308.
strangers to contract, 308.
contracts with bankers, warehousemen, and wharfingers, 309, 310.
parties entitled to enforce contracts under seal, 311.
trustee and cestui que trust, 312.
covenantees not executing deed, 313.
parties liable upon simple contracts, 313.
parties liable upon deeds, 315.
covenants in feigned names, 315.
by one person on behalf of another, 315.
agreements and promises, whether joint or several, 315.
joint or separate interests of covenantees, 316.
rights of tenants in common, 317.

PARTIES TO CONTRACTS—continued.
rights of joint tenants, 317.
joint or separate interests in implied contracts, 318.
joint or several liabilities ex contractu, 319.
joint and several promises, 320.
joint and several purchases, 321.
with agents, 321.
See AGENT.
servants, 337.
foremen, 338.
managers, 338.
telegraph clerks, 339.
shipmasters, 339—342.
ship's husband, 343.
brokers, 343.
ship brokers, 343.
counsel, 343.
solicitors, 344.
public officers, 350, 356, 389.
Government agents, 353.
partners, 357.
See PARTNERSHIP.
corporations, 373.
See CORPORATIONS.
joint stock companies, 379, 380.
railway companies, 386, 388.
See RAILWAY COMPANIES.
co-partnerships and associations suing by public officer, 388.
mining companies, 389.
insurance companies, 390.
See INSURANCE COMPANIES.
banking co-partnerships, 391.
provisional directors and committees, 393.
club committees, members of, 395.
trustees of public works, 397.
metropolitan borough councils, 398.
parish councils, 399.
district councils, 399.
parish officers, 400.
friendly societies, 400.
industrial societies, 401.
benefit building societies, 402.
freehold land societies, 403.
loan societies, 404.
registered trades unions, 404.
infants, 404.
See INFANT.
expectant heirs, extortionate contracts with, 412.
parents, 413.
executors, 414.
See EXECUTORS.
husband and wife, 418.
See MARRIED WOMEN.
bankrupt, 434.
See BANKRUPTCY.
drunkards, 435.
See DRUNKARDS.
lunatics, 436.
alien friends, 437.
alien enemies, 437, 438.
prisoners of war, 438.
convicts, 438.
outlaws, 438.
parties privileged from actions and suits, 439.

PARTITION OF LANDS,
specific performance of agreement for, 294.

PARTNERSHIP,
illegal, dissolution of, 89, 367.
limited. See LIMITED PARTNERSHIP.
rights of partners upon contracts with third parties, 357.
implied contracts with firms, 358.
trust services by partners, 358.
contracts with trustees or directors of co-partnerships, 358.
liabilities of partners, 359.
power of partner to bind firm, 359.
admission by one partner, effect of, 360.
notice to one partner, effect of, 360.
liability of, created for particular purpose, 360.
inchoate and incomplete, nature of, 361.
execution for separate debt of one partner, 361.
dealings of one partner in fraud of co-partnership, 362.
transactions out of ordinary course of business, 362.
authority of one partner to sign bills and notes in name of firm to secure private debt, 363.
liabilities of dormant and secret partners, 363.
private agreements exempting dormant partners from liability, 364.
liabilities of nominal partners, 364.
persons suffering themselves to be held out to world as partners, 364.
liabilities of incoming and retiring partners, 365.
new firm created by novation, 366, 367.
notice of retirement of partners, 367, 368.
assignment of share in, 367.
dissolution of, how effected, 367.
rights of persons dealing with firm against ostensible partners, 367.
notice of, how effected, 367, 368.
rights of partners on, 368.
continuing authority for winding-up purposes, 368.
as to partnership property, 368.
retirement of dormant partners, 369.
notice of, when necessary, 369.
directors of trading associations, 369.
liability of shareholders or partners, 369.
authority of committeemen, 369.
liabilities of partners upon deeds, 370.
act or instrument on behalf of firm, 370.
authorised to sue and be sued in name of officer, 388.
specific performance of contract for, when decreed, 295.
loans of money to one of several partners, 814.
deposit of money with one of several partners, 850, 851.
bonds and guarantees by sureties to, 1087.
guarantees by one of several partners in name of co-partnership, 1105.
bills of exchange and promissory notes by partners, 362, 363, 1301, 1306.
See BANKING CO-PARTNERSHIP — CORPORATIONS — JOINT-STOCK COMPANY—MINING COMPANIES.

PART PAYMENT, of principal debt preventing operation of Statute of Limitations, 215.
by bill or note, 216.

PART PAYMENT—continued.
of principal debt—continued.
by render of service, or by delivery of goods, 216.
by adjustment and settlement of accounts, 216.
to strangers and agents, 218.
by strangers and agents, 219.
See INTEREST.
by one of several joint debtors or co-contractors, 218.
for goods sold, effect of, 539.

PART PERFORMANCE,
taking case out of Statute of Frauds, 23, 481.
specific performance of oral agreements in case of, 294.
of special contract, 453.
of contract for sale of land, 480, 481.
in case of sale of goods, by acceptance, 532, 538.
by tenant being let into possession, 651, 652.
by sub-lessee, effect of, 652.
See PERFORMANCE.

PASSENGERS. See COMMON CARRIER.
by coach or rail, injuries to, 1015.
railway companies, apart from statute, not common carriers of, 1020.
to be forwarded without delay, 1024.
contracts for carriage of, 1035.
luggage, duty of common carrier to carry, 1023, 1036.
by excursion trains, charge for, 1037.
in cloak rooms, liability for loss of, 865, 1035.
loss of, 1036.
delivery of, at railway stations, 1037.
carriage over other railways, company to be sued for injuries to, 1070.
damages for railway accidents, 1015, 1019, 1070, 1075.
accident primâ facie evidence of negligence, 1018.
fares, 1065.
right to alight at intermediate station, 1065.
season tickets, forfeiture of deposit on, 1065, 1066.

PATENT AGENT,
liability of, for negligence, 889.

PATENT AMBIGUITY,
cannot be explained by parol evidence, 47, 48.

PATENT DEFECTS,
in goods sold, proof of, 549, 552.

PATENT RIGHT,
specific performance of contract for sale of, 294, 636.
no warranty of indefeasibility of right on sale of, 562, 636.

PATENTED ARTICLE,
conditional licence on sale of, effect of, 636.

PAWNBROKERS,
statutory rights and liabilities of, 828.
loans above 10*l.* not within statute, 828.
who are to be deemed pawnbrokers, 828.
unredeemed pledges, sale of, 829.
pledge sold for less than loan, 829.
tender before sale, effect of, 829.
warranties on sales of, 829.
no implied warranty of title, 829.
indemnity given by statute does not affect owner's rights, 829.

PAYMENT,
and acceptance of part of admitted simple contract debt, 151.
and acceptance of full amount before action, 152.
according to direction of creditor, 152.
by bill or note, 154.
acceptance of renewed bills, 156.
dishonoured bills, actions for debts secured by, 155.
by cheque, 156.
by stolen bank note, 156.
by delivery of goods, 157.
by legacy, 157.
by stranger, 157.
proof of, 157.
receipt, effect of giving, 158.
presumption of, 158.
to agent in ordinary course of business, 159, 160.
by mistake of fact, 355.
by agent, 161.
to creditor of creditor, 162.
by principal to his own agent, 162.
to joint creditors, trustees, &c., 163.
to bankrupt, 164.
to one of several joint creditors, 164.
appropriation of, 164.
by debtor, 165.
by creditor, 165.
separate accounts and one entire running account, 166.
avoidance of, 167.
tender of, 167.
offers not amounting to, 169.
conditional tenders, 169.
apportionment of periodical payments, 170.
of dividend in bankruptcy, operation of, 197.
part payment extending period of limitation, 215.
See PART PAYMENT. of interest on debt, effect of, 217.
with delivery of goods, concurrent condition, 598.
action for. See PRICE—SALE OF GOODS. of cheques by bankers, duty of bankers to honour customer's drafts, 854.
at branch banks, 859.
of cheques by mistake, when money recoverable by banker, 859.
of wages, 935.
See TRUCK ACT.
presumption of, 936.
by one agent to another agent of same principal, 956.
by commission, 957.
of agents for extra work, 958.
of ship-brokers, 958.
of policy brokers, 959.
of travellers for orders, 959.
of house and estate agents, 959, 960.
of auctioneers, 960.

PAYMENT BY BILL OR NOTE,
effect of, 153.
payment by approved bill, 154.
acceptance of renewed bills, 154.

PAYMENT INTO COURT,
of purchase-money on sale of land, 519.
by stakeholders, under Trustee Act, 850.

PECUNIARY LIABILITIES, recovery of, when swelling amount of damages, 284.

PENAL OBLIGATIONS. See BONDS.

PENALTIES,
penal obligations, 285.
for breach of contract, 286.
for non-performance of covenants and agreements, 286.
liquidated damages, difference between, and, 287.
penalties under denomination of liquidated damages, 287.
for non-performance of building contracts, 883.

PENSIONS,
illegal sale of, or charge on, 92.

PERFORMANCE. See INJUNCTION—SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE.
of contracts, 138.
mode of performance, 138.
cumulative and alternative stipulations, 139.
time of performance, 140.
See TIME OF PERFORMANCE.
conditions precedent to performance, 142.
demand of performance, when necessary, 143.
waiver of demand of performance, 144.
dispensation of performance of, 145.
tender of performance, 146.
prevention of performance, 146.
impossibility of performance, 147.
substitution of performance. See ACCORD AND SATISFACTION.
by payment. See PAYMENT.
by part payment. See PART PAYMENT.
waiver of, amounting to release, 171.
by novation and substitution, 179.
by substituted performance of something different, 183.
payments taking case out of Statute of Limitations, 215.
specific. See SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE.
injunction to compel. See INJUNCTION.
mandamus to compel. See MANDAMUS.
of contracts for sale of land. See SALE OF LAND.
for sale of goods by delivery, 597.
See SALE OF GOODS.
of sales of shares, 641.
mode of performance, 641, 642.
time of performance, 644.
of contracts for work and services, 879.
time of, 875.
entire performance, condition precedent to payment, 876.
divisible and apportionable work, 876.
of building contracts, 877—887.
approval of work before payment, 877, 878.
security for, 884.
prevention of, 887, 914. of charter-parties, 973.
See CHARTER-PARTY.
of conditions precedent in, 976.
mode of performance of, 978.
complete cargo, 978.
impossibility of performance of, 979.

PERILS OF THE SEA,
what are, as between consignor and carrier, 987, 988.
in insurance cases, 1174.

PERIODICAL PAYMENTS,
apportionment of, 170.

PERISHABLE COMMODITIES,
resale of, by vendor, 621.
bailments of, duty of bailee as to, 863.

PERSONAL CONTRACTS,
assignment of, 221.
liability of personal representatives upon, 241, 244, 249.

PERSONAL COVENANTS,
transfer of, by death, 241, 244.
to pay rent, liability of personal representatives on, 247.
to repair, 248.

PERSONAL INJURIES. See PASSENGERS.
damages for, 1075.

PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVES. See EXECUTORS.

PETROLEUM,
sale of, regulated by statute, 111.

PHYSIC,
unlawful practising of, 115.

PHYSICIANS. See SURGEON.
qualification of, 115.
services by, right to sue, 115, 873.

PILOT,
licensed, losses occasioned by negligence of, 991.
exemption of owner and master from liability, 991.

PLAINTIFFS. See PARTIES TO ACTIONS. accord and satisfaction with one of several joint-plaintiffs, 188.

PLAY. See GAMING.

PLEDGE,
of husband's credit, extent of wife's authority, 425.
contract of, definition of, 817, 818.
what may be given in pledge, 820.
parties entitled to pledge, 820.
fraudulent pledge, lien of innocent pledgee, 821.
extent of pawnor's interest in pledge can be pledged, 821.
title deeds delivered as escrow, effect of, 821.
implied warranty of title on part of pledgor, 821.
duty of pledgee to return, 822.
of goods by factors, 822.
See FACTORS.
right of redemption of pledgor, 825.
wrongful detention of, action for, 825.
sale of pledgor's right of property and right of redemption, 825.
forfeiture of, 826.
relief against, when granted, 826.
foreclosure of right of redemption, 826.
pledgee's power of sale, 826.
accounts between pledgor and pledgee, 827.
custody and safe keeping of, 827.
use of, when allowed, 827.
statutory rights and liabilities of pawnbrokers, 828.
See PAWNBROKERS.
unredeemed, sale of, 829.
warranty on sale of, 829.
of certificate of registry of ship, illegal, 839.
unauthorised dealing with, giving right of action, 903.
stamp on contracts of, 1373.

POISON,
illegal sale of, 111.

POISONED GRAIN, MEAL, OR SEED,
sale of, prohibited, 111.

POISONED HERBAGE, demise of, liability of lessee for rent, notwithstanding, 673.

POLICIES,
assignment of, 222.
of marine insurance, 1107, 1124.
contract to be embodied in, 1124.
what must be specified in, 1125.
signature of insurer, 1126.
designation of subject-matter, 1126.
voyage and time, 1131.
valued and open, 1132, 1203, 1204.
unvalued, 1132.
floating policy by ship or ships, 1132.
form and construction of, 1133.
rules for construction of, 1135.
stamp on, 1380.
See MARINE INSURANCE.
against fire, 1084.
stamp on, 1380.
See FIRE INSURANCE.
upon life, assignment of, 222, 1232.
stamp on, 1380, 1384.
See LIFE ASSURANCE.
against accident, stamp on, 1382.
alteration in marine policy, after stamping, 1381.
penalty for unstamped, 1382.

POLICY BROKERS. See AGENCY.
right of, on contracts made by them as agents, 346.
liability of, to their principals, 949.
right of, to commission, 116, 959.
lien of, 962.

POOR LAW GUARDIANS. See PARISH OFFICERS.

PORTIONS,
marriage, promises of, 1316.
authentication of, 34, 1316.
specific performance of, 296.
contracts in fraud of, 1317.

PORTS OF DISCHARGE,
when to be taken in order designated, 1172.
in geographical order, 1172.
limits of, regulated by usage, 1153.
arrival at, 1153.
mooring in safety, 1153.

POSSESSION,
of goods after sale, rights of person in, 595.
of land, recovery of, 735.

POST,
acceptance of offers by, 17.
miscarriage of letter sent by, 18.
postman not agent of Post Office to receive letters, 18.
notice to quit sent by, 731.

POST-DATING,
cheque, 1378.
stamp on, 1378.

POUND. See IMPOUNDING GOODS.

POUND-BREACH,
right of landlord to follow goods, 799.

POWER OF ATTORNEY,
to execute deeds, 43.
revocation of, 945.
when irrevocable, 946.

POWER OF REVOCATION,
and defeasance of contracts, 173.

POWER OF SALE,
of pledge, 826.
See PLEDGE.

POWERS,
of granting leases, exercise of, 664.

PRECEDENT CONDITIONS. See CONDITIONS PRECEDENT.

PRESENTATION,
sale of right of next, when legal, 93.

PRESENTMENT,
of bills of exchange for acceptance, 1261.
when necessary, 1262.
rules as to, 1262, 1263.
of bills payable at or after sight, 1262.
of bills of exchange for payment, 1268.

PRESENTS,
promises of, in return for services, evidence of contract to pay reasonable sum, 873.

PRESUMPTION,
of payment, 158.
of wages, 936.
of marriage, 1319.

PRETENCED TITLES,
sale of, by parties out of possession, 525.

PRETENDED AGENCY,
nature of, 351.

PREVENTION OF CORRUPTION ACT, 1906, corrupt transactions with agents, 944.

PREVENTION OF PERFORMANCE. See PERFORMANCE.
of contracts, 146.
of building contracts, 887, 914.

PREVIOUS LEGAL PROCEEDINGS, costs of, recovery of, as part of damages, 283.

PRICE,
of goods, how fixed, 540.
customs duty to be added to, 541.
unascertained, how fixed, 583, 584.
action for, of goods, 622.
bargained and sold, 622, 623.
sold and delivered, 623, 624.
sold on credit, 624.
abatement of, in building contracts, 882.

PRIMAGE AND AVERAGE,
customary charges payable by freighter of merchandise, 1008, 1201.

PRINCIPAL AND AGENT. See AGENCY—AGENT.

PRINCIPAL AND SURETY. See GUARANTEE.

PRINTERS,
contracts with, for printing of immoral or libellous books, 114.
when action for labour and materials lies, 114.

PRIORITY, of maritime liens, 838.
See BOTTOMRY BOND.

PRISONERS OF WAR,
contracts by, legality of, 438.

PRIVITY OF CONTRACT,
in action of tort founded on contract, 291.
strangers to contract, 308.
in deeds, 311.
essential to maintenance of action upon deed inter partes, 313.
in covenants running with the land, 227.
privity of estate, 227, 228.
See PARTIES TO ACTIONS.

PRIVITY OF ESTATE,
enabling assignees of estates to maintain actions on covenants running with land, 227.
See COVENANTS RUNNING WITH LAND.

PROCURATION. See POWER OF ATTORNEY.

PROFESSIONAL SERVICES,
right of professional men to recover fees for, 873.
in case of useless or unskilful services, 890.

PROFITS,
insurance on, by valued or open policies, 1143.
an insurable interest, 1143, 1144.
charterer entering into sub-charter, 1144.
contracts to carry goods in ship, 1144.
commission on sale of merchandise, 1144.
commission of ship broker or ship's husband, 1144.
freight includes profit by shipowner from employment of ship, 1109.

PROJECTED COMPANIES,
contracts with, 369, 381, 387.
See PROVISIONAL COMMITTEES.

PROJECTORS. See PROMOTERS. of companies, services by, 387.
contracts for payment of, 387.

PROMISE. See CONSIDERATION.
without consideration, 2, 7.
unilateral undertakings, 1, 2.
revocation of, 14, 15, 171, 173.
by death, 246.
mutual promises, 13.
acceptance of, 14.
by executor to answer damages out of his own estate, 29.
to answer for debt, default, or miscarriage of another, 29.
in consideration of marriage, 33.
See PORTIONS.
not to be performed within a year, authentication of, 34.
without consideration, authentication of, 42.
to pay debts barred by Statute of Limitations, 211.
See ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF DEBTS.
by implication of law, 449—453.
of present in return for service, 873.

PROMISE OF MARRIAGE. See MARRIAGE.
authentication of, 33, 1312.
time of performance, 1313.
excuses for non-performance, 1313.
conditional promises, 1314.
avoidance and dispensation of, 1314.
by misrepresentation and deceit, 1314.
by alteration in condition of parties, 1315.
by mutual consent, 1315.
damages for breach of, 1315.

PROMISSORY NOTE. See BILL OF EXCHANGE.
foreign, interpretation of, 60, 61, 62.
right of action on promissory notes payable to one man "for the use" or "on behalf" of another, 344.
acceptance of, by way of payment of rent, 777.
effect of, on right to distrain, 777.
nature of, 1284.
liability of maker, 1285.
transfer of, 1286.
payable on demand, 1287.
presentment of, for payment, 1287.
days of grace, 1271, 1288.
stamp duty on, 1374.
what are promissory notes within Stamp Acts, 1375, 1378.

PROMOTERS,
of companies, contracts with, 387.

PROOF OF PAYMENT,
what constitutes, as performance of contract, 156, 157.

PROPOSAL,
to guarantee, not amounting to concluded contract, 1083.
in writing not requiring stamp, 1370.
See OFFERS.

PROSECUTION,
criminal, contract to withdraw, invalidity of, 82.

PROSPECTIVE DAMAGES. See DAMAGES.

PROSPECTUS,
fraudulent, when voidable only, and not void, 128.

PROSTITUTION. See ILLEGAL CONTRACTS.
contracts tending to promote, void, 76.

PROTEST,
of foreign bill, 1276.

PROVIDENT SOCIETIES,
contracts with, statutory provisions regulating, 401.

PROVISIONAL COMMITTEES,
contracts with, 369, 393.
liabilities of, to third parties, 393.
powers and responsibilities of, 394, 395.

PROVISIONS,
implied warranties on sale of, 569.

PROVISO,
words of, amounting to express covenant, 51.

PUBLIC HOUSE. See BREWERS.
covenants in lease of, creating a monopoly, void, 102.

PUBLIC INCONVENIENCE,
no ground for refusing specific performance, 294.

PUBLIC JUSTICE,
illegality of contracts tending to obstruct, 81.

PUBLIC OFFICERS,
covenant by, on behalf of another, 315.
contracts by, 350.
notoriety of agency, 350.
exemption from liability, 336.
of companies, 388.
liability of, 389.
salaries of, fund responsible for payment of, 398.
implied contract for payment, 398, 874.
negligence of, 897.

PUBLIC OFFICES,
illegal sale of, 86, 91.

PUBLIC POLICY,
contracts against, 77.
See ILLEGAL CONTRACTS.

PUBLIC WORKS,
contracts with trustees of, 397.
funds subject to payment of claims, 397.
for salaries of officers, 398.

PUFFERS,
secret employment of, at sales by auction of land, 476.
at sales by auction of goods, 632.

PUR AUTRE VIE,
estates, transfer by death of covenants annexed to, 243.

PURCHASER. See SALE OF GOODS—SALE OF LANDS.

QUACKS,
liabilities of, 890, 898.

QUALITY,
of goods, implied warranty as to, 564.

QUANTITY,
delivery of wrong, of goods, 600.

QUANTUM MERUIT,
implied contract to pay on, 453, 868.
right to recover by way of, 876, 934.
for defective work accepted by employer, 880.

QUARANTINE,
detention in, is not "detention of princes and rulers," 995.

QUIET ENJOYMENT,
covenants for, as between landlord and tenant, 665.
breach of, what amounts to, 666.
damages for, 750.

RACES,
horse and foot, betting on, 108.
recovery of bets deposited with stakeholder, 107.

RAILWAY AND CANAL TRAFFIC ACT, 1854. See COMMON CARRIER.

RAILWAY BONDS,
assignment of, 222.

RAILWAY CARRIERS,
are common carriers of goods, 1020.
liability for injury to passengers, 1016, 1017.
railway accident, primâ facie proof of negligence, 1018.
implied undertakings by, to forward passengers or goods, 1024.
negligence by, involving injury to passengers, 1025.
contributory negligence by passenger, 1030.
limitation of liability of, by public notice under Carriers Act, 1030.
See COMMON CARRIER.
Railway and Canal Traffic Act, liabilities under, 1043.
See COMMON CARRIER.

RAILWAY COMPANIES,
contracts with, when void, 386, 387.
contracts with promoters of railway made before incorporation, when enforceable, 387.
bills of exchange, not generally authorised to draw, &c., 387.
contracts by directors and committees of directors, 387.
informal contracts by, for services, 388.
transfer of, and title to shares of, 638.
rolling stock of, when protected from distress, 789.
eviction by, under statutory powers, 676.
apportionment of rent on, 676.
liability of, for luggage deposited in cloakrooms, 865.
not common carriers of passengers, apart from statute, 1020.
authority of servants of, to bind by special contract, 1050.
injunction against, to enforce Traffic Act, 1063.

RAILWAY FARES,
right to alight at intermediate station, 1065.
season ticket, forfeiture of deposit, 1065, 1066.

RAILWAY NOTICES, determination of tenancies by, 735.

RATES,
mandamus to local authority to levy, 440.
deduction of, from rent, 677.

RATIFICATION,
of acts of agents, 330.
by husband of wife's contracts, 426.
of promises made by infants, 44, 405, 411.
of marine insurance, after loss is known, 1122.

REALTY. See SALE OF LANDS.
title to. See TITLE.

RECEIPT,
obtained by misrepresentation, not a valid release, 129.
effect of receipt in full as payment, 158.
indorsed on bill, effect of, 158.
by agent on account of principal, 355, 954.
on account of stranger, 355.
by sub-agent, 995.
for money, stamp on, 1385.
of goods, 532.
See ACCEPTANCE AND ACTUAL RECEIPT.

RECEIVING ORDER. See BANKRUPTCY.

RECITALS,
in deeds, contradiction of, 72.
amounting to covenants, 51, 522.

RECOGNIZANCES,
when constituted contracts by matter of record, 22.

RECORD,
contracts by matter of, nature of, 21.
statutes merchant and staple, 22.
recognizances, 22.

RECOVERY,
of money, paid under illegal or void contracts, 136, 467.
on void sale of realty, 520, 521, 524.
of chattels, 555, 572.
See MONEY HAD AND RECEIVED—MONEY PAID.
of interest on money paid by surety, 1104.
of possession. See EJECTMENT—LANDLORD AND TENANT.

RECTIFICATION,
of contracts, 134.
See MISTAKE.

REDEMPTION. See MORTGAGE—PLEDGE.

REDUCTION OF DAMAGES,
rule as to, 284.

RE-ENTRY,
provisoes for, on breach of covenants in leases, 709.
effect of, on lessee's liability on covenants, 712.
right of, on forfeiture, waiver of, 713.
recovery of land under provisoes for, 736.
where no sufficient distress, 737.
See EJECTMENT.

REFUSAL. See REJECTION.

REGISTERED JOINT-STOCK COMPANIES. See JOINT-STOCK COMPANY.

REGISTERS,
stamp on certified copies of, or extracts from, 1340.

REGISTRATION,
of mortgages of sale of ships, 834.
of transfers of shares, 642.
of forged transfers, 648.

REGISTRY,
of shareholders. See REGISTRATION.

REJECTION,
of goods sold, 558, 606, 615.

RELEASE,
covenants and agreements to refer disputes and differences to arbitration, 81, 82.
of contracts by consent of parties, 171.
dispensation of performance, 171.
of simple contracts before breach, 171.
renunciation of contract by one party amounting to dispensation of performance to another party, 171.
powers of revocation and defeasance of contracts, 173.
of covenants before breach, 174.
of causes of action ex contractu, 174.
oral renunciation of claims on bills and notes, 175.
of one of several joint or joint and several contractors, 175.
general, operation of, 176.
conditional, 177.
fraudulent, to defeat action, 177.

RELEASE—continued.
by composition under Bankruptcy Acts, 177.
covenants not to sue, 177.
not to sue for limited time, 178.
by novation and substitution, 179.
substitution of new for original contract, 179, 180.
drafts and orders operating by way of novation, 180—182.
in case of life assurance companies, 182.
See NOVATION.
by alteration of contracts in writing, 189.
immaterial alterations, 190.
alteration of deeds, 191.
evidence to explain alterations, 191.
cancellation of contracts by mistake, 191.
merger of simple contract in contract under seal, 192.
judgment recovered, 192—194.
county court judgment, effect of, 192.
foreign and colonial judgments, effect of, 194, 454.
debtors made executors, 258.
appointment of debtor as administrator, 258.
appointment of creditor as executor, 258.
of surety, 1086.
by alteration of principal obligation, 1092.
by extension of time for payment, 1093.
reserving remedies against surety, 1095.
of principal debt, effect of, 1096.
of principal obligation, reserving remedies against surety, 1096.
of one of several co-sureties, 1097.
of surety by payment by principal debtor, 1097.
by death of principal, 1099.
by marriage, 1323.
stamp duty on, 1355.

RELIEF AGAINST FORFEITURE,
in case of lessee, 714.
when not granted, 714.
in case of sub-lessee, 714.
notice by lessor to remedy breach, 714, 715.
when not necessary, 715.
requisites of, 715.
effect of granting, 715.

REMEDIES FOR BREACH OF CONTRACT. See DAMAGES—MANDAMUS—SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE.

REMITTANCES BY POST, operating as payment, 152.

RENEWED BILLS,
acceptance of, suspending remedy for debt, 154.

RENT,
limitation of suit for recovery of, 199, 202.
assignment of, nature of, 239. liability of personal representative upon covenant to pay, 247.
covenant to pay, 667, 674.
exception of damage by fire, 674.
extinction and suspension of, by eviction, 674.
deduction of ground-rent, rates, and taxes from, 677.
distress for. See DISTRESS.
power of distress extinguished by assignment of reversion, 681.
apportionment of, 681.
forfeiture for breach of covenant to pay, 714.
relief against, 714.
See LANDLORD AND TENANT.

RENT-CHARGE,
tithe, illegal contract to pay, 90.

RENUNCIATION,
of contract, amounting to dispensation of performance, 171.
of claim on bill of exchange or promissory note, 175, 1283.
stamp duty on, 1355.
See RELEASE.

REPAIR,
liability of assignee of lessee, 230.
liability of personal representative upon covenants to, 248.
covenants to, between landlord and tenant, 685.
by lessor, to keep in repair, no breach before notice, 685.
run with the land, 697.
to put in repair, want of notice not necessary, 685.
not continuing covenants, 687.
by lessee, liability where demised premises destroyed, 686.
See COVENANTS RUNNING WITH THE LAND.
damages recoverable for breach of contract to repair, 751.
where buildings destroyed by fire or tempest, 752.

REPAIRS,
authentication of contract to make, 25.
hypothecation of vessel for, authority of master, 339.
gratuitous, duty of bailee as to, 861.
bailment of materials for, 899.

REPLEVIN BONDS,
assignment of, 222.

REPRESENTATIONS,
by agents, 334—336.
amounting to warranty, 334.
not amounting to warranty, 336.
forming no part of contract with principal, 336.
on sale of goods, amounting to warranty, 546.
not amounting to warranty, 549.
specific performance of, forming foundation of contract, 300.
injunction to compel parties to abide by, 300.
in charter-party, amounting to warranty, 975.
See MISREPRESENTATION—WARRANTY.

REPUDIATION,
of contract, on ground of fraud, 130.
right of, when to be exercised, ~~118, 119.~~ p. 130.
of agent by principal, 346.
by one party amounting to dispensation of performance by another, 171.
See AVOIDANCE.

REPUGNANT LIMITATIONS,
of liability, rejection of, 48.
See LIMITATION OF LIABILITY.

REPUTED MARRIAGE,
liabilities resulting from, 433.

REPUTED OWNERSHIP,
of stock and shares avoiding mortgage, 841.

REQUEST. See CONSIDERATION.

RE-SALE,
of realty by vendor, on non-performance by purchaser, 511, 512.
damages recoverable by vendor, 512.
of goods, unpaid seller's power of, 607.
effect of, where right of lien exercised, 620.
in cases of perishable goods, 621.
on notice of intention to re-sell, 621.
by purchaser, rights of sub-purchasers, 618.
with warranty, 631.
recovery of special damages, 281, 631.

RESCISSION OF CONTRACTS,
by mutual agreement, 171, 172.
by one party on refusal of other to fulfil contract, 171, 172.
under powers of revocation and defeasance, 173.
by vendor of land, 506.
by stoppage in transitu, 620.
See AVOIDANCE—RELEASE.

RESERVATION OF RIGHT OF DISPOSAL,
of specific goods, until certain conditions fulfilled, 588.

RESERVE OF REMEDIES,
in release of one of several joint contractors, 175.
of principal debtor, effect of, 1095, 1096.

RESIGNATION OF BENEFICE. See BENEFICE.

RESPONDENTIA,
insurable interest of lender on, 1110.
interest, when covered by policy, 1127.
loans, nature of, 1144, 1145.

RE-STAMPING,
of altered contracts, 1335.

RESTRAINT OF MARRIAGE,
contracts in, void as against public policy, 78, 1310.
restriction as to one specified person, 78.

RESTRAINT OF TRADE,
general, contracts in, are void, 95.
unless reasonably required for protection of covenantee, 95.
onus of proof of restraint being unnecessary and unreasonable, 96.
unlimited restraint, when valid, 96.
distinction between considerations invalidating, and partial restraint abolished, 96.
contracts between master manufacturers to close works, invalidity of, 96.
not to employ workmen of another master manufacturer, 96.
between workmen binding themselves to support men out of employment, 96.
trade unions, legality of, 96, 97.
partial, contracts in, when valid, 97.
as to particular locality, 97.
where reasonable, Court will prevent infringement, 98.
restraint must be confined within reasonable limits, 99.
limit in point of space, how measured, 99.
where limit as to space reasonable, indefinite limit as to time immaterial, 100.
question of reasonableness is for judge, 100.

RESTRAINT OF TRADE—continued.
partial, contracts in, when valid—continued.
restraint must be confined within reasonable limits—continued.
date for considering reasonableness is date of contract, 100.
adequacy of consideration, 100.
period to which restriction confined, 100.
covenantor bound although covenantee has ceased to carry on trade, 100.
covenant not to trade within certain reasonable limits, effect of, 101.
injunction to restrain breach of, 101, 301.
covenant by person "interested or concerned in" business sold, 101.
effect of, as regards vendor or assignor, 101.
pecuniary or proprietary interest, 101.
how far entitled to canvass old customers, 101, 102.
sale of good-will of business carried on under adopted name, 102.
trade carried on in different districts or towns, agreements not to interfere with, 102.
covenant by retiring partner, 102.

RESTRICTIVE COVENANTS,
as to user of premises, run with land, 305, 694.

RESTRICTIVE INDORSEMENT,
of bills and notes, 1251.

RETIRING OF BILLS,
by acceptor, as holder, at maturity, 1282.

RETIRING PARTNERS,
liabilities of, 365, 367.
dormant partners retiring, 369.

REVERSION,
assignment of, effect of, on accruing or accrued rent, 676.
extinguishing right to distrain for rent in arrear at time of, 681.
covenants real annexed to, 231.
position of assignee of reversion as to, 232.
position of lessee and his assigns as to, 232.

REVERSIONER,
covenants between lessee and, when running with land, 229.

REVOCATION,
of gratuitous promises, 16.
of authority of agents, 333, 945.
publication of, 333.
of contracts, power of, 171, 172.
stamp on, 1355.
See COUNTERMAND.
of licence to distrain and sell chattels, 831.
by act of bankruptcy, 831.

REWARD,
promise of, for conviction of felon, 6.
for recovery of lost property, 868.

RISK,
of loss, transfer of, on sale of land, 482.
on sale of goods, primâ facie passes with property, 591.
liability of buyer for, on refusal to take delivery, 666.
covered by policy of marine insurance, 1130.
fire insurance, 1216.
extraordinary risks, 1218.
life insurance, 1228.

ROAD SURVEYORS. See PARISH OFFICERS.

ROBBERY. See THEFT.

ROLLING STOCK,
of railway, when protected from distress, 789.

SALARIES,
of public officers, funds out of which to be paid, 398.
no implied promise of payment of, 874.
of officers of friendly societies, how provided for, 403.

SALE, contract of, in general, 474.
distinction between, and agreement to sell goods, 527.
distinction between, and contract for letting and hiring of work, 587, 867.
implied contract for, of goods, 454.
of distress, statutory power of, 800, 802.
See SALE OF GOODS—SALE OF LANDS.

SALE BY AUCTION. See AUCTION.

SALE OF GOODS,
to married woman as husband's agent, 425.
specific performance of contract for, 292, 628.
conditions imposed on, do not run with goods, 310.
contracts for, 28, 526.
authentication of, 28, 528.
sale and agreement to sell, 527.
capacity to buy and sell, 528.
contract of sale, how made, 528.
for 10*l.* and upwards, 528.
requisites of written memorandum of, 36, 529.
brokers' bought and sold notes, 531.
liability of broker, 532.
signature of memorandum, 39—43.
signature by agents, 41.
acceptance and actual receipt of things sold, 28, 532.
receipt for inspection and approval, 534.
when goods have been purchased by bailee, 534.
constructive acceptance, 535.
constructive possession and extinction of right of lien, 535.
of bills of lading, delivery orders, and dock warrants, 536.
by carriers, forwarding agents, and agents for custody, 537.
part acceptance and actual receipt binding contract, 537.
acceptance taking whole contract out of statute, 538.
earnest and part payment, 539.
subject-matter of contract, existing or future goods, 539.

SALE OF GOODS—continued.
price, how fixed, 540.
if not fixed to be reasonable, 540.
reasonable, what is, a question of fact, 541.
adding customs duty to price, 541.
time, conditions and warranties as to, 542.
when of essence of contract, 542.
meaning of word "month," 542.
enlargement of time of performance, 544.
warranty, express, 545.
made pending negotiations, 545.
private representations prior to sale, 545.
representations amounting to, 546.
on sale of horses, 547.
breach of, what is evidence of, 548.
what is unsoundness, 548.
manifest defect not covered by warranty, 549.
proof of vice, 549.
representations not amounting to warranty, 549.
matters of opinion and belief, 550.
proof of warranties, 551.
that party relied on representation, 552.
construction of express warranty, 553.
warranty by agent, 554.
distinction between condition and warranty, 554.
when condition to be treated as warranty, 554.
effect of breach of warranty by vendor, 557.
conditional and defeasible sales, 555.
rejection and non-acceptance of goods, 558.
implied conditions and warranties, 559.
as to title, 559.
sale by description, 562.
quality or fitness, 564.
where nothing said as to quantity or quality, 565.
caveat emptor, 565.
article to be used for specific purpose, 566.
merchantable quality, 568.
on sale of provisions, 569.
that goods are vendor's own manufacture, 569.
as to genuineness of trade-mark, 569.
of trade description, 570.
sale by sample, 570.
sales, voidable for fraudulent misrepresentation, 572.
false representation through third party, 573.
fraudulent breach of warranty, 574.
counterfeit trade-marks, 574.
implied warranty of marked goods, 574.
fraudulent use of, with intent to deceive, 574.
fraudulent concealment, 575.
sale with all faults, 577.
purchaser electing to avoid contract, 578.
transfer of property, 579.
intention of parties, 579.
rules for ascertaining intention, 579.
imperfect sale, unascertained price, 583.
sale or return, 585.
unascertained chattels, 585.
contracts for manufacture and sale, 585.
selection and appropriation of goods to purchaser's use, 587.
reservation of right of disposal, 588.
by bill of lading, delivery under bill, 589.
risk passes primâ facie with property, 591.
undivided shares, 591.

SALE OF GOODS—continued.
transfer of property—continued.
sale by person not owner, 592.
market overt, 593.
sale under voidable title, 594.
revesting of property in stolen goods, 594.
possession after sale, 595.
purchaser having notice of fi. fa., 596.
delivery of goods, 596.
duties of seller and buyer, 596.
actual and constructive delivery, 597.
proof of delivery, 597.
payment and delivery concurrent conditions, 598.
rules as to delivery, 599.
place of delivery, 599.
when time not fixed, 599.
when goods in third person's possession, 599.
hours for delivery, 599.
expenses of delivery, 600.
delivery of wrong quantity, 600.
delivery by instalments, 602.
delivery to carrier, effect of, 604.
seller's duty, 604.
where sea transit, 604.
deterioration in transit, 605.
buyer's right to examine, 605.
acceptance of, what constitutes, 606.
buyer need not return rejected goods, 606.
neglect or refusal to take delivery, 606.
unpaid seller's rights against goods, 607.
definition of unpaid seller, 607.
definition of seller, 607.
lien, 608.
insolvency of purchaser, 608.
countermand of delivery order, 609.
sale of undivided quantity, 611.
part delivery, effect of, on lien, 611.
termination of lien, 611.
lien not lost by judgment for price, 611.
rights of sub-purchasers, intervention of, 611.
stoppage in transitu, 612.
right of, 612.
application of doctrine, 612.
nature of, 612.
duration of transit, 613—618.
carriers and forwarding agents, 613.
when transitus at an end, 614.
before arrival at destination, 614.
after arrival at destination, 614.
goods in hands of agent for custody, 615.
goods rejected by buyer, 615.
delivery on buyer's ship, 616.
wrongful refusal of carrier to deliver, 617.
delivery of part of goods to buyer, 617.
mode of stoppage, 618.
re-sale by buyer, rights of sub-purchaser, 618.
transfer of bill of lading, 619, 620.
effect of, on sale of goods, 620.
sale not generally rescinded, 620.
re-sale by seller, title of buyer, 620.

SALE OF GOODS—continued.
transfer of property—continued.
delivery of goods—continued.
unpaid seller's rights against goods—continued.
when vendor may re-sell, 621.
goods of perishable nature, 621.
notice of intention to re-sell, 621.
remedies of seller, 622.
action for price, 622.
goods bargained and sold, 622.
damages, when recoverable, 623.
goods sold and delivered, 623.
goods sold on credit, 624.
damages for non-acceptance, 625.
measure of, 625.
where available market, 625, 626.
remedies of buyer, 626.
non-delivery, action for, 626.
measure of damages for, 626.
where available market, 626.
where no market, 627.
where goods re-sold in foreign market, 627.
anticipated profit, not recoverable as special damage, 627.
where shares not delivered by vendor, 628.
specific performance, 292, 628.
warranty, breach of, 629.
measure of damages, 629—631.
special damages, 631.
re-sale with warranty, 631.
costs of legal proceedings, 631, 632.
interest and special damages, right to recover, not affected by Sale of Goods Act, 632.
sale by auction, rules as to, 632.
in lots, 632.
when complete, 632.
right of seller to bid, 632.
subject to reserved price, 633.
sale of fixtures, tenant's and trade, 633.
authentication of contract, 28, 633.
of growing crops, &c., stamp on, 1358.

SALE OF INCORPOREAL HEREDITAMENTS.
See INCORPOREAL HEREDITAMENTS.

SALE OF LANDS AND TENEMENTS, contracts for sale of interests in lands. See FRAUDS, STATUTE OF.
authentication of contract, 22—27.
contracts of sale in general, 474.
sale of lands, 474.
to infant, liability of infant, 411.
executory contracts for, 22, 23.
requisites of memorandum, 36.
signature to memorandum, 39, 475.
by agents, 41.
computation of time in legal documents, 57.
release of purchaser by bankruptcy, 197.
sales by auction, 476—479.
oral contracts for, 479.
part performance of, 480.
enforcement of, 480, 481.
transfer of estate before conveyance executed, 481.
equitable ownership, 482.
title under Land Transfer Act, 483.

SALE OF LANDS AND TENEMENTS—continued.
production and proof of vendor's title, 484.
abstract of title, delivery of, 485.
delivery of title-deeds is not delivery of, 485.
requisitions and objections to title, 486.
title to realty, 487.
period for which title ought to be shown, 488.
title to leaseholds, 489.
waiver of proof of, and of objections to, title, 491.
production of title-deeds, 493.
loss of title-deeds, after abstract delivered, 494.
effect of misdescription, 494—502.
obligation to disclose material defects, 494.
representation by vendor amounting to warranty of fact, 496.
alterations in condition of property, 502.
time and mode of performance, 502.
where time is of essence of contract, 504.
enlargement of time of performance, 505.
non-performance by vendor, 506.
non-performance by purchaser, 509.
forfeiture of deposit, 509.
deposits in hands of auctioneers, &c., 509.
rights of vendor, 510.
damages for breach of contract by purchaser, 512.
by vendor, 513.
specific performance of contract for, 514—519.
payment of purchase-money into court, 519.
assignment of contract to purchase land, 520.
invalid sales, 520.
failure of sale for want of title, 520.
eviction of purchaser, 520.
qualified covenants for title, 521.
breach of covenants for title, damages for, 523.
non-payment of purchase-money after conveyance executed, 524.
sale of pretenced titles, 525.
avoidance of sales, 525.
fraudulent concealment, 525.
sale subject to any defect or error, 526.
with all faults, 526.
stamp duty on, 1341.

SALE OF OFFICES,
illegality of, 86, 91.
See ILLEGAL CONTRACTS.

SALE OF PENSIONS,
illegality of, 92.

SALE OF SHARES OR STOCK,
authentication of contracts for, 29.
specific performance of, 293, 649.
in joint-stock companies, 639.
stamp on, 1350, 1351.

SALE WITH ALL FAULTS,
of land, 526.
of goods, 577.

SALES, ILLEGAL. See ILLEGAL CONTRACTS.

SALVAGE CHARGES,
meaning of, under maritime law, 1196, note (u).
when recoverable under suing and labouring clause, 1199.

SALVAGE SERVICES,
nature of, 869.
claim for, when payable, 869, 870.
services must be successful, 869.
misconduct of salvors when a bar to, 869.
rendered by passenger, 870.
by seamen of ship salved, 870.
by pilot, 870.
by crew of lifeboat, 870.
where salving and salved ship belong to same owner, 870, 871.
separate awards against cargo and freight, 871.
agreements for, 871.
must be reasonable at time made, 871.
by seamen to abandon right to salvage, invalidity of, 871.
exception, 871.
avoidance of, on ground of compulsion or fraud, 871.
forwarding of wrecked passengers by captain, 872.

SAMPLE,
sale by, 570.
not sale in market overt, 593.

SATISFACTION. See ACCORD AND SATISFACTION.

SCHOOL,
covenant not to keep, forfeiture on breach of, 711.

SCRIP,
sale of, 638.
executory contracts for, 639.
stamp on contract notes for, 1350.
transfer of foreign, 1289.
See SHARES.

SCRIPHOLDERS,
rights of, 645.

SEALING,
of deeds, 19.
acknowledgment of, when to be made, 19.
by corporations, by common seal, 373.
of lease, effect of non-sealing by lessee, 670.
by lessor, 671.

SEAMEN'S WAGES,
recovery of, under Merchant Shipping Act, 936.
effect of promise to pay, for increased exertions, 4.

SEA-RISKS,
covered by policy of insurance, 1176.

SEASON TICKET,
railway, forfeiture of deposit, 1065, 1066.

SEAWORTHINESS,
in insurance cases, 1162.
warranty of, implied in voyage policy, 1162.
where policy attaches on ship in port or on voyage, 1162.
where voyage in different stages, 1162.
when ship deemed to be seaworthy, 1162, 1164.
no implied warranty to continue seaworthy, 1162, 1163.
conditions precedent to insurer's right to recover, 1162.
warranty that ship fit to carry goods insured, 1163.
in case of insurance on deck cargo, 1163.
presumptions of unseaworthiness, 1163.
questions of fact for jury, 1165.
in case of goods, when not implied, 1165.

SECRETARY,
of railway company, contracts with, 378.
of joint-stock company, 389.
See PUBLIC OFFICERS.

SECURITIES. See BILL OF EXCHANGE.
for money won at play, not absolutely void, 108.
specialty or simple contract, accord and satisfaction by, 185.
for due performance of contracts, 884.

SEDUCTION. See ILLEGAL CONTRACTS.

SEPARATION,
of husband and wife, 427, 1324, 1325.
by reason of adultery, 427.
by desertion of husband by wife, 428.
of wife by husband, 428.
what amounts to expulsion, 430.
by mutual consent, 430.
judicial, effect of, 431.
costs of, liability of husband for, 429.
of husband and wife, illegality of contract providing for, 78, 1324.

SEPARATION DEEDS,
nature of, 1327.
subsequent reconciliation affecting covenants in, 1326.

SERVANT,
who is a, 916.
purchase by, liability of master for, 337.
theft by depositary's, 846, 900.
by mandatary's, 864.
liability of bailee for negligence of, 901.
master for negligence causing injury to, 921, 922.
injury to, by fellow-servant, non-liability of master, 926.
duties of, 929.
character, no legal obligation on master to give, 941.
false, offence of giving, 941, note (x).
title of, to clothes by hiring and service, 941.
theft by, of common carrier, 1041.
liabilities of common carrier's servants, 1042, 1043.
implied authority to bind railway company by special contract, 1050.
See MASTER AND SERVANT.

SERVICE AT WILL. See MASTER AND SERVANT.
what constitutes, 921.

SERVICES,
in connection with transfer of interest in land, 25, 26.
contracts for, prohibited, 114.
part payment by performance of, 216.
informal contracts for, by railway companies, 388.
See WORK AND SERVICES.

SET-OFF,
in bankruptcy, 275.

SETTLEMENT OF ACCOUNTS,
amounting to payment, 216.
See PAYMENT—ACCOUNT STATED.

SETTLEMENTS,
promises of, 1316.
contracts in fraud of, 1317.
marriage, 1318.
stamp duty on, 1353.

SEWERS RATE,
deduction of, from rent, 677.

SHAREBROKER,
duties and responsibilities of, 950, 951.
See AGENT—BROKERS.

SHAREHOLDERS,
in registered joint-stock companies, 379, 380.
in partnerships, authorised to sue and be sued in name of public officer, 388.
in mining companies, liabilities of, 389.
proof of parties being shareholders, 390.
in banking co-partnerships, 391, 392.

SHARES,
authentication of contracts for sale of, 28, 29.
not goods within Sale of Goods Act, 29.
not an interest in land within Statute of Frauds, 29.
application for, withdrawal before allotment, 15.
irregular allotment of, when voidable, 137.
purchase of shares by infants, when valid, 411.
actions for not replacing stock, 815.
specific performance, 292, 640, 649.
nature of, in limited companies, 636.
title to, 638, 647.
in mining companies, 637.
executory contracts for sale of, 639.
agreements for transfer of, 640.
mode of performance, 641.
time of performance, 644.
implied undertakings and indemnities, 644.
payment of calls, 644.
scripholders, rights of, 645.
transfer deeds, 647.
registration of forged transfers, 647.
transfer of foreign scrip, 1289.
mortgages of, 841.
void by reason of reputed ownership, 841, 842.
lien upon, 842.
equitable title, how effected, 842.
what constitutes valid charge, 842.

SHERIFF,
sale of goods by, no warranty of title on, 561.

SHERIFFS' OFFICERS,
expressly employed by solicitor to execute process, 953.
action against solicitor for fees, 953.

SHIP,
meaning of word, in marine policy, 1130.

SHIP-BROKERS,
authority of, to bind shipowner by warranty, 343.
right of, to commission, 958.
See AGENT.

SHIPBUILDING,
when general property in unfinished ship vests in employer, 885.

SHIPMASTER,
authority of, to hypothecate the ship for repairs and supplies, 339, 341, 835, 836.
by creating a lien on ship, 834.
to hypothecate cargo, 838.
to pledge credit of shipowners, 339.
to sign bills of lading, 907.

SHIPMASTER—continued.
limitation of authority of, 339.
general authority, when not revocable, 341.
where ship let to freight, 341.
where charter-party amounts merely to contract of carriage, 341, 616.
when servant of charterer, 341, 616.
liability of shipowner upon contracts made by, 340, 341.
lien of, 966.

SHIPOWNERS,
liability of, upon contracts made by shipmasters, 340, 341.
rights and liabilities of, upon charter-parties, 969—1014.
under bill of lading, 980.
limitation of liability of, by special contract, 985.
by statute, 990.
delivery of goods by, implied undertaking for, 992.
lien of, for freight, 998.
consignee primarily liable for freight, 999.
See CARRIERS—CHARTER-PARTY.

SHIP'S HUSBAND,
authority of, 343.
receipt of money by, 955.
lien of, 966.

"SHIP'S TACKLE AND FURNITURE,"
what is included in term, 1127.

SHIPS,
mortgage of and shares in, 831—833.
hypothecation of, by bottomry bond, 834.
repairs to, authority of master to pledge owner's credit for, 339, 340.
limitation of authority, 339—342.
illegal pledges of certificates of registry of, 839.
letting and hiring of, by charter-parties, 970.
parties to charter-parties, 971, 972.
payment of freight or hire, 993.
calculation of freight, 996.
time freight, 997.
lien for freight, 998.
See CHARTER-PARTY—CARRIER—FREIGHT—WORK AND SERVICES.

SHIPWRIGHTS,
lien of, 967.

SIGNATURE,
of deed, 19.
wife cannot bind husband by, 423.
what is sufficient, within Statute of Frauds, 39.
by agents, 41, 327, 528, 1301.
See FRAUDS, STATUTE OF.
obtained by fraud, 129.
of acknowledgments within Statute of Limitations, 211.

SIMONY,
contracts amounting to, invalidity of, 93.
statutes prohibiting, 93, 94.

SIMPLE CONTRACT. See CONSIDERATION—CONTRACT.
nature of, 2.
parties entitled to enforce, 308.
parties liable upon, 313.
See PARTIES TO CONTRACTS.

SIMPLE CONTRACT—continued.
limitation of actions upon, 202.
acknowledgment of, extending period of limitation for, 211.
transfer of, by death, 241.

SINGER,
undertaking by, to rehearse, prevention through illness, 55.

SKILLED WORKMEN,
want of skill in borrower of chattel, 812.
in gratuitous mandatary, 861.
liabilities of, 889.
dismissal of, for incompetency, 931.

SLEEPING PARTNER. See DORMANT PARTNER.

SLIP. See MARINE INSURANCE.
reference to, although unstamped, 1107, 1124.

SMALL TENEMENTS,
recovery of possession of, 739.
by summary process before justices, 739.
under County Courts Act, 739, 740.

SMUGGLING,
sale of goods for, right of vendor to recover on, 112.
when foreigner not entitled to recover on, 112.
adventure, insurance on, 1159.
premium, when recoverable, 1159.

SNOW,
blocking railway, duty of company to forward passengers, 1024.

SOCIETY. See BENEFIT BUILDING SOCIETY—FREEHOLD LAND SOCIETY—FRIENDLY SOCIETY—INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETY.

SOLICITOR,
uncertificated, non-recovery of costs, fees, &c., by, 116.
acts done by, binding his client, 116.
payment to, in legal proceedings, is payment to client, 159.
authority of, as agent, to bind client by compromise, 344, 891.
when retainer is at an end, 344, 891.
receipt of money by, on account of firm, 850, 851.
services by, as trustee, 872.
duty of, on acceptance of retainer, 891.
in respect of conduct of action, 891, 952.
to exercise reasonable skill and care, 890, 893, 952.
to act with fidelity to client, 891, 892.
on receipt of deposit as agent of vendor of real estate, 468, 953.
as to receipt of money for investment, 953.
to deliver up client's papers in good order, 953.
agreements by, with clients, under Solicitors Act, 894, 895.
under Solicitors' Remuneration Act. 895. adjustment of accounts by, with client, effect of, 895.
gift by client to, when valid, 952.
town, relation between, and country solicitor, 953.
delivery of bill of costs by, one month before action, 953.
negligence of, 890.
in conduct of proceedings, 892, 893, 953.
in compromising action, 893.
money expended subsequent to, non-recovery of, 953.
negligence of agent, partner, or clerk, liability for, 891.

SOLICITOR—continued.
liability of, to sheriff's officers employed to execute process, 953.
receipt of money by, when acting as agent to country solicitor, 956.
lien of, extent of, 963, 964.
when it attaches, 963.
when it does not attach, 965.
under Solicitors Act, 1860...963.
property recovered or preserved, 963, 964.
as between London solicitor and country solicitor, 864.
London agent and country solicitor's client, 864.
when acting for mortgagor and mortgagee, 965.
for preparing marriage settlement, 965.
on client's documents and papers, 964—966.
where London agent employed, 964.
abandonment of, by taking security from client, 966.

SPECIAL DAMAGES,
when recoverable, 278, 281.
cost of legal proceedings, when recoverable, 283, 632.
for breach of warranty, 281, 629, 631.
re-sale with warranty, 632.

SPECIALTY DEBTS,
limitation of actions for recovery of, 202.
what are, 203.
acknowledgments of, extending period of limitation, 210.

SPECIFIC APPROPRIATION, of securities, 1299.

SPECIFICATION,
in building contracts, performance of, 880, 881.
deviations from, recovery of extras, 884.

SPECIFIC DELIVERY OF CHATTELS,
orders for, when wrongfully detained, 300.

SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE,
of contracts, 292—307.
when granted, 292.
of sale of lands, 292, 293, 514.
of goods, 292, 628.
of article having pretium affectionis, 292, 300, 629.
of chattels of specific character, 292, 628.
of stocks and shares, 292, 649.
when not generally granted, 293.
matter of discretion for Court, 293, 299.
conditional contracts, not granted unless condition fulfilled, 293.
mutual relief to both parties, 293.
accessory agreement, not decreed if principal agreement cannot be enforced, 294.
inconvenience to public, no ground for refusing, 294.
trustee promising to leave money to cestui que trust, 293.
cases in which relief has been granted, 294.
sale of goodwill of business, &c., 294.
sale of patent, 294.
contract to insure against fire, 294.
agreements for annuities, 294.
for partition of joint property, 294.
to grant lease, 294.
evidenced by draft lease, 294.
to renew lease, 294.

SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE—continued.
cases in which relief has been granted—continued.
agreements for lease of undivided moiety of mineral property, 295.
for option to purchase property, 295.
to erect buildings where not yet planned, 295.
to execute mortgage, 295.
contracts of partnership in cases of part performance, 295.
contract to lend money, not granted, 295.
articles of apprenticeship, not granted, 295.
agreements to refer not granted, 295.
for purchase of lease, 296.
in cases of building contracts, 295.
of charter-parties, 296.
injunction against improper employment of ship, 296, 303.
agreements in consideration of marriage, 296.
promises of portions and settlements, 296.
deeds of separation, 297.
covenants of husband making provision for adulterous wife, 297.
of contracts under seal without consideration, 297.
of contracts between incompetent parties, 297.
illegal or immoral contracts, 297.
contracts founded on fraud, 297.
on clear mistake, 297.
contracts doubtful as to extent defendant intended to be charged, 297.
of contracts after rectification, 298.
proviso for penalties or liquidated damages, 298.
of uncompleted contract, 298.
agreements with auctioneers or agents for sale of goods, when granted, 299.
discretion of Court, how exercised, 299.
oral evidence not admissible to control, alter, or discharge original contract, 299.
performance sub modo, 300.
of statements and representations forming foundation of contract, 300.
orders for specific delivery of chattels wrongfully detained, 292, 300.
injunction to compel performance or restrain breach of contract, 300.
to restrain breach of covenants in lease, 301.
not to practise or trade within certain limits, 301.
breach of mutual covenant not to ring church bell, 302.
of distinct negative stipulations, 302.
of covenants not to build, plant, or inclose, &c., 303.
to compel parties to abide by their own statements, 306.
of foreign contracts, 307.
principle on which, granted, 302, 304.
in case of option to take liquidated damages, 307.
of contract for sale of goods, 628.
of purchase and sale of shares, &c., 649.
See INJUNCTION.

SPIRITUOUS LIQUORS,
sale of, when price not recoverable, 110.
regulation of, by statute, 111.
in emigrant ships, prohibited, 111.

STAKEHOLDERS,
recovery of money in hands of, 123, 849.
deposits by two persons jointly, 848.

STAKEHOLDERS—continued.
liabilities of, 849.
power of, to compel adverse claimants to interplead, 124, 850.
payment into court by, under Trustee Act, 850.
See DEPOSIT—BAILMENT WITHOUT REWARD.

STAMP,
sufficiency of, appeal against ruling as to, 1334.

STAMP DUTIES,
illegal contract as to, 90.
exemption of acknowledgment from, 214.
interpretation of terms in Stamp Act, 1327.
general principles with respect to stamps, 1327.
instruments relating to Crown property, 1328.
how instruments to be written and stamped, 1328.
stamping after execution, 1328.
instruments chargeable with more than one duty, 1330.
several deeds on one sheet, 1330.
appropriated stamps, 1333.
facts affecting duty to be set forth, 1333.
valuation of foreign money, 1333.
of stock and marketable securities, 1333.
effect of statement of value, 1333.
denoting stamp, 1333.
reception in evidence of unstamped instruments, 1334.
use of adhesive stamp, 1335.
cancellation of adhesive stamps, 1335.
re-stamping altered documents, 1335.
admissibility of unstamped documents for collateral purposes, 1337.
stamp duties on contracts executed abroad, 1338.
stamps on particular documents, 1339.
on deeds, 1339.
progressive duty, abolition of, 1339.
attested copies, 1339.
duplicates and counterparts, 1339.
purchases of property under statutory authority, 1340.
conveyances or transfers on sale, 1341.
contracts not operating as conveyances, &c., 1345.
mortgages, 1346.
marketable securities, 1349.
foreign share certificates, 1349.
contract notes, 1351.
sale or purchase of options, 1351.
covenants, 1353.
exchanges, partitions, &c., 1353.
settlements, 1353.
in case of alternative duties, 1354.
revocations of uses and trusts, 1355.
releases or renunciations, 1355.
lease or tack, 1355.
under Finance Act, 1910...1356.
sale of vesture, herbage, and growing grass, 1358.
agreements for leases, 1358.
assignments and surrenders, 1358.
agreements to surrender, 1358.
apprenticeship, 1358.
charter-parties, 1360.
transfers of ships, 1360.
agreements, 1360.
exemptions, 1362.
sale of goods and chattels, 1363.
guarantees and indemnities, 1365.
exemption of, for payment of goods, 1365.

STAMP DUTIES—continued.
stamps on particular documents—continued.
delivery orders, abolition of, 1365.
warrants for goods, 1365.
Government stock, transfer of, when exempt, 1366.
share warrants, 1366.
stock certificates, 1366.
orders or authorities for transfer of mining shares, 1367.
scrip certificates, 1367.
contracts for sale of land and interests in land, 1368.
for sale of fixtures, 1368.
of hiring and service, 1368.
for letting and hiring of taskwork, 1368.
calculation of value of agreement, 1369.
contracts of uncertain value, 1370.
bare offers and proposals, 1370.
bare admissions and acknowledgments, 1370.
acknowledgments of debts in writing, 1372.
bare licences and authorities, 1372.
contracts of deposit and pledge, 1373.
bank notes, 1373.
bills of exchange and promissory notes, 1374.
what term "bill" or "note" includes, 1375.
post-dated cheques, 1378.
what instruments are bills of exchange, 1378.
bills of lading, 1379.
contracts of insurance, 1380.
marine insurance, 1380.
against accidents, 1382.
against damage to property, 1382, 1383.
legal alterations in marine policy, 1381.
penalty if marine policy unstamped, 1381.
upon any life or lives, 1384.
receipts, 1385.

STANDING ROOM,
in factories, letting of, when amounting to a demise, 764.

STATUTE OF FRAUDS. See FRAUDS.

STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS. See LIMITATIONS.

STATUTES. See ACT OF PARLIAMENT.
contracts made illegal by, 88.
implied contract to pay money arising out of, 455.

STATUTES MERCHANT AND STAPLE,
contracts by, are contracts by record, 22.

STEVEDORE,
stowage of cargo by, duty of shipowner as to, 978, 979.
injury to goods by negligence of, 988.

STOCK. See SHARES.
transfer of, 647.
damages recoverable in actions for not replacing, 815.
mortgage of, 841.
lien on, 842.
stamp on certificates of, 1366.

STOCKBROKERS,
authority of, 343.
rights and liabilities of, 950, 951.
See BROKERS—AGENTS.

STOCK EXCHANGE,
custom of, undisclosed principal not affected by, 323.

STOCK EXCHANGE RULES,
authority of broker to deal according to, 343.
mode of transacting business according to, 639, 641.
executory contracts for sale of shares, effect of, 639, 643.
position of jobbers, 643.
time of performance, 644.
rights of scripholders, 645.
transfer deeds, validity of, 646.
share certificates, evidence of title, 647.
registration of forged transfers, effect of, 648.

STOLEN BANK-NOTE,
payment with, when valid, 156, 1308.

STOLEN GOODS,
sale of, in market overt, 593.
See MARKET OVERT.
re-vesting of property in, on conviction of thief, 594.

STOPPAGE IN TRANSITU,
unpaid seller's right of, 607, 612.
nature of right of, 612.
duration of, 613.
goods in hands of forwarding agents, 613.
goods in hands of purchaser's agents for custody, 615.
conversion of carrier into agent for custody on behalf of purchaser, 615.
delivery of goods on buyer's ship, 616.
stoppage of part of goods sold, 617.
mode of exercising right of, 618.
by taking actual possession of goods, 618.
by notice of stoppage, 618.
intervention of rights of sub-purchasers, 618.
effect of, on contract, 620.
when vendor may re-sell, 621.
extinguishment of right of stoppage, 617, 618.

STOWAGE,
letting and hiring of places of, 764.
of goods, liability of warehousemen, 864, 865.
of cargo by charterer or by stevedore, 978, 979.

STRANDING,
in marine insurance, 1201.
what constitutes, 1201, 1202.
liability of insurer for excepted losses, 1201.

STRANGER,
payment by, not necessarily a discharge of debtor, 157.
payment by or to, barring Statute of Limitations, 219.
to contract, no action maintainable by, 308.
receipt of money by agent to be paid to, 355, 769.
transfer of deposit to, 847.
remedy of depositor, 847.

STRAW,
covenant to consume, on the farm, 746.
damages for breach of, 753.
See HAY AND STRAW.

SUB-AGENTS,
receipt of money by, liability for money, 955.

SUB-PURCHASE,
of goods, nature and effect of, 611, 618.

SUBSCRIBERS,
to clubs, liabilities of, 395, 396.

SUBSTITUTION. See ACCORD AND SATISFACTION—NOVATION AND SUBSTITUTION.

SUFFERANCE,
tenancy by, what constitutes, 663.

SUING AND LABOURING CLAUSE,
expenses recoverable under, 1203.
particular charges recoverable under, 1196.
salvage charges, when recoverable under, 1196, 1199.

SUNDAY SALES, and trading, illegality of contracts made in exercise of trade, 113.

SURETYSHIP,
contract of, 1079—1105.
See GUARANTEE.

SURGEON,
disabilities of, when unregistered, 115.
right of, to remuneration, 873, 890.
negligence and want of skill of, 890, 897.

SURRENDER OF LEASES. See LANDLORD.
how made and authenticated, 43, 716.
deeds and agreements of, 716.
by act and operation of law, acting as estoppel, 717.
acceptance of new lease or of new tenant, 718.
by joint tenant, effect of, 719.
non-extinguishment of derivative estates by, 720.
effect of, on existing breaches of covenant, 720.
stamp duty on, 1358.

SURVEYORS,
approval of work by, payment dependent on, 878.
relief against corrupt decisions of, 878.
negligence of, 890, 896.

SURVIVORSHIP,
of executors and administrators, liability on, 257.
of joint contractors, liability on, 260.
of wife, rights on death of husband, 432.
of husband, rights on death of wife, 433.

TACK,
stamp duty on, 1355, 1356.

TASKWORK,
executory contracts for, 868.
implied promise of remuneration for, 868.
honorary services, employment by custom, 873.
rights of employer and workman, 874.
time of performance, 875.
See TIME OF PERFORMANCE.
entire performance of, condition precedent to payment, 876.
divisible and apportionable work, 876.
approval of work before payment, 877, 878.
acceptance of defective work by employer, 879, 880.
See CONDITIONS PRECEDENT—PART PERFORMANCE.
abatement of contract price for work partly executed, 882.

TASKWORK—continued.
destruction of materials and of work before payment, 884.
loss of material and of price of work, 884.
deviations from contract, liability for extras, 886.
prevention of completion of work by employer, 887.
damages recoverable for, 914.
lien for work done, 887.
liabilities of workmen, 874, 888.
useless, defective, and unskilful work, 889, 890.
re-delivery of materials furnished by employer, 912.
See BUILDING CONTRACTS—MASTER AND SERVANT—WORK AND SERVICES.

TAXES,
deduction of, from rent, 677.

TECHNICAL TERMS,
use of, in contracts, explanation of, 70, 71.

TELEGRAM,
acceptance of offers by, 18.
contracts by, Post Office only agent for transmitter, 18.

TELEGRAPH CLERKS,
authority of, extent of, 339.
sender of telegram not bound by mistakes of, 339.

TENANCY,
how proved, 653.
at will, definition of, 661.
creation of, 661.
determination of, 662.
by sufferance, definition of, 663.
difference between, and tenancy at will, 663.
right of entry by landlord, when barred, 664.
See LANDLORD AND TENANT.

TENANT,
duty of, not to fell timber trees, 691.
to preserve landmarks and boundaries, 693.
See LANDLORD AND TENANT.

TENANT RIGHT,
as to away-going crops, &c., 740.

TENANTS IN COMMON. See JOINT TENANTS.

TENDER,
of performance of conditions and contracts, 146.
of money, 167.
what amounts to valid tender, 167, 168.
offers of payment not amounting to, 169.
conditional, 169.
of conveyance for execution before action for non-execution, 507.
waiver of, 145.
of rent before distress, effect of, 781.
before sale of distress, 801.
to whom to be made, 801.
of debt extinguishing lien, 910.

TERMS OF ART,
interpretation of, 71.
trade acceptations, 71.

TERMS OF YEARS. See LANDLORD—SURRENDER.

THEFT,
of goods of guest at inn, 766.
of things let to hire by servants of bailee, 900.
distinction between theft and robbery, 900.
of things lent, 807.
restoration, or its equivalent, 813.
of deposits by servant of depositary, 846.
in cases of gratuitous commission, by servant of bailee, 864, 900.
from carriers by water, 984.
by servants of common carriers, 1041.

THIRD PARTY,
services to, at request of promisor, good consideration, 7.
payment by, when a discharge of debtor, 157.
rights of, on contract, 308.
fraudulent representation through, 573.

TILLAGES,
rights of outgoing and incoming tenants, 740—746.

TIMBER TREES,
sale of, when contract for, an interest in land, 26.
preservation of, by tenants, 691.
right of landlord to cut, 693.
right of property in, 707.

TIME,
computation of, in legal documents and contracts, 57.
covenants not to sue for limited time, 177.
when of essence of contract on sale of realty, 502.
on sale of goods, 141, 542.

TIME FREIGHT,
nature of, 997.
how calculated, 997.

TIME OF PERFORMANCE,
of contracts, 140.
for sale of lands, 502.
enlargement, 505.
for sale of goods, 141, 542.
enlargement of time, 544.
for sale of shares, 644.
for works and services, 875.
for buildings, 883.
of charter-parties, 976.
of conditions precedent in charter-parties, 976.
effect of extending, on surety, 1093.
of promises to marry, 1313.

TIME POLICY. See MARINE INSURANCE.

TIME TABLES,
representations by railway company by, 1023.

TITHE RENT-CHARGE,
illegal contract to pay, 90.
liability of landlord for, 677.
non-payment of, by out-going tenant, 747.

TITLE,
to realty, 483—494.
registration of, under Land Transfer Act, 483.
production and proof of vendor's, 484, 487.
abstract of title, 485.
period for which title ought to be shown, 488.
waiver of proof of title, 491.
to leaseholds, 489.

TITLE—continued.
waiver of objections to, 491.
production of title deeds, 493.
loss of title deeds after delivery of abstract, 494.
want of, in vendor, 520.
recovery of purchase-money on eviction, 520.
covenants for, qualified, 521.
under Land Transfer Act, 521.
damages for breach of, 523.
sale of pretenced, 525.
to chattels, conditions and warranties as to, 559—562, 592.
implied undertaking as to, 559.
sale by person not the owner, 592.
buyer only acquires seller's title, 592.
sale in market overt, 593.
sale under voidable title, 594.
to scrip, shares, &c., 638.
implied warranty of, by pledgor, 821.
to clothes by hiring and service, 941.

TITLE DEEDS,
production of, 487, 493.
loss of, after delivery of abstract, 494.

TORT,
actions of, founded on contract, parties to, 290.

TOTAL LOSS,
abandonment by insurer on, 1190.
See MARINE INSURANCE.

TRADE,
contracts in restraint of, 95—103.
See RESTRAINT OF TRADE.

TRADE ACCEPTATIONS,
interpretation of, 71.

TRADE DESCRIPTION,
warranty of genuineness of, 570.

TRADE MARK,
warranty of genuineness of, 569.
counterfeiting, 574.
implied warranty on sale of marked goods, 574.
fraudulent use of, with intent to deceive, 574.

TRADE USAGES. See CUSTOM.

TRADES UNIONS,
agreements by, not void or voidable, 96.
agreements between members of, enforcement of, 97.
recovery of money payable under rules of, 97.
contracts with, statutory provision for regulating, 404.

TRADING COMPANIES,
under management of trustees or directors, 369, 378, 387, 388.
See BANKING CO-PARTNERSHIP—JOINT-STOCK COMPANY.

TRADING CORPORATIONS. See CORPORATION.

TRANSFER,
of interest in land, 22.
of contracts by assignment, 221.
See ASSIGNMENT.
of covenants. See COVENANTS RUNNING WITH THE LAND.
transfer by death, 241.
See HEIR AT LAW—EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS.

TRANSFER—continued.
transfer by marriage, 261.
See MARRIED WOMEN.
transfer by bankruptcy, 267.
See BANKRUPTCY.
of property in chattels, 579.
See SALE OF GOODS.
by bill of lading, 589.
of deposit to stranger, 847.
remedy of depositor, 847.
of bailment, 910.
of bill of lading, 1013.
of ship, exemption from stamp duty of, 1360.

TRANSFER DEED. See TRANSFER OF SHARES.

TRANSFER OF SHARES,
agreements for, 640.
mode of performance, 641.
time of performance, 644.
implied undertakings and indemnities annexed to contracts for sale of shares, 644.
payment of calls, 644.
rights of scripholders, 645.
transfer deeds, 647.
title of holder evidenced by certificates, 638, 647.
registration of forged transfers, 648.
specific performance of contracts for purchase and sale of stock and shares, 649.

TRANSITUS. See STOPPAGE IN TRANSITU.

TRAVELLERS,
who are, at inns, 769.
right of, to commission for orders, 959.

TREASURER,
of joint stock companies, contracts with. See PUBLIC OFFICERS.

TREES. See TIMBER TREES.
landlord's right of property in, 707.

TRUCK ACT,
illegality of truck system, 117.
wages to be paid in coin under, 117.
application of, to certain trades and manufactures, 117.
contract for medical attendance to artificer allowed, 119.
extension of, to hosiery manufacture, 119.
to workmen, under Employers' Liability Act, 118.
allowances in addition to wages to servants in husbandry, 120.
deductions for fines, damaged goods or materials, provisions as to, 120.

TRUST DEEDS,
in fraud of creditors, 87.

TRUST ESTATES,
transfer of, on death, 243.

TRUST MONEY,
in hands of bankrupt, does not pass to trustee, 270.
deposit of, with bankers, 855.
constructive notice of trust, 856.
loss of, in hands of bankers, 856.

TRUSTEE ACT, 1893.
payment into court by stakeholder under, 850.

TRUSTEES,
cannot purchase trust estate, 131, 132.
parties to contracts under seal, 312.
contracts by, on behalf of cestui que trust, 312.
partners acting as, 358.
for partnerships, contracts with, 358.
of trading associations, restriction of shareholders' liability, 369.
of public works, contracts with, 397.
liability of, for constructive fraud, 131, 132.
payment to one of two, effect of, 163.
payment of interest by, effect of, 219.
payment by, by mistake, 462.
specific performance against, when refused, 294.
services by, remuneration for, 872.
bills and notes by, 1306.
account stated by, with cestui que trust, effect of, 471.
no limitation in cases of express trust, 220.
See DIRECTORS.

TRUSTEES IN BANKRUPTCY. See BANKRUPTCY.

TRUSTEES OF PUBLIC WORKS,
contracts with, when trustees personally liable, 397.

ULTRA VIRES,
contracts made, by corporations, 374, 377, 382.
by promoters of company, before incorporation, 387.

UNDERLESSEE,
payment of ground rent by, deduction from rent, 676.
holding over by, liability of lessee for, 732.

UNDERTAKING. See GUARANTEE.

UNDERWRITERS,
of policies, liabilities of, 1204.
See MARINE INSURANCE.

UNDISCHARGED BANKRUPTS,
rights of, in respect of contracts made after bankruptcy, 274.

UNDISCLOSED PRINCIPALS. See AGENTS.

UNDISCOVERED BREACHES,
of contract, time when limitation begins to run, 209.

UNDUE INFLUENCE OVER YOUNG PERSONS, contracts avoided by, 413, 414.

UNILATERAL PROMISES,
and undertakings, what are, 1, 2.

UNIONS. See TRADES UNIONS.

UNPAID SELLER,
of goods, rights of, 607.
See SALE OF GOODS.

UNREASONABLE CONDITIONS,
in special contracts by railway companies, 1046.

UNSOUNDNESS,
in horses, what is, 548.

UNSTAMPED DOCUMENTS,
admissibility of, in evidence, on payment of penalty, 1334.
for collateral purposes, 1337.

UPON,
meaning of word, in contract, 54.

USAGE. See CUSTOM AND USAGE.

USE AND OCCUPATION,
actions for, 681.
measure of damages in, 750.
constructive, 682.
by under-tenant or under-lessee, 682, 683.
liability of corporations for, 683.
conversion of tortious holding into permissive occupation, 684.
by one of several joint tenants or tenants in common, 684.
See LANDLORD AND TENANT.

USUAL COVENANTS. See COVENANTS. meaning of, in agreement for lease, 57.

VALUATION AND ADJUSTMENT,
of losses under policies of insurance, 1203, 1208.
See MARINE INSURANCE.

VALUERS,
liability of, for negligence or want of skill, 896.

VENDORS. See SALE OF GOODS—SALE OF LANDS.
implied warranties by. See WARRANTY.

VESSELS. See CHARTER-PARTY—MARINE INSURANCE—SHIPS—SHIPMASTER—SHIPOWNERS.

VIADUCTS,
dangerous, liability of railway company for, 1018, 1066.

VICE,
in horses, proof of, 549.

VIS MAJOR. See ACT OF GOD.

VOID CONTRACTS,
at common law, 75—88.
by statute, 88—97, 103—120.
See ILLEGAL CONTRACTS.

VOID LIMITATION OF LIABILITY,
in deeds, 48.
by common carriers, 1035.

VOID MARRIAGES,
what constitute, 1319, 1320.

VOID SALES,
of realty, 520—526.
See SALE OF LANDS.
of goods, 572—578.
See SALE OF GOODS.
recovery of purchase-money on, of realty, 526.

VOIDABLE CONTRACTS. See ILLEGAL CONTRACTS.

VOLUNTARY CONVEYANCE, defrauding creditors, illegality of, 87.

WAGERING POLICIES, of marine assurance, 1109.
of life assurance, 1223.

WAGERS. See GAMING.

WAGES. See TRUCK ACT. payment of, amount recoverable, 935.
deductions not allowed, 117, 835.
presumption of payment of, 936.
See PAYMENT.
summary remedy for recovery of, 936.
under Merchant Shipping Act, 936.
See MASTER AND SERVANT—WORK AND SERVICES.

WAIVER,
of performance of conditions precedent, 55, 145.
of demand of performance of contracts, 144.
of performance of contracts, release by, 171.
of proof of, and objections to, title to realty, 491, 492.
of forfeiture of lease, 713.
lessor's right of election, 713.
of notice to quit, 731.
of forfeiture of policy of life insurance, 1231.
of bills of exchange, 1283.

WAREHOUSEMEN,
contracts with, 310.
acceptance and receipt by, binding contract of sale, 537.
delivery by, 600.
stoppage in transitu of goods in hands of, 615.
safe keeping of goods intrusted to, to be kept, 864, 865.
railway companies acting as, with regard to passengers' luggage, 865, 1035.
lien of, 908.
goods in warehouse by carriers, 1050, 1051.
insurance by, against fire, 1220.
See WHARFINGERS.

WARNING,
and notice to leave, 931.
See MASTER AND SERVANT.

WARRANTY,
oral, when evidence of, is admissible, 65, 66.
by agent, 334, 554.
representations, not amounting to, 336.
express, definition of, 545.
pending negotiations, 545.
private representations prior to sale by auction, 545.
representations amounting to warranty, 548.
on sale of horse, 547.
unsoundness, what constitutes, 548.
manifest defects, proof of, 549.
vice, proof of, 549.
representations not amounting to warranty, 549.
opinion and belief, 550.
proof of warranties, 551.
that party relied on representation, 552.
construction of, 553, 554.
by agents, 554.
distinction between condition and warranty, 545, 554.
when condition to be treated as warranty, 554.
effect of breach by vendor, 557.
implied, on sale of goods, 559.
title, 559.
description, 562.
quality, 558, 564.
quantity, where nothing said as to quality or, 565.
where article sold for specific purpose, 566.

WARRANTY—continued.
implied—continued.
merchantable quality, 568.
on sale of provisions, 569.
that goods are seller's own make, 569.
genuineness of trade-mark, 569.
of trade description as to quantity or country, 570.
on sale by sample, 570.
on sale of marked goods, 574.
fraudulent breach of, 574.
remedy for breach, 629.
damages, measure of, 629, 630.
special damage, 631.
resale with warranty, 632.
cost of legal proceedings, 631, 632.
by letters of furnished houses, implied, 760.
implied, of title, by pledgor, 821.
of authority by agents, 968.
damages for breach of, 968.
representation in charter-party amounting to, 975.
in marine assurance, 1128, 1162, 1165, 1166.
See MARINE INSURANCE.
in fire assurance, 1214.
See FIRE INSURANCE.
in life assurance, 1226.
See LIFE INSURANCE.

WASTE,
liability of tenants and lessees for, extent of, 689.
permissive, liability of tenant for life or for years for, 689.
extent of liability, 690.
non-liability of tenant from year to year for, 692.
commissive, liability of tenant at will for, 689.
of tenant from year to year, 689.
of tenant for years, 691.
extent of liability, 691.
licence to commit, 704.
right of reversioners to enter lands to inspect, 704.
injuries to lands and tenements from fire, amounting to permissive, 704.
damages for, 705.
improvement by tenant no defence to action, 705.
breach of duty by neglect to re-build, 705.
measure of damages, 705.
breach of covenant not to commit waste, 706.
measure of damages, 706.
obstructing reversioner entering on land to inspect waste, 706.
injunction to restrain, 706.
acquiescence in commission of, effect of, 707.
See LANDLORD AND TENANT—FIXTURES.

WASTE LANDS,
inclosure of, by tenants, rights of landlord, 748.

WATER,
wilful breach of contract to supply, 936.
penalty for, 936.

WEEKLY LETTING,
what constitutes, 661.

WEEKLY WAGES,
payment of, presumption as to hiring, 920.

WEIGHTS AND MEASURES, illegal, sale by, void, 108.

WHARFINGERS,
contracts with, by acceptance of delivery orders, 310.
acceptance of goods by, when acceptance of purchaser, 537.
delivery of goods by, holding for safe custody, 600.
goods in hands of, as agents for custody, 537, 615.
when transitus is determined, 615.
liability of, for loss of chattels, 865.
lien of, general, by custom of trade, 908.
extinguishment of, by abandonment of possession, 908, 909.
See DELIVERY ORDER—WAREHOUSEMEN.

WIDOW,
rights of, by survivorship, 432.
on contracts made during coverture, 432, 433.
liability of, on contracts made before marriage, 267.
See MARRIED WOMEN.

WIDOWER,
rights and liabilities of, by survivorship, 433.
See MARRIED WOMEN.

WIFE. See MARRIED WOMEN.

WILL,
tenancy at, definition of, 661.
creation of, 661.
who is a tenant at will, 662.
how determined, 662, 663.
service at, what constitutes, 921.

WINDING-UP,
of limited partnership, 372.
voluntary, effect of winding-up order in case of companies, 385.
power of liquidator to accept shares on sale of company's property, 386.
of insurance companies, 1235.

WORDS,
control figures, 48.
customary meaning of particular, 70.

WORK AND SERVICES,
sufficient consideration to support a promise, 5.
contracts for prohibited services, not enforceable, 114.
implied promise of employer to pay for, 452.
contract by employer to provide, 915.
deposit or simple bailment, 844.
See BAILMENT WITHOUT REWARD.
mandate or gratuitous commission, 860.
payment of expenses necessarily incurred by mandatary, 864.
See MANDATE.
warehousing of chattels for reward, 864.
See WAREHOUSEMEN.
negligent keeping of goods by warehousemen, &c., 865.
loss of chattels by wharfingers, 865.
of cattle by agisters, 866.
distinction between contracts for work and services and contracts of sale, 867.
executory and executed contracts for work, how perfected, 868.
work and services in preserving lost chattel, and restoring it to owner, 868.

WORK AND SERVICES—continued.
salvage services, 869—872.
See SALVAGE SERVICES.
services by trustees, 872.
promises of presents in return for services, 873.
honorary and gratuitous services, 873.
rights and liabilities of employer and workman, 874.
defeasible contracts for work and services, 874.
time of performance, 875.
stipulations as to, under Judicature Act, 875.
entire performance of contract for, condition precedent to payment, 876.
divisible and apportionable work, 876.
building contracts, 876—887.
See BUILDING CONTRACTS.
lien of workmen and artificers for, 887.
liabilities of task-workmen, 888.
implied obligation to do work well, 889.
skilled workmen, 889.
work rendered useless by negligence or incompetence of workmen, 889.
useless and unskilful professional services, 890.
negligence of solicitors, 890—895.
See SOLICITOR.
of barristers, 895.
of surveyors or valuers, 896.
of bankers, 896.
of public officers, 897.
of medical men, 897.
of arbitrators, 899.
wilful selection of unqualified persons, 898.
bailment of materials to be manufactured or repaired, 899.
theft by servants, 900.
distinction between robbery and theft, 900.
loss from negligence of servant of bailee, 901.
loss from negligence of bailor, 901.
concealment of dangerous nature of article bailed, 901.
deposit under special contract, 902.
lien of bailee, 902.
See LIEN.
transfer of bailment, 910.
right of action of joint owners, 913.
re-delivery of materials furnished by employers, 913.
contracts for performance of work, 913.
damages recoverable for breach of, 914.
prevention of performance, 914.
implied promises resulting from, 449—453.
stamp on contracts for, 1368.
See MANUFACTURE—MASTER AND SERVANT.

WORKMEN. See EMPLOYER.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT, 1906, recovery of compensation under, 928.

WRONGFUL DISMISSAL,
actions for, 933.
damages recoverable for, 934, 940.
measure of, 934, 940.
deductions allowed, 935.

YEAR,
authentication of promises not to be performed within, 34.
tenancy from year to, presumption of, 659.
half-yearly tenancy, what constitutes, 661.
waste by tenant from year to, 689, 692.
current year of tenancy, how calculated, 728.
yearly hiring of lodgings, no presumption of, 762.
yearly hirings of servants, when presumed, 918.

YOUNG PERSONS. See INFANT.

THE END.

BRADBURY, AGNEW, & CO. LD., PRINTERS, LONDON AND TONBRIDGE.

21·i·25.
Or 59. v